At the moment when the corpse of Otha was tossed into a pit, a look of distrors overcast the countenance of his son, Abu Hodzeifa (Abu Hugaifah), Mahomet turned kindly to him, and said, Perhaps thou art distinguished for the fathers fate. Not so, O Proplet of the Lord. I do not doubt the justice of my fathers fate, but I knew well his wise and generous heart, and I had trusted that the Lord would have led him to the faith But row that I see him slain and my hope destroyed, it is for that I giver. So the Proplet comforted Abu Hodzeifa and blossed him, and said, 'It is wo'i'

The aimy of Modina, carrying their dead and wounded, retired in the ovening to the valley of Otheil, several miles from Bedr and there Mahomet passed the night. On the morrow the prisoners were brought up before him. As he secutinised each, his eye fell her ely on Nadhr, son of Harish (al Nazribn al Haris). There was death in that glance, whispered Nadhr, trombling, to a hystander. Not so, replied the other, it is but thine own imagination. The unfortunate prisoner thought otherwise, and besought Musab to intercede for him Musab reminded him that he had demed the faith and persecuted Believers. Ahl's said Nadhr, had the Coreish made thes a prisoner, they would never have put thee to death! 'Even were it so,' Mush's scornfully replied, 'I am not as thou art, Islâm hath rent all bonds asunder' Micdâd, the captor, ferring lest the prisoner, and with him the chance of a rich ransom, was about to slip from his hands, cried out, 'The prisoner is mine!' But at this moment the command to 'Strike on his head!' was interposed by Mahomet, who had been watching what passed And, O Lord!' he added, 'do thou of thy bounty grant unto Micdâd a botter prey than this' Nadhr was forthwith beheaded by Ah

"Two days afterwards, about half-way to Medina, Joha, another prisoner, was ordered out for execution. He ventured to expostulate and demand why he should be treated more rigorously than the other captives. Because of thy enmity to God and to His Prophet,' roplied Manomet. 'And my little girll' cried Ocha, in the bitterness of his soul, 'who will take care of her?' 'Hell-firs' exclaimed the heartless conqueror, and on the instant his victim was hewn to the ground. 'Wretch that then wast!' continued Mahomet, 'and persecutor! unbeliever in God, in His Prophet, and in His Book! I give thanks unto the Lord that hath slain thee, and comforted mine eyes thereby.''

Such was the battle of Badr Insignificant in numbers, but most memorable in the annals of Islâm on second of its important results. It was at Badi that "the Prophet" first draw the sword in the assertion of his claim as a commissioned apostle of the Most High God, and the victory is attributed in the Qurân to the direct intervention of the

Almighty See Surah in 11

"Yo have already had a sugn in the meeting of the two hosts. The one host fought in the cause of God, and the other was inhide. To their own eye sight, the infidels six you twice as many as themselves. And food aided with his succour whom He would And in this tilely was a lesson for men endued with disceriment."

Ai-Barzewi, the commentator, says 3,000 augels fought for the Muslims on the battle-field of Badr

Muhammad was received in triumph at al-Madinah, but his 109 was interrupted by the death of his daughter Ruquyah, the divorced wife of 'Utbah ibn Lahab, but who had been afterwards married to Uamān ibn 'Affān On his return to al-Madīnah (A.H. 8), Muhammad found his position much strengthened, and from this time the Qur'ān assumes a rude dictatorial tone. He who at one time only spoke as a searcher after truth, now demands unheatting obedience from the whole country of Arabia.

The Jews, however, were still unimpressed and were slow to acknowledge Muhammad, although he claimed to be but the teacher of the creed of Abraham Muhammad sought but a plausible excuse for a rupture with the sons if Israel and an opportunity seen presented itself. A Muslim gurl was insulted by a youth of a Jawish tribe, and, taking advantage of the circumstance the whole tribe was attacked, proscribed and banished Their houses and lands were confiscated and divided amongst the Faithful In the course of the same year, Ka'b ibn al-Ashraf a Jew, was assassinated because he annoyed the Muslims with his verses About this time, Muhammad married his fourth wife, Hafsah, the daughter of 'Umar the celebrated Khalifah In the early part of the year, al-Hasan, the son of Fatumah and 'Alı, was born

The tidings of the defeat at Badr aroused the bitterest feelings of the Quraish They advanced upon al-Madmah 3,000 strong In ten days the Makkan army reached Zu l-hal-fah, four miles south of al-Madinau, and then moving northwards, they encamped at Uhnd, an isolated mountain three miles north east of the city Muhammad, clad in armour, led out his army of 1,000 men, and halted for the night, and at early dawn advanced on Uhud He was soon abandoned by Abdu llah, the chief of the Hypocrites [MUNAFI-QUE] with 300 of his followers

Khālid ibn al Walid a name afterwards famous in Muslim history commanding the right wing of the Quraish, attacked the Muslims, and raised the cry "Muhammad is slain" The confusion of the Faithful was great, and defled all the efforts of Muhammad to rally them The Prophet him self was wounded in the face by two arrows The Mushms vere completely deteated, but the retreat was ably conducted by Abu Bakr, Unian and 'Usman, and the victorious Quraish did not attempt a pursust
Abu 'l-Fida' gives the following quaint account of the battle —

"When the two armies engaged and approached each other, Hind daughter of Utbah, the wife of Abū Sufyān, arose with the women that were with her, and they beat upon the tabors as they followed the men to battle And Hind said 'Well done, we sons of 'Abdu 'd-Dar well done? Strike ve with every weapon ye possees' And Hamrali the Prophets uncle, fought most valuately that day and he slew Artah, the standard-bourer of the unbelievers "

"And Ahn Kamiyah the Laisite slew Mustab, the standard bearer of the Muslims and whon Mus ab was slain, the Prophet save the standard of Islam to All the son of Abu Tabb Naw, the nichers were too eager for the spoil, and they left the position in which Muhammad had posted them And Khalid, the leader of the unbelievers, came with the cavalry to the rear of the Muslims, and raised a cry that Muhammad was slate. So the Mushims were overcome by the unbelievers. and the Quraish gamed the victory The number of martyrs in the cause of Islam who fell at Uhud was seventy The number of the slain amongst the unbelievers was twentytwo The enemy even struck Muhammad. Their stones hit him and he fel! His foreteeth were struck out, and he was wounded in the face Two nails of the noimet entered the face of Muhammad And Abu Ubardah pulled one of the nails out of his face and one tooth dropped out, and he pulled out another nail and another tooth dropped out And when Abil 'Ubaidah was taking out the teeth, Sunan Abu Sa'id sucked the blood from Muhammads face and swallowed it Upon which the Prophet said, 'Whosoever toucheth my blood, him shall the fire of hell never touch.

'Then Hind and her companions fell on the Muslims who were slain, and cut off their noses and their ears And Hind cut a slice from Hamzah's liver and ate it Then Abū Sufyan, the husband of Hind, stuck his spear into Hamsah's body, and cried with a lond voice, 'The fortunes of war are uncertain! The day of Uhud for the day of Badr' Let the idol of Hubal be exalted!' Then Muhammad sought for the body of his uncle, and he found it lying on the ground with the belly ripped open and the oars and nose out And the Prophet and, God hath revealed to me concerning the Quraish Verily, retaliation shall be made on thirty of them for the death of Hamzah, and verily Hamzah Then Inham 16 now in the seventh heaven mad prayed to: Hamzah, and went to each of the bodies of the slain and prayed for them. Some of the Mushms wanted to carry then dond to al-Madinih but the Prophet said, 'Bury them where they fell,'

Those is an allusion to the defeat at Uhud in the third Surah of the Qur'an "What befell you when the two armies met by God's pormission Count not those who are killed in the way of God as dead They are living with their Lord

The fourth year of the Hurah (A.D 625) opened with the despaten of 500 Muslims against the triba of Aad, who were making preparations to invade al-Madinali enemy fled at the appearance of the Muslim troops and the place was sacked

During this year there were several expedi tions Amongst others, one against the Jewish tribe Banti Nazir whose homes were spoiled, and the people bamshed, bocs use they would not accept the mission of the 'Apostle of God" I here is an allusion to this event in the second Surah of the Quran A second expedition was also made to Badr, but there was no fighting, although the event is known as the second battle of Bada, for after waiting eight days for an engagement with the Quraish, the Muslims returned in triumph to al-Madinah

It was about this time that Muhammad made two additions to his haram, by marrying Zamab, the widow of 'Ubaidah, who fell at Badr, as his fifth wife, and Ummu Salimal the widow of Abu Sahmah who fall at the battle of Uhud, for his sixth, thus ex ceeding the legal number of four wives, to which he restricted his followers

Muhammad being thi eatened by combined contingents of the Quraish, the Banti Chatfan and the Jewish tribes of Nazir and Qureigh, who advanced upon al Madinah with an army of 12,000 men, he, at the advice of a Persian named Salman, caused a trench to be dog round the city, and then sesued forth to defend it at the head of $,000 Muslims Both sides remained inactive for nearly a month, when, at last, the Quraish and their allies broke up the siege This engagement is known in Muslim history as Gazwalu '!-Khandaq, or the "Battle of the Ditch" Special reference is made to this event in the Quran, Surah xxx111 9, where the success of the Muslims is attributed to the intervention of God, "who sent a blast and a host that were not seen

The next expedition was against the Tewish tribe, the Banu Quraizah when Muhammad led an army of three thousand men with thirty-six horse The Jews sustained a siege of some twenty five days, but were at last sompelled to capitulate. Their fate was left to the decision of the Prophet a companion, Sa'd, whose sentence was that the male cap tives should be slain, the female captives and children sold into slavery, and the spoils divided amongst the army The Prophet commended the cruel judgment of Sad as a decision according to the judgment of God, given on high from the secon heavens, and about 700 captives were deliberately be headed, in parties in the presence of Muham mad One of the female captives Rihanah whose husband and male relatives had perished in the massacre, the Prophet re served for himself This cruel massacre of the Banu Quraigah is commended in the EXXITITE Surah of the Qur'an, verse 25

Before the close of this year, Muhammad married his cousin Zainab The Prophet had previously given her in mairinge to Zaid ibn Harisah, his freed man and adopted son. But upon visiting the house of Zaid and not finding him at home, the Prophet accidentally cast his eyes on Zamub and was so smitten with her beauty, that he ex claimed, "Praise belongsth unto God who turneth the hearts of men even as He will Zamab saw that she had made an impression on the Prophet's heart, and when her has band returned, recounted the cucumstances to him Zaid determined to part with her in favour of his friend and benefactor, and offered to divorce her But the relations of the Araba to their adopted children were so strict, that nothing but a revelation from heaven could settle the difficulty. It was to meet this domestic emergency that the Prophet produced the following reises of the Qur'an Surah xxxiii "8-38 to sauction his own heart's desire

"And it is not for a believer, man or woman, to have shy choice in their affairs when God and His Apostle have decreed a matter and whoever disobeyeth God and His Apostle, erreth with palpable error And, remember, when thou saidst to him unto whom God had shown favour, and to whom thou also hadst shown favour, 'Keep thy wife to threalf, and fear God, and thou didst hide in thy mind what God would bring to light, and thou didst fear man, but more right had it been to fear God Aud when Zaid had settled concerning her to divorce her, we married her to thee that it might not be a cirme in the faithful to marry the wives of their adopted sons, when they have settled the affan concerning them And the behest of God is to be performed No blame attacheth God is to be performed to the Prophet where God hath given him a permission Such was the way of God with those prophets who flourished before thee"

The srandal of the marriage was removed by the pretended revelation, and according to the Traditions, Zamab used to vaunt herself as the one wife of the Prophet's harim who had been given in mailiage by God Himself At all events, she exchanged a husband who had a pug nose and was short and ill-favoured for one who was the leading chief of Alabia!

Muhammads numerous marriages (four being the legal number—Surah iv 3) were likely to excite the jealousy and opposition of less taroured Muslims, but an additional chapter of the Qur'an avoided complications, and allowed the "Prophet of God greater liberty in this respect See Surah xxxiii 49 "O Prophet, we have allowed thee thy wives whom then hast dowered, and the slaves whom thy right nand possesseth and any believing woman who has given herself up to the Prophet if the Prophet desireth to wed her a privilege for thee above the rest of the Faithful"

About this time certain injunctions were issued for the seclusion of women and for the regulation of social and domestic intercourse (Surah xxv) These rules were made more stringent in the case of the Prophets own wives, who, in the case of incontinence, are threatened with double punishment (Surah xxxiii) The jeulousy of the Prophet, who was now getting old was allayed by the Divine command, that his wives should, in the event of his death, never marry again obligation devolving on believers, to consort equally with their several wives, was also relaxed specially in the Prophets favour (Surah vlvm )

In the sixth year of the Hijrah several mili tary expedition, were made. Amongst others. to the Banu Quraizah and the Banu Lahyan On his return from the last expedition Mu hammad stopped for a few moments to visit the grave of his mother, and desired to pray for her soul But a verse from the Quran, allaged to have been revealed on this occasion, forbade his praying for the forgiveness of one who died an infidel. Surah ix 114, 115 -

'It is not for the Prophet or the Faithful to pray for the forgiveness of those, even though they be of kin, who associate other beings with God, after it bath been made clear to them that they are to be the inmates of Hell For neither did Abraham ask for giveness for his father, but in pursuance of a promise which he had promised to him but when it was shown him that he was an enemy to God, he declared himself clear of him Yet Abraham was pitiful, kind "

Muhammad marched in person against the Banu I Mustaliq and completely surprised and routed them One thousand camels, five thousand sheep, and a great many women and children, became the spoil of the Mushims One of the female captives, named Juwairiyah, fell to the lot of Sabit ibn Qais, who, as a meritorious act, offered to release her and give her her liberty, for a certain sum. On applying to Muhammad to help her with the money to pay the ransom, he readily agreed to do so, and when she was freed he married her. Therenpon, the Mushims recognised the Banu I-Mustaliq as allies Juwairiyah survived. Muhammad forty-five years

At the last stage, teturning from the campaign against the Banu 'l-Mastaliq, 'Ayishah's tent and litter were by inadvertence carried away, while she was for a moment absent, and on her return she found herself in the dark alone Expecting the mistake to be discovered she sat down to await the issue, when, after some delay, one of the followers came up, and finding her in this plight, bade her mount his camel, and so conducted her to al-Madinah. The citizens drew simister conclusions from the circumstance, and Muhammad himself became estraiged from 'Ayishah, and she retired to her father's home Several weeks elapsed, when, at length, the Prophet was supernaturally informed of her innocence (Surah xxiv) law was then promulgated which requires four eye-witnesses to establish the charge of adultery, in default of which the imputation is to be punished as a rlander, with eighty lashes [QAZAF] 'Ayislish was taken back to her home, and her accusers were beaten

It was during the voar A H 6, that Muhammad conceived the idea of addressing foreign sovereigns and princes, and of inviting them to emorace Islam His letter to the Emperor Heracius has been handed down by Ihn 'Abbas (Mishkāt, book xvii ch civ), and is as follows -

"In the name of God, the Compassionate the Merciful, Muhammad, who is the servant of God, and His Apostle, to Haraqi, the-Qaisar of Rüm Peace be on whoover has gone or the straight road. After this I sav, Verily, I call you to Islam Embrace Islam, and God will reward you twofold. If you turn away from the offer of Islam, then on you be the sins of your people. O people of the Book (is Christians), come towards a creed which is fit both for us and for you. It is this, to worship none but God, and not to associate anything with God, and not to call others God. Therefore, O yo people of the Book, if ye refuse, beware! We are Mushims, and our religion is Islam.

(Seal.)

'MUHAMMAD, the Apostle of God"

The letter was sent to the Governor of Buşrā that he might convey it to Cæsar, but we have no record of a roply having been received

He also wrote to Kasra-Parwiz, King of Persia, but Kasra tore the letter in pieces On hearing the fate of his letter, Muhammad said, "Even so shall his kingdom be shattered to pieces." His third embassy was to Najash, the King of Abyssinia, who received the message with honour The fourth was to Jarih ibn Matta, the Muqauque, or Governor, of Egypt Jarih sent a polite reply, and begged the Prophet's acceptance of two beautiful Coptic slave girls. One of these, Shirin, the Prophet gave to Hasean the poet, but he reserved the other Māriyah, for him self. In due time, Māriyah presented the Prophot with a son, who was named Ibrahim, the birth of which made the mother a free woman, and placed her in the honourable position of the wife But the Prophet's extreme fondness for the recent addition to his already extensive harm was resented by his numerous wives. 'Ayishah and Hafsah were especially enraged, for the Prophet was in the habit of visiting Mariyah on the day due to one of these ladies Hafsah, who, being the daughter of 'Unar, was a person of great political importance took up the matter, and in order to pacify her the Prophet swore solemniv tust he would never visit Mariyah again, and enjoined Hafsah to keep the secret from the rest of his wives She, however, revealed it in confidence to 'Ayishah! Muhammed was annoyed at finding his confidence betraved, and separated himself for a whole month from his wives, and spent his time in Manyah's apartment. The situation time in Mariyah's apartment was a difficult one, not merely on account of the complications caused in his own domestic circle, but bocause 'Umar, the father of Hassah, was a most important political personage in those days. The only way out of the difficulty was to produce a third direct revolation from heaven, which appeared in the Suratu t-Tahrim, or the "Chapter of Prohibition" (lxvi), of the Qur'an, and reads as follows .

Why, O Prophet! dost thou hold that to be for bidden which God hath made lawful to thee from a desire to please thy wives, since God is Lement, Morciful? God hath allowed you release from your oaths, and God is your master, and He is the Knowing, Wise When the Prophet teld a recent occurrence as a secret to one of his wives (se Hafsah), and when she divulged it and God informed him of this, he acquainted her with part and withheld part And when he had told her of it, she said, 'Who told thee this?' He said. 'The Knowing, the Sage hath told it me If ye both be turned to God in penitence for now have your hearts gone astray conspire against the Prophet, then know that God in his Protector, and Gabriel, and every just man among the faithful, and the angels are his helpers besides Haply if he put you both (se Hafşah and 'Ayıshah) away, his Lord will give him in exchange other wives better than you, Muslums, believers, devout, penitont, obedient, observant of fasting, both known of men and virgins'"

In the Muharram of a.H 7, Muhammad assembled a force of 1,600 men, and marched against Khaibar, a fertile district inhabited by the Jews, and aituated about six days' march to the north-east of al-Madinah. The attack on Khaibar taxed both the energy and skill of the Warrier Prophet, for it was defended by several fortresses. The fort

Qamus was defended by Kmanah, a powerful Jewish thief, who claimed for himself the title of "King of the Jews" Several assaults were made and vigorously repulsed by the besieged. Both Abū Bakr and 'Umar were equally unsuccessful in their attempts to take the position, when the Prophet selected Ali to lead a detachment of picked men famous Jewish waition named Marhab, now presented himself, and chillenged 'Alı to single combat The chillenge was accepted and Ali, aimed with his famous sword

Za I-Fiqar, given to him by the Prophet cleft the head of his adversary in twain and secured a victory. In I few days all the fortresses of the district work taken, ind

Khaibai was subjugated to Islam

Amongst the female captives was bufiyah, the widow of the chief Kin mali who had fullen at Qamus One of Muhammads followers begged her for himself, but the Prophot, struck with her beauty, shrew his mantle over her and took ner to his harim

The booty taken at Khaibai was very con siderable and in order to secure the district to Mushim sule the Jews of the district were oxiled to the banks of the ford in

It was during the Khaibai expedition that Muhammad metituted Vlut'ili, an abomin able temporary marriage to meet the demands of his army This is an distriction still opserved by the Shinks but end on the Summe to have been abelished by Muhammad [MUT'An] It was at Khu bar that an at temp, was made, by a lowess muned Zamah, to poison Milhammad She dessed a kid, and having stoeped it in deadly porson, placed it before the Prophet, who ate but a woathful of the personed kid when the deed a codis Zamah was immodiately put to Lovered death

The subjugation of the Jowish devicts of Fadak, Wadi ? Quin ind 'I much on the contines of Syria tollowed that of Klanbar This year, in the sacred mouth f /1 7 Qa'dah, Muliammad decided to perform the Umrah or religious vistation of Miki ab [UMRAU], and for this purpose he list il Madinah with a following of some 4 400 pieu When they were within two days march if Makkih their advance was hacked by the hostile Quraish, and Muhammad turning to the west from Usfan encamped at al Huduby th within seven miles of the sucred city. At this spot a truce was made, which is known as the treaty of al Hudailmah, in which it was stirulated that all hostilities should cease for ten years and that for the future the Mushms should have the privilege unmolested of paying a yearly visit of three days to the Ka bah

After sacrificing the victims at al Huday biyah, Muhammad an l his followers retuined to al-Madinah

The advent of the holy month Zu'l Qa Jali of the next year (A.H 5) was engerly ex, a cod by Muliamunad and his followers, for it,, secording to the terms of the truce of Hudaibryah they might without molestant i visit the holy city, and spend trice leg, a the performance of the accustomed rates The number of the faithful swelled on the approach to nearly 2,000 men, and the Quraish thought it basi to retire with their forces to the heights overlooking the valley Seated on his camel al-Qaswa, which eight years be-fore had borne him in his flight from the cave of Saul a hunted fugitive, the Prophet, now surrounded by joyous crowds of disciples, the companions of his exile, approached and saluted the holy shine Eagerly did he press forward to the Ka'bah, touched with his staff the Black Stone, seven times made the encuit of the holy nonse, seven times journeyed between as-bafe and al-Marwah, saerinced the victims and fulfilled all the ceremonies of the lesser pilgrimage.

While at Makkah he negotiated an alhance with Maimunah, his eleventh and last wift His marriago gained him two most important converts—Khālid, the "Sword of God,' who before this had turned the tide of battle at Unud, and 'Amr, destined afterwards to carry to foreign lands the victorious standards of Islam

The services of these two important converts were quickly utilised. An envoy from Muhammad to the Christian Prince of Bostia, in byin having been slain by the chief of Mutali-a village to the south-east of the Dend Son-a force of 3,000 men, under his adopted son Zaid, was sent to exact retriou tion, and to call the filending trabe to the faith On the northward march, though they learnt that an overwhelming force of Araba and Romans-the latter or whom met the Muslims for the first time—was assembling to oppose them, they resolved resolutely to push forward The result was their disastrous defeat and repulse Zaid and Ja'fai, a bintbor of 'All I'll defending the white banner of the Prophet Khalid, by a series of manonvres, succeeded in drawing off the army, and con ducting it without further loss to al-Madinah A mouth later, however, 'Amr marched unopposed through the lands of the hostile t then, recoved their submission, and restored the prestige of Islam on the Syrian fronties Mahammad deeply falt the loss of Zaid and later and exhibited the tenderost sympathy for their vicous and orphans line detect at Mütah was followed in the wouth he ovents of the greatest moment to Muhammad Certam smouldering hostilities but een tubes inhabiting the neighbourhood of Makkah broke forth about the end of the year These were judged to be infractions of the trenty (some of these tribes being in league with the Quraish), and were eagerly serzod upon by Muhammad as justifying those designs upon Makkah which the success of his arms and the dominion he pos-sested over numberless tribes in the north, in the Hijaz, and Nijd, new made it easy for him

treatis out

Having, therefore, determined to attack his not vecity, he announced his intention to his 'all in is, and liseited his allies among the Bedouin tribe to jo n him on the maich to Makkah Although he took over; precaution to prevent his preparations becoming known, the news reached the ears of the Quraish, who sent Abū Sufyān to deprecate his angel and to ask him to abandon his purpose Humilistion and failure were the only result of this mission.

On the 1st January, a.D 680, Muhammad's march commenced and after eight days, through unfrequented roads and defiles, the army, swelled to the number of 10,000 men, halted and lighted their camp fires on the heights of Marru 'z-Zahian, a day's march from the sacred city The Prophet had been joined on his march by his uncle al-'Abbas, and on the night of his arrival Abū Sulyān again presented himself, and besought an interview On the morrow it was granted 'Has the time not yet come, O Abū Šufyān," cried Muhammad, ' for thee to acknowledge that there is but one God, and that I am his Apostle" He answered that his heart still felt some hesitancy, but seeing the threatening sword of al-'Abbas, and knowing that Makkah was at the mercy of the Prophet, he repeated the prescribed formula of belief, and was sent to prepare the city for his approach

The Prophet made his public entry into Makkah on his favourite carnel, having Abū Bakr on his right hand, Usaid on his left, and Usamah walking behind him On his way he recited the xxvmth Surah of the Qui'au, known as the "Chapter of Victory He then entered the Sacred Mosque and cucuited the Ka bah seven times touching the Black Stone as he passed with his stick Observing several pictures of angels inside the Ka'bah he ordered tuem to be removed at the same time crying out with a loud voice, "God is great! God is great!" He then fixed the Qiblah [QIBLAH] at Makkah, and ordered the destruction of the 360 idols which the Makkan temple contained, himself destroying a wooden pigeon suspended from the 100f, and regarded se one of the desties of the Quraish

On the 11th day of the mouth of Ramazan, he repaired to Mount as-Safa, where all the people of Makkan had been assembled in order to take the cath of allegiance to him 'Umar, acting as his deputy, administered the cath, whereby the people bound themselves to obey Muhammad, to abstain from theft, adulture, infanticide, lying and backhiting adultary, infanticide, lying and backbiting During his stay at Makkah, Muhammad sont small detachments of troops into the district who destroyed the temples of al-Wize, Suwa, and Manüt, the three famous idel-temples of the neighbouring tribes. The Prophet had given strict orders that these expeditions should be carried out in a peace able manner and that only in cases of necessity should force of arms be used. Khalid ibn al Walid, however, who commanded 350 men, found himself opposed by the Jazimah tilbe, for instead of saying as they were commanded, "We are Muslima," they said, "We are Sabians", and the impetious general whose name afterwards became so delebrated in history, ordered the whole (nibo to be slain Muhammad, when he heard of this barbarity exclaimed, "Oh! my God, I am innocent of this", and he despatched a large sum of money for the widows and orphans of the slain, and severely rebuked Khālid

The Prophet left Makkah after a fortnight's residence, and at the head of 12,000 men attacked the Bani Saqif and the Bani Hawazin. Mālik ibn Ans, the chief of the Saqif, made a bold stand, and the Prophet rallied his forces with the utmost difficulty but having thrown a handful of dust in the direction of the enemy as a signal of victory, the Mushims renewed the oharge, and 700 of the tribe were left dead on the field. This victory was followed immediately by one over the Banū Hawazin, in the valley of Autas. (See Surah ix 25, 26)

The ninth year of the Hijiah is known as the year of deputations, as being the year in which the various tribes of Arabia submitted to the claim of the Prophet, and sent embassies of peace to him. It is also remarkable for numerous minor expeditions

Hearing that the Romans were assembling in large folice on their frontier, Muhammad determined to attack them it Tabük (a city between al-Madinah and Damascus). The army sent to Tabük was the largest employed in the time of the Prophet, for it is said to have numbered 20,000 and 10,000 cavalry By the time the army had arrived at Tabük the numouned invasion had been proved unfounded. Muhammad, however, utilised a portion of the force by sending it, under the command of Khālid, to Dūmah, where he received the submission of the Jewish and Christian tribes. A treaty with John, the Christian Prince of Ailah, was made, and Ukaidai, the Christian chief of Dūmah was converted to Islām.

The gradual submission of Arabia, and the acknowledgment of the puritual and tem-poral supremacy of the Prophet throughout the entire peninsula, followed Indeed, in the complex system which he had established, the spiritual and secular functions were intimately blended, and involved in each other, and whilst in his humble home at al-Madinah he retained still the simple manners of his carlier years, which, at his time of life, he had probably no melination to alter, he exer cased all those regal and saterdotal powers which the victorious arms of his heutenants, or the voluntary submission of the most distant provinces of Arable, had caused to be universally acknowledged Tax-collectors were appointed to receive the prescribed offerings or tithes, which generally amounted to "a tenth part of the increase"

The city of at Tä'ii, trusting to its natural strength, constituted itself a centre of disaffection, but at last, driven to extremities, and seeing that all the neighbouring tribes had one by one submitted, its chief after a rain attempt to obtain some relaxation in the rules of Işlam consented to the destruction of the adored idol al-Lüt, and adopted the new faith.

It was during the time of the next yearly pilgrimage (March a D G31), that Muhammad issued an important command, the icrowning stone of the system he had raised, i which shows at once the power he wielded, and the strong hold his doctrines had already taken throughout Arabia. Refusing to be present himself during the ceremonies of the pilgrimage he commissioned 'Alī to announce to the assembled multitudes in the valley of Mina, that, at the expiration of the fear sacred months, the Prophet would hold him self absolved from every obligation or league with idolaters, that after that year no un believer would be allowed to perform the prigrimage, or to visit the holy places and further, he gave directions that either within or without the sacred torritory, war was to be wagen with them that they were to be killed, besieged, and laid in wait for 'where-soever found" He ordains, however, that if they repent and pay the legal aims, they are to be dismissed freely, but as legalds "those unto whom the Scriptures have been delivered" (Jews and Christians, &c) "they are to be fought against until they pay tribute by right of subjection and are reduced low

"Such, then," says Sir William Muil, "is the declared mission of Islam, arrived at by slow, though mevitable steps, and now imprinted unchangeably upon its cannors The Jews and Christians and perhaps the Ma gians,- people of the book - are to be tole rated, but held in subjection and under tribute, but for the rest the sword is not to be sheathed till they are exterminated, or sub mit to the faith which is to be ome 'superior to every other religion

About the middle of the year, a here; grief fell upon Muhammad, in the doath of his little son Ibrahim

On the return of the sacred month (March A D 682), Muhammad, accompanied by all his wives, selected his victims assumed the pilgrim garb, and set out on what is called Hugara 'l-Wada', or "The Valedictory Pil grimage," to the holy places, from which every trace of the old superstition hid been removed, and which, in accordance with his orders of the previous year, no idolates was to visit Approaching the Ka bah by the gate of the Banu Shaibah, he carefully performed all the ceremonies of the 'Umrah or "lesser Pilgrimage,' and then proceeded to consum mate those of the greater On the 8th of the holy month Zu I Hijjah, he node to the Wadi Mina, some thre miles east of Wakkah, and rested there for the night Next day, passing Muzduhfuh the midway station, he reached in the evening the valley in which stands the grante hill of Arafah. From the summit he spoke to the pilgrams regarding its sacred precinots, aunounced to them the perfecting of their religion," officed up the prescribed prayers, and hurried back to Muz dalifah for the might On the 10th, proceeding to Mina, he cast the accustomed stones, slew the victims brought for sacrif e, had his head shaved and his nails pered, ordering the hair, do, to be burnt, and, the ceremonies ended, laid aside the pilgrim garb At Mina, during his three days' stay, he preached to the pilgrims, called them to witness that he had faithfully fulfilled his mission, and urged them not to depart from the exact observerces of the religion which he had appointed Returning to Makkah, he again went through the ceremonies of the 'Umrah, made the circuit of the temple, drank of the well Zamzam, prayed in the Ka'bah, and thus, having rigolously performed all the ceremonies, that his ex imple might serve as a model for all succeeding time, he turned to al-Madinah.

The excitement and fatigue of his journey to the holy places told sensibly on his health, which for some time had shown indications of increasing infirmity In the death of Ibra-liin he had received a blow which weighed down his spirit, the poison of Khaibar still rankled in his veins, afflicted him at times with exeruciating pain, and bowed him to the grave. His life had been a hard and a stirring one, and now the important affairs of his spiritual and temporal kingdom, and the cares of his large domestic circle, demed him that quiet and seclusion for which he longed.

The news of the Prophet's failing health was scon noised abroad, and tended to encourage his rivals to increased energy of action Three different revolts, each headed by a dangerous competitor, were now on the point of breaking out The first of these was led by Mussilimah, a rival prophet, who now stated that Muhammad had distinctly nominated him as his successor [MUBAILIMAH], the second, by Aswad a wealthy and eloquent inal, with a considerable following [ASWAD] and the third by Tulashah, a famous warrior of Vajd, who claimed the prophetic office which ran

In the Traditions it is related that Musailunch addressed a letter to Muhammad.

' Musailmab, the Prophet of God, to Muhammad the Prophet of God Peace be to you I am your associate Let the exercise of authority be divided between us Half the earth is mine, and half belongs to the Omaish But the Quraish are a greedy people, and will not be satisfied with a fair division"

To this presumptuous epistle Muhammad Luplied .

"Muhammad toe Prophet of God, to Mu sailmah the Last Peace be on those who follow the straight road The earth is God s, and Ho greath it to whom He will Those only prosper who fear the Lord'

The opposition of Musailimah was, however a formidable one, and after Muhammad s death he was slain by Khalid during the

teign of Abn Bakr

The health of Muhammad grew worse, and he now requested that he might be permitted to remain in the home of Ayishali, his beloved wife, an arrangement to which his other wives assented

The account we row give of the closing scenes of Muhammad's life, is from the graphic pen of Sir William Muir (Lafe of Mahomet, new ed, p 501 et seq), and founded on the traditional histories of al-Wandi's secretary and Ibn Hisham

"On the night of Saturday (11 Rabi'u 7-Awwal, 6th June, AD 682), the sickness assumed a very serious aspect. The fever rose to such a pitch that the hand could hardly be kept upon his skin from its burning heat His body was racked with pain, restless and meaning, he tossed about upon his bed. Alarmed at a severe paroxysm of the disease, Omm Salma, one of his wives, scroamed aloud Mahomet rebuked her —
'Quet!' he said. 'No one crieth out thus but an unbelievor' During the night, Ayesha sought to comfort him, and suggested that he should seek for consolation in the samo lessons he had so often taught to others when in sickness 'O Prophet!' she said 'if one of us had mouned thus, thou would'st surely have found fault with it 'Yes,' he replied, 'but I burn with the fever-heat of any two of you together' 'Then,' exclaimed one, thou shalt surely have a double reward 'Yes,' he answered 'I swear by Him in whose hands is my life, that there is not upon the earth a believer afflicted with any calamity or disease, but the Lord thereby causeth his sine to fall from him, even as leaves are shed in autumn from a tree' At another time he said, 'Suffering is an expiation for sin Verily, if the believer suffer but the scratch of a thorn, the Lord raiseth his rank thereby, and wipsth away from him a sin.' 'Believers, he would affirm, 'are tried according to their faith. If a man's faith be strong, so are his sufferings, if he be weak, they are propor tioned thereunto Yet in any case, the suf fering shall not be remitted until he walk upon the earth without the guilt of a single transgression cleaving unto him

"Omar, approaching the hed, placed his hand on Mahomet's forebead, and suddenly withdrew it, from the greatness of the heat 'O Prophet!' he said, 'how violent is the fever on thee!' Yea, verily,' replied Ma homet, but I have been during the might season repeating in praise of the Lord seventy Suras, and among them the seven long ones' Omar answered 'But the Lord hath forgiven thee all thy sins, the former and the latter, now, then, why not rest and take thine ease ' 'Nay,' replied Mahomet 'for wherefore should I not be a faithful servant unto Him?

"An attendant, while Mahomet lay covered up, put his hand below the sheet, and feeling the excessive heat, made a remark similar to that of Omar Mahomet replied 'Even as this affliction prevaileth now against me, so shall my reward hereafter be enhanced' 'And who are they,' asked another 'that suffer the severest trials?' 'The prophets and the righteons,' said Mahomet, and then he made mention of one prophet having been destroyed by lice, and of another who was tried with poverty, so that he had but a ray to cover his makedness withsi, 'yet each of them rejoiced exceedingly in his affliction, even as one of you in great spoil would rejoice'

"On the Sunday, Mahomet lay in a very week and belpless state Osama, who had delayed his departure to see what the issue of the sickness might be came in from Jorf to Removing the clothes from the visit him Prophet's face, he stooped down and kissed him, but there was no audible response Mahomet only raised his hands to heaven in the attidude of blessing, and then placed them upon Osama So he returned to the camp

"During some part of this day Mahomet complained of pain in his side and the sufforing became so great, that he fell into a state of unconsciousness Omm Salma advised that physic should be given him Asma. the sister of Meimuna, prepared a draught after an Abyssiman recipe, and they forced it into his mouth Reviving from its effects, he felt the unpleasant taste in his mouth, and cried, 'What is this that ye have done to me 'Ye have even given me physic! They confessed that they had done so, and enume rated the ingredients of which Asma had compounded it. Out upon you! he angriy exclaimed, 'this is a remedy for the pleurisy. which she hath learned in the land of Abyssinia but that is not a disease which the Lord will suffer to attack me Now shall ve all partake or the same dose Let not one remain in the house without being physicked, even as ye have physicked me, excepting only my nucle abbus So all the women arose, and they poured the physic, in presence of the dying Prophet, into each other's mouthe

"After this the conversation turning upon Abyssinia Omm Salma and Omm Habiba, who had both been explos there, spoke of the beauty of a cathedral in that country, called the Church of Maria, and of the wonderful Mahomet listened pictures on its walls quietly to them, and then said, 'These, verily, are the people who, when a good man hath lived amongst them, build over his tomb a place of worship, and they adorn it with their pictures. These, in the even of the Lord, are the worst part of all the creation. He stopped, and covered himself with the bed-clothes, then casting them off in the restlessness and perhaps dehrumn of the fever, he said. 'The Lord destroy the Jews and Christians 1 Let His anger he kindled against those that turn the tombs of their prophets into places of worship O Lord, let not my tomb be an object of worship Let there not remain any faith but that of Islam throughout the

About this time, recognising Omar and some other chief men in the room, he called out. Bring hither to me ink and paper, that I may record for you a writing which shall prevent you going astray for ever' Omai said, 'He wandereth in his mind Is not the Coran sufficient for us?' But the women wished that the writing materials should be brought, and a discussion ensued There-upon one said, What is his condition at this present moment? Come, let us see whether he speaketh deliriously or not' So they went and asked him what his wishes were regarding the writing he had spoken of , but he no longer desired to indite it . Leave me thus alone, ha said, 'for my present state is better than that ye call me to "In the course of this day, Mahomet called Ayesha to him, and said, 'Where is that gold which I gave unto thee to keep?' On her replying that it was by her, he desired that she should spend it at once in charity. Then he dozed off in a half conscious state, and some time after asked if she had done as he desired her. On her saying that she had not yet done so, he called for the money (which was apparently a portion of the title income), she placed it in his hand, and counted six golden dinars. He directed that it anould be divided among certain indigent families, and then lying down, he said, 'Now I am at peace. Verily it would not have become me to meet my Lord, and this gold in my possession'

All Sunday night the illness of Mahomet continued unabated. He was overheard praying one of the ejaculations was to this effect. One soul! Why seekest thou for refuge elsewhere than in God alone?' The morning brought some measure of relief. The fover and the pain abated, and there was an appara rent return of strength

"The dangerous crisis of the Prophet's sickness on the preceding night having become known throughout the city, the mosque was crowded in the morning it the hour of prayer, by men and women, who came scoking anxiously for tidings. Abu Bakr, as usual, led the devotions, as Imam he stood in the place of Mahamet before the congregation, his tack turned towards them. He had ended the first Rakant, or series of prostin tions, and the people had stood up again for a second, when the curtain of Ayesha's door (to the left of the audience, and a little way behind Abn Baki) slowly moved aside and Mahomot himself appeared. As he entered the assembly, he whispered in the car of Fadhl (Fazl), son of Abhas who with a servant supported him 'The Lord yearly listh granted unto me refreshment in prayer and he looked around with a gladsome smile, market by all who at the moment caught a glimpse of his countenance That smile no doubt was he index of deep emotion in his What doubts or fears may have crossed the mind of Mahomet, as he lay on the bed of death, and felt that the time was drawing nigh when he must rendor an account to that God whose we ssenger he professed to he, tradition affords us no grounds even to conjecture The rival claims of Aswad and Muscilama had, perhaps, suggested mis givings such as those which had long ago distracted his soul. What if he, too, wore an impostor deceiving himself and deceiving others also! If any doubts and questionings of this nature had arisen in his mind, tho sight of the great congregation in attitude devout and earnest, may have caused him comfort and reassurance. That which brings forth good fruit must itself be good. The mission which had transferred gross and de-based idolaters into spiritual worshippers such as these, rosigning every faculty to the service of the one great God, and which, wherever accepted and believed in, was daily producing the same wonderful change, that mission must be divine, and the voice from within which prompted him to undertake it must have been the voice of the Almighty. revealed through His ministering spirit. Perhaps it was a thought like this which passed at the moment through the mind of the Prophet, and lighted up his countenance with that smile of joy, diffusing gradness over the crowded courts of the mosque

"Having paused thus for a moment at the door. Mahomet, supported as before, walked softly to the front where Asu Bakr stood The people made way for him, opening their ranks as he advanced. Abu Bakr heard the rustle (for he never when at prayer turned himself or looked to the right hand or the left) and, approhending the cause which alone at that time could treate so great sensation, stepped backwards to join the constant of the Prophet But Valomet motioned him to resume the post, and taking his hand, moved forward to the pulpit. There he eat on the ground by the side of Abu Bakr, who resumed the service, and innished it in customity form

When the pravers were ended, Abu Bakr ontered into conversation with Mahomet He reposed to find him so all appearance convalescent '() Prophet,' he said, 'I perceive that by the grace of God, thou art better today even as we desire to see thee Now this day is the turn of my wife, the daughter of Khānja shall I go and visit her?' Mahomet gave him permission So he departed to her house at Al Sunh, a suburb of the upper city

Mahomet then sat himself down for a little while in the court-yard of the mosque, near the door of Avesha's apartment and addressen the people, who, overloyed to find him agui in their midet, crowded round spoke with emotion, and with a voice still se powerful as to reach beyond the outer doors of the mosque 'By the Lord,' he said, 'as for myself, vorily, no man can lay hold of mo in any matter, I have not made lawful anything excepting what God hath made lawful not bave I prohibited aught but that which God in His book hath probibited Osama was there, when he came to bid farewell (before starting on an expedition against the Roman border), Mahomet said to him, 'Go forward with the army, and the blessing of the Lord bo with thee!' Then turning to the women who sat close by, 'O Fatura l' he exclaimed 'my daughter, and Safif, my aunt! Work ye both that which hall procure you acceptance with the Lord , for verily I have no power with him to save you in Having said this, he arose and re anvwise entered the room of Ayesha

"Mahomet, exhausted by the exertion be had undergone, lay down upon his bed and Ayesha, seeing him to be very weah raised his head from the pillow, and laid it tenderly upon her bosom. At that moment one of her relatives entered with a green tooth pick in his hand. Ayesha observed that the exe of

Mahomet rested on it, and, knowing it to be such as he liked asked whether he wished to have it. He signified assent Chewing it a little to make it soft and plable, she placed it in his hand. This pleased him, for he took up the tooth-pick and used it, rubbing his teeth with his ordinary vigour, then he put it down

"His strength now rapidly sank He seemed to be aware that death was drawing near. He called for a pitcher of water, and wetting his face, prayed thus. 'O Lord, I beseech these to assist me in the agones of death!' Then three times he ejaculated samestly, 'Gabriel, come close unto me!" At this time he began to blow upon

"At this time he began to blow upon himself, perhaps in the half-censciousness of delirium, repeating the while an ejaculatory form which he had been in the habit of praving over persons who were very sick. When he ceased, from weakness Avesha took up the task, and continued to blow upon him and recite the same prayer. Then, seeing that he was very low, sic seized his right hand and rubbed it (another practice of the Prophet where visiting the sick), repeating all the while the carnest invocation. But Maho met was too far gone to bear even this. He now wished to be in perfect quiet. Take off thy hand from me, he said, that cannot benefit me now? After a little he prayed in a whisper, 'Lord grant me pardon, and join me to the companionship on high!' Then at intervals. 'Elernity in Paradise!' 'Pardon!' 'Yes, the blessed computionship on high!' Then all was still. His head grew heavy on 'the breast of Ayesha. The Prophet of Arabia was dead.

Ayesha. The Prophet of Arabia was dead "Softly removing his head from her bosom Ayesha placed it on the pillow, and rising up joined the other women, who were beating their faces in bitter lamentation

"The sun had but shortly passed the meridian. It was only an hour or two since Mahomet had entered the mesque cheerful, and seemingly convalescent. He now by cold in death."

As soon as the intelligence of the Prophote death was published a crowd of people as-sembled at the door of the house of 'Ayishah, exclaiming, "How can our Apostle be dead he who was to be our witness in the Day of Judgment?" ' No,' sand 'Umar, ' be as not dead, he has gone to visit his Lord as the Prophet Moses did, when, after an absence of forty days, he reappeared to his people Our Prophet will be restored to us, and those are traitors to the cause of Islam who say he is dead If they say so, let them be out in pieces" But Abu Bakr entered the house at this juncture, and after viewing the body of the Prophet with touching demonstrations of affection, he appeared at the door and addressed the crowd thus. "O Muslims, if ye adors Muhammad, know that Muhammad is dead If ye adore God Ged is alive, and cannot die Do ye forget the verse in the Days's. "Muhammad is no more than an 'Muhammad is no more than an apostle Other apostles have already passed before him?' (see Sürah iii 188), and alse the other verse, 'Thou shalt surely die. O Muhammad, and they also shall die?'" (see Surah xxxix 31) 'Umar acknowledged his error, and the crowd was satisfied and dispersed

Al-'Abbas presided at the preparations for the burial, and the body was duly washed and perfumed. There was some dispute between the Quraish and the Angar as to the place of burial, but Abū Bakr silenced them, affirming that he had heard Muhammad say that a prophet should be buried on the apol where he died. A grave was accordingly dug in the ground within the house of 'Ayishah, and under the bed on which the Prophet died, This spot is now known as the Hujrah, or chamber at al-Madinah. The last rites were performed by 'Ali and the two sons of al-'Abbās. [HIJRAH]

The foregoing account of Muhammad's death is that of Sunni traditionists. The Shifahs deny almost every word of it, and give the following as an authentu narrative of the Prophet's death. The manifest object being to establish the claim of 'Ali to be Muhammad's successor. It is translated from the Shifah book entitled the Hayatu'l-Qulub (see Meirick a translation, p 368) -

"The Prophet returned to his house and in the space of three days his sickness became severe He then tied a handage on his head, and leaning on the Commander of the Faithful (i.e 'Ali) and Fazl ibn-Abbas, went to the mesjed and ascended the member (or pulpit), and, sitting down, addressed the people thus 'The time is near when I shall be concealed from you Whoever has any claum on me, let him now declare it Verily, none can claim favour at the hand of God but by obeying Him, and none can expect to be safe without good works, or to enjoy the isvour of God without obedience Nothing but good works vill deliver from divine wrath, and verity, if I should sin, I should go to hell O Lord I have delivered thy message' He then came down from the mimber and performed short prayers with the people, and returned to the house of Ummsalmah, where he remained one or two days That cursed woman Auyeshah, having satisfied his other wives on the subject came to the Prophet and induced him by entreaties to go to her house, where his sickness became very op pressive At the hour for morning prayers Bilal shouted the agan, but the Prophet, near his departure to the holy would, heard it not Auyoshah then sent to her father, Abubekr to go to the mesjed, and lead the devotions of the people and Hafeah sent the same message to Omai As these two women were conversing about the matter before the Prophet, not seeming to suppose that he under-stood them, he interrupted them, saying, 'Quit such talk, you are like the women that tried to lead Yusuf astray' Finding that, contrary to his orders, Abubekr and Omar were in the city with seditions designs, he was very somowful, and oppressed as he was with a severe disease, he rose, and leaning on Aly and Fazi-bin Abbas, with extreme dif

Sculty went to the mesjed, lest Abubekr or Omar should perform prayers, and the people doubt who should be his successor. On arriving at the mesjed, he found that the cursed Abubekr had occupied the place of the leader of prayers, and already begin the devotions with the people. The Prophet, with his bleesed hand, signed to Abubeki to remove, and he took his place, and from weakness sat down to perform prayers, which he'r gan anew regardless of Abubekr's commencement.

"On returning to his house Muhammad summoned Abubekr Omai, and some others, and demanded if he had not ordered them to depart with the army of Asameh They replied that he had. Abubekr said that he had gone and returned again, and Omar said that he did not go, for he did not wish to hear of the Prophet's sickness from another Mu hammad then told them to go with the army of Asamah, and three trues prenounced a surse on any who should disoley. His exertions produced such exhaustion that he swooned, on which the Muselmans pleach' and his wives and children wept and lamented aloud, At length the Prophet opened his blessed syes, and said, Bring me an inkstand and a sheep's shoulder-blade, that I may write a direction which will prevent your going astray? One of the Companions of the Prophet rose to bring what he had ordered but Omar said, 'Come back, he speaks delirlously, disease has overcome hun, and the book of God is sufficient for us' It is, however, a disputed matter whether Omar and this However, they said to the Prop'tot Shall we bring what you ordered? He is plied, 'After what I have heard from you I de not need tham, but I give you a dying charge to treat my family well, and not turn from them. [The compiler observes that this tradition about the inkstand and shoulder blade is mentioned in several Sunni books ]

" During the last sickness of the Propliet while he was lying with his head in Aly s lap, and Abhas was standing before him and brushing away the flies with his cloak, he opened his eyes and asked Abbas to become his executor, pay his debts, and support his Abbas said he was an old man with a large family, and could not do it Muhammad then preferred the same to Alv, who was so much affected that he could not command utterance for some time, but as soon as he could speak, promised with the greatest devotion to parform the Prophet's request Muhammad, after being raised into a sitting positive, in which he was supported by Aly, ordered Bilal to bring his helmet, called Lool-jabern (Zu'lto oring als noimet, called Looi-jacen (Lu i-jachn), his orgat of mail, Zatil Fazzol (Zatu'l-Fuzul), his banner, Alab, his sword, Zool-fukur (Zu 'l jagar), his turbana, Sahab and Tahmeeak, his two party-coloured garments, his little staff, and his walking cans Mamshook In ralating the story, Abbas remarked that he had never before seen the partycoloured soars, which was so lustrons as nearly to blind the eyes. The Prophet now addressed Aly, saying, Jibrasel brought ms thus articla and told me to put it into the rings of my mail, and bind it on me for a girdle.' He then called for his two pairs of Arab shoes, one pair of which had been patched. Next he ordered the shirt he wore on the night of the Marâj, or ascent to heaven, and the shirt he wore at the battle of Chod. He then called for his three caps, one of which he wore in journeying, another on festivals, and the third when sitting among his ('ompanions. He then told Bilâl to bring his two mules, Shahba and Buldul, his two she-camels, Chazba and Sahba, and his two houses, Jinah and Khyrdam.

Jinah was kept at the door of the mesjed for the uss of a messenger, and Khyidam was mounted by the Prophet at the battle of Chod, where Jibraeel cited, 'Advance, Khyrdam.' Last, he called for his ass Yafoor Muhammad new directed Abbas to take Aly's place, and support his back. He then said 'Rise, O Ala, and take these my property, while I yet live, that no one may quarrel with you about them after I am gone

When I ruse, said Aly, my feet were so cramped that it was with the utmost dif ficulty that I could move Having taken the articles and animals to my house, I returned and stood before the Prophet, who on seeing me took his ting from his right hand, pointing the way of truth and put it on my right hand tue house being full of the Banu Hashim and other Musulmans, and while from weskness his head nedued to the right and left he cried aloud, () company of Musuimans Aly to my brother, my successor, and Khaleefah among my people and sait, he will pay my debts and caucel my sugagement: O ye sons or Hashim and Abdul mutalib, and yo other Musulmans, be not hostile to Aly, and do not oppose him, lest ye be led astray, and do not envy him nor incline from him to another, lest ye become infidels He then ordered Abbas to give his place to Aly Abbas replied, 'Do you remove an old man to sent a child in his place?'. The Prophet repeated the order, and the third time Abbis rose in anger, and Aly took his place Muhammad, inding his uncle angry, said to him 'Do nothing to ause me to leave the world offended with you, and my wrath send you to hell' On hearing this, Abbûs went back to his place, and Muhammad directed Aly to lay bim down

"The Prophet said to Blial, Bring my two sons Hasan and Husan? When they were presented he pressed them to his bosom, smelt and kissed those two flowers of tha garden of prophecy. Aly, fearing they would trouble the Prophet, was about to take them away, but he said, 'Let them be, that I may smell them, and they smell me, and we prepare to mest each other, for after I am gone great calamities will befall them, but may God curse those that oause them to fear and do them injustice. O Lord, I commit them to Thee and te the worthy of the Faithful, namely, Aly-bin-Abutalib. The Prophet them dismissed the people and they went away, but Abbàs and his son Fael, and Aly bin-Abutalib, and those belonging to the house hold of the Prophet, remained. Abbas then seed to the Prophet, If the Khalafat (Khalafat) is established among us, the Benu Hashim, assure us of it, that we may rejoice, but if you foresee that they will treat us unjustly and deprive us of the Khalafat, oummit us to your Companions. Muhammad replied, 'After I am gone they will weaken and overcome you, at which declaration all the family wept, and, moreover despaired of the Prophet's life

"Aly continued to attend Muhammad night and day, never leaving him except from the most imperative necessity On one of these occasions, when Aly was absent, the Prophet said, 'Call my friend and brother' Auyeshan and Hafsah sent for their fathers, Abubekr and Omas, but he turned from thom and covered his face, on which they remarked, 'He does not want us, he wants Ale,' whom Fatimah called, and Muhammad pressed him to his bosom, and they mingled their perspiration together, and the Prophet communi cated to him a thousand chapt, rs of know ledge, each opening to a thousand more tradition declares that Muhammad kept Aly in his bed till his pure spirit left his body, his arm meanwhile er racing Aly"

In compiling this account of the life of Muhammad, we must express our deep obli-gations to Sir William Muir's Lafe of Mahomet (1st ed , 4 vols , 2nd ed , 1 vol , Smith, Elder and Co., London) In many cases we have given the spassima verba of his narrative, with his kind permission. The chief literature on the subject, in addition to Sir William Muu's work, is Das Leben und die Lehre des Mohammad, A Sprenger, Berlin, 1869, Specimen Historia Arabum, E. Pocock, Ozon. 1650, Ismael Abulfeda De Vita et Rebus gestie Mo hamedis, J Gagnier, Oxon 1728, Lafe of Mahomet, Washington Irving, Loudon, 1850 Lafe of Mahomed from Princip Sources, A Sprenger, Allahabad, 1851 Essigs on the Lafe of Muhammad, Syud Ahmad Khan, CSI, London, A Critical Examination of the Life and Teachings of Muhammad, Syud Ameer Ah Moulls, LL D, London 1878, Islam and sts Founder, SPCK, 1878, Ma homet et le Coran, T Barthelemy de St Hilaire 1865, The True Nature of the Imposture bully Explained, H. Prideaux, London, 1718, the first three volumes of the modern part of An Universal History, London, 1770 (specially recommended by Dr Badger), Tareki-Tabari, Zotenberg, Das Leben Mohammed's nach Ibn Ishak, bearbestet von Ibn Hischam, G Weil, 2 vols , 1864 The earliest biographers whose works are extant in Arabic, are Ibn Ishaq (A.H. 151), Ibn Hisham (A.H. 218), al-Waqidi (A.H. 207), at-Tabari (A.H. 810).]

Muhammad is referred to by name in four places in the Qur'an . Surah in 136 " "Muhammad is but an apostle apostles have passed away before his time, what if he die, or is killed, will ye retreat upon your heels?"

Surah zzziri 40 "Muhammad is not the father of any of your men, but the Apostle of God, and the Seal of the Prophets"

Sarah givin 2 "Those who believe and do right and believe in what is revealed to Muhammad, -and it is the truth from their Lord,-He will cover for them their offences and set right their mind "

"Muhammad is the Strah zlviii 29

Apostle of God."

He is said to have been foretold by Jesus under the name of Ahmad. Sarah lai. 6 "Giving you glad tidings of an Apostle who shall come after me whose name shall be Ahmad" [AMMAD]

According to a tradition of Ibn 'Abbis, the Prophet said "My name in the Qur'en is Muhammad, and in the Injil Ahmed, and in the Taurat Ahyad (from the root , to shun"), and I am called Abyad because I shun hell-fire more than any of my people" (An Nawawi, Wustenfeld's edition, p 28)

MUHAMMAD, The Character of (1) Sir William Muir (Life of Makamet, new ed p 537 et seqq) has carefully collated from the traditions embodied by the secretary of al-Waqidi an account of the person and character of Muhammad "This account," as Sir William Muir remarks, "illustates generally the style and contents of the Muslim biographies of their Prophet"

When Ayesha was questioned about Mehomet she used to say He was a man just such as vourselves, he laughed often and smiled much 'But how would he occupy himself at home?' 'Even as any of you occupy yourselves He would mend his clothes, and cobble his shoes He need to help me in my bousebold duties, but what he did oftenest was to sew. If he had the choice between two matters, he would choose the easiest, so as that no sin accrued therefrom He never took revenge excepting where the honour of God was concerned When angry with any person, he would say "What hath taken such a one that he should soil his forehead in the mud'"'

"His humility was shown by his riding upon asses, by his accepting the invitation even of slaves, and when mounted, by his taking another behind him. He would say 'I sit at meals as a servant doeth, and I eat like a servant for I really am a servant', and he would sit as one that was always ready to use He discouraged (supererogatory) fasting, and works of mortification When seated with his followers, he would temain long silent at a time. In the mosque at Medina they used to repeat pieces of poetry, and tell stories regarding the moderate. that occurred in the 'days of ignorance,' and laugh, and Mahomet listening to them, would smile at what they said

"Mahomet hated nothing more than lying and whenever he knew that any of his followers had erned in this respect, he would hold himself sloof from them until he was assured of their repentance

His Speech.

"He did not speak rapidly running his words into one another, but enunciated each syllable distinctly, so that what he said was imprinted in the memery of every one who heard him. When at public prayers, it might be known from a distance that he was reading by the metien of his beaut. He never read in a singing or chanting style, but he would draw out his voice resting at certain places. Thus, in the prefatory words of a Sera, he would pause after bismillahi, after at Rahman, and again after at Rahm

" Garl

"He used to walk so rapidly that the people half ran behind him, and could hardly keep up with him

a Habits in Bating

"He never ate rechning, for Gabiel had told him that such was the manner of kings, nor had he ever two men to wilk behind him. He used to est with his thumb and his two forefingers, and when he had done, he would lick them, beginning with the middle one. When offered by Gabiel the valley of Mocca full of gold, he preferred to forego it, saying that when he was hungry he could come before the Lord lowly and when full with praise

Moderation

"A servant maid being once long in returning from an errand, Mahoinet was annoyed, and said, 'If it were not for the law of retaliation, I should have punished you with this tooth-pick' (i.e. with an mapprociably light punishment)

" Customs at Prayer

"He used to stand for such a length of time at prayer that his legs would swell when remoistrated with, no said 'What' shall I not behave as a thisukful servant should?' He never vawned at prayer When he sneezed, he did so with a subdued voice, covering his face. At funerals he never rode he would remein allout on such occasions at it conversing with himself, so that the people used to think he was helding communication with the dead

" Refusal to make Personal Use of Pethes

"While he accepted presents he refused to use anything that had been offered as alms neither would be allow anyone in his tainst to use what had been brought as alms, 'For' said he, 'sims are the impurity of markind (se that which cleanses their impurity). His scruples on this point were se strong that he would not eat even a data picked up on the road, lest perchance it might have dropped from a titbe load.

" Food Relished

"Mahomet had a special liking for sweet meats and honey He was also fond of cucumbers and of undried dates. When a lamb or a kid was home cooked Mahomot would go to the pot, take out the shoulder, and eat it. He used to eat most dates and cooked food together What he most relished was a mess of bread cooked with meat, and a dish of dates dressed with butter and milk

"Mahomet used to have sweet (rain) water kept for his use

Women and Scents

"A great array of traditions are produced to prove that the Prophet was fond of women and scents, and liked these of all things in the world the best. Ayesha used to say 'The Prophet loved three things—women, scents, and food, he had his heart's desire of the two first, but not of the last'

" Structened means at Medina

"Ayesha tells us that for months together Mahomet did not get a full meal Months used to pass,' ahe says again, 'and no fite would be lighted in Mahomet's house, either for baking bread or cooking meat' 'How, then, did to live?' 'By the "two black things" (dates and water), and by what the citizens used to send unto us, the Lord require them' Such of them as had milch catt e would send us a little milk The Prophet never enjoyed into inxury of two kinds of food the saine day, if he had flesh there was nothing also and so if he had dates, so likewise if he had bread'

at We possessed no sieves, but used to bruise the grain and blow off the husks'

" Appearance, Habits, fc

"He used to wear two garments His rzar (under garment) hung down three or four inches below his knees. His mantle was not wrapped round him o as to cover his body, but he would draw the end of it under his shoulder

"He used to divide his time into three parts one was given to God, the second allotted to his family, the third to himself When public business began to press upon him, he give up one half of the latter portion to the service of others

"When he pointed he did so with his whole hand, sud when he was astomethed he turned his hand over (with the palm upwards). In speaking with another, he brought his hand near to the person addressed, and he would strike the palm of the left in the thumb of the right hand. Angry, he would avert his face, joyful he would look downwards. He often smilled, and, when he laughed, his teeth used to appear white as hallstones.

"In the interval allotted to others, he received all that came to him, listoned to their representations, and occupied himself in disposing of their business and in hearing what they had to tell him. He would say on such occasions 'Let those that are here give information regarding that which passeth to them that are absont, and they that cannot themselves appear to make known their necessities let others report them to me in their stead, the Lord will establish the feet of such in the Day of Judgment'

" Seal of Prophecy

"This, says one, was a protuberance on the Prophet's back of the size and appearance of a pigeon's egg. It is said to have been the divine seal which, according to the predictions of the Soriptures, marked Mahomet as the last of the Prophets. How far Mahomet himself encouraged this idea it is impossible to say. From the traditions it would seem to have been nothing more than a mole of unusual size, and the saying of Mahomet, that 'God had placed it there,' was probably the germ of supernatural associations which grew up concerning it

"Harr

"His hair used to be combed, it was neither curling nor smooth. He had, says one, four euried locks. His hair was ordinarily parted, but he did not care if it was not so. According to another tradition, 'The Jews and Christians used to let their hair fall down, while the heathen parted it. Now Mahomet loved to follow the people of the Book in matters concerning which he had no express command. So he used to let down his hair without parting it. Subsequently however, he fell into the habit of parting it.

" Moustache

"Mahomet used to clip his monstache. A Magian once came to him and said 'You ought to clip your beard and allow your monstaches to grow' 'Nay,' said the Prophot, 'for my Lord hath commanded me to clip the monstaches and allow the beard to grow'

" Dress

"Various traditions are quoted on the difficient colours he used to wear—white chiefly, but also red, yellow, and green. He sometimes put on woellen clothes. Ayesha, it is said, exhibited a piece of woollen stuff in which she swore that Mahomet died. She adds that he once had a black woollen diess, and she still remembered, as she spoke, the contrast between the Prophets fair skin and the black cloth. The odour of it, however, becoming unpleasant, he cast it off, for he loved sweet odours."

"Hs entered Mecca on the taking of the city (some say) with a black turban. He had also a black standard. The end of his turban used to hang down between his shoulders. He once received the present of a sceri for a turban, which had a figured or spotted fringe, and this he out off before wearing it. He was very fond of etriped Yemen stuffs. He used to wrap his turban many times round his head, and 'the lower edge of it used to appear like the soiled clothes of an oil-dealer'

"He once prayed in a silken dress, and then cast it aside with abhorrence, saying 'Such stuff it doth not become the pious to wear' On another occasion, as he prayed in a figured or spotted mantle, the spote attracted his notice, when he had ended, ho said 'Take away that mantle, for verily it hath distracted me in my prayers, and bring me a common one' His sleeve chieded at the wrist. The robes in which he was in the habit of receiving embassies, and his fine Hadbramaut mantle, remained with the Caliphs, when worn or rent, these garments were mended with fresh cloth, and in after times, the Caliphs used to wear them at the feativals. When he put on new clothes (sither an under-garment, a girdle, or a turban), the Prophet would offer up a prayer such as this 'Praise be to the Lord who hath clothed me with that which shall hide my nakedness and adorn me while I live. I pray Thee for the good that is in this, and I seek refuge from the evil that is in the same, and from the evil that hath been made for it.

" Shoes

"His servant, Anas, had charge of his shoes and of his water-pot After his master's death Anas used to show his shoes They were sites the Hadhramaut pattern, with two thongs In the year 100 or 110 AH, one went to buy shoes at Mecca, and tells us that the shoemaker offered to make them exactly after the model of Mahomet's, which he said he had seen in the possession of Fatims, granddaughter of Abbas His shoes used to be cobbled He was in the habit of praying with his shoes on On one occasion, having taken them of at prayers, all the people did likewise, but Mahomet told them there was no necessity, for he had merely taken off his own because Gabriel had apprised him that there was some dirty substance attaching to them (cleanliness being required in all the surroundings at prayer) The thongs of his shoes once broke, and they mended them for him by adding a new piece, after the service, Mahomet desired his shoes to be taken away and the thongs restored as they were, 'For said he, 'I was distracted at prayer thereby

" Tooth-picks

"Ayesha tells us that Mahomet never lay down by night or by day, but on waking he applied the tooth pick to his teeth before he performed ablution. He used it so much as to wear away his gums. The tooth-pick was always placed conveniently for him at night, so that, when he got up in the night to pray, he might use it before his lustrations. One says that he saw him with the tooth-pick in his mouth, and that he kept saying aa, aa, is if about to venit. His tooth-picks were made of the green wood of the paim-tree. He never travelled without one

" Articles of Toilet

"He very frequently oiled his hair, poured water on his beard, and applied antimony to his eyes.

" Armour

"Four sections are devoted to the description of Mahomet's armour,—his swords coats of mail, shields, lances, and hows

" Muscellaneous

"The Prophet used to snuff simsim (sesa mum), and wash his hands in a decoction of the wild plum-tree When he was afraid of forgetting anything, he would tie a thread on his finger or his ring

" Horses

"The first horse which Mahomet ever possessed was one he purchased of the Bani Fazara, for ten owckess (ounces of silver), and he called its name sabb (running water), from the easiness of its paces Mahomet was mounted on it at the battle of Ohod, when there was but one other horse from Medina on the field He had also a horse called Sabāha (Shamyah?), he raced it and it won, and he was greatly rejoiced thereat Ho had a third hoise, named Murtajis (neigher)

. Riding Camels

"Besides Al Caswa (al-Qaswa), Mahomet had a camel called Adhba (al-'Azbā), which in speed outstripped all others. Yet one day an Arab passed it when at its fleetest pass. The Moslems were chagined at this, but Mahomet reproved them, saying, 'It is the property of the Lord, that whensoever men exalt anything, or seek to exalt it, then the Lord putteth down the same

" Milch Camels

"Mahomet had twents mikh camels, the same that were plundered at Al Ghiba. Then mik was for the support of his family every evening they gave two large skinsful. Omm Salmah relates. Our chief food when we lived with Mahomet was milk. The camels used to be brought from Al Châba e ery evening. I had one called aris and Avesh one called Al Samra. The herdman fed them at Al Jūama, and brought them to our homes in the evening. There was also one for Mahomet.

" Milch Flocks

"Mahomet had seven gosts which Ohim Ayman used to tend (this probably telerate an early period of his residence at Medina) His flocks grazed at Ohiod and Himma alternately, and were brought back to the bouse of that wife whose turn it was for Mahomet to be in her abode. A favourite gost naving died, the Prophet desired its skin to be taimed.

"Mahomet "ttached a peculiar blessing to the pessession of goat: "There is no house," he would say, "possessing a goat, but a bles sing abideth thoreon and there is no house possessing three goats but the angels pass the night there praying for its immates until the morning"

Servants

"Fourteen or fifteen persons are mentioned who served the Prophet at various times His slaves he always freed

Houses

"Abdallah ibn Yazid relates that he saw the houses in which the wives of the Prophet dwelt at the time when Omar ibn Al Azîz, Governor of Medina (about A H. 100) demo-hehed them They were built of unburnt bricks, and had separate apartments made of palm-branches, daubed (or built-up) with mnd, he counted nine houses, each having separate apartments, in the space extending from the house of Ayesha and the gate of Mahomet to the house of Asma, daughter of Hosein. Observing the dwelling-place of Omm Salma, he questioned her grandson concerning it, and he told him that when the Prophet was absent on the expedition to Dama Omm Salma built up an addition to her house with a wall of unburnt bricks

When Mahomet returned, he went in to her, and asked what new building this was She rephed, 'I purposed, O Prophet to shut out the glances of men thereby!' Mahomet answered 'O Omm Salma! verily, the most unprofitable thing that eateth up the wealth of the Bellever is building' A citizen of Medina present at the time, con firmed this account, and added that the cur tains of the door were of black hair-cloth He was present, he said, when the despatch of the Caliph Abd al Malik (A H. 86-88) was read aloud, commanding that these houses should be brought within the area of the mosque, and he never witnessed sorer weeping than there was amongs. the people that day One exclaimed 'I wish, by the Lord! that they would leave these nouses alone thus as they are, then would those that apring up hereafter in Medina, and strangers from the ends of the earth come and see what kind of building sufficed for the Prophet's own abod and the sight thereof would deter men fro extravagance and pride

"There were four houses of unburnt bricks the apartments being of palm-branches and five houses made of palm-branches built up with mid and without any separate apartments. Each was three Arabian yards in length to be any they had leather curtains for the doors. One could reach the roof with the hand.

"The house of Haritha (H isah) was next to that of Mahomet Now ienover Melomet took to himself a new wife, he added another house to the row, and Haritha was obliged successively to remove his house, and to build on the space beyond At last this was rejeated an often, that the Prophet said to those about him Vorily, it shameth me to turn Haritha over and over again out of his house"

" Properties

"There were seven gardens which Mukheirick the Jew left to Mahomet Omar ibn Al Aziz, the Caliph said hat, when Gevernor of Medina, he ate of the fruit of these, and nevo tasted sweeter dates. Others say that these gardens formed a portion of the coninstated estates of the Ban Nadhir They were afterwards dedicated perpetually to pious purposes

'Mahomst had three other properties — I. The confiscated lands of the Bam Nadhir The produce of these was appropriated to his own wants One of the plots was called Mashruba Omm Ibrahim, the 'summer garden of (Mary) the mother of Ihrahîn, where the Prophet used to visit har "H. Fadak, the fruits of this were reserved as a fund for undigent travellers

"III The fifth share, and the lands received by capitulation, in Kheibar. This was divided into three parts. Two were devoted for the bonesit of the Moslems generally (r r for State purposes), the proceeds of the third, Maho met assigned for the support of his own family, and what remained over he added to tamily, and what remained over he added to the fund for the use of the Moslems" (The Life of Muhomet, by William Mulr, Esq, London, 1861, vol 11, p 325)

(2) Dr A Spienger Peisan translator of the Government of India, and Principal of the Colontes Madazach man the Alleman and Principal of the Colontes Madazach man the Alleman and Principal of the Colontes Madazach man the Alleman and Principal of the Colontes Madazach man the Alleman and Principal of the Colontes Madazach man the Alleman and Principal of the Colontes Madazach man the Alleman and Principal of the Colontes Madazach man the Alleman and Principal of the Colontes Madazach man the Alleman and Principal of the Colontes Madazach man the Alleman and Principal of the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Madazach man the Colontes Mad

Calcutta Madrasab, gives the following valu able review of the character of Muhammad, as regards his assumption of the prophetic office -

"Up to his fortieth year, Mohammad devoutly vorshipped the gods of his fathers The predominant e of his imaginative powers, and his peculiar position, gave him a turn for religious meditation. He annually spent the month of Ramazan in seclusion in a cave of Mount Hira, where the Qorayshites used to devete themselves to ascetic exercises In this retreat he passed a certain number of nights in prayers, fasted, fed the poor, and gave himself up to meditation, and on his return to Makkah he walked seven times round the Ka'bah before he went to his own

"When he was forty years of age, the first doubts concerning idolatry arose in his mind The true believers ascribe this crisis to a divine revelation, and therefore carefully con coal the orrenmetances which may have given the first impulse It is likely that the eccon tric Zaid, whom he must have met in Mount Hira, first instilled purer notions respecting God into his mind, and induced him to read the Biblical history To abjure the gods, from whom he had hoped for salvation, caused a great struggle to Mohammad, and he became dejected and fond of solitude He spent the greater part of his time in Hira, and came only occasionally to Makkah for new provisions

"Undisturbed meditation increased his excitement, and his overstrained brains were, even in sleep, occupied with doubts and speculations In one of his visions he saw an angel, who said to him, 'Read.' He answered,
'I am not reading.' The angel laid hold of him and squeezed him, until Mohammad succeeded in making an effort. Then he released him, and said again, 'Read' Mohammad answered, 'I am not reading' This was repeated three times, and at length the angel said. Read in the name of thy Lord, the Creator, who has created man of congented blood, -read, for thy Lord is most beneficent It is Hs who has taught by the pen (has revealed the Scriptures), it is He who has taught man what he does not know! These are the initial words of a Surah of the Quran, and the first revelation which Mohammad received If this dream was as momentous as authentic traditions make it it must have been the crisis, which caused Mohammad to seek for truth in the books of the Jews and Christians The words of the angel admit hardly any other sense After much heatstion he determines to study the tenets of another faith, which was hostile to that of his fathers. His resolve is sanctioned by a vision, and he thanks the Orestor, whom the Qurayshites always considered the greatest among their gods, for having sent a revelation to direct man

"It is certain, however that no Muselman will admit the sense which I give to these verses of the Quran and Mohammad himself. in the progress of his career, formally denied having read any part of the Scriptures before the Quran had been revealed to him. This, however, can only be true if he meant the first verses of the Quran, that is to say, those mentioned above, for in the following revelations he introduces the names of most prophets, he holds up their history as an example to the Makkians, he borrows expres sions from the Bible which he admired for their sublimity, be betrays his acquaintance with the gospels by referring to an erro-neously translated rerse of St John, for a proof of his mission, and he frequently alludes to the legends of the Rabbins and Christians Whence has the Prophet of the Gentiles obtained his knowledge of the Biblical history? He answers the question himself. It is God who has revealed it to me This assertion satisfies the believer and is a hint to the inquirer in tracing the sources of his information. He would hardly have hazarded it had he not obtained his instruction under considerable secresy The spirit of persecution at Makkah, which manifested itself against Zaid, made caution necessary for Mohammad, though originally he may have had no ulterior views, in making himself acquainted with another faith Yet with all his precautions, the Qurayshites knew enough of his history to disprove his pretensions. He himself confesses, in a Surah revealed at Makkah (Surah xxv 5), that they said that the Quran was a tissue of falsehood, that several people had assisted him, and that he preached nothing more than what was contained in the "Asatyr of the Ancients," which he used to write, from the dictation of his teachers, morning and evening Who were the men who instructed Mohammad? It is not likely that he would have dared to declare before them, that the doctrines which he had re ceived from them had been revealed to him nor is it likely that, had they been alive after the new religion had become triumphant, they would nave allowed him to take all the credit to hunself Those who exercised an influence upon Mohammad were his disciples, but we find no instance in which he apposied to buy secresy by submitting to the dictation of others I am inclined to think therefore, that his instructors died during his early ourcer, and this supposition enables as to ascertain the names of some of them. The few speci mens of the sayings of Zaid, which have been preserved, prove that Mohammad borrowed freely from him, not only his tenets, but even his expressions, and Zaid did not long survive Mohammad's assumption of his office It is likely that Waragah, the cousin of Khadyjah, who, it would appear, brought about her marriage with Mohammad who was the first to declare that the Great Law [RAMUS] would be revaled to him, and who expressed a wish to assist him during the persecutions to which every prophet was subject, was one Waraquh died shortly before of his teachers the time when he publicly proclaimed his mission The defence of the Prophet, that the man, of whom his countrymen said that he assisted him in writing the Quran, was a foreigner (Sürah xvi 105), and unable to write eo pure Arabio as the language of the Quran was leads us to suspect that one of his chief authorities for the Biblical legends was Addas, a monk of Nineveh, who was sattled at Makkah (See Tajmu-V-Buijāni on Sürah xxv 6) And there can be no doubt that the Rabbins of the Hijaz communicated to Mohammad their legends The commentators upon the Quran inform us further, that he used to listen to Jabr and Yasar, two sword-manufacturers at Makkah, when they read the scriptures, and Ibn Ishaq sais that he had intercourse with 'Abdal Rahman a Christian of Zamemah, but we must never forget that the object of these author ties, in such matters, is not to instruct their renders but to mislead them

"It is certain, from the context, where the expression occurs, and from the commentators on the Quran, that 'Asatyr of the Ancients' is the name of a book, but we have very little information as to its origin and contents. (See the Commentaries of al-Baizawi and the Jalalan on Surab xxv) That dogmas were propounded in it, besides Biblical legends, appears from several passages of the Quran, where it is said that if contained the doctrine of the Resurrection (Sürsha xxvii 70, xlvi 16) li 18 also olean that it was known at Malkah before Moham mad, for the Qorayshites told him that they and their fathers had been acquainted with it before he taught it, and that all that he taught was contained in it (Sürah ixviii 15)
Mohammad had, in all likelihood besides, a version of portions of the scriptures, both of the genuine and some of the spocryphal works, for he refers his audience to them without reserve Tabary informs us that when Mohammad first entered on his office, even his wife Khadyjah had read the scriptures, and was acquainted with the history of the prophets (See Bal'amy's translation of Tabary in Perman )

"In spite of three passages of the Quran quoted above, the meaning of which they clumsily pervert almost all modern Musalman writers, and many of the old ones, deny that Mohammad knew reading or writing

Good authors, however, particularly among the Shiahs, admit that he knew reading, but they say he was not a skilful penman The only support of the opinion of the former is one passage of the Quran, Surah vn 156, in which Mohammad says that he was the Prophet of the Ummis, and an Ummi himself This word, they say, means illiterate, but others say it means a man who is not skilful in writing, and others suppose it to mean a Makkian or an Arab It is clear that they merely guess, from the context, at the mean ing of the word Ummi is derived from ummah, nation' (Latin gens, Greek ethnos), and on comparing the passages of the Quran, in which it occurs, it appears that it means gentile (Greek ethnicos) It is said in the Quran, that some laws are honest, but others think there is no harm in wronging the Ummis Imam Sadiq observes (Hiyatu l-Qulub, vol ii chapter 6, p 2) on this passage, that the Arabs are meant under Ummis, and that they are called so, though they knew writing because God had revealed no book to them and had sent them no prophet Several instances in which Mohammad did read and write are recorded by Bokhary, Nasay, and others. It is, however, certain that he wished to appear ignorant, in order to raise the elegance of the composition of the Quran into a mracle

According to one record, the doubts, in decision, and preparation of the Prophet for his office listed seven years, and so sincere and intense were his meditations on matters of religion, that they brought him to the brink of madness In the Quran we can trace three phases in the progress of the mind of Mohammad from idolatry to the formation of a new crood First, the religion of the Kahah, in which he sincerely believed, scems to have formed the principal subject of his meditations. The contemplation of nature probably assisted by instruction, led him to the knowledge of the unity of God, and there is hardly a verse in the Quran which does not shew how forcibly he was struck with this truth By satisfying the faith of his fathers, he tried to reconcile it with the belief in one God, and for some time he considered the idols round the Ka bah daughters of God, who inter ede with Him for their worshippers But he gare up this belief, chiefly because he could not reconcile himself to the idea that God should have only daughters, which was ignominious in the eyes of an Arab, and that mon should have sons, who reflect honour on a family He also connected the idolatrous worship of the black stone and the ceremo mes of the Hajj, and almost all the other pagen usages of the Haramites, with their Abraham. This idea was not his own. The ecoptics who preceded him beld the same opinion, vet it was neither ancient ner general among the pagan Arabs We find no connexion between the tenets of Moses and those of the Haramites, and though Biblical names are very frequent among the Musalmans, wo de not find one instance of their occurrence amony the pagans of the Hijaz before Mo

"It has been mentioned that the vision in which he was ordered to read, caused him hnally to renounce idolatry, we are told that after this vision an intermission of revelation, called fatrah, took place, which insted upwards of two years The meaning of fatrah is simply that, though this vision was a sevelation, he did not assume his office for two or three years. It is certain that ha composed many Surahs of the Quran during this time, and it must have been during this period that the tenete of the Jews and Chrisplans seriously occupied his mind. Before the vision he was an idolater, and after the fatrah he possessed the acquaintance with the soriptural history which we find in the Quran. Even after he had declared himself a prophet, he shewed, during the beginning of his sereer, a strong learing towards and a smoore belief in, the scriptures and Biblical legends, but in proportion to his success he separated himself from the Bible

"This is the second phase in the progress of the Prophets mind His behef in the scriptures does not imply that he ever be-longed to the Christian or Jewish Church He never could reconcile his notions of God with the doctrine of the Trinity, and with the Divinity of Christ, and he was disgusted with the monkish institutions and secturian disputes of the Christians His croed was 'He is God alone, the Eternal God, He has not begotten and is not begotten, and none is His equal (See Surah cxii) Nothing, however, can be more orreneous than to suppose that Mohammad was at any period of his early career, a delet Faith, when once extinct, cannot be revived, and it was his enthusiastic faith in inspiration that made him a prophet Disappointed with the Jewish and Christian religions, he began to form a system of faith of his own, and this is the third phase of the transition period. For some time it ecems, he had no intention to preach it publicly, but circumstances, as well as the warm conviction of the truth of his creed, at length prevailed upon him to spread it beyond the clicle of his family and friends

"The mental excitement of the Prophet was much moreased during the fatrak, and like the ardent scholar in one of Schiller's poems, who dared to lift the veil of truth, he was nearly annihilated by the light which broke in upon him He usually wandered about in the hills near Makkah, and was so long absent, that on one occasion, his wife being afraid that he was lost, sent men in scarch of him He suffered from hallucinations of his senses, and, to finish his sufferings, he soveral times contemplated suicide by throwing himself down from a precipice His friends were alarmed at his elate of mind: Some considered it as the eccentricities of a poetical genius, others thought that he was a kalun, or soothsayer, but the majority took a less charitable view (see Surah laix 40, xx 5), and declared that he was insane, and, as madness and melancholy are ascribed to supermatural influence in the East, they said that he was, in the power of Satan and his agents, the jim. They called in excreets, and he himself doubted the soundness of his mind 'I hear a sound,' he said to his wife, 'and see a light. I am afraid there are junn in me.' And on other eccasions he said, 'I am afraid I am a kuhin.' God will never allow that such should befall thee ' said Khadyiah, for thou keepest thy engagements, and assistest thy relations According to some accounts, she added, Thou wilt be the prophet of thy nation. And, in order to remove every doubt, she took him to her cousin Waraqah, and he said te her, 'I see thou (i.e thy explanation) art correct, the cause of the excitement of thy husband is the coming to him of the great nomes, law, which is like the nomoe of Moses should be alive when he receives his mission, I would assist him, for I believe in him After this Khadyjah went to the monk, 'Addas, and he confirmed what Waraqah had said Warsqah died soon after, before Mohammad entered on his mission

"The words of Mohammad, "I am afraid I am a kahin,' require some explanation. The Arabs, previous to the promulgation of Islam, believed in kahns, soothesyers, and even in our days they have greater faith in saints and inspired persons than other equally un-civilized nations. Such a belief is so necessary a limitation of the personal freedom of the Bedomns, which knows no other bounds, that I consider it as the offspring of liberty Even the most refractory spirit sees no humi-liation in confessing his wrong-doings to a helpless seer, and in submitting to his decisions, and by doing so, if he has embroiled himself, he can return to peace with himself and with society We find, therefore, in the ancient history of Arabia, that litigations were frequently referred to celebrated kahins. These, it would appear, were eccentric persons, of great cunning, and not without genius The specimens which we have of their oracles are obecure, and usually in rhymed prose and incoherent sentences, and they are irequently preceded by a heavy oath to the truth of what they say, like some of the Surahs of the Quran It was believed that they knew what was concealed from the eyes of the common mortals, but they were looked upon with awe, for the Araba con ceived that they were possessed by, or allied with, Satan and the junn. The evil sprrits used to approach the gates of heaven by stealth to pry into the secrets which were being transacted between God and the angels, and to convey them to the kahine Existing prejudices left no alternative to Mohammad but to proclaim himself a prophet who was inspired by God and His angels, or to be considered a kahin possessed by Satan and his agents the junn

"Khadyjah and her friends advised him to adopt the former course, and, after some hestation, he followed their advice, as it would appear, with his own conviction. His puror notions of the Deitv, his moral conduct, his predilection for religious speculations, and his piety were proofs sufficiently strong to convince an affectionate wife that the supernatural influence, under which he was, came from heaven. But, as the pagen Arabs had very imperfect notions of divine mapiration, it was necessary for him to prove to them, by the history of the prophete, that some eeers were inspired by God, and to this and, he devoted more than two-thirds of the Quran to Biblical legends, most of which he has so well adapted to his own oase, that if we substitute the name of Mohammad for Moses and Abraham, we have his own views, fate, and tendency And, in order to remove every doubt as to the cause of his excitement, Mohammad subsequently maintained, that since he had assumed his office, heaven was surrounded by a strong guard of angels, and if the jinn venture to ascond to its precinets, a flaming dart, that is to say, a shooting star, is thrown at thom, and they are procipitated to the lower regions, and, therement of his mission

"The declaration of Waraqah, and of the monk 'Addas, that the great nomes would descend upon hum, and the faith of his wife, neither conveyed full conviction nor gave they sufficient courage to Mohammad to declare himself publicly the messenger of God, on the centrary, they increased the morbid state of his mind. A fatalist, as he was, it was a hallucination and a fit which decided him to follow their advice One day, whilst he was wandering about in the hills near Makkah, with the intention to destroy himself, he heard a voice, and, on raising his head, he beheld Gubriel, between heavon and earth, and the angel assured him that he was the prophet of God. This hallucing tion is one of the few clearly stated miraoles to which he appeals in the Quran Not even an allusion is made, in that book, to his fits, during which his followers believe that he received the revelations. This boars out the account of Waqidy, which I have followed, and proves that it was rather the exalted stats of his mind, than his fits, which caused his friends to believe in his mission. Frightened by this apparition, he retuned home, and, feeling unwell, he called for covering He had a fit and they poured cold water upon him, and when he was recovering from it, he received the revelation, O thou covered, arise and preach, and magnify thy Lord, and cleanse thy garment, and fly overy abomination', and henceforth, we are told, he received revelations without intermission, that is to say, the fatrah was at an end, and he assumed his office

"This crisis of Mohammad's struggles bears a strange resemblance to the opening scene of Gosthe's Faust He paints, in that admirable drama, the struggles of mind which attend the transition, in men of genue, from the ideal to the real-from youth to manhood. Both in Mohammad and in Faust the anguish of the mind, distracted by doubts, is dispelled by the song of angels, which rises from their own bosoms, and is the voice of the consciousness of their sincority and warmth in seeking for truth, and in both, after this crisis, the enthusiasm ebbs gra-dually down to calm design, and they now blasphemously sacrifice their faith in God to self aggrandisement. In this respect the resemblance of the second part of Faust to Mohammad's career at Madinah is complete. As the period of transition in the life of the Prophet has hitherto been completely unknown in Europe, Goethe's general picture of this period, in the life of enthusiasts, is like a prediction in reference to the individual case of Mchammad.

"Some authors consider the fits of the Prophet as the principal evidence of his mission, and it is therefore necessary to say a few words on them. They were preceded by a great depression of spirits he was despendent, and his face was clouded, and they were ushered in by coldness of the extremities and shivering. He shock, as if he were suffering of agus, and called out for covering His mind was in a most painfully excited state. He hoard a tinkling in his cars, as if bells wers ringing, or a humming, as if bees were swarming round his head, and his lips quivered, but this motion was under the control of volition. If the attack proceeded beyond this stage, his oyes became fixed and staing, and the motions of his head became convulsive and automatic At length, per spiration broke out, which covered his face in largo drops, and with this ended the attack Sometimes, however, if he had a violent fit, he fell comatose to the ground, tike a person who is intoxicated, and (at least at a latter period of his life his face was flushed, and his respiration etertorous, and he rev'ained in that state for some tims The bystanders sprinkled water in his face, but he hunself fanoied that he would derive a great banefit from being cupped on the head Thus is all the information which I have been able to collect soncerning the fits of Mohammad. It will be observed that wo have no distinct account of a paroxyam between the one which he had in his infancy, and the one after which he assumed his office It is likely that up to his forty-fourth year they were not habitual. The alarm of the nurse, under whose care he had been two yours before he had the former of these two lits, shows that it was the first, and the age and circumstances under which he had it, render it likely that it was solitary, and caused by the heat of the sun and gastrio irritation. The fit after which he assumed his office was undoubtedly brought on by long-oontinued and increasing mental sxortement, and by his ascetio oxercises We know that he used frequently to fast, and that he sometimes devoted the greater part of the night to prayer The bias of the Musalmans is to gloss over the aberration of mind, and the intention to commit suicide, of their prophet Most of his biographers pass over the transi-tion period in silence We may, theisefore, be justified in stretching the scanty information which we can glean from them to the utmost extent, and in supposing that he was for some time a complete manuac, and that the fit after which he assumed his office was a paroxysm of cataleptic meanity. This disease is sometimes accompanied by such interesting psychical phenomena, that even in modern times it has given rise to many superstitious opinions After this paroxyam the fits became habitual, though the moral excitement cooled down, and they assumed more and more an epileptic character " (The Life of Mohammad from Original Sources, by A Sprenger, MD, part 1, Allahabad, 1851, p 949)

(8) Dr Marcus Dodds, in his Mohammed,

Buddha, and Uhrest," says

"But is Mohammed in no sense e prophet? Certainly he had two of the most important characteristics of the prophetso order. He saw truth about God which his fellow-men did not see, and he had an nresistible inward impulse to publish this truth. In respect of this latter qualification, Mohammed may stand comparison with the most courageous of the beloic prophets of Israel truth's sake he risked his life, he suffered daily persecution for years, and eventually banishment, the loss of property, of the goodwill of his fellow-citizens, and of the confidence of his friends, he suffered, in short, as much as any man can suffer short of death, which he only escaped by flight, and yet he unfinchingly proclaimed his message No bube, threat, or inducement, could stience him 'Though they array against me the sun on the right-hand and the moon on the left, I cannot i enounce my purpose And it was this persistency, this belief in his call, to proclaim the unity of God which was the making of Islam "Other men have been monothersts in the midst of idolaters, but no other man has founded a strong and enduring monotherstic religion The distinction in his case was his resolution that other men should believe. If we ask what it was that made Mchammed aggressive and proselytizing, where other men had been content to cherish a solitary faith, we must answer that it was nothing else than the depth and force of his own conviction of the truth To himself the difference between one God and many, between the unser! Creator and these ugiv lumps of stone or wood, was simply infinite The one creed was death and darkness to him, the other life and light. It is useless seeking for motives in such a case—for ends to serve and sellish reasons for his speaking, the impossibility with Mohammed was to keep silence His acceptance of the office of teacher of his people was anything but the ill advised and sudden ampulse of a light minded vanity or His own convictions had been ambition reached only after long years of lonely mental agony, and of a doubt and distraction bordering on madness. Who can doubt the dering on madness. earnesiness of that search after truth and the living God, that drove the affluent merchant from his comfertable home and his fond wife, to make his abode for months at a time in the dismal cave on Mount Hua? If we respect the shrinking of Isalah or Jeremiah from the heavy task of proclaiming unwelcome truth, we must also respect the keen sensutiveness of Mchammed, who was so burdened by this same responsibility, and so persuaded of his incompetency for the task, that at times he thought his new feelings and thoughts were a snare of the Devil, and at times he would fain have rid himself of all further struggle by casting himself from a friendly precipies His rolling his head in his mentle, the sound of the ringing of bells in his ears, his sobbing like a young camel, the sudden grey hairs which he himself ascribed to the terrific Suras—what were all these but so many physical signs of nervous organization over-strained by anxiety and thought?

"His giving himself out as a prophet of God was, in the tirst instance, not only smcere, but probably correct in the sense in which he himself understood it. He felt that he had thoughts of God which it deeply concerned all around him to receive, and he knew that these thoughts were given him by God, although not, as we shall see, a revela-tion strictly so called His mistake by no means lay in his supposing himself to be called upon by God to speak for Hum and introduce a better religion, but it lay in his gradually coming to insist quite as much on men s accepting him as a prophet as on their accepting the great truth he presched He was a prophet to his countrymen in so far as he proclaimed the unity of God, but this was no sufficient ground for his claiming to be their guide in all matters of religion, still less for his assuming the lordship over them in all matters civil as well. The modesty and humility apparent in him, so long as his mind was possessed with objective truth, gradually gives way to the presumptuousness and arrogance of a mind turned more to a To put the sense of its own importance second article of the Mohammedan creed on the same level as the first, to make it as essential that men should believe in the mission of Mohammed as in the unity of God. was an ignerant, incongruous, and false com-bination. Had Mohammed known his own ignorance as well as his knowledge, the world would have had one religion the less, and Christianity would have had one more reformer" (Mohammed, Buddha, and Christ, p 17)

(4) Thomas Carlyle, in his lecture, "The Hero as Prophet," says -

"Mahomet himself, after all that can be said about him was not a sensual man. shall err widely if we consider this man as a common voluptuary, intent mainly on base enjoyments—nay on enjoyments of any kind His household was of the fragalest, his common diet barley-bread and water, sometimes for months there was not a fire once lighted on his hearth. They record with just pride that he would mend his own shoes, patch his own closk A poor hard toding all provided man, careless of what vulgar men toil for Not a bad man I should say, something better in him than bunger of any sort-or these wild Arab men fighting and jostling three and twenty years at his hand, in close contact with him always, would not have reverenced him so! These were wild men, barsting ever and anon into quarrel, inte all kinds of fierce sincerity, without right, worth, and manhood, no man could have commanded them. They called him Prophet, you say? Why, he stood there face to face with them bere, not enshrined in any mystery, visibly cleating his own closk, cobbling his own shoes, fighting, counselling, ordering in the midst of them, they must have seen what kind of a man ho was, let him be called what you like! No emperor with his tiaras was obayed as this man in a cloak of his own clouting During three and twenty years of rough actual trial, I find something of a veritable Here necessary for that of itself

'His last words are a prayer, broken ejaculations of a heart struggling-up in them bling hope towards its Maker. We cannot say his religion made him worse, it made him better, good, not had Generous things are recorded of him, when he lost his daughter, the thing he answers is, in his own dislect, everyway sincero, and yot equivalent to that of Christians 'The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away, blessed he the name of the Lord He answered in like manner of Said, his emancipated well-beloved slave, the second of the believers Said had fallen in the war of Tabue, the first of Mahomot's fightings with the Greeks Mahomet said it was well Said had done his Master a work, Said had now gone to he Master it was all well with Haid Yet Said's daughter found him neeping over the hody, the old gray-baired mail molting in trare! What do I see? said she You see a friend veeping over his trend. He went out for the last time into the mosque two days before his death asked, If he had injured any man? Let his own back bear the stripes If he owed any man A voice answered, Yes me three diachms borrowed on such an occasion' Makomer ordered them to be paid 'Better be in shame now,' said he 'than at the Day of Judgment You remember Kadijah, and the 'No by Allah ' Traits of this kind show us the genuine man, the brother of us all, brought visible through twelve centuries, the veritable son of our common Mother" (Lectures on Herocs, p 66 ) wives) concubines, figure favourably by the side of David's six wives and numerous con cubines (2 Sam v 13, 1 Chron di 1-9; xiv 3), Solomon's 700 wives and 300 conculunes (1 Kings xi 3), and Rehohosms eighteen wives and sixty conombines (2 Chron xi 21), a plurality expressly forbidden to the sove reign of Israel, who was commanded not to multiply wives to himself (Deut xvii 17)

(5) The Rev Dr Badger remarks - "With respect to the private as distinct from the public character of Muhammad. from the time of his vettlement at al Madicah, it does not appear to have deteriorated except in one particular, from what it had bee i prior to the flight from Mecca. Ho was still frugal m his habits, generous and liberal, faithful to his associates, treasured up the loving me mery of absent and departed friends, and awarted his lest summons with fortifude and aubmission That he entertained an excessive passion for women, was lustful, if you will, cannot be denied, but the fourteen wives whom frem first to last he married and his eleven (? two see MI HAMMAD's

"It is not so much his polygamy, considering all the circumstances of the case, which justly lays Muhammad open to reproach, but his having deliberately infringed one of his own alleged divino revelations, which restricted the number of wives to four and no more (Sura iv 3), also for having in the first instance dallied with Zamab, the wife of his freedmen and adopted son Zaid-ibn Harlthah, who complacently divorced her in order that she might espouse the Prophet In this case moreover as has nheady been related, he adduced the authority of God as sanctioning on his behoof first, and thenceforth in the behoof of all Muslims, the mar riage of a man with the diverced wife of his idepted son, which up to that rime had been considered incestrious Whatever apology may be adduced for Muhammad in this matter of polygamy, there is no valid plea to justify his improbity and impiety in the case of Zamab"

(6) Sn William Mair says -I would warn the reader against seeking to portray in his mind a character in all its parts consistent with itself to the character of Mahomet The truth 1-, that the trangest inconsistencies blended together (according to the went of human nature) throughout the life of the Prophet The student of the lustery will trace for himself how the pure and lifty aspirations of Mahomet were first tinged and then gradually debased by a half unconscious se'l deception and how in this process truth merged into falsebood, smeetity into guile those opposite principles often co-existing even as active agencies in his conduct. The reader will observe that sin ultaneously with the anxious desire to extinguish idelativ, and to promote religion and virtue in the world, the e was nartured by the Prophet an his own heart a licentions self indulgence, till in the end assuming to be the involvate of Heaven he justified himself by 'revelations' from God in the most flagrant breaches of morality He will remark that while Mahomet cherished a kind and tender disposition, 'weeping with them that wept,' and binding to his person the hearts of his fol lowers by the ready and self-denying offices of love and friendship, he could yet take pleasure in cruel and perhdious assassination, could glost over the massacre of an entire tribe, and savagel consign the innucent babe to the fires of hell Inconsistencies such as these continually present themselves from the period of Mahomet's arrival at Medina, and It is by the study of these inconsistencies that his character must be rightly comprehended The key to many difficulties of this description may be found. I believe, in the chapter on the belief of Mahamet in his own inspiration' When once he had dared to forge the name of the Most High God as the seal and authority of his own words and actions, the germ was laid from which the errors of his after life freely and fatally developed themselves" (Life of Muhomet, new

ed p 535)
(7) Mr Boaworth Smith, in his Mohammed

and Mohammedanism, says -

"Mohammed did not, indeed, himself conquer a world like Alexander, or Casar, or Napoleon He did not himself weld together into a homogeneous whole a vast system of states like Charles the Great He was not a philosophic king, like Marcus Aurelius, nor philosopher like Aristotle or like Bacon, ruling by pure reason the world of thought for centuries with a more than kingly power, be was not a legislator for all mankind, nor even the highest part of it, like Justiman, nor did he cheaply carn the title of the Great br heing the first among rulers to turn, like Constantine, from the setting to the using sun He was not a universal philanthropist like the greatest of the Stoics

"Nor was he the apostle of the hignest form of religion and eivilisation combined like Gregory or Bonitace like Leo or Alfred the Great He was less, indeed, than most of these in one or two of the elements that go to make up human greatness, but he was also greater Half Christian and halt Pagen half civilised and half barbacian, it was given to him in a marvellous degree to unite the neculiar excellences of the one with the poculiar excellences of the other 'I have seen, said the ambassador sent by the triumphant

Quraish to the dospised exile at Medina- I have seen the Person Chosroes and the Greek Herachus sitting upon their thrones

but never did I see a mou ruling his equals as does Mohammed

· Head of the State as well as of the Church, he was ( mear and Pope in one but he was Pape without the Pape's pretensions, Cassar without the legions of Casar Without a standing army, without a body guard, without a pilare withert a fixed revenue, if ever any must had tue right to say that he ruled by a right divine, it was Mohammed, for he had all the power without its instruments and without its supports

"By a fortune apsolutely unique in history Mohammed is a three-fold founder-of a nation of an empire and of a religiou Illitorate lumiself, scancely able to read or write, he was yet the author of a book which is a poem, a code of laws a Book of Common Prayer, and a Bible in one and is reverenced to this day by a srath of the whole human race as a meracle of purity of style of wis dom, and of truth. It was the one muscle claimed by Mohammed—his standing iniraclo be called it, and a miracle indeed it is But looking at the circumstances of the time at the unbounded reverence of his followers, and comparing him with the Fathers of the ! Church or with medieval saints, to my mind the most musculous thing about Mohammed is, that he never claimed the power of working miracles Whatever he had said he could do, his disciples would straightway have seen hm do They could not help attributing to him miraculous acts which he never did, and which he always denied he could do What more crowning proof of his sincerity is needed? Monammed to the end of his life claimed for himself that title only with which he had begun, and which the highest philo-sophy and the truest Christianit will one day I venture to believe, agree in yielding to him that of a Prophet, a very Prophet of Goo" (Mohammed and Mohammedanium. p J40

(8) Major Robert Durie Osborn, in his I-lan under the Arabs, save - "He (Muhammad) was brought face to face with the question which every spiritual reformer his to meet and consider against which so many noble spirits have gone to ruin Will not the end justify the means? Here am I a faithful servant of God, eager only to enthrone Hun in the hearts of men and at the very goal and termination of my labours I am thwarted by this incapacity to work a miracle It is true, as these infidels allege, that the older prophets did possess this power, and I unless the very reason and porpose of my existence is to be made a blank must also do something worderful But what kind of miracle? In his despair, Muhammad declared that the Quran itself was that constantly recurring miracle they were accking after Had hoy ever heard these stories of Noah Lot, Abraham Joseph Zacharias Jesus, and others? No neither had he They were transcripts made from the 'preserved Table that stood before the throne of God The archangel Gabriel had revealed them to Muhammad, written in pure Arable, for the spiritual edification of the Quraish Thus in the twelfth Surah, where he details at great length an exceedingly ridicu lous history of Joseph he commences the narralive with these words, as spoken by God -

There are signs of the clear Book

Ao Arabic Qur an have we sent it down. that ye might understand it ' and at the close of the Sainh, we are told -This is one of the scaret histories which we reveal unto thee Thou wast not present with Joseph's breth en when they conceived their design and laid their plot but the greater part of men, though thou long for it, will not believe. Thou shatt not ask of them any recompense for this message It is simply an instruction for all mankind

And, again, in the LXVIIth Surah, he declares respecting the Qur'an -

It is a missive from the Lord of the abiro #

But it Muhammad had fabricated conoerning us any sayings

We had surely seized him by the right Band.

And had cut through the vem of his neck

"It would be easy to multiply extracts of similar purport, but the above will suffice by way of illustration. There are modern biographers of the Prophet who would have us believe that he was not conscious of falsehood when making these assertions He was under a hallucination, of course, but he be lieved what he said This to me is incredible The legends in the Qur'an are derived chiefly from Talmudic courses Muhammad must have learned them from some Jew resident in or near Mekka To work them up into the form of rhymed Surahs, to put his own peculiar doctrines in the mouth of Jewish patriarchs, the Virgin Mair, and the infant Jesus (who talks like a good Mosiem the moment after his birth), must have required time, thought, and labour It is not possible that the man who had done this could have forgotten all about it, and believed that these legends had been brought to him ready propared by an angelic visitor Muhammad was guilty of filsehood under circumstances where he deemed the end justified the means" (Islam under the Arabs, p 21)

(9) The character of Muhammad is a historic problem, and many have been the conjectures as to his motives and designs. Was he an impostor, a fanatic, or an honest man—"a very prophet of God"? And the problem might have for ever remained unsolved, had not the Prophet himself appealed to the Old and New Testaments in proof of his mission. This is the crucial test established by the Prophet himself. He claims to be seighed in the balance with the diving Josus.

Objection has often been made to the manner in which Christian divines have attacked the private character of Muliaminad Why reject the prophetic mission of Muhammad on account of his private vices when you n David, or a Solomon? Michigaries should not, as a rule, attack the character of Ma hammad in dealing with Islam it rouses opposition, and is an offensive line of argument Still, in forming an estimate of his prophetic claims, we maintain that the chie ractes of Muhammad is an important consi deration We readily admit that be men have sometimes been, like Balaam and others, the divinely appointed organs of inspiration, but in the case of Muhammad, his professed inspiration sanctioned and encouraged his own vices. That which ought to have been the fountain of purity was, in fact, the cover of the Prophet's depravity But how different it is in the case of the time prephet David where in the words of inspiration he lays bare to public gaze the enormity of his own crimes The deep contrition of his inmost soul is manifest in every line-" [ acknowledge my transgression, and my sin is ever before me against Theo. Thee only, have I suned, and done this evil in Thy aight '

The best defenders of the Arabian Prophet are obliged to admit that the matter of Zamab, the wife of Zaid, and again, of Mary, the Copuc slave, are "an indelible stum" upon his memory, that "he ie once or twice untrue to the kind and forgiving disposition of his best nature, that he is once or twice unrelenting in the punishment of his personal enemies, and that he is guilty even more than once of comming at the assasination of inveterate opponents", but they give no satisfactory explanation or apology for all this being done under the supposed sanction of God in the Qur'an

In forming an estimate of Muhammad's prophetical pretensione, it must be remembered that he did not claim to be the founder of a new religion, but merely of a new covenant. He is the last and greatest of all God's prophets. He is sent to convert the world to the one true religion which God claims to supersede that of the Lord Jesus And it is here that we take our stand givo linhammad credit as a warrior, as a legis-lator, as a poet, as a man of uncommon genius raising himself amidst great opposition to the pinnacle of renown, we admit that he is without doubt, one of the greatest heroes the world has ever seen, but when we consider his claims to supersede the mission of the divine Jesus, we strip him of his borrowed plumes, and reduce him to the condition of an impostor! For whilet he has adopted and arowed his belief in the sacred books of the lew and the Christian, and has given them all the stamp and currency which his authority and influence could impart, he has attempted to rob Christianity of every distinctive truth which it possesses—its divine Saviour, its Heavenly Comforter, its two Sacraments, its pure code of social morals, its spirit of love and truth-and has written hie own refutation and condemnation with hie own hand, by professing to confirm the divine oracles which sup the very foundations of his religious system. We follow the Prophet in his selfasserted mission from the cave of Hira' to the closing ecene, when he dies in the midst of the lamentations of his harim, and the contentions of his friends—the visions of Gabriel, the period of mental depression the contemplated suicide, the assumption of the prophetic office, his struggles with Makken unbelief, his flight to al-Madinsh, his trumphant ontry into Makkah—and whilst we wonder at the genus of the hero we pause at every stage and inquire, "Is this the Apovile of God, whose mission is to claim universal dominion, to the suppression not merely of idolatry, but of Christianity itself? Then it is that the divine and holy character of Jesus rises to our view, and the inquiring mind sickons at the thought of the beloved, the pure, the lowly Jesue giving place to that of the ambitrous, the sensual, the time-serving hero of Arabia In the study of Islam, the character of Muhammad needs an apology or a defence at every stage, but in the contemplation of the Christian system, whilet we everywhere read of Jesus and see the reflection of His mage in everything we read the heart revels in the contemplation, the inner pulsations of our spiritual life bound within us at the study of a character so divine, so pure.

We are not insensible to the beauties of the Qur'an as a literary production (although they have, without doubt, been overrated), but as we admire its conceptions of the Divine nature, its deep and fervent trust in the power of God, its frequent deep morai earnestness, and its sententious wisdom, we would gladly rid ourselves of our recollec-tions of the Prophet, his licentious harim, his sanguinary battle-fields, his ambitious schemes, whilst as we peruse the Christian Scriptures, we find the grand central charm in the divine character of its Founder It is the divine character of Jesus which gives fragrance to His words, it is the divine form of Jesus which shines through all He says or does, it is the divine life of Jesus which is the great central point in Gospel history How, then, we ask, can the creed of Muham-mad, the son of 'Abdu 'llah, supersede and abrogate that of Jesus, the Son of God? And it is a remarkable coincidence that, whilst the founder of Islam died feeling that he had but imperfectly fulfilled his mission, the Founder of Christianity died in the full consciousness that His work was done-"It is finished." It was in professing to produce a revelation which should supersede that of Jesus, that Muhammad set the seal of his own refuta-(Hughes, Notes on Muhammadanism, p. 2.)

MUHAMMAD (محمد) The title of the xivinth Surah of the Quran, in the second verse of which the word occurs "Beheve in what hath been revealed to Muhammad."

The name Muhammad occurs only in three more places in the Qur'an -

Surah in 138 "Muhammad is but an apostle of God"

Surah xxxii 40 "Muhammad is not the father of any of your men, but the Apostle of God, and the Seal of the Prophets'

Surah xlvm 29 "Muhammad is the

Apostle of God."

MUHAMMAD, The Wives of Arabic al-azwaju 'l-muţahharat (z)," cording to the Traditions, Muhammad took to himself sleven lawful wives, and two con enbines (See Majma'u 'l-Bihar, p 528)

(1) Khadijah (Luch), a Quraish lady, the daughter of Khuwailid ibn Asad. She was a rich widow lady, who had been twice mai ried. She was married to Muhammad when he was 25 years old, and she was 40 years, and remained his only wife for twenty-five years, until she died (A D 619), aged 65, Muhammad being 50 years old. She hore Muhammad two sons, al-Qāşun and 'Abdu Tlāh, surranmed at-Tāhu and at-Tayıb, and four daughters, Zamab, Ruqaiyah, Fatimah, and Ummu Kulsum Of these children, only

Fagimah (the wife of 'Alı) survived Muham-

(2) Saudah (1994), daughter of Zama'ah, the widow of as-Sakrān (a Quraish and one of the Companions) Married about two months after the death of Khadijah

(8) 'Ayıshah (daste), the daughter of Abu Bakr She was betrethed when she was only 7 years old, and was married at 10, about the uinth month after the flight to al-Madinah

(4) Juwarryah (a), a widow, the daughter of al-Haris ibn Abi Zirar, the chief of the Banii Mustaliq Muhammad ransomed her from a ortizen who had fixed her ransom at nine ounces of gold. It is related that 'Ayishah said, " No woman was ever a greater blessing to her people than this Juwairiyah."

(5) Hafsah (Lab.), the daughter of 'Umar She was the widow of Khunais, an early convert to Islam Muhammad marned her about six months after her former husband's death.

(6) Zamab, the daughter of Khuzamah (days cut -ug)), the widow of Muham-mad's commi 'Ubaidah, who was killed at the battle of Badr She was called the " Mother of the Poor," Ummu 'l-Masaken, on account of her care of destitute converts. She died before Muhammad

(7) Ummu Salemah (all pl), the widow of Aba Salimah, one of the Refugees, who was wounded at the battle of Uhud, and afterwards died of his wounds

(8) Zamab the daughter of Jahah ( , ) بنت جيش), the wife of Muhammad's adopted son Zaid Zaid divorced her to please the Prophet She was (boing the wife of an adopted son) unlawful to him, but Sürah axxiii 36 was produced to settle the difhoulty (امفية), daughter of Hay: ibn Akhtab, the widow of Kinansh, the Khaibar chief, who was ornelly put to death. It was said that Muhammad wished to divorce her, but she begged that her turn might be given to 'Aylshah

(10) Ummu Habibah ( the widow of Abu Sufyan and the widow of 'Ubaidu 'llah, one of the "Four Enquirers," who, after emigrating as a Muslim to Abys sima, had embraced Christianity there, and died in the profession of that faith

(11) Mammah (diseas), the daughter of al-Haris and widowed kinswoman of Muhammad, and the sister-in-law of al-Abbas She is said to have been 51 years of age when she married Muhammad

Muhammad's concubines were

(مارية القبطية) Mary the Copt Christian slave-girl sent to Muhammad by al-Muqauque, the Roman Governor in Egypt She became the mother of a son by Muhammad, named Ibrāhim, who died young

(2) Rihanah (diles), a Jewess, whose husband had perished in the massacre of the Banu Quraisah She declined the summons te conversion, and continued a Jew, but it is said she embraced Islam before her death

At the time of Muhammad's death, he had nine wives and two concubines living, (Sa hahu'l-Bukhari, p 798), Khadijah and Zainab bint Khuzaimah having died before him According to the Shi'ahs, Muhammad had,

According to the Shi'shs, Muhammad had, in all, twenty-two wives Eight of these never consummated the marriage Their names are 'Aliyah bint Zabyān, Fatilah bint Qaia, Fāṭimah bint Zabhāf, Asmā' bint Kana'ān, Mulaikah bint Suwaid, Lallah bint Kana'ān, Mulaikah bint Suwaid, Lallah bint Kana'ān, Mulaikah bint Suwaid, Lallah bint Kana'ān, Mulaikah bint Silah Twelve were duly marriod Their names are Khadijah, Baudah, Rind (or Ummu Sahmah), Ayishah, Hafaah, Zainab bint Jahah, Ramalah bint Abī Sufyan (or Ummu Hab bah), Maimōrah, Zainab bint 'Umais, Juwairiyah bint al-Hāris of the Banu Mustaliq, Şafiyah, Khaulah bint hakīm, and Ummieni, a sister to Alī Two were bondwomen Mariyatu 'l-Qibkiyah and Rihanah (See Janačiu'l Khulūd, p 14)

MUHAMMAD, The Children of According to the Majmau 1-Bihār, p. 538, Muhammad had sevon children. Two sons and four daughters by Khadijah, and one son

by Mary, his Coptic slave

The two sons by Khadijah were al Qasim and 'Abdu 'llah (called also at-Tähir and at Tavib), and the four daughters were Zamab, Ruqaival Fāṭimah, and Ummu Kulsum The sor by his bondwoman Mary was Ibra him All these children died before Muham mad, with the exception of Fāṭimah, who married 'Alī, the fourth Khalifah, and from whom are descended the Saijids [SAITID.]

Zanah married 'Abu 'l 'As bau 'l-Rabi' Ruqaiyah married 'Utbah ibn Abu Lahab, by whom she was divorced She afterwards married 'Usman, the third Khahfah

MUHAMMAD'S GRAVE [HUJ-

MUHAMMADAN Arabic Muhammadi (1544) A name seidon used in Muhammad, who call themselves either Muhammad, who call themselves either Muhammad, who call themselves either Muhammad Muslims, or Mussimians It is however, sometimes used in Indian papers and other popular publications, and it is not, as many European sololars suppose, an offensive term to Muslims

MUHAMMADANISM The religion of Muhammad is called by its followers al-Islam (al. 11), a word which implies the entire surrender of the will of man to God [Blam] Its adherents speak of themselver as Muslims pl Muslimin or Mumin, pl Muslimin a Mumin being a "believer" In Persian these terms are rendered by the word Musalman, pl Musalmanan

The principles of Islam were first enunciated in portions of the Qur'an, as they were revealed piecemeal by Muhammad, together with such verbal explanations as were given by him to his followers, but when the final recension of the Qur'an was produced by the Khalifah Usman, about twenty-two years after Muhammad's death, the Muslims postaged a complete book, which they regarded as the inspired and infallible word of God. [QUR'AN] But as an interpretation of its precepts, and as a supplement to its teachings, there also existed, side by side with the Quran, the sayings, and practice of Muhammad, called the Ahadis and Sunnah traditions of what the Prophet "did and said." gradually laid the foundations of what is now called Islam For whilst it is a canon in Islam that nothing can be received or taught which is contrary to the literal injunctions of the Qur'an, it is to the Traditions rather than to the Qur'an that we must refer for Muhammadan law on the subject of faith, knowledge, purification, prayer, almegiving, fasting, marriage, barter, inheritance, putushments, late, duties of magistrates, religrous warfais, lawful food, death, Day of Judgment, &c, and each collection of traditions has sectione devoted to these subjects. so that it is upon these traditional sayings, quite as much as upon the Quran itielf, that the religious and civil law of the Muslims is hased, both Shi'ah and Sunni appealing alike to Tradition in support of their views

When the Prophet was alive, men could go direct to him with their doubts and difficulties and an infallible authority was always present to give "inspired" directions. But after the deaths of all those who knew Muhammad porsonally it became absolutely necessary to systematise the great mass of traditional sayings then affoat amongst Muslims and thus various schools of jurispradence were formed, the concurrent opinion of those learned regarding matters of dispute in Muslim law being called Ipma [LIMA]. Upon this naturally followed the system of analogical reasoning called Qiyas [QIYAS], thus constituting the four "pillare" or foundations of Islain, known as the Quras, Haaig.

Ijma, and Qeyas

Islam, whether it be Shī'sh, Sunni, or We'hāh, is founded upon these four authorities, and it is not true, as is so frequently asserted, that the Shi'ahs reject the Traditions They merely accept different collections of Ahādis to those received by the Sunnis and Wahhāhā Nor do the Wahhāhā is ieject lymā' and Qiyās, but they assert that Imā' was only possible in the earhest stages of Islam

A study of the present work will show what an elaborate system of dogma Muhammadanism is. This system of dogma, together with the liturgical form of worship, has been formulated from the traditional sayings of Muhammad rather than from the Qur'an itself. For example, the daily ritual, with its purifications, which are such a prominent feature in Islam, is entirely founded on the Traditions [PRAYER] Circumoision is not once mentioned in the Qur'an

The Din, or religion of the Mushim, is divided into Iman, or "Faith" and "imal, or "Fractice"

Faith consists in the acceptance of six

1 The Unity of God. 2 The Angels

3 The Inspired Books.

- 4. The Inspired Prophets. 5 The Day of Judgment
- 6. The Decrees of God.

Practical Religion consists in the obser-VALUE Of-

- 1 The recital of the Oreed--" There is no desty but God, and Muhammad is the Prophet of God "
  - 2 The five stated periods of prayer
- 8 The thirty days fast in the month Ramaşân.
  - 4 The payment of Zakat, or the legal aims 5 The Haji, or Pilgrunage to Makkah
- A belief in these six articles of faith and the observance of these five practical duties, constitute Islam. He who thus believes and acts is called a Mu'mus, or " behever", but he who rejects any article of faith or practice is " Kaffr, or " infidel."

Muhammadan theology, which is very ex tensive, is divided into-

The Qur'an and its commentaries
The Traditions and their commentaries

8 Usul, or expositions on the principles of exegesia.

'Aga'ed, or expositions of scholastic theology founded on the six articles of faith.

b Figh, or works on both civil and religious law [THEOLOGY.]

Muhammadamsm 18, therefore, a system which affords a large field for patient study and research, and much of its present energy and vitality is to be attributed to the fact that, mall parts of Islam, there are m the various mosques students who devote their whole hves to the study of Muslim divinity

The two leading principles of Islam are those expressed in its well-known creed, or kaismah, namely, a belief in the absolute unity of the Divine Being, and in the mis-sion of Muhammad as the Messenger of the

Almighty [KALTMAN]
"The faith," says Gibbon, "which he (Muhammad) preached to his family and nation is compounded of an eternal truth and a necessary flotion. That there is only one God, and that Muhammad is the Apostle of God." (Roman Empire, vol. vi. p. 222.)

"Mohammad's conception of God," says Mr Stanley Lane-Poole, "has, I think, been misunderstood, and its effect upor the people consequently under-estimated The God of Islam is ommonly represented as a pitiless tyrant, who plays with humanity as on a chessboard, and works out his game without regard to the sacrifice of the pieces, and there There is is a certain truth in the figure more in Islam of the potter who shapes the clay than of the father pitying his children. Mohammad conceived of God as the Scinitic mind has always preferred to think of Him his God is the All-Mighty, the All-Knowing, the All-Just. Irresistible Power is the first attribute he thinks of the Lord of the Worlds, the Author of the Heavens and the Earth, who hath created Lafe and Death, in whose hand is Dominion, who maketh the Dawn to appear and causeth the Night to cover the Day, the Great, Ali-Powerful Lord of the Glorious Throne, the thunder pro-claimeth His perfection, the whole earth is His handful, and the heavens shall be folded together in His right hand. And with the Power He conceives the Knowledge that directs it to right ends God is the Wiss; the Just, the True, the Swift in reckoning, who knoweth every ant's weight of good and of ill that each man hath done, and who suffereth not the reward of the faithful to " God 1 There is no God but He, the Ever-Laving, the Ever-Subsisting Stumber seizeth Him not nor sleep, To Him belongeth whatsoever is in the Heavens and whatsoever is in the Earth Who is he that shall interoede with Him, save by his permission? He knoweth the things that have gone before and the things that fellow after, and men shall not compass aught of His knowledge, save what He willeth. His throne comprehendeth the Heavens and the Earth, and the care of them ourdeneth Him not. And He is the High, the Great'-Kur-an, 11 256

"But with this Power there is also the gentleness that belongs only to great strength. God is the Guardian over His servants, the Shelterer of the orphan, the Guider of the erring, the Deliverer from every affliction, in His hand is Good, and He is the Generous Lord, the Gracious, the Hearer, the Near-at-Hand Every soorah of the Kur-an begins with the words, 'In the Name of God, the Compassionate, the Merciful,' and Mohammad was never tired of telling the people how God was Very-Forgiving, that His love for man was more tender than the mother-bird for her young

"It is too often forgotten bon much there is in the Kur-an of the loving kindness of Gcd, but it must be allowed that these are not the main thoughts in Mohammad's teaching It is the doctrine of the Might of God that most held his imagination, and that has unpressed itself most strongly upon Muslims of all ages The fear rather than the love of God is the spur of Islam There can be no question which is the higher incentive to good, but it is nearly certain that the love of God as an idea absolutely foreign to most of the races that have accepted Islam, and to preach such a doctrine would have been to mistake the learning of the Semitic mind.

"The leading doctrine of Mohammad, then, is the belief in One All-Powerful God is the self-surrender of every man to the will of Gou Its danger bes in the stress laid on the power of God, which has brought about the stifling effects of fatalism Mohammad taught the foreknowledge of God, but he did not lay down precisely the doctrine of Pre-He found it as all have found destination. it, a stumtling-block in the way of man's progress. It perplexed him, and he spoke of it, but often contradicted himself, and he would become angry if the subject were meeted in his presence. Sit not with a disputer about fate, he said, 'nor begin a conversation with him.' Mohammad vaguely recognised that little margin of Free Will which makes life not wholly mechanical Thus doctrine of one Supreme God, to whose will it is the duty of every man to surrender himself, is the kernel of Islam, the truth for which Mohammad lived and suf fered and triumphed. But it was no new teaching, as he himself was constantly saying. His was only the last of revelations Many prophets—Abraham, Moses, and Christ—had taught the same faith before but people had hearkened littic to their words so Mohammad was sent not different from them, only a messenger yet the last and greatest of them, the 'seal of prophecy,' the 'most availant of the creation of God.' This most excellent of the creation of God.' is the second dogma of Islam Mohammad is the Apostle of God It is well worthy of notice that it is not said, 'Mohammad is the only apostle of God' Islam is more tolerant in this matter than other religions. Its prophat 1: not the sole commissioner of the Most High, nor is his teaching the only true teach ing the world has ever received Many other messengers had been sent by God to guide men to the right and these taught the same religion that was in the mouth of the proacher of Islam Hence Mushme reverence Moses and Christ only next to Mohammad All they olaum for their founder is that ne was the last and best of the messengers of the one God" (Introduction to Lane's Selections, 2nd ed, p Exix et segq)

Islam does not profess to be a new religion, formulated by Muhammad (nor indeed is it), but a continuation of the religious principles established by Adam, by Nach, by Abraham by Mosen, and by Jesus, as well as by other inspired teachers, for it is said that God sent not fewer than 818 apostles into the world to reclaim it from superstition and infidelity The revelations of these great prophets are generally supposed to have been lost, but God, it is asserted, had retained all that is necessary for man s guidance in the Quran, although, as a matter of fact, a very large proportion of the ethical davoti mal, and dogmatic teaching in Islam, crows from the traditional saying of Muhammed and not from the Qur'an itself [TRADILIONS]

In reading the different articles in the preent work, the reader cannot fail to be similar with the great indebtedness of Muhaminad to the Jewish religion for the chiof elements of Les system Mr Emannel Deutsch has tauly remarked "that binhammadanism owes more to Judaism than either to Heathemem or to Christianity It is not merely parallelisms, reminiscences, allusions, technical terms, and the like of Judaism, its lore and dogme and celemony its Halacka, and its Haqqadai its Law and Legend, which we find in the Qur an , but we think Islam neither more nor less than Judamm-as adapted to Arabin-plus the Apostleship of Jesus and Muhammad Nay we verily believe that a great deal of such Christianity as has found its way into the Qur'an, has found it shrough Jewish channels

tannels (Laterary Remains, p 64)
Its conception of God, its prophets, its seven heavens and seven hells, its law of marriage and divorce, its law of oaths, its puri

fications and utual, its festivals, are all of marked Jawish origin, and prove that Tal-mudic Judaism forms the kernel of Muhammadenism, which even according to the madanism, which even according to the words of the founder, professed to be the "religion of Abraham." See Surah m 60 "Abraham was neither a Jew nor Christian, but he was a Hanif, a Mnehm." Nevertheless, Muhammad, although he professed to the her levelation from Abraham. tale his legislation from Abraham, moorporated into his system a vast amount of the law of Mosos

The sects of Islam have become numerous, indeed, the Prophet is related to have predicted that his followers would be divided into seventy three. They have far exceeded the limits of that prophecy, for, according to 'Abdu 'l-Qadır al Jılanı, there are at least 150 The chief sect is the Sunni, which is divided into four schools of interpretation, known after their respective founders, Hanafi, Shaff-i, Malaki, Hanbali The Shi'ahs who separated from the so called orthodox Sunnis on the question of the khalifate, maintaining that 'Ali and not Abu Bakı was the rightful successor to Muhainmad, iro divided also into numerous sects [SHPAH] The Wahhabis are a comparatively modern sect who are the Puritane of Islam, maintaining that Islam has very far departed from the original teaching of Muhammad, as expressed in the Traditions They consequently reject very many of the so-called lithad of the Sunnis. and take the hteral meaning of the Tradi tional sayings of the Prophet as the best exposition of the Qur'an

The Shi'ah sect is almost entirely contined to Parsia, although there are a few thousand in Lucknow and other parts of Lidia Sunnis, the Hanefis are found chuefly in Turkey, Arabia India, and Central Asia, the Shan'is in Egypt and the Malakis in Mar-rocco and Tunis The Hanbali are a small sect found in Arabia Wahhabiism, as will be seen upon reference to the article on the subject, is a principle of reform which has extended itself to all parts of Islam. It is scarcely to be called a sect, but a school of time bundred and seventy millions of the numan race are said to profess the religion of Munsumad, and, according to the late Mr. Keth Johnstone's computations, they are distributed as follows—In Europe, 5,974 000, in Africa, 50,416,000, in Asia, 112,739,000

thought in Sumi Islam

Mr W S Blunt divides 175 millions as follows—Turkey, Syna, and Train, 22 millions hons, Egypt, 5 millions North Africa 18 millions, Arabia, 111 millions, Central Africa, 111 millions, Persia, 8 millions, India, 40 millions, Malays (Java), 80 millions, China 15 milbens, Central Asia, 11 millions, Afghanistan, 3 millions. No sensus having been taken of any of these countries except India, the numbers are merely an approxi mation Out of this supposed population of Islām, 93,250 pilgrims were present at Mak-kah in the year 1880 (Blunt's Future of Islam, p 10)

In some parts of the world-in Africa for example — Muhammadanism is spreading; and even in Borneo, and in other islands of the Indian Archipelage, we are told that it has supplanted Hinduism. In Contral Asia, within the last twenty years, numerous villages of Shiaposh Kafirs have been forduly converted to Islam, and in Santalis and other parts of India, the converts to Islam from the aborigmal tribes are not meansderable

But, although Muhammadanism has, perhaps, gained in numerical strength within the last few years, no candid Muslim will dany that it has lost, and is still losing, its vital power. Indeed, "this want of faith and decline in vitality" are regarded as the signs of the last days by many a devout Muslim.

In no Muhammadan state is Muslim law administered in its strict integrity, and even in the Sultans own dominion, some of the most sacred principles of the Prophot's religion are set at naught by the civil power, and, as far as we can accertain (and we speak after a good deal of personal research), the prevalence of downright infide-lity amongst educated Muslims is unmistakable "No intelligent men believe in the teaching of the Muslim divines," said a highly educated Muhammadan Egyptian net long ago, "for our religion is not in keeping with the progress of thought" The truth is the Arabian Prophet over-legislated, and, as we now see in Turkey, it is impossible for civilised Muliammadans to be tied hand and foot by laws and social customs which were mended for Arabian society as it existed 1,200 years ago, whilst, on the contrary, Chustianity legislates in spirit, and can therefore be adapted to the spiritual and social necessities of mankind in the various stages of human thought and civilisation.

Mr Palgrave, in his Central and Eastern

Arabia, remarks -

"Islam is in its essence stationary, and was framed thus to remain Sterile like its God, lifeless like its first principle and supreme original in all that constitutes true life—for life is love, participation, and progress, and of shese, the Coramo Deity has none—it justly repudiates all change, all advance, all development. To borrow the forcible words of Lord Houghton, the written book is there, whatever savours of vitality is by that alone convicted of heresy and defection.

"But Christianity with its living and loving God, Begetter and Begotten, Spirit and Movement, nay more, a Creator made creature, the Maker and the made existing in One, a Divinity communicating itself by uninterrupted gradation and degree, from the mest intimate union far off to the faintest irradiation, through all that it has made for love and governs in love; One who calls His creatures not slaves, not servents, but friends, may sons, may gods—to sum up, a religion in whose seal and secret 'God in man is one with men in God,' must also be necessarily a religion of vitality, of progress, of advancement. The contrast between it and Islam is that of movement with declares, of participation with sterility.

of development with barrenness, of life with petrifaction. The first vital principle and the animating spirit of its birth must indeed abide ever the same, but the outer form must change with the changing days, and new offshoots of fresh sap and greenness be centified within, else were the vine withered and the branches dead

"I have no intention here—it would be extremely out of place—of entering on the mass or controversy, or discussing whether any dogmatic attempt to reproduce the religious phase of a former age is likely to succeed. I only say that life supposes movement and growth, and both imply change, that to censure a hving thing for growing and changing is abourd, and that to attempt to hinder it from so doing by punning it down on a written label, or nating it to a Procrustean framework, is tantamount to killing it altogether

'Now Christianity is living, and because hving must grow, must advance, must change, and was meant to do so, onwards and forwards is a condition of its very existence, and I cannot but think that those who do not recongrize this, show themselves so far ignorant of its tine nature and essence. On the other hand, Islam is lifeless, and because lifeless cannot grow, cannot advance, cannot change, and was never intended so to do Stand still' is its motto and its most essential condition" (Central and Eastern Arabia vol 1 p 872)

Mr Stanley Lane Poole, in his Introduction to Lane's Selections, says -

"Islam is unfortunately a social system as well as a religion, and herein lies the great difficulty of fairly estimating its good and its bad influence on the world. It is but in the nature of things that the teacher who lays down the law of the relation of man to God should also endeavour to appoint the proper relation between man and his neighbour

"Mohammed not only promulgated a religion, he laid down a complete social system, containing minute regulations for a man's conduct in all circumstances of life, with due rewards or penalties according to his fulfilment of these rules. As a religion, Islam is great it has taught men to worship one God with a pure worship who formerly worshipped many gods impurely. As a social system, islam is a complete failure it has misunderstood the relations of the sexes, upon which the whole character of a nation's life hangs, and, by degrading women, has degraded each successive generation of their children down an increasing scale of infamy and corruption, until it seems almost impossible to reach a lower level of vice."

Mr. W E. H. Lecky remarks —
"In the first place, then, it must be observed that the enthusiasm by which Mahometanism conquered the world was mainly a military enthusiasm. Mon were drawn to it at once, and without conditions, by the splen-dour of the achievements of its disciples, and it declared an absolute war against all the Its history, therereligions it encountered fore, exhibits nothing of the process of gradual absorption, persuasion, compromise, and assimilation, that are exhibited in the dealings of Christianity with the narbarians the next place, one of the great characteristics of the Korau is the extreme care and skill with which it labours to assist men in realising the unseen Descriptions, the most minutely detailed, and at the same time the most vivid, are mingled with powerful appeals to those sensual passions by which the imagination in all countries, but especially in those in which Mahometrnian has taken root, is most forcibly influenced In no other religion that prohibits idols is the strain upon the imagination so slight " (History of the Rise and Influence of Rationalism, vol 1.

"This great religion which so one rivalled "This great religion which so one rivalled indeed spread the deepest and most justifiable pamic through Christendom Without any of those aids to the imagination which pictures and images can furnish, without any elaborate sacerdotal organization, preaching the purest Monothersm among agnorant and barbarous men, and inculcating, on the whole, an oxtremely high and noble system of morals, it spread with a rapidity, and it acquired a hold over the minds of its votaries, which it is probable that no other religion has altogether equalled. It borrowed from Christianity that doctrine of salvation by belief which is poihaps the most powerful impulse that can be applied to the characters of masses of men, and it elaborated so minutely the charms of its sensual heavens and the terrors of its material hell, as to cause the alternative to appeal with unrivilled force to the gross imaginations of the people. It possessed a book which, however inferior to that of the opposing religion has nevertheless been the consolation and the support of millions in many ages It taught a fatalism which, in its first age, norved its adherents with a matchless military courage, and which, though in later days it has often paralysed their active energies, has also rarely failed to support them under the pressure of meyitable caramity But above all, it discovered the great though fatal scoret, of uniting indissolubly the passion of the soldier with the passion of the devotee Making the conquest of the infidel the first of duties, and proposing heaven as the certain reward of the valuant soldier, it created a blondod enthusiasm that soon overpowered the divided counsels and the voluntuous governments of the East, and within a century of the death of Muhammad, his followers had almost extrepated Chiistianity from its original homo, founded great monarchies in Asia and A rick, planted a noble, though transient and exotic, civilisation in Spain, menaced the capital of the Eastern empire, and but for the assue of a sugle battle, they would probably have ex-tended their sceptre over the energenc and progressive laces of Central Europe The battle of Poictiors, and it is now useless to speculate what might have been the consequences, nad Vuhammadanism unfurled its triumphant banner among those Tentonic tribes, who have so often changed their creed, and on whom the course of civilisation has (Hist of European so largely depended"

Morals, vol. 11, 1, 260)
"The infraence of Chatholicism was seconded by Muhammadanism, which on this (suicide), as on many other points, horrowed its teaching from the Christian Church, and even intensified t, for suicide, which is never expressly condemned in the Bible, is more than once forbidden in the Qui an, and the Christian duty of resignation was exaggerated by the Moslem into a complete fatalism Under the empire of Catholicism and Muhammadenism, spicide, during many centuries, almost absolutely ceased in all the civilised, active and progressive part of mankind When we recollect how warmly it was applanded, or how family it was condemned in the civilisations of Greece and Rome when we remember, too, that there was scarcely a barbarous time from Denmark to Spain who did not habitually practise it, we may realise the complete revolution which was effected in this sphere by the influence of Chiistianity" (Hist of European Moi als. vol. ii p 56 j

Major Durie Osborn siys -

"When Islam penetrates to countries lower in the scale of humanity than were the Arabs of Muhammad's day, it suffices to elevate them to that level But it does so at a tremendous cost. It reproduces in its new converts the characteristics of its first-their impenetrable self-esteem, their unintelligent scorn, and blind hatred of all other creeds And thus the capacity for all further advance as destroyed, the mind is obdurately shut to the entrance of any purer light. But it is a grievous error to confound that transment gleam of culture which illuminated Baghdad under the first Abbasido khalifs with the legitimate fruits of Islam When the Arabs conquered Syria and Persia, they brought with them no new knowledge to take the place of that which had preceded them Mere Bedowns of the desert, they found themselves all at once the masters of vast countries, with everything to loarn They were compelled to put themselves to school under the very people they had vanquished. Thus the Persians and Syrians, conquered though they were and tubutary, from the ignorance of their masters, retained in their hands the control of the administrative ma chinery The Abbaside khalifs were borne into power by means of a Persian revolution, headed by a Persian slave. Then began the endeavour to root the old Greek philosophy, and the deep and beautiful thoughts of Zorouster, on the hard and barren soil of Muhammadanism It was an impossible attempt to make a frail exotic flourish on uncongenial soil It has imparted, indeed, a deceptive lustre to this period of Muhammadan history, but the orthodox Muhammadans knew that their faith and the wisdom of the Greeks could not amalgamate, and they fought fiercely against the innovators Successive storms of barbarians sweeping down from the north of Asia, tore up the fiagile plant by the roots, and scattered its blossoms to the winds. The new comers embraced the creed of the Koran in its primitive simplicity, they hated and repudiated the refinements which the Persians would fain have engratted on it And they won the day The present condition of Central Assa is the legitimate fruit of Islam, not the glories of Baghdad, which were but the afterglow of the thought and culture which sank with the fall of the Sassandes, and the expulsion of the Byzantine emperors. So also in Moorish Spain The blossom and the fruitage which Muhammadanism seemed to put forth there were, in fact, due to influences alien to Islam—to the intimate contact, namely, with Jewish and Christian thought, for when the Moors were driven back into northern Africa, all that blossom and fruitage withered away, and Northern Africa sank into the intellectual darkness and political anarchy in which it lies at the piesent time There are to be found in Muhammadan history all the elements of greatness -faith, courage, endurance, self-sacrafice, but, closed within the narrow walls of a rude theology and barbarous polity, from which the especity to grow and the liberty to modify have been sternly cut on they work no deliverance upon the carth. They are strong only for destruction. When that work is over, they either prey upon each other, or beat themselves to death against the bats of their prison-house No permanent dwell ing-place can be erected on a foundation of sand, and no-durable or humanismy polity upon a foundation of fatalism, despotism, polygamy and slavery When Muhammadan states cease to be racked by revolutions, they succumb to the poison diffused by a corrupt moral atmosphere A Darwesh, ejaculating 'Allah !' and revolving in a series of rapid gyrations until he drops senseless, is an exact image of the course of their history under the Arabs, p 98)

Lucutenant-Colonel W b

Butter, C.B.

remarks

"The Goth might image staly but the Goth came forth purified from the flames which he himself had kindled The Saxon swept Britain, but the music of the Celtic heart softened his rough nature, and would him into lass churlish habits Visiwooed him into less churlish habits goth and Frank, Heruli and Vandal, blotted out their verocity in the very light of the civilisation they had striven to extinguish Even the Hun, wildest Tartar from the Soythian waste, was touched and softened in his wicker encampment amid Pannonian plans, but the Turk—wherever his scymitar reached—degraded, dehied, and defamed, blasting into sternal decay Greek, Roman and Latin civilisation, until, when all had gone, he set down, satisfed with savagery, to doze for two hundred years into hopeless decrepitude" (Good Words for September 1880) Laterature on the subject of Muhammadanism -Muhamedis Impostura. W Bodwell. London 1615 A Lytell Treatyse of the Turkes Law lled Alcoran W De Worde Lancalled Alcoran don No date, Mahomet Unmarked. W Bedwell London 1642 The Alcoran of Mahomet Alex. Ross London 1649 Religion and Manners of Mahome-Joseph Pitts Exon 1704 History of the Suracens. S Ockley London 1708 Four Treatness by Reland and others London 1712 The True Nature of the Imposture 1718 Dean Pridesux. London Translated into Latin Abulfeda. J Gagnier London 1728 Muhammadanism Explained, Joseph Morgan. London

Life of Muhomet Count I
villiers Translated. London 1723 Count Boulain 1781 Translation of Koran and Prelimi-1784 Reflections on Mohammedism (sic) Anon London
The Morality of the East, extracted 1785 from the Aoran Anon. London Roman Empire E. Gibbon London 1766 1776 I'm Koran Translated, Sav irv 1782 Bampton Lectures Roy J White Oxford 1784 The Hulayoh. Translated by C Hamilton London 1791 The Rise of Malumet accounted for Alcock London 179¢ the of Mahamet Anon London 1799 The Mishkat Translated by Matthews Calcutt... 1809 History of Muhammedanism Mills London 1817 Christianity compared with Hinduism and Muhamadanism London 1823 The Muhammedan System Rev W H Mills 1828 Mahometanism Unveiled Rev C Forster London 1829 An Apology for the Life of Moham-O Higgins London 1829 med A Reply to Higgins R M Beverley. Beverley 1829 Travels in Arabia J L Burckhardt. 1829 London Controversial Tracts Rev H Martyn. Edited by S. Lee No date or place Animadversions on Higgins P Inchbald Doncaster 1880 Nates on Bedowns and Wahhabis J L Burckhardt London 1880 Observations on the Musulmans Mrs. Meer Hasan Ah. London 1882 Qanoon-e-Islam Dr 1882 gobro.T History of Muhammadanium. 1834

MUHAMMADANISM

| History of the Wahkabies. Six H J                                    |       | On Dr Hunter's "Indian Musul-                                 | 1 671 |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------|-------|---------------------------------------------------------------|-------|
| Brydges. London .                                                    | 1884  | mane." Syed Ahmed Khan                                        | 1871  |
| Muhammedan Dynasties in Spinn.                                       | -015  | The Koran Translated. Rev J. M.                               | 1871  |
| Al Makkari. Translated London                                        | 1840  | Rodwell London                                                | 1011  |
| The Here as Prophet Thomas Car-                                      | 1010  | Essays on the Life of Muhammad. Syed Ahmed Khan. London       | 1871  |
| lyla. London                                                         | 1840  | Essays on Eastern Questions W G                               |       |
| Manners and Customs of the Modern Egyptians E W Lane London          | 1842  | Palgrave London                                               | 1872  |
| Ibn Khallikan's Brographical Dic-                                    | 1012  | Manual of Laws J B S. Boyle                                   |       |
| ttonery M. G De Slane Translated                                     |       | Lahore                                                        | 1878  |
| London                                                               | 1848  | Life of Muhammad Syed Ameer                                   |       |
| Selections from the Kur an E W                                       | i     | Alı London                                                    | 1878  |
| Lane Lendon                                                          | 1843  | Tagore Lectures Shama Churun                                  | 1.000 |
| Lafe of Mohammed Rev Guorge                                          |       | Sircar Calcutta                                               | 1878  |
| Buch. New York                                                       | 1844  | Tagore Lectures Shama Churun                                  | 1874  |
| The Relation of Islam to the Gospel                                  |       | Siroar Calcutta Islam and Christianity Rev J M                | 1017  |
| Dr J A. Moehler Translated by J P                                    | 1017  | Islam und Christiansty Rev J M Arnold London                  | 1874  |
| Menga. Calcutta.  Life of Mahomet Washington Ir                      | 1847  | Mohammed and Mohammedanism, R                                 | 1017  |
| ving London                                                          | 1450  | Bosworth Smith Loudon                                         | 1874  |
| Lafe of Mohammed By Abulfeda,                                        | 1,,00 | Essery on Islam Emanuel Deutsch                               |       |
| Translated by Rev W Murray Eigin                                     | T.,   | London                                                        | 1874  |
| No date                                                              |       | Islam under the Arabs R D On-                                 |       |
| Muhammadan Law of Sale N B. E                                        |       | horn London                                                   | 1276  |
| Baillie. London                                                      | 1850  | Notes on Muhammadanism Rev                                    | * **  |
| Lafe of Mohammad A Sprenger                                          |       | T P Hughes London 2nd ed                                      | 1877  |
| Calcutta                                                             | 1851  | Ohristsanity and Islam Rov W                                  | 1077  |
| Islamsm, its Rise and Progress F A                                   | 1854  | R. W. Stophens London  Islam and its hounder J. W. H.         | 1877  |
| Neele. London Pilgrimage to El Medinak and Mecci                     | 1004  | Stohart London                                                | 1878  |
| R F Burton London                                                    | 1855  | Mohammed, Buddha, and Christ                                  | 1010  |
| Lafe of Mahomet W Muir London                                        | 1858  | Marcus Dods London                                            | 1878  |
| Mohammedan Religion Explained                                        |       | Islam. its Origin, Genius, and Mis-                           |       |
| Rev J D Macbilde London                                              | 1859  | ston I J Lake London                                          | 1878  |
| Ishmael Rev J M Arnold Lon-                                          |       | Islam under the Khalifs of Baghdad                            |       |
| don                                                                  | 1859  | R D Osborn London                                             | 1878  |
| Arabian Nights with Notes E W                                        | 1670  | Lanes Selections from the Kuran                               | 1.00- |
| Lane London                                                          | 1859  | New ed S L Poole London                                       | 1879  |
| Imposture instanced in the Lafe ofMahomet, Rev G Akehurst London | 1859  | The Miracle Play of Hasan and                                 | 1070  |
| Testimony borne by the Koran. W                                      | 1000  | Husain Sir Lewis Pelly London The Personal Law of Muhammedans | 1879  |
| Mur Atlahabad                                                        | 1860  | Syod Ameer Al. London                                         | 1880  |
| Religious of Syria. Rev John Wor-                                    |       | The Farth of Islam. Rev E. Sell.                              | 1000  |
| tabet London                                                         | 1860  | Vadras                                                        | 1880  |
| Muhammedan Commentary on the                                         |       | The Future of Islam. W S. Blunt.                              |       |
| Bible. Syed Ahmad. Ghazeopur                                         | 1862  | London                                                        | 1880  |
| Digest of Muhammadan Law Ha-nifi Code. N B E Baillie. London     | 1865  | The Quran. Translated 2 vols                                  |       |
| kood for Reflection. Rev Dr Koelle                                   | 1000  | Prof E H. Palmer Oxford                                       | 1880  |
| London                                                               | 1865  | Commentary on the Quran. RevE M Wherry London             | 1000  |
| Central and Eastern Arabia W (                                       |       | Reforms in Mohammadan States                                  | 1882  |
| Paigrave. London                                                     | 1865  | Moulvie Cheragh Ali Bombay                                    | 1888  |
| The Minds ul Haqq Dr Pfander                                         |       | Annals of the Early Calephate, Sir                            | ~~~   |
| Translated London                                                    | 1867  | W Muir London                                                 | 1888  |
| Am : Akbars of Abul Fazl Trans-                                      | 1940  | D.1. m                                                        |       |
| lated H. Blochman. Calcutta  Notes on Islam. Rev A Brinckman.        | 1868  | Religio Turcia Mahometis vita J                               |       |
| London                                                               | 1868  | Wallich Stadze Succorum Refutatio Al Coroni L Marracio        | 1659  |
| Digest of Muhammadan Law Ima                                         |       | Patavu Al Coremi L Marracio                                   |       |
| meen Code. N B E Baillie London                                      | 1869  | O                                                             | 1898  |
| Law of Inheritance. S. G. Grady                                      |       | cock Uxon                                                     | 1020  |
| London                                                               | 1869  | Recuerl des Rates et Cérémonage du Das                        | 1750  |
| Al Strangyak Translated. A                                           |       | mage as to Mescane Galland, Am.                               |       |
| Rumsey London                                                        | 1869  | avorualit                                                     | 1754  |
| Apology for Muhammad. John Da-venport, London                    | 1869  | Bibliothèque Orientale D'Herbelot.                            |       |
| Pelgremage to Macca. Begum of                                        | 7009  | West Strictle                                                 | 1776  |
| Bhopal. London                                                       | 1870  | Lettres sur l'Histoire des Arabes                             |       |
| Our Indian Musulmans W W                                             |       | Essat sur l'Histoire des Arabes avant                         | 1886  |
| Hunter, London .                                                     | 1871  | Fleiumane A P. Caussin de Persival                            | 1040  |
|                                                                      |       |                                                               |       |

| Die Geisterlehre der Moslimen Von                                  |      |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------|------|
| Hammer Purgetall Wien                                              | 1852 |
|                                                                    | 1860 |
| Das Leben Mohammed's nach IbnIshak, Bearbestet von Ibn Huscham |      |
| by Weil                                                            | 186  |
| Mahomet et le Coran. 1 B de St                                     | 100  |
| Hilaire. Paris Geshichte der herrscheuden Ideen des                | 1868 |
| Islams, A. von Kremer                                              | 1868 |
| Das Leben und die Lehre des Moham-mad. A Sprenger Berlin       | 1889 |

L'Islamiène d'apres le Coran, Garcin un Tassy Paris 1874 Essai sur l'Histoire de l'Islamiène R Dozy 1879

MUHARRAM (A) Let "That which is forbidden." Anything sacred (1) The first month of the Muhammadan year [MONTHS] (2) The first ten days of the month, observed in commemoration of the martyrdom of al-Husain the second son of Fätimah, the Prophets daughter by 'Ali [AL-HUSAIM] These days of lamentation are only observed by the Shi'ah Muslims but the tenth day of Muhariam is observed by the Sumis in commemoration of its having been the day on which dam and Eve, heaven and hell, the pen, fate, life and death, were created. [ASHURA']

The veremonies of the Muharram differ much in different places and countries. The following it a graphic description of the observance of the Muharram at Ispahan in the year 1811, which has been taken, with some slight alterations from Morier's Second

Journey through Persia -

The tragical termination of al-Husain's life, commencing with his flight from al-Madinib and terminating with his death on the plain of Karbala', has been drawn up in the form of a drame, consisting of soveral parts, of which one is performed by actors on each successive day of the mourning. The last successive day of the mourning part, which is appointed for the Roz-i-Qatl, comprises the events of the day on which he met his death, and is acted with great pomp before the King in the largest square of the The subject, which is full of affecting incidents, would of itself excite great interest in the breasts of a Christian audience, but allied as it is with all the religious and national feelings of the Persians, it awakens their strongest passions. Al-Husain would be a hero in our eyes, in theirs he is a martyr. The violatitudes of his life, his dangers in the desert, his fortitude, his in vincible sourage, and his devotedness at the hour of his death, are all circumstances upon which the Persians dwell with rapture, and which excite in them an enthusiasm not to be duminished by lapse of time The celebration of this mourning keeps up in their minds the remembrance of those who destroyed him, and consequently their hatred for all Musalmans who do not partake of their feelings They execute Yazid and ourse Umar with such rancour, that it is necessary to have witnessed the scenes that are exhibited in their cities to judge of the degree of fanaticism which possesses them at this time I have seen some of the most violent of them, as they vocaferated, "O Husain!" walk about the streets almost naked, with only their loins covered, and their bodies streaming with blood by the voluntary cuts which they have given to themselves, either as acts of love, anguish, or mortification Such must have been the entrings of which we read in Holy Writ, which were forbidden to the Israelites by Moses (Lev xix 28, Deut xiv 1), and these "atravagances, I conjecture, must resemble the practices of the prests of Bank, who could aloud and out themselves after thus menner with knives and lancets, till the blood gushed out upon them 1 Kings zvni. 28, see also Jeremiah zvn 5, 6, and 7 were made The preparations which throughout the city consisted in erecting large tents that are there called takeyah, in the streets and open places in fitting them up with black lines and furnishing them with objects emblematical of the mourning These tents are erected either at the joint expense of the district, or by men of consequence, as an act of devotion and all ranks of people have a free access to them. The expense of a takegah consists in the hire of a mulia, or priest, of actors and their clothes, and in the purchase of lights Many there are who seize this opportunity of atoning for past size, or of rendering thanks to heaven for some blessing, by adding charity to the good set of erecting a caleryah, and distribute gratuitous food to those who attend it

Our neighbour Mohammad Khān had a takiyah in his house, to which all the people of the district flooked in great numbers During the vince of this assemblage we heard a constant noise of drums cymbals, and trumpers. We remarked that besides the taknyak in different open places and streets of the town, a wooden pulpit, without any appendage, was erected, upon which a mulia, or priest, was mounted, preaching to the people who were collected around him A European ambassadur, who is said to have intrigued with Yazid in favour of al-Husain, was brought forward to be an actor in one of the parts of the tragedy, and the populace were in consequence inclined to look favourably upon us Notwithstanding the excitation of the public mind, we did not cesse to take our usual rides, and we generally passed unmo-lested through the middle of congregations, during the time of their devotions. Such little scruples have they at our seeing their religious ceremomes, that on the eighth night of the Muharram the Grand Vixier invited the whole of the embasey to attend his taktyak. On entering the room we found a large assembly of Persian; olad in darkcoloured olothes, which, accompanied with their black caps, their black beards, and their dismal faces, really looked as if they were afflicting their souls They neither wore their dagggers, nor any parts of their dress which they look upon as ornamental. A mulls of high consideration sat next to the Grand Vizier, and kept him in semons conversation, whilst the remaining part of the society communicated with each other in whispers. After we had est some time, the windows of the room in which we were seated were thrown open, and we then discovered a priest placed on a high chair, under the covering of a tent, surrounded by a crowd of the pepulace, the whole of the some being lighted up with candles. He commenced by an exordium, in which he reminded them of the great value of each tear shed for the saks of the Imam al-Husain, which would be an atonement for a past life of wickedness and also informed them with much solomnity, that whatsoever soul it be that shall not be afflicted in the same day, shall be out off from among the people. He then began to read from a book, with a sort of nasal chaunt, that part of the tragic history of al-Hussin appointed for the day, which soon produced its effect upon his audience, for he scarcely had turned over three leaves, before the Grand Vizier commenced to shake his head to and fro, to utter in a most piteous voice the usual Persian exclamation of grief, "Wah! Wah! Wah! "both of which acts were followed in a more or less violent manner by the rest of the andieuce The chaunting of the mulia lasted nearly an hour, and some parts of his story were indeed pathetic, and well calculated to rouse the feelings of a superstituous and lively people In one part of it, all the company stood up, and I observed that the Grand Vizier turned himself towards the wall, with his hand extended before him, and prayed. After the mulls had finished, a company of actors appeared, some dressed as women, who chaunted forth their parts from slips of paper, in a sort of recitative, that was not unpleasing even to our ears. In the very tragical parts, most of them appeared to cry very unaffectedly, and as I sat near the Grand Vizier, and to his neighbour the priest, I was witness to many real tears that fell from them In some of these mournful assemblies, it is the custom for a mulla to go about to each person at the height of his grief, with a piece of cotton in his hand, with which he carefully collects the falling tosrs, and which he then squeezes into a bottle, preserving them with the greatest causen. This practically illustrates that passage in the 56th Psalm, verse 8, "Put thou my tears into thy bottle." Some Persians believe that in the agony of death, when all medicines have failed, a drop of tears so collected, put into the month of a dying man, has been known to revive him, and it is for such use, that they are collected

A MUHARRAM PROCESSION IN INDIA (By a Native Artist)

On the Roz-1 Qatl, or day of martyrdom, the tenth day, the Ambassador was invited by the King to he present at the termination of the ceremomes, in which the death of al-Husain was to be represented. We set off after breakfast, and placed ourselves in a small tent, that was pitched for our accommedation over an arched gateway, which was situated close to the room in which His Majesty was to be seated.

We looked upon the great square which is m front of the palace, at the entrance of which we perocived a circle of Cajars, or people of the King's own tribe, who were standing barefooted, and beating thoir breasts in cadence to the chaunting of one who stood in the centre, and with whom they now and then joined their voices in chorus Smiting the breast is a universal act throughout the mourning, and the breast is made bare for that purpose, by unbuttoning the top of the shirt. The King, in order to show his hum: lity, ordered the Cajars, among whom were many of his own relations, to walk about without either shoes or stockings, to super intend the order of the different ceremonies about to be performed, and they were to be seen stepping tenderly over the stones, with sticks in their hands, doing the duties of menials, now keeping back a crowd, then dealing out blows with their sticks, and settling the order of the processions

Part of the square was partitioned off by an enclosure, which was to represent the town of Karbala', near which al-Husain was put to death, and close to this were two small tents, which were to represent his encampment in the deaert with his family. A wooden platform covered with carpets, upon which the actors were to perform, completed all the scenery used on the occasion

A short time after we had reached our tent, the King appeared, and although we could not see him, yet we were seen apprised of his presence by all the people standing up, and by the bewing of his officers. The procession then commenced as follows.—First came a stout man, naked from the waist upwards, balancing in his girdle a long thick pole, surmounted by an ornament made of tim, curiously wrought with devices from the Quran, in height altogether about thirty feet. Then another, naked like the former, balanced an ornamental pole in his girdle still more ponderous, though not so high, upon which a young darvesh resting his feet upon the bearer's girdle had placed himself, chaunting verses with all his might in praise of the King After him a person of more strength and more nakedness, a water carrier, walked forwards, bearing an immense leather sack filled with water alung over his back. This personage, we were told, was emblematical of the great thirst which al-Husain suffered in the desert.

A litter in the shape of a sarcophagus, which was called Qabr-i-Husam, or the tomb of al-Husain (a Tā'ziyah) succeeded, borne on the shoulders of eight men. On its front was a large oval orisment entirely covered with precious stones, and just above it a great diamond star. On a small projection were two tapers placed on candlesticks enriched with jewels. The top and sides were covered with Cashmere shawls, and on the summit rested a turban, intended to represent the head-dress of the Khahifah. On each side walked two men bearing poles, from which a variety of beautiful shawls were suspended. At the top of which were representations of al-Husain's hand studded with jewellery

THE MUHARRAM CREEMONIES IN THE IMAMBARAH OR TAKIAH IN INDIA.

(By a Nature Armst.)

After this came four led herses, capacisened in the richest manner. The fronts of their heads were ornamented with plates, entirely covered with diamonds, that smitted a thousand heautiful rays. Their bodies were dressed with shawis and gold stuffs, and on their saddles were placed some objects emblematical of the death of al-Rusain. When all these had passed, they arranged themselves in a row to the right of the King's apartment.

After a short pansa, a budy of fierce-looking men with only a loose white sheet thrown over their naked bodies, marched forwards. They were all begrimed with blood, and each brandishing a sword, they sang a sort of a hymn, the tones of which were very wild. These represented the sixty-two relations, or the Martyrs, as the Persians call them, who accompanied al-Husain, and were slain in defending him Close after them was led a white horse, covered with artificial wounds, with arrows stuck all about him. and caparisoned in black, representing the horse up m which al-Husain was mounted when he was killed. A band of about fifty men, striking two pieces of wood together in their hands, completed the procession. They arranged themselves in rows before the King, and marshalled by a maitre de ballet, who stood in the middle to regulate their movements, they performed a dance clapping their hands in the best pos

The mastre de ballet all this time sang in recitative, to which the dancers joined at different intervals with loud shouts and reiterated alapping of their pieces of wood.

MUHARRAM STANDARDS.

The two processions were succeeded by the tragedians Al-Husain came forward followed by his wives, sisters, and first relatives. They performed many long and

HUSAIN'S HAND AND STANDARD

dious acts, but as our distance from the age was too great to hear the many affectg things which they no doubt said to each her no will proceed at once to where the unfortunate al Husam lay extended on the ground, ready to receive the death-stroke from a ruffien dressed in armout, who acted the part of executioner At this moment a buist of lamentation issued from the multitude, and heavy sobs and real tears rame from almost every one of those who were near enough to come under our mapection, The indignation of the populace wanted some object upon which to vont itself, and it fell npon those of the actors who had performed the part of Yazid's soldiers. No sooner was al-Husein killed, than they were driven off the ground by a volley of stones, followed by shouts of abuse We were informed that it is so difficult to procure performers to fill these characters, that on the present occasion a party of Russian prisoners wore pressed into the army of Yazid, and they made as speedy an exit after the catastrophe as it was in their power

Karbala'

The scene terminated by the burning of boveral reed huts had been constructed behind the enclosure before mentioned, which of a sudden were set on fire The tomb of al-Husain was seen covered with black cloth, and upon it sat a figure disguised in a tiger's skin, which was intended to represent the miraculous lion, recorded to have kept watch over his remains after he had been buried. The most extraordinary part of the whole exhibition was the representation of the dead bodies of the martyrs who having been decapitated, were all placed in a low, each body with a head close to it. To effect this, several Persians buried themselves alive, leaving the head out just above ground, whilst others put then heads under ground, leaving out the body The heads and bodies were placed in such relative positions to each other, as to make it appear that they had been severed This is done by way of penance, but in hot weather, the violence of the exertion has been known to produce death. The abole ceremony was terminated by a khuthah on oration in praise of al-linearn (Mosse & Second fourney through Hussin Penna)

"The martyldom of Hasan and Hussin is celebrated by the Shinhs all over Inda. during tue first ten days of the month of Mo hurrum Attached to every Shish's house is an Imambarrah, a hall or inclosure built expressly for the celebration of the annivorsary of the death of Husain. The enclosure is generally arcaded along its side, and in most instances it is covered in with a doined roof Against the side of the Imambarrah, directed towards Mecca, is set the tabut—also called tazia (ta'ziyah), or model of the tombs at Ker hela In the houses of the wealthier Shinks, these tabuts are fixtures, and are beautifully fashioned of silver and gold, or of Ivory and ebony, embellished all over with inlaid work. The poorer Shiahs provide themselves with a tabut made for the occasion of lath and plaster, trioked out in mica and tinsel A week before the new moon of the Mohurrum, they enclose a space, called the tabut khana in which the tubut is prepared, and the very moment the new moon is seen, a spade is struck into the ground before "the enclosure of the tombs," where a pit is after-wards dug, in which a bonfire is lighted, and kept burning through all the ten days of the Those who cannot Mohurrum solemnities afford to erect a tabut khana, or even to put up a little tabut or taxiah in their dwellinghouse, always bave a Mohurrum fire lighted, if it consist only of a night light floating at the bottom of an earthen pot or basin sunk in the ground It is doubtful whether this custom refers to the trench of fire Husain set blazing behind his camp, or is a survival from the older Ashuia (ten days) festival, which is said to have been instituted in commemoration of the deliverance of the Hebrew Arabs from Pharaoh and his host at the Red Sea, or from the yet more ancient Bael tire But, in India, these Mohurrum fires, especially among the more ignorant populace, Hindus as well as Mohammedans, are regarded with the most superstitious reverence, and have a greater hold on them even than the tabuts All day long the passers by stop before the fires and make their vows over them, and all might long the crowds dance round them, and leap through the flames and scatter about the burning brands snatched from them tabut is lighted up like an altar, with innumerable green wax candles, and nothing can be more brilliant than the appearance of an Imambarrah of white stone, or polished white stucco, picked out in green, lighted up with glass chandeliers, sconces, and oil-lamps, arranged along the leading architectural lines of the building, with its tabut on we side, dazzing to bindness Before the fubut are placed the "properties" to be used by the celebrants in the "Passion Play," the bows and arrows, the sword and spear, and the banners of Husain, &c, and in front of it is set a movable pulpit, also made of the richest materials, and covered with meh hee cades in green and gold Such is the theatre in which twice daily during the flist ten days of the month of Mohurrum, the deaths of the first martyrs of Islam are yearly commemorated in India. Each day has its special selementy, corresponding with the succession of events during the ten days that Husain was encamped on the fatal plain of Kerbela, but the prescribed order of the services in the daily development of the great Shiah function of the Mohurrum would appear not to be always strictly observed in Bombay'' (PelMy's Miracle Play of Hasan and Husain, Preface, p xvii)

A MUHAHRAM TABLE (A F Hole)

The drama, or "Miracle Play" which is recited in Persia during the Muharram, has been re idered into English by Colonel Sir Lewis Pi lly, K.C.B. (Allen & Co., 1879), from which we take the death scene of al-Husain on the bat tle-field of Karbala, a scene which, the historian Gibbon (Decline and Fall, vol. iz. ch. $41) says, "in a distant age and olimate, will awaken the sympathy of the coldest reader."

"Human—I am soro dastressed at the unkind treatment received at the hands of the cruel heavens. Patiful tyranny is exercised towards me by a cruel, unbelieving army? All the sorrows and troubles of this world have everwhelifed me? I am become a butt for the arrow of affliction and trouble. I am a holy bird stript of its quilts and feathers by the hand of the archor of tyranny, and am become. O friends, utterly disabled and vuable to fly to my sacred nest. They are going to kill me merchessly, for no other crime or guilt except that I happen to be a prophet's grandson.

" Shimar (challenging him) - O Husain, way dust thou not appear in the field? Why dost not thy majesty show thy face in battle? How long art thou going to sit still without displaying the valour in an ? Why dost thou not put on thy tobe of martyrdom and come forth? If thou art indeed so magnanimous as not to fear death, if then carest not about the whistling sounds of the arrows when let fly from the bow, mount thou, quickly, the swift horse named Zu'l janah, and deliver thy soul from so many troubles Lea, come to the field of battle be it as it bater soon among thy women, and mal with terms bid them a last farewell, come forth to war, and show us thy great fortitude

'Husum (talking to himself)—Although the accursed tellow, Shimar, will put me to death in an hour's time, yet the repreachful language of the enemy seems to be worse than destruction itself. It is better that the foo should sever my head cruolly from the body, 'han make me hear these abusive words. What can I do? I have no one left to help me, no Kasim to hold my stirrup for a minute when about to mount. All are gone! Look mound if then canet find anyone to defend the descendant of Muhammad, the chosen of God—if then canet see any ready to assist the hely family of God's Prophet! In this land of trials there is no kind protector to have compassion on the household of the Apostle of God, and befriend them

"Zamab.—May I be offered for the san tones of the voice, dear brother! Time has thrown on my head the black earth of sorrow It has grieved me to the quick Wait, brother, do not go till thy Kasim arrives Have patience for a minute, my 'Ali Akbar is coming

"Husern (looking around)—Is there one who wishes to please God, his Maker? Is there any willing to behave farthfully towards his real friends? Is there a person ready to give up his life for our sake, to save us, to defend us in this dreadful struggle of Kar-bals?

"Zasnab -O Lord, Zasnab's brother has no one to assist or support him! Occasions of his sorrows are innumerable, without anyone to sympathise with him in the least? Sad and desolate, he is leaning on his spear! He has bent his neck in a calamitous manner, he has no famous Alı Akbar, no renowned 'Abbas any more'

" Husain -Is there anyone to pity our condition, to help us in this terrible conflict of Karbald? Is there a kind soul to give us a hand of assistance for God's sake?

"Zamob - Brave cavalies of Kastala it is not fitting for thee to be so hurned G) a little more slowly, troubles will come quickly enough Didst thou ever say thou hadst a Zainab in the tent? Is not this poor cleature weeping and mourning for theo!

"The Imam Husain -Dour sister thou rest of my disquieted, broken heart, sunto on thy head and mourn, thou thousand noted nightingal. To day I shall be killed by the ignoble Shimar To-day shall the 1080 be turned out of its delightful spot by thutyranny of the thistle Dear sister, if any dust happen to settle on the rosy cheeks of my lovely daughter bulannah, he pleased to weeh it away most tenderly with the rose-water of thy tears? My daughter has been acoustomed to sit always in the dear lap of her father whenever she wished to rest, for my sake, receive and catoss her in thy bosom.

"Zamab - O thou intimate friend of this assembly of poor afflicted strangers, the flaming effect of thy speech has left no rest in my mind Tell me, what have we done that thou shouldest so reward us? Who is the criminal among us for whose sake we must suffer thus? Take us back, brother, to Madinah, to the sacred monument of our noble grandfather; let us go home, and live like queens in our own country

"Husain.—O my afflicted, distressed, toi-mented sister, would to God there were a way of escape for me! Notwithstanding they have cruelly cut down the cypress-like stature of my dear son 'Alı Akbar, notwithstanding Kasım my lovely nephew tinged himself with his own blood, still they are intent to kill me also They do not allow me to go back from Trak, nor do they let me turn elsewhere They will neither permit me to go to India, nor the capital of China. I cannot set out for the territory of Abyssinia, or take refuge in Zenziber

" Zamab - Oh, how am I vexed in my mind, dear brother, on hearing these sad things! May I die. rather than listen to such affectmg words any more! What shall we, an assembly of desolate widows and orphans, do after thou art gone? Oh! how can we five ?

" Husain.—O miserable creature, weep not now, nor be so very much upset, thou shalt cry plentifully hereafter, owing to the wicked ness of time. When the wicked Shimar shall sever my head from the body, when thou shalt be made a captive prisoner and forced to ride on an unsaddled oamel; when my body shall be trampled under foot by the onemy's horses, and trudden under their hoofs, when my beloved Sukumah shall be cruelly struck by Shimer, my wicked murderer, when they shall lead thee away cap-tive from Karbala to Sham, and when they shall make thee and others live there in a horrible, ruined place, yes, when thou shalt see all this then thou mayest, and verily wilt, cry But I admomsh thee, sister, since this sad case has no remedy but patience, to resign the whole matter, submissively, to the Lord, the good Maker of all | Mourn not for my misfortune, but bear it patiently, without giving occasion to the enemy to reloice triumphantly on this account, or speak reproachfully concerning us

" Aulaum -Thou struttest about gaily, O Husain, thou beloved of my heart Look a little behind thee, see how Kulsum is sighing after thee with tearful eyes! I am strewing pearls in thy way, precious jewels from the sea of my eyer! Let me put my head on the hoof of thy winged steed, Zell jamah.

Musain — Beloved sister, kindle not a fire in my heart by so doing Take away thy head from under the hoof of my steed. O thousand-noted mybringale, sing not such a sad-toned melody I am going away, be thou the kind keeper of my helpless ones

· Kulsum -Behold what the heavens have at length brought on me! what they have done also to my brother! Him they have mad to have parched hips through thirst, and me they have caused to melt into water and gush out like tears from the eyes! Harsh severity is mingled with tyrannous

crualty

" Huvain -Trials, afflictions, and pains, the thicker they fall on man the better, dear assici, do they prepare him for his journey heavenward We rejoice in mibulations, seeing they are but temporary, and yet they work out an eternal and blissful end Though it is predestined that I should suffer murtyrdom in this shameful manner, yet the trea sury of everlasting happiness shall be at my disposal as a consequent reward must think of that, and be no longer sorry The dust raised in the field of such battles is as highly esteemed by me, O sister, as the philosopher's stone was, in former times, by the alchemists, and the soil of Karbala is the sure remedy of my inward pains.

"Kulsum.—May I be sacrificed for thee! Since this occurrence is thus inevitable, I pray thee describe to thy poor sister Kulsum her duty after thy death Tell me, where shall I go, or m what direction set my face? What am I to do? and which of thy orphan children am I to caress most?

" Husain -Show thy Limost kindness, good Bister, to Sukamah, my darling girl, for the pain of being fatherless is most severely felt by children too much fondled by their parents especially girls I have regard to all my children, to be sure, but I love !

Sukalnah most.

"An old Female Slave of Husain's mother Dignified master, I am sick and weary in heart at the bare idea of separation from thee Have a kind regard to me an old slave, much stricken with age Master, by thy soul do I swear that I am altogether weary of life. I have grown old in thy service, pardon me, please, all the faults ever committed by ma.

"Husain. - Yes, thou hast served us, in-deed, for a very long time. Thou hast shown much affection and love toward me and my children, O handmaid of my dear mother Fatimah, thou hast verily suffered much in our house how eften didst thou grind corn with thine own hand for my mother! Thou hast also dandled Hussin most caressingly in thy arms. Thou art black-faced, that is true, but thou hast, I opine, a pure white heart, and art much esteemed by us. To-day I am about to leave thee, owing thee, at the same time, innumerable thanks for the good services thou hast performed, but I beg thy pardon for all inconsiderate actions on my part

The Maid.—May I be a sacrifice for thee, thou royal ruler of the capital of faith ' turn not my days black, like my face, thou benevolent master Truly I have had many troubles on thy behalf How many nights have I spent in watchfulness at thy cradle! At one moment I would caress thee in my arms, at another I would fondle thee in my bosom I became prematurely old by my dili-gent service, O Husain! Is it proper now that thou shouldst put round my poor neck the heavy chain of thy intolerable absence? Is this, dear master the reward of the services I have done thee?

" Husain -Though thy body, O maid, is now broken down by age and infirmity, yet thou hast served us all the days of thy life with sincerity and love, thou must know, therefore, that thy diligence and vigilance will never be disregarded by us Excuse me to-day, when I am offering my body and sous in the cause of Ged, and cannot help thee at all; but be sure I will fully pay the reward of thy services in the day of universal

secount

"The Mand -Dont thou remember, good sir, how many troubles I have suffered with thee for the dear sake of 'Aif Akbar, the light of thine eyes? Though I have not enokled him with my own breasts, to be sure, yet I laboured hard for him till he reached the age of eighteen years and came here to Karbala. But, alss! dear flourishing Ali Akbar has been this day ornally killed—what a pityl and I strove so much for his sake, yet all, as it were, in vain. Yes what a sail loss !

"Husan Speak not of my 'Ali Akbar any more, O maiden, nor set fire to the granary of my patience and make it flame (Turning to his sister) Poor distressed Zainab, have the goodness to be kind always to my mother's old maid, for she has experienced many troubles in our family, she has laboured hard in training 'Ali Akbar my

" Umm Larlah (the mother of 'Ala Akbar) -The elegant stature of my Akbar fell on the ground, like as a beautiful cypress tree it was forcibly felled! Alas for the memory of thy upright stature! Alss, O my youthful son of handsome form and appearance! Alas my troubles at night-time for thee! How often did I watch thy bed, singing lullables for thee until the morning! How sweet is the memory of those times! yes, how pleasant the very thought of those days! Alas where art thou now, dear child? O thou who art ever remembered by me, come and see thy mother s wretched condition, come !

"Husain -O Lord, why is this mournful roles so affecting? Methicks the owner of it, the bemoaming person, has a dame in her heart. It resembles the doleful tone of a lapwing whose wings are burned! like as when a musculous lapwing, the companion of Solomon the wise, the king of God's hely people, received intelligence suddenly about the death of its royal guardian!

· Umm Latlah - Again I am put in mind of my dear son! () my heart, melted into blood, pour threath forth! Dear son, whilst thou wast alive, I had some honour and respect, everyhody nad some regard for me, but since thou art gone, I am altogether aban-doned. Woe be to me ' woe be to me! I am despised and rejected. Woe unto me ' woe

"Husam -Do not set fire to the barvest of my soul any further Husain is, before God greatly ashaned of his shortcomings towards thee Come out from the tent, for it is the last meeting previous to separating from one another for ever, thy distress is an additional weight to the heavy burden of my grief

"The Mother of 'Ale Akbar - I humbly state it, O glory of all ages, that I did not expect from thy saintship that thou wouldest disregard thy handmaid in such a way. Thou dost show thy kind regard and favour to all except me Dost thou not remember my auncere services done to thee? Am I not by birth a descendant of the glorious kings of Pereia, brought as a captive to Arabia when the former empire fall and gave place to the new-born monarchy of the latter kingdom? The Judge, the living Creator, was pleased to grant me an offspring, whom we called 'Ali Akbar, this day lost to us for ever May I be offered for thee' While Ali Akbar my son was abve, I had indeed a sort of esteem and credit with the , but now that my cypress, my newly sprung-up cedar, is un-justly felled. I have fallen from credit too, and must therefore shed tears

"Husain.- Be it known unto thee, O thou violet of the flower-garden of modesty, that thou art altogether mustaken. I swear by the holy enlightened dust of my mother Zahrah's grave that thou art more honourable and dearer now than ever I well remember the affectionate recommendations of 'Ali Akbar, our son, concerning thee How much he was mindful of thee at the moment of his parting ! How tenderly he cared for thee, and spoke concerning thee to every one of his family!

"Ah Akbar's Mother —O gracious Lord, I adjure thee, by the ment of my son, 'Ali Akbar never to lessen the shadow of Husain from over my head May no one ever be in my misership condition—never be a desciate, homeless woman, like me!

"Husann.—O thou unfortunate Zamab, my sister, the hour of separation is come! The day of joy is gone for even! the night of affliction has diawn near! Drooping, withering easter, yet most blest in thy temper, 1 have a request from thee which I fear to make known

"Zasnah -May I be a sacretice for thy heart, thou moon-faced, glorious sand there is nobody here, if thou hast a private matter to disclose to thy sister

"Husain - Dear unfortunate sister, who art already severely vexed in heart, if I tell thee what my request is, what will be thy condition then? Though 1 cannot restrain myself from speaking, still I am in doubt as to which is better, to speak, or to forbear

"Zamab - My breast is merced! heart boils within me like a cauldion, cwing to this thy conversation. Thou soul of thy sister, hold not back from Zamab what thou

bast in thy mind

"Husein .- My poor sister, I am covered with shame before thee, I cannot lift up my head. Though the request is a tribe yet I know it is grievous to thee to grant. It is this, bring me an old, dirty, ragged garment to put on But do not ask me i pray thee, the reason why, until I myself think it proper to tell thec

" Zamab -1 am now going to the tent to setch thee what thou seekest, but I am utterly astomshed, brother, as to why thou dost want this losthsome thing (Returning with a tattered shirt) Take it, here is the ragged robe for which thou didst ask I wonder what thou wilt do with it

"Husain -Do not remain here, dear sister Go for a while to thine own tent, for if thou see that which I am about to do, thou wilt be gravously disturbed Turn to thy tent, poor miserable sister, listen to what I say, and bave me, I pray thee, alone

"Zamab (going away) —I am gone, but I am sorry I cannot tell what this enigma TEGE 115 It is pussing indeed! Remain thou with thy mysterious coat, O Husain! May all of us be offered as a ransom for thee, dear brother! Thou art without any to assist or befriend thee! Thou art surrounded by the widked enemy! Yes, the kind helpers have all been killed by the naucheving nation !

" Husain (putting on the garment) -The term of his has ne perpetual duration in itself. Who even saw in a flower-garden a cose without its thorn! I will put on this old robe close to mry skin and place over it my new apparel, though norther the old nor the new of this world can be depended on. I hope Zamab has not been observing what I have been domg, for poor creature, she c scarcely bear the sight of any such li thing "Zamab -Alas" I do not know what the matter with Hussin, my brother has an old garment to do with being a kin Dost thou desire, O Husain, that the ener should come to know this thing and repros the sister about it? Put off, I pray the the old ragged garment, otherwise I she pull off my head dress, and uncover my her for sbamo

"Hugan -Rend not thy dress, mode sister, nor pull off thy head covering is a mystory involved in my action that what Husain has done has a good men ing in it. His putting on an old garment not without its signification

" Zumab - What mystery can be in th work, thou perfect high priest of faith? will never admit any until thou shalt hav fully explained the thing according to m capacity "The Imain -To-day, dear sister, Shinis will behave cruelly towards me sevor my dear head from the hody dagger not cutting my threat, he will b obliged to sever my head from behind Afte he has killed me, when he begins to strip m of my clothes, he may perchance be ashame to take off this ragged tobe and thereby leav my body naked on the ground "Zainab —U Lord, have mercy on m distracted beart! Thou alone art aware o the state of my mind. Gracious Creator preserve the soul of Hussin! Let not heave.

pull down my nouse over me '

" Sukannah -Dear father, by our Lord it 1 a painful thing to be fatherless, a misery, i great calamity to be helpless, bleeding in the heart, and an outcast! Dismount from the saddle, and make me sit by thy side. To pas over me or neglect me at such a time is ver distressing Let me put my head on the dear lap, O father It is sad thou shoulds not be aware of thy dear child's condition.

"Husain -Bend not thy neck on one side thou my beloved child, nor weep so endly like an orphan Neither mean so melediously like a disconsulate nightingale Gome, laj thy dea, head on my knees once more, and shed not so comously a flood of tears from thine eyes, thou spirit of my life

" Sukamah. - Dear father, thou whose lot is but grief, have mercy on me, mercy ! O then my physician in every pain and trouble, hav pity on me! have pity on me! Alas, my heart, for the mention of the word separa Alas, my grievance, for what is unbearable!

" Husain -- Groan not, wall not, my dear Sukamah, my pour oppressed, distressed girl Go to thy tent and sleep soundly in thy bed until thy father gets thee some water to drınk

"Zamab.—Alas! alas! woe to me! my Husam is gone from me! Alas! alas! the arrow of my heart is shot away from the hand! Wee unto me, a thousand wees! I am to remain without Husain! The wor shipper of truth is gone to meet his destined fate with a blood-stained shroud!

"Husain.—My disponsolate Zainab, be not so impatient. My homeless sister, show not thyself so fretful. Have patience, sister, the teward of the patient believers is the best of all. Render God thanks, the crown of intercession is litted for our head only

"Zasnab —O my afflicted mother, thou best of all women, pass a minute by those in Karbals! see thy daughters prisoners of sorrow! behold them amidst strangers and foreigners Come out awhile from thy pavilion in Paradise, O Fátimak, and weep affectionately over the state of us, thy children!

"Husain.-I have become friendless and without any helper, in a most strange manner I have lost my troop and army in a wonderful Where is Akhar my son? let him coine to me and hold the bridle of my horse, that I may mount Where is Kasım my nephew? will he not help me and get ready my stirrup Why should I not to make me cheerful? shed much blood from mine eyes, seeing I oannot behold 'Abbas my standard-bearer? A brother is for the day of misfortune and calamity! A brother is better than a hundred diadems and thrones! A brother is the essence of life in the world! He who has a brother, though he be old, vet is young Who is there to bring my horse for me? there is none There is none even to weep for me in this state of misery !

"Kulsum.—Because there is no 'Ali Akbar, dear brother, to help thee, Zainab, thy sister, will hold the horse for thee, and seeing 'Abbas, thy brother, is no longer to be found, I myself will bear the standard before thy winged steed instead of him

"Zanab — Let Zanab mourn bytterly for her brother's desolation. Who e er saw a woman, a gentlewoman, doing the duty of a groom or servant? Who can know, O Lord, besides Thee, the sad state of Husain in Karbala, where his people so described him that a woman like myself is obliged to act as a servant for him?

"Kulsum.—I am a standard-bearer for Husain, the marter of Karbala, O Lord God I am the sister of Abbas, vea, the misorable sixter of both O friends, it being the tenth day of Muharram, I am therefore assisting Husain. I am bearing the ensign for him instead of 'Abbas my brother, his standard-bearer

"Zamab —Uncover your breasts a minute, O ye tear-shedding people, for it is time to beat the drum, seeing the king is going to ride. O Solomon the Prophet, where is thy glory? what has become of thy compous retinue? Where are thy brothers, nephews, and companions?

"Husan....There are none left to help me.
My sister Zamab holds the bridle of the horse, and walks before me. Who ever saw a lady acting thus?

"Zameb — Thou are going all aions! May the souls of all be a ransom for thee! and may thy departure make souls quit their bodies! A resurrection will be produced in thy tent by the ory of orphans and widows

"Husain —Sister, though it grieves me to go, yet I do it, peradventure I may see the face of Ashgar and the countenance of Akhai, those cypresses, those roses of Paradise. "Zuinab — Would to God Zamah had died

"Zamab — Would to God Zamab had died this very minute before thy face, in thy sight, that she might not behold such elegant bodies, such beautiful forms, rolling in their own blood!

"Husten —O poor sister, if thou die here in this land in that sudden way that thou desirest, then who will ride in thy stead, in the city of Kuish, on the camel's back?

"Zanab —Slight not my pain, dear brother, for Zanab is somewhat alarmed as to the import of thy speech. What shall I do with thy family—with the poor widows and young children?

"Husain —O afflicted one, it is decreed I should be killed by means of daggers and awords, henceforth, dear sister, thou shalt not see me Behold, this is separation between me and thee '

"The nepheu of Ausain—Dear uncle, thou hast resolved to journey Thou art going once sgain to make me an erphan To whom else wilt thou entrust us? Who is expected to take care of us? Thou wast, dear uncle, instead of my father Hasan, a defence to this helpless exiled creature

Husain —Sorrow not, thou faithful child, thou shalt be killed too in this plain of trials. Return thou now to thy tent in peace, without grieving my soul any further, poor orphan!

grieving my soul any further, poor orphan?

"The Durwish from Kábul—O Lord God, wherefore is the outward appearance of a man of God usually without decoration or ornament? And why is the lap of the man of this world generally full of gold and jewels? On what account is the pillow of this great person the black dust of the road? and for what reason are the bed and the cushion of the rebolitous made of velvet and stuffed with down? Either Islam, the religion of peace and charity, has no true foundation in the world, or this young man, who is so wounded and suffers from thirst, is still an infidel.

"Husain.—Why are thine eyes pouring down teers, young darwish? Hast thou also lost an Akbar in the prime of his youth? Thou art immersed, as a water-fowl, in thy teers Has thine 'Abbas been slain, thirsting, on the bank of the River Euphrates, that thou cryest so piteously? But if thou art sad only on account of my misfortune, then it matters not Let me know whence comest thou, and whither is thy face set?

"The Darwish—It happened, young man that last night I arrived in this valley, and made my lodging there. When one half of the night had passed, of a sudden a great difficulty befell me, for I heard a child he-meaning and complaining of thirst, having given up altogether the idea of hving any longer in this world. Sometimes it would beat its head and ery out for water, at ether times it appeared to fall on the ground fainting and anoticuless. I have, therefore brought some water in this cap for that poor child. that it may drink and be refreshed a little So I humbly beg thee dear sir, to direct me to the place where the young child may be found, and tell me what is its name

"Husain:—O God, let no man be ever in my putitul condition, nor any family in this sad and deplorable state to which I am reduced. O young man, the ohild mentioned by thee is the peace of my troubled mind, it

18 my poor, miserable little girl
"The Darwish —May I be offered for thee, dear sir, and for thy tearful eyes! Why should thy daughter be so sadir mourning and complaining? My heart is overwhelmed with grief for the abundance of tears running down thy cheeks Why should the daughter of one like thee, a generous soul, suffer from thirst?

Busain - Know, O young man, that we are never in need of the water of this life Thou art quite mistakes if thou hast supposed us to be of this world. If I will, I can make the moon, or any other celestial orb, fall down on the earth, how much more can I get water for my children Look at the hollow made in the ground with my spear, water would gush out of it if I were to like I voluntarily die of thirst to obtain a crown of glory from God. I die parched, and offer myself a sacrifice for the sine of my people, that they should be saved from the wrath to come

"The Darwish -What is thy name, sir? I perceive that thou art one of the chief saints of the most beneficent God evident to me that thou art the brightness of the Lord's image, but I cannot tell to which sacred garden thy holy rose belongs

" Husain -O darwish, thou wilt such he informed of the whole matter for thou shalt be a martyr thyself, for thy plans and the result thereof have been revealed to me Tell me, O darwish, what is the end thon hast in view in this thy hazardous entorprise? When thou shalt have told me that I will disolose to thee who I am.

"The Darwish -I intend, noble sir, after I have known the mystery of thy affairs, to set out, if God wills, from Karbala to Najaf namely, to the place where 'Alı, the highly exalted king of religion, the sovereign lord of the empire of existence, the supreme master of all the darwishes, is buried Yes, I am going to visit the tomb of 'Ali, the successor of the chosen of God, the son-in-law of the Prophet, the hon of the true Lord, the prince of behevors, Haidar, the champion of faith

" Husein .- Be it known unto the, O darwish, that I, who am so sad and sorrowful, am the rose of the gurden of that prince I am of the family of the believers thou hast mentioned I am Hussin the intercessor on the Day of Resurrection, the rose of the garden of glory

"The Lauren - May I be offered a sacrifice for thy blessed arrival! Pardon me my fault, and give me permission to fight the battle of faith, for I am weary of life 1, 18 better for me to be killed and delivered it once from so many vexations of spirit. Martyrdom is, in fact, one of the glories of my faith

" Husain -Go forth, O atom, which aspirest to the glory of the san, go torth, thou hast become at last worthy to know the hidden mysteries of faith. He who is slain for the sake of Husam shall have an abundant reward from God, yes, he shall be raised to life with 'Ali Akbar the aweet son of Mngam

" The Darwish (addressing Husain's antago nists) -You cruel people have no religion at You are fire-worshippers, ignorant of all God and His law How long will you act unjustly towards the offspring of the priest-hood? Is the account of the Day of Resurrection all false?

'Ibn Sa'd (the general of Yazid's army)....
O'ye brave soldiers of Yazid, deprive this fellow of his fund of his Make his friends ready to mourn for him

' Husain -Is there anyone to help me?

Is there any assistant to lend me his aid?

In far (the king of pann, with his troops, coming to Husains assistance)—O king of men and mnns. O Husain, peace he on thee! O judge of corporeal and spiritual beings, peace he on thee!

"Hasarn—On thee be poace, thou hand-some youth! Who art thou, that salutest us at such a time? Though thine affairs are not hidden from me at all, still it is advisable to ask thy name

"Jafar -O lord of men and jinns, I am the least of thy servants, and my name is Jafar, the chief ruler of all the tribes of jinns To-day, while I was sitting on the glorious throne of my majesty, easy m mind, without any and idea or thought whatever I suddenly heard thy voice, when thou didst sadly implore assistance and on hearing thee I lost my patience and senses behold, I have come out with troops of juns, of various shifties and qualifications, to lend thee help if noressary

" Husain .- In the old abbey of this perishabie kingdom, none can ever, O Ja'far, attain to immortality What can I do with the empire of the world, or its tempting gleries, after my dear ones have all died and gone? is it proper that I, an old man, should live, and Akbar, a blooming youth, die in the prime of age? Return thou, Jafar, to thy home, and weep for me as much as thou canst

"Ja'fur (returning) - Alas for Husain's exile and helplessness! Alas for his continual grouns and sighs !

"Husain (coming back from the field, desmounts his horse, and making a heap of dust, lays has head on et) -O carth of Karbala, do thou assist me, I pray! since I have no mother, be then to me instead of one

" I'm Sa'd orders the army to stone Husan O ye men of valour, Husam the son of 'Alf has tumbled down from the winged horse; if I be not mistaken, heaven has fallen to earth! it is hetter for you to stone him most cruelly Dispatch him soon, with stones to his com

"Husein.—Ah, were to me! my forehead is broken, blood runs down my luminous face.
"Ion Sa'd.—Who is that brave soldier, who, in order to show his gratitude to Yazíd his sovereign lord, will step forward and, with a blow of his soymetar, slay Husain the son of 'Ali?

"Shmar—I am he whose dagger is famous for bloodshed. My mother has borne me for this work alone. I care not about the conflict of the Day of Judgment, I am a worshipper of Yazid, and have no fear of God. I can make the great throne of the Lord to shake and tremble. I alone can sever from the body the head of Husain the son of 'Ali I am he who has no share in Islam. I will strike the chest of Husain, the ark of God's knowledge, with my boots, without any fear of punishment.

"Husain.—Oh, how wounds caused by arrows and daggers do smart! O God have mercy in the Day of ludgment on my people for my sake The time of death has arrived, but I have not my Akbar with me. Woul to God my grandfather the Prophet will now nere to see me!

"The Prophet (appearing)—Dear Hussin, thy grandfather the Prophet of God has come to see thee I am here to behold the mortal wounds of thy delicate body Dear child, thou hast at length suffered martyrdom by the cruel hand if my own people! This was the reward I expected from them, thanks be to God! Open thine eyes dear son, and behold thy grandfather with disbevelled hair If thou hast any desire in thy heart, speak it out to me

Husain —Dear grandfather, I abhor life, I would rather go and visit my dear ones in the next world—i carnestly desire to see my companions and friends—above all my dearly

heloved son Alı Akbar

The Prophet—Bo not give that 'Ali Akbar thy son was killed, since it tends to the good of my sinful people on the day of universal gathering

· Husain.—Seeing Alí Akbar's martvrdom contributes to the happiness of the people, seeing my own sufferings give validity to the office of mediation and seeing the rest consists in my being troubled in this way I would offer my soul, not once or twice, but a thousand times for the salvation of the people!

"The Prophet —Sorrow not, dear grandchild thou shalt be a mediator, too in that day At present thou art thirsty, but tomorrow thou shalt be the distributor of the water of Al Kausar

"Husain —O Lord God, besides Husain, who has happened to be thus situated? Every one when he dies has at least a mother at his head. But my mother is not here to rend her garments for me, she is not alive, that she might coose my eyes when I die

"Fatimuh, his mother (appearing)—I am come to see thee my child, my child! May I die another time, my child my child! How shall I see thee sizin, my son, my son! Rolling in thine own blood, my child, my child!

Husain—Come, dear mother. I am anxiously waiting for thee Come, come! I have partly to complain of thee How is it that thou hast altogether forsaken thy son? How is it thou camest so late to visit me?

"Fáttmah — May I be offered for thy wounded, defaced body! Tell me, what dost thou wish thy mother to do now for thee?

"Husain—I am now, dear mother, at the point of death—The ark of life is going to be cast on whore, mother—It is time that my soul should leave the body—Come, mother, close my eves with thy kind hand.

"Firmah.—O Lord, how difficult for a mother to see her dear child dying! I am Zahrah who am making this sad noise, because I have to close the eyes of my sen Husain, who is on the point of death Oh, teil me if thou hast any deaire long cherished in thy heart, for I am distressed in mind owing to the sad sighs!

"Husain—Go mother, my soul is come to my throat, go, I had no other desire except one, with which I must rise in the Day of Resurrection namely, to see Ali

Akber's wedding

"Shimar — Make thy confession, for I want to sever thy head, and cause a perpetual separation between it and the body

"Zainub -O Shimar do not go beyond thy limit, let me bind something on my brother's

"Husan —Go to thy tent, sister. I am already undone Go away, Zahrah my mother has already closed my eyes. Show to Sukainah my daughter always the tenderness of a mother. Be very kind to my child atter me

"Shimar (addressing Husain) — Stretch forth thy feet toward the holy Kiblah, the sacred templa of Makkah. See how my dagger waves over thee! It is time to cut

thy throat

"Husain—O Lord, for the merit of me, the dear child of thy Prophet O Lord, for the sad groaning of my miserable sister O Lord for the sake of young 'Abbas rolling in his blood, even that young brother of mine that was equal to my soul, I pray thee, in the Day of Judgment forgive, O merciful Lord, the sins of my grandfather's people, and grant me, bountfully the key of the treasure of intercession (Dies)"—(Pelly's Miracle Play vol 11 p 81 seqq)

MUHARRAMAT (محروات), pl of Muharramah Those persons with whom it is not lawful to contract marriage [MARRAGE]

MUHAYAT (5000) A legal term used for the partition of usufruct According to the Hidayah, vol 1v 31 —

Partition of property is more effectual than partition of assigned in accomplishing the emogment of the use, for which reason, if one partner apply for a partition of property, and another for a partition of suffreet, the Qişī must grant the request of the former, and if a partition of usufruet should have ken place with respect to a thing capable of a partition of property (such as a house or a piece of ground), and afterwards one of the partners apply for a partition of property, the Qazī must grant a partition of property and annul the partition of usufice?

MUHAZARAH (5) Lit
"Being present." A term used by the Sulis for presenting of the soul to God in the ser tree of zikr in order to obtain all the spiritual blessing possible from a cutempl on of the ninety-nine attributes and titles of God
[zikk, God]

MUHRIM ( The pilgrim in a state of Ihram, that 10, ifter he has assumed the pilgrim's dress [PILGRIMAGE]

"The Counter" One of the nimety-nine names or attributes of God 'It is referred to in the Quran, Surah xxx 1 11 Veril, We quicken the dead and write down what they have done before, and the tisters which thet leave behind and everything do We set down (lit rackon up) in the clear Book of our decrees"

MUHTAKIR (حسكر) Lit "A forestaller" One who monopolises grain and other necessaries of life which is unlawful [monopoly]

MUHTASIB ( The public censor of religion and moral, who is appointed by a Muslim ruler to punish Muslims for neglecting the rites of their religion

Sir Alexander Buines, in his Irrivels in Bokhara (vol 1 p od 1), relates that he saw persons publicly scounged because they had alopt during prayer time and smoked on Friday [DIRRAH]

Burckhardt in his account of the Wahha bis (vol 1 p 146) says the neglect of religious duty is always severely punished

When Sa'ud took al-Madinah, he ordered some of his people after prayers in the masque to call over the names of all the grown ap inhabitants of the term who were to answer individually. He then commanded them to attend prayers regularly and if any, one absented himself two of three times, ba'ud sout some of his Arabs to heat the man in his own house. At Makkah when the hour of prayer arrived he ordered the people to patrol the streets armed with large sticks, and to drive all the inhabitants by force anto the mosque a harsh proceeding, but justified by the notorious irreligion of the Makkans.

Dr Bellew, in his Kashmir and Kashqor (p 281), gives an animated account of the way in which the Muhtasib performed his duties in the streets of Kashqui of life" One of the ninett nine names or attributes of God It occurs twice in the Qur'an

Sursh xxx 49 "Look then to the vestiges of God's mercy, low he quickens the earth after its death, verily He is the quickener of the dead"

Surah zir 39 "Verily, he who quickens 'the earth) will surely quicken the dead."

AL-MU'ID (last) "The Restorer" (to Rie). One of the ninety-mne names or attributes of God The word does not occur in the Qur'an, but the idea is expressed in Sūrah lxxxv 13, and many other places "Verily Ha produces and restores" who giveth honour" One of the ninety nine names or attributes of God The word does not occur in the Qur'an, but the attribute is referred to in Sarah hi 25 "Theu honourest whom Thou pleasest"

AL-MUJADIIAH (Build) Int.

'She who disputed" The title of the Lairth Sur ili of the Qur'an, in which the expression occurs "Now hath God heard the speech of her who disputed with thee concerning her husband" Which refers to Khaulah bland Saint who being diversed by her husband in the time of ignorance," came to ask whether the diverce was lawful

MUJAHID ( A warrior in the cause of religion [JIHAD] who answers to (a prayor) One of the ninety nine values or attributes of God It occurs in the Qur an Surah xi 64 "Verily my Lord is ough and onswers (prayer)

MU'JIZAH ( ( MIRACLES ]

MUJTAHID (Act.), pl mujtakidun Let "One who stayes" to attain to a high position of scholarship and learning

The highest degree amongst Muhammadan divines which is conferred either by the people of the ruler of a Muslim country upon eminent person. The four doctors of the Sunnis and their disciples were of this degree, but there are none of these enlightened teachers amongst the Sunnis of the present flat. They still exist in Persia, and are appointed by the people the appointment being confirmed by the king. Malcolm, in his account of Persia says -

There are soldom more than three or four priests of the aignity of Mujtahid in Persia. Their conduct is expected to be exemplary, and to show no wordly has, neither must they connect themselves with the king or the officers of Government. They seldom depart from that character to which they swe their rank. The reason is obvious, the moment they deviate, the charm is broken which constitutes their power, men no longer solicit their advices or implore their protection, nor can they hope to see the monarch of the country counting popularity by walking to their humble dwellings, and placing them on the seat of honour when they condescend to visit his court. When a Mujtahid dies, has successor is always a person of the most eminent rank in the ecclesiastical order, and, though he may be pointed out to the populace by others of the same class seeking him as an associate it is rare to hear of any intrigues being employed to obtain this enviable dignity

"The Mujtahids of Persia exercise a great, though undefined, power over the courts of law, the judges of which constantly submit cases to their superior knowledge, and their sentence is deemed irrevocable unkes by a Mujtahid whose learning and sunctity are of acknowledged higner repute than that of the person by whom judgment has been pro-nounced But the benefits which the inhabtants of Persia derive from the infinence of these high priesis is not limited to their occasional aid of the curts of justice. The iaw is respected on account of the character of its ministers, kings lear to atlack the decrees of tr bunals over which they may be said to preside, and frequently endeavour to obtain popularity by referring cases to their decision. The sovereign, when no otners dars approach him, cannot refuse to listen to a revered Mujtahid when he becomes an intercessor for the guilty The habitations of this high order of priesthood are deemed sanctuaries for the oppressed, and the hand of despoter power is sometimes taken off a city, because the monarch will not offerd a Mujtahid who has choson it for his residence but whe refuses to dwell aimid violence and injustice '

There is a common opinion that the title of Mujtahid can only be granted to those whe are masters of seventy sciences. For a rull account of the conditions of obtaining this rank, as expressed by a modern Mushim writer will be found in the article on figure. "IDBA.]

MUKARI (حكارت) A legal term for a person who lets herses, camels &c, to hire (Hidayah, vol 111 p 371)

MUKATAB ( ) A slave who ransoms himself or herself, with the permision of the owner [SLAVERY]

MUKHADDARAH (3)—) A legal term for a woman in a state of purity It is also used for a veiled woman, the word being derived from the dr. a "curtain or veil."

MUKHALATAH (Like) Lit Interminghing," or mixing together. A term used for general intercourse but specially applied to intercourse with these who are ceremonally unclean

MULES. Arabic baqlil (بعل), pl

bigjsai

Muhammad forbade the breeding of mules, for Ibn Abbas says the three special injunctions which he received were (1) to perform the ablutions thoroughly, (2) not to take alms, (3) not to breed mules (Mishkat, book zvn ch u)

The flesh of a mule is unlawful (Hidayak, vol. iv p 74)

They are not liable to zakūt (Hidāyah, vol. i. p. 16)

MULHAQ (المحتى) Lit "Joined"
A term used by the Salis for the condition of the human soul when "it is absorbed into the essence of God" ('Abdu 'r-Razzaq's Dictionary of Suf'i Terms)

MULHID (ملحد) An infidel Lit "One who has deviated, or turned aside from the truth"

AI-MULK (class) Let "The Kingdom' The title of the Lxviith Sürah of the Qur'an in the first verse of which the wor i occurs Blessed is He in whose hand is the lingdom

MULLA (%) A Persian form used for the Arabic Maulaun, "a learned man, such lar"

In the trhiyasu 'I Lughah it is said that a learned in in is called a Mulla because he is "filled" with knowledge, from mala', 'to fill"

MU'MIN (مومن), pl Mu'mmun, from I nan, 'faith 'One v ho believes

(1) \ term generally used for Muhamma-dine in the Quran and in all Mushin books

(2) If Mumn. The title of the xith surah of the Quran in the 29th verse of nanh the word occurs. "A man of the limity of Phoraon who was a believer but had his 11th."

(3) Al Manun 'The Faithful' One of 'he much mine a imes or attributes of God it occurs in the Quran, burah hix 28 'He to the Futhful'

AI-MU'MINI'N (Note that it is a first verse of the wind occurs are the beneticer AL-MCMIT (""") "The Killer' Ore of the ninety nine names of at tirbities of God It is referred to in the Que in Surah in 26. He will kill you and then nake you at ve"

MUMSIK (comb) Let "One who wild ilds, r in ser" Used for a miserly person in contradistinction to munfig a liberal person" [MUNFIN]

AI - MUMTAHINAH (Author)

Ist "She who I tried" The title of the 1sth Surah of the Quran, from the expression in the 10th verse "O believers! when believing women come over to you as refugees then make trial of them"

Al Baizawi says "When such women

Al Baizawi says "When such women sought an asylun at al-Madmah, Muhammad obliged them to swear that they were prompted only by a desire of embracing Islam, and that hatred of their husbands, or love of some Muslim, had not any influence on their conduct."

MUNAFIQ (with), pl munafique h' Hypothie' A term especially given to those who in the time of the Prophet, whilst ontwardly professing to believe in his mission, secretly denied the faits. They form the subject of the exhibit Surah of the

Munäzegin

(المنافقون) AL - MUNĂFIQŪN "The Hypocrites" Title of the Lyund Sursh of the Qur'an, whose opening verses

"When the Hyposistes come to thee, they say, We bear witness that thou art the Sent One of God God knoweth that thou art His Sent One but God beareth witness that the hypocrites do surely he Then fach have they used as a cloak and they turn aside others from the way of God' Evil ate all their doings. This, for that they believed, then became unbelievers. Therefore hith a seal been set upon then leasts, and they understand not "

MUNĀJĀT (مناجاة) Lat "Whispering to, confidential talk" (cenerally used for the extempore prayer offered after the usual hturgical form has been recalled [PRAYERS]

MUNASSAF (منمف) Let "Reduced to one-half a species of prohibited liquor. The juice of grapes boiled until a quantity less than two thirds evaporates (Hidayah, vol iv 158)

MUNF. MANF (مىف) anoient Memphis Mentioned in the Com mentary of the Jalalan on the Qur'an, Surah xxviii 14, as the city in which Moses killed the Egyptian.

MUNFIQ (منفئ) Lat 'One who spends" A charitable person Qui an, Surah ni 15 "Upon the patient, the u itaful, the devont, the charitable, and those who ask for pardon at the dawn ' NUMBIK

MUNKAR and NAKIR (مكرو)
"The Unknown" and "The Repudiating 'The two angels who are said by Muhammad to visit the dead in their graves and to interrogate them as to their belief in the Prophet and his religion

They are described as two black angels with blue eyes (Mishkat, book 1 ch v) [PUNISHMENTS OF THE GRAVE ]

AL-MUNTAQIM (المنتقم) The Avenger" One of the minety-nine names of attributes of God It is referred to in the Quran, Surah xxxii 22 "Verily We will take vengeunce on the sinners " Also Surahs zhu 40, and zhv 15

AL-MUQADDIM (//LLL) "The Bringer-forward" One of the ninety-nine names or attributes of God It does not occur in the Qur'an, but is given in the Hadia

MUQAUQIS (مقولس) The Roman Vicercy of Egypt, al Maquaque being his official title

Muhammad. in the vest AH 7 (AD 628)

Qur'an, which hence is termed the Suratu'l- sent an embassy to this official, inviting him to Islam The Governor received the omlassy kndy, and sent the following reply, "I am aware that a prophet is yet to arise, but I am of opinion he will appear in Syria.

Thy messenger hath been received with honour I send for thine acceptance two female slaves, "ho are much admired by the Copts, and also a present of ranment, and a mule for theo to ride on."

Mary, the fairest of the Coptic damsels, Muhammad kept for himself, and gave the other to Hassan the poet [MUHANNAD, MARY

TRE (OFF]

MUQAYAZAH (مقايفة) Exchanging, bartering, giving an equivalent in anything but money (Hidáyah, Arabic ed, vol ш р 8 г Mighty of Guardian " One of the ninety "The mine names or attributes of God Surah iv 88 "Venly God keepeth watch over everything'

AL-MUQSIT (المقسط) "The Equitable One of the muety-nine names or attribute of God It does not o cur in the Qu'ran, but is given in the Hadis

MUQTADA (مقتدى) Lat "Followed, worthy to be followed" An exemplany person, as being eminent for sanctity of ch. racter

" Follower " (صقتدى) Follower The person who stands behind the Imam in the usual prayers and recites the Iqamah [IQAMAH]

AL-MUQTADIR (المقتدر) "The Progral or Prevailing" One of the minety in no names or attributes of God. It occurs thice times in the Quran - mrah xviii 43 "For God is powerful over

Smah hv 42 As he only can punish, who is the Mighty, the Strong"
Surah v 55 'With the powerful king'

MUEĀBAHAH (سرابحة) term for selling a thing for a pront, when the seller distinctly states that he purchased it for so much and sells it for so much

MURĀHAQAH (مراهقة) Arriving at Makkah when the ceremonies of the han are nearly finished [HAJJ]

MURAHIQ (مراهق) A legal term for a boy or girl who is near the age of puberty

MURAQABAH (مراقسة) Meditation, contemplation An act of devotion performed by the Suiis [sur.]

MURDER MURDER Arabic gatl (قتل). Homicide of which Muhammadan law takes cognicance is of five kinds (1) Quilu'l-'Amd

(2) Qail shibhu'l-'Amd, (8) Qailu'l-Khatā', (4) Qail gā'im magāma 'l-Khatā', (5) Quil bi-Sabab

(1) Qatlu 'l-'Amd (قتل العمد), or "wilful murder," is where the perpetrator wilfully kills a person with a weapon, or something that serves for a weapon, such as a club, a sharp stone, or fire If a person commit wilful murder, two points are established first, that the murderer is a sinner deserving of hell, for it is written in the Qur'an (Surah iv 95), "Whoseever slayeth a believer purposely, his reward is hell", and secondly, that he is reward is hell", and secondly, that he is hable to retahation, because it is written in the Qur'an (Sürah 11 178), " It is incumbent on you to execute retaliation (Qisas) for murder" But although rotaliation is the punishment for wilful murder, still the heir or next of kin can athor forgive or compound the offence, as the verse already quoted continues—" Yet he who is pardoned at all by his brother must be prosecuted in reason, and made to pay with kindn" in this respect Muhammad departed from the Old Testament law, which made the retalia tion compulsory on the next of kin.

One offect of wilful murder is that the murderer is excluded from being beir to the murdered person.

According to Abu Hamfah there is no expection for wilfin muider but ash Shafil maintains that expiation is incumpent as an act of piety

(2) Qail shibhu ا-Amd ( معالميه), or "manslaughter" or, as Hamilton more correctly renders it, A semblance of wilful murder, is when the perpetrater strike a man with something which is neither a worpon nor serves as such "

The argument adduced by Abu Hanifah is a saying of the Prophet 'Killing with a rod or stick is not murder, but only manulaughter, and the fine for it is a hundred camels pay able within three years"

Manslaughter is held to be sinful and to require expiation, and it excludes the mail slayer from inheriting the property of the slain

- (3) Qathu'l-hhata (مثل الحطا), ot "hom! cide by miss dventure," is of two kinds ellor in intention, and orioi in the act Error in the act is where a person intends a pai'tcular act, and another act is thereby occasioned, as where, for instance a person shoots an arrow at a mark and it hits a man Error in intention, on the other hand, is where the mistake occurs not in the act, but with respect to the subject, as where a person shoots an arrow at a man supposing him to be game, or at a Muslim supposing him to be a hostile infidel. The slayer by misadventure is required to free a Muslim slave, or fast two months successively, and to pay a fine within three years He is also excluded from inheriting the property of the
- (4) Qatl qā'ım mayama 'l-Khata (تتل عالم) ), or "homicide of a similar nature to homicide by misadventure," is where for example, a person walking in his sleep falls upon another, so as to kill him by the fall It is subject to the same rules with homicide by misadventure

(5) Qatl bi-Sabab (مقتل بسبة), or, "homicide by intermediate cause," is where, for instance, a man digs a well, or sets up a stone, and another falls into the well, or over the stone, and dies. In this case a fine must be paid, but it does not exclude from inheritance, nor does it require expistion.

No special mention is made in either the Qur'an or in Muhammadan law books, of taking the life by poison (The same remark applies to the Mosaio law See Smith's Dictionary of the Bible, Article "Murder")

With regard to retaliation, a freeman is slain for a freeman, and a slave for a slave a freeman is also claim for the wilful murder of a slave the property of another According to Abu Hanifah, a Muslim is put to death for killing an unbehever, but ash Shafi i maintains otherwise, because the Prophet said, "A Muslim shall not suffer death for an unbeliever"

A man is slain for a woman, a father is not slain for his child, but a child is slain for the murder of his father, a master is not slain for the murder of his own slave, or for the slave of his child

If a parson unmerse snother into water whence it is impossible for him to escape by swimming according to Abu Hanifah retahation is not incurred but ash Shafi'f main tains that the murderer should be drowned

Al Baizawi the commentator in writing on Surah ii 174, "This is an alleviation from your Lord and a mercy," says that in the Jewish law retaliation for murder was com pulsory, but in the law of Christ the Chris tians were enjoined to forgive the murderer whilst in the Qur'an the choice is given of either retaliation or forgiveness

(مريد) MURID Lit 'One who is desirous or willing A disciple of some murshed, a leader, or a mystic order Any student of divinity [SUPL]

MURJIYAH, MURJI'AH (مرجية) Lit The Procrastinators" A sect of Mushas who teach that the judgment of every true believel, who hath been guilty of a grievous sin will be deferred till the Resurrection, for which reason they pass no sentence on him in this world, either of absolution or con demnation They also nold that disobedience with faith hurteth not, and that on the other hand obedience with infidelity profiteth not As to the reason of their name the learned differ, because of the different significations of its root, each of which they accommodate to some opinion of the sect Some think them so called because they postpone works to intention, that is, esteem works to be inferior in degree to intention, and profession of the faith, others, because they allow hope, by asserting that disobedience with faith hurteth not, &c , others take the reason of the name to be, their deferring the sentence of the her nous sinner till the Resurrection, and others, their degrading of 'Ali, or removing him from the first degree to the fourths for the Murjivahs in some points relating to the office of Imam, agree with the Kharijiyahs. This sect is divided into four classes three of which according as they happen to agree in particolar dogmas with the Kharijiyaha, the Qudi riyaha, or the Jabariyaha, are distinguished as Murjiyaha of those sects, and the fourth is that of the pure Murjiyahs, which last class is again subdivided into five others. The opinions of Mukatil and Bashar both of a sect of the Murjiyahs called Souhamans, should not be omitted. The former asserted that disobedience burts not him who profeases the unity of Gid and is endued with farth, and that no true believer shall be cast into hell, he also thought that God will surely forgive all crimes except mildelity, and that a disobedient believer will be punished at the Day of Resurrection, on the bridge Strat laid over the midst of hell, where the fiames of hell tire shall catch hold on him, and torment him in proportion to his disobedience, and that he shall then be ad mitted into Paradise

The latter held, that if God do cast the believers guilty of grievous sine into hell yet they will be delivered thone, after they shall have been sufficiently punished, but that it is neither possible nor consistent with justice that they should remain therein for

evel

MURSAL (مرسل), pi mursalun A messenger or apostic A term frequently used in the Qur'an for the prophet: It is only applied to those who are said to bringers of inspired books PROPHER

AL-MURSALAT (المرسلات) Lit 'Those who are sent 'The title of the txxviith Surah of the Quran, in the first verse of which the word occurs "By the angels who are sent by God, following one another"

MURSHID (•vell) MURSHID (oyal) A guide From rashad, "a straight road The title given to the spiritual director of any 1 ligious order [SUFI]

MURTADD (مرتد) [AI OSTATE]

AL - MUSABBILIAT (المسمحات) "The Pressers" A title "iven to those Surshs of the Quran, which begin with Subhana (Glory to), or Subbaha (he glorifled), or Yusubbihu (he glorifles), or Subbih (glorify thou) viz Smaha xvii lin, lix, lxi lxn, lx v, lxxxvn

Irbaz ibn Sariyan relates that Muhaminad used to repeat the Musabbiliat before gring to sleep, and that he said, In them there is a verse which is betts; than a thousand. Most writers say this verse is concealed like the Ladotu'l Cade (the night of power), or the Sa atu I Junual (the hour on Fields) but 'Abdu l-Haqa says it is most probably enther the last verse of the Suratu 'l-Hasha (hx ). . He is God, the Pardoner, the Maker, the Fashioner | To him are ascribed excellent titles," &c Or, the first verse of the Suratu I Hadid (lvn), "All that is in the Heavens and in the Earth praiseth God" (See Majma'a 'l-Bihon, p %6, Michkät, back vii

MUSADDIQ (ممدى) The collector of the zakāt and suduquh, or legal alms. In Muhammadan states he is appointed by the state. This officer does not now exist in Hindustan under British rulo

Taking MUSAFAHAH (amilian) the hand Joining or shaking hands A constern expressly enjoined by Milhammad, who said, 'If two Mushims meet and join hands (1e shake hands), their sins will be forgiven before they separate" (Mishkat, hook xxii ch in pt 2)

MUSAILAMAH (مسيلمه) An imposter who appeared in the time of Muhammad, and claimed the Prophetic office, surnamed Musailamate 'Kazzab, or, "Musailamate the Liai" He headed an embassy sent by his tribe to Muhammad in the rinth year of the Hijrah, and professed himselt a Muslim, but on his return home, considering that he might possible share with Muhammad in his power, the next year he set up for a prophet also pretending to join with him in the commussion to recall mankind from idolatry to the worship of the true God; and he published written revelations, in imitation of the Qui'an of which Abn 'l Faraj has preserved the following pissage, viz "Now hath God been gracious unto her that was with child, and hath brought forth from her the soul thich runneth between the peritynœum and the bowels"

Musallamah, having formed a considerable party, began to think himself upon equal terms with Muhammad, and sent him a letter, offering to go haives with him, in those words ' From Musailamah the Apostle of God to Muhainmid the Apostle of God Now lot the earth be half mone and half thine ' But Muhammad, thinking himself too well established to need a partner, wrote him this answer 'From Muhammiad, the Apostle of God, to Musailamah, the Liar The earth is God's, He giveth the same for inheritance unto such of His servants as He pleaseth, and the happy issue shall attend those who fear Hım "

During the tow months which Mulummad hved alter this revolt, Musailamah 14ther gamed than lost ground, and grew vary for midable, but Abu Baki, in the eleventh year of the Hijiah, sent a great army against him under the command of that consumnate general Khalid ibn al-Walid, who engaged Musailamah in a bloody battle, wherein the false prophet happening to be slain by Wahshi, the negro slave who had kuled Hamzah at Uhud, and by the same lance, the Muslims gained an entire victory, ten thousand of the apostates being left dead on the spot, and the rest returning to Muhammadanism

MUSALLA (has). The small mat, cloth, or carpet on which a Musl m prays The term sayadah is used in Egypt. In Persia Jan-samaz

A MEBALLA

MUSALLAS (att) Lit "Made into three, or into a third" An aromatic wine composed of new wine boiled to a third part and then mixed with sweet herbs. It is said by Abū Hanīfan to be a lawful drink (Hidāyah, vol. iv. p. 162)

MUSAI.MAN (مسلمل) The Persan form of the word Muslim A Muham madau [минамадамізм]

MUSAMARAH (مساحرة) Lit 'Holding might con creations' A term peed by the Suits for God's converse with the heart of man. ('Abdu'r-Razzuq's Diet of Sufi l'erms.)

musaqar (allow) A compact entered into by two persons by which it is agreed that the one shall deliver over to this other his fruit trees, on condition that the other shall take care or them, and whatever is produced shall belong to them both, in the proportions of our half one third, or the like, as may be stipulated (Hidayah, vol iv p 54)

AL-MUSAWWIR () "The Fashioner" One of the ninety-nine names or attributes of God It occurs once in the Qur'an, Sûrah hx 24 "He is God, the Creator, the Maker, the Fushioner'

MUSHABBIHAH (a.a.) Lit The Assumilators' A sect of Muham madans who allowed a resemblance between Good and His creature suppose 4 Him to be a ngure composed of the wholes of parts, and capable of local motion. Some of the Shrahs belong to this sect.

MUSHAHADAH (***) A vision or revelation A Shinistic expression for spiritual enlightenment

MUSHRIK (مثرث), pl mushrikun Those who give companions to God. It is used by modern Mushims for both Curistians and idolaters, for those who believe in the Holy Trinity as well as for those who vor simp idels. The Webhābil also call their religious opponents Mushvisin, because they pray to saints for assistance. In the Qur'an the term is always used for the Makkan idolaters, and the Imām al-Baghawi says, in his commentars on Sūrah zevila 1, that the ferm Ahlu 'l-Kitāb is always used for the Jews and Christians and Mushrikun for those who worship idols

MUSHROOMS Arabic kam' (﴿مَ), pl akmu', kum'ah Abū Hurairah relaies that Muhammad sand 'Mushrooms are a kind of manna which God sent to Moses, and its water is a cure for sore eves.' (Mishkāt book xxi ch 1)

MUSIC Arabic musique (مروسية), musique (مروسية), which the author of the Ghiyague 'l-Lughuh says is a Syriac word. It is generally hold by Muhammadans to be contrary to the teachings of the Prophet, for Nafir relates that when he was walking with 1bn 'Umai on a road, they heard the music of a pipe, and that Ibn 'Umar put his fingers into his cais and went on another road. Nafir then asked Ibn Umar why he did so, and be said 'I was with the Prophet, and when he heard the noise of a misical pipe, he put his fingers into his ears, and this happened when I was a child "(Mishlat, book xxii ch ix pt 3)

Multimmadan doctors however, are not agreed on the subject, for Ahū Hanifeh says, "If a person break a lute or tabor, or pipe, or tymbal belonging to a Muslim he is responsible because the sale of such articles is lawful" Bit his two disciples, Imams Muhammad and Abu Yusuf, do not agree with him (Hidayah, vol. in p. 558)

MUSIAH (all) The mutilation of the body, which is forbidden by Muslim law, except in the case of reconstruction is Michkat, book xi. ch. n.)

MUSIIM (مسلم), from Islam One who has received Islam A Muhammadan [минамнараким ізрам]

MUSLIM (and Abu 'l-Hussin Muslim, son of al Hajjāj al Qushairī, tho compiler of the collection of the Liaditions known as the Sahihu Muslim, was born at Naishapui ah 204, and died ah 261. His look of traditions ranks amongst the Sunnis as but second in authority to the Sahihu 'l-Bukhar at the "two works being styled the Suhama at the "two authentics." It is said to common 3,000 authentic traditions. [Traditions]

MUSTAHĀZAH (istidāzah). A woman who has an issue of blood (istidāzah), independent of the menses or of the cleans ings ati, parturition A mustahāzah is not considered jumb, or unclean, but may say her pravers and perform the other religious offices. Compare Levithus xx 3.

MUSTALIQ (مسئاله) Banu Mustaliq An Arabian tribe in the time of Muhammad He attacked the Banu Mustaliq in A is 5 and took many of them prisoners. (Muir's Lafe of Mahomet, vol in p 237) They embraced Islam at an early period

MUSTA'MIN (out one) Let "One who seeks security" One who, being a foreigner, and not a Muslim, enters Muhammadan territory and claims safe conduct and immunity from hostilities

*The Exalted." One of the nunety-nine names or attributes of God It occurs in the Qui'an, Sürah xiii. 10 "He knows the unseen, and the visible,—the Great, the Lefty Une

MU TADDAH (Sasse) A woman in her 'iddah, or period of probatior, alter the death of her husband, or after her divorce

MUT'AH (dex) Lit "Usufruct, enjoyment" A marriage ontracted or a limited period for a certain sum of money Such marriage are still legal amongst the Shrahs, and exist in Persia (Malcolms Persia vol it p 591) to the present day but they are said to be unlawful by the Sumits They were permitted by the Arabian Propriet at Autäs, and are undoubtedly the greatest stain upon his moral legislation but the Sunnis say that he afterwards prohibited a mut'ah marriage at Khaihar (Inde Mishkat, book xin ch it pt 2)

The Shi'ahs establish the legality of mut ah not only upon the traditions, but also upor the following verse in the Qualent the meaning of which, according to the commentary Tajnr-1-Muzhari, is disputed Surah iv 28 "Forbidden to you also are married women, except those who are in your hands is slaves This is the law of God for you And it 19 allowed you, beside this to seek out wives by means of you wealth, with modes con duct and without fermeation And give those with whom ye have conshited their dowry This is the law But it shall be no crime in you to make agreements over and above the law Wise!" Verily God is Knowing,

According to the Imamivah Code of Jurispludence, the following are the conditions of Mut oh, or ' temporary marriages must be declaration and acceptance as in the case of mkah, and the subject of the contract must be either a Musliman a Christian, or a Jewess or (according to some) a Majusi she should be charte, and due inquires should be made into her conduct as it is abominable to enter into contract with a woman addicted to formication, not 14 it lawful to make such a contract with a virgin who has no juther some dower must be specified, and if there is a failule in this respect the contract is void There must also be a fixed period, but its extent is left entrely to the parties it may be a year, a month or a day only at a hunt must be distinctly specified, so as a guard i the period from any extension or diminution The practice of 'azl certichere onte emissi mem memanic) is lawful, but if notwithstanding this the woman becomes pregnant, the child is the temporary husband's, but if he should deny the child, the demial is sustained by the law Mut'ah marriages do not admit of divolce or repudiation, but the parties become absolutely separated on the expiration of the period (Baillie's Digest)

There is a curious account of a discussion at the Court of the Emperor Akbar with reference to the subject of Mut'ah marriages in the Am-i-Akban (Translation by H Ricchman M.A. p. 178) At one of the H Blochman VIA, p 178) meetings for discussion, the Emperor asked how many free born women a man may legally marry The lawyers answered that four was the limit fixed by the Prophet Majosty thereuper remarked that, from the time he had come of age he had not restricted lumselt to that number and m justice to his nices, of whom he had a large number both free-born and slaves, he now wanted to know what remedy the law provided for his case Most of the Maulawis present expressed their opinions, whom the Emperor remarked that bhaikh 'Abdu n Nabi had once told him that one of the Mujtalide had had as many as nine wives Some of those present said that some learned men had allowed even eighteen from a too literal translation of the second voise of Süratu 'n-Nisa' in the Quran MAR-MAGE ] After much discussion the learned nien present laving collected overv tradition on the subject actived, hirst, that he mut ah a min may mailt int number of wices, ind, secondly, that nuttuh mairiages were sanctioned by the Immin Malik, but a copy of be Mucatta, of the imam Mahk was brought, and a passage riteu from that collection of traditions against the legality of mutah marriages

The disputation was again revived at a substiquent meeting when at the request of the Emperor Bada'oni give the following summary of the discussion. Imim Mahk and the shi ahs are unanimous in looking upon mut'ah marriages as 'egal Imam ash-Shāt's and the great Imam Abu Hanifah look upon mut ah marriages as illegal. But should at any time a Qāvī of the Malaki sect decide that mut'ah is legal, it is legal, according to the common belief even for Shāt's and Hanafis. Every other opinion on this subject is idle talk. This saying pleased the Emperior, and he at once appointed a Qāzi, who gave a decree which made mut ah marriages legal.

In permitting these usuffrictuary marriages Muhammad appears but to have given Derme () sauction to one of the abominable practices of ancient Alabia, for Burchardt (vol ii p 378) says, it was a custom of their forefathers to assign to a traveller who became their guest for the night, some female of the family most commonly the host's own wife!

AL-MUTAKABBIR ("The Great' (When used of a human being it im plies haughtness) One of the ninetv nine names or attributes of God it necurs in the Qur'un, Süran hx 23 'He s the Great One!"

MUTAMIR (معتمر). A performer of the Umrah. [UMRAH.]

MU'TAQ (معدل). An emancipated elave [SLAVERY]

MUTAQADIM (منقادم). Such a distance of tune as suffices to prevent punishment It operates in a way somewhat similar to the English statutory limitations

MUTAWALLI (متولى). Let "A person endowed with authority" A legal term used for a person entrusted with the management of a religious foundation [MAS-

MUTAZILAH (اعتراء) Int "The Separatists" A sect of Muhammadans founded by Waşil ibn 'Aţe', who separated from the school of Hasan al-Başıı (A.H. 110) The following are their chief tenets (1) They entirely reject all eternal attributes of God, to avoid the distinction of persons made by the Christians, saying that eternity is the proper or formal attribute of his essence; that God knows by His essence, and not by His knowledge and the same they affirm of His other attributes (though all the Mu'taallahs do not understand these words in one 86786) Hence this sect is also named Mu'attill, from their divesting God of His attributes, for they went so far as to say, that to affirm these attributes is the same thing as to make more eternals than one, and that the unity of God is inconsistent with such an opinion This was the true doctrine of Waşil, their master, who declared that whoever asserted an eternal attribute reserted there were two gods This point of speculation concerning the divine attributes was not ripe at first, but was at length brought to maturity by Wasil's followers, after they had read the books of the philosophers (2) They be-heve the word of God to have been created in subjects (as the schoolmen term it) and to consist of letters and sound, copies thereof being written in books to express or imitate the original (3) They also go farther, and affirm that whatever was created in subjects is also an accident, and liable to perish They deny absolute predestination, holding that God is not the author of evil, but of good only, and that man is a free agent, which is the opinion of the Qadariyali sect On account of this tenet and the first Mu'tazilshs look on themselves as the defenders of the unity and justice of God (4) They hold that if a prefessor of the true religion be guilty of a grievous ain, at d die without repentance, he will be ofernally dammed, though his punishment will is lighter than that of the infidels (5) They deny all vision of God in Paradiss by the corporeal eye and reject all comparisons or similitudes applied to God

According to Shahrastani, the Mu'tazılah

"That God is sternal, and that eternity is the peculiar property of His essence, but they deny the existence of any eternal attributes (as distinct from His nature). For they say, He is Omnucient as to His nature, lilving as to His nature; Almighty as to His nature, but not through any knowledge, power or life existing in Him as eternal attributes, for knowledge, power and life are part of His essence, otherwise, if they are to be looked upon as eternal attributes of the Deity, it will give rise to a multiplicity of eternal ontities

"They maintain that the knowledge of God is as much within the province of reason as that of any other entity, that He cannot be beheld with the corporeal sight, and, with the exception of Himself, everything else is hable to change or to suffer extinction. They also maintain that Justice is the animating principle of human actions Justice according to them being the dictates of Reason and the concordance of the ultimate results of this conduct of man with such dietates

"Again, they hold that there is no eternal law as regards human actions, that the divine ordinances which regulate the conduct of men are the results of growth and development, that God has commanded and forbidden, promised and threatened by a law which grew gradually At the same time, say they, he who works righteousness ments rewards, and he who works evil deserves punishment They also say that all knowledge is attained through reason, and must necessarily be so obtained They hold that the cognition of good and evil is also within the province of reason, that nothing is known to be right or wrong intil reason has en-lightened us as to the instruction, and that thankfulness for the biessings of the Benefactor is made obligatory by reason, even before the promulgation of any law upon the subject. They also n aintain that man has perfect freedom, is the author of his actions both good and evil, and deserves reward or punishment hereafter accordingly."

During the reigns of the Abbaside Khalifahs al-Mamun, al- lutasım and al-Wasıq (AH 198-228) at Faghdad, the Mutazilah were in high favour Mr Syed Ameer Ali Moulvi, M.A., LL.R., in the preface to his rook, The Personal Law of the Muhommedans (W. H. Allen and Co.), claims to belong to "the little known, though not unimportant philosophical and legal school of the Mutaralas," and he adds, "the young generation is tending unconsciously toward the Mutaza lite doctrines"

According to the Sharhu 't-Mun agif, the Mu'tazılah are dıvided into twenty sects, viz. Wasıliyah, 'Umariyah, Huzailiyah, Nazâmuvah, Aswarn ah, Askafiyah, Jafariyah, Bashariyah, Mazdariyah, Hishamiyah, Salhiyah, Habitiyah, Hadbiyah Ma'mariyah, Samamiyah, Khaiyatiyah, Jahiziyah, Ka'biyah, Juba iyah, and Buhchami, ah

AL-MU'T' (البعطى) "The Giver" One of the ninety-nine names or attributes of Go. It is referred to in the Unrun, Surah cviri verse 1 "Verily we have given thee al-Kansar "

MUTILATION THEFT

MU'TIQ (معنى) The ma The master who

MUWAHHID (موحد), pl muwah-kadun A believer in one God A term often used by Muslims to express their behef as ar Unitarians

Let "That MUWATTA (اروك) Let "That which has been compiled" A title given to the book of traditions compiled by the Imam Malik (died A ii 179) It is the earliest compilation of traditions, and is placed by some amongst the Kutubu 's Sittah or the "six (correct) books" [TRADITIONS ]

MUZĀBANAH (مواديه) Let "Repelling or pushing mack' Selling without measuro for example, selling green dates upon trees in exchange for dry ones in the house, and the seller saying that the loss or gain lests with him. This kind of sale is forbidden (Mishkat, book xii ch 5)

ا (موارعة) MUZĀRA'AH Giving over land to the charge of another party on conditing of receiving a fixed proportion of its produce

ارمفارية) MUZĀRABAH In the language of the rew Mazurabah significa a contract of copartnership, of which the one party (namely the proprietor) 14 outstled to a profit on account of the stock, he being de nominated Rabbs t Mul or proprietor of the stock (which is ter ned Rase '! Mal), and the other party is entited to a profit on account of his labour, and this last is denominated the mu. arch (or manager) mammach as he derives a benefit i om hi own labour and endeavours A con tact of muzinabah therefore cannot be estat here, without a partical profit be stipulated to the proprietor of the stock then it is consilered as a break of if the whole be stipu ated to the immediate manager, if must be equaldered as a loan

The One of the nuctr nine names who abases or attributes of God referred to in the Qur an Surah til 25 "Thou honourest whom Thou pleasest and abasest whom Thou pleasest

AL-MUZZAMMIL (المرسل) "The Wrapped up" The title of the LXXIVth Surah of the Quran, in the first verse of which the word occurs "O'Thou, enu rapped, arise to prayer ' It is said the chapter was revealed to Muhammad when he was wrapped ar in a clanket at night

MYSTICISM The word mysticlam is of a vague eignification, out it is generally applied to all those tendencies in religion which aspire to a direct communication between man and his God not through the medium of the senses, but through the invara perception of the mind Consequently the torm is applied to the Pantheism of the ancient Hindu to the Grostioism of the ancient brick to the Quiotism of Madame Onyon and tenelon to the Pietism of Melinos, to the doctrines of the Illuminate of Germany to the visions of Swedenborg, as well as to the poculiar manifestations of mystic views amongst some modern Christian sects It is a form of error which mistakes the operations of a merely human faculty for a divine manifestation, although it is often but a blind protest in behalf of what is highest and best in human naturo

The earliest mystics known are those of India the best exposition of their system being the Bhagavad qita (see Wilkins' trans-lation) Sir William Jones says -" A figurative mode of expressing the fersour of devotion, the ardont love of created spirits. toward their Beneficent Croator, has prevailed nom time immemorial in Asia, particularly imong the Persian Theists, both ancient Hushangis and modern Sufis, who seem to have horrowed it from the Indian philosophers of the Vedanta School, and their doctrines are also believed to be the source of that sublune but poetical theology which glows and sparkles in the writings of the old Aca demics 'Plato travelled into Italy and Egypt, says Blande Fleury, to learn the Thrology of the Pagans at its fountain head Its true fountain, however, was norther in Italy nor in Fgypt, though considerable streams of it had been conducted thither by Pythagorus, and by the family of Misia, but m Persia or India, which the founder of the Italic sect had visited with a similar design

Almost the only religion in the world in which we should have concluded before ex amination, that the Pantheistic and mystic spirit of Hinduism was impossible is the stern unbending religious system of Muhain mad and his followers. But even amongst Muslims there have ever seen those who seek for divine intuition in individual souls, to the partial or entire rejection of the de-mands of creeds and coremones. These mystics are called Sufis, and have always included the philosophers, the poets, and the enthusiasts of Islam For an account of theso Muslims, see the article on surnsm.

AR-NABA' (۱۱) "The information.' The title of the LXXVIIIth Surah of the Qur'an, in the second verse of which the word occurs "Of the mighty information whereon they do dispute."

NABALIGH (UV) A Persian corm used for a minor [PUBERTY]

NABBASH (ALI) A plunderer or stripper of the dead According to the Imams Abū Yūsuf and ash-Shafin, the hand of a plunderer of the doad should be struck off, but Abū Hanīfah and the Imam Vuhummad are of the contrary opinion (Hidāyah, vol. u. p. 94)

NABI (i.i.) Heb NII. A prophet One who has received direct inspiration (wahy) by means of an angel, or by the inspiration of the heart (ilhām) or has seen the things of God in a dream (lia Kitāhu 'I-Ta'rījāt) A rasīd or "messenger,' is one who has received a book through the angel Gahriel [PROPHETS]

NABIZ (نبط) A kind of wine medo from dates which is lawful (Hidayah, vol. iv p 155)

NAD-1-'ALI (كاد على) Persian An amulet on which is inscribed a prayer to 'Ali It is much used by the Shi'aha, and runs thus —

"Cry aloud to 'Ali who is the possessor of wonders!

From him you will and help from trouble!

He takes away very quickly all grief and anxiety!

By the mission of Muhammad and his own sanctity!"

NAFAQAH (فققة) [MAINTEN-

AN-NAFI' (المالع) "The Profiter"
One of the mnet, mne names or attributes of God It does not occur in the Qur'an

NAFI' (250) A slave belonging to Ibn 'Umar Many traditions have been handed down by him, and his authority is highly respected Died AH 117

NAFKH ( "Blowing" The blast on the Day of Judgment which will be sounded by Isranl.

NAFI (Jas) "A voluntary act"
A term applied to such acts of devotion as are not enjoined by the ceaching of Muhammad or by his example A work of supereregation [PRAYER]

NAF (44). Blowing as a necromancer who making meantations (1) It occurs m this sense in the Qur'sn, Sürah cxiii 4 "I seek refuge from the cvil of the blowers upon knots" Referring to those witches who make knots in a string and blow upon them, uttering some incantation.

(2) It is also used for the inspiration which Muhammad professed to have received from thabriel (Mannatu 'l-Bihār, p. 376)

NAFS (هرب) Animal life, soul, substance, desire A word which occurs in the Qur'an and the fraditions for the human onse once [OONSCIPNCE]

NAFSA' (ملسه) A woman in the condition of notation, o the period after child buth

NAHJU 'L BALAGHAH (2002)

LELLI) "The Road of Eloquence"

A celebrated brok of Unhammadan traditions compiled by ash-Sharif Abu 'l Quam al-Muriaza au 40b, or his brother ash Sharif ar Razi al Baghdadi (See Kushfu z Junun, vol. vi p 406)

AN-NAHL ("The Bee"
The title of the xwith Surah of the Quran in the 70th verse of which the word occurs "And thy Lord inspired the bee"

NAHR (حر) The lawful slaughteing of a camel, namely by sprang it in the hollow of the throat, near the breastbone (Hidāyah, vol iv p 72)

NA'IB (اقات) A deputy, a lieutemant A Khaliiah is the naib, or lieutenant, of Muhammal It is also used for the Vicercy of Egypt, who is the naib, or deputy, of the su tan (Lane's Arabian Nights, Intro p 8)

NAJASAH ( A legal term for an impurity of any kind

NAJASHI (Label) Negus The King of Abyssima, often mentioned in the history of Muhammad At-Tabari, in his history, p 127, say Now a just king was there (Abyssima) named an-Najashi. It was a land where the Quraish used to do marchandise, because they found abundance of food, protection, and good traffic " (Mur's Lafe of Mahomet, vol. ii p 133)

NAJD (And) "High" The high-lands of Arabia The name of the cantral province of Arabia One of its cities, Riyax, is colebrated as the seat of the Wahhabis. One (cutral and Eastern Anches, by W U. Paigrave Liondon, 1865, Journey to the Wahabis Capital, by Colonel Lewis Pelly, Bomera 1866)

AM-NAJIYAH (Lati) "The Saved" A term given to the orthodox sect of Muhammadans, and consequently each sect arrogates to itself the title of an-Nānyah, or "the saved"

(النجارية) AN-NAJJARIYAH sect of Muhammadans founded by Muhammad ibn Husain an-Najjar, who agreed with the Mutazilah in rejecting all eternal uttributes of God, to avoid distinction of persons as taught by the Christians, and in holding that the Word of God was orested in subjecto (as the schoolmer term it), and to consist of letters and sound, and that God will not be seen in Paradise with the corporeas eye but they did not receive the dectrines of that sect with regard to the decrees and predos tination of God, but held the views of the orthodox party on this subject According to the Sharhu 'l-Muwaqif, they are divided into three sects, viz. Burghusivah, Za farā niyah, and Mustadrikah

AN-NAJM (المجم) "The Star"
The title of the Lilird Surah of the Qur'an, which begins with the words, "By the star when it falls"

NAJRAN (خراب) A district hetween Yaman and Najd, inhabited by a Christian tribe, whose endurance and constancy in their Christian belief are the subject of the following verses in the Qur'an. Suitah laxxy 4-11 (The verses are said to have been revealed at an early date, and indicate Muliammad's kind feeling towards the Christians)—

"Cursed he the diggers of the pit

"Of the fuel-fed fire,
"When they sat around it

"Witheases of what they inflicted on the believers!

"Nor did they torment them but for then faith in God, the Mighty, the Praiseworthy "His the kingdom of the Heavens and of "His the kingdom of the Heavens and of the Earth, and God is the witness of everything thing

"Varily, those who vexed the believers, men and women, and repented not, doth the terment of Hell, and the terment of the burning

"But for those who shall have believed and done the things that be right are the Gardens beneath whose shades the rivers flow This is the immense bliss!"

Sir William Muir gives the following account of the persecution -

"Dan Nowes was a votary of Judaism, which he is said to have embraced on a viest to Medina. This creed he supported with an intolerant and procedying adherence, which at last proved fatal to his kingdom. His bigotry was aroused by the prevalence and success of Christianity in the neighbouring province of Najria, and he invaded it with a large army. The Christians offered a strenuous resistance, but yielded at length to the treacherous promise that no ill would be done to them. They were offered the ohoice of Judaism or death, and those who remained constant to the faith of Jesus were cruelly massacred. Deep trenches were dug and filled with combustible materials, the pile was lighted, and the Christian martyrs cast headlong into the fiame. The number thus miserably burned, or slain by the sword, is stated at no less than twenty thousand.

"However much the account of this melancholy carnage may have been exaggerated, there can be no doubt of the cruel and bloody character of the tyrant's administration in

Najran "News of the preceedings reached the Emperor Justin I., through his ambassador at Hira, to which court Dzu Nowas had exultingly communicated tidings of his triumph One of the intended victims Bous dzu Tholaban, also escaped to Constantinople, and holding up a half-burnt gospel, invoked, in the name of outraged Christendom, retribution upon the oppressor Emperor was moved, and indited a despatch to the Najashi, or Prince of the Abyssinians, desiring him to take vengeance upon the bar-barous Nimyarite Immediately an armament was set on foot, and in a short time seventy thousand warriors embarked in thirteen hundred merchant ships or transports, crossed the narrow gulph which separates Yemen from Adula Dzu Nowas was deferted In despair, he urged his horse into the sea, and expisted in the waves the inhumanities of his career The Abyssiman victory occurred in 525 AD" (Lafe of Mahomer 1st ed, Intro, p clau)

NAJSH (tring , strring up" The practice of enhancing the price of goods, by making a tender for them without any intention of buying, but merely to incite others to offer a higher price. It is forbidden by Muhammadan law (Hamilton's Hidayah, vol n. p. 46)

NAKH' (حن) The Banu 'n-Nakh' an Arabian tribo, the descendants of Qahlan, subdued by 'All during the lifetime of Muhammad, AH. 10 Two hundred of this tribe came to tender their allegiance to the Prophet, it being the last deputation received by him. (Muir's Life of Mahomet, new ed., p 477)

NAKHLAH (Mai) A valley about midway between Makkah and at-Taïi, famous as the scene of the first expedition planned by Muhammad against Makkah in which blood was shed (See Muri's Life of Mahamet, new ed, p 216 et seq.)

NAKIH (فاكح) A legal term for a married man, a married woman is termed mankuhuh (منكومة) The legal term for an unmarried person is 'azab (مايد)

NAKIR (نکیر) One of the angels who interrogate the dead [ NUNKAR AND NAKER ]

NAMAZ (نام) The Persian and Hindustan term for salat, the Muhammadan liturgical prayer. [FRAVER.]

names, surnames. Arabic Ism ( ), Lagab ( ), Kunyah ( ); The teaching of Muhammad very greatly infinenced the nomenclature of his followers, as is evident from the chapter deveted to the Traditions on the subject in the Mishkatu'l-Masabih, entitled "Babu "l-Asami," book xxi. ch viti., from which are extracted the following traditional sayings of Muhammed --

"The best names in the sight of God are 'Abdu 'llah (the servant of God), 'Abdu 'r-Ruhman (the servant of the Merciful One)

"You must not name your slaves Yasar (abundance), Rabah (gain), Nuyth (prosperous), Affah (feholtous), because if you ask after one of these your domestic servants and he be not present, the negative reply will express that abundance, or gain or prospe rity, or felicity, are not in your dwelling "

The vilest name you can give a human being is Maliku 'l Anlak, or 'King of Kings, because no one oan be such but God Himself '

"You must not say to your slaves, 'My slave,' or 'My slave girl,' for all your slaves are God's, but say, 'My boy,' or 'My girl 'or 'My youth' or 'My lass" And a slave must not say to his master, Yā Rabbi' ( c My Lord!), but he may say to him Ya Sasyida!

(My Chief!)"
"Call your children after your Prophet(i e Muhammad), but the names God likes best are 'Abdu 'lläh (servant of God), 'Abdu 'r-Rahman, and the next best names are Haris (husbandman), and Humam (high-minded) The worst of names is Harb (enmity), or Murrah (bitterness)" [Heb , see Ruth Shurash ibn Hani' relates that his father came to the Prophet with his tribe, and the Prophet heard them calling him Abu 'l-When the Prophet said, "Why do Hakam you call him so? Hakam, 'Ruler' is an attribute of God" And the Prophet ordered him to call himself Abs Shurath, te the father of Shuraih, his eldest son

Modified, somewhat, by these ununctions of the Prophet, Muhammadan names have stril continued to be ordered amagest learned Muslims according to the ancient ustom of Arabia Persons are often named-

(1) By a single name, as Muhammad, Müss (Moses), Dā'ūd (David), Ibrāhīm (Abraham).

Hasan, Ahmad.

(2) As the father or mether of certain persons, e.g Abū Dā'ūd, the father of David, or Ummu Salimah, the mether of Salimah

(8) As the son of a certain one e.g Ibn 'Umar, the son of 'Umar, Ihn'Abbas, the son of Abbas, &c

(4) By a combination of words, e.g Nuru dain, "Light of Religion", 'Abou 'light, " Servant of Ged."

(5) By a mekname of harmless significa-on, a.g. Aba Harairah, "the kitten's tion, a.g.

(6) By the trade or profession, e.g al

Mansur al-Halley, Mansur the dresser of

(7) By the name of his buth-place, ag al-Bukhara, the native of Bukharah

These rules, guiding the nomenclature of the Arabians, give a strange sound to western ears in the names of celebrated authors. For instance, the celebrated compiler of the chief book of authentic traditions is known as " Abi Abdı 'llah, Muhammad, ibn Isma'ıl ibn İbrahim that his name is Muhammad and that he is the father of a son named 'Abdu Hah, and that his own father's name was Isma'il the son of Ibraham, the son of Magharah, of the tribe of Juifi, and that he himself was born in Bukhura

Atabic names have undergone strange meditiontions when brought in contact with western languages, e.g. Avertoes, the philosopher, is a corruption of Ibn Rushid Aviconna, of Ibn Sina, Achmet, the Sultan, of Ahmod Amurath, of al Murad, Saladin, the celebrated warner of the twelth century, of the Arabic Saluhu'd-den, "the peace of religion."

AN-NAML (النمل) "The Ants" The title of the xxviith Surah of the Qur'an, in the 18th verse of which the word occurs " They came upon the valley of the ante"

The angel, (ناموس) NAMUS). spirit, or boing, which Waraqah is related to have and appeared to Moses See Sahihu 'l-Bukhare, p ) where it is said when Muhammad told Waraqah, the Jew, what he had seen on Mount Hira, W iraqah oxclaimed, "It is the Namus who appeared from God to Moses "

'Abdu 'l-Haqq says Namus means one who can take knowledge of the secret thoughts of a man, and is used in contradistinction to the word Jasus, "a spy," who seeks to know the evil deeds of another.

According to the Kitulu 't-Tarifat it is the law of God

Mr Emanuel Deutsch says "The names is a hermaphrodite in word It is Arabic and also Greek. It is Talmudio It is, in the firstinstance. νόμος, 'law,' that which by 'custom and common consent has become so. In Talmudic phiaseology it stands for the Thorah or Revealed Law In Arabic it further means one who communicates a secret message And all these different significations were conveyed by Waragah to Muhammad." (Literary Remains, p 78)

The word names occurs in the ethical work known as the Akhlaq-s-Jalali, in the following passage .

"The maintenance of equity, then, is realised by three things (1) The hely institute of God (2) The equitable Prince, (3) Money, or, as the old philosophers laid it down, the foremost volues is the institute, the second νόμος is the Prince who conforms to the matatate (for religion and government are twins), and the third vouce is money (vouce in their language meaning discipline and cor-rection) Thus the institute or greatest airection) Thus the institute or greatest ai-bitrator is obeyed of all, to this even the Prince or secondary arbitrator is bound to conform. While the third arbitrator, which money, should be invariably under the authority of the second, which is the Prince An intimation of this principle we have in the Quran, Sura lvii 25 We have sent down the book, and the balance alone with it, that man might stand by the right and we have sent down steel (hadled) wherein is mighty power and advantages to man" The book in this passage alludes to the institute, the balance to that which tests the quantities of things in fact any instrument for ascertaining the value of heterogeneous objects (money being such an one), and steel to the sword, which is grasped by the might of the wrath-exerting doom pronouncing Prince (AlMag-1-Jalat, Thompson s ed p 127)

NAQL SAHIH (قل صحنة) "Corsert relation." A term used for a Hadis or tradition, related by a person of authority

AN-NAQSHBANDIYAH ( A) A Sectic order of Faqire, the followers of Khwajah Pir Muhammad Naqshband. They are a very numerous sect, and perform the Ziki i-Lunt i or silent religious devotion described in the article on zike.

NĀQĒS ((εξα)) A thin oblong piece of wood which is beaten with a flexible rod called wath! (ξεξα), used by the Christians of Muhammads time to summon the people to worship At tirst the Companions" suggested either a lighted fire or the nāqūs as the call to prayer, but Muhammad decided upon the azan (Mishkāt, book iv ch v pt 1) This method of calling Christian people to prayer still exists in some Greek monastories, and was seen and Illustrated by the Hon. R. Curzon in 1833 (Visits to the Monasteries of the Luvant) It is called the simandro (στιμανδρο) and is generally beaten by one of the monks [ΔΖΔΧ]

THE NAQUE AS USED IN A MONASTERY

AN-NAR (المار), "the fire" occurs in the Quran very frequently for hell, eg, bursh ii. 22 "Fear the stre whose fuel is men and atoms"

All Sunni commentators understand the fire of hell in its literal sense (See al Bairaw: on the above verse) But Suff writers understand it to be merely figurative

NARAWA (196) "Unlawful"
A Persian word for those things which are expressly forbidden by the Qur an and Hadis it corresponds with the Arabic Haram
[LAW]

AN-NAS (Mankind" Mankind" The title of the last Surah of the Quran

The word occurs in this Sūrah, and is the last word in the Qur'an, "from genii and men"

NASA' (L.) "To omit" A term used in the Qur'an for the system of intercalation of the year practised by the ancient Arabs, and which was abolished in the Qur'an. (Sürah iz. 87) [INTERCALATION OF THE YEAR]

NASAB (,,,,) Family, race, linesge The term, in its legal sense, is generally restricted to the descent of a child from his father, but it is sometimes applied to descent from the mother, and is generally employed in a larger sense to embrace other

1elationships, (Baillie's Deg Muh. Law, p. 889)

AN-NASA'I ("Sunanu 'n-Nasa'I," or al-Mujiaba (the selected), a name given to the collection of traditions by Abū'Abdi'r-Rahmān Ahmad an-Nasa'I. Born A.H. 215, died A.H. 808, He first compiled a large collection of traditions called the Sunanu 'l-Kubrā, but he afterwards revised the whole and admitted only those traditions which were of authority Thus collection (Sunanu 's-Sughrā) is one of the Kutubu 'v-Sittah, or "aix (correct) books '[Traditions]

NASARĀ (فارف). pl of Nasrān Nazarenes The name given to professors of the Christian faith, both in the Qur'an and the Traditions, and also in the theological works of the Muhammadans Christians are never called either 'Isawī or Mashi, in Muhammadan books vritten before the existence of modern missions, these titles having been applied to Christians by our own missionaries [Christians by our own missionaries [Christians]

NASIKH ("Und") "One who cancels" A term used for a verse or sentence of the Qur'an or Hadis, which abrogates a previous one The one abrogated being called mansakh [Qur'an]

NASH (-----) One of the idols of ancient Arabis, mentioned in the Qur'an Surah ixxi 23. It was an idol which, at its name implies, was worshipped under the form of an eagle

AN-NASR (النصر) " Help " The title of the exth Surah of the Quran, in the first verse of which the word occurs " When there comes God's help and victory"

NASS (ص) "A demonstration" A legal form used for the express saw of the Quran or Hadis

NASS-I-KARIM (نص کریم) "Gracious revelation. A title given to the Onr'ān

MASUH (1904) "Sincere in friendship or repentance In the latter sense the word occurs once in the Quran, Sürah lavi 8 "() Believers | turn to God with the turning of true repentance."

NASUT (الموجعة) "Human nature"

A term used by the Süfis to express the natural state of every man before he enters upon the mystic journey They say the law has been specially revealed for the guidance of people in this cendition, but that the law is not necessary for the higher states [SUBI]

NAUHAH (نومه) "Lamentations for the dead." The employment of paid mouners is forbidden by the Sunni law, for Abu Sa idu "l-Khudri says "The Propnet oursed both the paid mourner and him that listened to her lamentations" (Mishlat book v ch vin pt 2)

NAU ROZ (19, 2). "New Year's Day" Chiefly observed amongst the Persians In Persia it is a day of great feativity It is observed the first day after the sun has crossed the vernal equinox, and the festivities last for a week or more.

NAWA'IB ( ), pl of na'ibah.
"Adversities" A legal term used for any special tax levied by the sovereign of a country The ruling of the Sunni law regarding it is as follows —

"If it extend only to what is just (such as exactions for digging a canal, for the wages of safe guards, for the equipment of an army to fight against the infidels, for the release of Mushim captives, or for the digging of a ditch, the mending of a fort, or the construction of a bridge), the tax is lawful in the opinion of the whole of our doctors. But if it extend to exactious wrongfully imposed, that is, to such as tyrants extort from their subjects, in that case, concerning the validity of scourity for it, there is a difference of opinion amongst our modern doctors." (Hamilton's Hideych, vol ii p 554)

NAZARENES [NASARA]

who tean out' The title of the LXXIXth Surah of the Qur'an, which opens with the verse 'By those who tear out violently," retering to the Angel of Peath and his assistants, who ten away the souls of the wicked violently, and gently release the souls of the good

AN-NALIE (pail) A Jewish tribe residing in the vicinity of al-Madinah, and known as the Banu 'n-Nazir, or Nadhir They are celebrated in Muhammadan history as having accepted the Prophet's mission after the battle of Badr but when he met with reverses at Uhud they forsook him but they were afterwards defeated by the Prophet and exiled, some to Khaibar, and some to Hira. They were the occasion of the 122th bursh of the Quran, known as the Süratu'l-Husin, or Uhapter of Emigration' (See al-Butzaw: n loco)

NAZH WA NIYAZ (الخرو ساز). "Yows and oblations" These are given in the name of God of in the name of the Prophot, or in the name of some Muslim saint [vows]

NEBUCHADNEZZAR. [BUKET NASSAR]

NECKLACE Arabic quaddah (5315) 'The wearing of necklaces (among men) is forbidden in the Hadis (Mishkat, Arabic edition, vol ii 5), although it is a custom very common amongst the Musalmans of India

NEGUS [NAJASHI]

NEHEMIAH Not mentioned in the Quran or in Muslim commentaries. But the following legend given in the Quran bursh ri. 261, seems to have its origin in the circuit made by Nehemiah (Neh. ii 13) —

"Hast thou considered him who passed by a city which had been laid in ruins 'How,' said he, 'shall God give life to this city, after she hath been dead?' And God caused him to die for an bundred years, and then raised him to life And God said 'How long hast thou waited?' He sud, 'I have waited a day or part of a day. He said, 'Nay, then hast waited an hundred yours. Look on thy food and thy drink, they are not corrupted, and look on thine ass, we would make thee a sign unto men. And look on the bones of thine ass, how we will sake them, then clothe them with flesh' And when this was shown to hum, he said, 'I acknowledge that God hath power to do all things'"

The commentators, al-Kamālan, say it was sither Jeremiah or Khizr, or Ezekiel

NEIGHBOURS Arabic jār (هر), pl prān The Suma hild that neighbours are those who worship in the same mosque, but some Shi'ah doctors say that a neighbour is anyone whose house is within forty cubits, whilst others maintain that the term extends to all the occupants of forty houses on either side (Bailie's Digest, Summ Code, p 579, Im Code, p 216)

A neighbour has the next light of preemption to a partner in the sale and purchase of houses and lands (Hedayah vol m

p. 562.)

The rights of a neighbour in case of the sale of property, are established by the Muhammadan law, for the Prophet has said that the neighbour of a house has a superior right to the purchase of that house (i.e. next to immediate relatives), and the neighbour of lands has a prior claim to the purchase of those lands, and if he be absent, the seller must wait his return. (Undeyah, vol it p 562.)

Musims are enjoined in the Qur an (Surah iv 40) to be kind to their neighbours. In the Traditions, it is said that Muhammad was so frequently advised by the angel Cabriel to order his people to be kind to their neighbours that he almost imagined that he (the angel) wished to make neighbours heirs to each other. It is also related that the Prophet said, "He is not a perfect Mushim who eats to his full and leaves his neighbour bungry.

Abu Huranah says that a man once said to the Prophet, "There is a woman who worships God a great deal, but she is very thu sive to her neighbours" And the Prophet said "She will be in the fire." The man then said, "But there is another woman who worships little and gives but little in alms, but she does not aunoy her neighbours with her tongue?" The Prophet said, "She will be in Paradise" (Mishlat, book Zail ch xv)

NESTOR Arabic Nastūr (مالوز)
A Christian monk who resided in Syria, who is said to have borno witness to Muhammad
The legend is not accepted by Sunni writers, and Sir William Muir (Lefe of Mahomet new ed., p 21), says it is to be rejected as a puerile fabrication. It is, however, believed by the Shi'shs, and the following is the story as given in the Shi'sh work entitled the Hoyatu 'l-Qulub, on the supposed authority of Abū Tālib, Muhammad's uncle—

"As we approached Sham (Syria)," continned Abutalib), I saw the houses of that country in motion, and light above the brightness of the sun beaming from them. The crowd that collected to see Mohammed, that Yusoof of Misree perfection, made the Baz re impassable wherever we went, and so loud were exclamations at his beauty and excellence altogether, that the sound reached the frontiers of Sham Every monk and learned men came to see him The wisest of the wise among the people of the Book, who was called Nestoor, visited him, and for three days was in his company without speaking a word. At the close of the third day, appacently overwhelmed with emotion, he came near and walked around the Prophet, upon which I said into him, 'O monk what do you want of the child?' He said, 'I wish to know his name' I told him it was Mohammed bin-Abdullah At the mention of the name the monks colour changed, and he requested to be allowed to see the shoulders of the Prophet No sooner did he behold the seal of prophecy [SEAL OF PROPHECY], than he cast himself down, kissed it, and wept, saying, Carry back this sun of prophecy quickly to the place of his nativity if you had known what enemies he has here, you would not have brought him with you. The learned man continued his visit to the Prophet, treated him with the greatest reverenco, and when we left the country gave him a shirt as a memento of his friendship I carried Mohammed home with the utmost expedition, and when the news of our happy neturn reached Mekkah, great and small came out to welcome the Prophet, except Abujahl, who was intoxicated and ignorant of the event"

Other traditions respecting this journey into Syria inform us that many miracles attended it Savage animals and birds of the air rendered the most obsequious homage to the Prophet And when the party reached the bazars of Buara they met a company of monks, who immediately changed colour as if their laces had been rubbed over Aith sullion, while their bodies shook as in an agne. "They besought us to risit their chief in their great church We replied, What have you to do with us? On which they said. What harm is there in your coming to our place of worship! Accordingly we want with them, they supposing that Mohammed was in our com-pany, and entered a very large and lotty church, where we law their great wise man sitting among his disciples with a book in After looking at the book and his hand scrutinizing us, he said to his people, You have accomplished nothing, the object of our inquity is not here' He then saked who wo were, to which we replied that we were Korayah 'Of what family of that tribe?'

he further demanded. We answered that we were of the Benee Abdulshems. He then demanded if there was no other person belonging to our party besides those present. We teld him there was a youth of the Benee Hashim belonging to our company, who was ealled the orphan grandson of Abdulmutaith. On hearing this he shricked, nearly swooned away, sprang up and cried, "Alas! clas! the Nasarance religion is ruined!" He then leaned on his crosser and fell into profound thought for a long time, with eight of his patriarchs and disciples standing around him. At last he said, 'Can you show me that youth?' We answered in the affirmative

"He then accompanied us to the bazar, where we found the Prophet, with light beam ing from the radiant moon of his face, and a great crowd of people around him, who had been attracted by his extraordinary beanty, and were buying his goods at the highest prices, while they sold their own to him at the cheapest rate. With the view of proving the knowledge of the wise man, we pointed out another individual as the object of his inquiry, but presently he recognised the Prophet himself, and shouted, 'By the truth of the Lord Mesech, I have found him!' and overpowered with emotion, came and kissed his blessed head, saying, 'Thou art holy!' He then asked Mohammed many things coucorning himself, all of which he satisfactorily answered. The wise man affirmed that if he were to live in the time of Mohammed's prophecy, he would fight for him in the cause of truth, declaring that whoever obeyed him would gain everlasting life, and whoever rejected him would die eternal death." (Merrick's translation of Hayatu 'l-Qulub, p 64)

NEW MOON. Arabic Hilāl (مثلا) The term is used for the first three days of the new moon.

NEW TESTAMENT Arabic al-'Ahdu 'L-Jadid (العهد الهديد) There is no evidence in the Quran, or in the Traditions, that Muhammad had ever seen, or was acquainted with, the New Testament The Christian scriptures are spoken of in the Qui'an as the Injil, everythior, "which was given to Jesus", by which Muhammadans understand a complete book somewhat similar to the Qur'an See Surah Ivu 27, "We caused our Apostles to follow in their foot-steps (se of Noah and Abraham), and We caused Jesus the son of Mary to follow them, and We gave him the Injul, and We put into the hearts of those who followed him kindness and compassion, but as to the monastic life, they invented it themselves." The only New Testament characters montioned by name in the Qur'an are Jesus, Mary, Zacharias, John, and Gabriel, and there is no direct reference to the Secrements of Baptism and the Lord's Supper, nor to the miracles or parables of Jesus. This is all the more remarkable, because the Old Testament history and its leading characters, are frequently mentioned in the Qur'an [INJIL OSBISTIANITY]

NEW YEAR [HAUBOZ]

NICKNAME Arabic nabae (34), pl. anbāz The calling of moknames is for-bidden in the Qur'ān, Sūrah xlix 11 "O Believers, let not men laugh men to scorn who haply may be better than themselves. Neither let women laugh women to scorn, who haply may be better than themselves. Neither defame one another, nor call one another by nicknames"

This verse is said to have been given when Safiyah, one of the Prophet's wives, complained that she had been taunted by the other women with her Jewish origin Muhammad answered her, "Canst thou not say, "Aaron is my father, Moses is my uncle, and Muhammad is my husband" (See al-Baizāwi, in loco)

NIFAO (3'4') Hypocrisy, or professing with the lips to believe and hiding infidelity in one's heart (Kitābu 't Tairifāt, in loco)

NIFAS (whis) The condition of a woman after the birth of a child, during which period she is unclean and is not permitted to perform the usual prayers. According to the Sunnis, it is a period of forty days, but according to the Shi'ahs, only ten

NIGHT JOURNEY OF MU-HAMMAD [MI'RAJ]

NIGHT PRAYERS Arablo salātu 'l-layl (ملوة اللير), or salātu 't-tahaŋyud (ملوة التهجد) From eight to twelvo ruk'uh prayers recited during the night, in addition to the witr prayers, which consist of an odd number of rak'ahs These prayers are Sunnah, is established according to the custim of the Prophet, but they are voluntary acts of devotion (Mishkāt, book iv ch xxxi)

NIKAH (tw) A word which, in its literal sense signifies conjunction, but which in the language of the law implies the marriage contract [MARRIAUE.]

NIMROD Arabic Numrūd (פּקני)
Heb קבירוֹד, All Muhammadan commentators say he was the son of Canaan (Kanān), and not, as stated in Genesis x 8, the son of Cush

He is referred to in the Qur'an in the following passage —

Sürah 11 260 "Hast thou not thought on him who disputed with Abraham about his Lord, because God had given him the kingdom? When Abraham said,' My Lord is He who maketh alive and causeth to die! He said,' It is i who make alive and cause to die! Abraham said 'Since God bringeth the sun from the East, do thou, then bring it from the West! The infidel was confounded, for God guideth not the evil doers"

Sürah xxi. 68, 69 "They said 'Burn him, and come to the succour of your gods if ye will do anything at all' We said, 'O fire! be then cold, and to Abraham a

The Rabbins make Nimrod to have been the persecutor of Abraham (comp Targ Jon. on Gun xv 7, Tr Bava Bathra, fol 91a, Maimon. More Nevochim, iii 29, Weil, Legenden, p 74), and the Buhammaden com-mentators say, that by Nimrod's order a large space was inclosed at Kūgā, and filled with a vast quantity of wood, which being set on fire, burned so fiercely that none dared to venture near it; then they bound Abraham, and putting him into an engine (which some suppose to have been of the Davil's invention), shot him into the midst of the fire, from which he was preserved by the angel Gabriel, who was sent to his assistance, the firs burning only the cords with which he was bound. They add that the fire, having miraculously lost its heat in respect to Abraham, became an odoriferous air, and that the pile changed to a pleasant meadow, though it raged so furiously otherwise, that, according to some writers, about two thousand of the idolaters were consumed by it

This story seems to have had no other foundation than that passage of Moses, where God is said to have brought Abraham out of Ur of the Chaldees, manuaderstood which word the Jews, the most trifling interpreters of scripture, and some moderns who have followed them, have translated out of the file of the Chaldees, taking the word Ur, not for the proper name of a city, as it roally is, but for an appellative signifying " fire " However, it is a fable of some antiquity, and credited not only by the Jews, but by several of the eastern Christians, the twenty-ifth of the second Kanin, or January, being set apart in the Syrian calendar for the commemoration of Abraham's being cast into the fire

The Jews also mention some other perse chtions which Abraham underwent on account of his religion, particularly a ten yours' im-presonment, some saying he was imprisoned by Nimrod, and others by hie father Terah Some tell us that Numred, on seeing this miraculous deliverance from his palace, oried out that he would make an offering to the God of Abraham and that he accordingly saorificed four thousand kine But if he ever relented, he soon relapsed into his former infidelity, for he built a town that he might ascend to heaven to see Abraham's God, which being overthrown, still persisting in his design, he would be carried to heaven in a chest borne by four monstrous birds, but after wandering for some time through the air, he fell down on a mountain with such force that he made it shaks, whereto (as some fancy) a passage in the Qur'an alludes (Surah xiv 47), which may be translated, "Although their contrivances be such as to make the mountains tremble "Nimrod, disappointed in his design of making war with God, turns his arms against Abraham, who heing a great prince, raised forces to defend himself, but Glod. dividing Nimrod's subjects, and confound-ing their language, deprived him of the greater part of his people, and plagued those who adhered to him by swarms of gnats, which destroyed almost all of them, and one of those gnats having entered into the nostril, or ear, of Nimrod, penetrated to one of the membranes of his brain, where growing bigger every day, it gave him such intolerable pain that he was obliged to cause his head to be heaten with a mallet, in order to procure some oace, which torture be auffered four hundred years, God being willing to punish by one of the smallest of his creatures him who insolently boasted himself to be lord of sil A Syrian calendar piaces the death of Nimrod, as if the time were well known, on the 8th of Tamüz, or July (See Sale's Koran, D'Herbelot's Bibl Orient, al-Baizāwī's Com )

(لينوى) NÎNAWĀ NINEVEH.

NINEVEH Arabic Ninawa (نينوى) Heb ديرات. Not mentioned by name in the Quran, but according to al-Barzāwi it is the city of "a hundred thousand persons, or even more," to whom Jomeh was sent See Qur'an, Surab xxxvii 147

AN-NISA (النساء) " Women" The title of the rvth Surah of the Quran, in the first verse of which the word occurs, and which treats to a great extent the subject of

NIŞAB (ساب) An estate or property for which sakat, or legal alms, must be PAIG [FAKAT]

NIYAH (44). A vow, intention; purpose A term used for the vow or declaration of the intention to perform prayers.

'I have purposed to effer up to God only with a sincere heart this morning (or, as the case may be), with my face Qiblah-wards two (or, as the case may be) rak'ab prayers farz (sunnah, naft, or witr)' It is also used by a Muslim about to perform the pilgrimage or the month's fast The formula is necessary to render an act of devotion acceptable [PRAYER] الله) HALLIA-I-SAYIN Porsian term for onerings in the name of God.

NIYAZ-I-RASÜL (لياز رسول) Persian term for offerings in the name of the Prophet

HAON Arabic Nah (ربو). Heb [17]. A prophet to whom Mahammadans give the Kalimah, or title, of Nabiyu 'llah, "the Prophet of God." He is not supposed to have been the mappred author of " a Book "

The following is the account given of him and of the flood in the Qur'an (with Mr. Lane's annotations in stalics see second edition, by Mr Stanley Lane-Poole)

"We formerly sent North unto his people, eaying, Verily I am unto you a plain admonisher that ye worship not [any] but God. Varily I fear for you, if ye worship any other, the purehment of an afflictive day in the world and the world to come. But the chiefe who usbelieved among his people replied, We see thee not to be other than a man, like unto us, and we see not any to have followed thes except the meanest of us, as the weavers and the cobblers, at first thought (or rushly), nor do we see you to have any excellence above us may, we unagine you to be hars in your claim to the apostolic commisston. He said, O my people, tell me, if I have an ovident proof from my Lord and He hath bestowed on me mercy (the gift of prophecy) from Himself which is hidden from you, shall we compel you to receive it when ye are averse thereto? We cannot do so And, O my people, I ask not of you any riches for My it; namely, for delivering my message reward is not due from any but God, and I will not drive away those who have believed I bea as ye have commanded me [because they are poor poople] Verily they shall meet their Lord at the resurrection, and He will recomtion] from those who have treated them with smustice, and driven them away But I see you [to be] a people who are ignorant of the end of your case And, O my people, who will defend me against God if I drive them away? Will ye not then consider? And I do not say unto you, I have the treasures of God nor [do I say], I know the things un-seen, nor do I say, Verily I am an angel, nor do I say, of those whom your eyes con-temm, God will by no means bestow on them good (God best knoweth what to in their minds.) verily I should in that case be [one] of the offenders -They replied, O Noah, thou hast disputed with us and multiplied disputes with us now bring upon us that punishment wherewith thou threatenest us, if thou be of those that speak truth He said, Only God will bring it upon you, if He please to hasten it unto you, for it is His affair, not mine and yo shall not escape God nor will my connecl profit you, if I desire to counsel you, if God desire to lead you into error. He is your Lord, and unto Him shall ye be brought back " (Surah zi. 27-86)

"And it was said by revelation unto Noan, Verily there shall not believe of thy people [any] but they who have already balleved, therefore be not grieved for that which they have done," (Surah x1.38)

" And he uttered an imprecation upon them, saying, O my Lord, leave not upon the earth any one of the unbelievers, for if Thon leave them, they will lead Thy servants into error, and will not beget [any] but a wicked, un grateful [offspring]. O my Lord, forgive me and my parents (for they were believers), and whomsever entereth my house (my abode, or my place of worshp), being a believer, and the believing men, and the believing womon, (to the day of resurrection,) and add not to the offenders [aught] save destruction " (Surah lati. 27-29 )

" And God answered his prayer, and said, Construct the ark in our sight and according to our revelation, and speak not unto Me con cerumg those who have offended, to beg Me not to destroy them; for they [shall be] drowned. And he constructed the ark; and whenever a company of his people passed by him, they derided him. He said, If ye de-ride us, we will deride you, like as ye deride, when we are saved and ye are drouned, and ye shall know on whom shall come a punishment which shall render him vile, and whom shall befall a lasting punishment [Thus he was employed] until when Our decree for their destruction came to pass, and the baker's even everflowed with water (for this was a signal unto Noah), We said, Carry into it (that is, into the ark) of every pair, male and female, of each of these descriptions, two (and it is related that God assembled for Noah the wild beasts and the birds and other creatures, and he proceeded to put his hands upon each kind, and his right hand fell always upon the male, and his left upon the female, and he carried them into the ark), and thy family (excepting him upon whom the sentence of destruction hath already been pronounced, namely, Noah's wife, and his son Canaan + but Shem and Ham and Japketh and their three wives he took), and those who-have believed, but there bemen and their wives and it is said that all who were in the ark were eighty, half of whom were non and half women And Noah said, Barburk ye therein. In the name of God [be] ite course and its mooring Verily my Lord 14 very forgiving [and] merciful.—And it moyed along with them amid waves like mountains, and Noah called unto his son, Caman, who was apart from the urk, O my child, embark with us, and be not with the unbelievers! He replied, I will botake me to a mountain which will secure me from the waters [Ngah] said, There is nought that will secure to-day from the decree of God [any] but him on whom He hath mercy And the waves inter-vened between them, so he bucame [one] of the drowned And it was said, O earth swallow up thy water (whereupon at drank ! up, except what had flescended from heaven, which became rivers and seas), and, O heaven, course from raising,—and the water abated, and the decree was fulfilled, and it (namely, the ark), rested on El-Joodee (a mountain of El-Jezeerch, near El-Mont), and it was said, Perdition to the offending people!" (Surah ≥i 39 46.)

' And Noah called upon his Lord, and said, O my Lord, verily my son is of my family, and Thou hast promised me to save them, and verily Thy promise is true, and Thou art the most just of those who exercise-judgment God replied, O Noah, verily he is not of thy family who should be saved, or of the people of thy religion. Verily it (namely, thene asking Me to save hem) is not a righteous act, for he was an unbeliever, and there is no sufety for the unbahevers; therefore ask not of Me that wherein then hast no knowledge. I admonish thee, last thou become [one] of the ignorant—Neak said, O my Lord, I beg Thee to preserve me from asking Thee that wherein I have no knowledge, and if Thou do not forgree me and have mercy upon me, I shall be of there who suffer loss. -It was said, O Noah, descend from the ark, with peace from Us, and blessings, upon thes and upon peoples (that shall proceed) from those who are with thee on the ark (that is, their believing posterity), but peoples [that shall proceed] from those who are with thee We will permit to enjoy the provisions of this world; then a painful punishment shall befall them from Us, in the world to come, they being unbelievers" (Surah xi 47-50)

The commentator, al Buzawi, says that Noah went mito the ark on the tonth of Rajab, and came out of it on the tenth of Muharram, which therefore became a fast so that the whole time of Noah's being in the ark, accord ing to him, was six months, and that Noah was two years in building the aik which was framed of Indian plane tree, that it was divided into three stories of which the lower was designed for the beasts, the middle one for the men and women and the upper for the birds, and the men were separated from the women by the body of Adam which Noah had taken into the ark

NOMOS Greek vomos [NAMUS]

NOSE, Cutting off There is ietaliation for cutting off a nose a nose for a mose (Hidayah, vol iv p 294)

NUBŪWAH (نسوة) "Prophecy" The other or work of a nah or prophet [PROLHETS.]

NUH (i,3) [NOAH]

AN-NUJABA' (ale,), the pl of Najib "The Excellent one," According to the Suits forty saintly characters who always exist on earth for the benefit of its people (Seo Kashshāfu'l-Istiluhat in loce ) [ABDAL]

NU'MAN (نعمان) The name of several of the Kings of Hira' Numan V 18 celebrated in the annals of the history of Arabia, because his roign approached close upon the rise of Islam and he was the patron of several poets of ronown, who have telebated his name (See Mur's Left of Mahomet, 1st ed , Intro p clxxx1)

Nu'man is also the popular title of the Imem Abu Hanush [HANIFAH]

(نمرود) NUMRUD [NIMROD]

NUN (نون) The letter N ن , which occurs at the commencement of the Lxvinth Surah of the Quran The meaning of which is acknowledged by all commentators to be a mystory

Al-Balzawi says it is supposed that sun either means an inkstand, referring to the pen of the first verse, or a fish, referring to that which swallowed Jonah mentioned in the 48th verse of this Surah, but he thinks it 19 merely an initial letter, the meaning of which is naknowa to mortal man.

NUPTIAL FEAST WALIMAH, MARRIAGE ]

AN-NUQABA' (النقياء), the pl of Naqub "The Watchmen" According to the Sufis, they are three hundred persons who are ever to be found in the world, and who are ongaged in its enlightenment Kıtâbu't Tu'rıfat, ın loco ) [ABDAL.]

NUQÜ'U 'Z-ZABİB (قوع الزبيب). "Infusion of raisins ' Water in which raisins are steeped until it becomes sweet and is affected in its substance. It is a prohibited liquor (llamilton's Hidayan, vol iv p 159)

"The Light" AN-NUR (البور) One of the ninety-nine names or attributes of God It occurs in the Qur'an, Surah xxiv

"God is the Light of the Heavens and of the Earth. His Light is like a niche in which is a lamp—the lamp encased in glass—the glass, as it were, a glistening star From a blessed tree is it lighted, the olive neither of the East nor the West, whose oil would well migh shine out, even though fire touched it not! It is light upon light. God guideth whom He will to His light, and God setteth forth parables to men, for God Knoweth all

NUR-I-MUHAMMADI (نبر محمدی)
Persian for "The Light of Muhammad" The original essence of Muhammad, known in Arabic as the Haqiqatu 'l-Muhammadiyah, under which title the subject is discussed in this dictionary [HAQIQATU 'L-MUHAMMA-DIAYF ]

NURU 'L-ANWAR (نور الانوار) "The Light of Lights" A title given to the Divine Boing (See 'Abdu 'r Razzāq's Dict of Sul 1 Terms)

NUZUL ('ye') "Descent" (1)
The portions of the Qur'an as they were declared by Muhammad to have descended from heaven by the hand of Gabriel.

(2) Property which falls to the state from default of heir, or which has been confiscated.

Arabic yamin (نهمه), pl OATH yamınāt, aımān with reference to an oath, is expressed in the following verses

Sürah II 225 "God will not punish you for an inconsiderate word in your oath, but he will punish you for that which your hearts have assented to "

Sürah v 91 "God will not punish you for an inconsiderate word in your oaths, but he will punish you in regard to an eath taken seriously. Its expiation shall be to feed ten poor persons with such moderate food as ye feed your own tamilies with, or to clothe them, or to set free a captive But he who oannot find means shall fast three days."
Sürah xvi 96 "Take not your oaths between you decertfully "

The following is the teaching of Muhammad, as given in the Traditions

"Whoever swears to a thing and says, 'If it please God,' and acts contrary to his oath, it is no sin."

"Swear not by idols or by your own fathers"

"Swear not by God except it be to the

"Whoever swears by the prayers or by the fast, or by the pilgramage, is not a Muslim

The Prophet used generally to swear in these words "No, by the Turner of Hearts."

According to the Hidayah (Hamilton s ed, vol vi, pp 1, 2), yamin is constituted by the use of the name of Almighty God, or by any of those appellations by which the Deity is generally known or understood

False oaths are of three kinds

- (اليمين الغموس) An oath taken concerning a thing already past, in which is conveyed an intentional false-hood on the part of the swearer such an oath is highly sinful, the Prophet having declared — Whoseever sweareth falsely, the same shall be condemned to hell "
- (2) Al-Yammu 'l-mun'aqid ( ( ( ) An eath taken concerning a matter which is to some. Thus, a man swears that he will do such a thing, or he will not do such a thing, and where he fails in this, expiation is incumbent upon him, which expastion is established on the authority of the sacred writings
- (عبيس اللغو) Yamınıı 'l-Laghıv' (يميس اللغو) oath taken concerning an incident or transaction already past, where the swearer believes that the matter to which he thus bears testimony accords with what he swears, though it should happen to be actually otherwise, in which case it may be hoped from the divine mercy that the swearer will not be condemned for such an oath.

The expiation, or kaffarah, is of no avail for the laminu ?-Ghamus, but it is necessary for the Yaminu '/-mentaged. It consists of either feeding or clothing ten poor persons or releasing a Muslim captive

OATH

The Muslim law with regard to oaths is a modification of the Talmudio law, for from the Divme law the Jewish doctors deduced many special cases of perjury, which are thus classified -

(1) Jus jurandum propus trum, a rash or inconsiderate oath for the future, or a false assertion respecting the past (Lev v 4)

(2) Vanum, an absurd contradictory assortion

(8) Deposits, breach of contract denied (Lov xix 11)

(4) Testimonii, judicial perjury (Lev v 1) (H W P in Smith's Diet of the Bible)

The Mosaic law admitted expiation in the case of rash or forgotten oaths, vide Lev v 4, but the Yuminu 'l-mun'agid of Muhammaden law allows a much greater latitude, for it applies to all vows or oaths excepting those intentionally false made with regard to future events

The teaching of Muhammadan jurists on the subject of oaths and vows, exhibits that reservatio mentalis of Muhammadan morality which is so similar to that of the Jewish Rabbis, and which was condemned by Jesus Christ in St. Matt. xxiii. 16

Sunni writers on jurisprudence say that an oath should be expressed by such attributes of the Derty as are commonly used in swearing, such as the power, or the glory, or the might of God, because an oath is usually ex pressed under one or other of those qualities, and the sense of yamin, viz. " strength," is by this means obtained, since as the swearer behevos in the power, glory, and might, and other attributes of the Deity, it follows that the mention of those attributes only is suf ficient to strengthen the resolution in the performance of the act vowed, or the avoidance thereof

If a man swear "by the knowledge of God," it does not constitute an oath, because an oath expressed by the knowledge of God is not in use, moreover, by "knowledge" is frequently implied merely that which is known, and in this sense the word knowledge is not expressive either of the name of God, or of any of His attributes. In the same manner, should a person swear "by the wrath of God," or "by the mercy of God," it does not constitute an oath, because an oath is not commenty expressed by any of these attributes. moreover, by the word rahman is sometimes understood "rain," and "heaveb" is also occasionally expressed by that term, and by the word Ghais is understood "punishment", and none of these are either appellations or attributes of the Deity

If a person swear by another name than that of God,—such as "the Prophet," or "the Holy Temple," thus does not constitute an cath, as the Prophet has said, "if any man among you take an oath, he must ewear "by the name of God, or else his oath is void," If a person swear by the Qur'an, it does not constitute an oath, although the Qur an be the word of God because men do not swear by the Qur'an The compiler of the Hidayah observes that this is where the swearer only says, " by the Prophet," or "by the Temple" or "by the Quran," but if the swearer say, "If I act contrary to what I now say may I be deprived of the Prophet." or "of the temple," or "of the Qur'an,' this constitutes an oath, because such privation would reduce the sweares to the state of an unfidel, and the suspension of infidelity upon a condition amounts to yamin

Abu Hanifah alleges that if a man should swear" by the truth of God," this does not con stitute an oath, and in this linam Muhammad controldes There are two opinions of Abū Yusuf recorded on this point According to one, it is not an oath, but according to the other it as an oath, hecause truth is one of the attributes of the Delty, signifying the certainty of the divine existence, and hence it is the same as if the swearer were to say, " by God, the truth " and as oaths are common under this mode of expression, so an oath is The argument of Imim hereby constituted Muhammad and Abu Hamfali is that the term "the truth," as here expressed, relates merely to the identity of the godhead as the object of obedience, and hence an oath thus expressed appears to be taken by that which is neither an appellation nor an attribute of God The learned jurists, however, say that if a person express himself thus, "by the truth I will do so and so," this constitutes an oath, because the truth is one of the appellatives or proper names of God But if a person were to say, "I will do this truly," it does not amount to an oath, because the word truly can only be taken, in this case, as a corroboration or confirmation of the promise contained in the speech, being the same as if he were to say, "I shall do this indeed" If a man say, "I sweer," or "I vow," or 'I testify," whether the words "by God" be superadded or not, it constitutes an oath, because such words are commonly used in swearing, the use of thom in the present tense is undisputed, and they are also sometimes used in the future tense, where the context admits of a construction in the present, and attestation amounts to an oath, as in that sense it occurs in the sacred writings. Now swearing "by the name of God" is both oustomary and conformable to the divine ordipanees, but wethout the name of God it is forbidden. When it so occurs, therefore, it must be construed into a lawful out!. hence some say that intention is not requisite in it, others, however, allege that the intention is essential, because the words here recited bear

the construction of a promise, that is, they admit of being received as applying to the future, and also of being taken as a vow without the name of God.

If a person, speaking in the Persian language, were to say, "I swear by God," it amounts to an oath, because here the idiom confines the expression solely to the present, but if he were to say simply, "I swear, some allege that this does not constitute an oath if he were to say, "I swear by the divorce of my wife," this is not an eath, as an outh is not so expressed in practice

If a man in swearing say "by the age" or "the existence of God," it constitutes an oath, because the age or existence of (fod significahis eternity, which is one of his attributes.

If a person should say, "If I do this may I be a Jew, or a Ohristian, or an infidel," it constitutes an oath because, as the ewearer has made the condition a sign of infidelity, it follows that he is conscious or his obligation to avoid the condition, and this obligation as possible, by making it an oath, in such a way as to render unlawful to himself that which is lawful And if the oath relate to anything which he has done in the time past, as if he were to say 'lf I have done so may I be a Jew or an infidel," and so forth, this is yanu-nu l-lihamus, or "perjury" The swearer is not, however, in this case made a Jew or an infidel, because the words " may I be an infidel," and so forth, relate to some future in definite period Some, on the contrary, have alleged that he becomes actually as an infidel," because the penalty which the swearer imprecates upon himself relates to the present instant of his testimony, being the same as if he were to say, "I am a Jew," &c But the majority of doctors say, the swearer does not become a Jew or infidel in either of the cases, either in that of a vow with respect to the future, or an oath regarding the past, provided he consider this merely as a form of swear-But if he believe that by thus swearing pressed, he suffers accordingly, in either instance, because he appears conventing to infidelity, on account of having ventured upon a thing by the commission of which he cen coves that he may be rendered an infidel.

If a person say, "if I do this, may the anger of God fall upon me," this does not constitute a vow, as not being a customary mode of expression for that purpose. And so also, if a person, were to say, "May I be an adulterer or a drunkard or an usurer," because these are not generally understood or received as forms of swearing

The following are considered the most solemn and binding methods of taking an

1 Saying three tames "by the Great God"

2 Taking the Quran and saying, "by what this contains of the word of God

3. By placing a sword on the Qur'an. 4 By saying, "I impose upon myself divorcement" Muhammad himself was rather given to swearing, and the Qur'an is full of wild eaths, one of the most terrible of which, according to the Prophet's own words, is to "awear by the setting stars" (Sürah lvi. 74.)

Burchhardt, in his notes on the Bedouin Arabs, says that these children of the desert often take hold of the middle of a tent pole and swear by the life of the tent and its

CWINSTS

As might be expected, from the example set them by their Prophet, Muhammadans are commonly guilty of taking God's name in vain by swearing upon every petty occasion. Like the un Ala of the Greeks, the word is hardly ever out of their mouths

[For further information on the subject of Oaths, see Hamilton's Hidayah, book vi., the Durru'l-Mukheär, the Raddu'l-Muhata, and the Fatävai-i-Alamgiri, in loce, in which there are chapters devoted to the consideration of caths and vows made under all circumstances of life, e.g. with respect to entering places of residence, with regard to actions, with respect to entering places of residence, with regard to actions, with respect to entering and conversing, of vows in manufactured and divoice, with respect to buying and selling, marriage, olothing, wearing ornaments, striking, killing, the payment of money, &c. &c. ]

OATH, The administration of an An oath in a court of justice is not worthy of credit unless it be taken in the name of God, because Muhammad and, "Whosoover takes an oath otherwise than in the name of God, is most certainly a polytheist" It is incumbent upon the Quai, or judge, to request the swearer to corroborate his oath by reciting some of the attributes of God. For example, "I swear by God, the Righteous, the Knower of Secrets," &c A defondant must not be required to swear by divorce or emancipation, as if he should say "If it be true my wife is divorced, or my slave is free"

If an oath be administered to a Jew, he should say, "I swear by Ged who revealed the Zaurāt to Moses"

If to a Christian, he should say, "I swear by God who revealed the Injil to Jesus"

If to a Majūsī or fire-worshipper, he should say, "I swear by God who created fire"

An oath cannot be administered to an idolater otherwise than in the name of God, in accordance with this verse in the Qur'an, "If ye sak of them who hath oreated you, vorily they will say God Almighty" (Sürah XXXIX 39.)

An oath cannot be administered to infidels in their places of worship, because the Qizi is not allowed to enter such a place. This applies to the places of worship of the Jews and Christians as well as of idelaters. (History of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlotte of the Carlot digah, vol is p. 77) Women are not in Muslim law (as in Jewsh, Misina Shoh. (v 1), forbidden to bear witness on outh.

OBSEQUIES OF THE DEAD

OFFENCE AGAINST THE PER-SON. [JIKATAE]

OFFERINGS The Arabic word nagr (من) is often used for an offering, but in its strict theological meaning it expresses a vow. Khairal (مناوف), pl of Khair, is used for ordinary acts of charity. Sadaqah (الله) also expresses the same meaning Night (الله) is an offering to a samt Zakūl (الله), the legal alms.

[For an account of these offermes refer to the words ]

OHUD [UHUD]

OLD TESTAMENT Al- Ahdre L 'Atiq (العهد العنيق) Muhammad, in his Quran, professes to receive all the in-spired books of the Old Testament (See Surah ii 130 "We believe in God, and what has been revealed to us, and what has been re vesled to Abraham, and Ishmael, and Isaac, and Jacob, and the Tribes, and what was brought unto the Prophets from their Lord and we will not distinguish between any of them, and unto Him are we resigned "(1 e Muslime) But there is no evidence that Muhammad had over seen the Jewish Scriptures, as now received by both Jows and Christians In the Qur'an, he mentions the Tuerat of Moses, the Zabur (Psalma) of David, and makes several references to the historical portions of the Old Testiment, but Jonah is the only name amongst the writers of the propherical books (either greater or minor), of the Old Testament scriptures, mentioned m the Quran

Minhammadan writters say there have been 124,000 prophits, but only eight of these have been aposites to whom the Almighty has revealed books, and that only one hundred portions, or suduf, and four books, or kulub, have been given to mankind. Ten portions to Adam, the first of the prophets, lifty to Seth (not once mentioned in the Qur'an), thirty to Idris or Enoch, and ten to Abraham. One book to Moses, another to David, another to Jesus, and the fourth to Mulammad

Six of the preparts are said to have brought in new laws which successively abrugated the preceding, namely Adam, Noah, Abraham, Moses, Jesus, and Muhammad

It is impossible to read the Qui an carefully without arriving at the conclusion that Muhammad derived his knowledge of the events of Old Testament scriptures rather from the Rabbins and their Talmudic teaching, than from the inspired text itself. Mr Emanuel Deutsch truly says. "Judaism forms the kernel of Muhammadanism, both general and special. It seems as if he (Muhammad) had breathed from his childhood almost the air of contemporary Judaism, such Judaism as is found by us crystallised in the Talmud, the Targun, and the Midras." (Literary Resense, p. 85.)

The following Old Testament characters are mentioned by name in the Qur'an —

Aaron, Härim, Abel, Häbil, Oain, Qābil, Abraham, Ibrāhim, Adam, Adam, Terah, Asar, Korah, Qārūn; David, Dārūd, Goliath, Jālūt, Enoch, Idrīs, Elias, Ilyās, Ehļah Akyasa (al-Yasa), Ezra, 'Uzair, Gabriel, Jibrī', Gog. Yājū, Magog, Mājū, Isaac, Ishāq, Ishmael, Ismāti, Jacob Ya'qūb, Joseph, Yūsuf; Job, Aiyūb, Jonah, Yunus, Joshus, Yūsha', Korah, Qārūn, Lot, Lūt, Michael, Mikā'il, Moses, Mūsā, Noah, Nuḥ, Pharaoh, Firaum, bolomon, Sulaiman, Saul, Tālūt.

The following incidents of Old Testament history are related in the Qur'an, with a strange want of accuracy and a large admixture of Talmudic fable —

Asron makes a calf Sürah xx 90 Cain and Abel Sürah v 30

Abraham visited by Angels Sürah xi 72, xv 51

Abraham ready to sacrifice his son. Surah axxvii 101

Adam, hie fall. Sürah vn 18, m 34 Korah and his company. Sürah xxvm 76, xxix 38, x1 25

Creation of the world Sürah xvi 3, xiii 8, xxxv 1, 12

David's praise of God Sürah xxxiv 10
Deluge Sürah liv 9, lxix 11, xi 42
Jacob goes to Egypt Sürah xi 100
Jonah and the fish Sürah vi 85, x 9

Jonah and the fish Surah vi 86, x 98, xxxvi 189, kxvii 48
Joseph's history Surah vi 84, xii 1,

Joseph's history Surah vi 84, xii 1, xl 36

Manna and quails given Suiah vii 160, ax 82

Moses strikes the rock Sürah vn. 160 Noah's ark Sürah x1 40 Pharoah Sürah u 40 x 76 xhu 4

Pharoah Surah 11 40, < 76, xlui 45, xl 38

Solomon's judgment Sürah xxi 78 Queen of Sheba Sürah xxvii 22

The compiler of the Kashfu 'z Zunun (ed Flugel, vol. u p 458, article, Taurāt) attempts an account of the Old Tostament scriptures.

He divides the whole into four sections, and gives the names of the books as follows —

(1) The Taurat, or the Five Books of Moses

(2) Yüsha (Joshna) Sıfru 'l Hukköm (Judges) Shamü'il (Samuel) Sıfru 'l Mulük (Kıngs)

(8) Sha'yā (Isaiah)
Irmiyā (Jeremiah)
Hizgīl (Ezekiel)
Yumus (Jonah)

(4) Ta'nkh. A history from Adam to the building of the Temple Mazamir (Psalms)

Mazēmy (Psalms)
Alyūb (Job)
Amgāl (Proverbs)
Abbāru 'l Hukkam qabla 'l-Mulūk
(Ecolesiastes) Nashārd li-Sulaimān (Song of Solomon). Hikmak (Wisdom) An-Nawah (Lamentations) Urdshair (Esther)

Dänyāl (Damel)
'Usair (Esdras)
[FROPRETS, TAURAT, ZABUR]

OLD AND NEW TESTAMENTS,
The testimony of the Qur'an to the. The references in the Qur'an to the sacred scriptures of the Jews and Christians are very many, and in all cases Muhammad refers to these sacred writings with the highest respect and veneration. He acknowledges their inspiration, admits the existence of such documents in his own day, and appeals to them in support of his own mission.

The following verses of the Qur'an, in

The following verses of the Qur'an, in which there are references to the Old and New Testament, have been placed in chronological order, and the translations given are for the most part from Sir William Mnir's Manual on "The Coran," published by the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge —

Sürah lxxxvii 18 "Verily this is in the books of yore, the books of Abraham and Moses"

Sürah hii 37-40 "Hath he not been told of that which is in the pages of Moses, and of Abraham who acted faithfully? That a burdened soul shall not beer another's burden, and that there shall be nothing (mputed) to a man, but that which he himself hath wrought," &c

Surah xxxxx. 28-25 "And verily We gave Moses the book wherefore be not in doubt as to the reception thereof, and We made it a direction to the Israelites And We made from among them leaders who should direct according to Our command, when they were steadfast, and believed in Our signs Verily thy Lord, he will judge between hem on the Day of Resurrection as to that concerning which they disagree" which they disagree"

Sürah liv 48 "Are your unbelievers (Ye Makkans) better than those (i.e. of the days of Noah, Lot, Moses, &c., just referred to.) or is there an immunity for you in the Somptures?"

Surah xxxiv 80 "And the unbelievers say —We will not believe in this Quran, nor in that (which was revealed) before it."

Surah xli 45 "And verily We gave Moses the book, and they fell to variance concerning it"

Sürah xlv 15, 16 "And verily We gave the children of Israel the book, and wisdom, and prophecy, and We nourished them with pleasant food, and We exalted them above the rest of the world, and We gave them plain directions in the matter (of religion,) and they fell not to variance until after divine knowledge (or the Revelation,) had come unto them, out of jealousy among themselves. Verily, thy Lord will decide between them on the Day of Judgment, concerning that about which they disagree"

Snrah xxxvii 34 "Verily when it is said unto them —There is no God but the Lord, they arrogantly reply,—What! shall we give up one gods for a phronzied poet? Nav, he cometh with the truth, and attesteth (the Revelations,) of the (former) apostles."

Shrah zazwii 114 "And verily we were gracious '? Moses and Aaron, and saved them and the e people from great tribulation, and We brought them assistance, and they were the conquerers, and We gave them the perspicuous book, and directed them into the right way."

Shrab xxvi 194 "Verily it (the Qur'an) is a revelation from the Lord of creation, the faithful Spirit bath caused it to descend on thy heart, that thou mightest be one of the warners in the plant Arabic tongue And What verily it is in the former Scriptures is it not a sign unto them that the wise men of the Children of Israel recognize it?"

Sürah zivi 12 "And when they refuse to be guided thereby, they say, —thus is an antiquated lie. Yet preceding it there is the Book of Meses, a guide and a mercy, and this Qur'in is a book attesting (previous Revelation), in the Arabio tongue, to warn the transgressors, and glad tidings to the righteous Fürah zivi 30 'And (call to mind) when We caused a company of the Genil to turn aside unto thee that they might hear the Qur'an, And, when they were present thereat, they said Give ear And when it was ended, they returned to their people as warners, they said,—Oh our people! verily we have heard a book revealed after Moses, attesting the revelation that precedeth it, it leadeth to the truth, and unto the straight path "

Sarah xxxv, 25 "And if they reject thee, verily they who preceded them rejected (their prophets), who brought them clear signs, and writings, and the onlightening book

Sürah xxxv, 81 " And that which We have revealed unto thee is the truth, attesting that which precedeth it "

Strah xiz. 11 "Oh John' take the book (the Taurat') with power,—and We gave him wisdom while a child."

Süreh ziz. 28, 29 · And she (Mary) pointed to him (the enfant Jesus ) they said - How shall we speak with a child in the cradle? (The infinit Jesus) said -verily I am the servant of God, he hath given me the book (s.e. the Gospel), and made me a prophet."

Surah xlii 1 "Thus doth God the glorrous and the wase, communicate inspiration unto thee, as he did unto those that preceded thee."

Streh zin 12 "He bath omanned unto you the religion which he commanded unto Nosh, and which We have revealed unto thee, and which We commanded unto Abraham, Moses, and Jesus,—saying, Maintain the (true) religion, and be not at variance therein."

Shrah xln. 14, 15 "And they did not differ until after the knowledge (of Divine Receinfion) came unto them, rebelliously among themselver and unless the word had gene forth from thy Lord (respiting them) until a fixed time, verily the matter had been decided between them. And verily they that have inherited the hook after them are in a perplaying doubt respecting the same. Wherefore myite (men ento the true faith), and stand fast as thou hast been commanded, and follow not their degree And say, I believe in whatever booke God hath revealed, and I am commanded to decide between you; God is our Lord, and your Lord To'ns will (be reclassed) our works—to you, yours There is no greated of dispute between us and you. Ged will gather us together, and to Him shall be the return."

Sürah al 55, 56 "And verily We gave unto Moses guidance, and We caused the Children of Israel to inherit the book,—a guide and an admonition unto people of understanding hearts. Wherefore be patient, for the promuse of God is true, and ask pardon for thy sin," &co

Surah x1 72 "They who reject the book and that which We have sent our messengers with (the Old and New Testament), -they shall know, when the cellars shall be on their necks, and the chains by which they shall be dragged into hell, -then shall they be burned in the fire"

Surah xxv 36 "And verily We gave Moses the book, and We appointed his brother Asron his helper"

Surah xx 132 "And they (the Quraish) sav.—'If he doth not bring us a sign from his Lord (we will not believe)' What I hath not an evident demonstration come unto them in the former pages?"

Sursh xlin. 43 "And ask those of Our Apostles whom We have sent before thee, whether We have appointed any besides the Merciful, as a God whom they should wor-shîp "

Sürah xu 111 "It is not a story fabri cated, but an attestation of (the revelation) which is before it, and an explanation of every matter, a guide and a mercy to the people that believe."

Sursh xi 17, 18 "These are they for whom there is no portion in the next life but fire and that which they have done shall perish therein, vain will that be which they have wrought What! (shall such a one be equal unto hun) who proceedsth upon a plain direction from his Lord, and a witness from him (re from the Lord) attendeth him, and before him (of it) is the Book of Moses a guide and a mercy

Surah x1 8 "And verily We gave Moses the book, and they fell to variance regarding it And had not the word gone forth from thy Lord surely the matter had been decided hetween them, and verily they are in per-plexing doubt concerning the same"

Surah x. 87. " And this Qur'an is not such that it could have been raprocured than God, but it is an attestation of that (i.e of those Scriptures) which precede it, and an explanation of the book,—there is no doubt the Lord of creation. What! will they say, he (Muhammad) hath forged it? Say, then bring a Surah like unto it!

Surah x 98 "If thou art in doubt regarding that which We have sent down unto thee, then ask those who read the book (revealed) before thee Verly the truth hath come unto thee from thy Lord, be not therefore amongst those that doubt"

Sürah vi 20 " Those to whom We have given the hook recognize him as they recognine their own sons. They that have destroyed their own souls, these believe not?

Suran vi 90 "These are they to whem We have given the book, and wisdom, and prophecy, and if these (the Quraish) dishelieve the same, verily We have given it in trust unto a people who are not dishelievers therein These are they whom God hath guided, whorefore persevere in the guidance of them "

Surah vi 92 'And they do not estimate God with a just estimation when they say, -God hath not sent down -(1 e resealed, anything to Man Say who sent down the book, which Moses brought, a light and a direction to mankind ! Ye (var read they) make (or transcribe) it upon sheets of paper which we (or they) show, and ye (or they) conceal much and we are taught that which ye knew not, neither did your fathers Say, -God then leave them to sport in their tolhes"

And this book We have Sdrah vi 93 revealed,-blessed,-certifying the truth of that (revelation) which procedeth it, and that thou mightest admonish the people of the city (Makkah) and those around it

Surah vi 114 "He it is that both sont down to you the book, explaining (all things,) and those to whom We have given the book know that it (the Qur'an) hath been sent down from thy Lord in truth Wherefore, be not thou (O Muhammed) among those that doubt "

Surah vi 124 ' And when a verse cometh unto them, they say, -- We will not believe until there is brought unto us (a revelation) like unto that which the apostles of God brought "

Surah vi 154 "Then We gave Moses the book complete as to whatever is excellent, and an explanation of every matter, and a direction and a mercy, if haply they might believe in the meeting of their Lord

Sarah vi 155 "And this book (the Quo an) We have sent awn,—blessed, wherefore follow it, and fear God, if haply ye may find meroy, lest ye should say —Verily the Scripture bath been revealed to two people (the Jews and Christians) before us, and we are ignorant of their reading,—or lest ye should say .- If the Scripture had been reveiled to us, we surely would have followed its direction better than they, and now verily a clear exposition hath come unto you from your Lord, a direction and mercy," &c

Surah xxviii 44 "And verily We gave Moses the book, after that We had destroyed the former generations, an enlightenment unto mankind, and a direction, and a mercy, if haply they might be admonished "

Surah xxvin 47 "And thou wert not on the aide of Mount Sinai, when We called out (to Moses,) but (then art) a mercy from thy Lord, that thou mayest admonish a people unto whom no warner hath come before thee, if perchance they may receive admonition .and lest, if there befall them a calamity for tne evil works they have committed, they should say,—Oh Lord ! if then hadst sent unto us a prophet, we had followed thy revelations, and been of the number of the believers And now that the truth hath come unto them from us, they say, -if there were to come (a revelation) like unto that which came unto Moses (ue should believe) What I do they not disbelieve in that which was given unto Mosos heretofore, they say, -- two impostures that mutually assist one another, and they say, -verily we reject them both Say,pring a book from God that guideth more aright than these two, if ye be true, and if they answer not," &c Surah xxvin 58 "Those to whom We have given the Scripture before it (i e before the Qur an,) believe therein, and when it (the Qur an) is read nuto them, they say,—We be liese in it verily it is the truth from our Lord, surely we were Mushins from before

Surah xxui 25 "And verily We gave Moves the book, if haply they might be directed and We made the son of Mary and his mother a sign, &c Surah xx: 7 "And We sent not before thee (as Apostles) other than men whom We inspired ask, therefore, the people of the Scripture, if yo know it not"

Surah xxi 49 " And verily We gave Moses and Asion the distinction (al-Furgan), and a light, and an admonition to the pious -those who fear their Lord in secret, and who tremble for the hour (of Judgment) This blessed admonition also We have sent down will ye therefore denv it?"

Surah xx: 105 "And verily We have written in the Pealme, after the Law, that 'my servants, the righteous, shall inherit the earth'

Sürah vin 2 "And We gave Moses the book and made it a direction to the Children of Israel, (saying)—Take ye not other than Me for a patron"

Surah xvu 4, 5, and 7 "And We declared in the book in respect of the Children of Israel,—saying, Ye shall surely work cor ruptly on the earth twice, and ye shall be elated with great arrogance. And when the threat of the first of these two (visitations) came to pass, We sent against you our servants of terrible strength, &c , and when the threat of the second (visitation) came to pass," &c

Sursh xvii 55 "And verily We have be-stowed favour upon some of the prophete more than upon others, and We gave David the Psalms," &c

Sūrah zvii 108 "Say,-Believe in it (the Quran), or believe not,—verily they unto whom the knowledge (of Divine Revelation) hath been given anterior to it, when they hear it recited unto them, fall down upon their faces worshipping and they say, Praised be our Lord verily the promuse of our Lord

And they fall down on their faces weeping, and it moreaseth their humihtv'

Surah xv1. 48 " And We have not sent before thee other than men whom We have in-pired,—wherefore ask the people of the beripture if ye know not (We sent them) with evident signs and books, and We have sent down unto thee the revelation, that thou mightest make known to mankind that which hath been revealed to them, that haply they might reflect."

Surah xiii 45 "And those who diebelieve say, Theu art not sent —say, God sufficeth for a witness between me and between you, and also he with whom is the knowledge of the book "

Surah xxix. 27 " And We gave to him (te to Abrahum) Isaao and Jacob, and We placed among his descendants prophecy and the book "

Surah xxix 46 "And contend not with the people of the book (Jews and Christians) but in a generous manner, excepting those of them who act wickedly, and say, -Wo be-heve in that which hath been revealed to us, and in that which hath been revealed to you; and your God and our God is one, and we are to Him resigned "

Surah xxix. 47; "And thus have We sent down to thee the book (the Qur'an,) and these to whem We have given the Scripture believe ın it."

Surah vii 158 'And I will shortly write down it (i e my mercy,) for those who fear the Lord and give alms and those who believe in our signs those who shall follow the apostic.—the illiterate prophet,—whem they shall find written (i e described) in the Pentateuch and in the Gospel among them, be shall command them to do that which is excellent." &o

Surah vii 168 "And (call to mind) when thy Lord commanded that there should oertainly be sent against them (ie the Jews) until the day of resurrection those that would affiliat them with grievous distress, -verily thy Lord is swift in vengeance, and he is surely forgiving and merciful And We dispersed them in the ea th amongst the nations, there are of them the are virtuous, and there are of them that ar not so And We proved them with blessings, and with adversioes, if perchance they night return And there succeeded after them a generation that inherited the book, who receive the temporal advantage of this world, and any,-It will be forgiven unto us And if there come unto them an advantage the like thereof, they accept it. What! hath there not been taken from them the covenant of the book, that they should not say of God other than the truth, and they diligently study that which is therein."

Surah lamy 80 "Over it (Hell) are nineteen angels and We have not made the guardians of the fire of her than angels, and We have not expressed their number, except as a trial to those who disbelieve, and in order that these to whon We have given the book may firmly believe, and that they who believe may increase in faith, and that those to whom We have given the book may not doubt, nor the believers "

Surah 11. 1-5 "This is the book in which there is no doubt, -- guide to the pious,they who believe in the Unseen, and observe prayer, and spend out of that which we have provided them with, -and they who believe in that which hath been revealed unto thee, and that which hath been ravealed before thee, and have faith in the life to come These walk according to the direction of their Lord, and these are the blessed "

Sarah 11 36 "Oh Children of Israell remember My favour where with I have favoured you, and fulfil My covenant —I likewise will fulfil your covenant, and fear Me, and believe in that which I have revealed, attesting the truth of the (Scripture) which is with you and be not the first to logest the same, and sell not my revelation for a small price and clothe not the truth with error, and do not concoal the truth while ye know it."

Surah u. 50 " And when We gave Moses the book and the distinction (between good and evil,-furqan,)-if naply ye might be directed '

Surah 11 71. " And when they (the Jews of al Madinah) meet the believers, they say, We believe, but when they retire privately one with the other, they say, -Why do ye acquaint them with what God hath revealed te you, that they may therewith dispute with you before your Lord? What do ye not understand? Do they not knew that God knoweth what they conceal as well as that which they make public" Sürah 11 79 "What do ye (the Jows) be-heve in part of the book, and reject part thereof? But whoseever amongst you doeth this, his reward shall be none other than disgrace in the present life, and in the Day of Judgment they shall be cast into a more awful torment

Sürah n 81 ' And verily We gave Moses the Book, and caused prophets to arise after him, and We gave to Jesus the Bon of Mary, evident signs, and strengthened him with the Holy Spirit

'And when a Book (se the Sūrah 11 89 Qur'an) came unto them from God, attesting the truth of that (Scripture) which is with them, (although they had from before been praying for victory over those who dishe lieve), you when that came unto them which they recognised, they rejected the same."

Surab 11 83 "And when it is said unto them, Beheve in that which God hath revealed, they say, We believe in that which hath been revealed unte us, and they reject that which (kath been revealed) after it, although it be the truth attesting that which is with them."

Surah li 85 "And verily Moses came unto you with evident signs (or reveletions), then ye took the calf," &c.

Surah is $6 " For he (Gabriel) hath caused it (the Quran) to descend upon thy heart, by the command of God, attesting that (Scripture) which is before it, and a direction and good tidings to the believers."

Surah ii 95 'And when a prophet came unto them from God, attesting that (Scripture) which is with thom, a party of those who have received the Scripture cast the Book of God behind their backs, as if they knew it not."

Sarah n. 107 " The Jows any, the Christians are not (founded) upon anything, and the Christians say the Jews are not (founded) upon anything, and yet they read the Scripfure "

Strah H. 190 (see also Surah m 79) "Bay. We believe in God and m what hath been revealed unto us, and in what hath been revesled unto Abraham, and Ishmael, and Isaac, and Jacob and the Tribes, and in what hath been given unte Moses and unto Jesus, and in what hath been given unto the prophete from their Lord ve make no dis-thation between any of them, and unto Him we are resigned."

Strah n 189, "Verily We saw thee turn about thy face into the Heavens wherefore We will cause thee to turn towards a qibiah that will please thee -turn therefore thy face towards the holy temple wheresvever thou art, turn thy face towards it And verily those to whom the Scripture bath been given, they know that this is the truth from their Lord, and God is not unmindful of that which they do. And if thou broughtest unto those to whom the Soripture hath been given every kind of sign, they would not follow the qubith, nor wilt thou follow their giblah," &.

Surah it. 142 "Those to whom We have given the Scripture recognise hun as they recognise their own sons, but verily a sec tion of them hide the truth, although they

From 1f.

Burah ii 169 "Verily they that conceal the Scripture which God hath revealed, and sell it for a small price -these shall eat nought but the fire in their bellies, and God shall not speak unto them on the Day of Judgment, neither shall He purify them, they shall have butten torment. These are they that have bought error at the price of direction, and punishment at the price of pardon—how shall they endure the fire!— this because Ged hath sent down the Book in truth, and they that dispute regarding the Book are in a grievous error"

Sarah n 209 "Mankind was one people, and God sent prophets as preachers of good tidings, and warners and He sent down the Serupture with them in truth, that it might decide between men in that in which they differed -and they differed not therein, exceptung those to whom it was given, after there came to them clear demonstrations, wickedly amongst them elves; and God guided those that believed to the truth con-

derning which they disputed, by His will," &c Surah ii 254 'Of these prophets We have preferred some above others Some of them hath God spoken unto, and He hath raised some of them to high dignity Ana We gave unto Josus, the Son of Mary evident signs, and We strengthened Him by the Holy Spirit. And if God had pleased, those that came after them would not have contended with one another, after the evident signs (or plain revelations) had come unto them Yat they fell to variance. And amongst them were those that believed and smongst them were those that disbelieved And if God had wished, they had not con-tended with one another, but God doeth that which pleaseth Him."

Sürah h 286 "The apostle behaveth in that which hath beco revealed unto hum from his Lord; and the tathful, everyone of them, he agra; and the lattitut, everyone of them, behaveth in God, and in His angels, and in His books and in His apostles, we make no distinction between any one of his apostles."

Surah lvii 18 "And these that believe in God, and in His apostles these are the righteons, and the witnesses with their Lord . they have their reward and their light, but they that disbelieve, and accuse Our revelations of falsehood, these are the companion

of hell-fire

Sural lvn 25 "We have verily sent Our aposites with evident demonstrations, and We revealed unto them the Scripture, and the Balance, that men might observe justice, and We revealed (the use of) Iron wherein is great strength, and advantages to mankind, and in order that God might know who assisteth him and his apostles in secret,-for God as mighty and glorious. And verily We seut Noah and Abraham; and We placed amongst their posterity, prophecy and the Scripture; and amongst them were those that were rightly directed, tot many of them were Afterwards Wo canned Our evil-does a apostles to follow in their footsteps, and We caused Jesus, the Son of Mary, to mocood them, and We gave him the Gospel- and We put into the hearts of his followers compas-sion and meroy, and as to Monasticism they invented the same, -[We did not prescribe it unto them, ]-simply out of a desire to please God, but they have not observed it with a right observance And We have given those of them that believe, their reward, but many of them are evil-doers. Oh ye that behave! fear God, and believe in His prephet. He will give you a double portion of His mercy, and will create for you a Light wherein ye shall walk, and forgive you, for the Lord is lorgiving and mercuful."

Surah zevu. 1 "The unbelievers from smongst the people of the Book, and the idolaters, did not waver until there came unto them a clear—a prophet from God reading pure pages, containing right Scriptures And those to whom the Soriptures have been given did not fall to variance, until after a clear (Revelution) had come unto them and they are not commanded (in their own Scriptures) otherwise than that they should worship God rendering unto Him the orthodox worship, and that they should observe prayer, and give alms, and this is the right faith."

Sarah km 5 "The likeness of those who are charged with the Law (the Tourat), and do not discharge (the obligations of) it, is as the likeness of the Ass laden with books first is the likeness of the people which rejecteth the signs of God. and God doth net guide the unjust people."

Strait xivid. 28. "Muhammad is the prophet of God, and those who follow him are fleroe against the unbelievers, but compassionate among themselves. Thun mayest see them bowing down, prostrating themsalves, seeking the favour of God and his pleasure Their signs are in their faces from the marks of their prostration. This is the likeness of them in the Pentateuch and the likeness of there in the Gospel,—as a seed which putteth forth its stalk and strengtheneth it, and swelleth and reath on its stem, and delighteth the sower thereof, that the unbelievers may be indignant thereat."

Sarah izi 6; " And when Jesus, the Son of Mary, said -O children of Iarael, verily I am an Apostle of God nuto you, attesting that which is before me of the Tourat, and giving glad tidings of an apostis that shall come after me, whose name is Ahmad (the Praised)"

Sürah iv 48 " Hast thou not seen those to whom We have given a portion of the beispture?—they buy error, and desire that ye may err from the way and God best knoweth your energies. God sufficet's for a petron, and God saffooth for a helper those who profess Judaism there are that dislocate words from their places and say-"We have heard, -- and, have disobeyed', and, do thou hearken without hearing,' and, look upon us', twisting with their tongues, and reviling the faith. And if they had said, 'we have beard and obeyed', and, hearken', and, 'look upon us', it had been better for them and more upright but God hath cursed them for their unbelief, and they shall not believe, excepting a few O ye unto whom the Scriptures have been given! believe in what We have revealed attesting that (Scripture) which is with you, before We delace your countenances, and turn them front backwards, or curse them as We cursed those who (broks) the Sahbath, and the command of the Lerd was fulfilled."

Surah iv 49 ' Hast thou not seen those to whom a pertion of the Sompture bath been given? they believe in false gods and idols, and they say to the unbelievers, These are better directed in the way than those who

behove

Surah iv 52. "Do they envy mankind that which God hath given them of His bounty! And verily We gave to the children of Abraham the book and wisdom, and We gave them a mighty kingdom Amongst them are those that helieve in Him and those also that turn away from Him '

Surah iv. 58 "Hast thou not seen those who fancy that they believe in that which hath been revealed unto thee, and in that which hath been revealed before thee? They desire to go for a mutual decision unto the idel Jaghat yet verily they have been com-manden to dimbelieve therein, and Satun desireth to decorve them rate a wide deception

Strak iv 180 "To God belongs whatever is in the heavens and in the earth, and varily We commanded those to whom the Scripture was given before you, and you likewase, Fear God, and, if ye disbelieve, verily to God belongeth whatsoever is 'm the heavens and in the earth "

Sürah av 185 - "O ye that believe! believe m God and in His prophet, and in the book which He hath revealed to His prophet, and in the book which He revealed from before, and whoever disbelieves in God, and in His angels, and in His books, and in His prophets, and in the last day, verily he hath wandered into a wide error

Surah iv. 149, "Verily they that reject God and His apostles, and seek to make a distinction between God and His spostles, and say,-We believe in a part, and we reject a part, and seek to take a path between the same, these are mudels in reality, and We have prepared for the infidels an ignomimous punishment But they that believe in God and in His spostles, and make so disunction between any of them, to these We shall surely give their reward, and God is forgiving and merciful. The people of the book will ask thee that thou cause a book to descend upon them from the heavens, and verily they asked Moses for a greater thing than that," &c

Surah iv 161 "But those of them that are grounded in knowledge, and the faithful believe in that which hath been revealed unto thee, and n that which hath been revealed before thee And those that observe prayer, and give alms, and the believers in God and in the last day, unto these shall We give a great reward Verily We have re-rested our will unto thee, as We revealed cur will unto Abraham, and Ishmael, and Isaac, and Jacob, and the Tribes, and Jesus, and Job, and Jones, and Aaron, and Solomon, and We gave upto David the Pealms, and Apostles, whom We have already made mention of unto thee, and Apostles, of whom We have not made mention unto thee, and God spake with Moses in open discourse," &c

Sürah iv 169 "Ye people of the book! commut not extravagance in your religion, and say not of God other than the truth For verily the Mesmah, Jesus, the Son of Mary, 18 an apostle of God, and His word which he placed in Mary, and a spirit from Wherefore believe in God, and in His Timo apostle, and say not,—"the Trunty";—re-frem it will be better for you For verily God is one God,—far exalted is He above the possibility that there should be unto Him pregeny! to Him belongeth whatever is in the heavens and in the earth, and He sufficeth as a guardun." Sürah in. 2

"God! there is no God but He, the living, the sternal He bath earsed to descend upon thee the Scripture in truth, attesting that which is before it and He sent down the Tourst and the Gospel from before for the guidance of mankind. and He sant down the Furque. Verily they that reject the signs of God, to them shall be a fearful punishment. And God 1s unighty, a God of vengeance "

Sürah III. 19 "And those to whom the book was given, did not fall to variance until after that the knowledge came unto them, wickedly among themselves"

Surah in 28. "Seest thou not those to whom a pertion of the Scripture hath bean given? They were called unto the book of God, that it might decide between thom Then a party of them turned away, and went aside. That was because they say,—the fire shall not touch us, but for a limited number of days. And that which they have devised hath deceived them in their religion."

Sürak in 48 "And (God) shall teach Him (Jesus) the Scripture, and wisdom, and the Tourat, and the Gospel,—and (shall send Him as) an Apostle unto the Children of Israel (Jesus shall say) Verily I have come unto you—attesting the truth of that which (Scripture revealed) before the in the Tourat, and that I may make lawful unto you a part of that which is forbidden unto you."

Sürah in 64 "O ye people of the Book! why do ve dispute concerning Abraham?—seeing that neither the Tourat noi the Gospel was revealed until after him, do ye not understand? Ah! ye are they which dispute concerning that of which ye have know ledge why, therefore, do ye dispute concerning that of which ye have no knowledge? and God knoweth, but ye know not!

Sürah iii. 66 "A party of the People of Surah iii. 68 "A party of the People of the Book desire to cause thee to go astray, excepting their own souls, and they perceive it not. Oh People of the Book! why do je reject the signs of God, while ye bear testimony (thereto)? O people of the Book! why do je reject the signs of God, while ye bear testimony (thereto)? O people of the Book! why do ye olethe the truth with that which is false, and hide the truth, while ye know (it) and a party of the people of the book say —Believe in that which is sent down unto those that believe, in the early part of the day, and reject (ti, in) the latter part thereof, if haply they may turn baok and, believe not (any) excepting him that followeth joins religion Say,—Verily the direction is the direction of God, that there should be given unto one (if the Mukammad a revelation) like unto that which hath been given unto you. On, will they dispute with you before your Lord? say,—Verily favour is in the hand of God. He gives the unto whomseever He pleaseth and God is widely comprehensive (in His mercy) and wise."

Surah in 77 "And verily amongst them is a party that twist their tongues in (reading) the book, that ye may think it is out of the book, though it is not out of the book, and they say.—'It is from God,' and it is not from God, and they speak a *fs*leshood oon cerning God, knowingly"

Sûrah iii 78 "It becometh not a man that God should give him a book, and wisdom, and prophecy, and that he should then say to mankind, Be worshippers of me besides God, but rather, Be ye perfect, masmuch as ye know the book, and masmuch as ye study it"

Surah iii 80 "And (call to mind) when God made a covenant with the prophets, (saying) This verily is the book and the windom which I have given unto you, thereafter shall come an Apostle attesting the truth of that (Scripture) which is with you ye shall surely believe in him, and assist him."

Surah iii 93 "All food was lawful to the Children of Israel, excepting that which Israel made unlawful to himself, before the Tourat was revealed. Say—Bring hither the Tourat, and read it, if ye be true And whoever contrivet a he concerning God after that says is the transferance."

that, sprely they are the transgressors " Surah in 99 "Say, O ve People of the Book! why do ye disbelieve in the signs of God, and God is witness of that which ye do?
Say, O ye People of the Book! why do ye hinder from the way of God him that be lieveth, desning to make it (the way of God) crooked while we are witnesses?"

crooked, while ye are witnesses?"

Sursh in 113 "They are not all alike Amongst the People of the Book there is an upright race that read the signs (or revelations) of trod in the night season, and they bow down worshipping. They believe in God and the last day, and command that which is just and dissuade from that which is wicked, and they make haste in doing good works. These are the virtuous ones."

Sürah iii 119 "Behold, ye are they that love them (the Jews) and they do not love you, and ye believe in the entire Scripture"

Surah in 184 "They who say that God hath made a covenant with us, to the effect that we should not believe on an apostle until he cometh unto us with a sacrince to be consumed by fire—say.—Verily apostles have come unto you before me, with evident demonstrations, and with that of which ye speak Why, therefore, have ye slain them, if we be true? and if they acouse thee of imposture, verily the apostles before thee have been accused of imposture, who came with evident demonstrations, and the Scriptures, and the eulightening book"

Suruh in 188 "And when God took a covenant from those to whom the book was given,—that they should unfold the same to mankind, and that they should not conceal it, and they threw it (the covenant) behind their backs, and sold it for a small price, and woeful is that which they have sold it for, think not that they who rejoice in that which they have done, and desire to be praised for that which they have not done shall escape from punishment."

Surah mi 199 "And verily of the People of the Book there are those who believe in God, and in that which hath been revealed to you, and in that which hath been revealed to them, submissive unto God, they sell not the signs of God for a small price. These are they who have their reward with their Lord, for God is swift in taking account."

Surah v 14-16 "And for that they have broken their dovenant, We have cursed them, and We have made their hearts hard. they dislocate the word from its place, and they have forgotten a part of that whereby they were admonished Thou wilt not cease to discover decent in them, excepting a few of them But pardon them, and forgive, for God loveth the beneficent And of those that say, We are Christians, we have taken a covenant from them, and they have forgotten a part of that whereby they were admonished Wherefore We have placed enmity and hatred between them, until the Day of Judgment, and God will surely then declare unto them that which they have wrought people of the Book! verily our apostle hath come unto you, he shall make manifest unto you much of that which yo have hidden of the book, and he shall pass over much" Surah v 47 "O thou spestle! let not those grieve thee who make haste after infidelity from amongst them that say, 'We believe,' with their mouths, but their hearts believe not And from amongst the Jews there are that spy out in order to tell a falsehood, they spy out for another people that come not unto thee. They dislocate the word from out of its place They say 'If this be given you, then receive it-but if it be not given you, then beware '"

Sürah v 50 "And how will they make thee their judge, since they have beside them the Tourst, in which is the command of God? Then they will turn their back after that and these are not believers Verily We have revealed the Tourat: therein is guidance and light The prophets that submitted themselves to God judged thereby those that were Jews, and the doctors and priests (did the same), in accordance with that which was confided to their charge of the book of God, and they were witnesses thereof Wherefore fear not man, but fear Me, and sell not thou the signs of God for a small price And he that doth not judge by that which God hath revealed, verily they are the unbelievers. And We have written for them, -verily life for life, and eye for eye, and nose for noss, and ear for ear, and tooth for tooth, and for wounding retaliation, and he that remitteth the same as alms it shall be an atonement unto him And he that judgeth not by that which God hath sent down, they are the transgressors And We caused Jesus, the Son of Mary, to follow in their footsteps, attesting the Scripture of the Tourat which preceded it, and We gave Him the Gospel, wherem is guidance and light, which attests the Tourat that preceded it, and a direction and an admonition to the pious,—that the people of the Gospel might judge according to that which God hath revealed therein, and he that doth not judge according to that which God hath revealed, verily they are the flagitious ones And We have revealed unto thee the book in truth, attesting that (Scripture) which precedeth it, and a custodian (or a witness) thereof Wherefore judge between them in accordance with that which God hath revealed, and follow not their vain desires (by secroing) away from that which hath come unto thee To every one of you have We given a law and a way, and if God had pleased, He had made you all of one faith,—but (He hath not done so, in order) that He might try you in that which He hath given you."

Surah v 68 "Say, O people of the Book! is there any other cause of your sumity against us, but that we believe m God, and in that which bath been revealed unto us, and in that which hath been revealed from before?-but the most of you are evil doers "

Sürah v 77 "Say -0 ye people of the Book! ye are not grounded upon anything, until ye set up (or observe) the Tourat and the Gospel, and that which hath been revealed unto you from your Lord"

Sürah v 91 "Thou wilt surely find the most bitter amongst mankind in their hatred towards those that believe to be the Jews and the idolaters And thou wilt surely find the most friendly inclined amongst them towards the believers, to be those who say, We are Christians That is because there are amongst them clergy and monks, and they are not arrogant. When they hear that which hath been revealed to the prophet, thou will see their eyes flowing with tears because of that which they recognise of the truth. They say, O our Lord! we believe, write us down with the witnesses, and what should hinder us that we should not believe in God, and in that which hath come unto us of the truth? and we desire that our Lord should introduce us amongst the righteons God hath rewarded them for that which they have said, with gardens through which flow rivulets They shall be for ever therein and that is the reward of the virtness."

Sürah v 119 "And (call to mind) when (lod said,-O Jasns, Son of Mary ! remember My favour towards thee, and towards thy Mother, when I strengthened thee with the Holy Spirit, that thon shouldest speak unto man, in the cradle, and also in mature age, and I taught thee the Scriptures, and wiedom, and the Tourat, and the Gospel, and when thou madest of clay in the form of a bird by My command, and thon blewest thereupon, and it became a bird by My command, and thou healedst the blind and the leper by My command, and when thou didst raise the dead by My command And when I spake by inspiration unto the apostles, saying -Believe in Me, and in My apostle (se Jesus,) they said,-We believe, bear witness that we are true believers '

Sürah lxv: 18 "And Mary the daughter of Imran, who preserved her virginity, and We breathed into her of Onr spurt, and she attested the words of her Lord and His

Scriptures, and was amongst the pious'
Surah ix. 113 "Verily, God hath bought from the behevers their selves and their wealth, on the condition of paradise for them if they fight in the ways of God -and whe ther they slay or be slain the promise of God thereupon is true in the Tourst, and in the Gospel, and in the Qur'an." [CHRISTIANITY, JEWS, JUDAISM ]

OMER. ['UMAR.]

OMMIADES Arabic Banû Umaryah (المواصية), or ad-Daulata 'l-Uma-The dynasty of entyal (lingle ) Khalifahs who reigned from AH 41 (Ah 661) to AH 182 (AD 750), descended from but it is the the control of the Khalifate on the death of al-Hasan, and established his capital at Damascus. The dynasty includes the names of fourteen Khali faha.

Mu'awiyah, A.R. 41

Yazid (son of Mu'awiyah), A R. 60 Mu'awiyah II (son of Yazīd), A H 64

- 4 Marwan I (sen of al-Hakam), AH 64 5 Abdu I Malik (sen of Marwan), AH 65 6 Al Walid (son of 'Abon-'l-Malik), AR 86
- 7 Sulaiman (sou of 'Andu l-Mahk) AH 96
- 8 Umar II (son of 'Abdu 'l Azīz, son of Marwan), a n. 49
- 9 Yazid II (soo of 'Abdu 'l-Malik), AR 101
- 10 Hisham (son of 'Abdu T-Mahk) AH 106
  - 11 Al-Walid II (son of Yazid) AH 125

12 Yarid III (son of al Walid) Att 126
13 Ibrahim (son of al-Walid) Att 126
14 Marwan II (son of Muhammad son of Marwan), A.E. 127-132

The Abhasides conquered Khorasan under the brothers Ibrabim and 'Abu I- Abbas, and refused to acknowledge Marwan Maruan was afterwards defeated on the banks of the Zab, and fled to Egypt where he was again defeated and slan, An 132 (AD 750), and Abu 1-'Abhas was preclaimed Khalifah XHATAPAH 7

OPTION KHIYAR !

OBDINATION There is no ceremony in Islam corresponding to the Christian ordination Sometimes the Imam of a mosque is appointed by the chief man of position binding a turban round his head In Central Asia, Maulawis of reputation certify as to the learning and ability of their disciples by binding a turban on their heads and authorizing them to teach But it is not a custom' of the Mushm rehgion

ORNAMENTS Meh are prohibited from the use of ornaments of gold such as rings and the like, because they are expressly formdden by the Prophet Orns. ments of silver are likewise unlawful, but exceptions are made with respect to signet rings girdles, or swords, which may be ornamented with silver. (Hidayah, vol. iv. p. 92) Ibn Zuberr says the Prophet condenned the use of little belisose ornaments for children, for he sand there was a devil in every bell Thu Malik says the Prophet forbade the wearing of gold rups, and he considered it just as bad to use gold ornaments. (Mishket. book xx. ch il.)

The Wahhahis condemn the use of ornaments and silk drosses

ORPHANS. Arabic yatim (***), pl yatana In Nuhammadan law, the term is used for a child whose father is Muhammad gave very special instructions in the Qur'an as to the treatment of orphana.

See Surah iv 2-7

'And give to the orphans their property and substitute not worthless things of your own for their valuable ones, and enjoy not their property in addition to your own; verily this is a great crime, and if we are appre-hensive that ye shall not deal fairly with orphans, then, of other women who seem good in your eyes, marry but two, or three, or four, and if yo still fear that ye shall not act equitably, then one only, or the slaves whom ye have acquired, this will make justice on your part easier And give women their dowry as a free gift, but if of their own free will they kindly give up aught thereof to you, then enjoy it as convenient and profitable. And entrust not to the meapable the substance which God rath placed with you as a means of support, but maintain them therewith, and clothe them, and speak to them with kindly speech. And make trial of orphans until they reach the age of marriage, and if ye perceive in them a sound judgment, then hand over their sub-stance to them, but consume ye it not pro fusely and hastily Only because they have attained their majority And let the rich guardian not even touch it, and let him who is poor, then use it for his support with diseretion. And when ye make ever their substance to them, then take witnesses in their presence God also taketh a sufficient account."

According to al-Barrawt and the Jalalan, the Muslim commentaiors understand these verses differently. Mr. Sale says the true mearing seems to be Muhammad, advising his followers that if they found they should wrong the female orphans under their care, erther by marrying them against their molinations, for the sake of their riches or beauty, or by not using or maintaining them so well as they ought by reason of their having already saveral wives, they should rather choose to marry other women, to avoid all occasion of sin. Others say that when this passage was revealed, many of the Arabians, fearing trouble and temptation, refused to take upon them the charge of, orphans, and yet multiplied wives to a great excess and used them ill or, as others write, gave themselves up to formication, which encesioned the pessege And according to these, his meaning must be either that if they feared they could not act justly towards orphans, they had as great reason to apprehend they could not deal equitably with so many wives, and therefore are commanded to marry but a certain number, or else, that since fornication was a crime as well as a wronging of orphans, they ought to avoid that also by marrying according to their abilities

OTHMAN. ['USMAR.]

OUTLAWS (1) An Apostate, if he escapes to another country, is an outlaw (2) A formeator should be expelled from his country and be an outlaw for a whele year

P.

PAIGHAMBAR (بيفامبر) The Persian and Hindustani translation of the The Arabio Rasul (رسول), and Nahı (نبى) [PROPRET]

PARACLETE FARAQLIT ]

The Muhammadan PARADISE Paradise is called al-Jannah (Light), " the garden," pl. jannat, in Arabic, and Bihisht ( ), in Persian, the word al Firdaus (الفردوس), or Paradise, being restricted to one region in the celestial abodes of blus There are eight heavens or paradises mon-tioned in the Qur'an, and although they appear to be but eight different names for the place of bliss, Muhammadan divines have held them to be eight different stages are as follows (see Ghyanu 14 They Luyhah) -

Januatu 'I-Khuld (Süratu 'i Furqan, xxv 16), The Garden of Eternity

2 Darn 's-Salam (Saratu 'l-An'am, vi '127),

The Dwelling of Peace

3 Dāru 'l-Qarār (Sūratu 'l-Mu'mın, xl 42), The Dwelling which abideth

4. Jannatu 1-'Adn (Süratu 1-Bara'ah, 12

73), The Gardens of Eden.

B Jannatu 1-Ma'wa (Suratu 's-Sajdah, xxxxx. 19), The Gardens of Refuge. 6 Jannatu 'n-Na'im (Süratu I Mü'idab, v 70), The Gardens of Delight

'llliyûn (Sûratu 't Tatfif, lxxxii 18) 8 Jannatu 1-Firdaus (Suratu 1 Kahi, avni 107), The Gardens of Paradise

These eight stages are spoken of as eight doors in the Mishket, book ii. ch. 1)

The sensual delights of Muhammad's Paradise are proverbial, and they must have oxercised a considerable influence upon the minds of the people to whom he made known has mission. There are frequent allasions to them in the Qur'an The following are speormen pateages — Süratu "I-Inaan (lxxvi), 12-22 — God bath towarded their constancy, with Paradise, and silken robes, reclining therein on bridal couches, nought shall they know of sun or piercing cold: its shades shall close over them, and low shall its fruits hang down and vessels of silver and goblets like flagons shall be borne round among them. flagons of silver whose measure themselves shall mete. And there shall they be given to drink of the sup tempered with sanjabil (ginger) from the fount therein whose name is Salsabil (i.e. the softly flowing) Blooming youths go round among them. When thou lookest at them, thou wouldst deem them scattered pearls, and when thou seest this, thou wilt see delights and a vast kingdom, their clothing green silk robes and rich brocade with silver bracelets shall they be adorned and drink of a pure beverage shall their Lord give them This shall be your recompense."

Suratu I-Waqiah (lvi), 12-39 "In gardens of delight, a crowd of the former and a few of the later generations on inwrought couches reclining on thom face to face, bloom ing youths go round about them with goblets and ewers and a cup of flowing wine, their brows ache not from it, nor fails the sonse and with such fruits as shall please them best, and with flesh of such birds as they shall long for, and thours shall be the Houris (Arabic hū:), with large dark eyes, like poarls bidden in their shells, in recompense for their labours past No vain discourse shall they hear therein, nor charge of sin, but only cry
'Peace! Peace!'
Unfailing, unforhidden, and on lofty couches and of a rare creation have we made the Hours, and we have made them ever yirgins dear to their spouses and of equal age, for the people of the right hand, a crowd of the former, and a crowd of the later generations'

Süratu 'r Rahman (lv), 54-56 "On couches with linings of brecade shall they recline, and the fruit of the two gardens shall be within their easy reach

Therein shall be the damsels with returng glances, whom neither man nor jum hath touched

before them

Süratu 7 Muhammad (xlvu) 16, 17 "Therein are rivers of water which corrupt not rivers of milk, whose taste changeth not and rivers of wine, delicious to these who quaff it, and rivers of clarified honey. and therein are all kinds of fruit for them from their Lord."

The descriptions of the celestral regions and the enjoyments promised to the faithful are still more minutely given in the traditional sayings of the Prophet, see the Mish-

kāt, book axin ch xin

Abū Musi relates that "the Apostle of God said, Verily there is a tent for every Muslim in Paradise it is made of one pearl, its interior empty, its breadth 60 kps, and in every corner of it will be his wives, and they shall not see one another The Muslim shall love them alternately," &c Abu Said relates that "the Apostle of God said, 'He who is least amongst the people of Paradise, shall have eighty thousand slaves, and seventy two women, and has a tent pitched for him of pearls, rubies, and Those who die in the world emeralds young or old, are made of thirty years of age, and not more, when they enter Paradise

Abu Said also relates that the Apostle of God said, 'Verily a man is Paradise reclines upon seventy cushions before he turns on his other side. Then a woman of Paradise comes to him and pats him on the shoulder, and the man such his face in her cheek, which is brighter than a looking glass, and east and west. Then the woman makes a salan to him, which he returns and the man says, 'Who are you' "and she replies "I im of the number promised of God for the virtuous" And veril, she will have seventy garments, and the man's eyes will be fixed on them, till he will see the marrow of the hones of her legs through the carees of there and she will base crowns on nor head, the meanest pearl of which would give light between the east and west '

One of the attractions of Paradise is the river ✓ Kausar [RAUMAN] According to Anas, 'the Apostle of God vaid it is a river which bod has given me an Paradise, its water is whiter than milk, and sweeter that honer, and on its waters are buds whose oclasses like the necks of camels

The following is an instan e of the way in which the Prophet endeavoured to cust me paradise to the taste of the people -

Abu Azyuh sayo, " tu Aruh orme to the Prophet and said '() Apostle of God' I am fond of horses, are there any in Paradise? The Prophet replied, 'If you are taken into Paradise, you will get a ruby horse, with two wings, and you will mount him, and be will carry you wherever you wish

Abd Hurairah sail, · Verily the Apostle of God said, when an Arab was sisting mear him, that a man of the people of Paradise will ank permission of his Lord to cultivate land and God will say Have you not everything you could wish for? What will you cultivate? The man will say, 'Yes, everything is present, but I am fond a oultivating Then he will be permitted to cultivate, and he will sow, and, quicker than the twinkling of an eye, it will grow, become ripo, and be reaped, and it will stand in sheaves like mountains,

The apologists for Islam, Carlyle for ex ample, have suggested that the sensual delights of Muhammad s paradise may, after all, be taken in a figurative sense, as the Reve lation of Se John or the Song of Solomon It is quite true that such an interpretation is hinted at in the Akhlaq 1-Jalali (Thompson's Egyptions (vol. 1 p 84) says that a Minshim of some learning considered the descriptions of Paradise figurative, but such 4 not the ylew held by Muhammadan doctors, whether Sunni, Shi'sh, or Wahhabi. They are all agreed as to the literal interpresation of the sensual enjoyments of the Muslim paradise, and very many are the books written giving minute particulars of the joys in store for the falthful Islam, true to its anti-Ohristian character, preaches a seusual abode of bliss, in opposition to the express teaching of our Lord in Matt XXII 30 "They neither marry nor are giver in matriage, but are as the angels of God in heaven'

Were proof needed, to show that the Prophet taught a real and literal interpretation of the sensual delights of the abodes of bliss, a tradition or high authority is found in the Sabilu Mustum (p. 879) vidi also Michiel, book xxiii ch 13), in which the Prophet goes to some trouble to explain the sanitary laws of the heaven't kingdon, in the most hters!

manner possible

Sir William Mair says "It to remarkable that the notices in the Coran of this voluptuous Paradise are almost entirely confined to a time when, whatever the tendency of his dosnes. Mahomet was hving chaste and tem perate with a single wife of threescore years of age Gibbon characteristically observes that Mahomet has not specified the male companions of the female elect, lest he should cither alarm the jealousy of the former hus bands, or disturb their felicity by the suspi-cion of an everlasting marriage. The remark, made in raillery, is preguant with reason, and aims a fatal blow at the Paradise of Islam Fasthial women will renew their youth in reaven as well as faithful men why should not their good works ment an equal and a salogous reward? But Mahomet shrank trom this legitiviste conclusion. It is note worth that in the Medina Suras-that is in all the volumnous revelations of the ten sears following the Hegira-women are only twice referred to as use of the delights of Parad se and on both occasions in these simple words - and to them (believers) there shall be therein pure wives (Surah it 28, burah iv 60) Was it that satiety had then loft no longings unfulfilled, or that a closes contact with Judansm had repressed the budding pruriency of his revelation, and covered with confusion the picture of a sensual Paradise which had been drawn at Mecca? (Infe of Mahomet new ea, p 82 and note)

Sn W Mair has omitted a third passage, Surah ni. 18, where "women of stainless purity" are spoken of, but it is remarkable how much more restrained are the Prophet's descriptions of Paraduse in his later revela-For example, Sürah uni 28, 24, 85 -

Gardens of Eden-into which they shall enter together with the just of their fathers, and then wives and their descendants, and the angels shall go in unto them at every portal Peace be with you, say they because ye haverendured all things The rivers flow beneath its bowers, its food and its shades are perpetual."

PARDON FOR SIN The words used to express pardon for sins on the part of the Almighty, are 'Afw (Ac), Magh firah (مَعْدُهُ), and Ghufrān (معْدُهُ) The seeking pardon is Istighfār (استغفار) The act of

The following is the teaching of the Qur'an

on the subject .-

Surah lin. 82, 38 "God's is what is in the heavens and what is in the earth, that He may reward those who do evil with evil, and those who do good with good. Those who shun great sins and inquities—all but venial sina, -verily thy Lord is of ample forgive"ess

Surah lavn 12 "Verily those who fear their Loid in seciet, for them is forgiveness and a great reward

Sûrah xxxiii 71 "He (Ged) will cerrect you for your works and pardon you for your uns, for he who obeys God and His Apostle has attained a mighty happiness"

Surah xxxv 8 "Those who telieve and do right, for them is forgiveness "

Surah viii 29 "O ye who believel if ye fear God, He will make for you a discrimi nation, and will cover your offences and will forgive you, for God is the Lord of mighty grave "

Repentance is expressed in the Qur'an by the word Taubah (345), which the Imam an Nawawi says means "turning the heart from sin' (Commentary on Sahtha Muslim, vol is p 854) The word frequently occurs in the Qur'an. For example — Sürsh iv 20 "If they repent and amena, then let them be Verily God relenteth He is merciful'

Süreh xxv 71 "Whor hath repented and hath done what is right, verily it in be who turneth to God with a true conversion" (metab)

The teaching of the traditions on the subject of repentance and pardon for mn is in some places exceedingly wild, as will be seen from the following selections taken from the sayings of the Prophet given in the Mishkāt, hook z ch mi --

"There was a man of the children of Israel, who killed ninety-nine people, after which he came out, asking if his repentance would be accepted, and having met a monk, he asked han 'Is there acceptance for my repentance.' The monk said 'No' Than the man killed the monk, and stood asking people about the approval of his repentance. And a man said to him, Come to such a vil-Then the signs of immediate doubth were upon him, and he tried to reach the village upon his knees, and died on the way Theo the angels of mercy and punishment disputed about Lim Then God ordered the village towards which the man had attempted to ge to be near to the corpse, and the vil-lage which he had fled from to be far away Then Ged said to the angels, from him 'Compute, and measure the distance between And it was found that the the two villages village towards which he was going was nearbr to him by one span. And he was par doned"

"An mossesut sinner has not sinned that has asked pardon, although he may have sinned seventy times a day, because asking pardon is the coverer of sin.

"God has said, 'Verily if you come before Me with sins equal to the dust of the earth, and then come before Me without associating anything with Me verily I will come before you with the pardon equal to the dust of the earth."

"Vernly God accepts of the repentance of His servant as long as is soul does not come into his throat

"I swear by God that verify I ask pardon of God and repent before Him more than soventy times daily"

1. Vernly my heart is veiled with melan-chely, and vernly I ask pardon of God one hundred times a day?

"Verily, when a true believer commits a sin, a black spet-is created in his heart; and if he repents and asks pardon of God, the black spot is rubbed off his heart, but if he increases his sins, the black spot increases. so that it takes hold of the whole heart Then this spot is a rust which God has men tioned in the Qur'an, 'their hearts became rusty from their works'"

"Verily there were two men of the childrea of Israel who had a friendship for each other One of them was a worshipper of God, and the other a sunner The worshipper of God said to the sunner Give up sunning He said, 'Leave me to my Lord' At length he found him committing a very great em, and and, Give up sinning. The sinner said, Leave me to my Lord Were you sent as a guard over me?' The worshipper said, 'I swear by God He will not always forgive your sins, nor will He bring you into Paraduse. Then God sent ar angel to them who took both their souls and they both appoared before God together And God said to the sumer, 'Come into Paradise' And he said to the other 'What, can you prevent My compassion on my servant?' He said, 'I cannot, O my Lord' And God said to the angels 'Carry him to the fire.'"

PARENTAGE The periods of six months and of two years are fixed as the shortest and longest periods of pregnancy, and consequently any child bern within those periods is assumed to be the child of the woman's husband, even though she be either a widow or divorced This strange ruling of Muslim law is founded on a declaration of · Ayıshah who is related to have said, "The child does not remain in the wamh of the mother beyond two years '

The Iman ash-Shaff's has said the longest period of pregnancy extends to four years (Hamilton's Hulayah, vol. 1 p. 883.)

If a person acknowledge the perentage of a child who is able to give an account of himself, and the ages of the parties are such as to admit of the one being the child of the other, and the parentage of the child be not well known to any person, and the child him self verify the statement, the parentage is established (Ibid, vol. in p 169)

PARENTS, Duty to, is frequently encined in the Qur'au, for example, Sürah xvil. 24, 25. "Thy Lord hath decreed that ye shall be kind to your parents, whether one or both of them reach old age with thee, and ye must not say, 'Fio!' (Uff) nor grumble at them, but speak to them a generous speech And lower to them the wing of humility out of compassion, and say, 'O Lord! have compassion on them, as they brought me up when I was little!'"

PARISH In connection with the mosques of cities and villages there are appointed districts not unlike English parishes. Within these districts the Imam of the mosque is held responsible for the marriagos and burials of the people, and his services can be claimed for these ceremonies, for which he receives customary fees. Any other Maulawi performing marriages or burials, is expected to obtain the permission of the Imam of the parish. In fact, the position of the Imam of a mosque is similar to that of a beneficed clergymen. He receives the marriage and burial fees, fees at the ceremony of circumcision, thank offerings on the birth of a child, or on recovery from sickness, presents on the feetival days, &c., as well as the way f, or endowment, of the mosque

PARSI [MAJUS]
PARTURITION [NIFAS]

PATIENCE Arabic subr (y...), is frequently enjoined in the Qur'an, eg Surah in 148; "O ye who beheve! seek help through patience and prayer, verily God is with the patient

PAWNING [BAHN]
PEN, The, of Fate [QALAM]
PENTATEUCH [TAURAT]

PESTILENCE Arabic to un (world), waba (etc.) According to the teaching of Muhammad in the traditions, a pestilence is a punishment sent by God, it is also an occasion of martyrdom, and that Muslim will abides in the place where he is at the time of a pestilence, and dies of it, is admitted to the rank of a martyr. It is also enjoined that Mussimans shall not enter a place where there is a pestilence raging, but remain where they are until it is passed (Mishkat, book v oh 1)

PHARAOH Arabic Fir'aun (O) Heb The King of Egypt in the time of Moses Considered by all Muhammadans to be the try personnication of wickedness

Al-Baizāwi says Fir'aun was the common sitle of the kings of Egypt, just as Ossar was that of the Roman Emperors, and that the name of Pharaoh, according to some, was al-Walid ibn Mus ah, and according to others Musiab ibn Raiyām, and according to others Qābus, and that he lived 620 years. Abūladā' says that Mus'ab being 170 years old, and having no child, whilst he kept his herds, he saw a cow calf, and heard her say at the same time "O Mus'ab, be not grieved, thou shalt have a son, a wicked son, who shall be cast into hell," and that this son was the wicked Firaum of the time of Moses

In the Qui'an, Surah xxxviii 11, he is surnamed hu'ann Zu 'l-Autid, or "Pharach the master of the Stakes, who called the Apostles hare" Some say the stakes refer to the strength of his kingdom, others that they were instruments of torture and death which he used

Pharach was drowned in the Red Sen, and the commentators say that Gabriel would not let his body sink, but that it floated as a sign and a warning to the children of Israel. (See Qur an, Sürah x 90-92)

(See Qur an, Sürah x 90-92)

A further account of Pharach, as given in the Qui'an, will be found in the article on Moses. The Pharach of Joseph's time is said to be Raiyan ibn al Walid al-'Amliqi, the ancestor of the renowned Pharach in the time of Moses. [MOSES]

PHILOSOPHY, MUSLIM Arabic falsafah (la_is), or 'ilmu l-hikmah (la_is), or 'ilmu l-hikmah (la_is). The following account of Arabian philosophy is taken with permission from Professor Ueberweg's History of Philosophy, translated by G S Morris, M A (Hodder and Stoughton), voi 1 p 405—

(Rodder and Stoughton), vol 1 p 405 —
"The whole philsophy of the Arabians was only a form of Aristotelianism, tempered more or less with Neo-Platonic conceptions.
The medical and physical science of the Greeks and Greek philosophy became known to the Arabs especially under the rule of the Abassida (from A.D 750 on), when medical, and afterwards (from the time of the reign of Almamun, in the first half of the muth century) philosophical works were translated from Greek into Syriac and Arabic by Syriac Christians The tradition of Greek philosophy was associated with that combination of Piatonism and Aristotelianism which pre-vailed among the last philosophers of antiquity and with the study by Christian theologians of the Aristotelian logic as a formal organon of dogmatics, but in view of the rigid monotheism of the Mohammedan religion, it was necessary that the Aristotelian metaphysics, and especially the Aristotelian theology, should be more fully adopted among the Arabs than among the Neo-Platonists and Christians, and that in consequence of the union among the former of philosophical with medical studies, the works of Aristotle on natural scionce should be studied by them with especial zeal.

"Of the Arabian philosophers in the East, the most important were Alkendi (al-Kindi), who was still more renowned as a mathematician and astrologer. Alfarabi (al-Fārābi), who adopted the Neo-Platonic doctrine of emanation; Avicenna (Abū Sinā), the representative of a purer Aristotelianism and a man who for centuries, even among the Christian scholars of the later mediaval centuries, stood in the highest consideration as a philosopher, and, stall more, as a teacher of medicine, and, finally, Algazel (al-Ghazzālı), who maintained a philosophical skepticism in the interest of theological orthodoxy

"The most important Arabian philosophers in the West were Avempace (Ibn Badja), Abubacer (Abu Bakr Ibn Tnfail), and Averroes (Ibn Rashid) Avempace and Abubacer dwell in their works on the idea of the independent and gradual development of man. Abubacer (in his 'Natural Man') develops this idea in a spirit of opposition to positive religion, although he affirms that positive religion and philosophical doctrine pursue the same end, namely, the union of the human intellect with the divine Averroës, the celebrated commentator of Aristotle, interprets the doctrine of the latter respecting the active and the passive intellect m a sense which is nearly pantheratic and which excludes the idea of individual immortality He admits the exist-ence of only one active intellect, and affirms that this belongs in common to the whole human race, that it becomes temporarily par ticularized in individuals, but that each of its emanations becomes finally reabsorbed in the original whole, in which alone, therefore,

they possess immortality
"The acquaintance of the Mohammedan Arabs with the writings of Aristotle was brought about through the agency of Syrian Christians Before the time of Mohammed, many Nestorian Syrians lived among the Arabs as physicians Mohammed also had intercourse with Nestonian monks Haueth Ibn Calda, the friend and physician of the Prophet, was a Nestorian. It was not, how ever, until after the extension of the Mohammeden rule over Syria and Persia, and chiefly after the Abasadas had commenced to reign (A D 750), that foreign learning, espe outly in medicine and philosophy, became gene rally known among the Arabs Philosophy had already been cultivated in those countries during the last days of Neo Platonism, by David the Armeniau shout 500 AD , his Prolog to Philos and to the Isagoge, and his commentary on the Categ, in Brandis' Collection of Scholin to Arist , his works, Venice, 1828 on him of O F Neumann, Paris, 1829) and afterwards by the Syrians, especially Christian Syrians, translated Greek authors, particularly medical, but afterward philosophical authors also, first into Syriac, and then from Syriac into Arabic (or they, perhaps, made use also of earlier Syriac translations some of which are to-day extant)

"During the reign and at the instance of Almamun (A D. 818-838), the first translations of works of Aristotle into Arabic were made, under the direction of Johannes Ibn al-Batrik is the son of the Patriarch, who, according to Renan [il, p 57], is to be distinguished from Johannes Mesue, the physician), these translations, in part still extant, were regarded

(according to Abulfaragus, Histor Dynast p 153 et al) as fatitiful but melegant,

"A man more worthy of mention is Honein Ibn Ishak (Johanntius), a Nestorian, who flourished under Motewakkel, and died in Acquainted with the Syriae, Arabic, and Greek languages, he was at the head of a school of interpreters at Bagdad, to which his son Ishak Beu Honem and his nephew Hobersch-el-Asam also belonged The works not only of Aristotle himself, but also of several ancient Aristotelians (Alexander Aphrodusiensis, Themistius, and also Neo-Platonic exegetes, such as Porphyry and Ammonius), and of Galemis and others, were translated into (Syriac and) Arabic these translations, also, some of those in Arabic are still existing, but the Syriac translations are all lost (Honein's Arabic translation of the Categories has been edited by Jul Theod Zenker, Leips 1846) In the tenth century new translations, not only of the works of Aristotle, but also of Theophrastus, Akxender of Aphrodisias, Theomistius, Syrianus, Ammenius, etc., were produced by Syrian Christians, of whom the most important were the Nestorians, Abu Baschai Mata and Jahja ben Adi, th Tagritan, as also Isa Ben Zaraa The Syriac translations (or revisions of earlier translations) by these men nave been lost, but the Arabio translations were widely circulated and have in large measure been preserved, they were used by Alfarabi, Avicenna, Averrocs, and the other Arabian philosophers The Republic, Timous, and Laws of Plate, were also translated into Arabio Averroes (in Spain, about 1150) possessed and paraphrased the Rep, but he did not the Politics of Aristotle, the book existing in MS at Pans, entitled Staset (Siyasah), i.e. Politica, is the spurious work De Regimine Principum s Secretum Secretorum, the Polities of Aristotle is not known to exist in Arabic Farther, extracts from the Neo Platonists, especially from Proclus, were translated into Arabic The Syrians were led, especially in consequence of their contact with the Arabe, to extend their studies beyond the Organon, they began to cultivate in the Arabic language all the branches of philosophy on the basis of Aristotle's works, and in this they were after wards followed by the Arabithemselves, who soon surpassed their Synan teachers rabi and Avicenna were the scholars of Syrian and Christian physicians The later Syrian philosophy bears the type of the Arabian philosophy The most important representative of the former was Gregorius Barhebraus or Abulfaragins, the Jacobite, who lived in the thirteenth century, and was descended from Jewish parents, and whose compendium of the Perspatetic philosophy (Butyrum Suprentia) is still of great authority among the Syrians
"Alkendi (Abu Jusuf Jacub Ibn Eshak al

"Alkendi (Abu Jusuf Jacub Ibn Eshak al Kendi, ie the father of Joseph, Jacob, son of Isaac, the Kendwan, of the district of Kendah) was born at Busra on the Persian Gulf, where later, in the tenth century, the Brothers of Purity' or the 'Singere Brothern,' who collected man Encyclopedia the learning then acceptable to the Arabians, were located. He lived during and after the first half of the ninth century, dying about 870 He was renowned as a mathematician, astrologer, physician, and philosopher He composed commentaries on the logical writings of Aristotle, and wrote also on metaphysical problems. In theology he was a rationalist. His astrology was founded on the hypothesis that all things are so bound together by harmonious causal relations, that each, when completely conceived, must represent as in a mirror the whole nurverse.

Affarabi (Abu Nasr Mohammed han Mo-hammed ben Tarkhan of Farab), born near the end of the much century, received his philosophical training mainly at Bagdad, where he also began to teach. Attached to the mystical sect of the Saft, which Said Abul Chair had founded about A v 820 (under the unmustakable influence of Buddhism, sithough Tholuck ["Soufinnes" Berlin, 1821, and Bisthensammlung aus der Margenland Mystik, Berlin, 1825] assigns to it a purely Mohammedan origin), Aliarabi went at a later emch to Alappo and Damascus, where he died Ali 950 In logie Alfarabi follows Aristotle almost without exception Whether logic is to be regarded as a part of philosophy or not depends according to Alfarabi on the greater or less extension given to the conception of philosophy, and is therefore a useless question Argumentation is the instrument by which to develop the unknown from the known, it is employed he the utens logicum, logica docens is the theory which relates to this matrament, argumentation, or which treats of it as its subject (subjectum). Yet logic also treats of single concepts (incomplexa) as elements of judgments and argumentations (according to Alfarabi, as reported by Albertus M., De Practiculat 1 2 seq. of Prantl, Gesch der Log, 11 p 302 veg.) Ma rabi defines the universal (see Alt. M. De Praed, 11 b) as the unum de multis et an multis, which definition is followed immediately by the inference that the universal bas no existence apart from the individual (non habit case separatum a multis) It is northy of notico that Alfarabi does not admit in its absolute some the aphorism singulaic sentitin unioeisale intelligitue but touones that the singular, although in its material aspect an object of senarble por "prilon, exists in its formal aspect in the intellect and, on the other hand, that the universal, although as such belonging to the intellect, exists also in sensu, in so far as it exists blended with the individual (Alb., An post i 1,3) Among the coments of the Metaphysios of Alfarabi, mention should be made of his proof of the existence of God, which was employed by Albertus Mugnus and later philosopherse This proof is founded on Plat, Tim, p 28 τῷ γενομενο φαμέν ὑπ' dirlou τενός ἀνάγκην είναι γενέσθαι and Arist. Metaph, sin 7 ἐστι τοιι τι καὶ o wiver, etc, or on the principle that all change and all development must have a cause. Alfarabi distinguishes (Fontes Guestionum ch. 9 seq., in Schmolders Doc Phil Ar, p 44), between that which has a possible and that which has a necessary existence, just as Plate and Aristotle distinguish between the changeable and the sternal) If the possible is to exist in reality, a cause is necos-sary thereto. The world is composite, hence it had a beginning or was caused (ch 2) But the series of causes and effects can neither recede in infinitum, por return like a circle into itself it must, therefore, depend upon some necessary link, and this link is the first being (ens primum) This first being exists necessarily, the supposition of its nonexistence involves a contradiction. It is uncaused, and needs in order to its existence no cause external to steelf It is the cause of all that exists Its eterminy implies its perfaction It is free from all accidents It is simple and unchangeable. As the absolutely Good it is at once absolute thought, absolute object of thought, and absolute thinking being, (intelligentiu, intelligible, intelligens) It has. wisdom, his, meight might, and will beauty, excellence, heightness, it enjoys the highest happiness, a the first willing being and the first coject of will (desire) In the knowledge of this being, Aliarabi (De rebus studio Arist phil praintt Comm, th 4 ap Schmölders, Dor ph Arab p 22), seen the end of philosophy, and he d fines the practical duty of man as consisting in thing, so far as human torce permits it, into likeness with God In his teichings respecting that which is caused by or derived from God (Funtes Quast, ch 6 seq), Alfarabi follows the Noo-Platomsts His fundamental conception is expressed by the word emanation The first created thing was the Intellect, which came forth from the first being (the Novs of Plotinus, this doctrine was logically consistent only for Piotinus not for Alfarabi, since the former represented his One as superior to all pre dicates, while Alfarabi in agreement with Aristotle and with religious dogmatics, recognized in his first being intelligence) From this intellect flowed forth, as a new emanation, the Cosmical Soul, in the complication and combination of whose ideas the hasts of corporeality is to be found Emanation procoeds from the higher or outer spheres to the lower or uner ones In bodies, matter and form are necessarily combined with each other Perrestrial bodies are composed of the four clements. The lower physical powers, up to the potential intellect, are dependent on matter. The potential intellect through the operation (m-beaming) of the active divine intellect, is made actual (intellectus in actu or in effectu), and this actual intellect, as resulting from devolopment, may be called acquired intellect (intellectus acquisitus, after the doctrine of Alexander of Aphrodistas, concerning the vois inikripros) The actual human intellect is free from matter, and is a simple substance, which alone survives the death of the body and remains indestructible. Evil is a necessary condition of good in a finite world All things are under divine guidance and are good, since all was created by God. Between the human understanding and the things which it seeks to know there exists (as Alfarabi teaches, De Intellecto et Intellectus, p. 48 seg) a similarity of form, which arises from their having both been formed by the same flist being, and which makes knowledge possible

"Avicenna (Abu Alı Al Hosam Abdallah Ibn Sina) was born at Afsenna, in the province of Bokhara, in the year 980 His mind was early developed by the study of theology, philosophy, and medicine, and in his youth he had already written a scientific encyclopedia He taught medicine and philosophy in Ispahan. He died at Hamadan in the fifty-eighth year of his life. His medical Conon was emplayed for centuries as the basis of instruction. In philosophy he set out from the doctrines of Alfarabi, but modified them by omitting many Neo Platonic theorems and approximating more nearly to the real doctrine of Aristotle The principle on which his logic was founded, and which Averroes adopted and Albertus Magnus often cites, was destimed to exert a great influence. It was worded thus Intellectus in forms agit universalitatem (Alb., De Prædicub, is B and 6) The gonus, as also the species, the differentia the accidens, and the proprium, are in thomselves neither universal nor singular the thinking mind, by comparing the similar forms forms the genus logicum, which answers to the definition of the genus, viz. That it is predicated of many objects specifically different and answers the question, What is it? (tells the quiditas) It is the genus s'aturale which furnishes the basis of comparison When the mind adds to the generic and spe cific the individual accidents, the sugular is formed (Avic, Loy, Venice edition, 1505, 1 12, an. Pranti Geschichte der Logik, ii 347 seq) Only figuratively according to Avicania, can the genus be called matter and the specific difference form, such phrasology (frequent in Aristotle) is not strictly correct Avicanna distinguishes several modes of generic existence, viz ante res, in rebus, and post res. Genera are oute res in the mind of God, for all that exists is related to God as a work of art is related to an artist it existed in his wisdom and wall before its ontrance into the world of manifold existence, in this sense, and only m this sense, is the universal before the individual. Realized with its accidents in metter, the genus constitutes the natural thing, res naturalis, in which the universal essence is immanent The third mode of the existence of the genus is that which it has in being conceived by the human intellect when the latter abstracts the form and then compares it again with the individual objects to which by one and the same definition it belongs, in this comparism (respectes) is contained the universal (Avic., Log., f. 12, Metaph. v 1.2, f 87, in Practl, if. p 849) Our thought which is directed to things, contains nevertheless dispositions which are poculiar to itself, when things are thought, there is added in thought something which does not exist outside of thought. Thus universality as such, the generic concept and the specific différence, the subject and predicate, and other similar elements, belong only to thought. Now it is possible to direct the attention, not merely to things, but also to the dispositions which are peculiar to thought, and this takes place in logic (Mctaph., 1 2, ut. 10, in Prantl it. p 320 seq). On this is based the distinction of first and second intentions. The direction of attention to things is the first intention (intentio prima) the second intention (intentio semindu) is directed to the dispositions which are peculiar to our thinking concerning things Since the universal as such belongs not to things but to thought it belongs to the second intention. The principle of in dividual plurality, according to Avicenna, is matter, which he regards, not with Alfarabi as an emanation from the Cosmical Soul, but with Aristotle as eternal and uncreated, all potentiality is grounded in it, as actuality is in God Nothing changeable san come forth directly from the unchangeable first cause. His first and only direct product is she intelligentia primat (the vous of Plotinus, as with Altarabi), from it the chain of emanations extends through the various celestral spheres down to our earth But the issuing of the lower from the higher is to be conceived, not as a single, temporal act, but as an eternal act, in which cause and effect are synchronone The cause which gave to things their existence must centinually maintain them in existence, it is an error to imagine that things once brought into existence continue therein of themselves Notwithstanding its dependence on God, the world has existed from eternity Time and motion always were (Aric Metaph, vi 2, et al. of the account in the Tractarius de Erroribus, ap Hauresu, Ph. Se., 1 p. 868) Aviconna distinguishes a twofold dovelopment of our potential unversiond ing into actual ty the one common depending on instruction, the other rare, and dependent on immediate divine ill mination. According to a report transmitted to us by Averroes, Avicenna, in his Philosophia Orientales, which has not come down to us, con-

tatic, which has not come down to us, ronceived God as a heavenly body

"Algazel (Abu Hamed Mohammed Ibn Achmed Al-Ghazzall), born a.o 1059 at Gnazzalah in Knorasan taught first at Bag dad, and alterwords, having become a Shii, resided in Syria. Ho died a.o 1111 at Tus
He was a sceptie in philosophy, but only that his faith might be all the stronger in the doctrines of theology. His course in this respect marked a reaction of the exclusively religious principle of Mohammedanism against philosophical speculation—which in spite of all accommodation had not made itself fully orthodox—and particularly agab t Aristotehanism between the mysticism of the Neo Platousts, on the contrary and the Strism of Algazel there axisted an essential affinity.
In his Makagad al filasifa (Magazida i-Falia fat), 'The Aims of the Philosophers, Algazel sets forth the doctrines of philosophy following essentially Alfarab; and particularly Avicenna These doctrines are then subjected by him to a hostile criticism in his Tehafot al Manja (Takajutu 'l-Falānjak), Against the Philosophers, while in his 'Fundamental Principles of Faith,' he presents positively his own views Averroes wrote by way of rejoinder his Destructio Destructionis Philosophorum. Algazel exerted himself especially to excite a fear of the chastisements of God, since in his opinion the mon of his times were hving in too great assurance. Against the philosophers he defended particularly the religious dogmas of the oreation of the world in time and out of nothing, the reality of the divine attributes, and the resurrection of the body, as also the power of God to work mi racles, in opposition to the supposed law of cause and effect In the Middle Ages, his suposition of logic, metaphysics, and physics, as given in the Makacid, was much lead

"The result of the scepticism of Algazel was in the East the triumph of an unphiloso phical orthodoxy, after him there a cose in that quarter no philosopher worthy of mention
On the other hand, the Arabian philosophy began to flourish in Spain, where a succession of thinkers cultivated its various branches

"Avempace (Abu Bakr Mohammen ben Jahja Ibn Badja), born at Salagossa near the end of the eleventh century, was celebrated as a physician, mathematician, astronomer, and philosopher About 1118 he wrote, at Saville, a number of logical treatiess At a later period ho lived in Granada, and afterwards also in Africa. He died at a not very advanced age in 1138, without having completed any extensive works, yet he wrote several smaller (mostly lost) treatises, among which, according to Munk (Melanges, p 386), were Logical Fractates (still existing, according to Casiri, Biblioth Arabus-Hisp Encurealences, 1 p 179, in the library of the Escurial), a work on the soul, another on the conduct of the solitary (regime de solitaire), also on the union of the universal intellect with man, and a farewell latter to these may be added commentaries on the Physics Meteorology, and other works of Aristotle relating to physical science Mank gives the substance of the Conduct of the Solitary, as reported by a Jawish philoso pher of the fourtoenth century, Moses of Nar bonne (Mel, pp 389-409) This work treats of the degrees by which the soul mass from that matinctive life which it shares with the lower animals, through gradual emancipation from materiality and potentiality to the acquired intellect (intellectus acquisitus) which is an emanation from the active intel lect or Dsity Avempace seem (according to Averroes, De Anima, fol 1684) to have identified the intellectus materialis with the imaginative faculty. In the highest grads of knowledge (m self-consciousness) thought is identical with its object.

"Abuhacer (Abu Bakr Mohammed hen Abd al Malie Ibn Tophail al Keisi) was born in about the year 1100, at Wadi-Asch (Guadix), in Andalusia, and died in 1185, in Morocco Ho was celebrated as a physician, mathematician, philosopher, and poet, and pursued still further the path of speculation opened up by Ibn Badja. His chief work, that has come down to us, is entitled Han Ibn Jakdhan (Hanyu bau Yaqasa), se the Living One, the Son of the Waking One The fundamental idea is the same as in Ibn Badja's 'Conduct of the Solitary' it is an exposition of the gradual development of the capacities of man to the point whose his intellect becomes one with the Divine But Ibn Tophail goes considerably farther than his predecessor in maintaining the independence of man in opposition to the institutions and opinions of human society In his theory he represents the individual as developing himself without external aid That independence of thought and will, which man now owes to the whole course of the previous history of the human race, is regarded lev him as existing in the natural mon, out of whom he makes an extra historical ideal (like Rousseau in the eighteenth century) Ibn Tophail regards positive reli-gion, with its law founded on reward and punishment, as only a necessary means of discipline for the multitude, religious con-ceptions are in his view only types or envelopes of that truth to the logical comprehension of which the philosopher gradually approaches

"Averrocs (Abul Walid Mohammed Ibn Achmed Ibn Roschd), born A.D 1126, at Cordova, whore his grandfather and father filled high judicial offices, studied first positive theology and jurisprudence and then medicine, mathematics, and philosophy He obtained subsequently the office of judge at Seville, and alterwards at Cordova. s jumor contemporary and friend of Ibn Tophail, who presented him to Calif Abu Jacub Jusuf soon after the latters ascent of the throne (1163), and recommended him, in place of immself, for the work of preparing an analysis of the works of Aristotle Ibn Roschd won the favour of this prince, who was quite familiar with the problems of philosophy, and at a later epoch he became his physician in ordinary (1182) For a time also he was in favour with a son of the prince, Jacub Almansur, who succeeded to his father's rule in 1184, and he was still honoured by him in 1195 But seen after this date he was accused of cultivating the philosophy. and science of antiquity to the projudice of the Mohammedan religion, and was robbed by Almansur of his dignities and banished to Elisans (Lucens) near Cordova, he was afterwards tolerated in Morocoo A street prohibition was issued against the study of Greek philosophy, and whatever works on logic and metaphysics were discovered were dshvered to the flames dshvered to the flames Averroes died in 1198, in his seventy third year Soon after, the rule of the Moore in Spain came to an end The Arabian philosophy was extinguished, and liberal culture sunk under the exclusive rule of the Koran and of dog-

"Averroes shows for Aristotle the most unconditional reverence, going in this respect much farther than Avigenna; he considers him, as the founders of religion are wont to be considered, as the man whom alone, among all men, God permitted to reach the highest summit of perfection. Aristotle was, in his opinion, the founder and perfecter of scientific knowledge In logic, Averroes everywhere lunits hunself to merely annotating Aristotle The principle of Avicenna intellectus in formis ugit universalitatem, is also his (Averr , De An , 1 8 of Alb M. De Producab, n ch b) become treats not of universal things, but of individuals under their universal aspect, which the understanding recognises after making abstraction of their common nature (Destr dostr fol 17 Scientia autem non est scientia rei universalia, sed est scientia particularium modo universali quem facit intellectus in particularibus, quum abstrahit ab 118 naturam unan rommunem, quos dimen est in materia)
The forms, which are developed through the influence of higher forms, and in the last resort through the influence of Desty are contained embryonically in matter

"The most noticeable thing in his psychology in the explanation which he gives of the Aristotelian distinction between the active and the passive intellect (vous wathricks and mountaces). Thomas Aquinas, who opposes the explanation, gives it in these words. Intelectum substantium eur omnino ab anima separatam, esseque unum in omnibus hominibus,nec Doum facer posse quod sint plures intel-lectus; but, he says, Averoes added per rationem concludo de necessitate quod intellectus est unus numero, firmiler tamen teneo opposituin per fidem. In his commentary to the twelfth book of the Metaphysics Averroes compares the relation of the active reason to man with that of the sun to vision, as the sun, by its light, brings about the act of seeing, so the notive reason enables us to know, hereby the rational capacity in man is developed into actual reason, which is one with the active reason. Averages attempts to recognise two opinions, the one of which he ascribes to Alexander of Aphrodistas, and the other to Themistius and the other commentators. Alexander, he says, had held the passive intellect (νους παθητικός) to be a mere disposition' connected with the animal faculties, and in order that it might be able perfectly to receive all forms, absolutely formless, this disposition was in us, but the active intellect (vous mointeres), was without us, after our death our individual intellects no longer exteted Themistius, on the contrary, and the other commentators, had regarded the passive intellect not as a mere disposition connected with the lower psychical powers, but as mhering in the same substratum to which the active intellect belonged, this substratum, according to them, was distinct from those animal powers of the soul which depend on material organs, and as it was immaterial, immortality was to be predicated of the indi-vidual intellect inhering in it. Averroës, on the other hand, held that the passive intellect (vous παθητικός) was, indeed, more than a mere disposition, and assumed (with Themistius and most of the other Commentators, except Alexander) that the same substance was passive and sotive intellect (namely, the fermer in so far as it received forms, the latter m so far as it constructed forms), but he desied that the same substance in steelf and in its individual existence was both passive and active, assuming (with Alexander) that there existed only one active intellect in the world, and that man had only the 'disposition' in virtue of which he could be affected by the active in ellect, when the active intellect came in contact with this disposition there arose in us the passive or material intellect, the one active intel lect becoming on its entrance into the plurality of souls particularized in them, just as light is decomposed into the diffe-ient colours in bodies. The passive intel-lect was (according to Munk's translation) · Une chose composée de la disposition qui existe en nous et d'un intellect qui se joint a cette dis-position, et qui, en tant qu'il y est joint, est un intellect predisposé (en puissance) et non pas un intellect en acie, mass qui est intellect en acie en lant qu'il n'est plus joint a la disposi-tion' (from the Commentaire moyen sus le traité de l'Ane, in Munk's Mél., p. 447), the active intellect worked first upon the passive, so as to develop it into actual and acquired intellect, and then on this latter, which it absorbed into stacif, so that after our death it could be said that our vous, mind, continued to existthough not as an individual substance, but only as an element of the universal mind. But Averroes did not identify this universal mind (as Alexander of Aphrodisias identified the νούς ποιητικός) with the Deity himself, but conceived it (following in this the earlier Arabian commentators and directly the Neo-Platoni-ts) as an emanation from the Deity, and as the mover of the lowest of the celestial olrcles, se the sphere of the moon. doctrine was developed by Averroes, particularly in his commentaries on the Jie Anima, whereas, in the Paraphrase (written earlier) he had expressed himself in a nore individualistic sense (Averr, ap Munk, Mélanges, p 442 seq ) The psychological teaching of Averrors resembled, therefore, in the character of its definitions, that of Themsetius, but in its real content that of Alexander Aphrodisiensis, since both Averroes and Alexander innited the individual existence of the human intellect (vous) to the period procoding death, and recognized the eternity only of the one universal active intellect (νους ποιητικός) For this reason the doctrue of the Alexandrists and of the Averroists were both condemned by the Catholic Church

"Averroes professed himself in no sense hostile to religion, least of all to Mohammedanism, which he regarded as the most perfect of all religions He demanded in the philosopher a grateful adherence to the religion of his people, the religion in which he was educated. But by this 'adherence' he meant only a skilful accommodation of his views and life to the requirements of positive religion-a course which could not but fail to satisfy the real defenders of the religious principle. Averross considered religion as containing philosophical truth under the veri of figurative representation, by allegorical interpretation one might advance to purer knowledge, while the masses held to the literal sense. The highest grade of intelligence was philosophical knowledge the peculiar religion of the philosopher consisted in the deepening of his knowledge, for man could offer to God no worther cultus than that of the knowledge of his works, through which we attain to the knowlege of God himself in the fulness of His essence (Averroes in the larger Commentary on the Metoph, ap Munk, Melanges, p 455 seq )"

Dr Marcus Dods remarks that "in philosophy the attainments of the Arabians have probably been overrated (see Lit Hist of Middle Ages, by Berrangton p 445) rather than depreciated As middle-men or transmitters indeed, their importance can scarcely be too highly estimated They were keen students of Aristotle when the very language in which he wrote was unknown in Roman Christendom and the commentaries of Averroes on the most exact of Greek philosophers ere said to be worthy of the text It was at the Mohammadan university in his native city of Cordova, and from Arabian teachers that this precursor of Spinosa derived those germs of thought whose fruit may be seen in the whole history of sobolastic theology And just before Averrose entered these learned halls, a young man passed from them, equipped with the same learning, and gifted with genius and penetration of judgment which have made hie opinions final wherever the name of Memonides is known Undoubtedly these two fellow-citizens—the Mohemmedan Arab and the Arabic-speak ing Jew-have left their mark deep on all subsequent Jewish and Christian learning And even though it be doubted whether their influence has been wholly beneficial, they may well be olaimed as instances of the intellectual ardour which Mohammedan learning could inspire or awaken A recent writer of great promise in the philosophy of religion has assigned to the Arab thinkers the honourable function of creating modern philosophy 'Theology and philosophy became in the bands of the Moors fused and blended, the Greek scientific theory as to the origin of things interwound with the Hebrew faith in a Creator And so speculation became in a new and higher sense theistic, and the internew and higher sense sheaten, and the inver-pretation of the universe, the explication of God's relation to it and its relation to God.' (Fairbairn's Studies, p 398) But specula-tion had become theistic long before there was an Arab philosophy 'The same ques tions which form the staple of modern philosophy were discussed at Alexandria three centuries before Mohammed; and there is scarcely a Christian thinker of the third or fourth century who does not write in preeence of the great problem of God's connection with the world, the relation of the Infinite to the finite, of the unseen intangible Spirit to the crass material universe. What we have here to do with, however, is not to ascertain whether modern philosophy be truly the ofspring of the unexpected marriage of Aristotle and the Koran, but whether the religion promulgated in the latter is or is not obstructive of intellectual effort and enlightenment. And enough has been said to show that there is nothing in the religion which necessarily and directly tends to obstruct either philosophy or science, though when we consider the history and achievements of that race which has for six centuries been the leading representative of Islam, we are inclined to add that there is nothing in the religion which necessarily leads on the mind to the highest intellectual affort Voltaire, in his own nervous way, exciaims, 'I detest the Turks, as the tyrants of their wives and the enemies of the arts' And the religion has shown an affinity for such uncivilised races It has not taken captive any race which pessesses a rich literature, nor has it given birth to any work of which the world demands a translation, and precisely in so far as individuals have shown themselves possessed of great speculative and oreative genus, have they departed from the rigid orthodoxy of the Koran. We should conclude, therefore, that the outburst of literany and scientific outhusiasm in the eighth century was due, not directly to the influence of the Mohammedan religion, but to the mental awakening and exultant consciousness of power and widened horizon that came to the conquering Saracens At first their newlyawakened energy found scope in other fields than that of philosophy 'Marte undique obstrepents, musis viz erat locus' But when the dm of war died down, the voice of the Muses was heard, and the same fervour which had made the Saracon arms irresistible, was spent now in the acquirement of knowledge "Mo-hammed, Buddha, and Christ, p 118)

PICTURES Muhammad cursed the painter or drawer of men and animals (Mishkät, book xii, ch i. pt. 1), and consequently they are held to be unlawful.

PILGRIMAGES TO MAKKAH are of two kinds the Hay or special pilgramage performed in the month of Zu 'l-Hijjah, and the Unirah, or visitation, which may be performed at any time of the year [HAJJ, 'UMRAH.]

PIR (mt) The Persian word for an elder A term used for a murshed, or religious leader [surman]

PLAGUES OF EGYPT The following references occur to the ten plagues of Egypt in the Qur'an

Sirah vili. 127-125 "Already had we chartised the people of Pharach with dearth and acarcity of fruits, that haply they might "Already had we take warning and when good fell to their lot they said, 'This is our due.' But if ill befell them, they regarded Moses and his par-tizans as (the birds) of ill omen. Yet, was not their evil omen from God? But most of them knew it not And they said, 'Whatever sign thou bring us for our enchantment, we will not believe on thee And we sent upon them the flood and the locusts and the qummal (hoe) and the frogs and the blood, -clear signs-but they behaved proudly, and were a simful people. And when any plague fell upon them, they said, 'O Moses ! pray for us to thy Lord, according to that which he hath covenanted with thee Truly if thou take off the plague from us, we will surely believe thee, and will surely send the ohildren of Israel with thee.' But when we had taken off the plague from them, and the time which God had granted them had expired, behold they broke their promise Therefore we took vengeance on them and drowned them in the sea, because they treated our signs as falsehoods and were heedless of them. And we gave to the people who had been brought so low, the eastern and the western lands, which we had blessed as an heritage and the good word of thy Lord was fulfilled on the children of Israel hecause they had borne up with patience and we destroyed the works and the structures of Pharaoh and his people And we brought the children of Israel across the sea, and they came to a people who gave themselves up to They said, 'O Moses' make us their idols a god, as they have gods He said, Verily, ye are an ignorant people for the worship they practice will be destroyed, and that which they do is vanity!""

In the Surah xvii 103-104, they are referred to as "nine clear signs," which some commentators understand to be the commandments of Moses

"We heretofore gave to Moses nine clear signs. Ask thou, therefore, the children of Israel how it was when he came unto them, and Pharach said to him, 'Verily, I deem thee, O Moses, a man enchanted'

"Said Moses, 'Thou knowest that none hath sent down these clear signs but the Lord of the Heavens and of the Earth, and I suraly deem thee, O Pharach a person lost'"

Mr Sale, translating from the Jalalan and al-Barawi, says "These were, the changing his red into a serpent, the making his hand white and shining, the producing locusts, hee, frogs, and blood, the dividing of the Red Sea, the bringing water out of the rook, and the shaking of Mount Sinai over the children of larael. In lieu of the three last, some reckon the mundation of the Nile, the blasting of the corn and scarcity of the fruits of the earth. These words, however, are interpreted by others not of nine miraeles, but of nine commandments, which Moses gave his people and were thus numbered up by Muhammad himself to a Jew, who asked him the question, viz. That they should not be guilty of idelatry, nor steal, nor commit adultery or murder, nor practise sorcery or usury, nor accuse an innecent man to take away his life, or a modest woman of whoredom, nor desert the army, to which he added the observing of the Sabhath as a tenth commandment, but which peculiarly regarded the Jews, upon which answer, it is said, the Jew kissed the Prophet's hand and feet."

PLANETS Arabic as-sayyāraḥ (قريام) According to Arabic writers, there are seven planets, called an-Najūmu's-bayyārāt (عليام), or, collectively, as-Sayyārah the wandering stars, as distinguished from fixed stars, or an-Najūmu's-sauābit (المورم الدوابية). These planets are said to be situated in the seven firmaments in the following order (1) Al-Qamar, Moon, (2) 'Uṭārad, Mercury, (3) Zuhrah, Venus (4) ash-Shass, Sun, (5) al-Mirrikh, Mars, (6) al-Mushtari, Jupiter, (7) Zuhal, Saturn. (Vide Kashkāf-i-Iṣṭilaḥāt, in loco) It will be seen that the Arabian arrangement of the planets is that of Ptolemy, who

It will be seen that the Arabian arrangement of the planets is that of Ptolemy, who placed the earth in the centre of the universe, and nearest to it the moon, whose synodic revolution is the shortest of all, being performed in 20½ days. Next to the moon he placed Mercury, who returns to his conjunctions in 116 days. After Mercury followed Venus, whose periodic time is 584 days. Beyond Venus he placed the Sun, then Mars next Jupiter, and lastly Saturn, beyond which are the fixed stars.

PLUNDER Arabic ahanimah (فيء), fay' (فيمة) If the Imam, or leader of the Muslim army conquer a country by force of arms he is at liberty to leave the land in possession of the original proprietors, provided they pay tribute, or he may divide it amongst the Muslims, but with regard to movable property, it is unlawful for him to leave it in possession of the infidels, but he must bring it away with the army and divide it amongst the soldiers Four fifths of the spoils belong to the troops, and the remsining one-fifth must be divided into three equal portions for the relief of orphans, the feeding of the poor, and the en-tertainment of travellers Captives form part of the plunder All cattle and baggage which cannot be earried away upon a retreat, must be destroyed (Hidāyah vol n p 159, Mishkut, book avn ch vin pt 1)

POETS Arabic shā'ur (هاعر), pl shu'arā'. Poetry, shi'r (همر) Muhammsd repudiated the idea of being a poet. See Qur'an

Sursh xxxvi 69 "We have not taught him poetry, nor was it proper for him, it is but a reminder and a plain Qur'an."

but a reminder and a plain Qur'an." Sursh lxix. 40, 41 "Verily it is the speech of a noble apostle, and it is not the speech of a poet"

The Qur'an being in manifest rhythm, and in some places actual poetry, the declaration of the Prophet, that he was not a poet has much perplexed the commentators But the Imam Fakhra d Din ar-Razi, has hit upon the following clever explanation of the difhoulty He says, that in order to be a post it is absolutely necessary that the poems should not be ampromptu verses, but deliberately framed, and that, therefore, although the Quran contains poetry (for example, in Surah xelv , which begins thus

الم نشرح لك مدرك ورضعنا عنك وزرك

Alum nashrah laka sadraka Wa wazaina anka wizraka

"Have we not oponed thy breast for thee? And taken off from thee thy burden 2 ') it, is not really poetry, because the writer did not deliberately intend to produce the rhythm!

The same excuse is urged for the lines which Muhammad is related to have uttered impromptu when his toe was wounded in battle .

هل انت الا امبع دمينها وفي سيل الله ما لقيت

Hat antı illä isha'un demiti ? Wa fi sabılı 'llāhı mā lagıtı

. Art thou anything but a too covered with blood ?

"What has happened to thee has been in the road of God"

Arabio scholara (see Kushju Istilāhāti 'l-Funun, in loco) divide the Arabic poets into six periode

(1) Al Jahiliyun, those in the time of ignorance or before lalam, such as the ancient Arabic poets Zuhair, Tarafah, Imru 7 Qais 'Amr ibn Kulsum, al-Häris and Antarah

(2) Al-Mukhzaramun (lit 'spurious'), those born in the time of ignorance but who embraced Islam, as Labid and Hassan, whose names occur in the traditions

(8) Al-Mutagaddimun (lit "first") those who were born in the time of Islam of parents who were converts to Islam, as Jam and

Farazdaq
(4) Al-Muwalladun, those who were born of true-born Muslims, as Bashar

(5) At-Muhdigun, the third generation of

Mushm poets, as Abū Tammām, and Bukhtarı. (6) Al-Muta'akhkhturun (ht "the last"), all succeeding poets

The Mutagaddimum, the Mumalle lun, and the Muhdisun, correspond with the Ashab, the Tabi un, and the Tabi Tabi un or the three first generations of Muslims

There are seven posses of ancient Arabia, who are known in bistory as the Mu'allagat, or "suspended," because they had been in turn suspended on the walls of the Makkan temple. They are also known as Muzahlabat, or the "golden" poems, because they were written in gold The names of their authors are Zuhair, Tarafah, Imru 'l-Qais, 'Amru ibn Kulsum, al-Haris, 'Antarah, and Labid The last of the seven embraced Islam. It is related that Labid had posted up in the Kathah his poem, heginning

ألا كل هي ما عمد الله باطل

Alā kulla sha'ın mā khala 'llāha bāţılu

"Know that everything is vanity but (lod"

But that when he saw the first verses of the Suratu T-Baqarah (n) of the Guran poeted up, he withdrew his verses and em-braced Islam Muhammad repain Labid w th the complement that the words, ' Know that everything is vanity but God," were the truest words ever uttered by a poet. (Mishkal, book xxu ch x)

In the earlier part of his mission, Muhammad affected to despise the poets, and in the Qur'an we flud him saying (Surah xxvi 224), "Those who go astray follow the poets", and in the Traditions, Mishlat, book xxii ch x. "A belly full of purulent matter is better than a belly full of poetry" But when Labid and Hassan embraced Islam, the poets rue into favour, and the Prophet utters the wise but cautions saying, that "poetry is a kind of composition, which if it is good it is good, and if it is bad it is bad" In the battle with the Banu Quraizah, the Prophet called out to Hassan the poet, Abuse the inheels in your verse, for truly the Holy Spirit (in the Hi dis it is Gubriel) will help you" It is also re-lated that the Prophet used to say "O I ord' help Hasain the post by the Holy Spirit (or Gabriel;"

It is generally admitted by Arabic scholars that the golden age of Arabic poetry was that immediately preceding or contemporaneous with Muhammad and that from the time of Muhammad there was a gradual decline Thie is not surprising, masmuch as the Qur'un is considered the most perfect model of composition over revealed to mankind and to be written in the language of Paradise

Baron MacGuckin de Siane, in his Introduction to Ibn Khallikan's Dictionary, says .

"The oldest monuments of Alabic literature which we still possess were composed within the century which preceded the birth of Muhammad Thet consist in short pieces of verse uttered on the spur of the moment, narramons of combats between hostile tribes, passages in rhythmical prose and kasidas (qualdabs), or elegies. The study of these remains reveals the existence of a language perfect in its form and application, admirably suited to express the various ideas which the aspect of usture could suggest to a pastoral people, and as equally adapted to portray the flercer passions of the mind The varie, y of its inflications, the regularity of its syntax, and the harmony of its prosody, are not less striking, and they furnish in themselves a sufficient proof of the high degree of sulture which the language of the Arabic nation had already attained. The superior ment of this early literature was ever afterwards acknowledged by the Arabs themselves It furnished thom not only with models, but ideas for their poetical productions, and its influence has always continued perceptible in the Kasida, which still contains the same thoughts, the same allusions as of old, and drags its slow length along in monotonous dignity. (p xv)

"The decline of Arabic postry can be easily traced down from the accession of the Abbasides to the time of the Aiyubites for many centuries the patrons of the belleslettres were of foreign extraction, and writers who sought their favour were obliged to conform their own judgment to that of persons who were in general unable to appreciate the true beauties of literary compositions Works which had obtained the patronage of the prince could not fail to fix the attention of other poets, who took them as models which they strove to unitate and to surpass common held in the schools that the ancient kasıdas were masterpieces of art, contributed also to the perversion of good taste, their plan and ideas were servilely copied, and it was by refinement of expression alone that writers could display their talent, verbal quibbles, far fotched allasions, thoughts borrowed from the old writers, and strained so as to be hardly recognisable, such were the means by which they strove to attam originainty, sense was sacrificed to sound, the most discordant ideas were linked together for the futile advantage of obtaining a recurrence of words having a similar written form or a similar pronunciation, p ets wrote for the ear and the eye, not for the mind, and yet the high estimation in which their productions were held may be judged from the readiness of Ibn Khalikan 'n quote them His taste was that of the ag in which he lived, and the extracts which he gives enable the reader to form an idea of the Arab mind at the period of the Crusades. The same feeling of impartiality which induces me to express so severe a censure on the generality of the Islamic poets, obliges me also to make some exceptions The kasidas of al-Mutanabbi are full of fire, daring originality, and depth of thought, he often reaches the sublime, and his style, though blemished by occasional faults, is very fine al-Bohtori is re markable for grace and elegance, Abû-l Alâ for dignity and beauty but Ibn al-Farid seems superior to them all, his pieces teem with sentiment and poetry, in his mystic reve ries he soars towards the confines of another world pervaded with spiritual beauty, and glides with the reader from ene enchanting scene to another, the judgment is captivated by the genius of the poet, and can hardly perceive the traits of false taste which disfigure, from time to time, his admirable style Having pointed out the influence of the ka-sida, or elegy, it may not be amiss to sketch the plan generally followed in this species of composition The poet, accompanied by two friends, approaches, after a long journey shrough the desert, to the place where he saw his mistress the year before, and where he hopes to meet her again. At his request, they direct the earnels on which they are mounted towards the spot, but the ruins of the rustic dwellings, the withered moss, brushwood, and branches of trees, with which were formed the frail abodes where the tribe had passed the summer, the hearthstenes blackened by the fire, the seltary raven hovering around in search of a seanty nourishment every object he perceives strikes him with the conviction that his beloved and her family have removed to some other region in the desert Overcome with grief, heedless of the consolations of his friends, who exhort him to be firm, he long remains plunged in silent affliction, at length he finds relief in a torrent of tears, and, raising up his head, he extemporares a mournful elegy He commences by mentioning the places which he had already visited in hopes of finding her whom he loved, and calls to mind the dangers which he had encountered in the desert. He describes the camel which, though fatigued, still full of ardour, had borne him into the depths of the wilderness, he vaunts his own courage and extols the glory of his tribe. An adventure which happened on the previous night then comes to his memory a fire blaz-ing on a lofty hill, had attracted their attention and guided them to the tent of a generous Arab, where they found shelter and hospitality He then praises the charms of his mistress, and complains of the pains of love and absence, whilst his companions harry hun away He casts a parting look towards the place where she had resided, and lol a dark cloud, fringed with rain, and rent with lightnings, overhangs the spot. This sight ills his heart with joy! an abundant shower is about to shed new life upon the parched soil, and thus onsure a rich herbage for the flocks, the family of his beloved will then soon return, and settle agein in their former habitati in 'Such may be considered as the online of the pastoral kasida. In these productions the same ideas almost constantly recur, and the same words frequently serve to axpress them. The eulogistic kasida, or poem in praise of some great man, assumes also the same form, with the sole difference that in place of a mistress it is a generous patron whom the poet goes to visit, or else, after praising the object of his passion, he celebrates the noble qualities of the man who is always ready, with abundant gifts, to bestow consolstion on the afflicted lover

"It results from this that a porson familiar with the mode of composition followed in the kasida, can often from a single word averse, perceive the drift of the peet, and discover, almost intuitively, the thoughts which are to follow. He has thus a means of determining the true readings amidst the mass of errors with which copylists usually disfigure. Arabic poetry knowing what the poet intends to say, he feels no longer any difficulty i disengaging the authors words from the faults of a corrupted text. The same peculiarity is frequently perceptible in pieces of a few verses, these generally reproduce some of the ideas contained in the kasida, and for this reason they are justly styled fragments by Arabic writers.

"There exist, also, some compositions of an orumal form such are the dubust, or distion, and the mawdisa, both borrowed from the Persians, and the muwashshaha, invented in Spain by Ibn Abd Rabbih. Pieces of this kind became general favourities by the novelty of their form and matter, the mawalia was adopted by the dervishes, and the muwashshaha was cultivated with passion and attamed its perfection in Andalusia, whence it was transported to the East It cannot be denied that the Moorish poets, with all their extravagance of thought and expression, were far superior in their perception of the beau-ties of nature and the delicacies of sentiment, to their brethren of the East, and the European reader will often discover in their poems, with some surprise, the same ideas, metaphors, and systems of versification, which characterise the works of the troubadours and the early Italian poets

"An idea borrowed from the ante-Islamic poets, and of frequent recurrence in the kasides of later authors, is the taif al khill (taifu 'l-bayat), or phantom The lover journeys with a caravan through the desert, for many nights his grief at being separated from his beloved prevents him from sleeping, but at length he yields to fatigue and closes his eyes A phantom then approaches towards him, unseen by all but himself, and in it he recognises the image of bis mistress, come to visit and console him It was sent to him by the beloved, or rather it is herself in spirit, who has crossed the dreary waste and floeted towards his couch, she, too had slept, but it was to go and see her lover in her dreams They thus meet in spite of the foes and spies who always surround the post, ready to betray him if he obtain an interview with the beloved, and who are so jealous, that they hinder him from sleeping, lest he should see her image in his dream, it is only when they slumber that he dare close his eyes.

"The figurative language of the Muslim poets is often difficult to be understood parciseus is the eye, the feeble stem of that plant bends languidly under its flower, and thus recalls to mind the languor of the eyes. Pearls signify both tears and teeth, the latter are sometimes called hallstones, from their whiteness and moisture, the lips are corne hans or rubies, the gums a pomegranate flower, the dark foliage of the myrtle is synonymous with the black hair of the beloved, or with the first down which appears on the cheeks of youths at the period of puberty. The down itself is called the szár or head-stall of the bridle, and the curve of the mar is compared to the letters lum and nun. Ringlets trace on the cheek or neck the letter waw they are also called scorpions, either for their dark colour or their agitated movements, the eye is a sword, the oyelids, scabbards the whiteness of the complexion, camphor and a mole or beauty spot, musk, which term denotes also dark hair A mole as sometimes compared also to an ant creeping on the cheek towards the honov of the mouth, a handsome face is both a full-moon and day, black hair is night, the waist is a willow-branch, or a lance, the water of the face is self-respect, a poet selfs the water of his face when he bestows mercenary praises on a rich patron devoid of every noble quality

"Some of the verses in Arabic postry (as in all Eastern poetry) are of a nature such as precludes translation. Had they been com-posed by a female on a youth whom she loved, they would seldom offer anything objectionable, but as the case is not so, they are utterly repugnant to European readers It must not, however, be supposed that they are always the produce of a degraded pas-sion, in many cases they were the usual expression of simple friendship and affection, or of those platonic attachments which the translated works of some Greel, philosophers first taught the Moslims Indeed, love and friendship are so closely confounded by them, that they designate both feelings by the same word, and it is not uncommon to meet epis-tles addressed by one aged dootor to another, and containing sentiments of the strongest kind, but which are the expression of friendship only It often happens, also, that a poet describes his mistress under the attributes of the other sex, lest he should offend that excessive prudery of Oriental feelings which, since the fourth century of Islamism, scarcely allows an allusion to women, and more particularly in poetry, and this rigidness is still carried so far, that at Cairo public singers dare not amuse their auditors with a song in which the beloved is indicated as a female Some of those pieces have also a mystic import, as the commentators of Hafiz, Saadi, and Shebisters, have not failed to observe. (16 , p xxxii et seq )

POLL-TAX. [JIZYAH]

POLYGAMY In Muhammadan-1sm, polygamy has the express sanction of the Qur'an, and 1s, therefore, held to be a divine institution Vide Süratu 'n-Nisa', or Chapter 1v 3—

"But if ye cannot do justice between orphans, then marry what seems good to you of women, by twos, or threes, or fours and if ye fear that ye cannot be equitable, then only one, or what your right hand possesses" (i.e.

Compare this with the teaching of the Tal-

"A man may marry many wives, for Rabba saith it is lawful to do so, if he can provide for them. Nevertheless, the wise men have given good advice, that a man should not marry more than four wives" (Arbak. Turim. Ev. Hazaer, 1)

But although permission to indulge in polygamy is olear and unmistakable, the opening verse of the Surah from which the above is taken, seems to imply some slight learning to monogamy as the highest form of married life, for it reads thus

"O ye men! fear your Lord, who orested you from one soul, and created therefrom its mate, and diffused from them twain namerous men and wemen.

In the Ann-s-Akbars, it is related that a certain Mujtahid, or enlightened doctor, married eighteen wives, for he rendered the Arabie word magaa, "double," and read the text already quoted, "Marry whatever wemen you like two and two, three and three, and four and four" And in the same work it is said that another learned Maniawi married eight wives, because he read the verse-" two + three + four = nine " i

Al-Bassawi, the Jalalan, and other Sunni commentators, are all agreed that the true reading of the verse limits the number of lawful wives to four The Shi'ahs also hold the same opinion, but they sanction Mut'ah, or temporary marriages." [MUTAH.]

temporary marriages." [MUTAH.] In the face of the umted testimony of Islam founded upon the express injunctions of the Quran, Syed Ameer All has the audacity to state in his Critical Examination of the Life and Teachings of Muhammad, p 223, that "the greatest and most reprehensible mustake committed by Christian writers, is to suppose that Mahammad either adopted or legalised polygamy The old idea of his having introduced it—a sign only of the ignorance of those who hold it—is by this time exploded, but the opinion that he adopted and legalised the enstom is still maintained by the common masses as by many learned in Christendom No belief can be more false"!

In his more recent work on the Personal Law of the Muhammadans, the same writer remarks -

"Muhammad restrained polygamy by limiting the maximum number of contemporaneous marriages, and by making absolute equity towards all obligatory on the man It is worthy of note that the clause in the Quran, which contains the permission to contract four contemporaneous marriages is un-mediately followed by a sentence which cuts down the significance of the preceding passage to its normal and legitimate dimensions The former passage says, 'You may marry two, three, or four wives, but not more The subsequent lines declare, but if you cannot deal equitably and justly with all you shall marry only one. The extreme importance of this provise, bearing especially in mind the meaning which is attached to the word 'equity' ('adl) in the Quranic teachings, has not been lost sight of by the great thinkers of the Moslem world Even se early as the third century of the era of the Hijra during the reign of al-Mamon, the first Motazalite dectors taught that the developed Quranic laws inculcated monogamy And though the cruel persecutions of the mad bigot, Mutawwakil, prevented the general diffusion of their teachings, the conviction is gradually forcing itself on all sides, in all advanced Mosless communities, that polygamy is as much op-posed to the Islamic laws as it is to the general progress of civilised society and true culture. In India especially, this idea is be-coming a strong moral, if not a religious conviction, and many extraneous gircumstances in combination with this growing feeling are tending to root out the existence of polygamy from among the Mussulmans A custom has grown up in that country, which is largely followed by all classes of the community, ef drawing up a marriage deed containing a formal renunciation, on the part of the future husband, of any right or semblance of right which he might possess or claim to possess to contract a second marriage during the existence of the first. This custom serves as a most efficacious check upon the growth and the perpetuation of the institution of polygamy In Indua more than ninety-five per cent. of Muhammadans are at the present moment, other by conviction or necessity, monogamists Among the educated classes versed in the history of their ancestors, and able to compare it with the records of other nations, the custom is regarded with disapprohation, amounting almost to disgust In Persia, according to Colonel Macgregor's statement, only two per cent of the population enjoy the questionable luxury of plura-lity of wives. It is carnestly to be hoped that before long a general synod of Moslem doctors will authoritatively declare that poly of Islam (Personal Law of the Muhamma-duns, p. 28) gainy, like siavery, is abhorrent to the laws

Syud Ahmad Khan Bahadur, in his essay, Whether Islam has been beneficial or injurences to Society in general, on the contrary, defends the institution of polygamy as divine, and quotes John Milton, Mr. Davenport, and Mr Higgins, as Christian writers who defended the practice

The Prophet claimed considerable indulgence for himself in the matter, and married eleven wives [wives OF THE PROPHET]
The views of Dr Marcus Dods in his hammed, Buddha, and Christ (p 55), give an able and interesting summary of the sub-

" The defence of polygamy has been undertaken from various points of view, and with varying degrees of insight and of earnestness. But one cannot detect much progress among its defenders F W Newman has nothing to say in its favour which had not previously been suggested by Voltaire, nothing, we may say, which does not occur to anyone who wishes to present the argument for a plurality of wives It is somewhat late in the day to be called upon to argue for monogamy as abstractly right Speculators like Aristotle (Econ 1 2, 8), who have viewed the subject both as stateamen having a regard to what is practicable and will conduce to social prosperity, and as philosophers reasoning from first principles, have long ago demanded for their ideal society, not only monogamy, but also that mutual respect and love, and that strict purity and modesty, which polygamy kills. Let us say briefly that the only ground conscience recognises as warranting two persons to become one in fiesh is that they be, first of all, one in spirit. That absolute surrender of the person which constitutes marriage is justified only by the circumstances that it is a surrender of the heart as well, and that it is mutual. To an ideal love, polygamy is abhorrent and impossible. As Mowith more than his usual profundity, said, God has not put two hearts in you' This is the grand law imbedded in our nature, and by which it is secured that the children born tate the world be the fruit of the devoted sur render of one human spirit to another, by which, in other words, it is secured that love the root principle of all human virtue and duty, be transmitted to the child and born in it. This is the beneficent law expressed in monogamy, and this law is traversed and robbed of its effects precisely in a far as even monogamous marriages are prompted by fieshly or worldly rather than by spuitual The utilitarian argument Mr Lecky (Hist European Morals, vol 11 p 295) has summed up in three sentences Nature, by making the number of males and females nearly equal, indicates it as natural In no other form of marriage can the government of the family, which is one of the chief ends of mairiage, he so happily sustained and in no other does the woman assume the position of the equal of man. But we have here to do only with Mohammedan apologists, and their reasonings are somewhat perplexing a for they first maintain that nature intended us to be polygamists (see Syud Ahmad's Essay, p 8, Syud Amen Min Cul Exam, p 225), and then, secondly, declare that the greatest and most i sprehensible mistake coinmitted by Christian writers is to suppose that either adopted or legalised Probably the most that can bemmedeM polygamy" Probably the most that can be said for Vohammed in regard to this matter, 14 that he restricted polygamy, and tnat its abolition was impossible and unsuitable to the population he had to do with

"The allegation, however, that Mohammed confined polygamy within nairower limits than the Araba had previously recognised, though true, is immaterial. For in the first place, he restricted polygamy indeed in ethers, but not in his own case, and thus left upon the minds of his followers the me witable impression that an unrestricted polygamy was the higher state of the two

"In the second place, while he restricted the number of lawful wives, he did not restrict the number of slave-concubines. In the third place, his restriction was practically of little value, because very few men could afford to keep more than four wives. And, lastly, as to the purcuple, he left it precisely where it was, for as Mr Freeman justly ebsarves Theotures, p. 69). I has is one of the last which the first step is everything. The difference between one wife and two is everything that between four and five thou and is comparatively nothing.

"And if the principle be defended as at least relatively good, nothing is to be urged against this as matter of fact although the circumstance has been overlooked, that already very many thousands of Christian Arabs had found it quite possible to live in monogamy But that polygamy is not incompatible with a sound, if not perfectly developed, morality, and with the highest tone of feeling, no one who has read the history of Israel will be disposed to deny. That it may surt a race in a certain stage of its development, and may in that stage lead to purer living and surer moral growth than its prehibition would, may be granted. But necessarily the religion which incorporates in its code of morals such allowances, stamps itself as something short of the final religion.

[MARRIAGE, MUT AH, WIVES WOMEN]

POTIPHAR Arabic Qutir (نطفير), or Itfir (اطفير) The treasurer of Egypt in the time of Joseph, and the husband of Zulaikhah [Joseph]

PRAYER Arabic salāt (ملوة), pl salawāt Persian namas (منوز), pl namāzhā.

Prayer 19 the second of the five foundations, or pillars of pratical religion in Islam, and 19 3 devotional exercise which every Muslim is required to render to God at least twe times a day, namely, at the early morning, middity afterneon, evening, and night

ing, midday afterneon, evening, and night
The general duty of prayer is frequently enjoined in the Qur'an, but it is remarkable that in no single passage are the five periods

mentioned

See Suratu 'r-Rûm (xxx), 17 "Glorify God when it is evening (maca') and at morning (subh),—and to Him be praise in the beatens and the earth,—and at afternoon (subh), and at noou-inde (zuhr)" (But all commentators are agreed that mass includes both sunset and after sunset, and therefore, both the Maghrib and Ashyah prayers)

Surah xi 110 Observe prayer at early morning, at the close of the day, and at the approach of night, for the good deeds drive away the evil deeds '

bursh xx 130 'Put up then with what they say, and celebrate the praise of thy Lord before the sunrise, and before its setting, and some time in the night do then praise Him, and in the extremes of the day, that they happy mayest please Him?

that thou haply mayest please Him"

Surah xvii 80 'Observe prayer at sunset, till the first darkening of the might and the daybreak reading—for the daybreak reading hath its witnesses and watch unto it in the night this shall be an excess in service"

Sürah is 42 " Seek a d w th patience and prayer"

Surah iv 1-4 'When ye have fulfilled your prayer, remember God standing and sitting, and lying on your sides, and when ye are in safety, then be steadfast in prayer. Verily prayer is for the benevers prescribed and timed"

According to the Traditions Muhammad professed to have received instructions to recite prayers five times a day, during his mirry or ascent to heaven. The tradition runs thus

'The divine injunctions for prayer were originally fifty times a day And as I passed Moses (in heavon, during my ascent), Moses said to me, 'What have you been ordered?' I replied, 'Fifty times!' Then Moses said, I replied, Fifty times! Then Moses said, Varily your people will never be able to bear it, for I tried the children of Israel with fifty times a day, but they could not manage it. Then I returned to the Lord and asked for some remission. And ten prayers were taken off Then I pleaded again and teh more were remitted. And so on until at last they were reduced to five times. Then I went to Moses, and he said, 'And how many prsyers have you been ordered?' And I re-plied 'Five' And Moses eaid, 'Verily I tried the children of Israel with even five, but it did not succeed Return to your Lord, and ask for a further remission. But I said, 'I have asked until I am quite ashamed, and I cannot ask again." (See Sahibu Muslim, volip 91)

This Solat, or liturgical service, has thus become one of the most prominent features of the Muhammadan religion, and very numerous are the injunctions regarding it which have been handed down in the traditions There are various minor differences amongst the numerous sects of Islam regarding the formula, but its main features are alike in all countries.

We shall describe prayer according to the Hanafi sect of Sunni Muslims

It is absolutely necessary that the service should be performed in Arabia, and that the clothes and body of the worshipper should be clean, and that the praying-place should be free from all ampurity. It may be said either privately, or in company, or in a mosque—although services in a mosque are more meritorious than those elsewhere

The stated prayers are always preceded by the ablution of the face, hands, and feet.

[ABLUTION]

At the time of public prayer, the mu'azzin, or "creer," ascends the minaret, or stands at the side of the mosque nearest the public thoroughfare, and gives the azan, or 'call to prayer," as follows

"God is great! God is great! God is great! God is great!

- I bear witness that there is no god but God!
- I bear witness that there is no god but God t
- I bear witness that Muhammad is the Apostle of God !
- I bear witness that Muhammad is the Apostle of God!

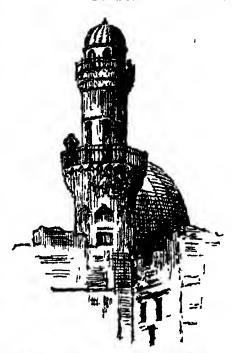

Come to prayers ! Come to prayers! Come to salvation! Come to salvation!

(The Shitaks add " Come to good works ! ")

There is no other god but God!"

(The Shirahs regate the last sentence twice )

In the early norms, the following centance is added 'Prayers are better than gleen ! "

THE MU'AZZIN CALIING THE AZAN PROM A (A F Hole.) MINARBT

When the pravers are said in a congregation or in the mosque, they begin with the Iqumah, which is a recitation of the same words as the azan, with the addition of the sentence, "Prayers are now ready!" The regular form of prayer then begins with the Neyah, which is said standing, with the hands on either side

HAVIN RHT

"I have purposed to offer up to God only, with a sincere heart this morning (or, as the case may be), with my face Qiblah-wards, two (or, as the case may be) rak'sh prayers Farz (Sunnah, or Naft)"

THE TAKPIR-I FAHRIMAH

Then follows the Takhir-i Tahrimah, said with the thimbs touching the lobules of the ears and the open hands on each side of the face —

" God is great!"

THE QIYAM

The Qiyam, or standing por on The right hand placed upon the left, below the navel (the Shafi'is, and the two other orthodox sects place their hands on their breasts as also the Wahhabis, the Shr'ohs keep their hands on either side. In all the sects the women perform the Qiyam with their hands on their breasts), and the eyes looking to the ground in self-abasement. During which is said the Subhan (the Shi'ahs omit the Subhan) —

"Holmess to Thee, O God!
And praise be to Thee!
Great is Thy name!
Great is Thy greatness!
There is no deity but Thee!"

The Ta'awwuz, or A'uzubillah, is then said as follows -

'I seek refuge from God from cursed Salan"

After which the Tasmiyah is repeated -

"In the name or God, the compassionate, the merciful."

Then follows the Fatihah, wie the first chapter of the Qur'an -

"Praise be to God, Lord of all the worlds!
The compassionate, the merciful!

King of the day of reckoning!

Thee only do we worship, and to Thee only do we cry for help

Guide Thou us in the straight path, The path of those to whom Thou hast been gracious,

With whom I hou art not angry, And who go not astray — Amen"

After this the worshipper can repeat as many chapters of the Qur an as he may wish, he should, at least, recite one long or two short verses. The following chapter is usually recited, namely the Suratu 1-Ikhlas, or the 112th chapter.

"Say He is God alone
God the Eternal!
He begetteth not,
And is not begotten,
And there is none like unto Him."

THE BUKU'

The Takber-1-Rukü, said whilst making an inclination of the heud and body and placing the hands upon the knees, separating the fingers a little

"God is great ""

The Tasbih-1-Rukü', said in the same posture

"I extol the holmess of my Lord, the Great!

(The Shi'ahs here add "and with His praise" This is also added by the Shi'ahs to the Tasbih-1 Sijdah)

"I extol the holmess of my Lord, the

"I extol the holmess of my Lord, the Great!"

The Qıyam-ı-Samı Ullah or Tasmi, sand with the body erect, but, unlike the former Qıyam, the hands being placed on either side The Imam suys aloud (when the prayers are said by a person alone, he recites both sentences) —

THE TARMI

"God hears him who praises Him"

The people then respond in a low voice—
O Lord, Thou art praised."

TAKBIRU '8-BIJDAH

Takber-i-Sydah, said as the worshipper drops on his knees

" God is great ! "

Tashik-s-Sijdsh, received as the worshipper puts first his nose and then his forehead to the ground

THE TASBIR-I-SIJDAR.

"I extol the holmess of my Lord, the most High!

"I extol the holmess of my Lord, the most High!

"I extol the holmess of my Lord, the most High!"

Then raising his head and body and sinking backward upon his heels, and plucing his hands upon his thighs, he says the Takbir 1-Jalsah (the Shrahs here omit the Takbir, and say instead, "I rise and sit by the power of God!"

' God 18 great | "

THE TAKBIR-I JALSAR.

Then, whilst prostrating as before, he says the Takbur-1-Sijdah

"God is great!"

And then during the prostration the Tasbibt-Sijdah us before

"I extol the holmess of my Lord, the most High!"

"I extol the holiness of my Lord, the most High!"

"I extol the holmess of my Lord, the most High!"

Then, if at the close of one rak'ah, he repeats the Takbir standing, when it is called Takbir-i-Qyam, but at the end of two rak'ahs, and at the close of the prayer, he repeats it sitting, when it is called Takbiri-Qu'ud. (The Shi'ahs here recits the Takbir — God so great!" with the thumbs touching the labules of the ear, and add, "I seek forgiveness from God, my Lord, and I repent before Him!"

"God is groat!"

Here ends one rak ah or form of prayer The next rak ah begins with the Fatihah or 1st chapter of the Qur'an At the close of every two raktahs he secrets the Tahiyah, which is said whilst kneeling upon the ground. His left foot bent under him he sets upon it, and places his hands upon his knees and says (the Sheaks omit the Taheyah) -

THE TARRYAH

"The adorations of the tengue are for God, and also the adorations of the body and alms-giving!

"Peace be on thee, O Prophet with the mercy of God and His blessing!

"Peace be upon ns and upon God's righteous servants!"

THE TASHAHRUD

Then raining the first finger of the right hand he receise the Tashahhad.

"I testify that there is no desty but God (the Shrahs add, "who has no partner"), and I testify that Muhammad is the servant of Ged, and the massenger of God!"

(Every two rak ahs close with the Tashah The Darid is said whilst in the hud same posture)

"O God have mercy on Muhammad and on his descendants (the Shi als mercly recests "God have mercy on Muhammad and his descendants" and omit the rest), as Thou didst have mercy on Abraham and on his descendants Thou art to be praised, and Thou art great O (rod, bless Muhammad and his descendants, as Thou didst bless Abraham and his descendants!

"Thou art to be praised, and Thou art great ! "

Then the Dara' -

"O God our Lord, give us the blessings of this life, and also the blessings of life everlasting Save us from the torments of (The Du'il is amitted by the Ski'ahs, who recite the fullowing instead, "Peace be on thee, O Irophet with the mercy of God and His blessing? Peace be upon us, and upon God righteous servants?"

He then closes with the Sulam

THE SALAM

Turning the head round to the right, he "The peace and mercy of God be with

THE SALAM.

Turning the head round to the left, he "The peace and mercy of God be with yon"

At the close of the whole set of prayers, that is of Farz, Sunnah, Naft, or Wetr, the worshipper raises his hands and offers up a Munajat, or "supplication" This usually consists of prayers, selected from the Qur'an or Hadis They ought to be said in Arabic, although they are frequently offered up in the versacular

THE MUNAJAL

Such supplications were highly commended by Muhammad, who is related to have said -

"Supplication is the marrow of worship."
"There is nothing better before God than supplication."
"Supplicate God when ye are certain of

"Supplicate God when ye are certain of its approval, and know that God accepts not the supplication of a negligent heart"

"V-rily your Lord is ashamed of his servants when they raise up their hands to Him in supplication to return them empty"

In supplication to return them empty."

These daily prayers are either Farz, Sunnah, Nafl. or Witr Farz, are those rak'ahs (or forms of prayer), said to be enjoined by God Sunnah, those founded on the practice of Muhammad. Nafl, the voluntary performance of two rak'ahs, or more, which may be omitted without sin. Witr, an odd number of rak'ahs, either one, three, five, or seven, said after the night prayer. These divisions of player are entirely distinct from each other. They each begin afresh with the Niyah, and worshippers may rest for awhile between them, but not converse on worldly subjects. The Wahhābās think it correct to say the Sunnah prayers in their houses and only the Farz prayers in the mosque.

The five times of prayer are known as Zuhr, 'Asr, Maghrib. Isha, and Fayr There are also three voluntary periods called Ishraq,

Juha, and Tahamud

The following is a table showing the exact number of rakinhs to be performed at each service —

|                           |    |                                         | The Names of the Time of Prayer |                            | The Number of Rak'ahs said |                               |                        |      |                      |      |      |
|---------------------------|----|-----------------------------------------|---------------------------------|----------------------------|----------------------------|-------------------------------|------------------------|------|----------------------|------|------|
|                           | No | Time                                    | Arabic                          | Persun                     | Urdu                       | Sunnst 1-ghaur 1m skiedsh | Sunnet a muskkedeh | Farz | Sunnsh afterFarz | Nafi | Wite |
|                           | 1  | From dawn to                            | Şalātu IFaji                | V maz-t-Subh           | Fajr KiNamaz           |                               | 2                      | 2    |                      |      |      |
| The five penods of prayer | 2  | When the sunhas begun todecline | Şalātu '/-Zuhr              | Namů/ 1-Peshin         | Zuhi KiNumaz           |                               | 4                      | 4    | 2                    | 2    |      |
| periods                   | 8  | Midway betweenNo 2 and 4            | Şalātu 'l-'Asr              | Namāz 1-Dīga:          | Aqı KiNamaz            | 4                             |                        | 4    | 1                    |      |      |
| e five                    | 4  | A few minutesafter sunset           | Şalātu 'lMaghrīb            | Namāz-1-Shām           | MaghribKi Namaz        |                               |                        | 3    | 2                    | 2    |      |
| f                         | 5  | When the nighthas closed in         | Şalātu 'l-'Ishā             | Namůz 1Kh uftsn | 'Isha' KıNımāz.        | 4                             |                        | 4    | 2                    | 2    | 7    |
| _                  | 1  | When the sun has well riseu.            | Şelātu 'l-'Ishrāq           | Namüz-ı'İshrüq         | Ishrāq KīNamāz         |                               |                        |      |                      | 8    | }    |
| are voluntary             | 2  | About 11 o'clock                        | Salātu 'zZuhā               | Namaz-1Chast           | Zuhā KīNamāz           |                               |                        |      |                      | 8    |      |
|                           | 8  | After midnight                          | Şalātu 't-Tahajjud          | Namaz-1Tahajjud        | TehajjudKi Namaz       |                               |                        |      |                      | 9    |      |

Muslim recites the same form of prayer at least seventy-five times in the day

PRAYER

'Abdu 'lish ibn 'Umar relates that the Prophet said, "The time for Zuhr prayers begins from the modination of the sun towards the west and closes at the time when the shadow of a person shall be the length of his own stature, which time marks the beginning of the 'Asr prayers, and the time of the 'Air prayers is from that time till the sun The time of assumes a yellow appearance Maghrib prayers is from sunset as long as the red appearance in the horizon remains The time of 'Isha' prayers is from that time tall midnight. And the time of the Fagr prayers is from the break of day till the sun rises Therefore, when the sun has risen you must not recite the morning prayer, for the sun rises between the horns of the devil" (Mishkat, book iv oh 11.)

It is the ordinary custom of Muslims to say then prayers with their feet uncovered, but strictly according to the Traditions it is lawful to cover the feet with boots or shoes during prayer, provided they are from from impurity

Shaddad ibn Aus relates that Muhammad said, "Act the reverse of the Jews in your prayer, for they do not pray in boots and shoes"

Abu Sa'id al-Khudri relates that 'the Prophet said prayers with his companions, and all on a sudden took off his shoes, and put them down on his left side, and when the people observed it, they took off theirs also, and when the Prophet had finished the prayers, he said, 'What caused you to take off your shoes?' They replied, 'We did so in order to follow your example' And the Prophet said, 'Verily Gabriel came to me and told me there was a httle fifth upon my shoes, therefore, when any one of you goes into a Masjid, look well at your shoes first, and if you perceive any dirt, wipe it off, and then say your prayers in them (Muhkat, book w ch ix pt 2)

Any wandering of the eyes, or of the mind, a coughing or the like, answering a question, or any action not prescribed to be porformed, must be strictly avoided (unless it is between the Sunnah prayers and the ferz, or be diffloult to avoid, for it is held allowable to make three slight irregular motions, or de viations from correct deportment), otherwise, the wershipper must begin again and recite his prayers with due reverence

If a person arrive late, he menely recites the Niyah and Takbur, and then joins the congregation in that part of the service in which they are engaged.

The Muslim may say his five daily prayers in his home, or shop, or in the street or road, but there are said to be special blessings attending prayer recited in a congregation

In addition to the daily prayers, the fol lowing are special services for special occasions .

Salālu 'l-Jum'ah —" The Friday Prayer"

According to the above table a devout i It consists of two lak'ahs after the daily meridian prayer

'l-Musufir -" Prayers for a tra-Salātu 'l-Musūfir -- "Prayers for a tra-veller ' Two rak'ahs instead of the usual number at the meridian, afternoon, and night

prayers
Salātu 'l-Khanf—"The prayers of fear'
Said in time of war They are two rak'ahs recited first by one regiment or company and then by the other

Salatu 'l-Tarawih -Twenty rak'ahs recited every evening during the Ramazan, immedistely after the fifth daily prayer

Salātu 'l-Istikhārah - Prayers for success or guidance. The person who is about to undertake any special business performs two rak'ah prayers and then goes to sleep During his slumbers he may expect to have ".tham," or inspiration, as to the undertaking for which he seeks guidance!

Salatu ! Khusuf -Two rak'she said at the time of an eclipse of the moon Salātu '-Kusūf - Two rak'ahs said at the time of an eclipse of the sun Salātu 'l Istisqā' —Prayer in time of drought, consisting of two iak'abs

Salātu 'l-Janāzah -- Prayers at a funeral. [JANALAH]

The liturgical service of the Muslim is not given in the Qur'an, but is founded upon very minute metructions given by the Prophet, and which are recorded in the Traditions, and for which the Arabic scholar can refer to Sahihu 'l-Bukhari, vol 1 p 50, Sahihu Muslim, vol. 1 p 164, Sunanu 'l-Tirmizi, p 22, Sunanu Abū Da'ūd, p 56 Sunanu Muwatta', p 50, and the English reader to Matthew's Mishkat book iv

The following are selections from the sayings of Muhammad with reference to the Laturgical prayers (vide Mishhāt, book iv ) -

'That which leads a creature into infidelity is neglect of prayers"

"Not one of you must say your prayers in a garment without covering your whole podv

"God accepts not the prayers of a woman arrived at puberty unless she covers her

'People must not lift up their eyes whilet saying their prayers, or they will become blind"

"The prayers which are said in congregation increase the rewards of those said alone by twenty seven degrees." [MOSQUE]

"The five stated prayers erase the suns which have been committed during the intervals between them, if they have not been mortal sins

"That prayer preparatory to which the teeth shall have been cleaned with the Miswak is more excellent than the prayer with-was is more excellent than the prayer without Miswak by seventy" [MISWAK]

"The prayers of a person will not be accepted who has broken his ablution until he completes another ablution."

"That person who leaves even one hair without washing after uncleanness, will be punished in hell accordingly "

"When any one of you stands up for prayer, he must not smooth the ground by wiping away pebbles, because the com-passion of God descends upon him at that time "

"Order your children to say the stated prayers when they are seyen years of age, and best them if they do not do so when they are ten years old, and when they reach ten years, divide their beds "

"When you stand up to prayer, spit not in front, because you are then in God's pre sence, neither spit on your right side, because an angel is there. Spit, therefore either on your left side or under your feet, and then throw earth over it"

"Whoever says twelve rak'ahs of Sunnah prayers in the day and night, will have a house built for him in Paradise, four rak'ahs before the noon-day prayer, and two rak ahs after it, and two after sunset prayer, and two rak'ahs after evening prayer, and two before morning prayer"

"'Tell me if any one of you had a rivulet before his door and bathed five times a day in it, whether any dirt would remain upon his body' The Companions said, 'Nothing would remain' The Prophet said 'In this manner will the five daily prayers as ordered by God erase all little sins'"

"When any one of you says his prayers, be must have something in front of him, but if he cannot find anything for that purpose, he must put his walking-stick into the ground, but if the ground be hard, then let him place it lengthways in front of him, but if he has no staff, he must draw a line on the ground, after which there will be no detri ment in the prayers from anyone passing in front of it " [SUTRAH.] "The best prayers for God were those of

David the prophet, and the bost fast are his David used to sleep half the night and would be woke, and in prayer a third part of the night and would fast one day and cut another"

The form of prayer, or rak'ahs, as given above, admit of no variations whether they are used in private or public, and consequently notwithstanding the beauty of its devotional language, it is simply a superstitious act having very little in common with the Chris tian idea of prayer

We translate the Arabic Salāt, and the Persian Numaz by the English word prayer although this "second foundation" of the re ligion of Muhammad is something quite dis tinct from that prayer which the Christian post so well describes as the "soul's sincere destre uttered or unexpressed " It would be more correct to speak of the Muhammadan Salāt as a service, "prayer" being more correctly rendered by the Arabio du'ā' In Islām prayer is reduced to a mechanical act, as distinct from a mental act, and in judging of the spiritual character of Muhammadan-18m, we must take into careful consideration the precise character of that devotional service which every Muslim is required to render to God at least five times a day, and which undoubtedly, exercises so great an influence upon the character of the followers of Muhammad

The devotions of Islam are essentially "vain repet tions," for they must be said in the Arabic language, and admit of no change or variety The effect of such a constant round of devotional forms, which are but the service of the hps, on the vast majority of Muhammadans, can be easily imagined absence of anything like true devotion from these services, accounts for the fact that religion and true piety stand so far apart in the practice of Islam

The late Dean Stanley remarks (Eastern Church, p 279), "The ceremonial character of the religion of Musalmans is, in spite of its simplicity, carried to a pitch beyond the utmost demands either of Rome or of Russia Prayer is reduced to a mecha-nical act as distinct from a mental act, beyond any ritual observances in the West It is striking to see the figures along the banks of the Nile going through their prostrations at the rising of the sun, with the uniformity and regularity of clookwork, but it resembles the worship of machines rather than of reasonable beings"

PRAYERS FOR THE DEAD According to the teaching of Muhammad, it is the duty of all true Muslims to pray for the dead (Durru 'l-Mulhtar, p 135) See also Mishkat, book v chap ui.

"God most certainly exalts the degree of a virtuous servant in Paradise, and the virtuons servant says, 'O my Lord, from whence is this exalted degree for me?' and God says, 'It is on account of your children asking pardon for you"

"The Prophet passed by graves in al-Madinah and turned his face towards them, and said, Peace be to you, O inhabitants of the graves! may God forgive us and you. Yo have passed on before us, and we are following you"

'A dead person in the grave is like one over his head in water, who calls to somebody to take him by the hand. For he has hope that his father or mother, or his brother, or his friend will pray for him For when the prayer reaches the dead person, it is more esteemed by him than the whole world, and all that is in it, and verily God most certainly gives to the dead, on account of the prayers of the people of the earth, rewards like mountains, for verily the offerings of the living for the dead are asking forgiveness for them "

Sürah lxxx. 29 'And Noah said, O my

God, forgive me and my parents

Silrah ix. 114, 115 "It is not for the Prophet to pray for the forgiveness of those, who, even though they be near of kin, assocrate other gods with God, after it hath been made clear to them that they are to be the inmates of bell. For neither did Abraham ask forgiveness for his father, but in pursuance of a promise which he had promised him, and when it was shown him that he was an enemy of God, he declared himself clear of him yet Abraham was pitiful and kind '

It is related in the Traditions that the Prophet visited his mother's grave, and wept in such a way as to cause those who were standing around him to weep also And the Prophet said, "I have asked my benefactor permission to ask pardon for my mother, which was not granted then. asked my Lord's permission to visit her grave and it was granted, therefore do ye visit graves, because they remind you of death."

PREACHER Preaching are four words generally used for a preacher khatib (ملكر), muzakkır (ملكر) wâ'ız (bely), and nasek (wol) Khatib is always applied to the official who recites the khutbah, or oration, in the Friday service. The other three terms are applied generally to preachers

In the present day, preaching seldom takes place in a mosque except on Fridays, when the khutbah is recited, although it is not forbidden, and Muhammad was frequently in the habit of addressing his people after the prayers were over

No Maulawi of reputation preaches in the street, but paid preachers sometimes under take the office.

PREDESTINATION Arabic qadar (مقدر), the word generally used in the Hadis, taqdir (مقدير), the word usually employed in theological works Expressions which mean 'measuring out, or

preordering

Tagdir, or the absolute decree of good and evil, is the sixth article of the Muhammadan creed, and the orthodox believe that whatever has, or shall come to pass in this world, whether it be good or had, proceeds entirely from the Divine Will, and has been irrevocably fixed and recorded on a preserved tablet by the pen of fate The doctrino, which forms a very important feature in the Muslim systen is thus taught in the Qui'an — Sürah liv. 49 "All things have been created after fixed decroe" (qadar)

Surah m. 189 "No one can die except by God's permission according to the book that fixeth the term of hic Surah lxxxvii 2 "The Lord hath created and balanced all things and hath fixed their destines and guided them" Surah viii 17 "God slow them, and those shafts were God's, not thine Surah ix 51 "By no means can aught befall us but what God has destined for us '

Sürah xiii 30 "All sovereignty is in the hands of God.

Sürah xıv 4 "God mısleadeth whom He will, and whom He will He guideth"

Surah xviii. 101 "The infidels whose eyes were veiled from my warning and had no power to hear"

The teaching of Muhammad, as given in the Traditions handed down by al-Bukhari and Muslim, as as follows ---

"Ged created Adam, and tenched his back with his right hand, and brought forth from it a family, and God said to Adam, I have orested this family for Paradise, and their actions will be like unto those of the people of Paradise. Then God touched the back of Adam, and brought forth another family, and said, 'I have created this for hell, and their actions will be like unto those of the people of hell? Then a man said to the Prophet, 'Of what use will deeds of any kind be?' He said, 'When God createth His servant for Paradiso, his actions will be deserving of it until he die, when he will enter therein, and when God createth one for the fire, his actions will be like those of the people of hell till he die, when he will enter therein.!"

"'There is not one amongst von whose place is not written by God, whether in the fire or in Paradise' The Companions said, · O Prophit! since God hath appointed our places may we confide in this and abandon our religious and moral duties?' He said, 'No, because the righteons will do good works and the wicked will do bad works' After which the Prophet read this yerse from the Quran 'To him who giveth alms, and feareth God and yieldeth assent to the excellent creed, to him will we make easy the path to happmess But to him who is worldly and is indifferent, and who does not believe in the excellent creed, to him will we make easy the path of misery

'The first thing which God created was a pen, and He said to it 'Write' it said, 'What shall I write? And God said, 'Write down the quantity of every individual thing to be created 'and it wrote all that was and that will be, to eternity "

' God hath pre-ordained five things on his servants, the duration of life their actions, their dwelling-places, their travels, and their portions "

When God bath ordered a creature to die in any particular place, he causeth his wants to direct him to that'

"There is not one born but is created to Islam, but it is their fathers and mothers who make them Jews and Christians and Majūsī."

"It was said, 'O Prophet of God! inform me respecting charms, and the medicines which I swallow, and the shields which I make use of for protection, whether they prevent any of the decrees of God?' Muhammad said, Those also are by the decree of God'"

"Verily God created Adam from a handful of earth, taken from all parts, and the children of Adam became different, like the earth, some of them red, some white, and some black, some between red, white and black, some gentle, and some severe, some impure and some pure"

"The Prophet of God was asked about the children of polythersts who might die in their mancy, whether they would go to heaven or hell. He said, 'God knoweth best what their actions would have been had they lived, it depends on this '"

"The Prophet of God came out of his house when the Companions were debating about fate, and he was angry, and became red in the face, to such a degree that you would say the seeds of a pomegranate had been bruised on it And he said, 'Hath God ordered you to debate of fate? Was I cent to you for this? Your forefathers were destroyed for debating about fate and destiny, I adjure you not to argue on those points'

(See Ahādigu 'l-Bukhārī and Muslim, in loco) [FRESERVED TABLET]
The dootring is expressed in an Arabic treatise on the subject, as follows -

"Faith in the decrees of God, is that we believe in our heart and confess with our tongue that the Most High God hath decreed all things, so that nothing can happen in the world, whether it respects the conditions and operations of things, or good or evil, or obedience and disobedience, or faith and infidelity, or sickness and health, or riches and poverty, or life and death, that is not contained in the written tablet of the decrees of God God hath so decreed good works, obedience, and faith, that He ordsins and wills them, and that they may be under His decree, His salutary direction, His good pleasure and command On the contrary, God hath decreed, and does orden and determine evil, disobedience and infidelity yet without His salutary direction, good pleasure, and command; but being only by way of seduction, indignation, and prohibition But whoseever shall say that God is not delighted with good faith, or that God hath not an indignation against evil and unbelief, he is certainly an mfidol"

The Rev E. Sell in his Faith of Islam,

page 173, says

"There are three well defined schools of thought on the subject

"First -The Jabrians (Jabariyan), so called from the word "jabr" compulsion, deny all free agency in man and eay that man is necessarily constrained by the force of God's eternal and immutable decree to act as he does They hold that as God is the absolute Lord, He can, if He so wills, admit all men into Paradise, or cast all into hell This sect is one of the branches of the Ash'arians with whom on most points they agree

" Secondly -The Qudrians (Qadariyun), who deny Al-Qadr, or God's absolute decree, say that evil and injustice ought not to be attributed to God but to man, who is altogether a free agent God has given him the power to do or not to do an act. This sect is generally considered to be a branch of the Mutazilite body (Mu'tazilah), though in reality it existed before Wasil quitted the school of his master Hasan As Wasil, however, followed the opinions of Mabad-al-Johní, the leading Qadrian divine, the Mutazilites and Qadrians are practically one and the same "Thirdly—The Ash'arians maintain that God has one eternal will which is applied to whatsoever He willeth, both of His own actions and those of men, that He willeth that which He knoweth and what is written on the preserved table, that He willeth both good and evil. So far they agree with the Jabrians, but then they seem to allow some power to man The orthodox, or Sunni belief is theoretically Ash'arian, but practically the Sunnis are confirmed Jabrians The Mutazilite doctrines are looked upon as quite haratroal

"No subject has been more warmly discussed in Islam than that of predestination The following abstract of some lengthy discussions will present the points of difference.

"The Ash'srians, who in this matter represent in the main orthodox views, formulate their objections to the Mutazilite system

"(1) If man is the causer of an action by the force of his own will, then he should also have the power of controlling the result of that action

"(11.) If it be granted that man has the power to originate an act, it is necessary that he should know all acts, because a creator should be independent in act and choice Intention must be conditioned by knowledge To this the Mutazilites well reply that a man need not know the length of a road before he walks, or the structure of the throat before he talks

"(111) Suppose a man wills to move his body and God at the same time wills it to be steady, then if both intentions come to pass there will be a collection of opposites, if neither, a removal of opposites, if the exal tation of the first, an unreasonable prefer-

"(IV) If man can create an act, some of his works will be better than some of the works of God, eg a man determines to have faith now faith is a better thing than reptiles, which are created by God

'(v) If man is free to act, why can he not make at once a human body, why does he need to thank God for grace and faith?

"(vi) But better far than all argument, the orthedox say, is the testimony of the Book All things have we created under a fixed deoree' (Súra liv 49) 'When God created you and that ye make' (Súra Exxvii 94) Some of them there were whom God guided and there were others decreed to err' xvi 88) As God decrees faith and obedience He must be the causer of it, for 'on the hearts of these bath God graven the Faith' lvin 22.) 'It is he who causeth you to laugh and weep, to die and make alive' (Sura lin. 44.) 'Il God pleased. He would surely bring them, one and all, to the guidance '(Sura vi 36) 'Had God pleased, He had guided you all aright' (Sura vi 150) 'Had the Lord pleased, He would have made mankind of one religion.' (Sura zi 120) 'God will mislead whom He pleaseth, and whom He pleaseth He will place upon the straight path' (Súrah vi 39) Tradition records that the Prophet said 'God is the maker of all makers and of their actions

"The Mutazilites took up the opposite side of this great question and said

"(1) If man has no power to will or to do, then what is the difference between praising God and sinning against Him, between faith and infidelity, good and evil, what is the use of commands and prohibitions, rewards and punishments promises and threats wha is the use of prophets books &c

"(ii,) Some acle of men are bad, such as tyranny and polytheism. If these are orested by God it follows that to tyrannee and to asoribe plurality to the Deity is to render obedience To this the Ash arrans reply that orders are of two kinds, immediate and me diate The former, which they call 'Amri-takwini,' is the order Be and it was' This comprehends all existences and according to it whatever is ordered must come to pass The latter they call 'Amr-1 tashri 1,' an older given in the Law This comes to men through prophets and thus is to be obeyed True obedience is to act according to that which is revealed, not eccording to the secret intention of God, for that we know not

"(in) If God decrees the acts of men, He should bear the name of that which he de crees Thus the couser of infidelity is an infidel, of tyranny a tyrant, and so on but to speak thus of God is blasphemy

"(iv) If infidelity is decreed by God He must wish it, but a prophet desires faith and obcdience and so is opposed to God. To this the orthodox reply that God knows by His eternal knowledge that such a man will die an infidel. If a prophet intends by bringing the message of salvation to such an one to make God's knowledge become ignorance he would be doing wrong, but as he does not know the secret decrees of God his duty is to deliver his message according to the Hadis A prophet has only to deliver the clear

"(Y) The Mutaziltes claimed as on their side all verses of the Quran, in which the words to do, to construct, to renew, to create, &c , are applied to men Such are the verses Whatever is in the heavens and the earth is God's that He may reward those who do evil according to their deeds and those who do good will He reward with good things' (Sura lin 32) 'Whose shall have wrought cvil shall not be recompensed but with its like but whose shall have done the things that are right whether male or female and is a he liever these shall enter Paradise (Sura xl 43) 'Say the truth is from the Lord let him then who will believe and let him who will, be an infidel (Sura xviii 28) 'Those who ado gode to God will say If God had pleased neither we nor our fathers had given Him companions Say Verily ve follow only a concert ye utter hes' (Sura vi 149) The Hadis is also very plain. 'All good is in Thy hands and evil is not to Thee

'The Ash'arians have one famous text which they bring to bear against all this rea soning and evidence It is 'This truly is a warping, and whose willeth, taketh the way of his Lord, but will it ye shall not, unless God will it, for God is knowing, wise lxxvi 29, 30) To the Hadis they reply (1) that there is a difference between acquies cence in evil and decreeing it Thus the ex pression 'God willeth not tyranny for His servants, does not mean that God hath not decreed it, but that tyranny is not one of His attributes so evil is not to Thee means it is not an attribute of God and (2) the Hadis must be explained in accordance with the teaching of the Quran

"The Muslim philosophers tried to find a way out of the difficulty Averhues says We are free to act in this way or that, but out will is always determined by some exte-Hor cause For example, we see something which pleases us, we are drawn to it in epite of ourselves Our will is thus bound by exterioi causes These causes exist according to a certain order of things which is founded on the general laws of nature. God alone knows beforehand the necessary connection which to us is a mystery The connection of our will with exterior causes is determined by the laws of nature. It is this which in theo logy we call, 'decress and predestination (Mélanges de Philosophie Juive et Arabe, par S Munk, p 458.)

PRE-EMPTION Arabic Shufak Let "Adjunction" (deta) right of pre emption is a power of possess ing property which is for sale, and is established upon the teaching of Muhammad It applies not to movable property but to im movable property ('agar') This right of pre emption apportains in the first place to the co-sharer or partner in the property. This right of secondly, to a sharer in the immunities and appendages of the property, such as the right to water, or to roads, and thirdly, to the neighbour (Hidayah, vol in p 594)

PRE-EXISTENCE OF SOULS is taught both in the Qu'ran and the Traditions.

lyishab relates that Muhammad said, "Souls before they became united with bodies were like assembled armies, and afterwards they were dispersed and sent into the bodies of mankind" (Minhkat, book xxii ch xvi)

There is said to be a reference to this doc

trino in the Quran -

Surah vii 171 " And when the Lord drew forth their posterity from the loins of the sons of Adam

The commentator, al-Baizawi says God stroked Adam's back and extracted from his loins his whole posterity, which should come into the world until the Resurrection one generation after another and that these souls were all assembled together like small ants and after they had in the presence of the angula confessed their dependence upon God, the) were again caused to return into the loins of Adam" (See Tafsiru 'l-Baizaus, in

PRESERVED TABLET According to the teaching of Muhammad, both the actions of men and the Quran were recorded before crestion upon a preserved tablet called Lauh Mahfuz (har thi), Sürah xxxv 32 "And if they treat thee as a har, so did those who were before them treat their Apostles who came to them with the proofs of their mission, and with the Scriptures and with the clear Book". and Imën Atubia ((1944)), Sürah xxxvi 11 "Verily, it is We who will quicken the dead, and write down the works which they have sent on before them, and the traces which they shall have left behind them and everything have we set down in the clear Book of our decrees [PREDESTIMATION, QURAN]

PRIDE, Arabic kibr ( ), is forbidden in the Quran, see Surah avi: 39 "Walk not proudly on the earth, truly thou canat by no means cleave the earth neither canat thou reach the mountains in height all this is evil with thy Lord and odious."

PRIEST There is no succerdotal class of ministers in the Muhammadan religion. The leader of the daily prayers is called an Imam. [IMAM.]

PRIVACY OF DWELLINGS is established by the teaching of Muhammad, and it is therefore unlawful to enter the house without Islican, or a sking permission. The mininction is given in the Quran Surah xxiv 27-29—

"O ye who believe! enter not into other houses than your own, until ye have sked leave, and have saluted its inmates. This will be best for you haply ye will bent this in mind. And if we find no one therein, thou enter it not till leave be given you, and if it be said to you, 'Go ye hack 'then go ye back. This will be more blameless in you, and God knoweth what yo do There shall be no harm in your entering houses in which no one dwelleth, for the supply of your needs and God knoweth what ye do openly and what ye hide"

Atā ibn Yasar relates that "A man once asked the Prophet Must I ask leave to go into the room of my mother?' The Prophet said, 'Yes' Then the man said, 'But I live in the same home' The Prophet said, Yes even if you live in the same home' The man said, 'But I wait upon her!' The Prophet, But you must ask permission, ior, what' weuld you like to see your mother naked?'

would you like to see your mother naked?'
It is further related that Muhammad always went first to the right and then to the left of a door which had no curtain, and salamed several times before he outered. [Miskal, book xxii oh ii]

This has necome an established role in the East and it is considered very rude to enter any dwelling without first giving nation

PROHIBITED DEGREES OF MARRIAGE According to the Qui in they are seven 1, mother 2 daughter, 3 sixter, 4, paternal aunt; 5, maternal aunt 6 sister's daughter 7, byeither's daughter And the same with regard to the other sex it is also unlawful for a Muslim to marry his wife's austor (see Lev xviii. 18) of his wife's aunt during the lifetime of his wife. Foster age in Muslim law establishes relationship, and therefore a fdater-sister or a foster-brother is unlawful in marriage [MARRIAGE.]

PROPHET The Arabic words used to express the prophetic office are sabi (ريس), pl ambiya', rasid (ريس), pl. rusul, and muisal (مرسل), pl marsalin. In Per sian, the three titles are invariably translated by the word paughambar (مرسول) (ادو عدم mossenger)

Nabe is the Hebrew nable $\frac{\text{Nabe}}{2}, which Gesenius says means "one who bubbles forth" as' a fountain. The Arabic laxicon, the Qamus, derived the word from auhil, "to be exaited."

According to Muhammadan writers a nabi is anyone directly inspired by God, and result and mursal, one to whom a special mission has been entrusted

Muhammad is related to have said (Mash-kat, book xxiv ch. pt. d) that there were 124 000 ambiga, or prophets, and 315 apostles or messengers. Nine of these special messengers are entitled Ulū l-Azm, or' possessors of constance, pamely, Noah Abraham, David, Jacob Joseph, Job, Mores, Jerus, and Muhammad Six are dignified with special titles Adam safuju llan, the Chosen of God. Noah, Nobyu llāh, the Preacher of God, Noah, Nobyu llāh, the Friend of God, Mises Kalimu llāh, the Spirit of God, Muham Rasālu llāh, the Spirit of God, Muham mud Rasālu llāh the Messenger of God

The number of sacred books delivered to mankind is said to have been 104 (see Mayo-lisu l- 1biar, p 55), of these, ten were given to Adam, fifty to Seth (a name not mentioned in the Qurin), thirty to Enoch, ten to Abraham, the Faurat to Moses, the Zabūr to David the limit to Jesus, and the Qur'in to Muhammad

The one hundred scriptures given to Adam seth, Enoch, and Abraham are termed Sahifoh (a pamphlet), and the other four Kitab (a book), but all that is necessary for the Muslim to know of these inspired records is supposed to have been retained in the Qur'an

Muhammad's enumeration of the Old and New Testament prophets, both as to name and chronological order, is exceedingly confused, and it is acknowledged to be a matter of doubt amongst Muslim commentators whether or not Alexander the Great and Esop were inspired prophets

The names of twenty-eight prophets are said to occur in the Qur'an —

Adam, Adam, Idris, Enoch, Nüb, Noah, Hud, Hober?, Säleb, Methusaleh, Ibrahim, Abraham, Ismäul, Ishmael Ishaq, Isaac, Yaqub, Jacob Yusuf Joseph, Lül, Lot, Müsa Moses Härün Aaron, Sha'aib, Jethro? Zakarīyā, Zacharias, the father of John the Baptist, Yahyā, John Baptist, 'Isū, Jesus, Dā'ūd, David, Sulaimān, Solomon, Ilyūs, Elias, Alyava', Elisha Aiyūb Job, Yunus Jonah; 'Uzur Ezra, Luqmān, Esop? mere likely Balaam, Zū'l-Kifl, Isaish or Obadish? Zū'l Qarnain, Alexander the Great.

An account of these prophets will be found under their respective names

A Persian book, entitled the Qisasu 'l-Ambiya, the "Tales of the Prophets," professes to give an account of the prophets mentioned in the Qur'an, but the utter recklessness of the writer passes all description for example, it is a matter of uncertainty whether Zu 'l-Qarnain is Alexander the Great or some celebrity who lived in the days of Abraham!

PROPHETESSES It is said that only three women have been prophetesses Sarah, the mother of Moses, and Mary, the daughter of Imran for Sarah received by revelation the news of Isaac's burth, the birth of Moses was divinely communicated to his mother, and Mary received from an angel the happy tidings of the birth of Jesus (See Hist of Temple of Jerusalem ti inclated from the Arabic )

PSALMS OF DAVID, The, [EABLE ]

PUBERTY Arabic bulûgh (دلوع), bulugh yat (الرخوة) The puberty of a boy is established as soon as the usual signs of manhood arc known to exist, but if none of these signs exist, his publity is not clearly established until he have completed his eighteenth year The puberty of a gul is established in the same way, but if the usual signs of womanhood are known not to exist her puberty is not established until her seventeenth year has been completed This is according to the teaching of the Imam And Hamfah But his two disciples maintain that upon either a boy or girl completing the fifteenth year, they alo to be declared adult The Imani ash Shah i concurs in this opluion, and it is said their is also a report of Abu Hanifah to the same effect. The earliest period of puberty with respect to a boy is twelve years, and with respect to a girl nine years

When a hoy or g.rl approaches the age of puberty and they declare themselves adult, their declaration must be credited and they then become subject to all the laws iffecting adults, and must observe all the ordinances of the Muslim faith (Hidayah Hamilton's Translation, vol in p 483 Janan'r Rumuz, Durru 'l-Mukhtar )

Syed Ameer Ali says -

"The validity of marriages contracted for minors by any guardian other than the father or the grandfather, is not established until ratified by the parties on arriving at puberty Such ratification in the case of wales must be express, and in the case of females may be either express or implied. On arriving at puberty, both the parties have the right of either ratifying the contract entered into during their minority or of cancelling it According to the Sunnis. in order to effect a dissolution of the matrimonial tie, in exercise of the right of option reserved to the parties, it is necessary that there should be a decree of the judge, and until such decree is made, the marriage i emains intast. If before a decree has been obtained one of the parties should die, the survivor would be entitled to inherit from the deceased

"The Shishs differ materially from the Sunnis on this They hold that a marriage contracted on behalf of miners by any unauthorised parson (fuzuli), ie any person other than a father or a grandfather, remams in absolute suspension or abeyance until assonted to by the parties on arriving at puberty, that in fact, no legal effect arises from it until such ratification, and if in the interval previous to ratification, one of the parties should die, the contrast would fall to the ground and there would be no right of (Personal Law inheritance in the eurvivor of the Mahommedans, p 269)

PULPIT The pulpit or mimbar سنمر), used for the recital of the khutbah on Fridays in the chief mosque is usually a wooden structure of three steps and movable, but in the large mosques of Turkey and Egypt it is a fixture of brick or stone

It is related that the Prophet, when addressing the people, stood on the uttermost step, Abu Bakr on the second, and 'Umar on the third or lowest 'Usman being the most humble of men, would gladly have descended lower, but this being impossible, he fixed upon the second step, from which it is now usual to recite the knutbah on Fridays and on the two great festivals [MOSQUE MIM BAR.

A MIMBAR (W S Chadwick)

PUNISHMENT is divided into three classes · (1) Hadd (12), (2) Qisās (قماص), (3) Ta'zīb (تعذيب)

(1) Hadd (12), pl Hudud (ht. "That which is defined'), is that punishment the limits of which have been defined in the Quran and The following belong to this class -

(a) Adultery, sind (all), for which the adulterer must be stoned, ram ( (Mishkat, book zv ch 1)

(b) Formcation, zina (eUj), for which the guilty persons must receive one hundred stripes (Qui'an, Surah xxiv 2)

(c) The false accusation of a married per son with adultory, quef (الله), for which the offender must receive eighty stripes (Qur'an, Sürah xxiv 4)

(d) Apostacy, ertidad (Jul), which is punishable with death (Mishkat, book xiv ch v)

(e) Drinking wine, shurb ( ), for which the offender must receive eighty lashes (Mishket, book zv oh. iv)

(f) Theft, saraqah (اسرقة), which is punished by cutting off the right hand. (Qur'an, Sürah

(g) Highway robbery, qat u't-tariq (20) for robbery only, the loss of hands and feet, and for robbery with murder, death, either by the sword or crucifizion (Qur'an, Sürah v 87)

(2) كَامِيَة (قَاصَ), ill "retaliation," is that punishment which, although fixed by the law, can be remitted by the person offended against, or, in the case of a murdered person, by his heirs It is applicable to cases of murder and of wounding Quas is the lex talions of Moses "Eye for eye, tooth for tooth, burning for burning, wound for wound, stripe for stripe (Exodus xxi 24), but in allowing a money compensation, Muhammad departed from the Jewish Code (Qur'an, Suish ii

(3) Tu'zib ( is the pumshment which is left to the discretion of the Qazi or Judge. [HADD, QISAS, TA'ZIB.]

PUNISHMENTS THE GRAVE. [AFABU 'L-QABR ]

PURGATORY [BARZAKH]

PURIFICATIONS Arabic jaharah (3)4). The legal methods of purification under the Muhammadan law vary but elightly from those which were enjoined in the Talmudic law of the Jews, with the remarkable difference that whilst with the Muslim the simple act of purification suffices, the Jew was taught by the use of expiatory offering to discern to its full extent the connection between the outward sign and the inward fount of impurity

The most minute regulations with reference to the subject of legal purification, were laid down in the Jewish law, and are found in a treatise of the Mishna entitled Yadaim. See also Leviticus av

The following are the different acts of purification existing in Muhammadan law -

1 Ghust (June) The washing of the whole body to absolve it from uncleanliness and to prepare it for the exercise of prayer, after the following acts pollutio nocturna, menses, costus puerpersum. [GHURL]

2 Ghusl mamun (غسل مستون) Such washings of the whole body as are founded upon the sunnah or practice and precept of Muhammad, although they are not supposed to be of divine institution, namely, upon the admission of a convert to Islam before the Friday prayer, on the festivals, after waching the dead, and after blood-letting [GHUSL MASNUM ]

3 Wazu' (وهوه), or the simple ablution of hands, arms, ears, face, month, &o , before the recital of the named prayers [ABLUTION ]

4 Tayyanmum ( ), or the use of sand or dust instead of water for the wazi [MUMMAYAT]

ة Istinja' (منتها), or the abstersion of the private parts [Istinja'] ه Miswak (منتها), or the cleaning of the teeth [MISWAR]

7 Mash ( ), or the touching of the boots whereby they become purified for prayer [MASAH.]

8 Tather ( year), or the cleaning of vessels, articles of clothing, &c, from impurity, which is generally done by applying either water, or sand and dust, the mere sprinkling being suffloient [TATHIR]

Q

QABĀLAH, QIBĀLAH (نباته) deed of conveyance or transfer of right or property Any contract or bargam or sale signed by a judge (Hidayah, vol 11. p 569)

QĂBA QAUSAIN (قاب قوسين). Lit occurs in the Quran, Sürah hin 8-10 "Then he drew near and hovered o'er, until he was two bows' length off or nigher still Then he revealed to his servant what he revealed hun" Commentators understand this to refer to the angel Gabriel Mystic writers use the term to express a state of nearness to God (See 'Abdu 'r-Razzāq's Dict. of Şūf: Terma.)

QABIL (قابيل). [cain.]

"The Re-AL-QABIZ (A) strainer " One of the ninety-nine attributes of God. But the word does not occur in the Qur'ān

QABR (قبر) A grave ME.

QABŪL (قبول) "Consent" A term in the Muhammadan law of marriage, contracts, &c

QABZ WA BAST (فبض و بسط) Two terms which are employed to express two opposite states of the heart, qubz being a contraction, and basi, an expansion, of the appritual state (See 'Abdu'r-Razzāq's Dict of Suf . Terms )

QA'DAH ( Lawi) The sitting posture in the daily prayer, when the taskakkid is recited [TASHAHRUD.]

QADAR (الدر) Lit "Measuring" (1) The word generally used in the Hadis for fate, or predestination. (2) Al-Qadar, the title of the xovith Sürah of the Quran TAQUER. PERDESTINATION

A sect of QADARIYAH (قندرية) Muhammadans who deny absolute predestination and believe in the power (quar) of man's free will. They were the ancient Mu tazilahs before al-Wasıl separated from the school of Hasan al-Basri

"Ancient, old" Al-Qadim, "The one without beginning" Qualinu "-Asyam, " Ancient of days" God

"The Power-AL-QADIR () Italia ful." One of the ninety-nine attributes of God. The word occurs in the Quran, at Surah is 19, "God is mighty over all, and in many other passages

QADIRÎYAH (المادرية) An ascetic order of Faques instituted AR 561, by Saiyid Abdu 1-Qadır al-Jilani, surnamed Pir Das-tagir, whose shrme is at Baghdad It is the most popular religious order amongst the Sunnis of Asia [FAQIR, ZIKE.]

(1) The twenty-first QAF (UU) letter of the Arabic alphabet (2) The title of the 1th Sûrah of the Qur'an (3) The circle of mountains which Easterns fancy encompass the world The Muhammadan be lief being that they are inhabited by demons and jum, and that the mountain range is of emerald which gives an asure hus to the sky Hence in Persian az qui ta qui means the whole world. The name is also used for whole world Mount Caucasus

AL-QAHHAR () "The Dominant" One of the minety-nine names of God It occurs in the Qur'an, Sürah xin 17 " He is the One, the Dominant'

QA'IF (ATU) Let "Skilful in knowing footsieps." One who can judge of character from the outward appearance

One instance of the kind is related in the Traditions, namely, 'Ayishah relates, ' One day the Prophet came home in high spirits, and said, 'O 'Ayishah, vorily Mujazzia al Mudhji came and saw Usumah and Zaid covered over with a cloth, except their feet, and he said, Verily I know from these feet the relationship of (ather and son " (Mishkai book xiii oh xv pt 1) This knowledge is called 'Ilmu'l Quyafah.)

(ليسفاع) 'AQUNIAQ A Jewish tribe near al-Madinah in the time of Muhani mad He besieged them in their stronghold in the second year of the Hijrah, and, having conquered them sent most of them into exile (See Muir's Life of Mahomet, vol, iii p 134.)

QAIŞAR (مومر) [CESAR]

One of the leading companions. He was of the tribe Khazraj and the son of Said, a

He was a man of large Companion of note stature and corpulent, emment for learning, wisdom and courage He commanded the Prophet s body-guard, and under the Khalifah Ali he was made Governor of Egypt Died at al-Madinab, A.H 60

AL-QAIYUM ("The Self-Subsisting" One of the minety nine attributes of God It occurs in the Qur'an, Surah IIL I "There is no deity but God, the living, the self subsisting QALAM (ala) Lat "A (reed) (1) The pen with which God is said to have pre-recorded the actions of men. The Prophet said the first thing which God created was the Pen (galam), and that it wrote down the quantity of every individual thing to be created, all that was and all that pen' will be to all eternity (See Mishkat) (2) Al-Quiam, the title of the LXVIIIth Surah of

QALANDAR (قلندر) A Persian title to an order of fagirs or darwishes An

AL-QAMAR ( "The moon" The title of the Livth Surah of the Qur'an, in the first verse of which the word occurs. "And the moon hath been sput in sunder" [MOON, SHAQQU'L QAMAR]

OANA'AH (icui) Contentment, resignation

QĀNIT (قانت) Lit ' One who stands in praver or in the service of God Godly devout, prayerful The term is used twice in the Qur'an -

Smah xvi 121 ' Verily Abraham was a leager in religion and obedient to God " Surah axxix 12 "He who observeth the hours of the night in devotion

(قانون) QĀNŪN Karwr Canon, a rule, s regulation a law, a statute

QARABAH (443) Let "Proximity" A legal term in Muhammadan law for relationship

QARI' (قارى), pl qurrd' "A reader" I term used for one who reads the Qur an correctly, and is acquainted with the 'Ilmu't Taywid, or the science of reading the Qur'an In the history of Islam there are seven celebrated Qurra" or 'readers," who are known as al-Qurra u 's-Sab'ah, or "the seven readers" They are—
1 Imam Ibn Kaşır, Dred at Makkah, A s

120

2 Imam 'Asım of al-Külah, who learnt the way of reading the Qur'an from 'Abdu 'r Rabman as Salami, who was taught by the Khalifaha 'Usman and 'Ali He died at al Rufah, A H. 127

3 Imam Abū 'Umr was born at Makkah AH 70, and died at al Külah, AH 154. It is on his authority that the following imper taul statement has been handed down . " When the first sopy of the Qur'an was written out and presented to the Khalifah 'Uaman, he said, 'There are fault' of language in it let the Arabs of the desert rectify them with their tongues. The meaning of this is that they should pronounce the words correctly but not alter the written copy. 4 Imam Hamsah of al Küfah was born

A.H 80, and died A.H. 156

5 Imam al-Kisa'ı who had a great reputation as a Qarr', but none as a poot It was a common saying, among the learned in grammar that there was no one who knew so little poetry as al-Kisa'i He is said to have died at Tue about the year A II 182

6 Imam Nafi', a native of al-Madinah, who died A H 169

7 lmam Ibn 'Amir, who was a native of Syria. His date is uncertain

ML-QARI'AH (de this) "The Striking" The title of the cret Surah of the "The Strik-Qur'an, which begins with the words, " The Striking! What is the Striking? And what shall make thee understand how terrible the striking will be

Jalalu'd din says it is one of the epithets given to the last day, because it will strike the hearts of all creatures with tercor

QARIN (قرس) Lit "The one united" The demon which is said to be in-Lat "The one dissolubly united with every man (See Michkat, book xiii ch xv, also Qur'an, Surah xii 24 Surah xiii 35, Surah ! 22)

QARINAH (Lup). The context A term used in theological and executional works

QARUN (تاري) KORAH

(ا کردن) Let "Cutting" (ا کردن) A word used in the Qui'sn for good Let "Cutting" deeds done for God, for which a future recompense will be awarded, e.g. Surah v 15 "Lend God a liberal loom and I will surely put away from you your evil deeds, and will cause you to enter gardons through which myers flow

(2) Money advanced as a loan without in erest, to be repeid at the pleasure of the borrower

(3) The word is used in Persian, Urdu, and Pushtoo for money lent at interest, but the legal term for such a debt is ribu

(تىم) QASAM OATH

QASĀMAH (imlob) Lit "Taking an oath ' An oath under the following cir cumstances -

When a person is found slare in a place. and it is not known who was the murderer, and his beirs demand satisfaction for his blood from the inhabitants of the district, then fifty of the inhabitants selected by the next of kin, must be put to their onths and depose to this effect "I swear by God that I did not kill him, nor do I know the murderer

This custom is founded upon the Mosaic law See Deut xxL 1-9

AL-QAŞAS (Ima) "The narrative" The title of the xxvnth Surah of the Qur'an. So called because in the 25th verse of this chapter Moses is said to have related the servative of his adventures to Shu'ath

QASM (قسم) Let "To divide' A division of conjugal rights, which is an joined by the Muslim law (See Meshket, book vui ch x) whose ears are crops' Muhammad s colebrated she camel who conveyed him in the flight from Makkah

(نتل) QATL MURDER

QATTAT (www) A slanderer tale-bearer, who, according to the Tradi tions, will not enter the kingdom of heaven. for the Prophet has said, "A tale-bearer shall not enter Paraduse" (Mishket, book xxn ch x pt 1)

(ناج الليس) QAT'U 'T-TARIQ [MIGHWAY ROBBERY ]

(قول) QAUL A saving, a promise, a covenant The word occurs in the Qur'an frequently in these senses

(قول الحق) The Word of Truth A title given to Jesus Christ in the Qur'an, Surah xix 35 "This was Jesus the sen of Mary, the word of truth concerning whom they doubt" By the commentators Husam, al Kamalan, and 'Abdu 'l Qadir, the words are understood to refer to the statement made, but al-Bazzawi says it is a litle applied to Jesus the son of Mary [JESUS CHRIST]

(لرد) QAWAD "Retaliation" Lex lahonis [MURDER, QIBAS, RETALIATION.]

One of the mnety-nine attributes of God It accurs in the Qur'an, Surah xi 69 'Thy Lord in the Strong, the Mighty'

QAZù (s\45), pl aqzıyah Lıl
"Consummatung" (1) The office of s Qázī er judge (2) The sentence of a Qázī (8) Repeating prayers to make up for having omitted them at the appointed time (4) Making up for an omission in religious duties, such as fasting, &c (5) The decree existing in the Divine mind from all eternity, and the execution and declaration of a decree at the appointed time (6) Sudden death.

QAZF (LL) Let. "Throwing at Accusing a virtuous man or woman of adultery, the punishment for which is eighty lashes, or, in the case of a slave, forty lashes. This punishment was established by a supposed revelation from heaven, when the Prophet's invounte wife, 'Ayshah, was acoused of improper intimacy with Salwan Ibau 1-Mu'attil Vide Qur'an Suratu 'n-Nur (xxiv), 4 "But to those who accuse married persons of adultery and produce not four witnesses, them shall ye scourge with four score stripes" (Heddysk, vol li p 58.)

QIBLAH (AL3) "Anything opposite." The direction in which all Muhammadans must pray, whether in their public or in their private devotions, namely, towards Makkan. It is established by the express injunction of the Qur'an, contained in the Suratu l-Bagarah (n), 136-145 —

"Fools among men will say, What has turned them from their Qublah on which they were agreed? Say, God's is the east and the west, He guides whom He will unto the right path. Thus have we made you 2 middle nation to be witnesses against men, and that the apostle may be a witness against you We have not appented the qiblah on which then wert agreed, save that we might know who follows the Apostle from him who turns upon his heels, although it is a great thing save to those whom God doth guide But God will not waste your faith, for verily God with men ie kind and merciful We see thee often turn about thy face in the heavens, but we will surely turn thee to a qiblah thou shalt like Turn, then, thy face towards the Sacred Mesque, wherever ye be turn your faces towards it, for verily those who have the Book knew that it is the truth from their Lord Ged is not careless of that which ye do And if thou shouldst bring to those who have been given the Book every sign, they would not follow your qiblah, nor do some of them follow the qiblah of the others, and if thou followest thoir luste after the knew ledge that has come to thee, then art thou of the evil-deers Those whom we have given the Book know him as they know their sons, although a sect of them do surely hide the truth the while they know The truth (1s) from thy Lord, be not therefore one of those who doubt thereof Every sect has some one side to which they turn (in prayer), but do ye hasten onwards to good works, wherever ye are, God will bring you all together Verily, God is mighty over all From whencesoever thou comest forth, there turn thy face to-wards the Sacred Mosque for it is surely truth from thy Lord, (4od is not careless about what ye do And from whencesoever thon comest forth, there turn thy face towards the Sacred Mosque, and wheresoever ye are, turn your faces towards it, that men may have no argument against you, save only those of them who are unjust, and fear them not, but fear me, and I will falfil my favour to you, perchance ye may be guided

In explanation of these verses (which are allowed to be of different periods), and the change of Qiblah, al-Baizāwi, the commentator, remarks that when Muhammad was in Makkah he always worshipped towards the Ka'bah, but after the flight to al-Madinah, he was ordered by God to change his Qiblah towards as Sakhah, the rock at Jern-ealem on which the Temule was formerly erected, in order to conciliate the Jews, but that, about sixteen months after his arrival in al-Madinah, Muhammad longed once more to pray towards Makkah, and he besought the Lord to this effect, and then the instructions were revealed, "Verily we have seen thee turning thy face," &c , as given above. (See al-Barzawi, in loco )

This temporary change of the Qiblah to Jerusalem is now regarded as "a trial of faith," and it is asserted that Makkah was always the true Qiblah But it is impossible for any non-Muslim not to see in this transaction a piece of worldly wisdom on the part of the Prophet

Jalalu 'd-din as-Suyuti admits that the 110th verse of the 1md Surah—which reads "The east and the west is God's, therefore whichever way ye turn is the face of God "has been abrogated by a mere recent verse, and that at one time in the history of Muhammad's mission there was no Qiblah at

Major Osborne remarks in his Islam under the Arabs, p 58

"There have been few incidents more disastrous in their consequences to the human race than this decree of Muhammad, changing the Kibla from Jerusalem to Mekka Had he remained true to his earlier and hetter faith, the Arabs would have entered the religious community of the nations as peace-makers, not as enemies and destroyers To all alike— Jaws, Christians, and Muhammadans-there would have been a single centre of holiness and dovotion, but the Arab would have brought with him just that element of conviction which was needed to enlarge and vivily the preceding religions. To the Jew he would have been a living witness that the God who spake in times past to his fathers by the prophets still sent messengers to men, though not taken from the chosen seeds—the very testimony which they needed to rise out of the conception of a national derty to that of a God of all men

· To the Christians, his deep and ardent conviction of God as a present living and working power, would have been a voice recallug them from their petty sectarian squabbles and virtual idolatry, to the presence of the living Christ By the change of the Kible, Islam was placed in direct antagonism to Judaism and Christianity It became a nival faith, possessing an independent centre of existence It ceased to draw its authenticity from the same wells of inspiration. Jew and Christian could learn nothing from a oreed which they knew only as an exterminator, and the Muhammadan was condemned to a moral and intellectual isolation. And se leng as he remains true to his creed, he cannot participate in the onward march of men. The keystone of that oreed is a black pebble in a heathen temple All the ordinances of his faith, all the history of it, are so grouped round and connected with this stone, that were the odour of sanctity dispelled which surrounds it, the whole religion would inevitably perish. The farther and the faster men progress elsewhere, the more hopeless becomes the position of the Muslim He can only hate the knowledge which would gently lead him to the light Chained to a black stone in a barren wilderness, the heart and reason of the Muhammadan world would seem to have taken the similitude of the objects they reverence, and the refreshing dews and genial sunshines which fertilise all else, seek in vain for anything to quicken there." (Islam under the Arabs, p. 58)

QIBTI (قبطى) Copt The Christian descendants of the Ancient Egyptians, derived from Coptos, a great city in Unper Egypt now called Gooft The favourite clave of Muhammad, Māriyah, was a Copt, and is known in Muslim history as Mariyath l Qibtivah [MUHAMMAD, WIVES OF]

For an account of the manners and customs of the Coptic Christians, see Lanes Modern

Egyptians

QIMAR (الحالة) Dice or any game at chance It is forbidden by the Muhammadan religion (Mishkāt, book xvii ch ii pt 2)

QINN (%) A slave, especially one born in the family and whose father and mother are slaves

QINTAR (قطار) A talent A sum of money mentioned in the Qur'an, Surah in 67 "And of the people of the Book there are some of them who if thou entrust them with a quatar give it back to you."

Muhammad Fühir, the author of the Majara's 'l-Bihār, p 173, says a qintar is a very large sum of money As much gold as will go into the hide of a cow' or, according to others, 4,000 dinärs. Others say it is an unlimited sum, which implies a considerable amount of money

QIRÂ'AH (5/5) Let "Reading"
A term given to the different methods of reading the Qur'an A science which is termed 'limu't-Tapicial [QUE'AN]

QIRAN (5) Let "Conjunction" (1) The conjunction of two planets (2) The parformance of the Haji and the Umrah at the same time

QISAS (in Tracking the footsteps of an enemy' The law of retaliation. The lex takents of the Mosaic law with the important difference that in the Muslim law the next of kin can accept a money compensation for wilful murder.

The subject of retaliation must be considered, first, as to occasions affecting life and, secondly, as to retaliation in matters

short of life

(1) In occasions affecting life, retaliation is mourred by wilfully killing a person whose blood is under continual protection, such as a Muslim or a Zimmi, in opposition to aliens who have only an occasional or temporary protection. A freeman is to be slain for a freeman and a slave for a slave, but according to Abū Hanifah, a freeman is to be slain for the murder of a slave if the slave be the property of another. A Muslim is also slain for the murder of a zimmi, according to Abū Hanifah, but ash-Shāff disputes this, because the Prophet said a Muslim is not to be put to death for an infidel. A man is slain for a woman, an adult for an infant, and a sound person for one who is blind, infirm, dismembered, lame, or insane A father is not to be slain for his child, because the Prophet has said, "Retaliation must not be executed upon the parent for his offspring", but a child is slain for the murder of his parent. A master is not slain for his slave, and if one of two partners in a slave kill such a slave, retaliafion is not incurred. If a person inherit the right of retaliating upon his parent, the retahation fails Retaliation is to be executed by the next of kin with some mortal weapon or sharp instrument capable of inflicting a mortal wound.

If a person immerse another, whether an infant or an adult into water from which it is impossible to escape, retaliation, according to Abū Hanīfah, is not incurred, but his two disciples maintain otherwise

(2) Of retaliation short of life. If a person wilfully strike off the hand of another, his hand is to be struck off in return, because it is said in the Qur'an (Surah v 49), "There is retaliation in case of wounds" If a person strike off the foot of another, or cut off the nose, retaliation is inflicted in return If a person strike another on the eye, so as to force the member, with its vessels, out of the sorket, there is no retaliation, it is impossible to preserve a perfect equality in extracting an eye. If, on the contrary, the eye remain in its place, but the faculty of seeing be de-stroyed, retaliation is to be inflicted, as in this case equality may be effected by extinguishing the sight of the offender's corresponding eye with a hot iron. If a person etrike out the teeth of another, he meurs retahation for it is said in the Qur'an, "A tooth for a tooth." (Surah v 49)

Retaliation is not to be inflicted in the case of breaking any bones except teeth, because it is impossible to observe an equality in other fractures. There is no retaliation, in offences short of life, between a man and a woman, a free person and a slave, or one slave and another slave, but ash-Shāfi'i maintains that retaliation holds in these cases. Retaliation for parts of the body holds between a Muslim and an unbeliever, both being upon an equality between each other with respect to fines for the offences in question.

If the corresponding member of the mainer be defective, nothing more than retaliation on that defective member, or a fine, and if such member be in the meantime lost, nothing whatever is due

There is no retaliation for the tongue or the virile member

(3) Retaliation may be commuted for a sum of money When the heirs of a murdered person enter into a composition with the murderer for a certain sum, retaliation is remitted, and the sum agreed to is due, to whatever amount This is founded upon an express injunction of the Qui au "Where the heir of the murdered person is offered anything, by way of compensation, out of the property of the murderer, let him take it." And also in the Traditions, it is related that Muhammad said (Muhkūi book xiv) wThe heir of the murdered person is at liberty either to take retaliation, or a fine with the murderer's consent." Moreover, it is main tained by Muhammadan juvista that retaliation is purely a matter which rests with the next of kin who are at liberty to remit entirely by pardon, and that therefore a compensation can be accepted which is advantageous to the heirs and also to the murderer

When a person who has incurred retaliation dies, the right to retaliation necessarily ceases, and consequently no line is due from the murderer's estate [MURDER.]

QISSIS (""") Persian kashish
A Christian presbyter or priest The word oscurs once in the Qur'an, Sürah v 80
"Thou shalt certainly find those to be nearest in affection to them who sny 'We are Christians' This because some of them are priests (quesisum) and monks (ruhban), and because they are free frein pride"

QITFIR (1245) Potsphar Alluded to in the Qur'an, Sūrah vii. 21, as "the man from Egypt who had bought him" (Joseph) Al Baizāwi, the commentator, says his name was Qitfir

QIYAM (144) Let "Standing"
(1) The standing in the Muhammadan prayers when the Subhān, the Ia awww. the Tasmeyah, the Fālshah, and certain portions of the Qur'an, are recited [PRAYER] (2) Yaumu 'l-Quyam, the Day of Judgment

AL-QIYAMAH (Letal) Let "The Standing up (1) The Day of Resurrection [RESURRECTION] (2) The title of the LXXVIb Sürah of the Qur'an (3) The Süfis use the term in a spiritual sense for the state of a man who, having counted himself dead to the world, "stands up" in a new life in God (See 'Abdu r-Razzāq's Dict of Sūf: Ierms)

QIYAS (قياس) Lat "To compare"
The fourth foundation of Islam, that is to say, the anological reasoning of the learned with regard to the teaching of the Quran Hadis, and Ijma.

There are four conditions of Qiyas (1) That the precept or practice upon which it is founded must be of common ("amm) and not of special (khārs) application, (2) The cause ("illah) of the injunction must be known and understood 13) The decision must be based upon either the Qur'an, the Hadis, or the Ijmā, (4) The decision arrived at must not be contrary to anything declared elsewhere in the Qur'an and Hadis

Chyas is of two kinds, Chyas-t-Jali, or evident, and Chyas-1-Khafi, or hidden

An example of Chyas-1-Jab is as follows Wine is forbidden in the Gur'an under the word kham, which literally means anything interceting, it is, therefore, evident that opium and all intexicating drugs are also forbidden

Crycs-1-Khaf: is seen in the following example —In the Hadis it is enjoined that one goat in forty must be given to God To some poor persons the money may be more acceptable, tuerefore, the value of the goat may be given instead of the goat

QUBA' (AL) A place three miles from al-Madinah, where the Prophet's shecamei, al-Qaşwa' knelt down as she brought her master on his flight from Makkah, and where Muhammad laid the foundations of a mosque. This was the first place of public prayer in Islam. Muhammad laid the first brick with his javelin and marked out the direction of prayer. It is this mosque which is mentioned in the Qur'an, Surah ix 109—"There is a mosque founded from its first day in piety. More worthy is it that thou enter therein therein are men who aspire to parity, and God loveth the purified."

It is setsemed the fourth mosque in rank, being next to that of Makkah, al Madinah, and Jerusaism, and tradition relates that the Prophet said one praver in it was equal to a lesser pilgitimage to Makkah [UMRAE]

Captain Lurton sais -

"It was originally a square building of very small size Osman enlarged it in the direction of the ininaret, making it sixty-six cubits each way. It is no longer 'mean and decayed as in Burckhardt's time. The Sultan Abdel Ham it father of Mahmud, created a next structure of out stone, whose crenelles make it look more like a place of defence than of prayer. It has, however, no preten sions to mandem. The minaret is of l'urkish shape. To the south, a small and nurrow Riwak ouaque, or laised hypo style, with unpretend g columns, looke out northwards upon a little open area simply sanded over and this is the whole building."

AL-(UDDUS (coult) "The Holy" one of the minety mine names of God It occurs in the Quran, Surah in 28 'He is God beside whom there is no deity, the king, the Holy'

QUDRAH (5,3) Power Omnipotence One of the attributes of God al Quadratu l-halwa The sweet take of God, is The manna of Israel The word Quadrak does not occur in the Qui'an

A special supplication and after the Wift prayers, or, according to some, after the morning prayers. It was at such times that the Prophet would pray for the liberation of his friends and for the destruction of his enemies.

For the different forms of supplication, see Michkat, book iv chapters xxxvi and xxxvii. The following is the one usually recited "O Godi direct me amongst those to whem Thou hast shown the right road, and keep me in safety from the calamities of this world and the nixt and love me amongst those Thou hast befriended Increase Thy favours on me, and preserve me from ill, for verily Thou caust order at Thy will, and caust not be ordered. Verily none are suined that Thou befriendest, nor are any made great with whom Thou art at enuity " (لربش QURAISH (لربش) The Arabian tribe from which Muhammad was descended. and of which his grandfather, 'Abdu l-Muttable was chief or prince. This tribe occupies a very prominent place in the Qur'an and in Muhammadan history In the Tradi tions, a special section is set spart for a record of the savings of the Prophet regarding the good qualities of this tribe Muhammad is related to have said "Who seever wishes for the destruction of the Quraish, him may God destroy "

Ibn 'Umar relates that the Prophet said, "The office of Khalifah should be in the Quraish as long as there are two persons left in the tribe, one to be ruler and the other to be ruled " (Mishkāt, hook xxiv c xii)

The Sharif, or Sheriff of Makkah, is always of the Quraish tribe, but ever since the extinction of the Abbaside Khalifaha, the Sultune of Turkey have held the office of Khali-

fah, who are not of this tribe [KHALIFAH]
For an accor it of the Quraish, refer to Sir William Muirs Life of Mahomet vol 1 Intro

excv See also article ARABIA

Muhammad Tähir, in his Majma'u 1. Bihar vol 11, p 138, save Quraish is the name of a great marine monster which preys on fish, and was given to this tribe on account of its strength and importance amongst the tribes of Arsbia Quraish is the title of the (vith Surah of the Qur'un

(نوبطة) QURAIZAH A tribe of Jews located near al-Madmah in the time of Muhammad They at first professed to sup port his mission, but afterwards became disaffected The Prophet asserted that he had been commanded by God to destroy them, and a complete massacre of the men took place, and the women and children were taken captive The event is referred to at length in the xxxnird Surah of the Qur'an

Sir William Mun thue records the event -"The men and women were penned up for the night in separate yards, they were sup plied with dates, and spent the night in prayer, repeating passages from their Scriptures, and oxhorting one another in constancy During the night graves or trenches sufficient to contain the dead bodies of the men were dug is the chief market place of the city When these were ready in the morning, Mahomet, himself a spectator of the tragedy, gave command that the captives should be brought forth in companies of five or six at a time Lacn company was made to sit down by the brink of the trench destined for its grave, and there beheaded Party after party they were thus led out, and butchered in cold blood, till the whole were slain (ine woman alone was put to death. It was she who threw the millstone from the battlements For Zoheir an aged Jew, who had saved come of his allies of the Bani Aus in the battle of Boath. Thabit interceded and procured a pardon, including the freedom of his family and restoration of his property what hath become of all our chiefs,—o of Kab, of Huwey, of Ossal, the son of Samuel? asked the old man As one after another he named the leading chiefs of his tribe, he re ceived to each inquiry the same reply,-they had all been slain already 'Then of what use is life to me any longer? Leave me not to that bloodthirsty man who has killed al. that are dear to me in cold blood But sizy me also, I entreat thee Here, take my sword, it is sharp, strike high and hard Thabit refused, and gave him over to another who under Ali's orders, beheaded the aged man, but attended to his last request in obtaining freedom for his family When Mahomet was told of his saying. 'Slay me also. that I may go to my home and join those that have preceded me, he snewered, 'Yes he shall join them in the fire of hell?"

"Having sated his revenge, and drenched the market-place with the blood of eight hundred victims, and having given command for the earth to be smoothed over their remains, Mahomet seturned from the borrid spectacle to solace himself with the charms of Rihâna, whose husband and all whose mule relatives had just periahed in the massacre. He invited her to be his wife, but she declined, and chose to remain (as, indeed, having refused marriage, she had no alternative) his slave or concubine She also dechied the summons to conversion, and continued in the Jewish faith, at which the Prophet was much concerned It is said, howevor, that she afterwards embraced Islam Sho lived with Mahomet till his death

"The booty was divided into four classeslands, chattels, cattle and slaves, and Ma-homet took a fifth of each There were (besides little children who counted with their mothers) a thousand captives, from his share of these, Mahomet made certain presents to his friends of slave girls and female servants The rest of the women and children he sent to be sold among the Bedouin tribes of Najd, in exchange for horses and arms for he kept steadily in view the advantage of raising around him a body of efficient horse' (Life of Mahomet, vol iii. p 276.)

QUB'AN (قران) The sacred book of the Muhammadans, and believed by them to be the mapired word of God It is written in the Arabic language

The word Qur'an is derived from the Arabic Qara which occurs at the commencement of Surah zev, which is said to have been the first chapter revealed to Muham-mad, and has the same meaning as the Heh NJP kārā, "to read," or "to recite," which is frequently used in Jeremian xxxvi. as well sam other places in the Old Testa-It is, therefore, equivalent to the ment Heh Sign mskra, rendered in Neheminh vin B, "the reading ' I is the title given to the Muhammadar Scriptures which are tally appealed to and quoted from as also al-Majid, the "Glorions Qur'an", Qur'an ash-Sharif, the "Noble Qnr'an, d is also called the Fürgan, "Distinuisher', Kalamu'llah, the "Word of God", d al Kitāb, "the Book"

According to Jalalu 'd-din as-Snyūţī, in s Itqān, p 117, the Qur'an is distinguished the text of the book by the following ity-five special titles—

Al-Ketab The Book The Enlightener Al-Mubin Al Qur'an Al-Karım 3 The Reading The Good The Word Al Kalām The Proof Al-Burhan The Light An-Nür Al-Huda The Gudance The Mercy Ar-Rahmah Al-Furgan The Distinguisher Ash-Shifa' The Health Al Mu'ızah The Sermen Az-Zıkr Al-Mubarak The Reminder 8. The Blessed The Lofty Al-Ali 6 Al-Hikmah The Wisdom The Philosopher Al-Hakim Al Muhaimin The Preserver Al-Musaddig The Establisher of Truth 10 Al-Habl The Rope As Stratu 'l-Mus The Straight Path tuqım Al-Qasyım The Strong Al-Qaulu l-Fast The Distinguishing Speech 14 An - Naba'u 'l-The Exalted News 'Azım Al - Hasanu 'l The Good Saying Hadig Al-Masani The Repetition. Al-Mutashābih The Uniform 27 The Revelation 18 At-Tanzil The Spirit 9 Ar-Ruh 10 Al-Wahy 31 Al-Arabi The Inspiration The Arabic 32 Al Baga'ir The Enlightenment 18 Al-Bayan The Explanation. 34 Al- Ilm The Knowledge 36 Al Haqq 36 Al-Hadi The Truth The Guide 37, Al-Ajab 88 At-Tazkirah The Wonderful The Exhortation Al - 'Urwatu 'l The Firm Handle Wunqā 10 An-Sidg The Righteons. The Justice 42 Al Amr The Order 43 Al-Munadi The Preacher 44 Al-Bushrā The Glad Tidings 45 Al-Majid The Exalted. Az Zabur The Psalm 46 Al-Bashir The Herald of Glad Tidings 48 An Nazir The Wanter 49 Al'Aziz The Mighty 50 At Bulauh The Message 51 Al-Qasas The Narrative

52 As-Suhuf The Pamphlets
53 Al-Mukarramah The Excellent
54 Al-Mutaharah The Exsted
55 Al-Mutaharah The Purified

I -The Inspiration of the Qur'an

According to Abu Hanifah the great Sunni Imam, the Qur'an is eternal in its original essence He says, "The Qur'an is the Word of God and is His inspired Word and Revelation It is a nocessary attribute (sifah) of God It is not God, but still it is inseparable from God It is written in a volume, it is read in a language, it is remembered in the heart, and its letters and its vowel points, and its writing are all created, for these are the works of man, but God's word is uncreated (ghairu 'l-makhluq) words, its writing, its letters, and its verses, are for the necessities of man, for its meaning is arrived at by their use, but the Word of God is fixed in the essence (zūt) of God, and he who says that the word of God is croated is an infidel" (See Kitabu 'l-Wasiyah, p 77)

Muhammadans believe the Qur'an to have been written by 'the hands of noble, righ teous scribes" mentioned in the Suratu Abasa (IXX) 15 and to have been sent down to the lowest heaven complete, from whence it was revealed from time to time to the Prophet by the angel Gabriei [Gabriel]

There is, however, only one distinct assertion in the Qur'an of Gabriel having been the medium of inspiration, namely, Surata I Baqarah (ii), 91 and this occurs in a Medinah Sūrah revealed about seven years after the Prophet's rule had been established. In the Sūratu 'sh-Shu'arā' (xxvi), 193, the Qui'an is said to have been given by the Rūhu'l-Amis, or "Faithful Spirit", and in the Sūratu 'n-Najm (hii), o, Muhammad claims to have been taught by the Shadidu'l-Quirā, or "One teirible in power", and in the Traditions the agent of inspiration is generally spoken of as "an angel" (malak) It is, therefore, not quite certain through what agency Muhammad believed himself to be unspired of God, the Holy Spirit or the angel Gabriel

According to the traditions, the revelation was first communicated in dreams 'Ayishah, one of the Prophet's wives, relates (Mishlat, XXIV 5)—

"The first revelations which the Prophet received were in true dreams, and he never dreamt but it came to pass as regularly as the dawn of day After this the Prophet was found of retirement, and used to seclude himself in a cave in Mount Hira' and worship there day and night He would, whenever he wished, return to his family at Mak kah, and then go back again, taking with him the necessaries of life Thus he continued to return to Khadijah from time to time, until one day the revelation came down to him, and the angel (Arable malak, Heb malakh, "an angel a prophet", a name of office, not of nature [See Wilson's Hebrew Lexicon, p 13]) came to him and said, 'Read' (1972'), but the Prophet said, 'I am not a reader' And the Prophet related that he (: e the angel) took hold of me and squeezed me as much as I could bear, and he then let me go and said again, 'Read!' And I said, 'I am not a reader' Then he took hold of me a second time, and squeezed me as much as I could bear, and then let me go, and said, 'Read'' And I said, 'I am not a reader Then he took hold of me a third time and squeezed me as much as I could bear, and said -

"'Read! in the name of Thy Lord who created .

Created man from a clot of blood in the

Read! for thy Lord 1s the most bene

He buth taught men the use of the pen, He hath taught man that which he knoweth not

(These are the first five verses of the XCVIth Surah of the Qur an. The other verses of the Surah being of a later date)

"Then the Prophet repeated the words himself, and with his heart trembling he returned (te from Hira'to Makkah) to Khadi-jah, and said, 'Wrap mo up, wrap me up' And they wrapped him up in a garment till his fear was dispelled, and he told Khadijah what had passed, and he said 'Verily I was afraid I should have died' Then Kha dijah said, 'No, it will not be so I swear by God, He will never make you melinchely or sad. For verily you are kind to your relatives, you speak the truth, you are faithful in trust, you bear the afflictions of the people, you spend in good work- what you gain in trade, you are hospitable, and you assist your fellow men After this Khadijah took the Prophet to Waraqah, who was the son of her uncle, and she said to him, O son of my uncle! hear what your brothers son says' Then Waraqah said to the Prophet, 'O son of my brother' what do you see?' Then the Prophet told Waraqah what he saw, and Waragah said 'That is the Namus [NAMUS] which God sent to Moses' 'Ayishah also relates that Haris ibn Hisham asked the Prophet, 'How did the revelation come to you? and the Prophet said, 'Some times like the noise of a bell, and sometimes the angel would come and converse with me in the shape of a man'"

According to 'Ayıshah's statement, the Suratu 'l-'Alaq (xevi) was the first portion of the Qur'an revoaled, but it is more pro bable that the poetical Suraha, in which there is no express declaration of the prophetic office, or of a divine commission, were composed at an earlier period Internal evidence would assign the earliest date to the Suraha az-Zalzalah (xeix ), al-'Asr (ciu.), al-'Adıyat (c), and al Fatihah (1), which are rather the utterances of a searcher after truth than of an Apostle of God.

Although the Qur'an now appears as one book, the Muslim admits that it was not all made known to the Prophet in one and the same manner

Mr Sell, in his Faith of Islam, quoting from the Mudarija n-Nubawah p 509, gives the following as some of the modes of inspiration .

"1 It is recorded on the authority of 'A'yesha, one of Muhammad's wives, that a brightness like the brightness of the morning came upon the Prophot According to some commentators, this brightness remained six months In some mysterious way Gabriel, through this brightness or vision, made known the will of God

"2. Gabriel appeared in the form of Dah-1ah (Dahyah), one of the Companions of the Prophet, renowned for his beauty and gracefulness. A learned dispute has arisen with regard to the abode of the soul of Gabriel when he assumed the bodily form of Dahiah At times, the angelic nature of Gabriel overcame Muhammad, who was then translated to the world of angels. This always happened when the revelation was one of bad news, such as denunciations or predictions of At other times, when the message brought by Gabriel was one of consolation and comfort, the human nature of the Prophet overcame the angelic nature of the angel, who, in such case, having assumed a human form, proceeded to deliver the mes-

"3 The Prophet heard at times the noise of the tinking of a bell. To him alone was known the meaning of the sound He slone could distinguish in, and through it, the words which Gabriel wished him to under-The effect of this mode of Wahi stand (Waky) was more marvellous than that of any of the other ways When his ear caught the sound his whole frame became agitated On the coldest day the perspiration, like beads of silver, would roll down his face. The glorious brightn 44 of his countenance gave place to a ghastly hue, whilst the way in which he bent down his head showed the intensity of the emotion through which he was passing. If riding, the camel on which he sat would fall to the ground. The Prophet one day, when rechning with his head on the lap of Zeid, heard the well-known sound Zeid, too, knew that something unusual was happening for so heavy became the head of Muhammad that it was with the greatest difficulty he could support the weight

"4 At the time of the Miraj, or night ascent into heaven, God spoke to the Prophet without the intervention of an angel It is a disputed point whether the face of the Lord was veiled or not.

"5 God sometimes appeared in a dream, and placing his hands on the Prophet a shoul ders made known his will.

"6 Twice, angels having each six hundred wings, appeared and brought the message from God

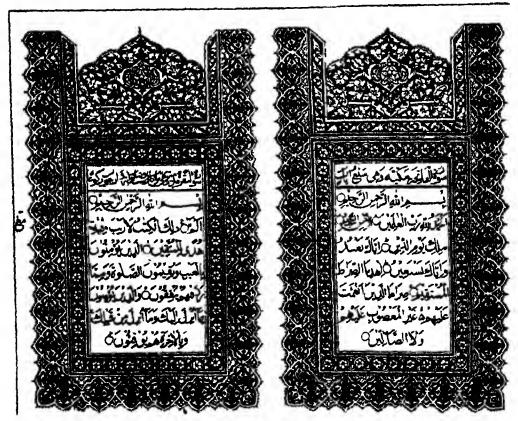

" 7 Gabriel, though not appearing in bodily form, so inspired the heart of the Prophet, that the words he uttored under its influence were the words of God This is technically called lika (Ilqā'), and is by some supposed to be the degree of mapiration to which the Traditions belong (See as-Suyāti' Itqān,

"Above all, the Prophet was not allowed to remain in any error if, by any chance he had made a wrong deduction from any provious revelation, another was always sent to rectify it. This idea has been worked up to a science of abrogation according to which some verses of the Quran abrogate others. Muhammad found it necessary to shift his stand-point more than once, and thus it be same necessary to annul earlier portions of his revelation. [MANSUKH.]

"Thus in various ways was the revelation made known to Muhammad At first there seems to have seen a season of doubt, the dread lest after all it might be a mockery But as years rolled on, confidence in himself At times, too, and in his mission came. there is a joyonaness in his utterances as he swears by heaven and sarth, by God and man but mere often the visions were weird and terrible fradition says -" He roared like a camel, the cound as of belis well-nigh rent nis hear in pieces" Some strange power moved him, his fear was uncentrel lable. For twenty years or more the revela tions came, a direction on things of heaven and of earth, to the Prophet as the spiritual guide of all men, to the Warrior Chief, as the founder of political unity among the Arab

A SPECIMEN OF THE FIRST TWO PAGES OF A QUE'AN

II - The Collation of the Qur'an

The whole book was not arranged until after Muhammad's death, out it is believed that the Prophet lumself divided the Surahs [surahs] and gave most of them their present titles, which are chosen from some word which occurs in the chapter—the following is the account of the collection and arrangement of the Qur'an, as it stands at present as given in traditions recorded by al-Bukhari (see Sahthu 'l-Bukhari Arabic ed , p 745)

"Zaid ibn Sabit relates — Abn Bakr sent a person to me, and called me to him, at the time of the battle with the people of Yamāmah, and I went to him and 'Umar was with him and Abn Bakr said to me, 'Umar came to me and said, Verily a great many of the readers of the Qur'an were slain on the day of the battle with the people of Yamā-mah; and really I am afraid that if the slaughter should be great, much will be lost from the Qur'an, because every person remembers something of it, and, verily, I see it advisable for you to order the Qur'an to be collected into one book ' I said to 'Umar, How can I do a thing which the Prophet has not done?' He said, 'I swear by God, this collecting of the Qur'an is a good thing' And 'Umer used to be constantly returning to me and saying 'You must collect the Qur'an' till at length God opened my breast so to do, and I saw what Umar had been advising 'And Zaid ibn Sabit says that. 'Abu Bakr said to me, "You are a young and sensible man, and I do not suspect you of forgetfulness,- negligence, or perfidy, and, verily, you used to write for the Prophet his matructions from above, then look for the Quran in every place and collect it I said. I sweat by God that if people had ordered ms to carry a mountain about from one place to another, it would not be heavier upon me than the order which Abû Bakr has given for collecting the Qur'an " I said to Abû Bakr, "How do you do a thing which the Prophet of God did not?" He said, "By God, this col-lecting of the Quran is a good act." And he used parpetually to return to me until God put it into my heart to do the thing which the heart of Abu Bakr had been set upon Then I sought for the Quran, and collected it from the leaves of the date, and white stones and the breasts of people that remembered it, till I found the last part of the chapter entitled Tanba (Repentance), with Abu Khuzaimah al-Ausari, and with no other person These leaves were in the possession of Abu Bakr, until God caused him to die, after which 'Umar had them in his life-time, after that, they remained with his daughter, Hafaah after that, 'Usman compiled them into one book '

Anas ibn Mälik relates 'Huzuifah came to Usman and he had fought with the people of Syria in the conquest of Armenia, and had lought in Azurbaijan, with the people of al-'Iraq, and he was shorked at the different ways of people reading the Qur'un And Husaifah said to 'Usman, 'O 'Usman, assist this people, before they differ in the Book of God, just as the Jews and Christians differ in their books." Then 'Usman sent a person to Hafsah ordering her to send those portions which she had, and saying, "I shall have a number of copies of them taken, and will then return them to you" And Hafesh sent the portions to 'Usman, and 'Laman ordered Zaid ton Sabit, Ansari, and Abdu 'liah ibn az Lubair, and Saudibn Alias, and 'Abdu 'r-Rahman ibn al-Harıs ibn Hisham, and these were all of the Quraish tribe except Zaid ibn Sabit and 'Usman And he said to the three Quraishites, "When you and Zaid ibn-Sabit differ about any part of the dialect of the Quran, then do ye write it in the Quraish dislect, because it came not down in the language of any tribe but theirs" Then they did as Usman had ordered, and when a number of copies had been taken, Usman returned the leaves to Hafsah. And 'Usman sent a copy to every quarter of the countries of Islam, and ordered all other leaves to be burnt, and Ibn Shahab said 'Khārījah, son of Zaid ibn Sābit, informed me, saying, 'I could not find one verse when I was writing the Qur'an, which, verily, I heard from the Prophet then I looked for it, and found it with Khuzainnah, and entered it into the Süratu 'I-Ahzab'.

This recension of the Qur'an produced by the Khalifah 'Uşman has been handed down to us unaltered, and there is probably no other book in the world which has remained twelve centuries with so pure a text

Sir William Muir remarks in his Lafe of Mahomet —

"The original copy of the first edition was obtained from Haphsa's (Hafeah) depository, and a careful recension of the whole set on fost. In case of difference between Zaid and his conditions the woice of the latter, as demonstrative of the Coreishite idicim, was to preponderate, and the new collation was thus assimilated to the Meccan dialect, in which the Prophet had given utterance to his inspiration. Transcripts were multiplied and forwarded to the chief cities in the empire, and the previously existing copies were all, by the Caliph's command committed to the ilames. The old original was returned to llaphsa's custody

"The recension of Othman ('Usman) has been handed down to us unaltered. So carefully, indeed, has it been preserved, that there are no variations of importance,—we might simust say no variations at all, amongst the innumerable copies of the Coran scattered throughout the vast bounds of the empire of Islam.

' Contending and embittered factions, taking their rise in the murder of Othman himself within a quarter of a century from the death of Mahomet, have ever since rent the Mahometan world Yet but one Coran has been current amongst them, and the consentaneous use by them all in every age up to the present day of the same Scripture, is an irrefragable proof that we have now before us the very text prepared by command of the unfortunate Caliph There is probably in the world no other work which has remained twelve centuries with so pure a text. The various readings are wonderfully few in number, and are chiefly confined to differences in the vowel points and discritical signs But these marks were invented at a later date

They did not exist at all in the early copies, and can hardly be said to affect the text of Othman Since, then, we possess the undoubted text of Othman's recension, it remains to be inquired whether that text was an honest reproduction of Abn Bakrs edition, with the simple reconcilement of unimportant variations. There is the fallest ground for believing that it was so No early or trustworthy traditions throw suspicion of tampering with the Coran in order to support his own claims upon Othman. The Sheeahs (Shi'abs)* of later times, indeed, pretend that Othman left out certain Suras of passages which favoured Ali But this is meredible He could not possibly have done so without it being observed at the time and at cannot be imagined that Ali and his followers (not to mention the whole body of the Mussulmans who fondly regarded the Coran as the word of God, would have permitted

such a proceeding

"In support of this position, the following arguments may be adduced. First When Othman's edition was prepared, no open breach had yet taken place between the Omeyads and the Alvites The unity of Islam was still complete and unthreatened Ah's pretensions were as yet undeveloped No sufficient object can, therefore, be assigned for the perpetration by Othman of an offence which Moslems regard as one of the blackest dye Second On the other hand, All from the very commencement of Othman's reign, had an influential party of adherents strong enough in the end to depose the Caliph, to storm his palace in the heart of Medina and to put an end to his life Can we concerve that these men would have remained quiet. when the very evidence of their leader's superior claims was being openly expunded from the book of God Third At the time of the recension, there were still multitudes alive who had the Coran, as origina y deli vered, by heart, and of the supposed passages favouring Ah-had any ever existedthere would have been numerous transcripts in the hands of his family and followers Both of these sources must have proved an effectual check upon any attempt at suppres sion. Fourth The party of Ali shortly after assumed an independent attitude, and he himself succeeded to the Caliphate Is it possible that either Alı or his party, when thus arrived at power, would have tolerated a mutilated Ceran—mutilated expressly to destroy his claims. Yet we find that they used the same Coran as their opponents and raised no shadow of an objection against it

The insurgents are indeed said to have made it one of their complaints against Othman that he had caused a new edition to be made of the Coran, and had committed all the old copies to the flames but these proceedings were objected to simply as unauthorised and sacreligious No hint was dropped of any alteration of omission Such a supposition, palpably absurd at the time, is altogether an after-thought of the modern

"We may, then, arfely conclude that Othman's recension was, what it professed to be, a reproduction of Abu Bakra edition with a more perfect conformity to the dialect of Mecca, and possibly a more uniform arrange ment of its parts, but still a faithful repro duction

"The most important question yet remains, VIA Whetner Abu Baki's edition was trackf an authentic and complete collection of Mahomets Revelutions The following considers tions warrant the belief that it was authentic and, in the main, as complete as at the time was possible "First -- We have no reason to doubt that Abu Bakı was a sincere follower of Mahomet, and an earnest believer in the divine origin of the Coran His faithful attachment to the Prophets person, conspicuous for the last twenty years of his hio, and his simple consistent, and unambitious deportment as Caliph, admit no other supposition Firmly believing the revelations of his friend to be the revelations of God himself, his first object would be to secure a pure and complete transcript of them A similar argument applies with almost equal force to Omar, and the other agents in the revision. The great mass of Mussulmans were undoubtedly sincore in their belief From the acribics themselves, employed in the compilation, down to the humitest believes who brought his little store of writing on stones or palm-loaves, all would be influenced by the same earnest desire to reproduce the very words which their Prophet had declared as his message from the Lord And a similar guarantee existed in the feelings of the people at large, in whose soul no principle was more decally rooted than an awful reverence for the sup posed word of God The Coran stack oon tains frequent denunciations against those ano should presume to fabricate anything in the name of the Lord, or conceal any part of that which He had revealed, buch an action, represented as the very worst description of crime, we cannot believe that the first Moslems, in the early ardour of their faith and love, would have dared to contemplate

"Second — The compilation was made within two years of Mahomet's death have seen that several of his followers had the entire revelation (excepting, perhaps, some obsilete fragments) by heart, that every Moslem tressured up more or less some portions in his memory and that there were official Recitors of it, for public worship and tuition, in all countries to which Islam ex-These formed an unbroken link between the Revelation from from Mehomet's lips and the edition of it by Zeid. Thus the people were not only sincere and fervent in wishing for a fathrul copy of the Coran, they were also in possession of ample means for realising their desire and for testing the accuracy and completeness of the volume placed in their hands by Aba Baki

"Third -A still groater security would on obtained from the fragmentary transcripts which existed in Mahomet's life time, and which must have greatly multiplied before the Coran was compiled. These were in the possession, probably, of all who could read And as we know that the compilation of Abu Bakr came into immediate and unquestioned

&quot; Haydta 1 Qulab, leaf 420" 'The Angars were ordained to oppose the claims of the family of Mubanimad and this was the reason why the other wretches took the office of Khalifah of God, they then mutilated and changed the other Khalifah, which is the book of God.'

use, it is reasonable to conclude that it embraced and corresponded with every extent fragment, and therefore by common consent, superseded them. We hear of no fragments, sentences, or words, intentionally omitted by the compilers, nor of any that differed from the received edition Had any such been discoverable, they would undoubtedly have been preserved and noticed in those traditional repositories which treasured up the minutest and most trivial acts and sayings of

the Prophet

"Fourth -The contents and the arrangement of the Coran speak forcibly for its authenticity All the fragments that could possibly be obtained have with artless simplicity been joined together The patchwork bears no marks of a designing genius or a moulding hand It testifies to the farth and reverence of the compilers, and proves that they dered no more than simply collect the sacred fragments and place them in juxtaposition. Hence the interminable repetitions, the palling reiteration of the same ideas, truths, and doctrines, hence, scriptural stories and Arab legends, told over and over again with little verbal variation, hence the pervading want of connection, and the startling chasms between adjacent passages Again, the frailties of Mahomet, supposed to have been noticed by the Deity, are all with evident faithfulness entered in the Coran. Not less undisguised are the frequent verses which are contradicted or abrogated by later reve-The editor plainly contented himself with compiling and copying out in a continuous form, but with scrupulous accuracy, the fragmentary materials within his reach He neither ventured to select from repeated versions of the same incident, nor to reconcile differences, nor by the alteration of a single letter to connect abrupt transitions of con text, nor by tampering with the text to soften discreditable appearances. Thus we possess every internal guarantee of confidence

"But it may be objected, -if the text of Abu Bakr's Coran was pure and universally received, how came it to be so soon corrupted, and to require, in consequence of its variations, an extensive recension? Tradition does not afford sufficient light to determine the cause of these discrepancies They may have been owing to various readings in the older fragmentary transcripts which remained in the possession of the people, they may have originated in the diverse dialects of Arabia, and the different modes of pronunciation and orthography, or they may have sprung up naturally in the already vast domains of Islam, before struct uniformity was officially enforced. It is sufficient for us to know that m Othman's revision recourse was had to the original exemplar of the first compilation, and that there is otherwise every security, internal and external, that we possees a text the same as that which Mahomet himself gave forth and used." (Lefe of Ma-Aomst, new ed., p. 557 et seeq )

The various readings (que ak) in the Qur'an are not such as are usually understood by the term in English authors, but different dialects of the Arabic language Ibn Abbas says the Prophet said, "Gabriel taught me to read the Qur'an in one dialect, and when I recited it he taught me to recite it in another dialect, and so on until the number of dislects increased to seven." (Mishkat, book n ch. it)

Muhammad seems to have adopted this expedient to satisfy the desire of the leading tribes to have a Qur'an in their own dialect, for 'Abdu 'l-Haqq says, " The Qur'an was first revealed in the dialect of the Quaraish, which was the Prophet's native tongue, but when the Prophet saw that the people of other tribes recited it with difficulty, then he obtained permission from God to extend its currency by allowing it to be recited in all the chief dialects of Arabia, which were seven—Quraish, Taiy Hawazin, Yaman, Saqif, Ruzail, and Bann Tamim Every one of these tribes accordingly read the Quran in its own dialect, till the time of Usman, when these differences of reading were prohibsted '

These soven dialects are called in Arabic Sabatu Ahruf, and in Persian Haft Qıra at

III -The Divisions of the Qur'an

The Quran, which is written in the Arabie language, is divided into Harf, Kalamah, Ayah, Surah, Ruku', Rub, Nigf, Sulg, Juz', Manzal

1 Harf (pl Huruf), Letters, of which there are said to be $28,671, or according to some authorities, 338,606.

2 Kulimah (pl Kalimat), Worde, of which there are 77,984 or, according to some writers, 79,984

8. Ayah (pl Ayat), Vernes Ayak (Heb. 77N) is a word which signifies "sign." It was used by Muhammad for short sections or verses of his supposed revelation. The division of verses differs in different editions of the Arabic Qur'an The number of verses in the Arabic Qur'ans are recorded after the title of the Surah, and the verses distinguished in the text by a small sypher or circle. The early readers of the Qur'an did not agree as to the original position of these circles, and so it happens that there are five different systems of numbering the verses.

(a) Kūfah verses. The Readers in the city (a) Küfah verses. of al-Kufah say that they followed the custom of 'Ali Their way of reckoning is generally adopted in India

(b) Başrah verses The Readers in Başrah follow Aşim ibn Hajjāj, a Companion. They reckon 5,204.

Shāmi verses, The Readers in Syria adopted in India They reckon 6,289 varses.
(b) Basrah verses The Readers of al-

(Shām) tollowed 'Abdu 'llāh ibn 'Umar, a Companion. They reck on 6,225 verses

(d) Makkah verses. According to this arrangement, there are 6,219 verses.

(e) Madinah verses This way of reading contains 6,211 varses

4 Surat (pl. Suwar), Chapters A word which signifies a row or series, but which is now used exclusively for the chapters of the Quran, which are one hundred and four These chapters are called teen in number after some word which occurs in the text, and, if the Traditions are to be trusted, they were so named by Muhammad himself, although the verses of their respective burshs were undoubtedly arranged after his death, and sometimes with little regard to their sequence Muslim doctors admit that the Khalifah 'Usman arranged the chapters in the order in which they now stand in the Qur'an

The Surahs of the Muhammadan Qur'an are similar to the forty-three d issons of the Law amongst the Jews known as סדרים Sidamm, or "orders" These were likewise named after a word in the section, e.g The first is Bereshith, the second Nesh &c (See Buxtorf's Tibernas, p 181) Each Smah of the Qui'an, with the exception of the 1xth, begins with the words-

بسم الله الرحيس الرحيم

"In the name of the Merciful, the Compas-

The Surahs, as they stand in Arabic editions of the Quran are as follows -

|          |                 |                        | The Chronological Order         |                              |                            |  |
|----------|-----------------|------------------------|---------------------------------|------------------------------|----------------------------|--|
| No       | Title of Sarah  | Meaning in English     | Accordingto Jalalud-din | According to Rev J M Rodwell | According toSir W Mur- |  |
| 1        | Fātihah         | Preface                | uncertain                       | 8                            | 6                          |  |
| 2        | Bagarah         | Cov                    | 86                              | 91                           | u certain                  |  |
| 3        | Alu Imran       | Family of Imian        | 58                              | 97                           | AH 2 to 10                 |  |
| 4        |                 | Women                  | OL                              | 100                          | uncertain                  |  |
| 5        |                 | Table                  | 112                             | 114                          | AH 6 to 10                 |  |
| 6        | Dame Same       | Outtle                 | 54                              | 89                           | 81                         |  |
| 7        | A'rāf           | A f                    | SH                              | 87                           | 91                         |  |
| 8        | Anfāl           | Spoila                 | 87                              | 95                           | ▲ H 2                      |  |
| 9        | Taubah          | Rupentance             | 113                             | 113                          | The last                   |  |
| Į0       | YūnusHūd    | Jonah                  | 50                              | 84                           | 79                         |  |
| 1312 | Yūsuf           | Hud                    | 51                              | 75                           | 78                         |  |
| 18       | Raid            | Jo ephThunder      | 52                              | 77                           | 77                         |  |
| 14       | Ibrāhīm         | Abraham                | 95                              | 90                           | 89                         |  |
| 15       | Hur             | Hil                    | 71                              | 76                           | 80                         |  |
| 16       | Nahl            | Bee                    | 53                              | 57                           | 62                         |  |
| 17       | Banu Tera'il    | Children of Israet     | 6949                        | 78                           | 88                         |  |
| 18       | Kahf            | Cave                   | 68                              | 6769                     | 87                         |  |
| 19       | Maryam          | Mary                   | 43                              | • •                          | 69                         |  |
| 20       | Ta Hã           | Та На                  | 44                              | 58                           | 68                         |  |
| 21       | Ambiya          | Prophets               | 72                              | 55                           | 75                         |  |
| 22       | Haji            | Pilgrimage             | 103                             | 65107                    | 8685                   |  |
| 28       | Mu minun        | Believers              | 73                              | 64                           | 8584                   |  |
| 24       | Nűr             | Light                  | 102                             | 105                          | • •                        |  |
| 25       | Furqān          | Qur an                 | 41                              | 66                           | A.H. 5                     |  |
| 26       | Shu'arn'        | Poets                  | 46                              | 56                           | 7461                   |  |
| 27       | Nami            | Ant                    | 47                              | 68                           | ~ ~                        |  |
| 28       | Queas           | Story                  | 48                              | 79                           | 7088                   |  |
| 29       | 'Ankabūt        | Spider                 | 84                              | 81                           | 90                         |  |
| 30       | Rom             | Grecks (               | 83                              | 74                           | 60                         |  |
| 3182 | Luquen          | Luquan                 | 56                              | 82                           | 50                         |  |
| 38       | SajdahAhzab | Prostration            | 74                              | 70                           | 44                         |  |
| 84       | Saba'           | Confederates           | 89                              | 103                          | uncertain                  |  |
| 35       | Malahkah        | Saba                   | 57                              | 85                           | 79                         |  |
| 36       | Ya Sip          | Angels                 | 42                              | 56                           | 66                         |  |
| 87       | Saffat          | Ya Sīn                 | 40                              | 60                           | 67                         |  |
| 38       | Sad             | Ranka                  | 55                              | 50                           | 5 9                 |  |
| 89       | Zumar           | Şād                    | 87                              | 59                           | 73                         |  |
| 40       | Mu'min          | Troops                 | 58                              | 80                           | 45                         |  |
| 41       | Fussilet        | Believel               | 59                              | 78                           | 72                         |  |
| 42       | Shūrā           | ExplanationCouncil | 60                              | 71                           | 58                         |  |
| 43       | Zukbrūf         |                        | 61                              | 83                           | 71                         |  |
| 44       | Dukhin          | OrnamentsSmoke     | 62                              | 61                           | 76                         |  |
| 45       | Jasiyah         |                        | 63                              | 58                           | 48                         |  |
| 46       |                 | KneelingAhqaf      | 64                              | 72                           | 57                         |  |
|          |                 |                        | 65                              | 88                           | 64                         |  |

|        |                       |                                     | The Chronological Order    |                                       |                            |  |
|--------|-----------------------|-------------------------------------|----------------------------|---------------------------------------|----------------------------|--|
| ,      | Title of Sürsh        | Meaning in English.                 | According to Jalalu 'd-din | Accordingto RevJ MRodwell | According toSir W Muir |  |
| ,      | Muhammad              | Muhammad                            | 94                         | 96                                    | uncertain                  |  |
| }      | Fath                  | Victory                             | 111                        | 109                                   | AH 6                       |  |
|        | Hujurāt               | Chambers                            | 106                        | 112                                   | uncertain                  |  |
| )[ | QăfZăriyāt        | QafScattering Winds             | 3866                   | 5443                              | 5668                   |  |
|        | Tür                   | Mountain                            | 75                         | 44                                    | 55                         |  |
|        | Naim .                | Star                                | 22                         | 46                                    | 48                         |  |
|        | Qumar                 | Moon                                | 86                         | 49                                    | 48                         |  |
| 5      | Rahmān                | Merciful                            | 96                         | 48                                    | 40                         |  |
| }      | Waqrah                | Inevitable                          | 45                         | 45                                    | 41                         |  |
|        | Hadid                 | Iron                                | 93                         | 99                                    | uncertain                  |  |
| 3      | Majādilah             | Disputer                            | 105                        | 106                                   | uncertein                  |  |
| )      | Hashr  Mumtahinah | AssemblyProved                  | 101                        | 102                                   | AH. 4                      |  |
|        | Saff                  | Array                               | 110                        | 98                                    | uncertain                  |  |
|        | Jamu ab               | Assembly                            | 108                        | 94                                    | uncertain                  |  |
| j      | Munifigm              | Hypocrites                          | 104                        | 104                                   | A.B 65                     |  |
|        | Taghabun              | Mutual Deceit                       | 109                        | 93                                    | 82                         |  |
| •      | Talan                 | Divorce                             | 108                        | 101                                   | uncertain                  |  |
| }      | Tahrim                | Prohibition                         | 107                        | 109                                   | A.H 7 to 8                 |  |
|        | Malk                  | Kingdom                             | 76                         | 68                                    | 42                         |  |
| )      | Quiam                 | PenInevitable Day               | 77                         | 1742                              | 5251                   |  |
|        | Hāqqah  Ma'ājij   | Steps                               | 78                         | 47                                    | 87                         |  |
|        | Nüh                   | Noah                                | 70                         | 51                                    | 54                         |  |
|        | Jinn                  | Genu                                | 39                         | 62                                    | 65                         |  |
|        | Muzzammil             | Wrapped up                          | 3                          | 3                                     | 46                         |  |
|        | Muddaggir             | Enfolded                            | 4                          | 2                                     | 21                         |  |
|        | Qıy amah              | Resurrection                        | 30                         | 40                                    | 36                         |  |
|        | Dahr                  | Time                                | 9732                   | 5236                              | 85                         |  |
|        | MursalatNaba'     | Nessingers                          | 79                         | 37                                    | 3438                   |  |
|        | Názi at               | Those who draw                      | 80                         | 35                                    | 47                         |  |
|        | Abasa                 | He frowned                          | 23                         | 24                                    | 26                         |  |
|        | Takwir                | Folding up                          | 6                          | 32                                    | 27                         |  |
|        | Infițăr               | Cleaving asus der                   | 81                         | 31                                    | 11                         |  |
|        | Tatfif                | Short Measure                       | 85                         | 41                                    | 32                         |  |
|        | Inshiqeq              | Rending in sunder                   | 82                         | 33                                    | 28                         |  |
|        | Baraj                 | Celestial Signs                     | 2635                   | 2622                              | 31                         |  |
|        | TăriqA'la         | Night Star                          | 7                          | 25                                    | 2928                   |  |
|        | Ghashiyah             | Most HighOverwhelming           | 67                         | 38                                    | 25                         |  |
|        | Fajr                  | Day-break                           | 9                          | 39                                    | 14                         |  |
|        | Balad                 | City                                | 34                         | 18                                    | 15                         |  |
|        | Shame                 | Sun                                 | 25                         | 23                                    | 4                          |  |
|        | Lail                  | Night                               | 8                          | 16                                    | 12                         |  |
|        | Zuhā                  | Sur in his meridian                 | 10                         | 4                                     | 16                         |  |
|        | Inchiráh              | Expanding                           | 27                         | 526                               | 178                    |  |
|        | Tin                   | Fig                                 | 1 1                        | 1                                     | 19                         |  |
|        | 'Alaq                 | Congealed blood(Night of) Power | 24                         | 92                                    | 24                         |  |
|        | QadrBaiyinah      | Evidence                            | 99                         | 21                                    | uncertain                  |  |
|        | Zalzalah              | Earthquake .                        | 92                         | 80                                    | 8                          |  |
|        | 'Ādıyāt ,             | Swift horses                        | 18                         | 84                                    | 2                          |  |
|        | Qăritah               | Striking                            | 29                         | 29                                    | 7                          |  |
|        | Takagur               | Multiplying                         | 15                         | 14                                    | 9                          |  |
|        | 'Aşr                  | Afternoon                           | 12                         | 27                                    | 110                    |  |
|        | Humasah               | Slanderer                           | 3118                   | 1819                              | 1018                   |  |
|        | Fil                   | . Elephant                          | 28                         | 20                                    | 105                    |  |
| 1      | Quaisi.               | Quraish                             | 16                         | 15                                    | 39                         |  |

| 102                                           |                                                                  | T                                                                          | The Chronological Order,               |                                       |                                                      |  |
|-----------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------|---------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------|--|
| No.                                           | Title of Strah                                                   | Meening in English                                                         | According to Jalkin 'd-din             | Accordingto RevJ MRodwell | According toSir W Muir                           |  |
| 108109110111112113114 | KausarKafirinNastAht LahabIkhlāsFalaqNas | KausarInfidelsAssistanceAbū LahabUnityDay-breakMen | 14171015211920 | 912111111067  | 1838302220uncertainuncertain |  |

5 Ruku (pl. Ruku at), an melination of the head or bow These are sections of about ten verses or less. at which the devout Mus hm makes a how of reverence, they and marked on the margin of the Qur'an with the letter 'asu & with the number of the ruku over it Muhammadans generally quote their Qur'an by the fuz or Siparuh and the Kukü

The quarter of a Juz', or Sipa 6 Rub

rak. The half of a Separah 7 Nisf

The three-quarters of a Siparah 8 Sula These three divisions are denoted by the words being written on the in irgin Porsian Siparah 9 Juz' (pl. A)zā') Thirty divisions of the Guran which have been made to enable the dovout Muslim to recite the whole of the Qur'an in the thirty days of Ramezan Muhammadaus usually quote their Qur'an by the Amarah or Juz' and not by the Surah 10 Manzel (pl Manazel, Stages) are seven in number, and are marked by the letters 3, 4, which are said to apell Fami be Shaug, "My mouth with de sire" This arrangement is to enable the Muslim to recite the whole in the course of a week.

IV .- The Contents of the Qur'an and the Chronological Arrangement of its Chapters

In the Arabio Qur'an, the Surahs are placed as they were arranged in Zaid ibn Sabit, who seems to have put them together regardless of any chronological sequence The initial, or opening prayer, stands first, and then the longest chapters But the Muhammaden commentators admit that the Qur'an is not obronologically arranged, and Jalalu 'd-din, in his Itqun, has given a list of them as they are supposed to have been revsaled This list will be found under the Divisions of the Our'an in the present article And, what is still more confusing, all Muhammadan doctors allow that in some of the Surahs there are verses which belong to a different date from that of other portions of the chapter, for example, in the Suratu 1-'Also, the first five verses belong to a much earlier date than the others, and in Surstu 'I Baqarah, verse 284 is acknowledged by all commentators, to have been revealed after verse 240, which it abrogates

If we arrange the burahs or Chapters according to the order given in Sayuti's liqua, or by Sir William Muir, or by Mr Rodwell, we cannot fail to mark the gradual develop-ment of Muhammad's mind from that of a mere moral toacker and reformer to that of s prophet and warmor-chief The contrast between the earlier, middle, and later Surahs is very instructive and interesting

In the earlier Suishs we observe a predominance of a poets at element, a deep appre-ciation of the beauty of natural objects, fragmentaly and impassioned utterances, denunciation of woe and punishment being expressed in these earlier Suralis with extreme brevity

" With a shange however, in the position or Muhammad when he openly assumes the office of 'public warner,' the Surahs begin to wear a more prosaic and didactic tone though the poetical ernament of rhyme is preserved throughout We lose the poet in the missionary aiming to convert and in the warm asserter of dogmatic truths, the descriptions of natural objects, of the Judgment of Heaven and Hell make way for gradually increasing historical statements first from Jewish, and subsequently from Christian hietories, while in the twenty-nine (thirty?) Surshs revealed at Medina we no longer liaten to vague words often as it would seem, without defininite sim, but to the earnest disputant with the opponents of the new faith, the Apostle pleading the cause of what he believes to be the trutu of God He who at Mesons is the admomsher and persuader, at Medina is the legislator and the warrior dictating obedience, and who uses other weapons than the pen of the poet and the scribe, while we are startled by finding obedience to God and the Apostle, God's gifts and the Apostle's God's pleasure and the Apostle's, spoken of in the same breath, and epithets and attributes elsewhere applied to Allah openly applied to himself 'Whose obeyeth the Apostle obeyeth Allah'

"The Suras, viewed as a whole, will thus appear to be the work of one who began his career as a thoughtful inquirer after truth, and as an earnest asserter of it in such rhetorical and postical forms as he deemed most likely to win and attract his countrymen, but who gradually proceeded from the dogmatic teacher to the political founder of a system for which laws and regulations had to be provided as occasions arose. And of all the Suras, it must be remarked that they were intended not only for readers but for hearers -that they were all promulgated by public recital—and that much was left, as the imperfect sentences show, to the manner and suggestive action of the reciter "

Preface to the Qur'an) (Rodwell's

The absence of the historical element from the Qur'an, as regards the details of Muhammad's daily life, may be judged of by the fact that only two of his contemporaries (Abū Lahab and Zaid) are mentioned in the entire volume, and that Muhammad's name occurs but five times, although he is all the way through addressed by the angel Gabriel as the recipient of the divine revelations, with the word "Sav" Perhaps also such passages as Sarah ii verses 5, 246, and 274 and the constant mention of guidance, direction, wan dering, may have been suggested by reminiscences of his mercantile journeys in his earlier years.

Sir William Muir has very skilfully arranged the Surahs into six periods (See Coran, S P C K ed.), and although they are not precisely in the obronological order given by Jalalu 'd-Din in his Itaan the arrangement secoms to be fully horne out by internal evidence With the assistance of Prof Paimer's "Table of Contents" slightly altered (The Qur'an, Oxford ed 1880), we shall arrange the contents of the Our an according to these periods

THE FIRST PERIOD

Eighteen Süraha, consisting of short rhap sodies, may have been composed by Muhammad before he conceived the idea of a divine mission, none of which are in the form of a message from the Desty

CHAPTER CILI

Suratu 1- Arr The Chapter of the Afternoon.

A short chapter of one verse as follows -"By the afternoon! Verily, man is in loss! Rave those who believe and do right and bid each other be true, and bid each other be patient."

CHAPTER C

Süratu 1- Adıyat The Chapter of the Chargers.

Oath by the charging of war-horses Man is ungrateful. Certainty of the Judgment

CHAPTER KOIX

Suratu z-Zalzalah. The Chapter of the Earthquake

The earthquake preceding the Judgment Day

CHAPTER XOL Suratu 'sh-Shams. The Chapter of the Sun.

Purity of the soul brings happiness Example of Samud (The latter verses are clearly of a later date than the first ten.)

CHAPTER OVI Süratu V-Qurasek The Chapter of the Quraish.

The Quraish are bidden to give thanks to God for the trade of their two yearly cara-TARR

CHAPTER L.

Süratu 'l-Patihah The Opening Chapter

A prayer for guidance (This short chapter, which is the opening chapter of the Quran, is recited in the liturgy) "Praise be to God, Lord of all the worlds! The compassionate, the merciful! King of the day of reckoning l Thee only do we worship, and to Thee only do we cry for help Guide Thou us in the straight path, The path of those to whom Thou hast been gracious, With whom Thou art not angry, And who go not astray "

CHAPTER OL

Suratu 'l-Qarrah. The Chapter of the Smiting The terrors of the last day and of hell-fire (al-Hawiyah)

> CHAPTER XCV. Suratu 't-Tin

The Chapter of the Fig. The degradation of man.

Future reward and punishment. CHAPTER CIL

Saratu 't-Takasur The Chapter of the Contention about Numbers

Two families of the Arabs rebuked for contending which was the more numerous. Warning of the punishment of hell.

CHAPTER CIV Süratu 'l-Humazak The Chapter of the Backbuter Backbiters shall be cast into hell.

CHAPTER LXXXII. Süratu 7-Infiçar The Chapter of the Cleaving Asunder. Signs of the Judgment Day

Guardian angels.

CHAPTER XCII Süratu 'l-LaiL The Chapter of the Night.

Promise of reward to those who give alms and fear God and " believe in the best."

CHAPTER OV Sürgtu 'l-Fil

The Chapter of the Elephant

The mirsoulous destruction of the Abyssinian army under Abrahatu 7-Ashram by birds when invading Makkah with elephants, in the year that Muhammad was born

CHAPTER LXXXIX

Súratu 'l-Fajr The Chapter of the Dawn

Fate of previous nations who rejected their teachers

Admonition to those who rely too much on their prosperity

CHAPTER XC

Suratu 'l Balad
The Chapter of the City
Exhortation to practise charity

CHAPTER XCUI

Suratu'z Zahā The Chapter of the Forencon

Muhammad encouraged and hidden to remember how God has cared for him hitherto, be is to be charitable in return, and to publish God's goodness

CHAPTER XCIV

Sürutu 'l-Insharah

The Chapter of "Have we not Fupanded" God has made Muhammad's miss on easier to him

CHAPTER CVIII
Süratu '/ Kausar
The Chapter of al-Kausar

Muhammad 14 commanded to offer the sacrifices out of his abundance

Threat that his enemies shall be child less

THE SECOND PERIOD

Four Surahs The opening of Muhammad's Ministry Surah x vi contains the command to recite, and, according to the Traditions it was the first revelation

CHAPTER XCVI

Surate 'l-'Alay
The Chapter of Congested Blood.

Muhammad's first call to read the Qur'an Denunciation of Abū Lahab for his opposi tion (The latter verses of this Sürak are admitted to be of a later date then the former)

CHAPTER CXII

Suratu l-Ikhlas

The Chapter of the Unity

Declaration of God's unity

(This short Surah is highly esteemed, and in recrited in the daily littingy)

"Say He is God alone
God the Eternal!
He begetteth not.
And is not begotten,
I'nd there is none like unito Him"

CHAPTER LXXIV.

Suratu 'l Muddaggir The Chapter of the Covered

Muhammad while covered up is bidden to arise and preach

Denunciation of a rich infidel who mocks at the revelation

Hell and its nineteen angels

The infidels rebuked for demanding material scriptures as a proof of Muhammad's mission

CHAPTER OXI

Suratu Tabbat
The Chapter of "Let Perish"

Denunciation of Abū Lahab and his wife, who are threatened with hell fire

THE THIRD PERIOD

Nincteen Sürahs, chiefly descriptions of the Resurrection, Paradise and Hell, with reference to the growing opposition of the Qurush given from the commencement of Muhammud's public ministry to the Abyesi man emigration

CHAPTER LXXXVII

Suratu I-A'la

The Chapter of the Most High

Muhammad shill not forget any of the nevelation save what God pleases

The revelation is the same as that given to Abraham and Moses

UHAPTER XCVII

Suratu / Qadr The Chapter of Power

The Quran rovealed on the night of power

Its excellence

Angels descend thereon

CHAPTER LXXXVIII

Suratu 'l-Ghashiyah
Tho Chupter of the Overwhelming
Description of the Last Day, Heaven and Hell

CHAPTER LXXX

Săratu 'Abasa The Chapter "he Frowned"

The Prophet rebuked for frowning on a poor blind believer

The Creation and Resurrection

CHAPTER LXXXIV

Suratu l-Inshiquq
The Chapter of the Rending Asunder
Signs of the Judgment Day
The books of men's actions

Ti e Resurrection Denunciation of misbelievors

CHAPTER LAXXI.

Suratu ! Fakwir The Chapter of the Folding-up

Terrors of the Judgment Day

The remale child who has been buried alive will demand vengeance

Allusion to the Prophet's vision of Gabriel on Mount Hira'

He is vindicated from the charge of mad-

CHAPTER LXXXVI.

Suratu 'ut-Tariq

The Chapter of the Night Star

By the night star, every soul has a guardian angel.

Creation and resurrection of man.

The plot of the infidels shall be frustrated

CHAPTER CX

Suratu'n Nasr The Chapter of Help

Prophecy that men snall join Islam by troops

CHAPTER LAXXV

Sūratu I Burūj

The Chapter of the Zodiacal Signs

Denunciation of those who persecute heliciers

Example of the fate of Pharach and Samud

CHAPTER LXXXIII

Suratu 't-Tat fif

The Chapter of those who give Short Weight

Frandulent traders are warned

Sujin, the register of the acts of the wicked

Hell and heaven

CHAPTER LXXVIII

Süratu 'n-Naha'

The Chapter of the Information

Description of the Day of Indgmout, hell, and heaven.

CHAPTER LXXVII

Suratu l-Mursalat

The Chapter of Messengers

Oath by the angels who execute God's Terrors of the Last Dav Hell and Heaven.

CHAPTER LXXVI

Suratu 'd-Dahr

The Chapter of Time

Man's conception and birth Unbelievers warned and believers promised

Exhortstion to charity
Bliss of the charitable in Paradise
The Qur'an rovealed by degrees
Only those believe whom God wills

CHAPTER LXXV

Süratu 'l-Qıyanah.

The Chapter of Resurrection

The Resurrection

Muhammad is bidden not to be hurried in repeating the Qur'an so as to commit it to memory

Dying agony of an infidel

CHAPTER LXX

Süratu 'l-Ma'ārı

The Chapter of the Ascents

An unbeliever mockingly calls for a judgment on himself and his companions The terrors of the Judgment Day Man's ingratitude

Adultery denounced

Certainty of the Judgment Day

CHAPTER CIK.

Suratu l-Kafirun

The Chapter of the Misbelievers
The Prophet will not follow the relies

The Prophet will not follow the religion of the mucholisvors

CHAPTER CVII.

Süratu ! Maun

The Chapter of Necessames

Denunciation of the unbelieving and un charitable

CHAPTER LV

Süratu 'r-Rahman

The Chapter of the Mercuful.

An enumeration of the works of the Lord ending with a description of Paradise and Hell

A refrain runs throughout this chapter —
"Which then of your Lord's bounties do yo twain dony."

CHAPTER LVI

Süratu 'l-Wayı'ah

The Chapter of the Inevitable

Terrors of the inevitable Day of Judgment

Description of Paradise and Holl

Proofs in Nature

None but the clean may touch the Qur'an. The condition of a dying man

THE FOURTH PERIOD

Twenty-two Sūrshs, given from the sixth to the tenth year of Muhammad a ministry. With this period begin the narratives of the Jewish Scriptures, and Rabbinical and Arab legends. The temporary compremise with idolatry is connected with Sūrah bii

CHAPTER LXVII

Suratu'l Mulk

The Chapter of the Kingdom

God the Lord of heavens

The marvels thereof

The discomfiture of the misbelievers in Hell

The power of God exhibited in Nature Warnings and threats of punishment

CHAPTER LIII

Süratu'n Najm

The Chapter of the Star

Oath by the star that Muhammad's vision of his ascent to heaven was not a delusion

Description of the same

The amended passage relating to idolatry Wickedness of asserting the angels to be lemales

God's Omniscience

Rebuke of an apostle who paid another to take upon him his burden at the Judgment Day

Definition of true religion God's attributes

CHAPTER XXXII

Süratu's Sajdak. The Chapter of Adoration

The Qur'an is truth from the Lord God the Creator and Governor

The Resurrection

Conduct of true believers when they hear the word

Their reward

The punishment of misbelievers

Description of Hell.

The people are exhorted to believe and are admonished by the fate of the ruined cities they see around them.

They are warned of the Judgment Day

CHAPTER XXXIX

Süratu 'z-Zumar The Chapter of the Troops

Rebuke to the idolaters who say they serve false gods as a means of access to God hrmself

The unity of God, the Creator and Controller of the universe

His independence and omnipotence Ingratitude of man for God's help

Difference between the believers and unbellevers

Muhammad is called to sincerity of religion and to Islam

He is to fear the torment at the Judgment Day if he disobeys the call.

Hell-tire is prepared for the infidels

Paradise promised to those who avoid

The irrigation of the soil and the growth of com are signa

The Quran makes the skin of those who fear God oreep.

Threat of the Judgment Day

The Makkans are warned by the fate of their predecessors not to reject the Qur'an.

Parable showing the uncertain position of the idolaters

Muhammad not immertal.

Warning to those who he against God, and promise of reward to those who assert the truth

Muhammad is not to be frightened with the idols of the Makkaus

Their helplessness demonstrated

The Quran is a guide, but the Prophet cannot compel men to follow it

Human souls are taken to God during sleep, and those who are destaned to live on are sent back

No intercession allowed with God

The doctrine of the unity of God torrifles the idolaters

Prayer to God to decide between them The infidels will regret on the Resurrection

Ingratitude of man for God's help in trouble

The Makkans are warned by the fate of their predecessors

Exhortation to repentance before it is too late.

Salvation of the God-fearing

God the creator and controller of every

Description of the Last Judgment.

All souls driven in troops to heaven or to hell

CHAPTER LXXIII

Süratu'l-Muzzammil. The Chapter of the Enwrapped.

Muhammad, when wrapped up in his mantle, is bidden to arise and pray

Is bidden to repeat the Qur'an and to prac tice devotion by night

He is to bear with the unbelievers for a

Pharach rejected the apostle sent to him Stated times for prayer prescribed Almsgiving prescribed.

CHAPTER LXXIX.

Suratu 'n-Nazi'al The Chapter of those who Tear Out.

The coming of the Day of Judgment The call of Moses His interview with Pharach Chastisement of the latter

The Orestion and Resurrection.

CHAPTER LIV

Suratu 'l-Qamar The Chapter of the Moon.

The splitting asunder of the moon. Muhammad accused of imposture

The Makkans warned by the stories of Noah and the Deluge, of Samud, the people of Sodom, and Pharach.

The sure coming of the Judgment

CHAPTER XXXIV

Süratu Saba' The Chapter of Saba'

The omniscience of God Those who have received knowledge recognise the revelation

The unbelievers mock at Muhammad for preaching the Resurrection

The birds and mountains sing praises with David.

Iron softened for him

He makes coats of mail.

The wind subjected to Solemon

A fountain of brass made to flow for him The nums compelled to work for him

His death only discovered by means of the worm that gnawed

The staff that supported his corpse The prosperty of Saba'

Bursting of the dyke (al-'Arım) and rum of the town.

Helplessness of the false gods

They cannot intercede for their worshippers when assembled at the Last Day

Fate of the misbelievers on that day The proud and the weak shall dispute as to which misled the others

The affluence of the Makkans will only increase their ruin.

The angels shall disown the worshippers of false gods

The Makkans accuse Muhammad of imposture

So did other nations deal with their Prophets and were punished for it.

Muhammad is cleared of the suspicion of

The wretched plight of the misbelievers on the Last Day

CHAPTER XXXL

Süratu Lugman The Chapter of Lucman.

The Qur'an a guidance to believers Denunciation of one who purchased Persian legends and preferred them to the Quran

God in Nature Other gods can create nothing Wisdom granted to Luquan

His advice to his sun.

The obstinacy of the infidels rebuked If the sea wore ink and the trees pens, they would not suffice to write the words of the Lord

God manifest in the night and day, in the -un and moon, and in rescuing men from dangers by sea

God only knows the future

CHAPTER LXIX

Suratu'l Haggah The Chapter of the Inevitable

The mevitable judgment Fate of those who demed it, of Ad, Samud and Pharaoh

The Deluge and the Last Judgment Vindication of Muhammad from the charge of having forged the Qur'an

CHAPTER LXVIII

Süratu l-Qulam The Chapter of the Pen.

Muhammad is neither mad not an impostor

Denounced by an involent opponent

Example from the fate of the owner of the Unbelievers threatened

Muhammad exhorted to be patient and not to follow the example of Jonah

CHAPTER XLI

Suratu Fussilat The Chapter " Are Detailed "

The Makkans are called on to believe the Qui an

The creation of the heavens and the earth

Warning from the fate of 'Ad and Samud The very skins of the unbelievers shall bear witness against their on the Day of Judgment Punishment of these who reject the Qur'an. The angels descend and encourage those who believe.

Precept to return good for evil

Refuge to be sought with God against temptation from the devil

Against sun and moon worship The angels praise God though the idolators are too proud to do so

The quickening of the earth with rain is a

The Qur'an a confirmation of previous scriptures

If it had been revealed in a foreign tongue the people would have objected that they could not understand it and that the Prophet, being an Arab, should have had a revelation in his own language

Moses' scripture was also the subject of dispute

God is omniscient

The false gods will desert their worship pers at the Resurrection

Man's ingratitude for God's help in trouble God is sufficient witness of the truth

CHAPTER LXXI

Suratu Nuh. The Chapter of Noah

Nosh s preaching to the Antediluvians Their five idols also worshipped by the Arabs

Their fate

CHAPTER LIL

Suratu't Tur

The Chapter of the Mount

Oath by Mount Sman and other things Terrors of the Last Dav

Bliss of Paradise

Muhammud is neither a madman, soothsayer poet, nor impostor

Reproof of the Makkans for their super stitions and for proudly rejecting the Prophet

CHALLER L

Sûroin Qaf The Chapter of Qaf

Proofs in nature of a future life Example of the fate of the nations of old who rejected the apostles

Creation of man God's proximity to him The two recording angels

Death and Resurrection

The Last Judgment and exhortation to believe

CHAPTER XLV

Suratu 'l-Jässyah The Chapter of the Kneehng

God revealed in nature Dehanciation of the infidele

Trading by sea a sign of God's providence The law first given to Israel then to Mu-hammed in the Qur'an

Answer to the justidels who deny the Resurrection, and warning of their fate on that day

CHAPTER XLIV

Suratu 'd-Dukhan The Chapter of the Smoke

Night of the revelation of the Qui'an Unity of God

Threat of the Last Day when a smoke shall cover the heavens and the unbelievers shall be punished for rejecting the Prophet, and saying he is taught by others or distracted

Fate of Pharaot, for rejecting Moses

Fate of the people of Jubba.

The Judgment Day

The tree Zaquum and the pumshment of

Paradise and the sirgina thereni

The Qui'm revealed in Arabic for an admon hon

CHAPTEL XXXVII

Swatu & Satfat

I'he Chapter or the Rangen

Oath by the angels ranged in rank, by those who drive the clouds and by those who reliease the Qui an that God is one alone !

They guard the gates of hearen, and pelt the devils who would listen there with shooting stars

Do the Makkans imagine themselves stronger than the ungels that they mock of God's signs and deny the Resurrection?

The talse gods and the Makkans shall reoriminate each other at the Judgment

Day
They say now "Shall we leave our gods for a mad noet"

They shall taste hell fire for their annellef while he believers are in Paradise

Description of the delights thereof

The mordens there

The blessed shall see ther moderna former consumdes in hell immortable of the blessed.

Az-Zaqqum the accuracd tree in hell

Horrors of that place

The posterity of Noah were blessed Abraham mocks at and breaks the idols

Hers condemned to be burnt alive, but is delivered

Le commanded to ofter up his son as a sacrifice obeys, but his son is spared

His posterity is blessed

Moses and Aaron, too, left a good report behind them, so too, did Elias, who protested against the worship of Baal

Lot was saved

Jonah was delivered after having been thrown overboard and swallowed by a fish

The gourd

Jonah is sent to preach to the people of the city (of Nineveh)

The Makkans rebuked for saying that God has daughters, and for saving that He is akm to the junus.

The angels declare that they are but toe humble servants of God

The success of the Prophet and the confusion of the infidels foretold

CHAPTER XXX

Suratu r-Rum The Chapter of the Greeks

Victory of the Pereians over the Greeks Prophecy of the coming tnumph of the letter

The Makkans warned by the fate of former C1110B.

The idols shall forsake thom at the Resurrection

The bohavers shall enter Paradise

God is to be praised in the morning and evening and at noon and sunset

His creation of man and of the universe and His providence are signs

He is the incomparable Loid of all Warming against idolstry and schism.

Honesty un ulcated and usury reproved God only crostes and kills Corruption in the earth through sin.

The fate of former idolaters

Exhibitation to believe before the sudden eming of th Judgment Day

God's sending rain to juicken the earth is a sign of His power

Muhammad cannot make the deaf hear his DIPARRED

Warming of the Last Day

CHAPTER XXVI

vuratu 'sh-Shu'ara' The Chapter of the Peets

Muhammad is not to be vexed by the people's unbenef

Though called a har now his cause shall titumph in the end

Moses and Pharaob

He fears test be may be killed for slaying the Egyptian

Pharach charges him with ingratitude

Their dispute about God

Pharaoh claims to be God himself The miracles of the rod and the white

Moses' contest with the inagicians

The magicians are conquered and believe Pharson threatens them with condign panishment

The Israehtes leave Egypt and are pur-

The passing of the Red Sea and destruc-tion of Pharach and his bosts

The history of Abraham

He preaches against idelatry Norb is called a liar and vindicated

Hud preaches to the people of Ad and Sahh to Samud The latter hamstring the she carnet and perish The crime and punishment of the people of Sodom The people of the Grove and the prophet

Shafaib The Quran revealed through the matru mentality of the Faithful Spirit (Gabriel) in plain Arabio

The learned Jews recognise its truth from the prophecies in their own scriptures

The devils could not have brought it. Muhammad is to be meek towards be hevers and to warn his clansmen

Those upon whom the devile descend, namely, the poets who wander distraught in every vale

CHAPTER XV

Süratu 'l-Hen The Chapter of al-Hig

Misbehevers will one day regret then misbelief

No city was ever destroyed without warn

The infidels mockingly risk Muhammad to bring down angels to punish them

To did the sinners of old act towards their apostles

There are signs enough in the zodise, guarded as they are from the devile who are pelted with shooting-stars if they aftempt to haten.

All nature is under God a control

Man created from clay, and jum from smoheless tire

The a wels bidden to adore Adam

The devil refuses, is curred and expelled. but respited until the Day of Judgment

Is allowed to sedue mannind

Hell, with its seven doors promised to mishelievers, and Paindies to believers

Story of Abraham a angelic guest,

They announce to him the birth of a son They proceed to Lot a family

The crime and punishmen. I the people of Sodom

The runed cities still remain to tell the himilar tate of the people of the Grove and of al-Hajr

The hour draws nigh

The Lord Omniscient Creator has sent the Quran and the seven verses of repetition

Muhammad is not to grieve at the worldly success of unbelievers

Those who dismember the Qur'an are threatened with punishment

Muhammad is encouraged against the inia believers

CHAPTER LI

Suratu z-Zariyat The Chapter of the Scatterers

Oaths by infferent natural phenomena that the Judgment Day will come

Story of Abraham s entertaining the angels The destruction of Sodom

Fate of Pharson, of 'Au, of Samud, and of the people of Noah Vindication of Muhammad against the charges of imposture or madnes.

THE FIFTH PLRIOD

Thirty-one Suraha From the tenth year of Muhammada ministry to the flight from Makkah

The Sürahs of this period contain some narratives from the gospel The rites of pilgrimage are enjoined. The cavillings of the Quraish are refuted and we have vivid picturings of the Resurrection and Judgment, of Heaven and Hell, with proof's of God's unity, power and providence

From stage to stage the Sürahs become, on the average, longe and some of them now fill many pages In the latter Surahs of this period, we meet not unfrequently with Madinah nassages, which have been mterpolated as bearing on some connected subject As examples may be taken, verse 40 of Surah xxii, in which permission is given to bear arms against the Makkans, verse 33, Surah xvii, containing rules for the adminietration of justice, verse 111, Sürah xvi, referring to such believers as had fied their country and fought for the faith being all passages which could have been promulgated only after the Flight to al-Madinah.

CHAPIER XLVI

Suratu 'l-Ahgaf The Chapter of al-Ahoaf

God the only God and Creator.

The unbelievers call Muhammao a sor cerer or a forger

The book of Moses was revealed before, and the Qui an as a confirmation of it in Conception, birth, and life of man

Kindness to parents and acceptance of lsläm enjoined

The misbelievers are warned by the example of Ad, who dwell in Ahgaf, and by that of the cities whose ruins he around Makkah

Allusion to the jinns who listened to Mu hammada preaching at Makkal on his return from at Ta f

Varning to unbelievers of the punishment of the Last Day

CHAPTER LXXII

Surate 'l-Jenn The Chapter of the Jinn

A crowd of june listen to Muhammad's teaching at Nakhlab

Their account of themselves

Muhammad exhorted to persevere in preaching

CHAPTER XXXV

Süratu 'l-Malā'ı kah The Chapter of the Angels

Praise of God who makes the Angels has messenger

Gods unity

Apostles before Muhammaa were accused of imposture

Punishment in store for the unbelievers Muhammad is not to be vexed on their account God sends ram to quicken the dead earth.

This is a sign of the Resurrection

The power of God shown in all nature.

The helplessness of the idols

They will disolaim their worshippers at the Resurrection No soul shall bear the burden of another

Muhammad cannot compel people to be-

He is only a warner.

Other nations have accused their prophets of imposture and perished.

Reward of the God-fearing of believers, and of those who read and follow the Qur'an.

Punishment of hell for the infidels The idolaters shall be confounded on the

Judgment Day

The Quraish in spite of their promises and of the examples around them, are more arrogant and unbelieving than other people

If God were to punish men as they deserve, he would not leave so much as a beast on tho earth, but He respites them for a time

CHAPTER XXXVI

Süratu Yā Sin The Chapter of Ya Sin.

Muhammad is God's messenger, and the Qur'an is a revelation from Goo to warn a

The initials are prodestined not to believe All men's work shall be recorded

The apostles of Jesus rejected at Antioch Habibu 'n-Najjär exhorts the people to follow their advice. He is stoned to death by the populace

Gabriel cross out and the suful people are destroyed

Men will laugh at the spectles who come to them, but they have an example in the nations who have perished before them

The quickening of the deau earth is a sign of the Resurrection

Ged's power shown in the procreation of epecies

The alternation of night and day, the phases of the moon the sun and moon in their orbits are signs of God's power

So, too, the preservation of men in ships at Bea

Almsgrang enjouned

The unbelievers jeer at the command The sudden coming of the Judgment Day Blessed state of the believers in Paradise, and misery of the nabelievers in hell

Muhammad is no mere poet The Qur'an an admonition

God's providence

The false gods will not be able to help then worshippers

Proofs of the Resurrection

CHAPTER XIX

Suratu Maryam The Chapter of Mary

Zachariah prays for an heir He is promised a son, who is to be called John

Is struck dumb for three days as a sign. John is born and given the Book, Judgment, grace, and purity

Story of Mary The annunciation.

Her delivery beneath a palm-tree

The infant Jesus in the ciadle testifies to her innocence and to his own mission

Warning of the Day of Judgment Story of Abraham

He reproves his father, who threatens to stone him

Abraham prays for him Isaac and Jacob are born to him

Moses communes with God and has Aaron for a belp

Ishmael and Idris mentioned as Prophets Thor seed when the signs of the Merciful are read, fall down adoung

The Makkans, then successors, are promised reward in Paradise, in they repent and believe

The angels only descend at the bidding of the Lord.

Certainty of the Resurrection

Punishment of those who have rebelled against the Merciful

Reproof of one who said he should have wealth and obildren on the Judgment Day The false gods shall deny their worshippers

then I'de devile sent to tempt unbelievers The gathering of the Judgment Day

All nature is convulsed at the imputation that the Merciful has begotten a son

This revelation is only to wain mankind by the example of the generations who have passed away

CHAPTER XVIII

Saralu'l-Kahf The Chiptor of the Cave

The Qur'an 1, a warning especially to those who say God hos pegotten a son

Muhammad 14 not to grieve if they refuse to believe

Story of the Fellows of the Cave Then number known only to God

Muhammad rebuked 101 promising a reve lation on the subject

He is enjoined to obey God in all things, and not to be induced to give up his poorer followers Hell fire threatened for the unbelievers and Paradise promised to the good

Parable of the proud mins garden which was destroyed while that of the humble man flourished

This life is like the horb that springs up and perishes

Good works are more lasting than wealth and children.

The Last Day

The devil refuses to adore Adam

The men are not to take him for a patron They shall be forsaken by their patrons at the Last Day

Men would behave, but that the example of those of yore must be repeated

Misbelievers are unjust, and shall not be allowed to understand, or be guided

But God is merciful.

Story of Moses and his servant in search of al-Khizr

They lose their fish at the confluence of the two seas

They meet a strange prophet, who bide Moses not question anything he may do

He scattles a ship, kills 2 bov, and builds up a tottering wall

Moses desires an explanation, which the stranger gives, and leaves him. Story of Zu i-Qarnam.

He travels to the ocean of the setting.

Builds a rampart to keep in Gog and Magog

These are to be let loose again before the Judgment Day

Reward and punishment on that day

Were the sea ink, it would not suffice for the words of the Loid

The Prophet is only a mortal

CHAPTER XXVII.

Suratu'»-Nami The Chapter of the Ant.

The Qur'an a guidance to believers.

God appears to Moses in the fire

Moses is sent to Pharach with signs, but is called a sorcerer

David and Solomon endowed with know-ledge

Solomon taught the speech of birds

His army of men, junes and birds, marches through the valley of the ant

One ant bids the rest retire to their holes lest Solomon and his hosts crush them

Solomon smiles and answers her

He reviews the birds and misses the hoopee, who returning, brings news of the magnificance of the Queen of Shobs

Solomon sends him back with a letter to the Queen

A demon brings him her throne

She comes to Solomon, recognises her throne, marvels at the pelace with the glass floor, which are mistakes for wate.

Becomes a Muslim

Samud reject Salih and periali

Lot is saved while the prople of nodom are destroyed

The Lord, the God of nature, the only God and Creator

Cortainty of the Resurrection

The ruins of ancient cities at example,

The Qur'an decides disputed points for the Muhammad hidden to trust in God, for he cannot make the deaf to hear his message.

The beast that shall appear at the Resurrection.

Terrors of the Last Day

The Prophet bidden to worship the Lord of this land, to recite the Qur'an, and to become a Mushm

CHAPTER XLII

Süratu 'sh-Shüra' The Chapter of Oounsel

The Quran aspired by God to warn the Mother of cities of the judgment to come.

God is one the Orestor of all thing, , no provides for all.

He calls men to the same religion as that of the prophets of old, which men have broken up into sects.

Muhammad has only to proclaim his mes-

Those who argue about God shall be confuted

None knows when the hour shall come but God.

The idolaters shall only have their portion in this life

God will vindicate the truth of His revela-

His creation and providence signs of His power

Mon's misfortunes by land and sea are due to their own sins

The provision of the next world is best for the righteous

It is not sinful to retaliate if wronged, though forgiveness is a duty

The sunners shall have none to help them on the Day of Judgment

They are exhorted to repent before it comes

Ingratitude of man.

God controls all

No mortal has ever seen God face to face

He speaks to men only through inspiration of His apostles

This Qur'an was revealed by a spirit to guide into the light way

CHAPIFR XI

Surolu 'l-Mu'min

The Chapter of the Believes

Attributes of God.

Muhammad encouraged by the fate of ther nations who rejected their aposties

The angels' prayer for the believers

Despau in hell of the idolaters

The terrors of the Judgment Day God alone the Omniscient Judge

The vestiges of former nations are still visible in the land to warn the people

The story of Moses and Pharach

The latter wishes to kill Moses, but a ceret believer makes a long appeal

Pharach bids Haman construct a tower to a joint up to the God of Moses

God saves the believer, and Pharnoh is runed by his own devices

Mutual recrimination of the damned.

Exhortsion to patience and praise.

Those who wrangle about God rebuked

The certain coming of the Hour

The unity of God asserted and His attributes commercial Idolatry forbidden.

The conception birth, life, and death of man

Idolaters shall find out their error in hell Muha minad encouraged to want for the tashe

Oattle to ride on and to est are signs of God's providence

The example of the nations who perished of old for rejecting the apostles

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

Süratu 's-Sād The Chapter of Sād

Oath by the Qur'an

Example of former gonerations who perished for unbelief, and for saving that their prophets were sorcerers and the Scriptures forgeries

The Makkans are warned thereby.

Any hosts of the confederates shall be routed.

Fate of the people of Noah, 'Ad, Pharaoh, Samud, and Lot

The Makkans must expect the same

Muhammad oxhorted to be patient of what they say

He is reminded of the powers bestowed on David

The parable of the ewe lambs proposed to David by the two antagonists

David exhorted not to follow lust

The heaven and earth were not created in vain, as the misbelievers think

The Quran a reminder

Solomon, lost in admiration of his horses neglects his devotions, but, reputting, slays

A junn in Solomon's likeness is set on his throne to punish him

He repents and plays God for a kingdom such as no one should ever possess again

The wind and the devils made subject to hım

The patience of Jub

Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob

Ebsha and Zū 'l-Kıfl

Happiness of the righteous in Paradise Mise-v and mutual recrimination of the wicked in hell. Muhammad only sent to warn people and proclaim God's unity

The creation of man and dischedient of Iblia, who is expelled

He is respited till the Judgment Day, that he may seduce people to misbelief

But he and those who follow him hall till hell

CHAPTER XXV

Buratu 'l Furgan The Chaptor of the Discrimination

The Discrimination sent down as a warming that God is one the Creator and Governor of all, yet the Makkans call it old folke

They object that the Prophet acts and lives as a mere mortal or is tracy

Hell-fire shall be the punishment of those who disbelieve in the Resurrection

Description of the Judgmont Day

The Quraish object that the Quran wis revealed piecemeal

Moses and Aaron and Noah were treated like Muhammad, but those who called them

hars were punished 'Ad and Samua perished for the same

The ruins of the cities of the plain are existing examples

Yot bey will not accept the Prophet

God controls the shadow given night for a repose, quickens the dead earth with

He lets loose the two seas, but places a barrier between them

He has orested man

He is the loving and merciful God

The Quraish object to the Merciful as a new God

The lowly and moderate are His servants

They abstam from idolatry, murder, false witness, and frivolous discourse

These shall be rewarded

God cares nothing for the rejection of his message by the infidels

Their punishment shall be lasting

CHAPTER XX

Süratu Ta Hä. The Chapter of Ta Ha

The Quran a reminder from the Mercuful. who owns all things and knows all things There is no god but He

His are the excellent names

Story of Moves

He perceives the fire and is addressed from it by God in the holy valley Tuxan God shows him the miracle of the staff turned to a snake and of the white hand,

Sends him to Pharach

Moses excuses himselt because of the imediment in his speech

Anion is given him as a minister Moses mother brows him into the sea

His sister watches him He is restored to his mother

Meses and Arron go to Pharaob and call on him to bel eve

Pharnoh changes them with heing magi

Then contest with the Egyptian magi cians who believe, and are threatened with punishment or Pharach

Moses loads the children of leanel across the sea, by a dry read

Pharach and his people are everwhelmed The coverant on Meant Small

The miracle of the mauna and quarla

As-Samiri makes the calf in Moses Absenta

Moses caizes his brother anguly by the beard and destroys the calf

Misbelievers threatened with the terrors of the Resurrection Day

Fate of the mountains on that day

All men shall be summoned to judgment No intercession shall avail except from such as the Moresful permuta

The Qur'an is in Arabic that people may fear and remember

Muhammad is not to hasten on its revela-

Adam broke his covenant with God Angels bidden to adore Adam. Iblis refuses

Tempts Adam

Adam, Eve and the Devil expelled from Paradise

Misbelievers shall be gathered together blind on the Resurrection Day

The Makkans pass by the ruined dwellings

I the generations who have been aforetime destroyed for unbelief

But for the Lord's word being passed, they would have perished too

Muhammad 10 exhorted to bear their insults patiently and to presse God through the

Pravel enjoined

The late of those of vore a sufficient

Let them wast and see the table

CHAPTER XLLII

Süratu'z Zukhruf The Chapter of Gilding

The original of the Qur'an is with God The example of the nations of old who mocked at the propierts

God the Creator

Men are bidden to praise Him who provides man with ships and cattle whereon to

The Arabs are rebuked for attributing female offspring to God, when they themselves repine when a female child is born to any one of them

They are also blained for asserting that the angels are female

The excuse that this was the religion of their fathers will not avail

It is the same as older nations made

Their fate

Abraham disclaused idolativ

The Makkans were permutted to onjoy prosperity only until the Apostle came, and now that he has come thus reject him

The are reproved for saving that had the Propert boon a man of consideration at Mak hab and at-Tauf they would have owned

Misbelievers would have had -till more wealth and eujoyment but that nien would have then all become infinels

Those who turn from the admonition shall be chained to devils who shall mislead then

God will take rengounce on them who ther Muhaminad live to see it or not

He is encouraged to persevere

Moses was mocked by Pharaoh whom he was sent to warn.

But Pharaoh and me people were drewned Answer to the Arabs who objected that Josus, too, must come under the han against false gods

But Jesus did not assume to be a god Threat of the coming of the Hour

The loye of Paradise and the terrors of Hell.

The dan led shall beg Mulik to make an end of them

The recording angels note down the secret plots of the unfidels

God has no son He is the Lord of all

CHAPTER XII

Suratu Yusus The Chapter of Joseph

The Qur'an revealed a Arabic that the Makkans may understand

It contains the best of stouces Story of Joseph. He tells his father his dream Jacob advises him to keep it to hunself Jealousy of Joseph's brothren They conspire to throw him in a pit Induce his father to let him go with them

They cast him in the pit, and bring home his shirt covered with lying blood

Travellers discover him and sell him into Egypt
He is adopted by his master

His mistress endeavours to seduce him.

His innocence proved

His mistress shows him to the women of the city to excuse her conduct

Their amazement at his beauty

He is imprisoned

Interprets the dreams of the baker and the cuphearer Pharach's dream

Joseph is sent for to expound it

He is appointed to a situation of trust in toe land

His brethren armye and do not recognise

They ask for corn and he requires them to bring their vonngest brother as the condition of his giving it to them.

The grods they had brought to barter are returned to their sacks

Benjamin is sent back

Joseph discovers himself to him

Toseph places the king's drinking-up in his brother's pack

Accuses them all of the theft

Takes Benjamin as a bondsman for the thoft

They return to Jacol, who, in great grief, sends them back again, to bring him news

loseph discovers himself to them and sends back us shirt

Jacob recognises it by the smell Incob goes back with them to Egypt

This story appealed to as a proof of the truth of the Revelation

CHAPTER AI

Süratu Mud The Chapter of Hud

The Qui'an a book calling men to believe in the unity of God.

Nothing is hidden from Him

He is the Creator or all

Men will not believe and deem them -sives secure because their punishment is deferred

They demand a sign or say the Qur'an is invented by the Prophet, but they and their false gods together cannot bring ten such Surahs

Misbelievers threatened with ruture punish ment while believers use promised Para-

Noah was likewise cent, but his people objected that he was a mere mortal like themselves, and only followed by the meaner nour of men

He also is accused of having invented his revelation

He is saved in the ark and the unbelievers drowned

He endeavours to save his son

The ark settles on Mount al-Jadi

Hud was sent to 'Ad

His people plotted against him and were destroyed, while he was saved.

Salih was sent to Samud

The she-camel given for a sign

The people hamstring her and pensh

Abraham entertains the angels who are sent to the people of Lot.

He pleads for them

Lot offers his daughters to the people of Sodom, to spare the angels

He escapes by night and Sodom is do etroved

Shu'arb is sent to Midian, and his people, rejecting his mission perish too

Moses sent to Pharach, who shall be punished at the Resurrection

The Makkans, too shal' be praished

They are threatened with the Judgment Day, when they shall be sent to hell, while the believers are in Paradise

The Makkans are lidden to take warming by the fate of the this whose stones are related above

These stories are intended to strengthen the Prophet's heart

Ho 14 bidden to wait and leave the 1 sue to (tod

CHAITER X

Suratu Yanus

The Chapter of Jonah

No wonder that the Qur'an was revealed to a mero man

Mishelievers deoin him a sorcerer

God the Creator and Rules

No one can intercode with Him except by His permission

Creation is a sign of His power Reward hereafter for the believers

Man calls on God in distress but forgets Him when deliverance comes

Warning from the fall of former genera

The unidels are not satisfied with the Qur ān Muhammad dare not invent a salae revela-

False gods can neither harm nor profit them

People require a sign

God saves people in dangers by land and

This life is like grass

Promise of Paradise and threat of Hell Fate of the idolaters and take gods at the Last Day

God the Lord of all

Other religions are more conjecture

The Qur'an could only have been devised by God

The Makkana are challenged to produce a angle Sûrah like it

Unbelievers warned of the Last Day by the fate of previous nations

Reproval of those who prohibit inwful things

God is ever watchful over the Prophet's actions

Happiness of the believers

The infidels (aimot haim the Prophet

Refutation of those who a cribe offspring to God

Muhammad encouraged by the story Nosh and the other prophets of old

Fate of Pharach and vindication of Mos and Aaron

The people of the Book (Jews and Chr trans) appealed to in confirmation of the tru

The story of Jonah

The people of Ninevel saved by repenti and believing in timo

The people are exhorted to embrace Isla the faith of the Hamif

God alone is powerful

Belief or unbelief affect only the individe himself

Resignation and patience inculcated

CHAPTER XIV

Suratu Ibrahim The Chapter of Abraham

The Qui as revealed to bring men fig dirkness into light lis to bral et bord

No spo the sent except with the langua of his inn peop e

Mose, sent to Pharaoh

the pupile of Noah.

As and hamud objected that their prophe we e mortals like themserves

In prophety relied on God, who vindicate tuem

Lughtful description of hell

Miscel evers are like ushes blown away 1 the strims wind

Helpleseness of the damned

But believers are in Paradise

A good word is like a good tree whose ro is n the curth and whose branches are in th sky and a mich gives fruit in all seasons

A had word is us a free that is felled trod word is suit

Idolaters or investmed with hell-fire God is the Creator of all

He subj to all things to man a use Abraham proved that the territory of Mal

kah might be a sanctuary The unjust are only respited tell the Judi ment Day

The ruins of the dwellings of those wh have penal ed for the denving the mission : their apostics, are a proof of the truth Muhammad's mission

The Lord will take vengeance on the Las Day weren sinners chall burn in hell wit shirts of patch to cover them

The Qur'up is a warning and an admon

CHAPTER VI

Surutu 'l-Arram. The Chapter of Cattle.

Light and darkness are both created b God

Rebuke to idolaters

I hev are exhorted to take warning by th fate of those of ala who rejected the pre

Had the revelation been a material book they would have dishelieved it

If the Prophet had been an angel he would have come in the guise of a man.

Attributes of God

Muhammad bidden to become a Muslim Those who have the Scriptures ought to recognise Muhammad as the one foretold in

The idolaters will be disappointed of the intercession of their gods on the Judgment

They deny the Resurrection Day now, but hereafter they will have awful proof of its truth

The next world is preferable to this

Prophets aforetime were also mocked at, and they were patient

God could send them a sign if He pleased Beasts, birds, and the like, are communities like men.

Their fate is all written in the book

They too shall be gathered on the Judg ment Day

Arguments in proof of the supreme power of God

Muhammad is only a messenger He is to disclaim miraculous power

In not to repulse believes a

He is bidden to abjure idolatry and not follow the lusts of the Makkans

God's omniscience

He takes men's sonls to Himself during ricep.

Sends guardian angels to watch over them Preservee men in danger by land and sea

Muhammad is not to join in discussions on religion with idolators, nor to assectate with those who make a sport of it

Folly of idolatry set forth

God the Creator

Abraham's perplexity in socking after the true God.

Worships successively the stars, the moon and the sun but is convinced that they are not gods by seeing them set

Furns to God and becomes a Hamif Other prophets of old were inspired

The Qur'in maleo a special revelation from God to the Makkans fulfilling their Scriptures, but the Jewe have perverted or suppressed parts of them

Denunciation of one who falsely pretended to be inspired

The Creation a proof of God's unity Rebuke to those who call the jum His partners, or attribute offspring to Him

Idulators are not to be abused, lest thev. too, speak all of God.

The Makkans would not have believed even if a sign had been given them

Muhammad is to trust to God alone

Men are not to abstain from food over which God's name has been pronounced God will vindicate His messenger

Belief or the reverse depends on God's

The jinus and false gods, together with their worshippers, will be condemned to everlasting torment

God never punishes without first sending an apostle with warning

The threatened doom cannot be averted Denunciation of the idolatrous practices of the Arabs Setting apart portions of the produce of the land for God and for the idols, and defranding God of His portion.

Infanticide

Declaring cattle and tilth inviolable.

God created all fruits and all cattle, both are therefore lawful.

Argument proving the absurdity of some of these customs,

Enumeration of the only kinds of food that are unlawful

The prohibition to the Jews of certain food was only on account of their sins

God's revealed word is the only certain argument

Declaration of unings really forbidden, namely, harshness to parents, infantioide, abominable sins and murder

The property of orphans is to be respected and fair dealing to be practised

No soul compelled beyond its capacity. The Qur'an to be accepted on the same authority as the Book of Moses was.

Faith required now without signs

No latter profession on the Judgment Day shall profit them

Good works to be rewarded tenfold, but evil works only by the same amount

Islam is the religion of Abraham the Hanif

A belief in one God to whom all prayer and devotion is due

Each soul shall bear its own burden

The high rank of some of the Makkans is only a trial from the Lord whereby to prove

CHAPTER LAIV Süratu 't-Taghabun. The Chapter of Mntual Decest

God the Crester The Resurrection. The Unity of God

Wealth and children must not distract men from the service of God

CHAPTER XXVIII

Suratu 1-Qasas The Chapter of the Story

The nistory of Moses and Pharach

The latter and his victor

Hāmān oppresses the children of Israel

Moses is exposed on the rive by his mother

He is adopted by Pharach

His sister watches him, and his mother is engaged to nurse him.

He grows up and slays the Egyptiar

Flees to Midian

Helps the two Midianites to draw water Serves their father Shohaib for ten years and then marries his daughter

God sppears to him in the fire

Is eent with hie brother Aaron to Pha-TAOD

Haman builds Pharaob a high tower to second to the God of Moses.

His punishment.

Moses gives the Law

These stories are proofs of Muhammad's mission

The Arabs reject the Book of Moses and the Quran as two impostures

Those who have the Scriptures recognise the truth of the Qui'an

The Makkans warned by the example of the critics of old that have perished Disappointment of the idelaters at the Day of Judgment.

Helplessness of the idels before God

Qarun s great wealth

The earth opens and swallow him up for his pride and his inscience to Moses

Muhammad encouraged in his faith and purpose

CHAPTER XXIII.

Suratu 'l-Mu minin The Chapter of Believers

The numble, chaste, and honest, shall prosper

The creation, birth death and resurrection of man God e goodness in providing for men's sus-

Noah sent to his people, who reject him because he is a mere mortal

They are drowned, and he is saved in the RIL

Moses and Aaron were also called hars Mary and her son the cause of their followers division into sects

The God fearing encouraged

The Quraish rebuked for their pride and for denying Muhammad and calling him ровнеяней

They are reminded of the famine and de feat they have already expenienced

Doctrine of the Resurrection

The unity of God He has no offspring

le omniscient

Muhammad is encouraged not to care for the tales wousations of the Makkans, but tr anek refuge in God

Punishment, on the Day of Resurrection of those who mocked at the little party of be hevers

CHAPTER XXII

Suratu 'l-Hajj The Chapter of the Pilgirmage

Terrors of the Last Day yet men dispute about God and follow devils

The conception, birth, growth and death or men, and the growth of herbs in the ground are proots of the Resurrection

But some dispute, others waver between two opinions

The most dosperate means cannot thwart the divine decrees God will decide between the Jews Chris tians, Sabians, Magians, and idolaters on the

Indgment Day All nature adores God

The misbelievers are threatened with hellfire and the believers promised Paradise

Punishment threatened to those who prohibit men from visiting the Sacred Mosque

Abraham, when bidden to cleanse the Kabah, was told to proclaim the pilgrimage

The rules of the Hajj enjoined

Cattle are lawful food Warning against idolatry and exhortation to become Humis

Sacrifices at the Ka ball are enjoined All men have then appointed rites.

The name of God is to be mentioned over cattle when slaughtered

Camels may be sacrificed and eaten

God will defend behavers but loves not misbolieving traiters

Those who have been driven from their homes for acknowledging Gods unity are allowed to night

If men did not fight for such a cause, all places of worship would be destroyed

The people of Noah 'Ad Samud, Apra-ham, and Lot oalled their prophets hars and were allowed to range at large but at last they were punished

Their cities were destroyed and the ruins gre visible to travellers still

Muhammad is only sent to warn the Mankens of a like tan

Satan contrives to suggest a wrong reading to the Propuet while reading the Qur'an The Kingdom shall be God's upon the

Judgment Dav

These who dee or are slain in the cause shall be provider for and rewarded

Believers who take revenge and are again attacked will be nosped

All nature is subject to God

Every nation has its rites to observe The idolaters treat the revelation with er om

The false gods could not even create "

Exhortation to worship God and fight for the faith of Abraham whose religion the Mushms protess

God is the Sovereign and Helper

CHAPTER XXI

Suratu l Ambayo flie Chapter of the Prophets

Men mock at the revelation

They say it is a numble of dreams and that Muhammad is a poet and they ask for

The prophets of old were but mortal The people who rejected them perished

Heaven and earth were not created in sport

I suth shall cruek falschood

All things piesse (rod

If there were other gods than He, heaven and earth would be corrupted

All former prophets were taught there is no god but Go.

The Merculul has not begotten children

The angels are only His servants

The separation of earth from heaven, the creation of living things from water the steadying of the earth by mountains, and placing the sky as a roof over it, and the creation of the night and day, and of the sun and moon, are signs

No one was over granted immortality

Every soul must taste of death

The unbelievers mock at Muhammad and disbelieve in the Merciful.

Man is basty

The intidels are threatened with punishment in the next world

Phose who mocked at the prophets of old perished

No one shall be wronged on the Last Dav

Moses and Auron received a scripture

Abraham destroys the images which his people worshipped

He tells them that it was the largest idol which did it

He is condemned to be burnt thre, but the fire is miraculously made cool and safe

Abraham, Lot, Isaac and Jacob all inperiqa

Lot was brought safely out of a city of wrong-doers

Nonh also was saved

David and Solomon give judgment about a filed)

The mountains and birds are made subject to David

He is taught the art of making coats of mail

The wind and the demons are subjected to Solomou

baras saw dol

Ishmail, Idris, and Zu 'l Kiff were patient. and entered mite the mercy of the Lord

Zū 'n-Nun (Jonuh) was saved in the fish's belly

Zachariah had his praver granted and a son (John) given him

The spirit was breathed into the Viigin Marc

But then followers have divided into seets A city once destroyed for unbelief shall not be restored till Gog and Magog are let loose

The promise draws nigh

idolators shall be the pebbles of hell But the elect shall be rolled up as as-Sipil 10lls up a book

As is written in the Psalms, "The righ teous shall mberst the earth

Muhammad sent as a meroy to the worlds God is one God

He know all

He is the Merciful

CHAPTER XVII

Saratu Banı Inal The Chapter of the Children of Israel

Allnmon to the night journey from the Sacred Mosque (at Makkah) to the Remote Mosque (at Jerusalem)

Moses received the book Noah was a faithful servant Israel's two sins and their punishment. The Qur an a guide and a good tidings Man prays for evil and is hasty Night and day are two signs Every man's augury is round his neck

Each one shall have a book on the Resurrection Day with an account of his deeds.

Each is to bear the burden of his own SIDE

No city is destroyed till warned by an apostle

Cheice of good in this world or the next Muhammad is not to associate others with God Kindness to parents enjoined. Moderation to be practised

Infanticide and fornication are sus Homicide is not to be avenged except for just canso.

Homesey and humility monicated.

The auxels are not the daughters of Ged If there were other gods, they would rehel against Goo

All in the heavens praise Him

Unbelievers cannot understand the Qur'an. The unity of God unacceptable to the Makkans

The Resurrection

Idolaters not to be provoked

Some prophets preferred over others False gods themselves have recourse to God

All sities to be destroyed before the Judgment Day

Had Muhammad been sent with signs, the Makkans would have disbelieved them like Samud

The vision (of the Night Journey) and the Zaqqum tree of hell are causes of conten-

Iblis' disobedience and fall

He is given permission to delade men Safety by land and sea a special mercy from God

All shall have justice at the Last Day

The Sagit tribe at ut-Table hearly seduced Mulianimad into promulgating an unauthomed sentence

Injunction to pray Man is ungrateful.

Departure of the spirit.

Mankind and junes together could not produce the like of the Qur'an

Signs demanded of Muhammad.

He is only a mortal

Fate of those who disbelieve in the Resurroction

Moses brought nine signs, but Pharach disbelieved in them.

His fate

The children of Israel succeeded him in his possessions

The Quran was revealed as occasion required

Those who believe the cripture recogmile it.

God and the Merciful One are not two gods, for God has no partner.

> CHAPTER XVL Suratu'n Nahl The Chapter of the Bee

God's doctes will come to pass He sends the angels to instruct his servants to give warning that there is no other God

The creation and ordering of all natural objects are signs of His power

The false gods are mammate and power-

God is but one

The unbalievers who call the tevelation old folks' tales, must bear the burden of their own sins

On the Resurrection Day, their associates will dislowe them

Reception by the angels of the wicked and the good in Hell and in Paradise

The infidels strenuouely deny the Resul rection.

The Muhājirûn are promised a good re-

The Jews and Christians to be asked to confirm the Gur an

All nature adores God Unity of God affirmed

When in distress, men turn to God but forget Him and become idolaters when deliver ance comes

The practice of setting ande part of then produce for the idole reproved

The practice of female infantioide, while they ascribe daughters to God a reproved, and disbelies in the future life also rebuked

Satan is the pation of the infidels

The Our'an sent down as a guidance and

The Qur'an sent dowr as a guidance and mercy

The ram which quickens the dead earth and the cattle which give inilk, and the vines which give fruit and wine tre signs

The bee is inspired from the Lord so build hives and to use those inade fast by men.

lts noney is lawful

The rich Arabs are reproved for their treatment of their slives

Helplassness of the false gods illustrated by the parable of the above and of the dumb man

Goodness of God in providing food and shelter for men

Idolaters shall be discurred by the false gods at the Resurrection.

Every nation shall have a witness against it on that day

Justice and good faith inculcated espeoially the duty of keeping to a reaty once made.

Satan has no power over believers Verses of the Qur an abrogated

The Holy Spirit (Gabriel) is the instrument of the revelation.

Suggestion that Muhammad is helped by some mortal to compose the Qur'ar

This cannot be, as the person hinted at speaks a foreign language and the Qur'an is in Arabic

Denunciation of musbelievers

Warming of the fate Makkah is to expect if its inhabitants continue to disbelieve Unlawful foods

God will forgive wrong dono through igno

Absaham was Hams
The ordinance of the babbath
Muhammad is to dispute with his opponents kindly

The behavers are not to take too savage revenge

They are exhorted to patience and trust in God

OHAPTER XIII
Suratu r-Raid.

The Chapter of Thunder

The Qur an a revelution from the Lord, the Creator and Governor of all.

Misbelievers are threatened

God knows all, and the recording angels are ever present

Lightning and thunder celebrate God's praises

All in heaven and earth acknowledge

God sends rain and causes the torrents to flow

The soum thereof is like the dross on smelted ore

The righteous and the believers are promised Puradise, and the misbelievers are threatened with hell fire

Exhortation to behave in the Merciful Were the Quran to convulse nature, they would not believe

Further threate against mishelievers. God notes the deeds of every soul. Stratagen unavailing against Him Paradise and Hell

Muhammad bidden to persevere in asserting the unity of God.

Had he not followed the Qur an, God would have foreshen him

Other apostlee have had wives and children hone could ining a sign without God's

For every period there is a revelation God can annul or confirm any part of His revelation which lie pleases

He has the Mother of the Book (se the Eternal Original)

Whether Muhammad live to see his predictions fulfilled or not, God only knows

His duty is only to preach the message.
The conquests of Islam pointed to God will support the prophets against misbelievers

CHAPTER XXIX

Särutu l'Ankabut The Chapter of the Spider

Believers must be proved Kindness to be shown to parents, but they are not to be obeyed if they endeavour to lead their children to idolatry

The hypocrites stand by the Mushms only in success

The unbelievers try to seduce the believers by offering to bear their sine.
Noah delivered from the delings.
Abraham preaches against idelary is cast into the fire, but saved.
Flees from his native land
Isaso and Jakob born to him
Lot and the fate of the inhabitants of Sodom

Midian and their prophet Shu'alb

'Ad and Samid

Fate of Qarun, Pharach, and Haman.

Similitude of the spider.

Muhammad bidden to rehearse the Qur in Prayer entouned

Those who have scriptures are to be mildly

dealt with in disputation

They believe in the Qur an Muhammad unable to road

Signs are only in the power of God

The idolaters reproved, and threatened with punishment

The believers promised reward.

God provides for all.

This world is but a sport

God saves men in dangers by sea, yet they are ungratoful

The territory of Makkah myiolable

Exhortation to strive for the faith

Suratu 'l-A'raf The Chapter of al-Airaf

Muhammad is bidden to accept the Quran

fearlossly

The Makkans must take warming by the fate of those who rejected the prophets of

The creation and fall of Adam This allowed to tempt mankind

Men are to go to mosque decently clad

God has only prohibited sinful actions

Men are warned not to reject the mission of the apostles

Their punishment at and after death if they do so

The happiness of behevers in Paradisc

Description of al-A'raf the partition be tween heaven and hell.

Immediate belief in the Qui an required

God the Creator

Humble and secret prayer enjoined.

Proofs of God's goodness

Noub sent to warn nie people

He is saved in the ark while they are drowned

Hud sent to Ad

They reject his preaching and are pun ished

Sulph sent to Samud.

Produces the she-camel as a sign.

The people hamstring her and are punubad.

Lot sent to the people of Sedom

Their punishment

Shu'sib cent to Midian,

His people reject him and are destroyed.

Thus city after city was destroyed for rejecting the apostles.

Moses sent to Pharach

The miracles of the enake and the white

The magicians contend with Moses, are overcome and helieve

Pharaoh punishes them

The slaughter of the first-horn

The plagues of Egypt

The Israelites are delivered.

Moses communes with God, who appears to him on the mount.

The giving of the Law

The golden calf

Moses wrath against Aaron. The seventy elders

The coming of Muhammad, the illiterate Propliet, foretold.

Some Jews are just and rightly guided.

The division into twelve tribes

The miracle of smiting the rock

The manna and quails

The command to enter the city, eaying "Hittatun," and punishment for disebedience.

The Sabbath-breaking city

The transformation of the wicked inhabitants into apes

The dispersion of the Jews

The mountain held over the Jews.

The covenant of God with the posterity of Adam

Am I not your Loid!

Humiliation of one who, having foretold the coming of a prophet in the time of Muham mad would not acknowledge the latter as such

Many both of the junn and of mankind, predestined to hell.

The names of God are not to be perverted

Muhammad is not possessed.

The coming of the Hour

Creation of Adam and Eve

Conception and birth of their first child, Abdu l Haris

Their idolatry

Idols are themselves servants of God

They have neither life nor senses.

Muhammad is oidden to treat his oppo nents with mildness

The mention of God's name repels devilish influences blen are recommended to listen to the Qur'an and to humble themselves before God, whom the angels adore

CHAPTER CXIIL Suratu 'l-Falag

The Chapter of the Daybreak

The Prophet seeks refuge in God from evil unflu nces

CHAPTER CXIV.

Surote 'n Nas

The Chapter of Men.

The Prophet seeks refuge in God from the devil and his evil enggestions.

THE SIXTH AND LAST PERIOD

Twenty burahs given at al-Madinah.

CHAPTER XCVIII

Suratu 'l-Burymak

The Chapter of the Manifest Sign

Robuke to Jows and Christians for doubting the manifest sign of Muhammad's mission

CHAPTER II

Suratu'l Bagarah The Chapter of the Heifer

The Qur'an a guidance Rebuke to unbehevers

QUH'AN A parable of one who kindles the God is not ashamed of trifling similitudes The creation of man. Adam taught the names Iblis refuses to adore him The temptation and fall The Children of Israel Their trials in Egypt The golden calf The manns and quarie Bidden to enter the city and say, Hit tatun ' Moses strikes the rock He bids the people slaughter t dim cow t discover a murder Charge against the few of corrupting the beriptures The golden calf The mountain held over them Gabriel reveals the Qui an

Harut and Mürüt Rains Behevers are not to sav

" Unzurna" Verses which are sunalled will be replaced by better ones Paradise not exclusively for laws and

Christians Mosques to be free Story of Abraham He rebuilds the Kathan

Was a Hanif The qiblah troc As Sala and at Marwah may be compassed Proofs of God's unity Lawiul and unlawful food The faw of retaliation for homicide Testators. The fast of Ramazan.

Rates of the pilgrimage Its duration

Fighting for religion lewful during the sacred months Wine and gaming forbidden Marriage with idolaters unlawful The law of divorce Of suckling children The Muhaprun to be lewarder The Children of Israel demand a king Saul (Talut) The sbechina The ark Sant and Gideon confounded Gohath Jesus

The 4yate 'I kurse (voise of the throne) asserting the self subsistence ma ommpresonce of God

Nunrod and Abraham

Almsgiving

No compulsion in religion Proofs of the Resurrection

Ezekiel's vision of the div boncs refused

Abraham and the birds Almsgiving recommended Usurers denounced Laws relating to nebt and frading Persons mentilly meapable are to act by egents

The believer's prayer

CHAPTER III

Dinatu Ali Imiar The Chapter of Imran s Family

God's unity and self-subsistence The Qur an confirmatory of previous scrip

The verses are either decisive or ambi-

E ample of Pharach's punishment guona

Tae battle of Badr Islam the true religion

Future torment oternal Ovedience to God and the Apostle en-

Conception of the Virgin Mary

She is prought up by Zuchariah Birth of John

The annunciation of the Virgin Birth and int inct of Jesus The miracle of the birds of clay

The disciples

Allusion to Muhammads dispute with a Christian deputation from Najran

Abriham a Hann

Reproor to Jews who pretend to believe and then recant and who pervert the scrip

No distinction to be made between the p) ophet 9

The 'ews robuked tor prohibiting certain kinds of food

The loundation of the Karbah.

Abraham a station Pilgrimage enjoined

Schiam and misteriof reproved

Battle of I had referred to

The victory at Badr due to angelic aid Usur decounced late c those who rejected the prophets of Makamuada death would not diver, the I bevers new their faith

Promise of God's help

Further account of the battle of Badi The M slim n artyrs to euter Paradise

The vitor of Badr more than counter balanced toe defeat at Uhud

The myporries detected and reproved Death the common lot, even il spostles Prayer for the believers

Exhortation to vie in good works and be patient

CHAPTER VIIL

Suratu'l Anfal The Chapter of the Spoils

Spoils belong to God and the Apostle Who are for true believers?

The expedition of Minhaminad against the caravan from Syria under Abu Sufyan

The miraculous victory at Badr

Address to the Makkans who, fearing an attack from Muhammad, took sanctuary in the Kubah, and prayed to God to decide between themselves and nun

Exhortation to believe and avoid treachery Plots against Muhammed frustrated by Divine interference

The revelation treated as old folks' tales

Rebuke of the idolaters for mecking the Muslims at prayer

Offer of an amnesty to those who will be-Mexe

Exhortation to fight the infidels

Division of the spoils Description of the battle

The enemy made to seem few in the Mus lim s eyes while they seemed more numerous than they really were. The mildels forsaken by Satan their leader, on the day of battle hate of the hypocrites

Waining from Pharach's fate The madels was break their treaty treachery to be met with the like God will help the Prophet against the traitors

A few enduring believers shall conquer a multitude of intidels

The Muslims are reproved for accepting iansom for the captives taken at Badr

The spoils are lawful

The Muhaprun who fied with Muhammad and the inhabitants of al Madinati who gave him refuge, are to form ties of brotherhood

CHAPTER XLVII

stratu Muhammad The Chapter of Muhammad

Promise if reward to believers Exhoriation to dear severely with the anamy

Description of Paradise and of Hell

Reproof to some pretended nelievers and hypocrites who hesitate to obey the command to make war against the unbelievers

Thoir secret malice shall be revealed Exhartation to believe and to obey Goa and the Apostles, and sacrifice all for the faith

CHAPTER LXII

Surata l-Iuma ah The Chapter of the Congregation

God has sent the illiter its prophet The Jews rebuked for unbelief

Muslims are not to leave the congregation during divine service for the sake of mer chandise

CRAPTLE V

Suratu I-Mardah The Chapter of the Table

Believers are to fulfil heir compacts Brate boasts except those hereafter mentroned, are lawful out chase curring the pil grimage is unlawfui

The rites and sertures of the Pilgrimage are lawful

The Mushms are not to bear il-will against the Quraish, who prevented them at fludaibivah from making the Pilgrimage

Forbidden mosts

The food of Jews and Christians is lawful to Muslims

So, too, their women

Ablutions before prayers

Rules for purification in cases of pollufiau.

The Muslims are bidden to remember the oath of feulty (at 'Aqabeh), and how God made a similar covenant with the children of Israel and chose twelve wardens

Muhammad is wained against their trea chery, as well as against the Christians

Refutation of the doctrine that Christ is God and of the idea that the Tews and Chris tions are the sons of God and His beloved

Mahammad sent as a warner and herald of glad tidings

Moses bade the children of Israel invade the Holy Land and they were punished for hositating

Stury of the two sons of Adam

The crow shows Cam how to bury the body of Abel

Gravity of homicide

Those who make war against God and His Apostle are not o receive quarter

Punishment for thatt

Muhammad is to judge noth Jews and Christians by the Quran in accordance with their own Scriptures but not according to then lusts

Or would they prefer to be judged according to the unjust laws of the time of the pagan trabe?

The Muslims are not to take Jews and Christians for patrona

The hypocrites hesitate to join the belicvers

They wie threatened

Further appeals to the Jews and Chris tians

Fate of those before them who were transformed for their sins

The lews reproved for saying that God's hand is fettered

Some of them are moderate, but the greater part are misbelievers

The Prophet is bound to preach his mes-

Sabian Jews, and Christians appealed to as pelievers

Prophets of old were rejected

Against the worship of the Messiah and the dectrine of the Trinity lews and idolaters are the most hostile to the Muslims and the Christians are nearest in love to them Expiation for an inconsiderate oath

Wine and gambling forbidden

(zame not to be hunted or eaten during pil-

Expinition for violating this precept

Fish is lawful at this time Rites of the Hajj to be observed

Bolievers must not ask about painful things till the whole Qur'an is revealed

Denonciation of the superstitious practices of the Pagan Arals with respect to certain Witnesses required when a dying man maker his testament The mission of Jesus

The nuracles of the minney

The Apostles ask for a table from heaven as a sign

Jesus denies commanding men to worship him and his mother as gods

CHAPTER LIX

Saratu 'l-Hashr The Chapter of Assembly

The chastisements of the Jows who would not believe in the Qur'an

The divisions of the apolla

The treacherous conduct of the hypocrates

CHAPTEL IV

Suratu 'n-Niva' The Chapter of Women

God creates and watches over man Women's downer

Administration of the property of orphans and idiots

Distribution of property among the heirs Witnesses required to prove adultery

Believers are not te inherit women's estates against their will

No false charge of sdultary to be made with a view of keeping a woman c down

Women whom it is unlawful to marry Men are superior to women

Punishment of refractory wives

Arbitration between man and wife

Duty towards parents, kinsmen orphans the poor neighbours &c

Almsgiving for appearance sake a crime Believers must not pray when drunk or rolluted

Sand may be used for purification when water is not to be had Charge against Isws of perverting the Scriptures and saying, 'Ra'ina

They are threatened with transformation, like those who broke the Sabbath for then unbelief

Idolstry the unpardonable 4111 Some who have scriptures believe

Trusts to be paid back Quarrels to be referred to God and the apostles only

The Apostie will intercede for the be lievers

Muhammad commanded to settle their dif ferences

Believers to take precautions in sallying forth to battle

They are exhorted to fight and promised Paradise if they fall

Obedience to the Prophet 15 pedience to God

Salutation to be returned

The hypocrites

Deserters are to be slain, unless they have taken refuge with a tribe in league with the Muslins

Penalty for killing a believer by mi take Believers are not to blunder there on the mere pretence that they are infidels

Fate of the half-hearted Mushme who fell at Badr

Precautions to be taken against an attack during prayers

Exhortation to sincerity in supporting the falth

Rebuke to the pagen Arabs for thei idolativ and superstitious practices

Islam the best religion, being that of ham the Hanif

Laws respecting women and orphans Equity and kindness recommended

Partiality to one wife rather than another eproved.

Fear of God inculcated

God does not pardon the unstable in faith or the hypocrites

Ne middle course is allowed

The lens were punished for demanding a book from heaven

Of old they usked Moses to show them God openly and wore punished

They use reproached for breaking their occumit with God for calumniating Mary, and for pretending that they killed Jesus, whereas they only killed his similitude, for tool took him to Himself

Cortam lawful foods forbidden the Jews for their injustice and usury

Muhammad is inspired in the same manner as the other apostles and prophets

Jesus te nly an apostle of God and His Word, and a spirit from Him

Do trine of the Trivity denounced and has not begotten a son.

The law of nheritime in the case of remote kinship

CHAPTER LVIII

Sur 114 & Menadilah The Chapter of the Disputer

Abolition of the idelations custom of divorcing women with the tormula, 'Thou urt to me as my mother's back

God's omniscience and omnipresence He knows the secret plottings of the disaffected

Discourse on the duties of true believers Denunciation of those who oppose the 1 postle

CHAPTER LXV

Suratu t Talag The Chapter of Divorce

Tue laws of divorce

The Arabs are admonished by the fate of former nations to believe in God The seven stories of heaven and earth

CHAPTER I XIIL

Suratu & Munafigta The Chapter of the Hypogrites The treacherous designs of the hypocrites littRied

CHAPTER XXIV

Suratu n-Nur

The Chapter of Light

. This chapter deals with the accusation of anchastity against 'Ayishah )

Punishment of the whore and the whoremonger

Witnesses required in the case of an imputation or unchastity to a wife.

Vindication of 'Ayishah's character and denunciation of the accusers

Scandalmongers rebuked and threatened with punishment at the Last Day

Believers are not to enter other persons' houses without permission, or in the absence of the owners.

Chastity and modest deportment enjoined, particularly upon women.

Those by whom women may be seen un-

Slaves to be allowed to purchase their freedom

Slave-garls not to be compelled to prostitute themselves

God the Light of the Heavens

Nothing keepe the believers from the service of God, but the unbelievers works are like the mirage on a plain, or like darkness on a deep sea

All nature is subject to God's control.

Reproof to a sect who would not accept the Prophet s arbitration

Actual obedience required rather than an oath that they will be obedient Belief in the unity of God, steadfastness in prayer, and the giving of alms enjoined

Slaves and children not to be admitted into an apartment without asking permission, when the occupant is likely to be undressed

Rules for the social intercourse of women past child-bearing, and of the blind, lame, or sick

Persons in whose houses it is lawful to eat food

Salutations to be exchanged on entering

Behaviour of the Muslims towards the Apostle

He is to be more respectfully addressed than other people

CHAPTER XXXIII

Suratu 'l-Ahzāb.
The Chapter of the Confederates

Muhammad is warned against the hypocrites

Wives divorced by the formula, "Thou are henceforth to me like my mether's back," are not to be considered as real mothers and as such regarded as uniawful

Neither are adopted cons to be looked upon as real sons

The real ties of kinship and consanguinty are to supersede the tie of sworn brother hood

God's covenant with the Prophet

Miraculous interference in favour of the Muslims when besieged by the confederate army at al-Madinah.

Conduct of the hypocrites on the occasion

Departure of the invaders.

Siege and defeat of the Banu Quraigab

The men are executed.

Their women and children are sold into slavery and their property confiscated.

Laws for the Prophet's wives
They are to be discreet and avoid estentation

Encouragement to the good and true behevere of either sex

Vinducation of Muhammad's conduct in marrying Zainab, the divorced wife of his freed man and adopted con Zaid (who is mentioned by name)

No term need be observed in the case of women divorced before cohabitation

Peculiar privileges granted to Muhammad in the matter of women.

Limitation of his licence to take wives

Muslims are not to enter the Prophet's house without permission.

After, they are to retire without inconveniencing him by familiar discourse.

Are to be very modest in their demeanour to his wives

Are not to marry any of his wives after him.

Those relations who are permutted to see them unveiled

God and His angels bless the Prophet. Slander of musbelievers will be punished.

The women are to dress modestly Warning to the hypocrites and disaffected at al-Madinah

The fate of the midels at the Last Judg

Man alone of all creation undertook the responsibility of faith

CHAPTER LVIL

Suratu 'l-Hadid. The Chapter of Iron.

God the controller of all nature. Exhortation to embrace Islam

Those who do so before the taking of Makkah are to have the precedence.

Discomfiture of the hypocrites and nube havers at the Last Day

The powers vouchsared to former apostles

CHAPTER LXI.

Suratu's-Saff
The Chapter of the Ranks

Believers are bidden to keep their word and to fight for the faith

Moses was disobered by his people.

Jesus prophesied the coming of Ahmad.

The Christians rebuked.

CHAPTER XLVIII

Süratt. 'I Fath The Chapter of Victory

Announcement of a victory
God comforts the believes and punishes the hypocrites and idolaters

The oath of fealty

The cowardice and excuses of the desert Arabs.

Those left behind wish to share the spoil gained at Khaiber

The incapacitated alone are to be excused

The oath of fealty at the tree.

God prevented a collision between the Makkans and the Muclims, when the latter were prohibited from making the pilgrimage.

Prophecy of the pilgrimage to be completed the next year

CHAPTER LX

Suratu 'l-Mumtahinah The Chapter of the Tried

Exhortations to the Mushms not to treat secretly with the Quraish

Abraham's example

Other idolaters who have not borne arms against them may be made friends of Women who desert from the mfidels are to be tried before being received into Islam

If they are really believers, they are, ipso facto, divorced

The husbands are to be recompensed to the amount of the women's downes

CHAPTER LXVI

Suratu 't-Tahrım The Chapter of Prohibition

The Prophet is relieved from a vow he had made to please his waven

The jealousies in his ha im occasione I by his mtrigue with the Coptic slive-girl Mary Exhortation to hostilities against the in

The example of the disobidient wires of Noah and Lot

And of the good wife of Pharach And of the Virgin Mary

Sūratu 't Taubar The Chapter of Repentance

(This chapter is without the initial formula, "In the name of the Merciful &c;

An immunity for four months proclaimed to such of the idulators as have made i league with the Prophet, but they are to be killed wherever found when the sacred months have expired

An idolater seeking refuge is to be helped, in order that he may hear the word of God

None are to be included in the immunity but those with whom the league was made at the Sacred Mosque

They are not to be trusted

Exhortation to fight against the Makkans Idolaters may not repair to the mosques of God

Reproof to al 'Abbas, the Prophet's uncle, who, while refusing to bolieve, claimed to have done enough in supplying water to the pilgrims and in making the pilgrimage him solf

CHAPTER XLIX

Suratu 'l-Hujurat The Chapter of the Inner Chambers

Rebuke to some of the Muslims who had presumed too much in the presence of the Apostle, and of the others who had called out rudely to him

Also of a man who had nearly induced Muhammad to attack a tribe who were still obedient

Of certain Muslims who contended togother

Of others who use epithets of abuse against cach other

Who entertain unfounded suspicions

Exhortation to obedience and reproof of the hypocrites.

The Muhaurun are to hold the first rank Infidels are not to be taken for patrons, even when they are fathers or brothers

Religion is to be preferred to ties of kin-

The victory of Hunain

The idolaters are not to be allowed to enter the bacted Mosque at Makkah snother

The infidels are to be attacked

The Jens denounced for saying that Ezra is the son of God

The assumption of the title Rabbi reproved

Diatribe against Jewish doctors and Christian monks

Of the sacred months and the sin of deferring them

Fahoriation to the Muslims to march forth to battle

Allusions to the escape of Muhammad and Abu Bakr from Makkah, and their concealment in a cave

Rebuke to those who seek to be excused from fighting and to those who sought to excite sed tion in the Muslim ranks

Reproof to the hypotrites and half hearted and to those who found fault with the Prophot for his use of the alms (zakat)

Proper destination of the alms

Hypocrites and renegades denounced. They are warned by the example of the people of old who rejected the Prophets Rewards promised to the true believers

Continued denunciation of the hypocrites and of these who held back from the fight Muhammad is not to pray at the grave of any one of them who dies

Their seeming prospority is not to deceive

Happiness in store for the Apostle, the be hevers, and the Muhaprun

Those who may lawfully be excused military service

The desert Arabs are among the worst of the hypocrites though some believe

Some people of al Madinah also denounced as hypocrites

Others have sinned but confessed Others wait for God's pleasure

Denunciation of some who had set up a mosque from motives of political opposition.

Muhammad is not to sanction this mosque, but rather to use that of Quba', founded by him while on his way from Makkah to al Madinah during the Flight

God has bought the persons and wealth of the believers at the price of Paradise.

The Prophet and the believers must not ask forgiveness for the idolaters, however near of kin

Abiaham only asked pardon for his idolatious father in fulfilment of a promise ...

The three Ansars who refused to accompany Muhammad to Tabük are forgiven

The people of al Madmah and the neighbouring Arabs blamed for holding back on the occasion

All sacrifices for the sake of the religion are counted to them

Exhortation to fight rigorously against the infidels

Reproof to those who receive the revelation suspiciously

God will stand by his Apostle.

V -Sources of the Qur'an

Muhammadanısın owes more to Judaism (see a book by M Geiger, entitled, Was hat Muhammed aus dem Judenthume aufgenommen, in which that learned low has traced all the leading features of Islam to Talmudic sources, also Literary Remains of Emanuel Deutsch, Essay on Islam, also article on Judaism in the present work) than it does to either Christianity or Saheanism, for it is simply Talmudic Judaism adapted to Arabia, plus the Apostleship of Jesus and Minhammad, and wherever Muhammad departs from the monotheistic principles of Indaism, as in the idclatrous practices of the Pilgrimage to the Kribah, it is evident that it is done as a necessary concession to the national feelings and sympathies of the people of Arabic and it is absolutely impossible for Munammadan divines to reconcile the idelatrous rites of the Ks pah with that simple monothersm which it was evidently Muhammad's intention to establish in Arabia.

The sources (says Mr Rodwell) whence Muhammad derived the materials of his Koran, are, over and above the more poetical parts which are his own creation, the logends of his time and country, Jonish traditions based upon the Talmud, and the Christian traditions of Arabia and of S Syria. At a later period of his career, no one would ven ture to doubt the divine origin of his whole book But at its commencement the case was different. The people of Mecca spoke openly and tauntingly of it as the work of a poet, as a collection of antiquated or fabulous They aclegends, or as palpable sorrery cused him of having confederates, and even specified foreigners who had been his coad Such were Salman the Persian (Salman al-Farisi), to whom he may have owed the descriptions of heaven and hell, which are analogous to those of the Zendavesta, and the Christian monk Sergius, or, as the Muliammadans term him, Boheira (Buhai rah) From the latter, and perhaps from other Christians, especially slaves natura lised at Mecca, Muhammad obtained access to the teaching of the Apocryphal Gospels, and to many popular traditions of which those gespels are the concrete expression. His wife Chadijah (Khadijah) as well as her oousin Waraka (Waraqab), a reputed convert to .Christianity, and Muhammad's intimate friend, are said to have been well acquainted with the doctrines and sacred books, both of Jews and Christians And not only were several Arab tribes in the neighbourhood of Mecca converts to the Christian faith but on two occasions Much, and mad travelled with his uncle Abu Talib, as far as Bostra where he must have had opportunities of learning the general outlines of Oriental Christian doc trine, and perhaps of witnessing the ceremo nial of their worship

"It has been supposed that Muhammac derived many of his notions concerning Christianity from Gnosticism and that it is to the numerous Gnostic sects the Koran allade when it reproaches the Christians with having 'split up their religion into parties' But for Mnhammad thus to have confounded Gnos tiersm with Christianity itself, its prevalence in Arabia must have been far more universa than we have reason to believe that it reall' was In fact, we have no historical autho rity for supposing that the doctrines of these heretics were taught or professed in Arabi at all It is certain, on the other hand, tha the Basildans, Valentinians, and other Gnos tic sects had either died ont, or been reab sorbed 10to the Orthodox Church, toward the middle of the fifth century, and had dis appeared from Egypt before the sixth. I remains possible, however, that the Gnosts doctrine concorning the Crucifixion may have been adopted by Muhammad as likely to re concile the Jews to Islam as a religion em bracing both Judaism and Christiamity, i they might believe that Jesus had not bee put to death, and thus had the stumbling block of the Atonement removed out of ther path the Jews would, in this case, hav simply been called upon to believe in Jesu as a divinely born and inspired teacher, who like the patriarch Enoch, or the prophe Elijah, had been miraculously taken from the earth But, in all other respects, the sobe and matter of-fact statements of the Koran relative to the family and history of Jeans are opposed to the wild and fantastic doc trines of Gnostic emanations, and especially to the manner in which they supposed Jesus, a his baptism, to have been brought into unier with a higher nature. It is more clear tha Muhammad borrowed in several points from the doctrines of the Ebionites, Essenes, and Sabertes Epiphanius describes the notion of the Ebionites of Nabathes, Moabites, and Basanites, with regard to Adam Jesus, almos in the very words of Sura iii. 52 He tells u that they observed circumcision, were opposed to celibacy, forbade turning to the sunrise, bu enjoined Jerusalem as their Keola (Qiblah), (a did Muhammad during twelve years), that they prescribed (as did the Sabeites) wash ings, very similar to those enjoined in the Koran and allowed oaths (by certain natura objects, as clouds, aigns of the Zodiac, oil, the winds, etc.), which also we find adopted therein. These points of contact with Islam knowing as we do Muhammad's eclecticism can hardly be accidental.

"We have no evidence that Muhammad has access to the Christian scriptures, though 1 is just possible that fragments of the Old o Now Testament may have reached him through Chadijah or Waraka, or other Mec can Christianis, posses-ing Mad of our sacist volume. I note in our one direct quotation

(Sura xx: 105) in the whole Koran from the Scriptures, and though there are a few passages as where alms, are said to be given to be seen of men, and as, none forgiveth sine but God only, which might seem to be identical with texts of the New Testsment, yet this annularity is probably merely accidental It is, however, curious to compare such passages as Deut. xxvi 14, 17, and 1 Peter v 2 with Sura xxiv 50, and Sura x 78-John vn 15, with the 'wisterate' prophet-Matt xxiv 36, and John xii 27, with the use of the word hour, as meaning any judgment or crisis, and the last Judgment—the voice of the Son of God which the dead are to hear, with the exterminating or awakening cry of Gabriel, etc. The passages of this kind, with which the Koran abounds, result from Muhammad's general acquaintance with scriptural phraseology, partly through the popular legends, partly from personal intercourse with Jews and Ohristians And we may be quite cer tain that, whatever materials Muhammad may have derived from our Scriptules, directly or indirectly, were carefully recast

"It ohould also be borne in mind that we have no clear traces of the existence of Arabic versions of the Old or New Testament previous to the time of Muhammad passage of St Jerome- Hac autem translatio nullum de veteribus sequitur interpretom , sed ex 15 to Hebraico, Arabicoque sermone, et interdum Syro, nunc verba, nunc sensum, nunc simmi utrumque resonabit' (Prol Gal), obviously does not refer to tersions, but to ideam The earliest Ar version of the Old Testament of which we have any knowledge is that of R Sandias Gaon, AD 900 and the oldest Ar version of the New Testament is that published by Erpenius in 1616, and transcribed in the Thebais, in the year 1271. by a Coptic bishop, from a copy made by a person whose name is known, but whose date is uncertain Michaelis thinks that the Michaelia thinks that the Arabic versions of the New Testament were made between the Baracon conquests in the seventh century and the Crusades in the eleventh century-so opinion in which he follows, or comoides with, Walton (Prol in Polygl § xiv), whe remarks- Plane constat versionem Arabicam apud eas (occlesias orientales) factam osse postquam lingua Arabica per victorise et religionem Muhammedanicam per Orientem propagata fuerat, et in muliis lecis facta eseet vernacula? It, inleed, in these comparatively late versions, the general phraseology, eepecially in the histories common to the Scriptures and to the Koran, bore any a milarity to each other, and if the orthography of the proper names had been the same in each, it might have been fair to auppose that such versions had been made, more or less, upon the basis of others, which, though now lost, existed in the ages prior to Muhammad, and influenced, if they did not directly form, his sources of information. But this dees not appear to be the case The phraseology of our existing versions is not that of the Koran, and the versions as a whole appear to have been made from the Septuagint, the Vulgate, Syriac, Coptic, and Greek, Tischendorf, indeed, says that the four Gospels originem mertam habere videntur; but the internal evidence is clearly in favour of the Greek origin or the Arabic Gespels This can be seen in part even from the order of the words, which was retained, like that of the Greek, so far as possible, even in such constructions and transpositions of words as violate the rules of Arabic Syntax.

From the Arab Jews, Muhammad would be enabled to derive an abundant though distorted knowledge of the Scripture histories The secrecy in which he received his lustructions from them and from his Christian Informants, enabled him boldly to declare to the ignorant pagan Meccans that God had revorled those Biblical histories to him But there can be no doubt, from the constant identity between the Talmudic perversions of Scripture histories and the statements of the Koran, that the Rabbis of Hojaz communiested their legends to Muhammad. And it should be remembered that the Talmud was completed a century previous to the era of Muhammad, and cannot fail to have exten swelv influenced the religious creed of all the fews of the Arabian peninsula. In one passage Munrumad speaks of an individual lew-perhaps some one of note among his professed fillowers, as a witness to his mission, and there can be no doubt that his rolations with the Jeas wore, at one time, these of friendsuip and intimacy, when we and him speaking of their recognizing him as they do then own children, and blaming their most colloquial expressions. It is impossible however for us at this distance of time to penetrate the mystery in which this subject is involved. Yet certain it is, that, although their testimony against Muhammad was speedily silenced, the Koraish knew onough of his private history to disbelieve and to disprove his pretensions of being the recipient of a divine revelation, and to accuse him of writing from the dictation of teachers morning and evening And it is equally cor tain that all the information received by Muhammad was embellished and recast in his own mind and with his own words. There is a unity of thought, a directness and sim plicity of purpose, a peculiar and laboured style, a uniformity of diction, coupled with a certain delt ienev of imaginative power, which indicate that the avata (signs or verses) of the Koran are the product of a single mind louger narratives were probably, elaborated in his leasure hours, while the shorter verses, each proclaiming to be a sign or miracle, were promulgated as occasion required them. And, whatever Muhammad may himsolf profess in the Koran as to his ignorance even of reading and writing, and however strongly modern Muhammadans may melet upon the same point—an assertion, by the way, contradicted by many good authors—there can be no doubt that to assimilate and work up his materials, to fashion them into elaborate Suras, and to fit thom for public recital, must have been a work requiring much time, study, and meditation, and presumes a far greater degree of general culture than any orthodox Muslim will be disposed to admit" (The Preface to Rodwell's El-Korân, p xvi et seq)

VI - The Recital and Reading of the Qur'an

Triawah (5,%), or "the recital of the Qur'au," has been developed into a science known as 'limu'i-Taywid (ala), which moludes a knowledge of the peculiarities of the spelling of many words in the Qur'an, of the quadiat (anis), or various readings, of the elaculations, responses, and prayers to be said at the close of appointed passages, of thevarious divisions, punctuations, and marginal instructions, of the proper pronunciation of the Arabio words, and of the correct intonation of different passages

The reading or recital of the Qur'an should commence with legal ablution and prayer. The usual prayer is, "I seek protection from God against the cursed Satani," which is followed by the invocation. "In the name of God the Merciful, the Compassionate!"

The mosque is considered the most suitable of all places in which to read the Qur'an, and the most auspicious days of the week are Frids., Monday, and Thursday. The ordinary time allowed for reading the Qur'an through is forty days, although by reciting a juz' or siparah daily, it can be done in thirty days, which is said to have been the custom of the Prophet. Some read it through by manzils, or stages, of which there are seven, which is done in a week. On no account should it be read through in less than three days, for which there is a three-fold division, known in Persian as the Ahatam-i-Manzil-i-Fil, the initial letters of each portion (A) to forming the word fil.

Ejaculations, or responses, are made at certain places. For example, at the end of the Sūratn 'l Fātihah (1) and of the Sūratn 'l-Baqarah (11), any 'Am'n' At the end of the Sūratn Bani Isrā'il (xvii), say, "God is great!" After the last vorse of the Sūratn l-Qivāmah (lxxv), say, "Is He not powerful enough to raise the dead? Say, Yes, for He is my Lord Most High!" At the end of the Sūratu 'l-Mulk (lxvii), say, "God brings it (olear water) to us and He is Lord of all the Worlds!"

In addition to responses to be made after each Surah, or Chapter, there are certain ejaculations to be made after certain verses, for example, after the sixteenth verse of the third Sürah, "There is no God but He, the Mighty, the Wise!" say, "I am a witness to this!"

There are fourteen verses known as the Aydin's-Sajdah, after which a prestration is made. They are Sürahs vii 203 xiii 16 xvi 51; vi. 109, xiz. 59, xxii 19, xxv 61, xxvii 26, xxxii 15, xxxvii 24 xli 38; hii. 62, lxxxiv 20, xcvi 18

There are numerous instructions given as to prenunciation, and there have arisen seven schools of pronunciation, which are known as those of the Qurra'u 's-Sab'ah, or "seven readers (for a list of these readers, see QARI) It is considered quite lawful to recite the Qur'an according to the pronunciation established by any one of these seven worthes.

There are many marks and symbols on the margin of an Arabic Qur'an. Mr Sell, in his Ilm : Tajwid, gives them in detail (Ilm : Tajwid, Keys & Oo, Madras, 1852). The symbol for full stop is 0, when the reader should take breath. The word is written when a slight pause is made, but no breath taken. There are also signs which are known as way?, or pause. They were originally of five kinds, but many more have been added in modern times. They are distinguished by letters and words. [WAQF]

There are twenty-nine Surahs of the Quran which begin with certain letters of the alphabet. These letters, the learned say, have some profound meaning, known only to the Prophet himself, although it seems probable that they are simply marks recorded by the amanuensis.

(1) Six Sürahs begin with the letters Alif, Lām, Mim alt ALM, viz Sürahs al-Baqarah (11), Ālu 'Imrān (111), al-'Ankabūt (xxix.), al-Rām (xxx), Luqmān (xxx), as-Sajdah (xxxi)) Golius thinks that they probably stand for Amr h-Muhammad," And to have been written by the amannensis Jalālu 'd-dīn as-Suyūtī says that Ibn 'Abbās said that they stood for Anā 'llāhu a'limu, "I, God, know" (that this is true) Al-Baizāwī thinks A stands for "Allāh," L for "Gabriel," and M for Mulammad" Mr Salegives the meaning as Allāhu Latifun Majīdun, "God is gracions and exalted", others have suggested Alluhu h-Muhammad, "God to Muḥammad." But the general behei is that the letters have a hidden meaning

(2) At the sommencement of Süratu 1-A'ruf (vii), there is Alif, Lām, Mīm, Sād. المصلا ALMS, which may mean A, "Anā", L, "Allah', M, "Rihmān", S, "Samad", ie I am God, the Merciful, the Eternal."

(3) The Süratu 'r-Ra'd (xm) begms with the letters Als', Lām, Mim, Rā (1 ALMR, which al Bairāwī takes to mean, A, "Anā", L, "Allāhū" M, "A'lmu", R, "Arā." "I, God, both know and see"

(4) Five Sürahs begin with Alif, Lām, Rā. Il ALR which some understand to mean Amara it Rabbi, "My Lord hath said to me," or Anā 'llāhu arā, "1, God, see" These Sürahs are Yūnus (x), Hūd (xi), Yūsuf (xi), Ibiahm (xiv), al-Hir (xv).

Ibishim (xiv), sl-Hijr (xv).

(5) The Süratn Maryam (xix.) begins with the letters Kdt, Hā, Yā, 'Ain, Ṣād.

KHY AS, which Ibn 'Abbās says stand for five attributes of the Almighty Karim. 'Gracious", Hādi, "Guide', Hakīm (taking the middle letter), "Wise", 'Alīm, "Learned", Sādia, "Righteous'

5ādiq, "Righteous"

(6) The Süratu TH (xx), as its title implies, begins with the letters TE He L., which Hussin says may signify Taker,

"Pure", Hads, "Guide", being attributes

(7) Six Surahs commence with the letters Hà Mim , HM, namely, Sürahs al-Mu'min (xl.), Fussilat (xl.), az Zukhrní (xl.n.), ad-Dukhān (xl.v.), al-Jāsayah (xl.v.), al-Ahqāf (xl.v.). Ibn 'Abbās says they indicate the attribute Rahman, "Merciful"

(8) The Suratu 'sh Shura (xin ) begins with

Ha Mim 'Ain Sin Qaf HM'ASQ, which Muhammad ibn Ka'b undorstood to mean H for Rahman, "Meiciful", M for mean H for Rahman, "Melcittl", M for Rahma, "Gracious" 'A 'Alm, "Learned", S, Quddüs, "Holy", Q, Qahhār, "Dominant", being attributes of God

(9) The Suratu YS (xxxv1), as its title implies, begins with the letters Yā Sin , which is supposed to stand for Ya insan, "O man!

(10) The Suratu S (xxxviii) as its title augmiffer, begins with the letter Sad , which some say morns Sidq, "Truth

(11) The Suratu Q (1), as its name implies, begins with the letter Wat 5, which Jalain d-Din as-Suyuti says stands for Qadir, "Powerful," an attribute of God Others think it means the mountain of Qaf

(12) The Suratu 'I Nami (xxvii) begins with the letters Tā Sin , which Muliammad ibu Ka'b says stand for Zūt toul, " Most Powerful," and Quddus, "Holy being attri butes of the Almighty

(13) Two Sürahs, namely ash Shu'ara' (xxvi), and al-Quass (xxvii), begin with Ia Sin Mim , which supplies the addition of the attribute Rahman, "Merciful," to those of the former section, indicated by TS

(14) The Suratu 1-Qalam (lxviii) begins with Nun, N, which some sav stands for an ink-horn, others for a fish, and some for the attribute of Nur, or "Light"

VII .- The Interpretation of the Qur'an

'Ilmu'l-Usul (علم الأمول), or the Exegens of the Qur'an, is a very important sciouce, and is used by the Muslim divine to explain away many apparent or real contradictions The most authoritative works on the 'Ilinu 'l-Usul of the Qur'un, are Manaru L-Usul and its commentary, the Nuru 'l-Auwai, and as-Suyuti's Itaan (ed by Sprenger) various laws of interpretation laid down in these books are very complicated, requiring the most careful study. We have only space for a mere outline of the system

The words (alfaz) of the Qur'an are of four classes Khase, 'Amm, Mushtarak, and Mu'awwa!

(1) Khāss, Words used in a special sense This speciality of sense is of three kinds Alususu 1-jus, Speciality of genus, e.g. man-kind, Khuyusu 'n-nau', Speciality of species, e.g. a man, khususu 'l-'am Speciality of an Individual, e.g. Muhammad (2) 'Amm, Collective or common, which embrace many individuals or things, e q psople.

(3) Mushturak, Complex words which have several significations, eg 'ain, a word which signifies an Eye, a Fountain, the Knee, or the Sun.

(4) Mu'awwal, words which have several significations, all of which are possible, and so a special explanation is required. For example, Surah cviii 2, reads thus in Sale's translation "Wherefore pray unto the Lord and slay (the victims)" The word translated "slay" is in Arabic inhar, from the root The folnahr, which has saveral meanings lowers of the great Legist, Aba Hanifah, render it "sacrifice," and add the words (the "victims") The followers of Ibn Ash-Shah'i say it means "placing the hands on the breast in prayer"

II The Scutences ('Ibarah) of the Qur'in are either Zahir or Khafi. : e either Obvious or Hidden

Obvious sentences are of four classes -Zaher Nass, Mufassar, Muhkam

(1) Zāhir -Those sentences, the meaning of which is Obvious or clear, without any ussistance from the context (garinah).

(2) Nass a word commonly used for a text of the Qui'an, but in its technical meaning here expressing what is meant by a sentence, the meaning of which is made clear by some word which occurs in it The following sentence illustrates both Cahir and Nasa "Take in marriage of such other women as please you, two, three, four "This sentence 18 Auhir, because maritage 18 bere declared lawful, it is Nass, because the words "one, two, three, four" which occur in the sentence, show the unrawfulness of having more than four wives

(3) Mujassar, or explained A sentence which needs some word in it to explain it and Thus 'And the angels make it clear prostrated themsolves, all of them with one accord save Iblis (Satan)" Here the words save Iblis" show that he did not prostrate This kind of sentence may be abro-

gated

(4) Muhkam, or perspicuous A sentence as to the meaning of which there can be no doubt, and which cannot be controverted, thus "God knoweth all things" This kind of sentence cannot be abrogated To act on such sentences without departing from the literal sense is the highest degree of obedience to God's rommand

The difference between these sentences is seen when there is a real or apparent contradiction between them If such should occur, the first must give place to the second, and so on Thus Muhkam cannot be abrogated or changed by any of the preceding, or Mufassar by Nass, &c

Hidden sentences are either Khafi, Mushkel,

Mujmal, or Mutashābih

(1) Khuj: -Sentences in which other persons or things are hidden beneath the plain meaning of a word or expression contained therein e.g. Süratu 7-Ma'dah (v), 42, "As for a thiof whether male or female cut ye off their hands in recompense for their doings. In this sentence the word suring, "third," a understood to have hidden beneath its literal meaning, both pickpockets and highway rob-

(2.) Mushkul.—Sentences which are ambiguous, e.g Süratu 'd-Dahr (kxvi), 15, "And (their attendants) shall go round about them with vessels of silver and goblets The bottles shall be bottles of silver" The difficulty here is that bottles are not made of silver, but of glass The commentators say, however, that glass is dull in colour, though it has some lustre, whilst silver is white and not so bright as glass Now it may be, that the bottles of Paradise will be like glass bottles as regards their lustre, and like silver as regards their colour But anyhow, it is very difficult to ascertain the meaning
(3) Mujmal - Sentences which may have a variety of interpretations, owing to the words in them being capable of several meanings, in that case the meaning which is given to the sentence in the Traditions relating to it should be acted on and accepted, or which may contain some very rare word, and thus its meaning may be doubtful, as "Man truly is by creation hasty" (Surah lxx. 19) In this verse the word halu. "hasty," occurs It 19 very rarely used, and had it not been for the following words, "when evil toucheth him, he is full of complaint, but when good befalleth him, he becometh niggardly," its meaning would not have been at all easy to understand The following is an illustration of the first kind of Mujical sentences - Stand for prayer (salāt) and give alms (zakāt)" Both salāt and zakāt are Mushtarak" words The people, therefore, did not understand this verse, so they applied to Muhammad for an explanation. He explained to them that salat might mean the ritual of public prayer, standing to say the words "God is great" or standing to repeat a few verses of the Qur'an, or it might mean private praver The primitive meaning of zakát is 'growing" The Prophet, however, fixed the meaning here to that of "almsgiving," and said 'Give of your substance one-fortieth part

(4) Mutachābik.—Intricate sentences, or expressions, the exact meaning of which it is impossible for man to ascertain until the day of resurrection, but which was known to the Prophet e.g the letters Alif, Läm, Mim (A. L. M.), Alif, Läm, Rž' (A. L. R.), Alif, Läm, Mim, Rä' (A. L. M. R.), &c., at the commencement of different Surahs or chapters Also Süratu 7-Mulk (lxvn.) 1, "In whose hand is the Kingdom," is God's Acad (Arabic, yad), and Süratu TH (xx), "He is most merciful and sitteth on His throne," is God sitteth (Arabic, islawa), and Süratu 7-Baqarah (ii), 116, "The face of God" (Arabic, wayhe ligh)

III The use (settrad) of words in the Qur'an is divided into four classes. They are either Haqiqah, Mejaz, Sarih, or Kinayah (1) Haqiqah —Words which are used in their literal meaning e.g ruku, "a prostra-tion", smë, "adultary"

(2) Majās.—Words which are figurative, as salat in the sense of namaz, or the liturgioal prayers

(3) Sarih - Words the meaning of which 18 clear and palpable e g "Thou art free,"

"Thou art divorced."

(4) Kināyah — Words which are meta-phorical in their meaning eg "Thou art separated", by which may be meant, "thou art divorced"

IV The deduction of arguments, or stitldal, as expressed in the Qur an, is divided into four sections 'Ibarah, Isharah, Dalalah, and Iqtizā

(1) Ibaruh, or the plain sentence "Mothers, after they are divorced, shall give suck unto their children two full years, and the father shall be obliged to maintain them and clothe them according to that which is reasonable." (Surah ii 283) From this verse two deductions are made First, from the fact that the word "them" is in the feminine plural, it must refer to the mothers and not to the children, secondly, as the duty of supporting the mother is incumbent on the father, it shows that the relationship of the child is closer with the father than with the mother Penal laws may be based on a deduction of this kind

(2) Isharah, that is, a sign or hint which may be given from the order in which the words are placed, eg "Born of him," meaning, of course, the father

(3.) Dulālah, or the argument which may be deducted from the use of some special word in the verse, as "say not to your parents, 'Fie!' (Arabic, uff)" (Surah zvii. 23) From the use of the word uff, it is argued that children may not beat or abuse their parents Penal laws may be based on dulalah, thus "And they strive after violence on the earth, but God leveth not the abetters of violence" (Surah v 69) the abettors of violence" (Surah v 69) The word translated "strive" is in Arabic literally yas'auna, "they run." From this the argument is deduced that as highwaymen wandor about, thoy are included amongst those whom "God loveth not," and that, therefo., the severest punishment may be given to them, for any deduction that comes under the head of dalalak is a sufficient basis for the formation of the severest penal laws.

(4) Iqueza This is a deduction which demands certain conditions "whoseever killeth a believer by mischance, shall be bound to free a behever from slavery" (Sūrah iv 94) As a man has ne authority to free his neighbour's slave, the condition here required, though not expressed, is that the slave should be his own property

VIII - The Abrogation of Passages in the Qur'an

Some passages of the Qur'an are centradictory, and are often made the subject of attack, but it is part of the theological belief of the Muslim dootors that certain pas sages of the Qur'in are mansukh (tombe), or abrogated by verses revealed afterwards entitled nasikh (المسخ). This was the doctrintaught by Muhammad in the Süratu 7-Baqarah (ii) 105 "Whatever verses we (: e God) cancel or cause thee to forget, we bring a better or its like" This convenient doctrine fell in with that law of expediency which appears to be the salient feature in Muham-

mad's prophetical career

In the Tafsir-i-Azizi, it is written, that abrogated (mansikh) verses of the Qur'an are of three kinds (1) Where the verse has been removed from the Qur'an and another given in its place, (2) Where the injunction is abrogated and the letters of the verse remain, (8) Where both the verse and its injunction are removed from the text. This is also the view of Jalaiu 'd-Din, who says that the number of abrogated verses has been variously estimated from five to five hundred

The Greek verb καταλύω, in St Matthew v 17, has been translated in some of the versions of the New Testament by manukh, but it conveys a wreng impression to the Muhammadan mind as to the Christian view regarding this question. According to most Greek lexicons, the Greek word means to throw down or to destroy (as of a building), which is the meaning given to the word in our authorised

Emglish translation Christ did not come to destroy, or to pull down, the Law and the Prophets, but we all admit that certain precepts of the Old Testament were abrogated by those of the New Testament Indeed, we further admit that the old covenant was abrogated by the new covenant of grace. "He taketh away the first that he may establish the second "Heb x. 9

In the Arabic translation of the New Testament, printed at Beyiut AD 1869, καταλύω is translated by naqz, "to demolish", m Mr Loewenthals Pushto translation, AD 1863 by bāṭikuud, "to destroy," or "render void", shd in Henry Martyn's Persian Testament, AD 1837, it is also translated by the Arabic ibṭāl, ie "making void." In both the Arabic-Urdū and Roman Urdū it is unfortunately rendered mansūkh, a word which has a technical meaning in Muhammadan theology contrary to that implied in the word used by our Lord in Matthew v 17

Jalalu d Din in his Itaan gives the following list of twenty verses which are acknowledged by all commentators to be abroguted. The verses are given as numbered in the Itgan.

| No | Mansukh, orabrogated verses                        | Nāsikh, orabrogating verses                        | The Subject abrogated                            |
|----|--------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------|
| 1  | Süratu 'l-Baqarah (n.)                                 | Sürstn 7-Baqarah (11)                                  | The Qiblah                                       |
| 2  | Süratu 'I-Baqarah (11)178.                         | 49                                                     | Qisus, or Retaliation                            |
|    |                                                        | Sūratu Banī Israīl, (xvii ),                           |                                                  |
| 8  | Süratu 1-Baqarah (n.)                                  | , Süratu 1-Baqarah (11),                               | The Fast of Ramazan                              |
| 4  | Süratu 'l-Baqarah (11)                                 | , Süratn 'l-Baqarah (11)                               | Fidyah or Expiation.                             |
| 5  | Sûratu Āli 'Imrān (111.)102                        | Sūraiu't-Taghābun(lxiv),16                         | The lear of Gog                                  |
| 6  | Süratu 'n Nisa (iv), 88                                | Suratu 'n-Nisā' (iv ), 89Sūratu 't Taubah (ix ), 5 | Jihad, or war with infidels                      |
| 7  | Süratu 'l-Baqarah (11)216                          | Suratu 't-Taubah(ix ),86                               | Jihad in the Sacred months                       |
| 8  | Süratu 7-Baqarah (11)                                  | 234                                                    | Provision for widows                             |
| 9  | Süratn 'l Baqarah (11)                                 | Suratu 't-Taubah (ix )                                 | Slaving enemies in the Sacre                     |
| 10 | Süratu 'n-Nısā' (ıv ), 14                              | Suratu 'n Nur (xxiv), 2                                | MosqueImprisonment of the adults             |
| 11 | Sűratu 'l Mā'ıdah (v).                                 | Sūratu 't-Ţalāq (lxv), 2                               | ressWitnesses                                |
| 12 | Suratu l'Anfai (vn.), 66                               | Suratu 7 Anfal (vu), 67                                | Jihad, or war with infidels                      |
| 18 | Suratu n-Nur (xxiv), 3                                 | Duratu n-Nur (xxiv ) 32                                | the marriage of adulterers                       |
| 14 | Süratu 'l-Ahzāb (xxxııı),52                        | Suratu i Ahzāb (xxxiu),                                | The Prophet's wives                              |
| 15 | Süratu'l-Mujādilah (lviii.)18, first part of verse |                                                        | Giving alms before assembling                    |
| 16 | Suratu 'l - Mumtahmah(lx.), 11                     |                                                        | a council. Giving money to infidely for          |
| 17 | Soratu 't-Taubah (ix ), 89                             |                                                        | women taken in marriage.                         |
| 18 | (laxiu.). 2.                                           | Suratu I-Muzzammil                                     | Juhad, or war with infidels.The night prayer |
| 19 | Süretu 'n-Nür (xxiv),                                  | (lxxii), 20Sūratu n-Nūr (xxiv),58              | Permission to young children                     |
| 20 | Sūratu 'n-Nieā' (iv.), 7                               | Süratu 'n-Nısa' (17), 11                               | to enter a house.  Division of property          |

IX -The Reputed Excellence of the Quran, and str Meraculous Character

Copies of the Qur'an are held in the greatest esteem and reverence amongst Muhammadans They dare not to touch it without being first weaked and purified, and they read it with the greatest care and respect, never holding it below their girdles. They swear by it, consult it on all occasions, carry it with them to war write sentences of it on their banners, suspend it from their necks as a charm, and always place it on the highest shelf or in some piace of honour in their houses hammadans, as we have already remarked, believe the Qur'an to be uncreated and eternal, subsisting in the very essence of God. There have, however, been great dif-ferences of opinion on this subject. It was a point controverted with so much heat that it occasioned many calamities under the Abbaside Khalifaha Al-Mamun (AH 218) made a public edict declaring the Qui'an to be created, which was confirmed by his successure al-Mutasim and al-Wasiq, who whipped and imprisoned and put to death those of the contrary opinion. But at length al Mutawakkil, who succeeded al-Wasiq, put an end to these persecutions by revoking the former edicts, releasing those that were impusoned on that account, and leaving every man at liberty as to his belief on this point (Abū'l Fara), p 262) The Qui'an is, however, generally held to be a standing muracle indeed, the one miracle which bears witness to the truth of Mahammads mission an assumption which is based upon the Prophet's own statements in the Qur'an (Sürah x 39, xi. 16, lil. 34), where he calls upon the people who charge him with having invented it to procure a single chapter like it. But the Mu'tazalites have asserted that there is nothing miraculous in its style and composition (vide Sharbu'l-Munaqif) The excellences of the Qur'an, as explained by the Prophet himself, claim a very important place in the tra-ditions (see Faza'ilu 'l-Qur'ān, in the Tradi tions of al-Bukhārī and Muslim), from which the following are a few extracte

· The best person amongst you is he who has learnt the Qu'ran, and teaches it "

"Read the Quran as long as you feel a pleasure in it, and when tired los ve off "

"If the Quran were wrapped in a skin and thrown into a fire, it would not hurn"

'He who is an expert in the Qur'an shall rank with the Honoured Righteons Scribes, and he who reads the Qur'an with difficulty and gets tired over it shall receive double rewards "

"The state of a Musulman who reads the Qur'an is like the crange fruit whose emell and taste are pleasant."

"The person who repeats three verses from the beginning of the chapter of the Cave (Sürah xvin ) shall be guarded from the strife of ad-Dajjāl"

"Everything has a heart, and the heart of the Quran is the chapter Ya-sin (Surah xxxvi), and he who reads it, God will write for him rewards equal to those for reading the whole Qur'an ten times "

"There is a Surah in the Quran of thirty verses which intercedes for a man until he is pardoned, and it is that commencing with the words, 'Blessed is he in whose hands is the kingdom." (Sürah lxvi)

16 God wrote a book two thousand years before creating the heavens and the earth, and sent two verses down from it, which are the two last verses of the chapter of the Cew (Sûrah it.) and if they are not repeated in a house for three mights, the devil will be near that house"

Verily the devil runs away from the house in which the chapter entitled the Cow us read "

"The chapter commencing with these words, 'Sav God is one God (Sürah exil.), is equal to a third of the Qur'an."

"The person that repeats the chapter of the Cave (Süralı xvin.) on Friday, the light of faith brightens him between two Fridays

In the Qur'an there are many assertions of its excellence, the following are a few selected Vetter -

Surah iv 94 'Can they not consider the Qur'ant Were it from any other than God, they would assuredly have found in it many contradictions Surah ix 16 "If they shall say, 'The Qur'an is his own device.' Then bring ten Surshs like it of your devising " Sursh xlvi. 7 "Will they say, 'He hath devised it'? Say, If I have devised it, then not one single thing can je ever obtain for me trom God."

Surah hu. 4 "Verily the Qur'an is none One terrible in other than a revolution power taught it him."

Maracci, von Hammer, and other Orientalists, have selected the xoust chapter of the Qur an, entitled the Suratu 'sh-Shams, or the Chapter of the Sun, as a favourable specimen of the best style of the Qur'an. It begins in Arabic thus -

ا وَالْفُحْسِ وَمُعَاهَا ٢ وَٱلْقَمِرِ إِدَا تَلَاهَا ٣ وَٱلنَّهَارِ الدَّا مَلَّهَا ٣ وَٱللَّيْلِ الدَّا يَعْشَاهَا · وَٱلسَّمَاءُ وَمَا بَمَاهَا ، وَٱلْأَرْضُ وَمَا لَمَاهَا ٧ وَنَفْس وَمَا سُواهَا ٨ فَأَلْهَمَهَا فُجُورَهَا وتَقُواهَا قد أَقَلْمَ مَنْ زَكَاهَا ١٠ وَتَدُ عَابَ مَنْ دَمَّاهَا

Which Mr Rodwell translates as follows -

- 1 By the Sun and his noonday brightness
- 2 By the Moon when she followeth him !
- 3 By the Day when it revealeth his glory!
- 4 By the Night when it enshroudeth him: 5 By the Heaven and Him who built it!
- 6 By the Earth and Him who spread it
- forth! 7 By a soul and Him who balanced it,
- 8 And breathed into it its wackedness and its piety,

9 Blessed now is he who hath kept it pure, 10 And undone is he who hath corrupted it I

Baron von Hammer rendered it in German thus

1 Bey der Sonne, und ihrem schimmer, 2 Bey dem Mond der ihr folget immer,

8 Bey dem Tag der sie zeigt in vollem glanz, Bey der Nacht, die sie verfinstert ganz, 5 Bey den Himmeln und dem der sie gemacht,

6 Bey der Erde und dem der sie schuf eben,

7 Bey der Seele und dem der sie ins gleichgewicht gebracht,

8 Bey dem der ihr das bewusstseyn des guten and bosen gegeben, 9 Selig wer seine Seele reinigt,

10 Wer dieselbe verdunklet wird auf ewig gepeinigt.

The renowned Orientalist, Sir William Jones, praised the following account of the drowning of Noah's sons as truly magnificent, and inferior in sublimity only to the simple declaration of the creation of light in Genesis D'Herbelot also considers it one of the finest passages in the Qur'an (Sürah x: 44-46) -

رَهِيَ تَحْرِي بِهُمْ فِي مَوْجٍ كَالْجِبَالِ وَآلَدَى لُوعً آبْنَهُ وَكَانَ فِي مَعْرِلِ يَا بُنَيٌّ آزُكُبٌ شَعَّنَا وَلَا تَكُنُّ مَعَ ٱلْكَافِرِينَ قَالَ سَآوِى أَلَى مَهِلَ يَعْسَمُنِي مِنَ اللهِ اللهِ عَلَى مَهِلَ اللهِ اللهِ اللهِ مَنْ أَمْرِ ٱللهِ اللهِ اللهِ مَنْ أَمْرِ ٱللهِ اللهِ مَنْ أَمْرِ ٱللهِ اللهِ مَنْ رَحَمَ وَحَالَ بَيْنَهُمَا ٱلْمَوْعُ فَكَانَ مِنْ ٱلْمُقْرَقِينَ وَقِيلَ يَا أَرْضُ ٱلْمُعَى مَا لَكُ وَيَا سَمَا ۖ أَتَّلَعَى وَهَيْضَ ٱلْمَا ۗ وَقُدِي ٱلْأَمْرُ وَٱسْتَوَتُ عَلَى ٱلْجُوْدَى وَقِيلَ بعداً للقرم الطَّالمين

It may be rendered as follows -

"And the ark moved on with them smid waves like mountains

"And Nosh called to his son-for he was epart—

"Embark with us, O my child! and stay not with the unbelievers '

"He said, 'I will betake myself to a mountain that shall save me from the water

"He said, 'None shall be saved this day from God's decree, save him on whom He shall have mercy'

"And a wave passed between them and he was drowned

"And it was said, 'O earth! swallow up thy water ! and O heaven! withhold thy rain! And the water abated, and God's decree was fulfilled, and the ark rested on al Judi.

"And it was said, 'Avaunt, ye tribe of the wicked!"

X - Commentaries on the Quran

in the earliest ages of Islam the expositions of the Quran were handed down in the traditional sayings of the companions and their successors, but we have it on the authority of the Kashfu 's-Zunun that one Quintbah ibn Ahmad, who died A.E. 316, compiled a systematic commentary on the whole of the Qur'an. The work is not now extent.

Muslim commentaries are very numerous. Dr. M Arnold (Islam and Christianity, p. 81) says there are no less than 20,000 in the Labrary at Trapolis

The best known commentaries amongst the Sunnis are those of -

Al-Baghawi, A H. 515 Az-Zamakhshari, A.H. 604. At-Tafsiru 'l-Kabir. A H. 606 Ibnu 'l-'Arabı, A H. 628 Al-Baizawi, A.H. 685 Al-Mudarik, A H. 701 Husain, A H 900 Al-Jalalan, A H 864, A H. 911 Al Mazhari, A H. 1225 'Azīzī, A H 1239

Amongst the Shi'she the following are works of reputation .

Shaikh Saduq. A # 381

At-Tafsiru 'l-Kubir, by Saiyid Muham-mad ar-Razī, 30 volumes, A.H 606

An-Safi, a H 668 As-Sirra 'I-Wajiz, A.H 715 Sidratu 'l-Muntaha, by Mir Bakir, A.H 1041 Al-Burhan by Salyid Hasham, A.B 1160.

XI - Editions and Translations of the Qur'an

The Qur'an was first printed in Arabic at Rome by Pagninus Brixiensis, Rome, 1580, but it was either burned or remained un-published Since then the following editions of the Arabie text have appeared in Europe -

Al-Coranus, see lex Islametica, &c., the Arabic text of the Qur'an, published by A Hinkelmann, Hamburg, 1649, 4to

Alcorani textus universus, &a., the Arabic text with a Letin translation and namerous extracts from the principal commentaries, and preceded by a Prodromus, containing a "lefutation" of the Qur'an, by Maraeci, Padua, 1698, folio راغراً, an anotated text of the Qur'an, published by order and at the cost of the Empress Catherine II of Russia, at St Petersburgh in 1787, 1 vol. in folio. This edition was reprinted at St Petersburgh in 1790, 1793, 1796, and 1798, and without any change at Kasan in 1803, 1809, and 1899 Another edition, in two vols, 4tc, without notes, was published at Kasan, 1817, reprinted 1821 and 1848, and a third edition, in 6 vols 8vo, at the same place, 1819.

Corans textus arabicus, &c., the first aritical edition of the text, by G Flügel, Leipzig, 1884, 4to Second edition, 1842, third edition, 1869

Coranus crabice, &c , revised republication of Flügel's text, by G. M. Redelob, Laipnig. 1887, 8vo Berdhauss commentarius en Coranum, &c, the text of the Qurin with al-Baizawi's Commentary, by H. O Fleisher, two vols. 4to, Leipzig, 1846.

The Muhammadans, so far from thinking the Qur'an profanéd by a translation, as some authors have written (Marraccs de Alcoran. p 38), have taken care to have it translated into various languages, although these translations are always interlineary with the original text. Translations exist in Persian, Urdū, Pushto, Turkish, Javan, Malayan, and other languages, which have been made by Muhammadans themselves

The first translation atttempted by Eurocans was a Latin version translated by an Enghahman, Robert of Retina, and a German, Hermann of Dalmatia This translation, which was done at the request of Peter, Abbot of the Monastery of Clugny, AD 1148, remained hidden nearly 400 years till it was published at Basic, 1548, by Theodore Bibli ander, and was afterwards rendered into Italian, German, and Dutch The next translation in German was by Schweiger, at Numberg, in 1616 This was followed by the above-mentioned work of Maracci con sisting of the Qur'an, in Arabic, with a Latin version with notes and refutations, A D 1698

The oldest French translation was done by M Du Ryer (Paris, 1647) A Russian version appeared at St Petersburg in 1776 M. Savary translated the Qur'an into French There have also been more recent ın 1788 French translations by Kasımirskı (Paris, 1st ed 1840, 2nd ed 1841, 3rd ed 1857

The first English Qur'an was Alexander Ross's translation of Du Ryer's French version (1649-1688) Sale's well-known work first appeared in 1734, and has since passed through numerous editions. A translation by the Rev J M. Rodwell, with the Surahs a ranged in chronological order, was printed in 1861 (2nd ed 1876) Professor Palmer, of Cambridge, translated the Qur'an in 1880 (Oxford Press) A Roman-Urdu edition of the Quran was published at Allahabad in 1844, and a second and revised edition at Ludianah in 1876 (both these being a transliteration of 'Abdu 'l-Qadır's well-known Urdú translation)

The best known translations in German are those by Boysen, published in 1778, with an Introduction and notes, and again revised and corrected from the Arabic by G Wahl in 1828, and another by Dr L. Ullmann, which has passed through two editions (1840, 1858)

XI .- The Opinions of European Writers on the Quran

Mr Sale, in his Preliminary Discourse, remarks ;--

"The style of the Koran is generally beautiful and fluent, especially where it imitates the prophetic manner, and scripture phrases It is concise, and often obscure, adorned with bold figures after the Eastern taste, enlivened with fiorid and sementious expressions, and in many places, especially where the majesty and attributes of God are described, sublime and magnificent, of which the reader cannot but observe several instances, though he must not imagine the translation comes up to the original, notwithstanding my endeavours to do it justice

"Though it be written in prese, yet the sentences generally conclude in a long continued rhyme, for the sake of which the sense is often interrupted, and upnecessary repetitions too frequently made, which appear still more ridiculous in a translation, where the ornsment, such as it is, for whose sake they were made, cannot be perceived. However, the Arabiana are so mightily delighted with this jingling that they employ it in their most elaborate compositions, which they also embellish with frequent passages of and ailusions to the Koran, so that it is next to impossible to understand them without being well versed in this book

"It is probable the harmony of expression which the Arabians find in the Koran might contribute not a little to make them relish the doctrine therein taught, and give an efficacy to arguments, which, had they been nakedly proposed without this rhetorical dress, might not have so easily prevailed. Very extraordinary effects are related of the power of words well chosen and artfully placed, which are no less powerful either to ravish or amaze than music itself, wherefore as much as has been ascribed by the best orators to this part of rnetorio as to any other He must have a very bad ear, who is not uncommonly moved with the very cadence of a well-turned sentence, and Mohammed seems not to have been ignorant of the enthusiastic operation of rhetoric on the minds of men, for which reason he has not only employed his utmost skill in these his pretended revelations, to preserve that digmity and sublimity of style, which might seem not unworthy of the majesty of that Being, whom he gave out to be the author of them, and to imitate the prophetic manner of the Old Testament, but he has not neglected even the other arts of oratory, wherem he succeeded so well, and so strangely captivated the minds of his audience, that several of his opponents thought it the effect of witchcraft and enchantment, as he sometimes complains (Surah xv 21, &c)"

The late Professor Palmer, in his Introduction to the Qur'an, remarks

"The Arabs made use of a rhymed and rhythmical prose, the origin of which it is not difficult to imagine. The Arabio language consists for the most part of triliteral roots, t.s. the single words expressing individual ideas consist generally of three consonants each, and the derivative forms expressing modifications of the original idea are not made by affixes and terminations alone, but also by the insertion of letters in the root. Thus garaba means 'he struck,' and quiala, 'he killed,' while mazrib and maqtil signify 'one struck' and 'one killed.' A sentence, therefore consists of a series of words which would each require to be expressed in clauses of several words in other languages, and it is easy to see how a next following sentence. explanatory of or completing the first would be much more clear and forcible if it con asted of words of a similar shape and implying similar modifications of other ideas. It follows then that the two sentences would be necessarily symmetrical, and the presence of rhythm would not only please the car but contribute to the better understanding of the sense, while the thyme would mark the pause in the sense and emphasize the proposition.

"The Qur'an is written in this rhetorical style, in which it clauses are abothnical though not symmetrically so and for the most part end in the same about throughout the ohapter

"The Arabic language lends itself very readily to this species of composition, and the Arabs of the desert in the piesent day employ it to a great extent in their more formal orations, while the literary men of the towns adopt it as the recognised correct style, deliberately unitaing the Quran

"That the test of Arab writers has never succeeded in producing arribing equal in ment to the Qur'an itself is not an prising

"In the first place they have agreed before hand that it is unapproachable and they have adopted its style as the perfect stan-dard, any deviation from it therefore inust of necessity be a defect Again with them this style is not spont meous as with Mohammed and his contemporaries but is is artificial as though Lughshmen should still continuo to follow Chancer as their model in suite of the changes winch their language his under With the prophot the style was natural, and the words were those used in every-day ordinary life, while with the later Arabic anthors the style is imitative and the ancient words are introduced as a literary embellishment. The natural consequence is that then attempts look laboured and unreal by the side or his impromptu and forcible eloquence

"That Mohammed, though, should have been able to challenge even his contemporarios to produce anything like the Qui an 'And if ye are in doubt of what we have revealed unto our servant, then bring a chapter like it. But if ye do it not, and ye surely shall do it not, &c,' is at first sight surprising, but, as Noldeka has pointed out this challenge really refers much more to the subject than to the more style,—to the originality of the conception of the unity of God and of a revelation supposed to be couched in God's own words. Any attempt at such a work must of necessity have had all the weakness and want of prestige which attaches to an imitation. This idea is by no means foreign to the genius of the old Arabs.

"Amongst a people who believed firmly in witcheraft and seothsaying and who though passionately fund of poetry, believed that every poet had his familiar spirit who inspired his utterances, it was no wonder that the prophet should be taken for 'a soothwayer, for 'one possessed with an evil spirit,' or for 'an infatuated poet'"

Mr Stanley Lane Poole, in his Introduction to Lanes Selections from the Kur-fin, remarks —

"It is confused in its progression and strangely mixed in its contents, but the development of Mohammad's faith can be traced in it, and we can see dimly into the workings of his mind, as it struggles with the deep things of God wreatles with the doubts which eclaced the cavils of the unbelievers, some upwards on the wings of costatic faith, till at last it game the repose of fruition studied thus the Kui-an is no longer dull leading to one who cares to look upon the working of a passionate troubled human soul, and who can enter into its trials and share in the jos of its triumphs

In the morahs revealed at Mekka, Mohammad has but one theme-God, and one object-to draw his people away from their moss and bring them to the feet of that God He tells them of Him in glowing language, that comes from the heart's white heat points to the glories of nature, and tells them these are God's works With all the brilliant magery of the Arab, he tries to show them what God is, to convince them of His power and His wisdom and His justice The corahs of this period are short, for they are pitched in too high a key to be long austained language has the ring of poetry, though no part of the Kur-an complies with the demands of Arab metre Tho sentences are short and full of half restrained energy, yet with a musical cadence. The thought is often only half expressed, one feels the speaker has oseayed a thing beyond words, and has suddenly discovered the impotence of language, and broken off with the centence unfinished There is the fascination of true postry about these earliest snormbs, as we read them we understand the enthusiasm of the Prophets followers, though we cannot fully realise the beauty and the power, masmuch as we cannot hear them hurled forth with Mohammads fiery eloquenco From first to last the Kur an is essentially a book to be heard, not read, but this is especially the case with the earliest chapters "In the scorahs of the second period of Mekks, we begin to trace the decline of the Prophets elequence. There are still the same earnest appeals to the people, the same gorgoous pictures of the Last Day and the world to come, but the language begins to approach the quiet of prose, the sentences become longer the same words and phrases are frequently repeated, and the weariseme stories of the Jewish prophets and patriarchs, which fill so large a space in the later portion of the Kur-in, now make their appearance. The fierce passion of the earliest scorahs, that could not out save in short burning verses, gives place to a calmer more argumentative style. Mohammad appeals less to the works of God as proofs of his teaching, and more to the history of former teachers, and the punishments of the people who would not bear them And the characteristic caths of the first period, when Mohammad awears by all the varied sights of nature as they mirrored themselves in his magnation, have gone, and in their place we find only the weaker oath 'by the Kur-an.' And this declension is carried still further in the last group of the scorahs revealed at Mekka. The style becomes more involved and the sentences longer, and though the old enthusiasm bursts forth ever and anon, it is rather an echo of former things than a new and present intoxication of faith. The fables and repetitions become more and more dreary and but for the rich eloquence of the old Arabic tongue, which gives some charm even to mextricable sentences and duli stories. the Kur-in at this period would be unreadable As it is, we feel we have fallen the whole depth from poetry to prose, and the matter of the prose is not so enperlative as to give us amends for the loss of the poetic thought of the earlier time and the musical fall of the sentences

" In the socrahs of the Medina period taese faults reach their climax. We read a singu larly varied collection of criminal laws, social regulations, orders for battle, harangues to the Jews, first conciliatory, then denunciatory, and exhortations to spread the faith and such-like hotorogeneous matters Happily the Jewish stories disappear in the latest socrahs, but their place is filled by scarcely more The chapters of this palatable materials period are interesting chiefly as containing the laws which have guided every Muslim state, regulated every Muslim society, and directed in their smallest acts every Mohammaden men and woman in all parts of the world from the Prophets time till now The Madina part of the Kur-an is the most important part for Islam, considered as a scheme of ritual and a system of manners, the earliest Mekka revelations are those which contain what is highest in a great religion and what was purest in a great man."

Mr Rodwell, in his Introduction to his Quran says .

"The contrast between the earlier, middle, and later Suras is very striking and inte resting, and will be at once apparent from the arrangement here adopted. In the Suras as far as the 54th, we cannot but notice the entire predominance of the poetical element, a deep appreciation (as in Sura xei) of the beauty of natural objects, brief fragmentary and impassioned utterances denunciations of woc and pumshment, expressed for the most part in lines of extreme brevity With a change however, in the position of Muhammad when he spenly assumes the office of 'public warner,' the Suras begin to assume a more pressic and didactic tone, though the postical emament of thyme is preserved throughout We gradually lose the Poet in the mismonary siming to convert, the warm asserter of dogmatic truths, the descriptions of natural objects, of the judgment, of heaven and hell, make way for gradually increasing historical statements, first from Jewish, and subsequently from Christian histories, while, in the 29 Suras revealed at Medina, we ne longer listen to vague words often as it would seem without positive aim, but to the earnest disputant with the enemies of his faith the Apostle pleading the cause of what he believes to be the Truth of God. He who at Mecca is the admonisher and persuader, at Medina is the legislator and warmor, who dictates obedience, and uses other weapons than the pen of the Poet and the Scribe When business pressed, as at Medina, Postry makes way for prose, and although touches of the Poetical element occasionally break forth and he has to defend himself up to a very lete period against the charge of being morely a Post, yet this is rarely the case in the Meains Suras, and we are startled by finding obedience to God and the Apostle, God's gifts and the Apostle's God's pleasure and the Apostle's, spoken of in the same breath, and epithets and attributes elsewhere applied to Aliah openly applied to himself, as in Sura ix 118, 129

"The Suras viewed as a whole, strike me as being the work of one who began his career as a thoughtful enquirer after truth, and an earnost ascerter of it in such rhetorical and poetical forms as ne deemed most likely to win and attract his countrymen, and who gradually proceeded from the dogmatic teacher to the politic founder of a system for which laws and regulations had to be provided as occasions arose And of all the Suras it must be remarked that they were intended non for renters but for heavers—that they were all promulgated by public recital—and that much was left as the imperfect sentences show, to the manner and suggestive action of the reciter lt would be impossible. and indeed it is unnecessary, to attempt a detailed life of Muhammad within the narrow limits of a Preface The main events thereof with which the Suras of the Koran stand in connection, are -The visions of Gabriel, seen, or said to have been seen at the ontset of his career in his 40th year, during one of his seasons of annual monthly retirement, for devotion and meditation to Mount Hira, near Mercs,-the period of mental depression and re-assurance previous to the assumption of the office of public teacher—the Fatrah or pause during which he probably waited for a repetition of the angelic vision—his labours in comparative privacy for three years, issuing in about 40 converts, or whom his wife Ohedijsh was the first, and Abu Bekr the most important, (for it is to him and to Abu Jahl the Sura xen refers) struggles with Meccan unbekef and idolatry followed by a period during which probably he had the second vision, Sura lin and was listened to and respected as a person 'possessed' (Sura laix 42 h: 29)—the first emigration to Abyssinia in AD 616, in consequence of the Meccan persecutions brought on by his now open attacks upon idolatiy (Tagnout) -

The state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the state of the s

1

b

increasing reference to Jewish and Christian histories, shewing that much time had been devoted to their study—the conversion of Omar in 617—the journey to the Thaquistes at Taies in A.D 620—the intercourse with pilgrims from Medina, who believed in Islam, and spread the knowledge thereof in their native town, in the same year—the vision of the midnight journey to Jerusalem and the Heavens—the meetings by night at Acaba, a mountain near Meoca in the 11th year of his mission, and the pledges of fealty there given to him—the ooramand given to the bakevers to emigrate to Yathrib, henceforth Medinaten-nabi (the city of the Prophet), or El-Medina (the city), in April of A D 622—the escape of Muhammad and Abu Bekr from Mecca to the cave of Thaur-the FLIGHT to Medina in June 20, AD 622-treaties made with Christian tribes—increasing, but still very imper feet acquaintance with Christian doctrinos the Battle of Bedr in Hej 2 and of Ohodthe coalition formed against Muhammad by the Jews and idolatrons Arabians, issuing in the siege of Medina, Hej 5 (AD 627)—tho convention, with reference to the liberty of making the pilgrimage, of Hudaibiya, Hej b -the embassy to Chosroes King of Persia in the same year, to the Governor of Egypt and to the King of Abyssinia, desiring them to embrace Islam—the conquest of several lewish tribes, the most important of which was that of Chaibar in Hoj 7, s year marked by the embassy sent to Herachus, then in Syria, on his return from the Persian campaign, and by a solemn and peaceful pilgrimage to Mecca—the trumphant entry into Mecca in Hej 8 (A.D 630), and the demolition of the idols of the Caaba—the submission of the Christians of Nedjran, of Aila on the Red Sea, and of Taief, etc., in Hej 9, called the year of embassies or deputations, from the numerous deputations which flocked to Mocea profiering submission—and lastly in He, 10, the submission of Hadramont, Yemen, the greater part of the southern and eastern pro vinces of Arabia-and the final solemu pilgrimage to Meoca

"While, however, there is no great difficulty in ascertaining the Suras which stand in connection with the more salient features of Muhammad's life, it is a much more arduous, and often impracticable, task, to point but the precise events to which individual verses refer and out of which they sprung It is quite possible that Muhammad himself, in a later period of his caresr, de-signedly mixed up later with earlier revelations in the same Suras not for the sake of producing that mysterious style which seems so pleasing to the mind of those who value truth least when it is most clear and obvious -but for the purpose of softening down some of the earlier statements which represent the last hour and awful judgment as imminent, and thue leading his followers to continue still in the attitude of expectation, and to see m his later successes the truth of his earlier predictions If after-thoughts of this kind are to be traced, and they will often strike the attentive reader, it then follows the perplexed state of the text in individual is to be considered as due to Muhar himself, and we are furnished with a of constant hints for attaining to ch logical accuracy And it may be remi in passing, that a belief that the end things was at hand, may have tende promote the earlier successes of Islan Mecca, as it unquestionably was an argu with the Apostles, to flee from 'the wra come' It must be borne in mind the allusions to contemporary minor events, to the local efforts made by the new rel to gain the ascondant are very few, and couched in terms so vague and general, we are forced to interpret the Koran a but the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at the Koran at t by the Koran itself And for this, the quent repetitions of the same histories the same sentiments, afford much faci and the peculial manner in which the de of each history are increased by fresh t at each recurrence, enables us to trace growth in the author's mind, and to asce the manner in which a part of the Keran composed The absence of the histo element from the Koran as regards the tails of Muhammad's duily life, may be juof by the fact, that only two of his conter raries are mentioned in the entire voli and that Muhammad's name occure but times, although he is all the way thre addressed by the Angel Gabriel as the cipient of the divine revelations, with word Say Perhaps such passages as ? n 15 and v 246, and the constant menuo guidance, direction, wandering, may have I suggested by reminiscences of his mercal journeys m his earlier years"

Dr Steingass, the learned compiler of English Arabic and Arabic English Dict aries (W H Allen & Co), has obligit recorded his opinion as follows —

Invited to subjoin a few further remi on the composition and style of the Qui in addition to the valuable and compe opinions contained in the above extract can scarcely introduce them better than quoting the striking words of Guthe, which Rodwall places by way of motto on the reve of the title page of his Translation. Th words seem to me so much the more weig and worthy of attention, as they are utte by one who, whatevor his merits or deme m other respects may be deemed to be, in putably belongs to the greatest masters language of all times, and etands foremost a leader of modern thought and the intel tual culture of modern times Speaking the Qur'an in his West-Oestlicher Droan, says "However often we turn to it, at fi disgusting us each time airesh, it soon tracts, astounds, and in the end enforces Ita style, in accordance w its contents and aim, is stern, grand, terri ever and anon truly sublime . . . Ti this book will go on exercising through ages a most potent influence."

A work, then, which calls forth so power and seemingly incompatible emotions, even in the distant reader-distant as to time, and still more so as to mental development-a work which not only conquers the repugnance with which he may begin its perusal, but changes this adverse feeling into astonishment and admiration, such a work must be a wonderful production of the human mind indeed, and a problem of the highest interest to every thoughtful observer of the destinies of mankind Much has been said in the preceding pages, to acknowledge, to appreciate, and to explain the literary excellences of the Quran, and a more or less distinct admission that Buffon's much-quoted saying "Le style e'est l'homme," is here mere justifisd than ever, underlies all these various verdicts. We may well say the Qur'an 1s one of the grandest books ever written, because it faithfully reflects the character and life of one of the greatest man that ever breathed "Sincerity," writes Carlyle, "sincerity, in all senses, seems to me the merit of the Koran." This same sincerity, this ardour and earnestness in the search for truth, this never-flagging perseverance in trying to im press it, when partly found, again and again upon his unwilling hearers, appears to me as the real and undeniable "seal of prophecy" in Munammad.

Truth, and above all religious truth, can only be one. Christiamty may duly rejoice in the thought that, at the very moment when the representative of the greatest Emp re of the ancient world mockingly or despairingly put forth the question, "What is truth?" this one eternal truth was about to be written down with the blood of the Divine Redeemer in the salvation deed of our race, Christ's glorious and holy Gospel. But the approaches to truth are many, and he who devoted all his powers and energies, with untiring pa-tience and self-denial, to the task of leading a whole nation by one of these approaches, from a coarse and effete idolatry, to the worship of the living God, has certainly a strong claim to our warmest sympathies as a faithful servent and noble champion of truth.

It is, however, not my intention to dwell here any lenger upon this side of the question. Praise has been bestowed in this work on the Qur'an and its author without stint or grudge, and the unanimity of so many distinguished voices in this respect will no doubt impress the general reader in favour of the sacred book of the Muhammadans, which until now he may have known only by name. At the same time, it will be noticed that no less unanimity prevails in pointing out the inferiority of the later portions of the Qur'an in comparison with the earlier Surahs, a falling off, as it were, from the original postical grandeur and loftiness of its composition into proce and common-place. Göthe, we have seen, uses such a strong word as disgust, again and again experienced by him at the very outset of its repeated reading

Not being an Arabic scholar himself, he knew the Qur'an only through the translations existing at the time, which follow through out the order of the received text. he was made to pass, roughly speaker from the later to the earlier Madinah Süral and from these again to the Suraha given Makkah at the various stages which ma Muhammad's ministry, while he was 3 staying in his irresponsive parent town. other words, he would have proceeded fro the ntterances of the worldly ruler and is giver to those of the inspired Divine, whad just succeeded in laying the foundation stones of a new religion, under flerce strugg and sufferings, but in obedience to a c which, in his innermost heart, he felt h gone out to him, and which he had accept with awe, humility, and resignation therefore, in the beginning of his studi Gothe may have met with a number details in the vast structure raised by M hammad which appeared distasteful to 1 refined scion of the nineteenth century, interest must have been awakened, his i miration kindled and kept increasing, i more he became acquainted, through t work itself, with the nature and personal of its creator, and with the purity and exal character of the main-spring of his motive

Those critics, on the other hand, we wise the Qur'an with regard to the chroicogical order of its constituents, follow to descending scale in their estimate. Speak at first highly—nay frequently with entities maxim—of the earlier parts, they complimore and more of the growing tedionsness a wearisomeness of the Surahs of later origin.

Noldeke, for instance, the learned a ingenious author or (reschichte des Qord speaking of the deficiencies in style, li guage, and treatment of the subject mati which, in his opinion, characterise the second third period of the Makkan revelation and in general the Madinah Süraha, pointe terminates his indictment by the senten "if it were not for the exquisite flexibiliand vigour (die ungemeine Feinheit und Kra of the Arabic language itself, which, he ever, is to be attributed more to the in which the anthor lived than to his indiduslity, it would scarcely be bearable to re the later portions of the Qur'an a second time.

But if we consider the variety and hete geneousness of the topics on which the Qur touches uniformity of style and diction ( scarcely be expected, on the contrary, would appear to be strangely out of pla Let us not forget that in the book, as h hammad's newest biographer, Ludolf Kr (Das Leben des Muhammed, Leipzig, 188 expresses it, "there is given a complete co of creed and morals, as well as of the l based thereupon. There are also the found tions laid for every institution of an extens commonwealth, for instruction, for the ministration of justice, for military organi tion, for the finances, for a most care legislation for the poor all built up on belief in the one God, who holds man's de-nies in His hand." Where so many import objects are concerned, the standard of exc ence by warh we have to gauge the com sition of the Qur'an as a whole must needs vary with the matter treated upon in each particular case Sublime and chaste, where the supreme truth of Gods unity is to be proclaimed, appealing in high pitched strair s to the imagination of a poetically-gifted people, where the eternal consequences of man's submission to God's hely will, or of rebellion against it, are pictured, touching in its simple, almost crude, ournestness, when it seeks again and again encomagement or consolation for God's messenger, and a solemn warning for those to whom he has been sent, in the histories of the prophots of old the language of the Qur'an adapt itself to the exigencies of every-day life, when this every day life, in its private and public bearings, is to be brought in harmony with the fundamental principles of the new dispensation

Here, therefore its ments as a literary production should perhaps not be measured by some precenceived maxims of subjective and seathetic taste, but by the effects which it produced in Muhammad's contemparanes and follow-countrymen. If it spoke so a liverfully and convincingly to the hearts of his hearers as to weld hitherto contribugal and antagometic elements into one compact and well organised body animated by ideas far beyond those which had until now ruled the Arabian mind, then its eloquence was perfect, simply because it created a civilized nation out of savage tribes, and shot a fresh worf into the old warp of history

Noldeke's above-quoted remark, it seems to me, raises, however . Very maporeant question It mast, of course, he admitted that the Arabio language, which is new so greatly and deservedly admued, cannot be attributed to Muhammad individually, but originated in and was at his time the common property of the Arabic-speaking section of the human race, or, more accurately, or its Semitic branch, who were than hong within the Poninsula and in some of the noighbouring countries But we may well ask ourselves, what would in all probability have become of this language without Muhammad and his This is not at all an idle and Qur'an? desultory speculation It is true the Arabic language had already produced numerous time specimens of genuine and high flown poetry, but such poetry was chiefly, if not exclu sively, preserved in the memory of the people, for the art of writing was certainly very little known, and still less practised

Moreover, poetry is not tantamount to liberature, it may lead to it, and will always form a most easential part of it, but it will live on, and perhaps die, in solitary isolation, inless it bedomes, as it were, as Brahimans may, "twice born," by participating it a literary development of vaster dimensions and a note general character. Divided among themselves into numerous tribes who were engaged in a perpetual warrane against outhouther, the Arabs and with them that various dialects, would more and mere have drifted asunder, poetry would have followed in the wake, and the population of Arabia would have broken up into a multitude of clans, with their particular bards, whose love- and war-songs enterprising travellers of our days might now collect, like the popular senge of the Kosaks of the steppe, or the Kalmuks and similar nationalities, vegetating for conturnes in a more or less primitive mate of existence

It seems, then, that it is only a work of the nature of the Quran which could develop ancient Arabic mito a literary language, notwithstanding the fact that it had alroady been admirably handled by local poets. As this book places the national life of the Arths upon an entirely new basis, giving it at the same time a much-needed centre and a wonderful power of expansion, it became a matter of the utmost importance. may, of ungent necessi'v, that the contents of the volume should be preserved with scrupulous accuracy and undisputable conformity. This shain was only possible by fixing upon one dialect, which by ite recognized excellence commended riself to general acceptance, and also by establishing a written text

But not only by raising a dialect, through its generalization to the power of a language, and by rendering the adoption of writing indispensable, has the Quran initiated the development of an Arabic literature, its composition itself has contributed two factors absolutely needful to this development it has added to the existing poetry the origins of rhetoric and prose

Although the decidedly poetical character of the earlier Surahs is obvious they differ in two important points from the hitherto acknowledged form of poetry, which is that of the Qasidah. This form consists of burts, or distichs, measured by some variation of one of the fifteen (or sixteen) principal metres, and each containing two half-lines, the same thyme running through both hemistichs of the first bust, and through every second one of the following. For instance

1 Qifa nabki min zikra habibin wa-mansili Bi-siqti 7-liwa baina 'd-dakhuli wa-haumali

¿ Fa-tūziha fa'l maqrāti lam ya'fu ras muhā

Lı më nasajat-hë min junëbin wa sham'ali which would soan

0/5 -----

Qifa nab- | ki min gikis | habibin | wa-

manzili &c and belongs to the first variation of the metre [awil

Emancipating himself from the fatters of metro, and gradually also of the uniform thyme Muhammad created what is now called soy, that is to say, a rhythmical prose, in which the component parts of a period are balanced and cadenced by a varying rhyme, and of which e.g. the Suratu'l-Qiyamah (laxv) offers some fair examples, as (5-10)

as (5-10) —
Bal yurıdu 'l-ınsanı li-yafjura amamab, Yas'alu alyana yatımı 'l qiyamab, ha-igá bariqa I-basar, Wu-khasafa I-qamar Wa-jumi'a 'sh-shamau wa 'l-qamar Yaqulu I insanu yauma'ızın ama I mafarr But man chooseth to go astray as to his future Ho asketh, "When this Day of Resurrection?" When the eye-sight shall be dazzled, And the moon shall be darkened, And the sun and the moon shall be together, On that day man aball cry "Whole is there a place to flee to "

And again (22 80) Wa-wnjuhin yanma'izin pazirah Ila rabbi-ba năzirab Wa wujiihin tannis izin bisirsii Tazannu an yuf asa bi lio faqirah Kalla izā balaghati i turaqiya Wa qila man taq Wa-zanna annahu liirag We l-taffuti s sagu hi 's ang Ila rabbi ka vauma'izini l-masaq

(On that day shall faces beam with light, Out looking towards their lord And faces on that lay shall be dismal, As if they thought that some calamity would therein hof ill them Assuredly when the soul shall come up to the breast-hone. And there shall be a cry magician to restore him? And the man feeleth that the time if his departure is come, And when one log shall be enlaced with the other,

To thy Lord on that day shall be be driven

This kind of rhetorical style, the peculiarity of which Professor Palmer, in the pas sage quoted, p 523, aptly explains from the etymological structure of Arabic, has become the favourte model of oratorical and ornate language with the later Arabs It is fic quently employed in ordinary narratives, such as the tales of the Arabian Nights whenever the occasion requires a more elevated form of speech, it is the usual garb of that class of compositions, which is known by the name of Magamat and even extensive historical works, as the Life of Timur, by 'Arab Shah, are written in it ibroughont

But Muhammad made a still greater and more decisive step towards creating a literature for his people. In those turabs, in which he regulated the private and public lite of the Muslim h or mated prese which has remained the standard of clissical purity ever since

With regard to this point, however it has been stated, seemingly in disparagement of the later Arabic authors, that their necepting Muhammad'a language as a perfect standard, from which no deviation is admissible has led them to adopt an artificial sirle, as unnatural "as though Englishmen should still continue to follow Chancer as their model, in spite of the changes which their language has undergene" But is such a parallel justified in facts? In English, as amongst modern nations in general, the written language has always kept in close contact with the spoken language, the changes which the former has undergo e are simply the registration and legalisation. of the changes which in course of time had taken place in the latter Not so in Arabic From the moment when, at the epoch of its fullest and richest growth it was, through the composition of the Qur'an, invested with the dignity of a literary language, it was, by its very nature, for many c nturies to come, precladed from any essential change, whether this be considered as an advantage or not

The reason for time has in the first instance m the triliteral character of the Semitic 100te, referred to by Professor Palmer, which allows such a root to form one, two, or three vilubles, according to the pronunciation of e ch letter, with or without a vowel Let us take as he example once more the root ترب) which conveys the idea of beating, and serves in Arabic grammars. like the Greek TUTTW to form paradigms, by way of a wuolesome admonition, I suppose, te the voutliful student. The first of these th se constrants can only remain quiescent, ar somel-less of it is preceded by a vowel, as in the Imperative i zrib (اغرب), 'beat thou," where the root appears as a monoylluble, or in the sorist ya-zribu (يفرب), ' he bests or will beat,' where it takes toge-ther with the unal u a dissylable form. If we leave the second consonant quiescent and pronounce the first with a, we have zarh with the nominative termination surbin (فرف), the verbal noun "beating" or infinitive "to beat" Vocalising both the first letters, we may obtain "arib" the active participle " beating,' or zuruh, plural of the last mentioned zarb with the nom na ivo termination -arrhun if we read all (مَروب) and curübun (مارب) three consonants with vowels it may be zaraha (برب), "be dd best," or zaraby (مربوا), 'they did beat' Taking again, the two forms zariba the did best, and yizribu be bears or will boat," a simple change of sowols suffi es to transform the act to into the passive zurtha (فرب), "b bester and suzrabu ( , "he is boaten or will be besten" Lastly, it must be noticed, that the distinction between the two fundamental tenses of the Arabic verb rests on the principle that the affixes representing the personal pronouns, are in the prescribe placed at the end, in the normst it the begin ning of the root zarab na we did beat hat no grede, " we beat or will best " that any essential change in the written lan guage must deeply affect the whole system of Arabic socidence, and that this language will. therefore, naturally be averse to such changes But, moreover, this system stands in closest connection with and dependence on the syntactical structure of the language, which is equally "conservative," if I may use this expression, in its fundamental prin ciples. The Arabic syntax knows only two kinds of sentences (juminh), one called nomi nal (temiyah), because it begins with a noun, the other verbal (filiyah), because it begins with a verb Reduced to their shortest expression, an example of the first would be Zaedun zarebun (بالله قارب), "Zaid (18) beating, of the second zaraba zordun (موب المرب), " (there) did beat Zaid" 'll e constituent parts of the normal sentence which we would call subject and predicate are termed mubiada', "incipient' and Lhabur "report," meaning that which is enounced or stated of the subject. The rhabon need not be an attributive, as in the sentence given above, but it may be another clause, either nominal or verbal and if it is the former, its own mubiada' admits even of a third clause as a second khabar for its complement The subject of the verbal seatonos is called agent, or fath, and as mentioned before follows the verb or fil, in the nominative

The verb with its agent (fil and jail) or the subject with its predicate (mubiadd and khabor), form the essential elements of the Arabic sentence. But there are a great many accidental elements, called fazlah, what is superahundant or in excess," which may enter into the composition of a clause and expand it to considerable length. Such are additional parts of speech expressing the various objective relations (maj'ūl) in who h a nonn may stand to an active verb or the condition (hal) of the agent at the moment when the action occurred or ourcumstances of time and place (zarf) accompanying the action, or specificative distinctions (tomyer) in explanation of what may be vague in a noun, or the dependence of one noun upon another (124fah) or upon a preposition (khafz), or the different kinds of apposition (kmabi*) in which a noun may be joined to another, either in the subject or the predicate,

All these numerous component parts of a fully-developed sentence are influenced certain ruling prmosples ('awamil, or "regents "), some merely logical but most of them expressed in words and particles, which determine the vrab, that is, the grammatical inflection of nouns and verbs and bring into play those various vowel-changes, of which we have above given examples with regard to the interior of roots and which we must now add, apply equally to the terminations employed in declension and conjugation

The subject and predicate for thatance of the nominal sentence stand originally, as it is natural, both in the nominative. There are, however, certain regents called nawasikh, "effacing ones," which, like the particle inna, "behold." change the nominative of the subject into the accusative, while others, like the verh kana, "he was leave the subject unaltered, but place the producate in the objective case said-un zarib-un becomes thus either inna zaid-an zärib un, or kāna zaid-un zārib-an.

Again, we have seen that the acrist proper oi the third person singular terminates in s (yazrib-u). But under the influence of one class of regents this vowel changes into a (yaznb-a), under that of others it is dropped altogether, and in both cases the meaning and grammatical status of the verb is thereby considerably modified If we consider the large number of these governing parts of speech-s well known book treats of the 'hundred regents,' but other grammarians count a hundred and ufteen and more-it will be seen what delicate and careful harding the Arabic syntax requires, and now little scope there is left for the exportments of wilful innovators

At the time of Muhammad this then was, apart from some slight dialectical differences the spoken language of his people. He took it, so to say, from the mouth of his interlocutors, but wielding it with the power of a master-mind, he made in the Qur'an such a complete and perfect use of all ate resources as to create a work that in the astimation of his hearers, appeared worthy to be thought the word of God Himself

When a long period of conquests scattered the Arabs to the farthest East and to the farthest West, their spoken language might deviste from its pristine purity, alurring over unaccented syllables and dropping cimina tions But the fine idion of their fore-rathers, as deposited in the Qur'an, remained the language of their prayer and their pions meditation and thus lived on with them, as a bond of unity, an object of national love and admiration, and a source of bterary development for all times

AL-QUE'ANU 'L-'AZIM والعقيد Lit "The Exalted Reading" A title given to the Introductory Chapter of the Quran by Muhammad (Muskon, book witch 1 pt 1)

QURBAN (قربان), Lat "Approaching near" Heb. [1] korban. A term used in the Qur'an and in the Traditions for a sacrifice or offering Surab v 80 "Truly when they (Oain and Abel) offered an offering" [SACRIPICE]

QURBU 'S.SA'AH (اقرب الساعة).
"An hour which is near" A term used for the Day of Resurrection and Judgment

QUSTANTINIYAH .(قسطنطينية) The word used in the Traditions and in Muhammedan history for Constantinople (See Hadige t-Tirmigs) Istambul (Joseph), is the word generally used by modern Muslims.

QUTB (-b) Let "A stake, an axis, a pivot." The highest stage of sanctity amongst Muslim saints A higher position than that of games According to the Rushshafu 'l-Istilahat, a qual is one who has attained to that degree of sanotity which is a reflection of the heart of the Prophet himself Qualu 'd-Dm, "the axis of religion," a title given to eminent Muslim divines [FAQIE.]

R.

AB-RABB (الرب)). "The Lord,"
"The Sustainer," "The Supporter" A title frequently used in the Qur'an for the Divine Being, as

Sürah 111. 44 · "God (Allah) 18 my Lord (Rabb) and your Lord (Rabb)

Surah xvin 13. "Our Lord (Rabb) is the Lord (Rabb) of the heavens and the earth."

From its frequent occurrence in the Qu'ran, it would seem to occupy the place of the Hebrew Third Jehovah, the Kúpios of the Likk, the Dominius of the Yulgate, and the Lond of the English Bible but all Mushim writers say that whilst Allah is the Isnu 'z Zet, or 'Essential name of God," ar-Rabb, "the Lord" is but an Isnu Sifah, or attribute, of the Almighty

Al-Baizawi, the commentator (p to, tine 10, of Fifigel's edition), says, "rabb in its literal meaning, is 'to bring up 'that is to bring or educate anything up to its perfect standard, by slow degrees, and masmuch as the Almighty is He who can bring everything to perfection, the word it ar-Rabb, is especially applied to God."

It is the Hebrew 27 Rab, which enters into the composition of many names of digmity and office in the Bible

In Mushm works of theology, the word occurs with the following combination -

Rabbe 'l-'Iseah Lord of Glory
Rabbu 'l-'Alanda Lord of the Universe
Rabbe 'l-Arbäb Lord of Lords
Rabbu 'l-'Ibäd Lord of (His) Servants

The word is also used for a master or owner, eg -

Rabbu'd-Dar The Master of the house Rabbu'l-Arr A landowner A possessor of property

Rabbe 's Solaf A person who pays in advance for an article

RABBU'N.NAU' (() The "Lord of the Species" An angel who is said to preside wer the animate and inanimate creation viz. nabātāt, "vegetable", haiwanāt, "animal"; jamādāt, "inanimate" (stones, earth, &e.l called al-dlamu 's-sufit, "the lower creation," as distinguished from al-dlamu l'utun, "the heavenly world" (See Chygin' 'Lagish.)

RABI'U 'L-AKHIR (١٤٠٥)). "The last spring month" The fourth month of the Muhammadan year [MONTHE.]

RABI'U 'L-AWWAL (J.N & )."
The tirst spring month." The third month of the Muhammadan year [NONTHA] in India, the word rub? is used for spring harvest, or crop sown after the rains.

RACHEL Arabic Rahit (Jel))
Heb Jm, Rihel The wife of Jacob and the mother of Joseph Not mentioned in the Qur'an, but the name occurs in commentaries

The English form Rachel is a strange error on the part of our translators, who almost invariably represent the Hebrew 17 by she letter h. The correct form, Rahel, which is the form familiar to Muslim writers, occurs once in the English Bible, Jer xxxl. 15.

once in the English Bible, Jer xxxi. 15.

AR-RAD (se,) 'Thunder." The title of the xiith Surah of the Qur'an, in the 14th verse of which the word occurs. "The thunder celebrates his praise."

RADD (3,1) "Rejection, repulsion, refutation, reply, repeal, abrogation, making null and void, sometimes, erasure in Minamusadan law it applies especially to the return or surplus of an inheritance which remains after the legal portions have been distributed among the sharers, and or is to be divided amongst the original sharers

RADDU 'S-SALAM (د. السلم) 'S-SALAM (م. السلم) The returning of a salutation which is an incumbent duty upon one Mushm to another [SALUTATION]

AR-BAFI' ("") "The Exalter" One of the ninety-nine names or attributes of God. The word occurs in the Qur'an, Sürah ni. 48 "When God said, O Jesus! I will make thee die and will take thee up agam to myself" (Jishali).

RĀFI: IBN KHADĪJ (@ 26), giba). One of the Saḥābah. He was too young to be present at Badr, but he accompanied Muhammad at Uhud and was wounded with ar arrow, on which occasion the Prophet said to him, "I will answer for you in the Day of Judgment." He died at al Madmah A it 73, aged 86.

RAFIZI (الله)) Let "A forsaker" Synonymous with Rufizah (pl. Ruwafiz) A term used for a body of soldier- who have deserted their commander and turned back again, applied to a sect of Chrans who juined Zuid the son of 'Ali, the son of al Husain, the second son of the Khalifah 'Ah, who, when they had submitted to /aid, demanded that he should abuse Abu Bake and 'Umar, the first two Khalifahs of the Sunnis, but Zaid refused to do so, for he said, 'They were both Wazirs of my forefather Mahun mad." Upon this they to sunk the parts of Zaid, and weir called Ruftanh Zaid had then only fourieen faithful companious telt, and he was soon surrounded by at Hajjaj ibn Rusuf, the general of the Imam I of m's army, and fell at the head of his brave compa mone, not one of them surviving him

(2) The term Ranze is used by Summ Muslims for any sect of Shi ahs

RAHBĀNĪYAH (رهانية) [MONAS-

RAHIR ( ), pl Rubban A Christian mank Mentioned in the Qur v, Sürah v 85 'Thou wilt find the nearest in love to those who believe to be those who say, 'We are Christians, 'Int is, because there are amongst them pricise (processes) and monks (rubban), and because they are not proud" [MONASTICISM]

RAHIL (رحي) Let "That which is fit for travelling." A small it keems made o as to fold up for convenience in travelling but now generally used as a to 1 stand in mosques and Muslim chools to support the Qui'an and other by his is the student reads his lesson from them. They are also used in private dwollings.

AR-RAHIM ("The Compassionate One of the unoty-men names of attributes of God It generally occurs in conjunct on with the attribute or Ruhmun, e.g. Qui'an, Sūrah in 158 "The Merciful, The Compassionato" [RAFMAN]

RAHMAH (and)), Heb DIT reham
"Mercy compassion" The attribute of mercy is frequently dwelt upon in the Qurange quantity of Gradies might unto those who do well" believers. A guidance and a mercy to Surah ve last . Thy Lord is the rich one, full of compassion .

Ar-Rahman, "The Merciful," is one of the

AR-RAHMÂN (الرصان), Hel

rahum "The Merciful' One of the ninety-nine names or attributes of Gcd It generally occurs in conjunction with the attribute ar-Rahum, ag Qur'an, Sürah ii 159 "Your God is one God There is no god but He, the Merciful, the Compassionate" It also occurs in the initial formula placed at the commencement of each Surah with the exception of the ixth, "In the name of God, the Merciful, the Compassionate

Al liaizaw says that in Ruhman is a more exalted at ribute than in Rahma, because it not only contains are letters whilst Ruhma only has four, but it expresses that universal stribute of marcy which the Almighty extends to all mankand, the wicked and the good, behevers and unbehovers

RAHN ((a)) Pledging or pawning A legal term which signifies the detention of a thing on account of a claim which may be answered by means of that thing, as a time case of debt. This practice of pawning and pledging is lawful in Islam, for it is related that the Prophet, in a bargain with a Jow for grain give his coat of mail in pledge for the paument. It is also said in the Quran, burah in 283. Let pledges be taken. The word is used in the Quran form, rihan (For further information on the subject of Pawning, see Hamilton's Hidayah, vol in p. 188)

RAIHANAH (bu) A Jewess whose husband had been cruelly murdored in the introacts of the Banu Quraizah. Muhimmad offered to mary hor if she would embrace Islam, but she refused to forsike the fault of her ferefathers and consented to become his concubine instead of his wife.

RAIN Arabic mater (50), Heb

Mater Mentioned in the Qur'an as one of God's special mercies. Surah vii. 55
"He it is who sends forth the winds as heraldy before Her mercy, until when they left the heavy cloud which We drive to a dead land, and send down thereon water, and bring forth therewith every kind of fruit"

Prayers for rain are called Salāts 'l-Istagā', and consist of two rak'ah prayers. Anas says that on one occasion they were caught in the rain, and the Prophet took off his garment until he got wet and they said, "O Prophet, why have you done this?" He replied, 'This is fresh rain from our Lord." (Mishkāt, book 1, th hi)

RAINA (Lei) A word the use of which is fo bidden in the Qur'an, Sursh in 35 '() ye who believe! say not to the Apostlo 'Raina (ic 'Look at us'), but say, 'Unsurna' (ic 'Regard us)' These two words have both the same signification, but Muhammad had a great aversion to the use of the word raina, because it had also a bad me sings in Hebrew (see al-Barawa, sa oco), alluding, perhaps, to the Hebrew verb ruat, which signifies " to be mischiovons | or bad "

RAINBOW Arabic quest queak (قوس قرح), Heb الله kesheth
"The bow of many colonis." Not me Not mentioned in the Qur'an, but in the Traditions In the book entitled an-Nihayah, it is said that Muhammad forbade his people calling the rainbow quist quizah because quizah is one of the names of Satua (one who can assumo many characters in order to tempt the sons of men) He enjoined them to call it Que as 'llsh, 'Gods bow' because by it God nes promised to protect the world from a e end deluge (Mayma'u'l Believ, vol 11 p. 142)

The Persians call it Kaman- Rustum, "the bow of Rustum." (See Muntaha 'l- Arab, in locu )

BAIYAN (والال) Let "One whose thirst is quenched" The gate of Paridise Let "One whose through which, i' is said, the observers of the month of Ramazan will eater. It is mentioned in the Traditions (Mishkat, book vi ch vu pt 1) but not in the Quran ريان بن) RATYĀN IBN at-WALĪD The King of Egypt in the (الوليد time of Joseph (See al Briawi on Smith Young in the Quran.

RAJAB (بحب) Let "The ho-Muhammadan year So called because of the bonour in which it was held in the "Time of Ignorance," ie before Islâm It is called Rajubii Muzar, because the Muzar tribe honoured it more than any other month [MONTHS]

"Restitution" RAJ'AH (***) Receiving back a wife who has been divorced, before the time has fully clapsed when the disorce must of necessity take place other words, the continuance of the marriage (Hidayak, vol 1 p 289)

RAJIM (حمم) Let "One who is stoned" A name given to Satan in the Qur'an, barah in 31 "I have called her Mary, and I seek refuge in Thee for her and for her seed from Satan, the pelted one (Man ash-Shartani 'r Kajimi)

Muhammad tang! that the devil and his angels listen at 'lio gates of heaven for scraps of information regarding the things of futurity, and when detected by the angels of heaven they are pelted with shooting stars Abraham is also said to have driven the deril away by pelting him with stones which logend is expressed in the throwing stones at the pillars at Mina [PILGRIMAGE.]

" Lapidation " رجسم) RAJM [STOKING TO DEATH !

From Ruka", "to RAK'AH (کعة) bow, to prostrate one's self" portion of the Muhammadan daily prayers I BAYERS.

RAMAZAN (رمضان) The ninth month of the Muhammadan year, which is observed as a strict fast from dawn to sunsat of each day in the month. The word Hanas-zun is derived from ranz, "to burn." The month is said to have been so called either because it used (before the change of the calendar) to occur in the hot season, or because the month's fast is supposed to burn away the sins of men ((zhryāşu 'l Luyhuh, sa loco )

The observance of this month is one of the five pillars of practice in the Muslim religion, and its excellence is much extelled by Muhammad, who said that during Ramazan the gates of Paradise are open and the gates of hell are whut, and the devils ire chained by the leg, and only the e who observe it will be permitted to enter at the gate of heaven called Raivan." Those who keep the fast "will be pardoned all their past venial sins" (Mishkāt, book vii ch i pt 1)

The express injunctions regarding the observance of this month are given in the Quran, Sarah n 179-184 -

"O behevers! a Fast is prescribed to you as it was prescribed to those before you that ye may fear God for certain days. But he among you who shall be sick, or on a journey shall fast that same number of other days and as for those who are able to keep it und get break it, the expiation of this shall be the maintenance of a poor man. And he who of his own accord performeth a good work, shall derive good from it and good shall it be for you to fast—if yo know it. As to the month Ramazan in which the Quran was sent down to be man's guidance, and an explanation of that guidance, and of that illumination, as 400n as any one of you observeth the moon, lot him set about the fast but he who is sick, or apon a journey, shall fast a like number of other days God wishell you case, but wisheth not your dis comfort and that you fulfil the number of days, and that you glouff God for his gui-dance and that you be thankful And when my servants ask thee concerning me, then will I be nigh unto them. I will answer the cry of him that crieth, when he crieth unto me but let them hearken unto me, and believe in me, that they may proceed aright You are allowed on the night of the fast to approach your wives they are your garment and yo are their garment God knoweth that ye defraud yourselves therein, so He turneth unto you and forgiveth you' Now, therefore, go in unto them with full desire for that which God hath ordained for you, and est and drink until ve can discorn a white thread from a black thread by the daybreak then fast strictly till night, and go not in anto them, but rather pass the time in the Mosque. These are the bounds set up by God , there fore come not non them. Thus God maketh His signs clou to men that they my four

From the preceding versus it will be seen that fast does not commence with some Muslim is able to state that he has seen the new moon. If the sky be over-clouded and the moon cannot be seen, the fast begins upon the completion of thirty days from beginning of the previous month

It must be kept by every Mushm, except the sick, the infirm, and pregnant women, or women who are nursing their children Young children, who have not reached the age of puberty, are exempt, and also travellers on a journey of more than three days In the case of a sick person or traveller, the month's fast must be kept as soon as they are able to This act is called Qaza, or perform it expiation.

The fast is extremely rigorous and mortifying, and when the Ramazan happens to fall in the summer and the days are long, the prohibition even to drink a drop of water to slake the thirst is a very great hardship Muhammad speaks of this religious exercise as "easy" (Qur'an Surah n. 181), as most probably it was when compared with the ascetic spirit of the times Sir William Muir (Late of Mahomet, vol m 49) thinks Mu hammad did not foresee that, when he changed the Jewish intercalary year for the lunaz year, the fast would become a grievous burdon instead of an easy one, but Muham madan lexicographers sav the tast was established when the month occurred in the hot season (sec Gluyanu'l Lughah)

During the month of Ramazan twenty additional ratialis, or forms of prayer, are repeated after the night prayer These are called Tarawih

Devout Yushms seclude themselves for some time in the Mosque during this mouth and abstain from all worldly conversation engaging themselves in the reading of the Qur'an This seclusion is called I tiker Muhammed is said to have usually observed this custom in the last ten days of Ramazan The Larlatu 'l- Gadr, or the "night of power," is said by Muhammad to be either on the twenty-first, twenty-third, or twenty fifth, or twenty-seventh, or twenty-ninth of the month The exact date of this solemn of Ramazan night has not been discovered by any but the Prophet himself, and some of the Companions. although the learned doctors behave it to bo on the twenty-seventh of this night hammad says in the Qur'an (Suretu 'l-Qadr) ---

" Verily we have caused it (the Qur'an) to descend on the night of power

And who shall teach thee what the night of power 18?

The night of power excelleth a thousand months,

Therein descend the angels and the spirit by permission

Of their Lord in every matter,

And all as peace till the breaking of the

By these verses the commentator Husain understands that on this night the Qur'an came down entire in one volume to the lowest heaven, from whence it was revealed by Gabriel in portions, as the occasion required The excellences of this night are said to be innumerable, and it is believed that during it the whole animal and vegetable kingdom bow in humble adoration to the Almighty, and the waters of the sea become sweet in a moment of time! This night is frequently confounded with the Shab-1-Barat, but even the Qur'an itself is not quite clear on the subject, for in Surah xhv 1 it reads "By this clear book. bee on a blessed night have we sent it down. for we would warn mankind, on the night wherein all things are disposed in wisdom. From which it appears that "the blessed night," or the Lailais 'l-mebarakah, is both the night of record and the night upon which the Qur'an came down from heaven, although the one is the twenty-seventh day of Ramazan and the other the fifteenth of Sha'ban

M Geiger identifies the Ramagan with the fast of the tenth (Levitious xxiii 27), but it is probable that the fast of the Tenth is identical with the 'Ashura', not only because the Hebrew Asur, "ten," is retained in the title of that Muhammadan fast, but also because there is a Jewish tradition that creation began upon the Jewish fast of the Tenth, which coincides with the Muhammadan day, 'Ashura' being regarded as the day of creation More-over, the Jewish Asur and the Muslim 'Ashura' are both fasts and days of affliction. It is more probable that Muhammad got his idea of a thirty days' fast from the Christian Lent The observance of Lent in the Eastern Church was exceedingly strict, both with regard to the nights as well as the days of that season of abstinence, but Muhammad entirely relaxed the rules with regard to the right, and from sunset till the dawn of day the Muslim is permitted to indulge in any lawful pleasures, and to feast with his friends, conse quently large evening dinner-parties are usual in the nights of the Ramazan amongst the better classes This would be what Muhammad meant when he said, "God would make the fast an ease and not a difficulty," for, hot withstanding its rigour in the daytime, it must be an easier observance than the strict fast observed during Lent by the Eastern Christians of Muhammad's day

The following sayings of Muhammad regarding the fast of Ramazan are tound in the Traditions (see Mishkat, Arabio Ed., Kstābu s Suum)

"The difference between our fast and that of the people of the book (s.e Jews and Christians) is eating only before the first dawn of day (and not afterwards)"

"Keep not the fast till you see the new moon, and if the moon be hidden from you by clouds, count the days." And in one tradition it is thus - A month is twenty-nine nights, then keep not the fast till you see the new moon, which, if she be hid from you by clouds, then complete thirty days.

"When the darkness of the night advances from the west and the day departs from the east, and the sun sets, then the keeper of the fast may begun to eat

"There are eight doors in Paradise, and one is called Raiyan, by which only the keepers of the fast shall enter."

"When the month Ramazan arrives the doors of Heaven are opened" (in another tradition it is said, the doors of Paradise are opened), " and the doors of hell are shut, and the devils are channed" (in one tradition it is said, the doors of God's mercy are opened)

"The person who fasts in the month of Ramasan on account of belief in God and m obedience to His command, shall be pardoned of all his past sins, and the person who says the night prayers of the Ramasan shall be pardoned all his past sins, and the person who says the prayers on the Lailatu 'l-Qadr with faith and the bope of reward shall be pardoned of all his past sine."
"If a keeper of fast does not abandon lying, God cares not about his leaving off eating and drinking"

"There are many keepers of fast who gain nothing by fasting but thirst, and there are many risers up at night and performers of prayers who gain nothing by their rising but wakefulness."

RAMYU 'L-JUMAR (رمى الجمار)
The throwing of pebbles at the pillars, or Jumrah, at Wakkab A roligious ceremony during the Pilgrimage [PILGRIMAGE]

RAQABAH (وقية) Lnt Neck", pl riqub A term used in the Qur'an for a captive slave Surah iv 94 "Whosoever kills a believer by mistake then let him free a believing neck

The word is need in India for an enclosed area of land. (See Wilson's Glossary of Indian Terms )

" The AR-RAQIB (السرقسيس) Watcher over " One of the ninety-nine names ca attributes of the Almighty The word occurs in the Quran, eg Sürahıv 1 "Verily God doth watch over you."

AB-RAQIM (الرفيم) word which occurs in the Quran, Surah xviii. 8 "Hast thou reckoned that the Fellows of the oave and the Ragim were a wonder amongst our signs?" The commentators are not agreed as to the meaning of this word. The agreed as to the meaning of this word Jalalan say, it was a brass plate or stone-table, on which the names of the Fellows of the Cave were written. The Kamalan say it was either the name of the dog which belonged to the young men, or of the valley in which the save was situated

AR-RASHID (الرهيد) 'The Rightly Directing' One of the ninety-nine names or attributes of God. The word occurs once in the Qur'an, but it is not there used for the Almighty See Surah zi. 80 "Is there not among you one who can rightly derect ? "

"That which is stamped or sealed. According to the Qamas, it is a very ancient word used in Arabia before the days of the Prophet for custom and law, the ancient records of the people being entitled Rawasim ( ( )). It is a word which is very common in Hindustan for the oustoms and usages of the people.

AR-BASS (الرص). A word which occurs twice in the Qur'an, the meaning of which is uncertain.

Surah xxv 40 "The people of 'Ad, and Samud, the people of the Rass"

Surah 1 12 "Before them the people of Noah and the fellows of the Rass and Samud and 'Ad and Pharach, called the Apostles Hars."

According to the commentators al-Jalalan. it is the name of a well near Midian Some take it to be the name of a town in Yama-

BASUL (رحول), pl. Rusul "An Apostie." A title specially applied to Muhammad, but used also for all Prophets who brought inspired books [PROPHET.]

RATL, BITL (احل) (1) A certain thing which one weighs A weight or measure (See The Mughrib of al-Mutarrizi, in leco (2) that which is chaste. (See the Tāju '-'Arus, in loco; loco

(1) According to the standard of Baghdad, a weight of 12 ounces, and as a measure of capacity, a pint (Lane's Arabic Dictionary) Muhammad used to give a rati of niver as a marriage present, which has given itse to the expression, As-sunnatu fr 'n-nikāli rithun (السنه في النكاح والله) rofessor Wilson says that at Bombay the ratal is equal to 36 Suist rupees, and in the Red Sea the rottolo, as it is corruptly called, varies from 10 to 20 ounces avoirdupois

(2) A boy not having arrived at puberty

(3) An aged man

AR-RA'UF (الروك) "The Kind" One of the ninety-nine names or attributes of God It occurs frequently in the Quran, e.g. Surab : 138 "God is kind and merciful with mankind"

AR-RAUZAH (Legst). Lat. "The Garden" The garden in which is estimated the tomb of Muhammad at al-Madinah. The name is also given to the tomb itself by some writers

RAVEN Arabic ahurab (+1,4) Heb コプサ 'oreb Mentioned once in the Our'an. Surah v 84 "Am I too helpless to become like this raven and hide my brother's shame." The raven is not lawful food according to the Mushim law (Durru 'l-Mushim tar, vol. iv p 523)

RAWA (121) A Persian word for tost which is lawful. [LAW]

AE-RAZZAQ (الرزاق) vider with Food " One of " The Pro-One of the ninety-nine named of attributes of God. It occurs in the Qur'an once Sarah is 58 "Verily God, He is the Provider"

REBEL Arahic bāghī (باغی), pl bughāt A legal term for a person, or a bedy of people, who withdraw themselves from obedience to the rightful Imain In case of rebellion, the Imam must first call the rebels to his allegrance and show them what is right, and if they refuse to obey he must use force of arms (Hidayah, vol n 248)

RECORDING ANGELS, [KIRAMU L-KATIBIN]

Atabu al-Bahru 'l-RED SEA Ahmar (النصر الاحمر) Mentioned in the Qur'un as al Bon "the Sea" Sural 1 47 "When we divided for you the sea, and saved von and drawted Phattoh's people"

Surah x '00 ' And We brought the Chil

dien of Israel across the ca"

In Muhammadan works it is known as the Bahru 'l-Quizum or Qalzam Inlalu d-Din the commentator, says the town of Quil and a the same as Atlah (the Elath of the Bible, Deut n 8) a town at the bend of the Alabian Gulf The Allava of Stribe (xxt p 768) It is referred to in the Qur'an, but ih vit 163 'Ask them about the city which stood by the sea" Elath was at one time a place of unportance, but it has now become quite insignificant

RELIGION The religion of Muhammadana is called lelum (חולה) ind tho laws of God Shorrah (מנשט) Their זונ thice and used by Muslim arriers for the word religion namely, Din, Mulah, and Mazhab In the Kitabu I-Tarifat, the dit ference between these words is as follows -

Din (ເທລ) is used for religion as it stands in islation to God ey Dani lah, the religion of God'

Mallah (Ale), as it stirds in relation to the Prophet or lawgiver, eg Millatu Ibrahim, the Pigion of Vincham or Millatu 1-Rasal, the Prophet's religion

Mazhad ( as it stands in relation to the decisions of the Mujiahidun, eq Muzhaba (bi Hanifah

The expression I'm however is of general application whilst Millah and Machah are icstricted in their use [ISLAM]

RELIGIOUS DUTIES, The performance of Stritty according to Muham madan law, it is not lawful to accept any remuneration for the performance of religious duties But these injunctions are now totall; disregarded, and fees are taken for almost every religious duty performed by an Imam The teaching of the Hidayoh on the subject 18 as follows

"It is not lawful to accept a recon pense for summoning the people to prayer, or fer the performance of a piler lage of of the de ties of an Imam, or for teaching the Koraic or the law, for it is a general rule with our do the that no recompense can be received for the performance of any duty purels of a religious nature According to Shafer, it is allowed to receive pay for the performance of any religious duty which is not required of the hireling in virtue of a divine ordinance, as this is only accepting a recompense for a certain service, and as the acts above de-scribed are not ordained upon the hireling. it is consequently lawful to receive a recomdectors upon the point are twofold First, the prophet has said, 'Road the Koran, but de not receive any recompense for so doing '; nd he else directed Othman-bin-Abeeyas, that if he were appointed a Mawzin [a cryer to plated he should not take any wages Secondly when an act of piety is performed. it springs colds from the performer (whence regard shad to has competency), and consesequently he a not entitled to any recompense from anotior as in the cases of fisting or prayer A teacher of the Koran, moreover, is incapable of matructing another in it, but by means of qualities existing in his scholar, namely especits and doculty, and therefore undertakes a thing the performance of which does not acpend upon himself, which is consequent's invalid Some of our modern doctors however, hold it lawful to receive wages for teaching the Koran in the present ago bee neo an indifference has taken place with re not to religion, whence if people were to nuthhold from paving a recompense for in struction in the sacred writings, they would in time b disregarded -and decrees pass ir ordingly

"It is not lawful to receive wages for sugging of lamentation, or for any other species of public exhibition, as this is taking a recompense for an act which is of s criminal nature, and acts of that naturo do not entitle to a recompense in virtue of a contract"

RE-MARRIAGE Re-marriage inis take place with the divorcer before or after the completion of the 'iddah, provided only the first or second sentence of divorce has been pronounced but it cannot take place after a three fold divorce until the divorced wife is married to another man and is diversed by him after the second marriage has been consumizated. This is both Sunni and Strah law (Tours Law Lectures)

I wides on morry again at the expirain a ci four months and ten days after the death of her torner bushand. There is no restriction as to ano partial for a widowor

RENTAL Anabic yarah (8,41)

REPENLANCE Arubic taubah Lit "The turning of the he at from sin" (in Nawawis Commentary on Muslem, tol a p 354) It is frequently outputed in the Quranteg let them to Verily fand to he who relenteth

He in morrisful "

Suril xxi 22 Be se wholly turned to ed () to believers and it shall be well with

Surah xxv 71 "Whose hath repented and hath done what is right, he verily it is who turneth to God with a true conversion" [ MOCEAS]

RESIDUARIES Arabic 'asabah (عمية), pl. 'aşabāt. According to Muhammadan law, residuaries in their own right are divided into four classes .

(1) The offspring of the deceased.
(2) The ascendants (such as father, grandfather, &c.)

(3) The offspring of his father, viz. the brothers and their descendants

(4) The offspring of his grandiather (Syed Ameer Ali's Personal Law, p 49) [IX-HERITANOR.

RESIGNATION literal meaning of lalam is a state or condition in which a believer becomes "resigned" to the will of God, a "Muslim" being one who is "resigned." But in the Quran, the grace of resignation is more frequently expressed by the word sabr, "patience," eq Surah it 150 Give good tidings to the patient, who when there falls on them a calumity, say, 'Verily we are God's and verily to Him do we return'"

The word Tustum which the compiler of the Kitabu 't-T'a rifat says means to place one's neck under the commands of God, seems to express the English word "resignation"

It occurs in the Quran, Surah iv 68

"They submit with submission"

The author of the Akhlag-1-Jalak says Taslim is to "acquience in and receive with satisfaction (although, perhaps, repugnant to the inclination) the commands of God, as exemplified in the verse above quoted

Rizu is also a word which expresses to signation, and is defined as being pleased with the mevitable decrees of God, whatever they may be

RESURRECTION Belief in alyaumu 'l-akhir (اليوم الاعر), "the Last Day," is an article of the Muhammadan Faith The terms used in the Quran are—

Youmu 'l Qiyamah, " Day of Standing up'

(Sūrab u 79)

I-Fast, "Day of Separation" Yaumu (Strab lxxvil 14)

Yaumu ? Hisab, "Day of Reckoning"

(Surah xl. 28) Young 'l' Ba's, "Day of Awakening"

(Sürah xxx 56).
Youmu 'd-Din, "Day of Judgment",

(Surab | 8)

Al-Young I-Muhit, "The Encompassing Dey" (Surah zı 85) As-Sa'ah, "The Hour" (Sürah viü 186)

There are very graphic descriptions of the Last Day in the poetical Suraha of the Quran. The five following belong to an early period in Muhammad's mission -

Sarah lxxv

' It needeth not that I swear by the day of the Resurrection, Or that I swear by the self-accusing soul

Thinketh man that we shall not re-umte his bones?

Aye i his very finger tips are we able evenly to replace

But man chooseth to deny what is before

He asketh, 'When this day of Resurrection?'

But when the eye shall be dazzled,

And when the moon shall be darkened, And the sun and the moon shall be together.

On that day man shall ery, 'Where is there a place to flee to?

But in vain-there is no refuge-

With thy Lord on that day shall be the sole asylum

On that day shall man be told of all that he bath done first and last

Yea, a man shall be the eye-witness against himself

And even if he put forth his plea

(Move not thy tongue in baste to follow and master this revelation

For we will see to the collecting and the recital of it,

But when we have recited it, then follow thou the recital

And, verily, afterwards it shall be ours to make it clear to thee )

Avo, but ye love the transitory, And ye neglect the life to come

On that day shall faces beam with light,

Outlooking towards their Loid, And faces on that des shall be dismal,

As if they thought that some great calamity would befall them

Aye, when the soul shall come up into the throat,

And there shall be a cry 'Who hath a charm that can restore him "

And the man feeleth that the time of his departure is come, And when one leg shall be laid over the other, To thy Lord on that day shall he be driven

For he believed not, and he did not pray,

But he called the truth a he and turned his back,

Then, walking with haughty mien, rejoined his people
That Hour is nearer to thee and nearer

It is ever nearer to thee and nearer still Thinketh man that he shall be left supreme?

Was be not a mere embryo?

Then he became thick blood of which God formed him and fashioned him,

And made him twain, male and female Is not He powerful anough to quicken the dead?"

Sürah laxxı 1-19 -

"When the sun shall be folded up And when the stars shall fall, And when the mountains shall be set in motion, And when the she-camels shall be abandened.

And when the wild beasts shall be gathered together.

And when the seas shall boil,

And when souls shall be paired with their bodies,

And when the female child that had been burned abve shall be asked

For what crime she was put to death, And when the leaves of the Book shall be unrolled.

And when the Heaven shall be stripped

And when Hell shall be made to blaze, And when Paraouse shall be brought near. Every soul shall know what it hath produeed.

It needs not that I swear by the stars of retrograde motion,

Which move swiftly and hide themselves sway

And by the night when it cometh darkening OD.

And by the dawn when it brighteneth, That this is the word of an illustrique Messenger "

Sürah lxxxn

"When the Heaven shall cleave asunder. And when the stars shall disperse,

And when the seas shall be commingled, And when the graves shall be turned upside down,

Each soul shall recoguize its earliest and ita latest actions

O man 1 what hath musled thee against the generous Lord, Who hath created thee and moulded thee and shaped thee aright?

In the form which pleased Hun bath He fashioned thee

Even so, but ye treat the Judgment as a lie.

Yet truly there are guardians over you-Illustrious 1 scorders-

Oognizant of your actions

Surely smid delights shall the righteous dwell.

But verily the unpure in Hell fire

Tuey shall be burned at it on the day of doom,

And they shall not be able to hide themselves from it.

Who shall teach thee what the day of doom is?

Once more Who shall teach thee what the day of doom is?

It is a day when one soul shall be powerless for another soul all sovereignty on that day shall be with God."

Sürah laxanır 4-20 --

What! have they no thought that they shall be raised again

For the great day? The day when mankind shall stand before the Lord of the worlds Yes! the register of the worked as in Bijjîn.

And who shall make thee understand what Spilin 16 9

It is a book distinctly written Wos, on that day, to those who treated our signs as hea,

Who treated the day of judgment as a lie! None treat it as a lie, save the transgressor.

the criminal, Who, when our signs are rehearsed to hum. saith, 'Tales of the Ancients !'

Yes, but their own works have got the mastery over their hearts

Yes, they shall be shut out as by a veil from their Lord on that day; Then shall they be burned in Hell-fire

Then shall it be said to them, 'This is what ye desmed a he'

Even so But the register of the righteens ıs in Aliyan

And who shall make thee understand what 'Illiyûn is?

A book distinctly written."

Süran lexeny 1-19 ---

"When the Heaven shall have split asunder And duteously obeyed its Lord And when Earth shall have been stratched out as a plain, And shall have east forth what was in her and become empty,

And duteously obeyed its Lord,

Then verily, O man, who desirest to reach thy Lord, shall thou meet bim.

And he into whose right hand his Book shall be given,

Shall be reckoned with in an easy reckon ing,

And shall turn, rejoicing, to his kindred But he whose Book shall be given him behind his back

Shall invoke destruction But in the fire shall he burn.

For that he lived joyously among his kindred

Without a thought that he should return to God

Yes but his Lord beheld him

It needs not therefore that I swear by the subset reduces,

And by the night and its gatherings, And by the moon when at her full,

That from state to state shall ye be surely carried onward "

The following description belongs to a much later period than the former Surabs already quoted, and occurs in Surah xxii. 1-7, which was given at Al-Madinah not long before Muhammad's death .

"O men (of Makkah) fear your Lord. Verily the Earthquake of the Hour will be a tremendous thing !

"On the day when we shall behold it, every sucking woman shall foreake her sucking babe, and every woman that hath a burden in her womb shall east her burden, and thou shalt see men drunken, yet are they not dranken but it is the mighty chastisement of God 1

"There is a man who, without knewledge, wrangleth about Grd, and followeth every rebellione Satan,

"Concerning whom it is decreed, that he shall enrely beguile and guide into the torment of the Flame, whoever shall take him for his lord.

"O men! if ye doubt as to the resurrection, yet, of a truth, have We orested you of dust, then of the most garms of life, then of clots of blood, then of pieces of flesh shapen and unshapen, that We might give you proofs of our power! And We cause one and or the other et our pleasure, to abide in the womb until the appointed time; then We bring you forth mfants, then permit you to reach your age of strength, and one of you dieth, and another of you liveth on to an age so abject that all his former knowledge is clean forgotten! And thou hast seen the earth dried up and barren but when We send down the rain upon it, it stirreth and swelleth, and groweth every kind of luxuriant herb.

"This, for that God is the Truth, and that it is He who quickeneth the dead, and that He hash power over everything

" And that 'the Hour' will indeed comethere is no doubt of it—and that God will wake up to life those who are in the tombs

Very lengthy accounts of the Day of Resurrection, and of the signs preceding it, are given in all books of tradition, and works on dogmatic theology (See Sahhu 'l-Bukhari, Arabic Ed Kitäbu 'l-Fitan, p 1945, Sahhu 'l-Muslim, Arabic Ed. vol. ii. p 888, Mishkatu 'l-Meşabih, Arabic Ed Kitabu'l-Fitan, Sharhu 7-Muwaqef, p 579)

The following, collected by Mr Sale from various writers, is given, with some alterations, additions, and references

It is the received opmion amongst Muslims of all sects that at the Resurrection the body will be raised and united to its soul, and that one part of the body, namely, the lower pert of the spine, the os sacrum, in Arabic called Ajbu 'g-Zanab, "the root of the tail," will be preserved as a basis of the future edifice (Mishkat, book xxiii ch ix)

This bone, it is eaid, will remain uncorrupted till the last day, as e germ from whence the whole is to be renewed will be effected by a forty days' rain which God will send, and which will cover the earth to the height of twelve enbits, and cause the bodies to sprout forth like plants For this doctrine Muhammad us beholden to the Jews, who say the same things of the bone Las, excepting that what he attributes to a great rain will be effected, according to them, by a dew, impregnating the dust of the (Bereshst rabbuh)

The time of the Resurrection the Muhammadana allow to be a perfect secret to all but God alone, the Angel Gabriel himself acknowledged hie ignorance on this point when Muhammad asked him about it (Mishkat, book i ch. i.) However, they say the approach of that day may be known from certain signs which are to precede it. These signs are distinguished into "the lesser" and " the greater "

The lesser signs (Iskārātu 's-Sā'ah) are sa follows :-

(1) The decay of faith among men.

(2) The advancing of the meanest persons to eminent dignity

(8.) A maid-servant shall become the mother of her mistress (or master); by which is meant either that towards the end of the world men shall be much given to sensuality, or that the Muhammadans shall then take many captives

(4) Tumults and sedrtions
(5) A war with toe Greeks or Romanns (6) Great distress in the world so that a man, when he passeth by another's grave, shall say, "Would to God I were in his place!"

(7) The provinces of al-fraq and Syria shall refuse to pay toeir tribute.

(8) The buildings of al-Medunah or Yearib shall reach to Makkah. (Mashkat, book xxill. ch uL)

The greater-signs ('Alamatu's-Şā'ah) are as follows .

(I) The sun's rising in the west which some have imagined it originally did

(2) The appearance of the Dabbata LArz, or "beast," which shall rise out of the earth, in the temple of Makkah, or on Mount as-Safa This beast will be sixty culate high, and will be a compound of various species, having the head of a bull, the eyes of a hog, the ears of an elephant, the horne of a stag, the neck of an estrich, the breast of a lion, the colour of a tiger, the back of a cat, the tail of a ram, the legs of a camel, and the voice of an ass. She will appear three times m several places, and will bring with her the rod of Mores and the seal of Bolomon, and, being so swift that none can evertake her or secape her, wile with the first strike all the believers on the face, and mark them with the word Mu'min, "behaver," and with the latter will mark the unbelievers on the face likewise with the word kafir, "infidel," that every person may be known for what he really is. The same beast is to demonstrate to speak Arabic [DABBATU 'L ARZ.] (3) War with the Romans or Greeks, and the taking of Constantinople by seventy thousand of the posterity of Isaac, who shall not win that city by force of arms, but the walls shall fall down while they cry out, "There is no deity but God! God is most great!" As they are dividing the speal, news will come to them of the appearance of Anti-christ, whereupon they shall leave all and the vanity of all religious except Islam, and return back.

(4.) The coming of Antichrist, whom the Muhammadana call al-Marika 'à-Dayāl, "the false or lying Christ." He is to be one-eyed, and marked on the forehead with the letters K F R, signifying kafir, " infidel." He will oppear first between al-Iraq and Syria, or, according to others, in the province of Khorasan. He is to ride on a white ass, be followed by severity thousand Jews of Is pahan and continue on earth forty days, of which one will be equal in length to a year, another to a month, another to a week, and the rest will be common days He will lay waste all places, but will not enter Makkah or al-Madinah, which are to be guarded by angels, and at length he will be slain by Jesus, who is to encounter him at the gate of Lud [MASIHU D-DAJJAL.]

(6) The descent of Jesus on earth. He is to descend near the white tower to the cast of Damascus when the people have returned from the taking of Constantinople He is to embrace the Muhammadan religion, marry a wife, get children, kill Antichrist, and at length die, after forty years -oi, according to others, twenty-four years'-continuance on earth, and be buried at Al-Madinah Under him there will be great security and plenty in the world, all hatred and malice being laid aside, when hons and camels, bears and sheep shall live in peace, and a child shall play with serpents unburt. (See Sahihu 'l-Bukhari')

(6) War with the Jews of whom the Muhammadans are to make a produgious slaughter, the very trees and stones discovering such of them as hide themselves, except only the tree called Gharqad, which in the ties of the Jews

(7) The appearance of Gog and Magog, or, as they are called, Ya'yay and Ma'yay These barbanans, having passed the lake of Tiberias, which the vanguard of their vast army will drink dry, will come to Jerusalem, and there greatly dustress Jesus and His companions, till, at His request, God will destroy them, and till the earth with their carcasses, which after some time God will send birds to carry away, at the prayers of Jesus and His followers. Then bows, arrows and quivers the Muslims will burn seven years together, and at last God will send a rain to cleanse the earth, and to make it fertile [GOG AND MAGOG

(8) A smoke which shall fill the whole earth

(9) An eclipse of the moon Muhammad is reported to have said that there would be three eclipses before the last how, one to be seen in the east, another in the west, and the third in Arabia

(10) The returning of the Arabs to the worship of al-Lat and al Uzza, and the rest of their ancient mols, after the decease of every one in whose heart there was faith equal to a grain of mustard seed, none but the very worst of men being left alive. For God, they say, will send a cold odoriforous wind, blowing from Syria, which shall sweep away the souls of the faithful, and the Quran itself, so that men will remain in the grossest ignorance for a hundred years

(11) The discovery of a vast heap of gold and silver by the retreating of the Euphrates, which will be the destruction of many

(12) The demolition of the Karbah in the Makkan temple by the Ethiopians

(13) The speaking of beasts and mammate things

(14) The breaking out of fire in the province of al-Hijar or necording to others, in al Yaman

(15) The appearance of a man of the descendants of Kahtan, who shall drive men before him with his staff

(16) The coming of al-Mahdi, "the director," concerning whom Muhammad prophesied that the world should not have an end till one of his own family should govern the Arabians, whose name should be the same with his own name, and whose father's name should also be the same with his father's name and who shall fill the earth with righteousness. This person the Shi'ahs believe to he now alive, and concealed in some secret place, till the time of his manifestation for they suppose hum to be no other than the last of the twelve Imame, named Muhammad Abu 'l-Qusim, as their prophet was [SHI'AH, MAHDI]

(17) A wind which shall sweep away the souls of all who have but a grain of faith in their hearts, as has been mentioned under the tenth sign. (Mishkat, book xxin ch iv)

These are the greater signs which, accordmy to Muhammadan traditions, are to precede the Resurrection, but still leave the hour of it uncertain, for the immediate sign of its being come will be the first blast of the trumpet, which they believe will be sounded three times. The flist, 'the blast of consternation' at the hearing of which all cleatures in heaven and earth shall he struck with terror, except those whom God shall please to exempt from it. The effects attributed to this first sound of the trumpet are very wonderful, for they say the earth will be sbaken, and not only all buildings, but the very mountains, levelled, that the heavens shall melt, the sun be darkened the stars fall on the death of the angels, who, as some imagine, hold them suspended between heaven and earth, and the sea shall be troubled and dried up, or according to others, turned into flames the ann, moon, and stars being threwn into it, the Quran, to express the greatness of the terror of that day, adds that women who give suck shall abandon the care of their infaute, and even the she camels which have gone ten months with young (a most valuable part of the substance of that nation) shall be ulterly neglected (Qur'an, Sürah lxxxı) A further effect of this blast will be that concourse of beasts mentioned in the Qur'an, though some doubt whether it be to precede the Resurrection or not They who suppose it will precede, think that all kinds of animals, forgetting their respective natural flerceness and timidity, will run together into one place, being terrified by the sound of the trumpet and the sudden shock of neture.

This first blast will be followed by a second, the " blast of examination," when all creatures, both in heaven and earth, shall die or he annihilated, except these which God shall please to exempt from the common fate, and this shall happen in the twinkling of an eye, nst, in an instant, nothing sorveving except God alone, with Paradise and Hell, and the inhabitants of those twe places, and the throne of Glory The last who shall die will be the an gol of death (Malaku'l-Maul) (1 Cor. zv. 26)

Forty years after this will be heard the "blast of resurrection," when the trumpet shall be sounded the third time by Israfil, who, together with Gabriel and Michael, will se previously restored to life, and, standing on the rock of the temple of Jerusalem (a,-Sakhrak), shall at God's command call to-gether all the dry and rotten bones and other dispersed parts of the bodies, and the very hairs, to judgment. This angel having, by the Divine order, set the trampet to his month, and called together all the souls from all parts, will throw them into his trumpet, from whence, on hie giving the last sound, at the command of God, they shall fly forth like bees, and fill the whole space between heaven and earth, and theu repair to their respective bodies, which the opening earth will suffer to arise; and the first who shall so arise, according to a tradition of Muhammad, will be himself. For this the earth will be prepared by the rain above-mentioned, which is to fall continually for forty years, and will resemble the seed of a man, and be supplied from the water under the throne of God which is called hving water, by the efficacy and virtue of which the dead bodies shall spring forth from their graves, as they did in their mother's womb, or as corn spronts forth by common rain, till they become perfect after which breath will be breathed into them, and they will sleep in their sepulchras till they are raised to life at the last trump

As to the length of the Day of Judgment, the Qur'an in one place (Strah xxxii 4) tells us that it will last one thousand years, and in another (Surah lax. 4) fifty thousand reconcile this apparent contradiction, the commentators use several shifts, some saying they know not what measure of timo God intends in those passages, others, that these forms of speaking are figurative, and not to be strictly taken, and were designed only to express the terribleness of that day, it being usual for the Arabs to describe what they dislike as of long continuance, and what they like as the contrary, and others suppose them spoken only in reference to the difficulty of the business of the day, which, if God should commut to any of his creatures, they would not be able to go through it in so many thousand years.

That the resurrection will be general, and extend to all creatures, both angels, genu men, and animals, is the received opinion, and according to the teaching of the Qur'an

(See Surab lxxx)

In the resurroction those who are destined to be partakers of eternal happiness will arise in honour and security, and those who are doomed to misery, in disgrace and under dismal apprehensions. As to mankind, they will be raised perfect in all their parts and members, and in the same state as they came out of their mothers wombs, that is, hare footed, naked, and uncircumcised, which directionstapees, when Muhammad was telling his wife 'Ayishah, she, fearing the rules of modesty might be thereby violated, objected that it would be very indecent for men and women to look upon one another in that condition, but he answered her, that the business of the day would be too weighty and serious to allow them the making use of that liberty

Others, however, allege the authority of their Prophet for a contrary opinion as to their nakedness, and say he asserted that the dead should arise dressed in the same clothes m which they died, although some interpret these words not so much of the entward dress of the body as the inward olohing of the wind, and understand thereby that every person will rise again in the same state as to his faith or infidelity, knowledge or ignorance his good or had works.

Muhammad taught (Mishkat, book xxiii ch. x) that mankind shall be assembled at the last day, and shall be distinguished into three classes The first, those who go on foot the second, those who ride, and the third, those who creep, grovelling with their faces on the ground. The first class is to consist of those believers whose good works have been few, the second of those who are in greater honour with God, and more acceptable to Him, whence 'Ali affirmed that the plous, when they come forth from the sepulohres, shall find ready prepared for them white-winged camels, with saddles of gold, wherein are to be observed some footstops of the doctrine of the ancient Arabians, and the third class will be composed of the infidels whom God shall cause to make then appearance with their faces on the earth, blind, dumb, and deaf

But the ungody will not be thus only distinguished, for seconding to the commentator al-Baizāwi (vol. n p 480), there will be ten sorte of wicked men on whom God shall on that day fix certain discretory marks The first will appear in the form of apes, these are the backbiters. The second in that of swine, these they who have been greedy of filthy incre, and enriched them-selves by public oppression. The third will be brought with their heads revorsed and their feet distorted these are the naurors The fourth will wander about blind, these are unjust judges. The fifth will be deaf dumb, and blind, understanding nothing, these are they who glory in their works. The sixth will graw thour tongues, which will hang down upon their breasts, corrupted blood flowing from their mouths like spittle, so that everybody shall detest them, these are the learned men and doctors, whose actions contradict their sayings actions contradict their sayings. The seventh will have their hands and feet out off, these are they who have injured their neighbours The eighth will be fixed to the trunks of palm-trees or stakes of wood these are the false accusers and informers. The aimth will stuck worse than a corrupted corpse, these are they who have indulged their passions and voluptuous appetites. The tenth will be clothed with garmants daubed with pitch, and these are the proud, the vain-glorious, and the arrogant

In the Traditions, Muhammad 18 related to have said.—

"The first person who shall receive sentence on the Day of Resurrection will be a martyr, who will be brought into the presence of the Almighty then God will make known the benefits which were conferred on him in the world, and the person will be sensible of them and confess them, and God will say, 'What didst then do in grat-tude for them?' He will reply, 'I fought in Thy cause till I was slain. God will say, 'Thou liest, for thou foughtest in order that people might exter thy courage.' Then God will order them to drag him upon his face to bell. The second, a man who shall have obtained knowledge and instructed others, and lead the Qur'an. He will be brought into the presence of God, and will be given to understand the benefits he had received, which he will be sensible of and acknowledge, and God will say, 'What didst thou do in gratitude thereof?' He will reply, 'I learned knowledge and taught others, and I read the Qur'an to please Thee' Then God will say, Thou liest, for thou didst study that people might call thee learned, and thou didst read the Qur'an for the name of the thing' Then God will order him to be dragged upon his fece and precipitated into hell. The third, a man to whom God shall bave given abundant wealth, and he shall be called into the presence of God, and will be reminded of the benefits which he received, and he will acknowledge and confess them, and God will say, What return didst thou in return for them?' He will say, 'I expended my wealth to please thee, in all those ways which Thou hast approved' God will eay, 'Thou heat, for thou didst it that people might extol thy liberality', after which he will be drawn upon his face and thrown into the fire"

As to the place where they are to be assembled to Judgment, the Quran and Traditions agree that it will be on the earth, but in what part of the earth is not agreed. Some say their Prophet mentioned Syits for the place, others, a white and even tract of land without inhabitants or any signs of buildings. Al Ghazali magines it will be a second earth, which he supposes to be of siver and others an earth which has nothing in common with ours, but the name, having it is possible, heard something of the new heavens and new earth, mentioned in Scripture (Rev xxi I), whence the Quran has this expression, "on the day wherem the earth shall be changed into another earth." (Sürah xiv 49)

The end of the Resurrection the Muhammadans declare to be, that they who are so raised may give an account of their actions, and receive the reward thereof. And that not only mankind, but the genu and irrational animals also shall be judged on this great day, when the unharmed cattle shall take vengeance on the horned, till entire satisfaction shall be given to the murred.

tire satisfaction shall be given to the injured.

As to mankind, when they are all assembled together, they will not be immediately brought to judgment, but the angels will keep them in their ranks and order while they attend for that purpose, and this attendance, some say, is to last forty years, others seventy, others three hundred; may, some say no less than fifty thousand years, each of them vouching their Prophet's authority During this space they will stand looking up to heaven, but without receiving any information or orders thence. and are to suffer grievous terments, both the just and the unjust, though with manufest difference. For the limbs of the former, pertionlarly those parts which they used to wash in making the ceromonial ablution be-fore prayer, shall shine gloriously And their sufferings shall be light in comparison, and shall last no longer than the time necessary to say the appointed prayers, but the latter will have their faces obscured with blackness, and disfigured with all the marks of sorrow and deformity What will then occasion not the least of their pain, is a won-derful and incredible sweat, which will even stop their mouths, and in which they will be immersed in various degrees, according to their dements, some to the ankles only and some to the knees, some to the middle, some so high as their mouth, and others as their And this sweat will be provoked not only by that vast concourse of all sorts of oreatures mutually pressing and treading on one another's feet, but by the near and unusual approach of the sun, which will be then no farther from them than the distance of a mile, or (as some translate the word, the signification of which is ambiguous) than the length of a bodkin. So that their skulls will boil like a pot, and they will be all bathed in sweat. From this inconvenience, however, the good will be protected by the shade of God's throne, but the wicked will be so miserably tormented with it, also with hun ger and thirst, and a stifling air, that they will cry out, "Lord, deliver as from this an guish, though thou send us into bell-fire i" What they fable of the extraordmany heat of the sun on this occasion, the Muhammadans certainly borrowed from the Jews, who say that, for the punishment of the wicked in the Last Day, that planet shall be drawn forth from its sheath, in which it is now put up, lest it should destroy all things by its excessive heat

When those who have risen shall have waited the lumited time, the Muhammadans behere God will at length appear to judge them, Muhammad undertaking the office of inter cessor, after it shall have been declined by Adam, Nosh, Abraham, Moses, and Jesus, who shall beg deliverance only for their own souls (Meshkat, book xxiii. ch. xii) this solemn occasion God will come in the clouds, surrounded by angels, and will produce the books wherein the actions of every person are recorded by their guardian angels, and will command the prophets to bear witness against those to whom they have been respectively sent. Then everyone will be examined concerning all his words and actions, uttered and done by him in this life, not as if God needed any information in these respects, but to oblige the person to make public confession and scknowledgment of God's justice. The particulars of which they shall give an account, as Muhammad himself enumerated them, are of their time, how they spent it, of their woulth, by what means they acquired it, and hew they employed it, of their bodies, wherein they exercised them, of their knowledge, what use they made of it. It is said, however, that Muhammad has affirmed that ne less than seventy thousand of his fellowers should be permitted to enter Paradise without any previous examination, which seems to be contradictory to what is said above. To the questions, it is said, each person shall answer, and make his defence in the best manner he can, endeaveuring to exonse himself by casting the blame of his evil deeds on others; so that a dispute shall arise even between the soul and the body, to which of them their guilt ought to be imputed the soul saying, "O Lerd, my body I received from thee, for thou createdst me without a hand to lay hold with, till I came and entered into this body, therefore punish it eternally, but deliver me." The body on the other side will make this apology, "O Lord, thou createdest me like a stock of wood, having neither hand that I could lay hold with, nor foot that I could walk with, till this soul, like a ray of light, entered outo me, and my tongue tegan to speak, my eye to see, and my foot to walk, therefore punish it eternally, but deliver me "

But God will propound to them the fol lowing parable of the blind man and the iame man, which, as well as the precedingdispute, was borrowed by the Muhammadans from the Jews (Gemara, Sanhedr, ch. x1)

A certain king having a pleasant garden, in which were ripe fruits, set two persons to keep it. One of them was blind, and the other lame, the former not being able to see the fruit nor the latter to gather it lame man, however, seeing the fruit, persuaded the blind man to take him upon his shoulders, and by that means he easily gathered the fruit, which they divided be tween them. The lord of the garden coming some time after, and inquiring after bis fruit, each began to excuse himself the blind man said he had no eyes to see with, and the lame man that he had no feet to approach the trees. But the king, erdering the lame man te be set on the blind, passed sentence on and punished them both. And in the same manner will God deal with the body and the soul. As these apologies will not avail on that day, so will it also be in vain for anyone to deny his evil actions, since men and angels and his own members, nay, the very earth itself, will be ready to bear witness against

Though the Muhammadans assign so long a space for the attendance of the resuscitated before their trial, yot they tell us the trial itself will be over in much less time, and, according to an expression of Muhammad, familiar enough to the Arabs, will last no longer than while one may milk an ewe, or than the space between two milkings of a she-camel. Some, explaining those words so frequently used in the Quran, "God will be swift in taking an account," say that he will judge all creatures in the space of half a day, and others that it will be done in less time then the twinkling of an ove

At this examination they also believe that each person will have the hock wherein all the actions of his life are written delivered to him which books the righteeus will receive in their right hand and read with great pleasure and satisfaction, but the ungodly will be obliged to take them against their wills in their left, which will be bound behind their backs, their right hand being tied up to their necks

To show the exact Justice which will be observed on this great day of trial, the next thing they describe is the missin or "balance," wherein all things shall be weighed. They say it will be held by Gabriel, and that it is of so vast a size that its two scales, one of which hangs over Paradise, and the other over hell, are capacious enough to contain both heavon and earth Though some are willing to understand what is said in the Quran concerning this balance allegorically, and only as a figurative representation of God's equity, yet the more ancient and orthodox opinion is that it is to be taken literally. and since words and actions, being mere acoidenta, are not capable of being themselves weighed, they say that the books wherem they are written will be thrown into the scales, and according as those wherein the good or the evil actions are recorded shall preponderate, sentence will be given, those whose balances laden with their good works shall be beavy will be saved, but those whose balances are light will be condemned Nor will anyone have cause to complain that God suffers any good action to pass unre-warded, because the wicked for the good they do have their reward in this life, and therefore can expect no favour in the next

The old Jewish writers make mention as well of the books to be produced at the last lay, wherem men's actions are registered, as of the balance wherein they shall be weighed, and the Scripture itself seems to have given the first nation of both But what the Persian Magi beheve of the balance comes nearest to the Muhammadan opinion held that on the day of judgment two angels, named Mibr and Surush, will stand on the bridge as-Sirst, to examine every person as he passes, that the former, who represents the divine mercy, will hold a balance in his hand, to weigh the actions of men, that according to the report he shall make thereof to God, sentence will be pronounced, and those whose good works are found more ponderous, if they turn the scale but by the weight of a hair, will be permitted to puss forward to Paradise, but those whose good works shall be found light will be by the other angel, who represents God's Justice, precipitated from the bridge into bell.

This examination being past and everyone's works weighed in a just balance, that mutual retaliation will follow, according to which every creature will take vengeance one of another, or have satisfaction made them for the injuries which they have suffered And since there will be no other way of returning like for like, the manner of giving this satisfaction will be by taking away a proportionable part of the good works of him who offered the injury, and adding it to those of him who suffered it Which being done, if the angels (by whose ministry this is to be performed) sai, "Lord we have given to every one his due and there remaineth of this person a good works so much as equalloth the weight of an ant," God will of his mercy cause it to be doubled unto him, that he may be admitted into Paradise But if on the continty his good works be exhausted, and thore remametal works only and there be any who have not vet received satisfaction from him, God will order that an equal weight of their sine be added unto his, that he may be punished for them in their stead, and he will he sent to hell laden with both This will be the method of God's dealing with mankind

As to brutes aftor they shall have likewise taken vengeance of one another, as we have montioned shove. He will command them to be changed into dust, wicked men being reserved to more greevous punishment, so that they al all cry out on bearing this sentence pronounced on the brutes Would to God that we were duet also ! '

As to the genn many Muhammadans arc of opinion that such of them as are true believers will undergo the same fate as the triational animals, and have no other reward than the favour of hoing converted into dust and for this they quote the authority of their Prophet. But this, however, is judged not so very reasonable, since the genii, being capable of putting themselves in the state of believers as well as men, most consequently deserve as it seems, to be rewarded for their faith, as well as to be punished for their intidelity Wherefore some entertain a more favourable opinion, and assign the believing geim a place near the confines of Paradise, where they will enjoy sufficient felicity though they be not admitted into that delightful mansion But the unbelieving genu, it is universally agreed, will be punished eternally and be thrown into hell with the landels of murtal race. It may not be improped to observe that under the denomination of unbelieving gemi the Muhammadans comprehend also the devit and his companions

The trials being over and the assembly dissolved, the Muhemmadans hold that those who are to be admitted into Paradiso will take the right hand way, and those who are desimed to hell-fire will take the left but both of them must first pass the bridge, called in Alabic as-Sirat, which they say is leid over the midst of boil, and described to be fines than a barr and sharpor than the edge of a sword, so that it seems very difficult to concerto how anyone shall be able to stand upon it, for which reason most of the sect of the Mu'tamlitos reject it as a fable though the orthodox think it a sufficient proof of the truth of this article that it was seriously affirmed by him who never asserted a falsehood, meaning their Prophet, who, to add to the difficulty of the passage, has his wise declared that this bridge is beest on each aide with briars and hooked thorns, which wall, however, be no impediment to the good. for they shall pass with wonderful case and swiftness, like lightning, or the wind Muhammad and his Muslims leading the way whereas the wicked, what with the slipperiness and extreme narrowness of the path the entangling of the thorns, and the extinction of the light which directed the former to Paradise, will soon miss their footing, and fall down headlong into hell, which is gaping honeuth them

RETALIATION QISAS ]

Heb IZINA Reubain REUBEN Jacob'- first-born son. Referred to in the Qui an Surah xii 10 "A speaker from amonger them said, 'Slav not Joseph, but throw him into the buttom of the pit some of the travellers may pick him up.

Al Bairawi the commentator, says the name of Josoph's eldest brother was either Yahura or Rubil Josephus gives the name as Roubel and explains it as the "pity of God" (Ant : 19 # 8)

INSPIBATION REVELATION PROPHETS ]

REVENCE QISAS

" Usury " A term RIBA (4) m Muslim law dofined as " an excess according to a legal standard of measurement or weight, in one or two homegeneous articles opposed to each other in a contract of exchange, and in which such excess is stipulated as an obligatory condition on one of the parties without any return "

The word riba appears to have the same menning as the Hebrew 7003 meshec. which included gain, whether from the loan of money or goods, or property of any kind In the Mosaic law, conditions of gain for the loan of money or goods were rigorously prohibited See Exod xxii 25, Lev xxv 16 [DEUPY]

BIBAT (LL) A station or fort on the frontier of an enemy s country, erected for the accommodation of Muslim warriors (Hamilton's Hidaysh, vol n p 357)

Arabic daulah (13,3), RICHES Qur'an lix 7, māl (الم), kasrotu 'l-māl (المرة المال), "Great wealth." Mubammad 14 related to have said, "Whoever desires the world and its riches in a lawful manner in order to withhold himself from begging, or te provide a livelihood for his family, or to be kind to his neighbours, will appear before God in the Last Day with his face as bright as a full moon. But whoever seeks the riches of the world for the sake of ostentation, will appear before God in his anger. (Mushköt, book xxii. oh xxii.) In the Qur'an it is said —

Surah zvili. 44 "Wealth (mal) and children are an adornment of this world, but enduring good works are better with thy Lord as a recompense, and better as a hope."
Surah vui. 28 "Know that your wealth and your children are but a temptation."

In the mird Surah, 12, 18, the possessions of this world are contrasted with those of the world to come in the following language "Seemly unto men is a life of lusts, of women, and children, and hoarded talents of gold and silver, and of horses well-bred, and cattle and tilth -that is the provision for the life of this world, but God, with Kim is the best resort Say, 'But shall we tell you of a better thing than this?' For those who fear are gardens with their Lord, beneath which rivers flow, they shall dwell therein for aye, and pure wives and grace from God , the Lord looks on His servants, who say, Lord, we believe, pardon Thou our sus and keep us from the torment of the fire '-upon the patient, the truthful, the devout, and those who ask for pardon at the dawn."

RIKAZ (كز) Treasures buried in the earth, particularly those treasures which have been burned at some remote period

In the Hidayah, the word rikaz includes kanz, "treasure," or other property buried in the earth, and ma'din, "mines" Such treasures are subject to a zalat of a fifth. (Hamilton's Hidayak, vol 1 p 39)

RING8 Arabic khahm (خاتم), pl. khawatem Silver eignet-rings are lawful, but a gold ring is not allowed (See Sakihu 'l-Bukhari, p 871)

Ibn 'Umar says, " The Prophet took a gold ring and put it on his right hand, but be afterwards threw it away, and took a alver ring, on which was engraved Muhammadun Rasulu 'llah, a.e 'Muhammad the Messenger of God, and he said, 'Let none of you engrave on your ring like mine' And when he wore the ring he used to have the signet under his finger and close to the palm of his hand" 'Ali says the ring was on the little finger of the left hand, and that Muhammad forbade a ring being worn upon the fore or unddle finger

Anas says the Prophet's ring was of silver and on his right hand!

Modern Mashma usually wear a silver ring on the little finger of the right hand, with a signet of cornelian or other stone, upon which is engraved the wearer's name, with the addition of the word 'abdu (apa), "His servant," meaning the servant or wor-shipper of God. This signet-ring is used for signing documents, letters, &c. A little ink is daubed upon it with one of the fingers, and it is pressed upon the paper—the person who uses the ring having first touched the paper with his tongue and moistened the place upon which the impression is to be made. There is no restriction in Muslim law regarding rings for women. They are law regarding rings for women generally of gold, and are worn on the fingers, in the ears, and in the nose

BIQQ (ئى). The servitude of a SIR VO SLAVERY ]

RISALAH (21) Apostleship.
The case of an apostle or prophet [FRI-PHETA

اقيام) RISING UP Arabic quyam (قيام) It is a subject of discussion amongst students of the Traditions, as to whether or not it is incumbent on a Muslim to rise up when a visitor or stranger approaches

Abû Umamah says "The Prophet came out of his house leaning on a stick, and we stood up to meet him, and he said, Do not stand up like the Gentiles who give honour to others '"

Anas says, "There was no one more be loved by the Companions than the Prophet, but when they sawhim they used not to rise, for they knew he disliked it "

Abu Hursirsh says "The Prophet used to sit with us in the mosque and talk, and when he rose up, we also rose, and remained standing till we saw him enter his house"

The general practice amongst Muhammadans is according to the last tradition, but it is held to be very overbearing for a person to require others to rise for him Mu awiyah says that "the Prophet said, He who is pleased at other people rising for him, does but prepare a place for himself is the fire of hell." (Mishkat, book xxii ch iv) [SALUTATION]

Arabic mansak, mansik (مسك), pl manänk The rites and caremonies attending religious worship in general. Qur'an, Surab xxii 35 "To every nation we appointed rates (manual) to men tion the name of God over the brute beasts which he has provided for them

The term massik is more frequently used for a place of sacrifice, while mansal applies to religious observances, but the plural manasik is common to both, and rendered by Professor Pulmer and Mr Rodwell in their translations of the Qur'an, "rtee"

The principal rites of the Muslim religion are the Hay, or Pilgrimage to Makkah, with the ceremonies at the Makkan Temple [HAJJ], the daily ritual of the hturgical prayers [PRAYRE], the marriage and funeral ceremonies and, with the Shi'aha, the cere-monies of the Muharram The sacrifice on the great festival, although primarily part of the Makkan Pilgrimage coremonies, is celebrated in all parts of Islam on the Idu l-Azha, or Feast of Sacrifice. [IDU 'I-AZHA.] The ceremony of Zikr can hardly be said to be one of the rates of erthodox Islam, although it is common in all parts of the Muslim world, it belongs rather to the mystic side of the Muhammadan religion. [SUFI, ZIKE.]

Arabic nahr ( )6), pl RIVER. The word anhār, Heb 📆 nahar bahr, "sea," being also used for a

According to Muhammadan law rivers are of three descriptions:

1 Those which are not the property of any, and of which the waters have not been divided, like the Tigris and the Euphrates The care o' these rivers, being the duty of the State, and the charge of keeping them in order must be defrayed from the public treasury, but these expenses must be disbursed from the funds of tribute and capitation-tax, and not from those of tithe and alms

2 Rivers which are appropriated and divided, and yet at the same time public rivers on which boats and The clearing of such rivers must be done at the expense of the proprietors, although its waters are used for the public benefit

3 Water-courses which are held in pro-porty and divided, and or which no noats call. The keeping of such streams cests entirely with the proprietors

In countries where much of the cultivation of land depends upon irrigation, the right to water, or as it is called in Arabic shirb is a subject of much hitigation and Luptons are devoted to the consideration of the subject n the Hidayah Fatawê-i Alamgiri, Duru'l Mukhtar, and other works on Muslim law

For the Rivers of Piragise see I DEN

RIWAYAH (2013)) Relating the words of another A word med for lath an ordinary narrative and ilso for in authori ts'ive tradition. [TRADITION]

RIYA' (04) 'Hy pocrisy, muletion' Condomned in the Quran 'Hypocrisy, dissi-

Surah ii 266 "O ve who believe! make not your aims void by reprosches and injury has him who pendeth his substance to be seen of thou and believeth not in God, and in the Last Day for the lineness of such an one is that of a rock with a thin soil upon it on which iano falleth, but i aveth it hard " Suitah iv 41, 42 "We have made ready a shameful hastisoment for the unbelievers, and for those who bestow their substance in alms to be seen if men and believe not in

God and in the Last Day '

(رماع) 'RIZĀ 4 legal term, which means sucking mill from the breast of a woman for a certain times. The regiod of fustinge [POSTIBAGE]

(رضوان) RIZWĀN The name of the gardener or keeper of Paradise

ROAD OF GOD Arabic sabilu (سىيل الله) lloh! An expression used in the Qur'an and Traditions for any good act, but especially for engaging in a religious war [SABILL ILAH]

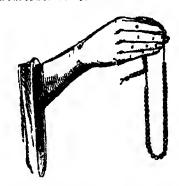

ROMAN [GREEKS]

ROSARY Arabic subhah (Lan) The tosary amongst Muhammadans consists of 100 heads, and is used by them for countof 100 beads, and is used by shear for counting the ninety-nine attributes of God, together with the essential name Allāh [God], or the repetition of the Tashih ("O Holy God!"), the Tahmid ("Praised he God!"), and the Takhir ("God is Great!"), or for the recutal of any act of devotion. It is called in Person and in Hindustoni the Tashih sian and in Hindustani the Tasbik ( سيهم)

The introduction of the rosary into Christendom is ascribed by Pope Pius V, it. a Bull, AD 1596, to Dominic, the founder of the Black Friers (AD 1221), and it is related that Paul of Pherma, an Egyptian ascetic of the fourth century, being ordered to recite 300 prayers, collected as many pebbles which he kept in his bosom, and threw out one by one at every prayer, which shows that the rosary was probably not in use at that perrod

'Abdu l-Haqq, the commentator on the Mishkatu I-Masabia, says that in the early days of Islam the Muhammadana counted God's praises on small pebbles, or on the ingers, from which the Wahhabis maintain that their Prophet did not use a reserv It seems probable that the Muslims borrowed the resary from the Buddhets, and that the Crusaders copied their Muslim opponents and introduced it into Christendoia

ROZAH (رورة) The Persian word for the Atabic saum or fasting [FASTING, RAMAZAN

RUB' (2) A fourth A legal term used in Muhammadan law, eq "a fourth" or the wife's portion when her husband dies without issue

RUH (ty), pl arwah, Heb mruakh, spirit, soul, life" Ibnu 'l-Aşır, suthor of the Nihayah says it is the nervous finid or animal spirit. A vaporous substance, which is the principle of vitality and of sousation, and of voluntary motion

In the Kutabu 't-Tairtfat, it is defined as a suptle body, the source of which is the hollow of the corporeal heart, and which diffuses steelf into all the other parts of the body by means of the pulsing veins and arteries See also Gen ix. 4 "Flesh with the life thereof, which is the blood thereof" Many of the ancients believed the soul to reando in the blood. (See Virgil's Æa., ix. p 349) The breath which a man breather and which pervades the whole body Called in Persian jan ( ) The philosophers say it is the blood, by the exhausting of which life ceases The word is generally rendered in Hindustani as of the feminine gender, but Arabic authors render it as often masculine as feminine (See Lane's Arabic Dictionary, in loco)

In the Qur'an the word is sometimes used for Jesus, who is known as Ruhu 'Uāh (" the Spirit of God"), for the sugel Gabriel, and also for life, grace, soul, and the Spirit of Prophecy (A complete list of texts is given in the article armir)

According to the Kitābu 't-Tarīfāt, p 76, spirit is of three kinds

(1) Ar-Ruhu'l-Insone (الروح الانساني), "the human spirit," by which is understood the mind of man, which distinguishes him from the animal, and which is given to him, by the decree of God, from heaven, of the true es-It is this sence of which we know nothing spirit which is sometimes united to the body and sometimes separated from it, as in sleep or death.

(2) Ar-Ruhn 'l-Harwani (الروح العبواني) "the animal spirit," by which is understood the bie, the seat of which is in the heart, and which moves in the veins with the pulsations of the body

(3) Ar Ruhu 'l-A'zam, (Los) "the exalted spirit" that human spirit which is connected with the existence of God but the essence of which is unknown to all but the Almighty The spiritual faculty in man It is called also al-'Aqlu'l-Awwal, 'the Arst intelligence", al-Haqiqatu l-Muhammadiyah, "the ossence of Muhammad", an-Nafsu l Wähldah "the single essence" of Hagi-gatu 'l-Samāwiyāh, "The original spirit of man first croated by God"

The following terms are also found in Mus-lum works .

Ar-Ruhu 'n Nabatı (الروح المباتى), " the vegetable spirit."

Ar-Ruhu (الروع الطبعي), "the ammal spirit "

Ar-Rühu 'l Ilahi ( the divine spirit."

Ar-Rahu 's-Suffi (الروح السفلي)," the lower spirit," which is said to belong merely to animal life.

Ar-Ruhu 'l 'Ulux (الرح العارى), " the lofty or heavenly spirit."

Ar-Rueu'l-Jari (اروع الجاري), " the travel-ling spirit," or that which leaves the body in resident spirit," which is said never to leave the body, even after death Riche 'l-Ilqa' (outh 53), "the spirit of casting into " Used for Gabriel and the spirit of prophecy [srunt] AR-RÜHU 'L-AMIN ( ( The faithful spirit." Occurs in the Qur'an, Sürah xxvi. 193 "Verily from the Lord of the Worlds hath this book come down, the faithful spirit hath come down with it upon thy heart, that thou mayest become a warner in the clear Arabio tongue." It is supposed to refer to the Angel Gabriel [SPIRIT ]

RUHU 'LLAH (all to) "The Spirit of God" According to Muhammad, it is the special Kalenah, or title of Jesus See the Qur'an

Shratu 'n-Niza' (iv ), 169 "The Messiah, Jesus, the son of Mary, is only an Aposile of God, and His Word, which He conveyed into Mary and a spirit proceeding from Hunself " (Röhun mın-hu)

Suratu 'l-Ambya' (xx1), 91 "Into whom (Mary) we breathod of our spirit"

Sarata 't Pahrim (lav.), 12 "Into whose womb we breathed of our spirit"

It is also used in the Qur'an for Adam, Suratu 's-Saldab (xxxii), 8 Suratu 'l-Hijr (xv), 29 and Sulatu Sad (xxxviii), 72, where it is said that God breathed his spirit into Adam but Adam is never called Ruhu 'Uāk in any Muhammadan book SPIRIT.

RUHU 'L.-QUDUS (روح القدس) "The Holy Spurit' (ht "Spurit of Holmess")
The expression only occurs three times in the Surah ii 81 "We gave Jesus the Son of Mary manifest signs and aided him with the Holy Spirit"

Surah u 254 'Of them is one to whom God spoke (a.e Moses), and we have raised some of them degrees, and we have given Jesus the son or Mary roamfest signs, and strength enen him by the Holy Spirit" Sursh v 109 "When God said 'O Jesus, son of Mary 1 remember my favours towards theo and towards thy mother, when I sided thee with the Holy Spirit, till thou didst speak to men in the craille, and when grown up.

Al-Baizawi says the meaning of the expres seen Ruhu 'l-Quoing is the Angel Gabriel, aithough some understand it to refer to the spirit of Jesus, and others to the Gospel of Jesus, whilst some think it is the Isma 'l A'zam, or "the exaited name of God," whereby Jesus raised the dead. (See Tafaru'l Botzawi, p 65) [SPIRIT HOLY SPIRIT]

RUINOUS BUILDINGS owner of a runous wall in any building is responsible for any acoident occasioned by its fall, after having received due warning and requisition to pull it down, and a person building a crooked wall is responsible for the damage occasioned by its falling But the owner of a rumous house is not responsible for accidents occasioned by the fall of any article from it, unless such article belong to him. (Hidayak, Grady's Ed. pp 664, 665)

RUKH (t)) The name of a mon-strone bird, which is said to have power sufficient to carry off a live elephant (Ghi-

AR-RUKNU 'L-YAMANI (الكن) The The Yamani pillar south corner of the Ka'bah, said to be one of the most ancient parts of the temple [MAS-

JIDU 'L-HARAM ]

Burkhardt says "In the south-east corner of the Ka'bah, or as the Arabs call it, Rokn el Yamany, there is another stone about five feet from the ground, it is one foot and a half in length, and two inches in breadth, placed upright, and of the common Meccah stone. This the people walking round the Ka'bah touch only with the right hand, they do not kiss it" (Captain Burton says he had frequently seen it kissed by men and women.)

Burton remarks "The Rukn el Yaman: 18 a corner facing the south The part alluded to (by Burkhardt) is the wall of the Ka'bah, between the Shami and Yemani angles, distant about three feet from the latter, and near the site of the old western door, long since closed. The stone is darker and redder than the rest of the wall It is called El Mustajab - (or Mustajab min el Zunub, or Mustajab el Dua, " where prayer is granted ") Pilgrims here extend their arms, press their bodies against the building, and heg pardon for their sins" (El Medinah and Mesca vol 11. p 160)

RUKU' (کرج)) A posture in the daily prayers An inclination of the head with the palms of the hands resting upon the kneen [PRAYERS]

THE RUET

RULE OF FAITH The Muhammadan rule of faith is based upon what are called the four foundations of erthedoxy, namely, the Qur'an, or, as it is called, Kalami llah, the Word of God, the Hadis (pl. Ahades), or the traditions of the sayings and practice of Muhammad, Ijmā', or the consent of the Mujtahidun, or learned doctors, and Gryas, or the analogical reasoning of the learned

In studying the Muhammadan religious system, it must be well undorstood that Islam is not simply the religion of the Qur'an, but that all Muhammadans, whether Sunni, Shi'sh, or Wahhabi, receive the Traditions as an authority in matters of faith and practice The Sunn: Muhammadans arrogate to themselves the title of traditionists, but the Shī'ahs also receive the Hadia as binding upon them, although they do do not acknowledge the same collection of traditions as those received by their opponents [QUR'AN, traditions, lima', quas, religion, islam.

The ideal administra-RULERS sion of the Muslim world, as laid down in the Traditions, is that the whole of Islam shall be under the dominion of one Imam or leader, who 18 the Khalifah (dauls), or vicegerent, of the Propheton earth. The rulers of provinces under this Imam are called Amer () (pl Umara) The Eastern titles of Sultan and Shah are not established in the Muhammadan religion. The word Multh, Heb Melekh, occurs in the Qur'an for a "king," and is used for King Saul (Surah ii 248) The word is still ratemed in Asia for the chiefs of villages

In the Qui in (Sürsh iv 62), believers are enjoined to "obey the Apostle and those in authority," but the chief injunctions are found in the Traditions

In the Mishkatu 'l-Manabih, book xvi ch 1, the following sayings of Muhammad reparding rulers are recorded -

Whoever obeys me obeys God, and whoever disobeys me disobeys God. Whoever ohevs the Amii obeys me An Imam is nothing but a shield to fight behind, by which calimities are avoided, and if he orders you to abstain from that which is unlawful, he will have great regard, but if he enjoins that which God has forbidden, he will bear the punishment of his own acts."

"If God appoints as your Amir s man who is a slave, with his ears and nose cut off, and who puts people to death according to God's book then you must listen and obey him in all things

"If a negro slave is appointed to rule over you, you must listen to him and obey him, even though his head be like a dried grape

"It is indispensable for every Muslim to listen to and approve the orders of the Imam, whether he likes or dislikes, so long as he is not ordered to sin and act contrary to law When he is ordered to sin, he must neither attend to it nor obey it "

"There is no obedience due to sinful commands, nor to any order but what is liwful"

"He who shall see a thing in his ruler which he dislikes, let him be patient, for verily there is not one who shall separate a body of Mushma the breadth of a span, and he dies, but he dies like the people of igno ranca."

"The best Imams are those you love, and those who love you, and those who pray for compassion on you, and you on them, and the worst of limms are those you hate, and those who hate you; and those whom you curse, and who curse you." Auf said "O Prophet of God! when they are our enemies and we theirs, may we not fight against them?" He said. "No. so long as they keep on foot the prayers amongst you." This he repeated "Beware, he who shall be constituted your ruler, see if he does anything in disobedience to God, and if he does, hold it in displeasure, but do not withdraw yourselves from his obedience"

"There will be Amirs among you, some of whose actions you will find conformable to law, and some contrary thereto, then when anyone who shall say to their faces, 'These acts are contrary to law,' verily he shall be pure, and he whe has known their actions to be bad, and has not told them so to their faces, has certainly not ramamed free from responsibility, and he who has seen a bad act and obeyed it, is their companion in it." The Companions said, "May we not fight them?" The Prophet said, "No, so long as they perform prayers."

"He who is disobedient to the Imain will come before God on the Day of Resurrection without a proof of his faith, and he who dies without having obeyed the Imam, dies as the people of ignorance

"Propheta were the governors of the children of Israel, and when one died, another supplied his place, and verily there is no prophet after me, and the time is near when there will be after me a great many Khalifahs" The Companions said, "Then-what for you order us?" The Prophet said, "Obey the Khalifah, and give him his due, for verily God will ask about the duty of the subject"

"When two Khalifahs have been set up, put the last of thom to death, and preserve the other, because the second is a rebel"

"Whoever wishes to make divisions amongst my people, kill with a sword."

"He who acknowledges an Imani must obey him as far as in his power, and if snother pretender comes, kill him "

"Verily the time is near that you will be ambitious of ruling, and it is at hand that this love of rule will be a cause of sorrow at the Resurrection, although the possession of it appears pleasant, and its departure unpleasant."

"That is the best of men who dislikes power "

"Beware! you are all guardians of the subject, and you will all be asked about your obedience. The Imam is the guardian of the subject, and he will be asked respecting this. A man is as a shepherd to his own family, and will be asked how they behaved, and about his conduct to them, and a wife is a guardian to her husband's house and children and will be interrrogated about them, and a slave is a shepherd to his master's property, and will be asked about it, whether he took good care of it or net."

"There is no Amir who oppresses the subject and diss, but God forbids Paradise to him"

"Verily the very worst of Amirs are those who oppress the subject

"O God! he who shall be ruler over my people and shall threw them into misery, O God! cast him into misery, and he who shall be chief of my people and be kind to them, then be kind to him."

"Verily, just princes will be upon spleudid puipits on the right hand of God, and both God's hands are right "

"God never sent any Prophet, nor ever made any Khalifah, but had twe countellors with him, one of them directing lawful deeds (that is, a good angel), and the other am (that is, the devil) He is guarded from an whom God has guarded" [KHALIFAH.]

AR-RUM (الروم) The Arabic form of the Latin Roma, or Romanus The ancient Byzantine or Eastern Roman Empire Still used in Eastern countries as a name for the Turkish Empire.

The title of the xxxth bursh of the Quran, which opens with the word "The Greeks are overcome in the highest parts of the land, but after being overcome they shall overcome in a few years" [GREEKS]

RUQAIYAH (خية) A daughter of Muhammad by his wife Khadijah She was married to 'Utbah, the son of Abū Lahab, but being divorced by her husband, she was mar ied to 'Usman, the third Khalifah

RUQBĀ (رتىي) Let "Waiting" Giving a thing on condition that if the donor die before the receiver it shall become the property of the receiver and his heirs, but if the receiver die first, the property given chall return to the donor. It is forbidden in Mushim law because it exposes each of the parties to the temptation of wishing for the other's death

BUQYAH (﴿ ) "Enchanting"
The use of spells The word used in the Hadis for exorcism and incantation. [EXORCOSM.]

RU'YA' (**\)) "A dream, a vision. A term used in the Qur'an for the visions of the Prophets. It occurs five tumes Once for the vision of Joseph (Sürsh xii. 5), twice for the dream of the Egyptian king (Sürsh v 48), once for the vision of Abraham (Sürsh xxxvii 105), once for Muhammad's vision (Sürsh xvii 62.) [DREAMS]

(مواع) or ŞŪWĀ' (ماع) 'ĀŞĀ certain measure used for measuring corn, and upon which depend the decisions of Muslims relating to measures of capacity It occurs in the Qur'an, Surah xii 72, for the druking-oup placed by Joseph in his brother's pack

The compiler of the Taju 't-'Arus, says that according to five different readers of the Qur'an, it is given suwa in that verse, but in the majority of texts it is sa

The Qamus explains suwa as a certain vessel from which one drinks, and sa a measure of capacity Its invariable measure being, according to ancient authorities, four times the quantity of corn that fills two hands of a man of moderate size.

Al-Baixawi records, besides suwas and sa.

the reading saw and suwagh.

SABA' (--+1) (1) A tribe of Yaman, whose dwelling-places are called Ma'rib, montioned in the xxxivili Surah of the Qur in (entitled the Süratu Saba'), verse

"A sign there was to Saba' in their dwelling places -- two gardens, the one on the right hand and the other on the left - Est ye of your Lord's supplies, and give thanks to him Goodly is the country, and gracious is the Lord ! '

"But they turned aside so we sent upon them the flood of Iram, and we changed them their gardens into two gardens of bifter fruit and tamarisk and some tew jujube trees.

Such was our retribution on them for their ingratitudo "

M Caussin de Perceval, Hist des Arabis, voi 111., as well as M de Sacy, fix this event in the second century of the Christian era

(2) Also the name of a province referred to in the Qur'an, Surah xxvii 21, where it seems to be identical with the Shebs of the Bible, or the country of the Queen of Sheba

"Nor tarried it (the lapwing) long ere it came and said, 'I have gained the knowledge that thou knowest not, and with sure tidings have I come to thee from Saba'

"'I found a woman reigning over them, gifted with everything, and she hath a splendid throne.

"And I found her and her people worshipping the sun instead of God, and Satan hath made their works fair seeming to them, so that he hath turned them from the Way wherefore they are not guided, "To the worship of God, who bringeth to light the secret things of heaven and earth, and knoweth what men conceal and what they manufeat

"God there is no god but He! the lord of the glorious throne!

For a discussion of the identity of the Saba of Alabia with the Sheba of the Bible refer to the word Sheba in Smith's Dictionary of the Bible.

(سيعة احرب) SAB'ATU-AHRUF

SEVEN DIALECTS.

SABA'U 'L-MASÄNI (سبع المثانى) Lit "The Seven Repetitions." A title given to the Introductory Chapter of the Qur'an by Muhammad himself (Mishkat, book vin ch. 1) There are three reasons ussigned for this title -

(1) Because it is a chapter of seven verses, which is said to have been revealed twice over

(2) Bocause it contains seven words twice repeated, namely, Allah, God , Rahman, Compussionate, Rahim, Mercuful, Iyaka, Thee and to Thee, Sirat, Way, Alashim, to whom and with whom, Chair, Not and Li, Not.

(3) Because the seven vorses are generally recited twice during an ordinary prayer (See Majma'u 'l Bihar, in loco, and Abdu 'l-Haqq)

SABBATH The term used in the Qur'an for the Jowish Sabbath is Sabt ( ,,), a corruption of the Hebrew אבע Shabbath.

It occurs five times in the Quran

Surah n. 61 "Ye know, too, those of you who transgressed on the Sabbath, and to whom We (God) said, Become sconted apes "

Small iv 50 "Or curse you as We (God)

cursed the Sabbath breakers

Surah 1: 153 "We (God) said to them (Israel), Break not the Sabbath ""

Sarah vii 168 "And ask them (the Jews) about the city that stood by the son when its inhabitante broke the Sabbath, when their fish came to them sppearing openly on their Sabbath-day, but not to them on the day when they kept no Sabbath."

Sürah xvi 125 "The sabbath was only ordained for those who differed about it

In explanation of those verses, the com-mentator, al-Barpāwi relates the following traditions Moses gave orders for the observance of the Day of Rest on Friday, but the Jews would not obey, and declared that they would observe Saturday, as it was on that day that God rested from creation so it came to pass that "the Sabbath was ordained for those who differed about it" But in the time of King David, certain people began to break the Sabbath by fishing in the Rod Sea near the town of Ailah (Elath), and as a punishment they were turned into apes.

For an account of the Muhammadan Sabbath, see FRIDAY

Arabic Sabi' (مانيء), SABEANS pl. Sabrun. Probably from the Hebrew NIX trābā, "a host" Gen il. 1, te "Those who worship the hosts of heaven." According to some Arabic writers, the Sabi'an were a certain sect of unbelievers who worshipped the stars secretly, and openly professed to be Christians According to others, they are of the religion of Sabi', the son of Seth, the son of Adam whilst others say their religion resembled that of the Christians, except that their gibiak was towards the south, from whence the wind blows In the Qamus it is said they were of the religion of Noah. The word sāði? also means one who has departed from one religion to another religion, and the Arabs used to call the Prophet as Sabi', because he departed from the religion of the Quraish to al-Islam (See Lane's Dict in loco ) Al-Baizāwi says some assert they were worshippers of angels, others that they were the worshippers of the stars

They are mentioned three times in the Qur'an, and from the following verses it would appear that Muhammad regarded them as believers in the true God.

Sürah n 50 "They who believe and they who are Jews, and the Christians and the Saheans—whoever believeth in God and the Last Day, and doeth that which is right, shall have their reward with their Lord"

Surah v 73 "They who believe, and the Jews and the Sabeuns, and the Christians—whoever of them believeth in God, and in the Last Day, and deeth what is right, on thom shall no fear come, neither shall they be put to grief"

Sursh xxii 17 "They who believe, and the Jews, and the Sabeans, and the Christians, and the Magians, and those who join other gods with God, verily God small decide between them on the Day of Resurrection"

SABI' (مابيء) [HABARANS]

SABILU 'LLAH (منهل الله) "The road of God" A term used for religious war fare and other meritorious deeds, e.g. Qur'an, Sürah ii. —

Verse 149 "And say not of those who are slam in the road of God that they are dend, but rather that they are living

Verse 263 "Those who expend their wealth in the road of God" [JHAD]

SABT ( SABBATH ]

SACRAMENTS, CHRISTIAN [BUCHARIST, BAPTISM]

SACRIFICE There are six words used in the Muhammadau religion to express the idea of sacrifice.

(1) gabh, Hebrew [7] zebach Liko the Hebrew word (Gen xxxx. 54) the Arabic is need generally for slaughtering animals, whether on the Great Festival of Sacrifice ['IDU'E-ARHA], or at ordinary times, for food.

In the Canus, the word zabi is defined "to split or pierce, to cut the throat of any creature" In the Quran, the word is used for the slaughtering of the heiler by Meses (Sūrah in 63), for the slaying of the sons of Israel by Pharach (Surah in 46), for sacrificing to idols (Sūrah v 4), and for the intention of Abraham to sacrifice his son (Sūrah xxxvii 101).

(2) who qurban, Hebrew hope korban (Lev 11 14), Let "Approaching near" It occurs twice in the Quran, for the sacrifice to be devoured by fire from heaven, which the Jews demanded of Muhammad (Sürah iii. 179), and for the offering of the sons of Adam (Sürah v 30). It is a word frequently employed in Islam to express the ordinary sacrifice, and the great festival is called in Persia the 'Id-1-Qurban, or "Feast of Sacrifice"

(8) is naker Let "To injure the jugular vein" Used for stabling the breast of a camel, as in sacrifice, hence the sacrifice itself. It occurs once in the Qur'an, Sürah evin 1, 2 'Verily we have given thee al-Kaugur, so pray to thy Lord and sacrifice," which al Baisawi says means to sacrifice a camel the most costly victim of the Arabians. The 'Idu L-Azhā is called the Yaumu n-Nahr [1011' L AZHA]

(4) and uzhyah A word which does not occur in the Quran, but in the Traditions it is the subject of a Chapter in Micheatu l-Muşabih (book in the Xlix). According to the Qanais, it is derived from zahip, zuhā, a word which expresses that time of the day when the sun has risen to a considerable height, about 10 Am (Salātu z-Zuhā, being a voluntary prayer at that hour) Uzhiyah is therefore the sacrifice offered about 10 o'clock on the day of the Great Festival.

(5) Mady, or, according to another reading, Hadi. Occurs four times in the Qur'an, Sürahs ii 198, v 2 96, 98, for offering of an animal for sacrifice sont to the temple at Makkah, when the pilgrim is not able to reach in time. The Qamus defines it as that 'which is presented." Al-Bairawi form of Hadyah and Hadi as that of Hadiyah. The latter occurs in the Qur'an, Sürah xxvii S5, for an offering or gift, and seems to have the same meaning as the Hebrow muchah, which is used in the Old Testament for a gift or tribute (Gen iv 8), and also for the unbloody sacriboe or "meat offering" (Lev ii. 1)

(6) state mansat Occurs in the Qur'an, Sürah xxii 35 "We have appointed to overy nation a rite (mansak)" Sürah ii 122 "Show us our rites (mansak) also verse 196 Al-Baisāwī (Tafsīr, p. 91), to the first passage, says the word means a place of devotion, or a sherifice which draws a man near to God, and mentions another reading, mansak, a place of worship, of which mansak is likewise the plural. The word, as quoted above, as well as the plural form, is translated by the late Professor Palmer "rites" [BITES.]

II. There are only two occasions upon which Muhammadans sacrifice, namely, on the Great Festival held on the 10th day of Zu T-

Hijah Phou L-Azha] and on the birth of a child [AQQAH]

(1) The great sacrifice recognised by the Muslim faith is that on the Great Festival, called the 'Ida' 'I-Azha, or "Feast of Sacri-This sacrifice is not only offered by the pilgrims at Makkah, but in all parts of Islam, upon the day of sacrifice In the tirst place, this sacrifice is said to have been esta-blished in commemoration of Abraham having consented to sacrifice his son (most Muslims cay it was Ishmael), as recorded in the Quran, when it is said God "ransomed his (Abraham's) son with a costly victim " (Sürah xxxvi 107) but Shaikh 'Abdu'l Haqq in his commentery on the Mishkat also azys that al-Uzhiyak "the sacrifice," is that which at the special time (i.e on the festival) is slaughtered with the object of obtaining nearness to God

(2) The teaching of the Qur'an on the subject of sacrifice is conveyed in the following varses (Sûrah xxii 37) -

"The bulky (camels) we made for yor one of the symbols of God (Sha'ā'ur 'llāh'), therein have ve good. So mention the name of 110d over them as they stand in a row (for sacilfire), and when they fall down (dend), eat of them and feed the easily contented and him who begs Thus have we subjected them to you haply ye may give thanks Their flesh will never reach to God, nor yet their blood, but the piety from you will reach Him "

Al Baizawi on this verse says, "It, the flesh of the sacrifice, does not reach unto God, nor its blood, but the picty (tiqua) that is the sincerity and intention of your heart" (Tofanu'l-Barzāu:, vol ii p 52)
(3) In the Traditions (Mishkāt, book iv ch

Lix ) we have the following .

Anas says "The prophet sacrificed two rams, one was black, and the other was white, and he put his foot on then sides as he killed them, and cried out, Bi-smi 'llahı Allahı akbar! In the name of God! God is most great!"

'Ayıshah says "The Prophet ordered a ram with horns to be brought to him and one that should walk in blackness, sleep in blackness, and look in blackness" (by which he meant with black logs black breast and belly, and black eves), "and he said 'O 'Ayıshah, give me a knife and sharpen it!' And I did so Then the Prophst took hold of the ram and threw him on his side and slew it. And when he was killing it he said 'In the name of God! O God accept this from Muhammad, and from his children and from his tribe!' Afterwards he gave to the people their morning meal from the elegihtered Jabir says "The Prophet sacrificed two rams on the day of the Festival of Sacrifice which were black or white, and had horns, and were castrated, and when he turned their heads towards the Qiblah, he said, 'Verily I have turned my face to Hun who brought the heavens and the earth into existence from nothing, according to the religion of Abraham, and I am not of the polytheista Verily my prayers, my worshippung my life, and my death, are for God, the Lord of the universe, who hath no partner, and I have been ordered to believe in one God and to abandon associating any other god with Him, and I am one of the Mus-lims O God! this sacrifice is of Thee, and for Theo, accept it then from Muhammad and his people!' And he added, 'In the name of God! the Great God!' and then killed them

'Ali said "The Prophet has ordered me to see that there be no blemish in the animal to be sacrificed, and not to sacrifice one with the ears cut, sither at the top or the bottom, or split lengthways, or with holes made in them The Prophet prohibited sacrificing a rain with broken horns, or sht cars

Avishah relates that the Prophet said " lan hath not done anything, on the day of sacrifice more pleasing to God than spilling blood, for verily the animal sacrificed will come on the Day of Resurrection, with its horns, its hair, its hoofs, and will make the scales of his actions heavy, and verily its blood reacheth the acceptance of God before it falleth upon the ground, therefore be

Zaid the Argam relates "The Companions said, 'O messenger of God! what are these sacrinces, and whence is their origin?' He said, 'These sacrifices are conformable to the laws of your father Abraham' They and 'O Prophet! what are our rewards ibertfrom?' He said, 'There is a reward annexed to every hair' The Companions then said, 'O Prophet' what are the rewards from the sacrifices of camels and sheep, that have wool. He said, 'There is a good reward also for every hair of their wool."

(4) The following is the teaching of the Hidayah regarding the nature and conditions of the sacrifice .

It is the duty of every free Muslim arrived at the age of maturity to offer a sacrifice, on the 'Idn 7-Azhā, or "Festival of the Sacrifice," p ovided he be then possessed of a Nisab (a c sufficient property), and be not a traveller This is the opinion of Abu Hanifah, Muhammad, Zufar, and Hasan, and likewise of Aba Yuauf, according to one tradition. According to another tradition, and also according to ash-Shan'i, sacrifice is not an indispensable duty, but only laudable At-Tahawi reports that, in the opinion of Abu Hanifah, it is indispensable whilst the disciples hold it to be in a strong degree laudable The offering of a sacrifice is incumbent on a man on account of himself, and on account of his infant child. This is the opinion of Ahn Ravifah in one tradition In another he has said that it is not membent on a man to offer a sacrifice fer his child In fact according to Abu Hauifah and Abū Yūsuf, a father or guardian is to offer a sacrifice at the expense of the child (when he is possessed of property), eating what parts of it are estable, and selling the remaining parts that are valuable in their substance, such as the skin, &c Muhammad, Zufar, and ash-Shanfi have said that a father is to sacrifice on account of his child at his own expense, and not at that of the child The sacrifice established for one person is a goat, and that for seven, a cow or a came! If a cow be sacrificed for any number of people fewer than seven, it is lawful, but it is otherwise if sacrificed on account of eight. If for a party of seven people the contribution of any one of them should be less than a seventh share, the sacrifice is not valid on the part of any one of them If a camel that is jointly and in an equal degree the property of two men should be sacrificed by them on their own account, it is lawful, and in this case they must divide the fesh by weight, as fish is an article of weight If, on the contrary, they distribute it from conjectural estimation, it is not lawful, unless they add to each share of the fiesh part of the head, neck, and joints If a person purchase a cow, with an intent to sacrifice it on his own account, and he afterwards admit six others to join with him in the sacrifice, it is lawful It is, however, most advisable that he associate with the others at the time of purchase, 12 order that the sacrifice may be valid in the opinion of all our doctors, as otherwise there is a difference of opinion. It is related from Abū Hamifah that it is abominable to admit others to share in a sacrifice after purchasing the ammal, for, as the purchase was made with a view to devotion, the sale of it is therefore an abomination

The time of offering the sacrifico is on the morning of the day of the festival, but it is not lawful for the inhabitants of a city to begin the sacrifice until their Imam shall have finished the stated prayers for the day Villagers, however, may begin after break of day The place, in fact, must regulate the time Thus, where the place of celebration is in the country, and the performers of it reside in the city, it is lawful to begin in the morning, but if otherwise it must be deferred until the stated prayers be ended victim be slain after the prayers of the Mosque, and prior to those offered at the place of sacrifice [IDGAH], it is lawful, as is likewise the reverse of this Sacrifice is lawful during three days—that is, on the day of the festival, and on the two ensuing days. Ash-Shāfi'i is of opinion that it is lawful on the three ensuing days. The saonfice of the day of the festival is far superior to any of the others It is also lawful to sacrifice on the nights of those days, although it be considered as undesirable Moreover, the offering of sacrifices on these days is more laudable than the custom of omitting them, and afterwards bestowing an adequate sum of money upon the poor If a person neglect the performance of a sacrifice during the stated days, and have previously deter-mined upon the offering of any particular goat, for instance, or, being poor, have pur-chased a goat for that purpose—in either of these cases it is moumbent on him to bestow it alive in charity But if he be rich, it is in that case incumbent on him to bestow m charity a sum adequate to the price, whether he have purchased a goat with an intent to sacrifice it or not It is not lawful to seemfice snimals that are blemished, such as those that are blind, or lame, or so lean as to have no marrow in their bones, or having a great part of their ears or tail out off however, as have a great part of their ears or tail remaining may lawfully be sacrificed. Concerning the determination of a great part of any member, there are, indeed, various opinions reported from Abu Hanifah some animals he has determined it to be the third, in others more than the third, and in others again, only the fourth. In the opinion of the two disciples, if more than the half should remain, the sacrifice is valid, and this opi non has been adopted by the learned Abū 'l-Lais If an animal have lost the third of its tail, or the third of its ears or eye-aight, it may be lawfully sacrificed, but if, in either of these cases, it should have lost more than a third, the offering of it is not lawful rule which our doctors have laid down to discover in what degree the eye sight is impaired is as follows The animal must first be deprived of its food for a day or two that it may be rendered hungry, and having then covered the eye that is impaired, food must be gradually brought towards it from a distance, until it indicate by some emotion that it has discovered it. Having marked the particular spot at which it observed the food, and uncovered the weak eye, the perfect eye must then be bound, and the same process carried on, until it indicate that it has observed it with the defective eye If, then, the particular distance from those parts to where the animal stood be measured, it may be known, from the proport on they bear to each othor, in what degree the sight is im paired

It is not lawful to offer a sacrifice of any animal except a camel, a cow, or a goat, for it is not recorded that the Prophet, or any of his companions, ever sacrificed others. Buffaloes, however, are lawful as being of the species of a cow. Every snimal of a mixed breed, moreover, is considered as of the same species with the mother.

If a Christian or any person whose object is the flesh, and not the sacrifice, be a sharer with six others, the sacrifice is not lawful on the part of any It is lawful for a person who offers a sacrifice either to eat the flesh or to bestow it on whomsoever he pleases, whether rich or poor, and he may also lay it up in store. It is most advisable that the third part of the flesh of a sacrifice be bestowed in charity It is not lawful to give a part of the sacrifice in payment to the butcher. It is abominable to take the wool of the victim and sell it before the eacrifice be performed, but not after the sacrifico In the same manner, it is shominable to milk the victuo and seil the milk. It is most advisable that the person who offers the sacrifice should himself perform it, provided he be well acquainted with the method, but if he should not be expert at it, it is then edvisable that he take the assistance of another, and be present at the operation It is abominable to commit the slaving of the victim to a Kitabi (a Jew or Christian) If, however, a person order a Kitābī to slay his victim, it is lawful. It is otherwise where a person orders a M. an, or worshipper of fire, to slay his victim, for this is inadmissible (Hamilton's Hidayah, vol 1v 76)

(5) From the foregoing references to the Quran, the Traditions, Abdu 'l-Haqq, al-Baixwi, it will appear that whilst the Mn hammadan sacrifice is (1) Commemorative, having been instituted in commemoration of Abraham's willingness to offer his sou; (2) Self Dedicatory, as expressed in the Tra ditional sayings of Muhammad and (8) Eucharistic, according to the verse in the Qur'an already quoted, "Haply ye may give thanks", that the expratory character of the sacrifice is not clearly established, for there is no offering for, or acknowledgment of, sin, connected with the institution. Muham madanism, true to its anti-Ohristian character, ignores the doctrine that "without shedding of blood there is no remission" (Lev xvii 11, Heb ax 22)

(6) At the birth of a chrid it is incumbent upon the Muslim father to sacrifice a goat (one for a girl and two for a hoy) at the ceremony called 'Aquah, which is celebrated on either the seventh, fourteenth, twenty-first, twenty-eighth, or thirty fifth day after birth, when the hair is first shaved and its weight in silver given to the poor 'Abdu 'l-Haqq says 'Aqiqah comes from 'aqq, "to and refers to cutting the throat of the ammal. Others refer it to cutting the hair The idea of the sacrifice on this occasion is dedicatory and eucharistic Buraidah save "We used, in the time of ignorance, when children were born to us, to slay sheep and rub the child's head with the blood, but when Islam came we sacrificed a sheep on the seventh day, and shaved the child's head and rubbed saffron on it"

The fourteenth letter (ماد) ŞĀD of the Arabic alphabet The title of the xxxvinth Sürah of the Qur'an, which begins with the letter

SADAQAH (مدنة),pl sadaqāt From sadq, "to be righteous, truthful" Hebrew 1 teedek. A term used in the Quran for "Almsgiving," eg Sürsh ii. 265 "Kind speech and pardon are better than alms-giving (sadagah) followed by annoyance, for God is rich and clement"

Sadaqatu 'l-Fitr is the alms given on the lesser Festival, called the 'Idu 'l-Fitr, which consists of half a sa of wheat, flour, or fruits, or one sa of barley. This should be distributed to the poor before the prayers of the festival are said (Hidayah vol i p 62)

[IDT 'L-FITE]

SA'D IBN ABİ WAQQAS ( Called also Said thu ابن ابی بنامی) Called also Said ibn Malik ibn Wahb az Zubri He was the seventh person who embraced Islam, and was present with Muhammad in all his battles He died at 'Atiq a. 855, at the age of 79, and was buried at al-Madinah

SA'D IBN MU'AZ (محد بن معاز).
The chief of the Banu Aus He embraced Islām at al Madinah after the first pledge at Agabah He died of wounds received at the battle of the Ditch, A.R 5 (See Muir's Lafe of Mahomet, vol in 282)

SA'D IBN 'UBADAH (U) One of the Companions and (عبادة an Ansarī of great reputation. He carried the standard at the conquest of Makkah. Dilan 15

SADR (مدر), or Sadru 's-Sudur The chief judge Under Muhammadan rule, he was especially charged with the settlemel. f religious grants and the appointment of law officers

SADŪM (مدوم) (BODOM j

As-SAFĀ (المغا) A hill near Makkah One of the sacred pinces visited by the pilgrims during the Hajj [PILGRIMAGE ]

Lit "The void مفر) SAFAR (مفر) month " The second month of the Muhammadan year so called because in it the ancient Arabs went forth on their predatory expeditions and left their houses sift or empty or, according to some, because when it was first named it occurred in the autumu, when the leaves of the trees were suffr, or yellow (Chiyasu 'l Lughah, in loco') MONTHS

SAFF (فعر) An even row or line of things

(1) A term used for a row of persons standing up for prayers

(2) As-Saff, the title of the Lxith Sürah of the Qui an in the 6th verse of which the word occurs for the close unbroken line of

As-SAFFAT (wold), pl. of saffah, "Ranged in ranks "The title of the axxviith Sursh of the Quran, in the first verse of which the angels are mentioned as being ranged in ranks

SAFIYAH (مفية) One of the wives of Muhammad Sho was the widow of Kinanah, the Jewish chief of Khaibar, who was cruelly put to death In after years it 18 said Muhammad wished to divorce ber, but she begged to continue his wife, and re quested that her turn might be given to 'Ayishah, as she wished to be one of the Prophst's " puro wives ' in Paradise.

SAFIYU 'LLAH (all a) Lit "The Chosen of God" A title given in the Traditions to Adam the father of mankind

SAFURA' (هکراه) The Zipporah of the Rible The wife of Moses According to Muslim Lexicons, she was the daughter of Shu'aib [MOSES.]

SAFWAN IBN UMAIYAH (معران بن اميل). A Ṣahābī of reputation. A native of Makkah. He was slain the same day as the Khalifah 'Uşmān

SAHĀBI (...), fem Sahābīyah "An associate" One of the Companions of Muhammad The number of persons entitled to this distinction at the time of Muhammad's death is said to have been 144,000, the number including all persons who had ever served as followers of the Prophet, and who had actually seen him The general opinion being that one who ombraced Islām, saw the Prophet and accompanied him, oven for a short time, is a $uāābi, or "associate" [ASHAE.]

SÄHIBU 'N-NISAB (ماحب الماب). A legal term for one possessed of a cortain estate upon which zakāt, or "legal alms," must be paid. Also for one who has sufficient means to enable him to offer the sacrifice on the great festival, or to make the pligrimage to Makkah. The possessor of 200 dirhems, or five camela, is held to be a Sāhibu 'n Nisāb, as regards zakat

SAHIBU 'Z-ZAMAN (احاحب الرحال) 'Lord of the Age" A title given by the Shi'ahs to the Imam Mahdi (Ghiyagu 'Lughah, in loco)

SAHIFAH (**A.**), pl suhuf Lit
"A small book or pamphlet' A term gene rally used for the one hundred portions of scripture said to have been given to Adam beth, Euoch, and Abraham, although it is used in the Quran (Sūrah laxxiii 19) for the books of Abraham and Moses "This is truly written in the books (suhuf) of old the books (suhuf) of Abraham and Moses [PROPHETS]

SAHIFATU 'L-A'MAL (

"Book of Actions,"

which is said to be made by the recording angels (Kirāmu 'l-Kātibin) of the deeds of men, and kept until the Day of Judgment, when the books are opened. See Qur'an—

Sürah l. 16 "Whon two (angels) charged with taking account shall take it, one sitting on the right hand and another on the left."

Sürah xvii. 14, 15... "And every man's fate have We (God) fastened about his neck, and on the Day of Resurrection will We bring forth to him a book, which shall be proffered to him wide open Read thy Book There needsth none but thyself to make out an account against thee this day " [KIRAMU L-KATERIK, RESURRECTION]

SAHIHU 'L-BUKHARI (البخاري) The table of the first of the Autubu. 's-Sittah, or "six correct" books of traditions received by the Sunnis It was compiled by Abū 'Abd Tlāh Muhammad ibn Ismā'il al-Bukhārī, who was born at Bukhārah, Ah. 194, and died at Khartang, near Samarkand, A.H. 256 It contains 9,882 traditions, of which 2,628 are held to be of undisputed authority They are arranged into 160 books and 8,450 chapters. [TRADITIONS.]

SAHIHU MUSLIM (December 2)
The title of the second of the Kutubu's-Sittes, or "six correct" books of the traditions received by the Sunnis It was compiled by Abū 'l-Husain Muslim ibn al-Hajjaj al-Qushairi, who was born at Naishāpū! All Qushairi, who was born at Naishāpū! All Qushairi, who was born at Naishāpū! All Qushairi, who was born at Naishāpū! All Qushairi, who was born at Naishāpū! All Qushairi, who was born at Naishāpū! All Qushairi, who was born at Naishāpū! All Qushairi, who was born at Naishāpū! All Qushairi, who died authority The books and chapters of the work were not arranged by the compiler, but by his disciples The most celebrated edition of this work is that with a commentary by Muhyiju 'd-dīn Yahya an-Nawawī, who died a H 676 [TRA-DITKOVA.]

SAHM (ACC) Lat "An arrow used for drawing lots A form in Muhammadan law for a portion of an estate allotted to an heir (Hamilton's Hidayak vol iv. p 487)

SAHÜR ()—) The meal which is taken before the dawn of day during the Ramazan. It is called in Perman Ta'am-i-Sahari In Hindustani, Sahargahi In Pushto Peshmani [BAMAZAN]

SA'IBAH (L.S.). Anything set at liberty, as a slave, or she-camel, and devoted to an ido! Montioned once in the Qur'an, Surah v 102 "God hath not ordained anything on the subject of sa'ibah, but the unbelievers have invented it"

SA'ID IBN ZAID (15) (15) (15) A Sahabi who embraced Islam in his youth. He was present with Muhammad in all his engagements except at Badr. He is held to be one of the 'Asharah Muhashaharah, or ten patriarchis of the Muslim faith. Died at 'Aqiq, a.H. 51, aged 79

SAIFU 'LLAH (all and "The Sword of God" A title given by Muhammad to the celebrated General Khalid ibn al-Walid. (Michkat, book xxiv oh. vii.)

SAIHUN (وحمدون) The river Jaxartes Said to have been one of the rivers of Eden. [EDEN]

SAINTS In Muhammadan countries, reputed saints are very numerous. Very many religious leaders obtain a great reputation for sanctity even before their deaths, but after death it is usual for the followers of any well-known religious teacher to elect a shrine over his grave, to light it up on Thursdays, and thus establish a saintly reputation for their departed guide. Very disreputable persons are thus often reckoned to have died in the "edotr of sanctity." At Hasan Abdal in the Punjab (celebrated. in the story of Lale Rookh), there is a shrine erected over a departed cook, who for many years lived on his peculations as keeper of the staging bungalow When he died, about ten years ago, his family erected over his icmains a shrine of some pretentions, which even in the present generation is an object of devout reverence, but which in the next, will be the scene of reputed miracles. This is but an example of many thousands of shrines and saintly reput thous easily gained

throughout Islām

It is generally asserted that according to the teachings of Islam, the Prophets (ambiga') were without sin, but there is a tradition, related by Anas, which distinctly asserts the contrary, and states that Muhammad not only admitted his own sintulness, but also the fall of Adam, the murder committed by Moses, and the three hes told by Abraham (See Mishkat, book xxiii ch xii) But it is very remarkable that, according to this Hadis, Muhammad does not charge Jesus Christ with having committed sin immaculate conception and the sinlessness of Christ are admitted doctrines of Islam [JESUS CHRIST]

The terms pu and wall are common titles for those who, by reputed miracles and an ascetto life, have established a reputation for sanotity, for whom in Person the title bu-zurg is generally used. The titles quit and ghaus are very high orders of sanctity, whilst zahid and abid are employed for persons who detote their lives to religious contemplation and worship

The Sufis use the word sattk, " pilgrim " or "traveller," for one who has renounced the world for the "path" of mysticism, whilst fager 's a title of more general application to one who is poor in the sight of God Shaikh and mir, used for old men also express a degree of reputation in the religious world, sharkh (in India) being a title generally con ferred on a convort from Hinduism to Islam Sayed, or "lord" is a title always given to the descendants of Muhammad, mir being sometimes used for the same Miyan, "master" or "friend," is generally used for the descendants of celebrated saints, or as a mere title of respect

SA'IR (معير) "A flaming fire"
The special place of tormont appointed for the Sabeans (See al-Baghawi's Commentary on the Qur'an) It occurs sixteen times in the Qur'an (Surah 1v 11, and fifteen other places), where it does not seem to be applied to any special class

SAIYIBAH (ثبنة) A legal term for a woman who departs from her husband, whether through divoice or the death of her husband, after the first connection

(سيد) SAIYID A term used for the descendants of Muhammad from his daughter Fatimal by Ali The word only oceurs twice in the Qur'an-in Surah in 84, where it is used for John Baptist, and in Surah xii 25, where it stands for the husband of Zalikhah. According to the Majus 'L. Bihar, p 151 it means "lord, king, exalted, saint, merciful, meek, husband," &c.

There are two branches of Salyids-those descended from al-Hasan and those descended from al-Husain (both the sons of 'Ali')

These descendants of Muhammad are prayed for at every period of the daily prayers [PRAYERS], and they are held in all Muhammadan countries in the highest respect, however poor or degraded their position may

The term Saiyid is also given as a name to persons who are not descended from Muhammad, eg Saiyid Shah, Saiyid Amin, de, although it is a mere assumption. In addition to the term Saiyid, the term Badshah, Shah, Mir, and Sharif, are applied to those descended from Bibi Fatimah

The author of the Akhlaq-1-Jalali estimated in his day the descendants of Muhammad to be not less than 200,000

SAJDAH (اسجدة), vulg sydah. Lit "Prostration

(1) The act of worship in which the person's forehead touches the ground in prostration [PRAYER]

(2) As-Saydah, the title of the EXXIIII Surah of the Qur'an, in the 15th verse of which the word occurs "They only believe in our signs who, when they are reminded of them, full down adoring and celebrate the praises of their Lord "

(سجدة السهر) SAJDATU 'S-SAHW "The prostrations of forgetfulness" prostrations made on account of forgetfulness or inattention in prayer Muhammad said, "When any of you stand up for prayer, and the devil comes to you and casts doubt and perplexity into your mind, so that you do not know how many rak ahs you have recited, then prestrate yourself twice

SAJDATU 'SH-SHUKR "A prostration of thanksgiving" When a Muslim has received some benefit or blessing, he is enjoined to make a prostration in the direction of Makkab, and say, "Holiness to God! and Praise be to God There is no deity but God! God is most Great!" (Raddu 'l-Muhtar, vol ! p 816)

SAJJĀDAH (اسجادة). The small carpet, mat, or cloth, on which the Muslim Prays. [JAI NAMAZ, MUSALLA]

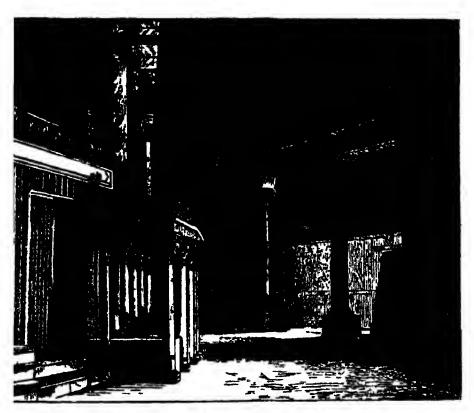

SAKHR (---) The jinn or devil who is said to have obtained pessession of i's magic ring, and to have personated ig for forty days, when Sakhr flew id threw the ring into the sea, where wallowed by a fish, which was afteraught and brought to Solomon, who means recovered his kingdom.

AKHRAH (5-31). "The The sacred rock at Jerusalem on he Temple was erected, and on which ands the Qubbatu 's-Sakhrah, the of the Rock" known to English as the Mosque of 'Umar This rock to have come from Paradise, and to en the place of prayer of all prophets, ixt to the Karbah, the most sacred the universe Imam Jalalu d-din as-

Suyūtī, in his history of the Temple of Jerusalem (Reynolds' edition, p 44), gives the fellowing traditional account of the glorious Sakhrah

"We are informed by Ibn al-Mansür that "We are informed by Ibn al-Mansür that the Rock of the Baitu 'l-Muqaddas, in the days of Sciomon, was of the height of twelve thousand cubits—each cubit at that time being the full onbit, viz. one modern cubit, one span and one hand-breadth. Upon it also was a chapel, formed of aloes (or sandal) wood, in height twelve miles (sic.), also above this was a network of gold, between two eyelet-beads of pearl and ruby, netted by the women of Balka in the night, which net was to serve for three days, also the people of Emmans were under the shadow of the chapel when the sun rose and the people of

THE DOME OF THE ROCK. (Conder)

-Rahmah when it set, and even others valleys were under its shadow, also twas a jacinth (or ruby), which shone night like the light of the sun, but he light began to dawn its brilliancy scured, nor did all these cease until ladneszar laid all waste, and seized or he found there, and carried it into ain, by a tradition we learn that the h of Baitu I-Muqaddas was raised ito the sky, to the height of twelve miles, and the space between it and heaven was no more than twelve miles. All this remained in the same state until Greece (or Rome) obtained the mastery over it, subsequent to its devastation by Nebuchadnezzar But when the Greeks obtained possession of it, they said, "Let us build thereupon a building far excelling that which was there before". Therefore they built upon it a building as broad at the base as it was high in the sky, and gilded it with geld, and silvered it with silver. Then, entering therein, they began to practise their associating Paganism, upon which it turned upadedown over them, so that not one of them came out

"Therefore, when the Greotan (kilg) saw this, he summoned the Patriarch and lis ministers (descons), and the chiefs of Givere, and said, 'What think ve?' who replied, We are of opinion that con idol-gods are not well pleased, and therefore will not receive us favourably Hereupon he com manded a second temple to be built, which they did, spending a great sum thereon, and having finished the second building, seventy thousand entered it as they had entered the But it happened to them as it had happened to the first, when they began thour Pagamen it turned over upon them Now Therefore, their king was not with them whon he saw this, he assembled them a third time, and said unto them, 'What think ye?' who said, 'We think that our Lord is not well pleased with us, because we have not offered unto him abundantly, therefore he has destroyed what we have done, thosefore we should greatly wish to build a third' They then built a third, until they thought they had carried it to the greatest possible height, which having done, he assembled the Christians, and said unto them, 'Do ye observe any defect?' who said, 'None, except that we must surround it with crosses of gold and silver' Then all the people entered it, to read and cite (sacred things) Having bathed and perfumed themselves, and having entered it, they began to practice their associating Pagamam, as the others had done before them, whereupon down fell the third building upon them Hereupon the king again aummoned them together, and usked their counsel about what he should do But their dresd was very great and whilst they were dehberating there came up to them a very old man, in a white 1000 and a black turban, his back was bent double and he was leaning upon a staff to he said, O Christian people, listen to me' listen to me! for 1 am the oldest of any of you in years, and have now come forth from aniong the retired votaries of religion, in order to inform you that, with respect to this place all its possessors are accursed, and all holiness hath departed from it, and hath been transferred to this (other) place I will therefore point out this as the place wherein to build the Church of the Rosurrection I will show you the spot, but you will never see me after this day, for ever Do, there fore, with a good will that which I shall tell you. Thus he cheated them, and augmented their accursed state, and commanded them to cut up the rock, and to build with its stones upon the place which he commended them

"So whilst he was talking with them he became concealed, and they saw him no more Therenpon they increased in their infidelity, and said, 'This is the Great Word Then they demolished the Mosques, and carried away the columns and the stones, and all the rest, and built therewith the Church of the Resurrection, and the church which is in the valley of Hinnon Moreover, tius cursed old man commanded them, When we have finished their building upon this place, then take that place whose owners are accursed, and whence all holiness hath departed, to be a common sewer to receive your dung' By this they gratified their Loid Also they did this, as follows At certain seasons, all the filth and excrement was sent in vessels from Constantinople, and was at a cortain time all thrown upon the Rock, until God awoke our Prophet Muhammad (the peace and blossing of God be with him!), and brought him by night thereunto, which he did on account of its peculiar consecration, and on account of the greatness of its super excellence We learn, also, that God, on the Day of Judgment, will change the Sakhrah into white coral, enlarging it to extend over heaven and earth. Then shall men go from that Rock to heaven or hell according to that great word, 'There shall be a time when this earth shall change into another earth, and the heaven shall turn white, the soil shall be of silver, no pol-lution shall over dwell thereon' Now from 'A'ish (may the satisfying favour of God rest upon him'), I said, 'O apostle of God, on that day when this earth shall become anoth rearth, and this sky shall change, where shall men be on that day? He replied, Upon the bridge as-irat' Again, a certain Upon the bridge as-Sirat' Again, a certain divine says, 'that in the Law, God says to the Rock of the Holy Abode, "Thou art my seat, thou art near to me, from thy foundation have I raised up the heavens, and from beneath thee have I stretched forth the earth, and all the distant maccessible moun-Who dies within tums are beneath thee thee is as if he died within the world of heaven, and who dies around thee is as if he died within thee Days and nights shall not cease to succeed, until I send down upon thee a Light of Heaven, which shall obliterate all the (traces) of the infidels of the sons of Adam, and all their footstops Also I will send upon thee the hierarchy of angels and prophsts, and I will wash thee until I leave thee like milk, and I will fix upon thee a wall twelve miles above the thick-gathering clouds of earth, and also a hedge of light By my hand will I moure to thee thy support and thy virtue, upon thee will I cause to descend my spirits and my angels, to worship within thec, nor shall any one of the sons of Adam enter within thee until the Day of Judgment and whoseever shall look upon this chapel from afar shall say, 'Blessed' be the face of him who devoutly worships and adoles in thee.' Upon thee will I place walls of light and a hedge of thick clouds—five walls of ruby and pearl" Also from the Book of Psalms, 'Great and glorious art thou, thou threshing-floor! Unto thee shall be the general assemblage from thee shall all men rise from death' Moreover, from the same author, God says to the Rock of the Holy Abode, 'Who leveth thee, him will

I leve, who leveth thee, leveth me, who hatch thee, him will I hate. From year to year my eyes are upon thee, nor will I forget thee until I forget my eyes. Whose prayeth within thee two rak'shs, him will I cause to cast off all his sins, and to be as guiltless as I brought him from his mother's womb, unless he return to his sine, beginning them afresh' This is also a tradition of old standing 'I solemnly engage and promise to everyone who dwelle therein, that all the days of his his the bread of corn and olive-oil never shall fail him, nor shall the days and the mights fail to bring that time when, out of the supremacy of my bounty, I will cause to descend upon thee the assemblage of man for judgment-the whole company of risen mor-There is a tradition that 'Muqatil Ibn Sulaiman came to this Temple to pray, and sat by the gate looking towards the Rock, and we had assembled there in great numbers, he was reading and we were listening came forward 'Ali Ibn al-Badawi, stamping terribly with his slippers upon the pavement This greatly afflicted him, and he said to those around him, " Make an opening for me " Then the people opened on each side, and he made a threatening motion with his hand to warn him and prevent this stamping, saying, "Tread more gently! That place at which Muqatil 18"-pointing with his hand-" and on which thou art stamping, is the very place redolent of Heaven's breezes, and there is not a spot all around it-not a apot within its precincts a hand's-breadth square-wherein some commissioned prophet, some near angel, hath not prayed " Now from the mother of 'Abdu liah, daughter of Khand, from her mother, the moment is surely fixed, when the Ks bah shall be led as a bride to the Sakhrah, and shall hang upon her all her pilgrimage merits, and become her turban' Also it is said that the Sakhrah is the middle of the Mosque, it is cut off from every touching substance on all sides No one supports it but He who supports and holds up the sky, so that nothing fails thence but by His good permission, also upon the upper part of the west side stood the Prophet (the blessing and peace of God be with him!) on the night when he rode al-Buraq This side began to shake about, from veneration of him, and upon the other side are the marks of the angels' fingers, who held it up when it shook, beneath it is a deep hole cut out on sach side, over which is the gate opened to men for prayer and devotion 'I resolved,' says a certain author, 'one day to enter it in great fear lest it should fall upon me, on account of the sins I had contracted, then, however, I looked, and saw its darkness, and some holy pilgrims entering it at the darkest part, who came forth therefrom quite free from sin. Then I began to reflect upon entering Then I said, "Perhaps they entered very slowly and leasurely, and I was too much in a hurry, a little delay may facilitate the matter." So I made up my mind to enter, and entering, I saw the Wonder of Wonders, the Reck enpported m its position or course on every side, for I saw it separated from the earth, so that no point of the earth touched it Some of the sides were separated by a wider interval than others, also, the mark of the glorious Foot is at present in a stone divided from the Rock, right over against it, on the other side, west of the Qibish, it is upon a pillar Also the Book is now almost abutting upon the side of the crypt, only divided from it by that space which allows room for the gate of the crypt, on the side of the Qiblah This gate, also, is disjointed from the base of the Qiblah, it is between the two Below the gate of the crypt is a stone staircase, whereby one may descend into the crypt In the midst of this crypt is a dark-brown leather carpet, upon which pilgrims stand when they visit the foundation of the Rock, it is upon the eastern mile. There are also columns of marble abutting on the lower side upon the path of the rows of trees upon the side of the Qublah, and on the other side forming buttresses to the extremity of the Rock, these are to hinder it from shaking on the side of the Qiblah There are buildings besides these There is a building in the Chapel of the Book Beneath the chapel, the spot marked by the angels' fingers is in the Rock, on the western side, divided from the print of the glorious Foot above mentioned, very near to it, over against the western gate, at the end." (Hust Jerusalem, from the Arabic MS, of Jalalu 'ddîn as-Suyüţi, Reynolds' ed. 1685)

Dr Robinson (Biblical Researches, vol. i. p. 297) says the followers of Muhammad under 'Umar took possession of the Holy City a D 636, and the Khalifah determined to erect a mosque upon the site of the Jewish Temple. An account of this undertaking, as given by Muslim historians, will be found in the article on JERUSALEM. The historians of the crusades all speak of this great bakhrah as the Templum Dommi, and describe its form and the rook within it (Will. Tyr., 8.2, 1b. 12, 7. Jac de Vitrace, c. 62.)

Lieut E. R. Conder, R.E., remarks that the Dome of the Rock belongs to that obscure period of daracenic art, when the Arabs had not vet created an architectural style of their own, and when they were in the habit of employing Byzantine architects to build their mosques The Dome of the Rock, Lieut Conder says is not a mosque, as it is sometimes wrongly called, but a "station" in the outer court of the Masjidu "l-Aysā.

We are indebted to this writer for the following account of the gradual growth of the procent building (Tent Work in Palestine, vol ii p 320) —

"In a D 831 the Caliph El Mamin restored the Dome of the Rock, and, if I am correct, enclosed it with an outer wall, and gave it its present appearance. The beams in the roof of the arcade bear, as above-stated, the date 918 a.D., -a well-carved wooden cornece, hidden by the present ceiling, must then have been visible beneath them have been visible beneath them

"In 1016 and the building was partly dostroyed by earthquake. To this date belong restorations of the original mesans in the dome, as evidenced by inscriptions. The present wood-work of the cupola was erected by Hussin, son of the Sultan Hakem, as shown by an inscription dated 1022 A D

"The place next fell into the hands of the Orusaders, who christened it Templum Domini, and established in 1112 a D a chapter of Canons

"The Holy Rock was then cut into its present shape and covered with marble slabs, an altar being erected on it The works were The carried on from 1115 AD to 1186 AD beautiful iron grille hetween the pillars of the dome and various fragments of carved work are of this date, including small alters with sculptured capitals, having heads upon them ... abominations to the Moslem, yet still preserved within the precincts The interior of the outer wall was decorated in the twelfth century with frescoss, traces of which still remain. The exterior of the same wall is surmounted by a parapet, with dwarf pillars and arches, which is first mentioned by John of Wurtzburg, but must be as old as the round arches of the windows below. The Crusaders would seem to have filled up the parapet arches, and to have ornamented ine whole with glass mosaic, as at Bothle-1em

'In 1187 AD Saladm won the city, tore up the sitar, and once more exposed the bare rock, covered up the frescoes with marble slabs, and restored and regulded the dome, as evidenced by an inscription in it dating 1189 A.D

"In 1318 AD the lead outside and the gilding within were restored by \akr cd Din, as evidenced by an inscription

"In 1520 AD the Sultan Soliman cased the bases and upper blocks of the columns with maible. The wooden cornice attached to the beam between the pillars, seems to be of this period, and the slightly-pointed marble casing of the arches under the dome is probably of the same date. The windows bear inscriptions of 1528 AD. The whole exterior was at this time covered with Kisham tiles, attached by copper hooks, as evidenced by inscriptions dated 1561 AD. The doors were restored in 1564 AD, as also shown by in scriptions.

"The date of the beautiful wooden ceiling of the cloisters is not known but it partly covers the Cufic inscription, and this dates 72 AH (688 AD), and it hidss this wooden cornice, dating probably 913 AD. The ceiling is therefore probably of the time of Soli man

"In 1830 AD the Sultan Mahmud, and in 1478-75 AD the late Abdu I Aziz, repaired the Donie, and the latter period was one specially valuable for those who wished to study the history of the place.

"Such is a plain statement of the gradual growth of the building. The dates of the various inscriptions on the walls fully agree with the circumstantial accounts of the Arab writers who describe the Dome of the Rock." [JERUSALEM.]

(مکینة) SAKINAH which cocurs in the Qur'an five time For that which was in the Ark of the Cc Surah ii 249 "The sign of his kingdom is that there shall come to 3 Ark (Tābūt) with the sakinah in it froi Lord, and the relics that the family of and the family of Aaron left, and the bear it" With reference to this vei Baixawi, the great Muslim comme containing the Books of Moses Taurat, namely, the Torah, or Law), whi made of box wood and galded over wit and was three cubits long and two wid in it was ' the sakinah from your Lord meaning of which is, that with the Ar was tranquility and peace, namel Taurat (Books of Moses), because Moses went forth to war he always to Ark with him which gave repose hearts of the children of Israel Bu say that within that Ark there was s made either of emerald or sapphire, w head and tail of a cat, and with two and that this creature made a noise the Ark was carried forth to war But say that the Ark contained images prophets, from Adam to Moses assert that the meaning of sakinah is ledge and sincerity' Others, that th contained the tables of the Law, the Mones and Asrons turban." (Tafe Barzawi, I leischer's ed, vol 11 p 128

(2) It is also used in the Quranti and confidence or grace Surah xlvi "When those who misbelieved put it hearts pique—the pique of ignorance God sent down His Sakinah upon His A and upon the believers, and obliged the keep to the word of piety "Al-H says that in this verse the word a means the tranquility and repose o which is the meaning given in all Arab

tionaries

The word occurs in three other phase similar sense —

Surah ix 26 "God sent down His Supon His Apostle and upon the bel and sent down arm or which ye could n and punished those who did not believe

Sürah ıx 40 "God sent down His S upou him, and aided him with hosts."

Surah xivin, 2 "It is He who sent the sakmah into the hearts of heliever they might have faith added to faith"

None of the Muslim commentators se understand that the Alahie Lake Sake identical with the Hebrew אברבה

a term which, although not found i Bible, has been used by the later Jew borrowed by the Christians from the express the visible Majesty of the Presence, especially when resting or di between the Cherubin on the Mercy in the Tabernacie, and in the Tem Solomon Rabbinical writers identif

Sistediocal with the Holy Spirit, and some Cirretten writers have thought that the three field attendence for the lawy—the Lord, the Bytis of the Lord, and the Shedenah indiand the - whithe of a trinity of persons mithe God bead.

For the Talmudo views regarding the Sheelinah, the English reader can refer to Dr. Hershop's Talmuche Muscelleny (Trühner

4 Co . London)

BALAF (-41-) (I) Ancesters men of repute for plety and faith m past generations, (2) Money lent without interest. [SALAK.]

SALAM" (ملم) A contract involing an Homediate payment of the erice, and admitting a delay in the deliver, of the aric cles pur based. The word used in the Hadis is generally salaf. In a sale of this kind, the seller is valled neusallam tlus hs, the pur chaser rabbs sisulum, and the goods par based, musclim fish: (Kitabu's Tarifat)

As-SALAM (1) The Fease(ful) one (1) One of the ninety pine names or attributes of Gad. It occurs exce is the Quran, Surah hs. 20. "He is God then whom their sa no other the Preceful." Al-Baisawi explains the word as "He who is free from all loss or harm"

"المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية المالية ا

ASSALAT (LL) in construction freducatly spelled (12.), pl. salawat. The term used in the Quran, as well an amonget all Musicus in every part of the world for the liturgical form of prayer, which is remted five times a day, an account of which is given in the article on PRAYER te equivalent in Persian and Urds is namus which this been corrupted into same by the Afghane. The word occurs with this most ing in the Quran, Sürah fi. 289 "Observe the prayers," and in very many other places. It has also the meaning of prayer or supplication in its general sense e g Sirah ix 104 "Pray for them, of a truth the prayers shall assure their minde." Also blessing, e.g. Sarah xxxiv. 6 "Verily God and His Angels bless (not pray for," as rendered by Palmer) the Praphot." (See Lane s Dictionary, in loco)

The word saids occurs with various com-bingtions used to express different periods, and also special occasions of prayer

The five stated liturgical prayers which are held to be of divine institution -

(1) Soldies I Zuar, the mendian prayer
(2) Soldies I-Aer, the afterneen prayer
(3) Soldies I-Maghrub, the summet prayer
(4) Soldies I Islair, the night prayer
(5) Soldies I Islair, the prayer at dawn.
(6) Soldies I-Ruy, the prayer at dawn.
(7) Soldies I soldies prayer is reckoned the first in order.)

Aiso for the three velentary drily liturgridl prayers -- (1) Statem, I-Labring, when the sun has wall

2) Solatti 7-Zult; about 11 A.M. (3) Salatü'l Tahafjud after midnight. Liturgical prayers said on special occu stone are given below [PRATER.]

SALATU 'L HAJAR (2000-0) "Prayer of necessity." Four-rak-alt prayers, or, according to some twelve rak-als recited after the night, prayer in times of necessity, or trouble - Raddhi-Mahter, vel 1 p. 719.

SALATU AHJDAIN ( ... shell she). '
Prayers of the two tivals. The two "Prayers of the two rak ab prayers recited on the two Muham-maden festivals, the 'Idu; I-Fitr and the Idu 'l Asba.

SALATU 'L-SITIKHARAH (2) ing favour "Two vak'shs resided for success in an undertaking Jabur relates that Muhammad taught him Istikherah and that after reciting two rak ahs he should thus sup plicate God "O God Lacek Thy good help m Thy great wisdom I pray for ability to act through Thy power I ask this thing of thy goodness Thou knowest, but I know not Thou art powerful, but I am a Thou art knower of secrets "O God, if Thou knowest that the matter which I am about to undertake is good for my religion, for my life, for my future then make it easy, and prosper me m it But m it is bad for my religion my hie and my usure then put it away from me and show me what is good." (Muhkat, book iv 40)

(لنداه) SALĀTŪ 'L. ISTISQĀ' الاستساً), from saqy, "Watering" Two rakeh prayers recited in the time dourth

SALATU - 'L HNAZAH (C) 3,1 The funeral EURIAL OF THE DRAG JURASAN

SALATU LJUM AH ( -. 1 4L).

t "The prayor of assembly The Friday Let "The prayor of assembly The Friday Prayer It consusts of two rak'ahs recited at the time of zuer, or midday prayer on Friday [FRIDAY, KHUTSAR.]

SALATU 'I KHAUF ( ) 1 (L)
The "Prayer of Fear" Two rakehe of prayers recited first by one regument and then hy another in time of war, when the usual prayers cannot be recited for fear of the enemy. These prayers are founded upon an injunction in the Quran, Surah iv 102 "And when ye go to war in the land it shall be no sin for you to curtail your prayers, if yo fear that the enemy come upon you." This was also the Talmudio law (I'r Beracheth iv 4), "He that goeth in a dangerous place may pray a short prayer

SALĀTU 'L-KHUSUF of the moon consisting of two rak and of prayer . (Mushkat, book iv ah.li)

SALATU 'L-KUSÜF (حلام الكسوب)
Prayers at an eclipse of the sun, consisting of two rakishs of prayer (Mishkât, book iv ch li)

SALATU 'L. MARIZ ("") has a person is too sick to stand up in the usual prayers, is allowed to recite them either in a reclining or uiting posture, provided he perfomos the usual abintions. It is ruled that he shall in such a case make the prostrations &c. men tally (Raddu | Muhtar voi 1 p 891)

SALATU L-WITR (ملاق الوقر)
The Witr prayers The word intr means either a unit, or an odd number and is used for either a single or odd number of rak'ub prayers recited after the evening prayer
('isla') (Mishkat, book iv ch xxxvi)

There is considerable controversy smongst the learned do tors as to whether it is forz winth, of sunnah, but it is generally held to be sunnah, is founded on the example of the Prophet but with no divine command amongst the Hansfi sect it is also known as Quantu 'l Wit, but the Shafi'is recite the Quantu 's eparately

SALATU 'R-RAGHAIB (S)—

A prayer for things de aired Two rak'sh prayers recited by one who desires some object in this world According to the orthodox, it is forbidden in Islam (Raddw'l-Muhter, vol i p 717) It is recited by some persons in the first week of the month Rajab

SALATU 'S SAFAR (ملل السفر)
Pravers of travel A shortened recital of prayer allowed to travellers. It is founded on a tradition by Ya'ls ibn Umalyah who says, "I said to 'Umar, 'God hath said; "When ye go to wer in the land it shall be no sin for you to shorten your prayers if ye fear that the infidels may attack you", but now verily we are safe in this journey, and yet we shorten our prayers. 'Umar replied, 'I also weddered at the thing that astonished you but the Prophet said, God hath done you a kindness in curtailing your prayers, therefore accept it, Ibn 'Umar says, 'I travilled with the Prophet, and he did not say more than two rak sha of prayer, and Abū Bakr and 'Umar and 'Uamān did the same' ibn 'Abbas says, 'The Prophet used to say on a journey the noon and afternoon prayer together." (Mishkat, book iv ch alii)

The established prayers for a traveller are, therefore two rak'ahs instead of the four farz rak'ahs at the noon and afternoon and evening prayers, and the usual two farz at the morning and the usual three farz at the sunset prayers all veluntary prayers being omitted (Raddu l-Muhtar, vol 1, p 821)

SALATU 'T T'ARAWIH (a)_c Balail) "Prayer of res" So called because of the pause or rest made for ejan lations between every lour rak ahs ('Abas P Hagg )

Twenty rakish prayers recited after the night prayer during the month of Ramazān. They are often followed with recitations known as rikis [NIKR], and form an exciting service of devotion. The Imam recites the Tardulk prayers with a loud voice.

Abu Hursirah says "The Prophet used to encourage people to say hight prayers in Remazan without ordering them positively, and would say. He who stands up in prayer at night for the purpose of obtaining reward, will have all his sins pardoned; then the Prophet died leaving the prayers of Ramasan in this way. It is said "Umar instituted the prosent custom of recting the twenty rak'ahs, (Mishkat, book iv ch xxxviii) [Ramazan]

SALATU T-TASBIH (Prayer of praise A form of prayer founded on the following tradition related by Ibn Abbaa who says

" Verily the Prophel said to my father, "O Abbas 'O my uncle ' shall I not give to you shall I not present unto you, shall I not inform you of a thing which covers acts of sin? When you perform it God will forgive your sins your former sins, and your latter sins, and those sink which you did unknowingly, and those which you did knowingly, your great sins, and your small sins, your disclosed sins and your consessed sins? It is this namely, that you record four rakings of prayer, and in each rak ah recite the Failhain 'Kilab (is the Introductory chapter of the Quran; and some other Shrah of the Quran; and when you have recuted these portions of the Quran in the position of Qiyam then say, "Holiness to God!" (Subhana "löhi), and Praise be to God!" (Wa'l Hamdu it llahi), and "There is no delty but God!" (Wa la Ilâha illa huwa, and "Tod is most great!" (Wa'llāha Akban), filteen times. Then perform a ruku nad recite it len times! len times; then raise up your head and say it ten times then inske the saidah and say it ten times then raise your head and say il ten t men then make another sajdah and say it in times, then mise your head again and say il ten times altogether seventy-five limes to overy rakish, and do this in each of the rakish If you are able to say this form of prayer every day, then do ao, but if not, do it once every Friday and if not each week then say it once a mouth, and if not once a mouth then say it once a year, and if not once year, then do it once in your commune." (Mishkat, book iv ch xii)

The foregoing is a striking illustration of the mechanical character of the Musin religion as regards its system of deversor [ZIRR]

SALE, The Law of [BAI'.]

SALIB (ملیب) "A crucifix; a.

SALIF. (احالم) A prophet mentioned in the Quran (Sūrah vii 71) who was sent to the tribes 'Ad and Samud Al-

Beinswi say he was the son of 'Ubaid, the son of Asef, the son of Manih the son of Ubaid the son of Hazir, the son of Samuel Boshent thinks he must be, the Pileg of Genesis xt 16. D'Herbelot, makes him the Salah of Genesia x: 13

The tollowing is the account of him in the Quran with the commentators remarks in realizes (see Lane's Secretion 2nd ed by Mr.

Stanley Lake Poole)

And We sont unto the tribe of Thanwood their brother Solih. He said Q my people waiship Ged Ye kave no other derty, her Him. A miraculant proot of my agracity hate come unto you from your Lord this sher aimed of God being a sign unto you [He-hod caused her of heir demand to cohor forh trom the heart of a rock | Therefore let her feed, in God's earth and do herms harm lest a painful puluahment seize you And remoniher liow He hath appointed you researenfe in the earth after [the tribe of] given you a habitation in the barth make yourselves, on its plains, pavilions therein ye dy ed in summer, and cut the moun. tains into houses wherein ye dweh in minior Romember then the benefits of God, and do not avil in the corth asting corruptly -- The shiels who were child with pride among his people said unto those who were estnemed weak, namely, to those who had believed among them, Do ye know that Salih hath been sent unto this? And they hamstrung the shethorn order and slugging her with the sound) and they improunly transgressed the conmand of their Lord and said, O Salili, bring upon as that punishmed with which thou threatenest us fon killing her, if thou be [one] of the sportles, And the violent convaisor (a great adrihquake and a cry from heaven) seralled them, and in the morning they were in their dwellings prestrate and dead So be turned away from them, and said, O my people I have brought unto yen the message of my Lord and giver you faithful counsel but he leved not faithful coussellors." Surah vn 71 77)

SALIK (will.) Lil A "tra A "tradevotes or one whe has started on the hea veuly journey [acri]

SALSABIL (اللسمل) Lit The sortly flowing A fountain in Paradise, mentioned in the Quran in Strab ixxvi 10 and from which the Muslims in beaven are said to drive. "A spring therein named Salsabil, and there shall go round about them immortal boys."

SALUTATIONS Arabie as-salam (السلم), " peace ' Taelin (السلم), Heb ahelom, the act of giving the prayer The duty of giving of peace, pl taskmat and returning a salutation is founded on ex press injunctions in the Qur an

Strah Triv. 61 "When ye enter house then greet each other with a salutation from God the Blessed and the Good" Surah iv 88 "When ye are saluted with a salutation, salute we with a better 'han it, or return the same salutation."

'Ali says that Muhammud established it as All says that Muhammund established it as an incumbent duty that one Mush in should solute another [FITRAH.] The ordinary salutation of the Muslim's "us Salāmu 'alaskum," is "The petre dron you"And, the "Isaal suply is the Wolfalet kum as salamor And on you also be the pess:

The supposes origin of the salutation es given in a tradition by Abu, Hurarich ar relates that the Prophet and relates that the Prophet said God crestet Adam in his owen kenese, andhis stad re was sixty cubits and God said to Adam. Godand salute that party sugels who are itting down, and listen to their sac wer for venly it shall be the salucteou and repty for you and your children! Adam they wont and said to the angels as Salami ului-kum,' 1 c, The peace be on you," and the shigels replied, 'as-Suawu uldika w rahmatu llahi, 'e' The peace be on thee and the morey of God."

This form is now usually given in reply devont persons (Sahihu T Bukhar by devont persons regarding he use of the salutation .

Muhammad justructed his people as follows

"The person riding must salute one on foot and ne who is walking must salute those who a c sitting, and the small must salute the larger and the person of higher degree the lower It is therefore a religious luty for the person of high degree, when meeting one of a lower degree, the giving of the Salam being regarded as a benediction. For," says Mahammad, "the nearest people to God are shose who salute first. When a party is passing it is sufferent if one of them give the salutation and in like manner, it is sufficient one of the party return it of those sitting down The Jews in the time of Muhammad seem lo Exvo unde the slutation a subject of ah horahoe to Muhammad, for it is related when Ries went teahe Prophet they need to say, 'As sammu 'una ka," "On you be poison." Lo which the Prophet always replied, " Wa alar ko," And on you"

Uramah ibn 7aid says The Prophet orice pusses to rured assumbly of Muslim polytheists, idolators, and Jews, and, he gave the salutution, but he meant it only for the

Mushma'

Jarir relates that on one occasion the Prophot met a party of women, and gave them the salutation. But this is contrary to the usual practice of Muhammadans, and 'Abdu i-Haqq in his commentary on this tradition, says? This practice was peculiar to the Prophet for the taws of Islam forbid a man blo at oda seeinn names a pattuias

In the East it is usual to raise the right hand (the raising of the left hand being disrespectful, as it is the hand used for legal ablutions) when giving the Salain, but this onstom, common though it be is bet in accordance with the traditions. For Amr'ibn Shu-aid relates from his fore-fathers, that the Prophet said, "He must of us who hisnes himself to another. Do not copy the Jews or the Christians in your salutation. For a Jew's salutation is by raising his fingers, and the Christians salute with the palm of the mand. (Affahkat book xxii ch. 1)

In Central Asia, the salutation is generally given without any incited of the bedy, in escordance with the above tradition

SALVATION The Arabic word major (26-), salvation only occurs once in the Queen namely Surah xi 44. O my people! how is if that I bid you to embation, but that ye bid me to the fire?" Nor is the word reneally used in Muslim works of divinity authough the orthodox sect of Muslim's claim's for itself the title of Naji wah, or those who are being saved

The word mayhfirth forgiveness," is frequently used in the Ouran to express what Christians understand by "salvation, also laidm, Imen, and Din, words which express the ides of a state of salvation

According to Islam, a man obtains salvation by a recital of the Kalimah or creed, but if he be en evil deer, he will uffer the pans of a purgatorial fire until his sins are stoned for, white he who has not accepted the Muslim creed will endure the pains of everlasting panishment [HELT.]

مة SAMA1) 'The Eternal' One of the musty-nine names or atimbutes of God It occurs once in the Qur'an, Surabeas "God the Eterna!

In its original meaning, it implies a lord, because one repairs to him is exigences, of when applied to God, hoosing affaits are inved or rested or Firm. Honce no ording to al Muhkam in loco, and the Lisami L'Arub, it aignites the Being that continues for ever—the Eternal One

SAMAHAH ( BENEEI (BENEEI

SAMARITAN [AS SAMIRE].

An-SAMI ("The Hearer" One of the ninety mass an attributes of God. The word frequently recours in the Qur'an as-SAMIR (Special Mentioned in the Quran (Bursh xx 87 "As Sound has led them astray as the person who made the golden call for the Children of Israel. In Professer Palmens translation, it is rendered "the Samaritan," which is coording to at Baissawi who says his name was Musalibu Zafar, of the tribe of Samaritan.

SAMUEL Arabic Ishmavil (()2,000), or Shamunl, Heb MIDW, referred to m the Quran (Sürah in. 247) as "the prophet" whom the Children of Israel said "Raire for us a King, and we will fight 'or hun in God way,"

Husam, the commentater, says it is not quite certain who he was. He was ather Yusha ibn Nan or Sham iin ihn Safiya, or Ishmawil (Tafar-: Hasaiwi, p. 65)

Ishmawil (Tafar-: Husaini, p. 65)
The Kamilian give his name as Shamuell but sav it was originally Ismail, and that the meaning is the same

SAN'A (Acc.) A city in all Yaman the Vicercy of which Abrahatu I Ashram, an Abyssisian Christian, marched with a large army and some elephants upon Makkah with the intention of destroying the Temple (see Quran, Surah ov) in the year Muhammad was born Hence the year was known as that of the Elophant

SANAD (4-) Let. "That on which one rests, as a piller or onetion" An anthority, a document, a warrant. A term used in Moshm law

SANAM (a-a). pl asnum The word used in the Quran for an idol as Surah suv 36: "Turn me and nev some away from serving idols [IDDES.]

SANCTUARY The Prophet for.
bade putting a murderer to death inset mosque, but he may be taken by force from the mesque and slam enterde the budding
The same rule applies to persons guilty of theft (Mishkat, book iv ch viii)

The custom of sanctuary was derived from the Levitical law of refuge. The aix cities being established as cities of rofuge for the involuntary manelayer. The alter of burnt offerings was also a place of refuge for these who had indesignedly committed smaller offeness (Daut am 11-12, Joshua zg.) According to Lecky (European Morals, vol. ii p 42) the right of sanctuary was possessed by the Imperial statues and by the Pagan temples fangham (Antiquities vol. ii p 554) says it seems to have been introduced into the Christian Church by Constantine

SANDALS [SHORS]

SAQAR (, i.), "A scorebing heat". According to the commentator all Bughawi it is the special division of beil set apart for the Magi. It is mentioned thusau the Qur'an —

Surah hy 48 ' Taste ye the touch of Strah lxxiv 26: "I vill broll but in anger! And what shall make thee knew what anger 18?" It leaveth nought and spa eth nought, black-ening the skin of may SARACEN. A ferro used by Christian writers for the followers of Muhammad, and applied not only to the Arabs, but to the Turks and other Muslim nations.

There is much uncertainty us to the origin of this word. The word Lagarage was used by I tolomy and Piny, and also by a morianus and Procopius, for certain Oriental tribes, long before the death of Muhammad (see Gibben) Seme etymologists darive it from the Arabic share, "the rusing san, the East" (see Wedgweed's Diet) Others from saird", "a desert,"—the people of the desert (see Webster) Gibben thinks at may be from the Aribic saraqual, "theft," denoting the thievish character of the pation; whilst come have according to the pation; whilst come have according to the pation. have even thought it may be derived from Sarah the wife of the Patriarch Abraham.

SARAH Arabic Sarah (4). Hab, TTW, Greek Zápša Abrahamia wife Not mentioned by name in the Qur'an, put re-forred to in Surah xi 74 "And his wife was standing by laughing, and We gave her the gind tidings of lasse and of Jacob after Isaac."

SARAQAH (45,--) THEFT.

SARF (مراب ) (1) A term used for a special kind of sale or exchange. According to the Hidayoh, bails 's-earf, or sarf pale, means a pure sale, of which the articles opposed to each other in exchange are both representatives of price, as gold for goul or silver for gilven (See Hamilton's Hiddyck vol ff p 551)
(2) That part of grammar which relates to the declining of nouns and the conjugating of SARIH (حراح) Explicit or clear A term used in Mustim law for that which is express in contradistinction to that which is kineput, or implied. For example, the Talaques-sara, is an explicit form of divorce, whilst Talaqu 'l-kundyak in an implied form of diverce, as when a man says to his wife " Thou art free

ŞARIQ (عنود) A thief [TREFT]

SATAN. Arabio Shailan ( 🖦) DBYEL ]

(ستر) SATR A curtain or veil A terro used for the seclusion of women. called also hyab, In the Traditions it is used for mecessary and decont attire, bribu'ssair being a special chapter in the Mushkets I-Masabih (book iv ch. ix.) The sair for a man being from the waist to the knon, and for a free woman from the neck to the feet but for a slave girl from the waist to the knee as in the case of a man That part of the body which must be so covered is called 'awah or 'awat, "shame or modesty," from which the Hindustan word, 'awret, "a woman," is derived [HARIM, WOMEN ]

SATTUQAH (Alpan) Head COIR The term is used for a coin which is current amongst merchants, but is not received at the public treasury. Coins in which the purposeal predominates are not considered base. See Hamilton's Middynh, vol. ii. p. 560.)

SAUDAH (5494) One of the wives of Muhammad. She was the widow of Sakrain, a Quraish, and one of the early companions of the Prophet Muhammad married her within two menths of the death of Khadijah, (Muir's Lefs of Mahomes, new de p 117.) She died a H 55

SAUL Arabio Talūi (المالوك). Heb TIND Shaool King of Israel Montioned in the Qur'an as a king raised up of God toreign over Israel, to whom was given an excellent degree of knowledge and personal appearance

The following is the account given of Seul in the Quran, with Mr Lane's rendering of the commentator's remarks in stakes (Mr.

Stanley Lane Poole s 2nd Ed.)

"Hast thou not considered the assembly of the children of lersel after the death of Mones, when they said unto a prophet of theirs, namely Samuel, Set up for us a king and when we will help in the way of God" under whom we will hight in the way of God He said unto them If fighting be prescribed as moumbont on you, will ye, paradventure, abstain from fighting? They replied, And wherefore should we not fight in the way of God, unce we have been expelled from our habitations and our children by their having been taken prisoners and slain?—The people Gopath [Juloot] had done thus unto them. -But when fighting was commanded them, they turned back, excepting a few of them who crossed the river with Saul. And God And the prophet knoweth the offenders begged his Lord to send a king, whereupon he consented to send Soul And their prophet said unto them, Verily God hath set up Saul as your king They said, How shall he bave the dominion over us, when we are more worthy of the dominion than he, for he was not of the royal inneage, nor of the prophetic, and he was a tanner, or a tender of flooks or herds,) and he bath not been andowed with ample wealth? He replied, Verily God hath chosen him as king over you, and increased him in largeness of knowledge and of hody ( for he was the wisest of the children of Israel at that time, and the most comely of them, and the most perfect of them in make,) and God giveth his kingdom unto whom He pleaseth, and God is ample in His beneficence, knowing with respect to him who is worthy of the king-dom.—And their prophet each duto them, when they demanded of him o signin proof of his kingship. Verily the sign of his kingship shall be that the ark shall come unto you (in st were the smages of the prophets. God sent st down unto Adom and it passed into their posseesion, but the Amalokites took it from them by force and they used to seek victory thereby one their enemy, and to advance it in the fight, and to trust in at, as He-whose name be exalted! hath soid), therein is tranquility [SAKINAB] from your Lord, and relies of what the family of Moses and the family of Aaron have left namely the two shoes (or eandals) of Moses, and his rod, and the turban of Aaron, and a measure of the manna that used to descend upon them, and the fragments of the tables [of the Law] the angele shall bear it Verily in this shall be a sign unto you of his kinaship, if ye be believers. Accord earth, while they looked at it until they placed it by Sant; whereupon they acknowedged his knyship and husened to the holy war and he shore of their young men servenly thousand he shore of their young men servenly thousand he shore of their young men servenly thousand he shore of their young men servenly thousand he shore of their young men servenly thousand he shore of their young men servenly thousand he shore of their young war that the beddent among you and the distoner he said Verty God will try you by a liver, that the obedient among you and the distone be dient may oppear (and it was between the Jordan and Palestine), and whoso drinketh thereof he is not of my party but he who testeth not thereof the is of my party, excepting him who takes for he are given him his hand, and we satisfied therewith, not adding to it, for he is of my porty,—then they drank thereof abundantly excepting a few of them who wehr content only with the handful of water. It is related that it sufficed them for their own drinking and for their beaste and they were three hundred and somewhot mote than ten. And when he had passed over it he and, those who believed with, they said, We have no power to day to contend against Goliath and his trops in, And they vary corardly and passed nod over it. They who held it as certain that they shoud meet (rod at the resurrection (and they were those who had passed over it) and How many a small body of men hath overcome a great body by the permission (or will) of God. And Ged is with the qatient, to defend ano and—And when they went forth to battle against Goliath and his troops they said, O our Lord peur upon us patience, and make firm our teet by strengthening our hearts for the holy war, and help us against the unbelieving people!—And they routed there by the permission (or will) of God and Davidwho was in the ormy of Saul slew Goliat!

SAUM (77) Fasting The usual Ambie teim used for this religious act whether during the Ramazan or all any other time. Its equivalent in Perlian is rough [FASTIAG HAMAZAN]

SAUMU T-TATAWWT (5)-Zyarl) A voluntary fast other tha the month of Kamazan

SAUT (hya) [DIRRAH]

SAWAB (44.14) Recompense reward ,, eg Quran Surah m -125 A reward from God, in God with Him ere the best rewards

As-SAWADU LAZAM (Jaw)t pack), Int The exalted multi-tude A term uset in the Traditions and in Muslim theology for the Assembly of God, or the congregation of forthful men, or for a large majority

SAWAIM (ALL), pl of Salmah Flecks and herds which are grazing and for which zakat must be conected [EAZAT]

p! makitib medensah (مربك), p! makitib medensah (مربك) p! medens According to Musum law all ede cotion should be extred on in connection with religius instruction and consequently schools are generally attached to mesques [EDUCATION]

SCRIPTURE, HOLY The expression, "Holy Scripture is rendered in Persai by Pak Naunshiah Range alle) "the Holy Writing, in equivalent in Arabie being of Kitabu i Mipaddas (gradell and in the Holy Book or Kalama Käk (all M), the Word of God" Those terms, whilst they, are generally understood by Muslims to refer to the Qur'an more correctly include all books, acknowledged by Muslimsato be the Word of God They profess to receive all the Hewisl Scripture and the New Testament as well as the Quran as the revealed Word of God [FROMERS INSPIRATION]

SCULPTURE Arabic ansab (www.) The making of carved, graven, or sculptured figures, is understood to be forbidden in the Quran under the term sanom (www.)." an idel (see Surah xiv 88), also in Surah v 92 "Verily wine, and games of chance and statues (unjab), and drying strows are an abomination of Sarah a device.

Consequently sculpture is not allowed according to Mushim law, although ar Raghib says a sanem is that which divorts the mind from God

SEA Arabic bahr ( ) "The sea " al bahr le a term applied in the Qui'an te the hed Sea known amongst Mulammadaus as the Bahru i-Quiram. [RFD SEAT] Sürahs in 37 vil 194 "The ships that seit like mecuataius in the sea are amongst that seit like mecuataius in the sea are amongst that seit like mecuataius in the sea are amongst that seit like mecuataius in the sea are amongst that seit like mecuataius in the sea are amongst that sea " In Surah , vil 68 " It is the Lurd whe drives the ships for you in the sea, that se may eek after plenty from Him" in Surah jui 109 it occurs as an illustration of the boundless character of the Word of God, "Were the sea ink for the words of my Lord the sea would surely fail before the words of my Lord, fail " aye, though we brought as much ink again"

In Muhammadan works in the Traditions and commentance, the Arabic bahr is a for large rivers as the Euphrates and the

In the same sense as the Habrew D!

you (but the) word nakr, Hobrew 770, nakar occurs in the Our on for "revers") nahar occurs in the Qur an for "rivers".

It is related that Muhammad said, "Let none but three classe of people cross the sea (for it has fire under it which causes its troubled metion) pamely, (1) those who per form the Hay or 'Pilgrinage', (2) those who make the unran of visitation. (3) those who go forth to war." (Mayma'u Hahar, vel i p 76)

The following are the names of the seas as current in Muliammadan literature: -

Al-Bahru 'l-Akhzer, the Green or Indian Ocean

Al-Bahru 7-Abyas, the White or Mediterranean See

Al-Bahrs 1-Aswed, the Black, or Euxine Sea

Al-Bakru 'l-Azrag, the Blue or Persian See

At Bahru 'I-Quisum, or al-Bahru 'I Ahmar, the Red Sea.

Al-Bahru 'l Lut, the Sea of Lot or Dead Sea

Al Rahru'l Khier the sea of Khiar, the Caspian Sea

SEAL OF PROPHECY Khātımu 'n-Nubuwah (الحالم النبوة) A mole of an unusuel size on the Prophete back which is said to have been the divine seal which according to the predictions of the Scripiures, marked Muhammad as the "Seal of the Pro photo," Khatomu'n Nabiyin

According to a tradition recorded in the Mishbatu T Masabib book in ch 7 it wathe size of the knob of a bridal canopy Others say it was the size of a pigeon's egg, or oven the aire of a closed fist.

Shaikh 'Abdu 'l Haqq says "it was a piece of flesh, very brilliant in appearance and according to some traditions it had secretly inscribed within it. God is one and has no Associate?

Abū Ramsa whose family were skilled in surgery offered to remove it, but Muhammed refated, saying, "The Physician thereof is He who piaced it where it is

According to another tradition Muhammad serd to Abu Remea', " Come hither and rouch my back , which he did drawing his fingers over the prophetical sest and, behold' there was a collection of hairs upon the spot (See Muir, newed p 542.)

'Abdu I Huqq also says it disappeared from the Prophet's back shortly before his death

It is not clear how far Muliammad entouraged the belief in this supernatural sign of his prophetic mission, but from his reply to Abu Rames, it would not appear that he really attributed any special power to its existence [MIJHAMMAD]

SECTS OF ISLAM Arabic firgat (نرده), pl firag Muhaminad is re lated to have prophesied that his followers would be divided into numerous religious sect s

Abdu 'linh ibn Umar relates thei the Propart and Verily it will happen to my people even as it did to the Children of Israel. The Children of Israel were divided into seventy-two sects, and my people will be divided into seventy-three Every one of these sects will go to Hell except one sect." The Companions said, "O Prophet, which is that?" He said, "The religion which is professed by me and my Companions." (Mishert, book i. ch. vi. pt. 2.)

The number has however, tar exceeded the Prophet's predictions, for the seels Islam even exceed in number and variety those of the Christian religion

The Sunnis arrogate to themselves the lille of the Nanyah, or those who are "being saved" (as, indeed do the other sects), but within the limits of the Sunni section of Mirhummadans there are four which are esteemed "orthodox," their differences consisting chiefty to minor differences of ritual, and in varied interpretations of Muslim law. These varied interpretations of Muslim law four orthodox sects or schools of interpretation amongst the Sunnis, are the Hanafiyah the Shaft ivah the Malakiya', and the Ham ballyah

1 The Hanatiyaha are tound in Turkey, satral Asia, and North India. The founder Central Asia, and North India of this sect was the Imam Aba Hanifah, who was born at wi-Küfah, the capital of al-Traq, A D. 702, or A H 80 at which time four of the Prophets companions were still alive He is the great oracle of jurisprudence, and (with his two pupils the limans Abu Yusuf and Munammad) was the founder of the Hanafiyah

Code of Law

2 The Shafftyaha are found in South India and Egypt The founder of this school of interpretation was Imam Muhammad ibn Idris as Shāsi'i', who was horn at Asqalon, in Palestine a p 767 (A H 150) 3 The Malakiyahs prevail in Morocco

Barbary and other parts of Africa, and were founded by Imam Malik who was born at al-Madinah At 714 (AH 95) He onjoyed the personal acquaintance of Abu Hanifah and he was considered the most learned mean of his time

4. The Hambaliyahs were founded to Imani Abu Abdi liah Ahmad ibn Muham mad ibn Hambal who was born at Baghdad AD 780 (AH 164), He attended the legtures delivered by ash Shafi's, by whem he was instructed in the Traditiona HE, followers are found in Essuero Arabia and in soms parts of Africa, but it is the leas, popular of the tour schools of interpretation. They have no Mufri at Makkah whilst the other three sects are represented there. The Wallhable rose from this sect

inis rose from this sect [WAHRAMI]
From the disciples of these your great linems have proceeded an immens' number of commentaries and other works, all differing on a yarrely of points in their constructions strhough coinciding in their general print

ciplea

The Ghinasu'l-Lughat gives the following participals of the seventy three sects spoken of in the Traditions, arranging them in six divisions of twelve sects each, and concluding with the Najiyan or "Orthodox" Sunnis

I—The Rafiziuan, "the Separatists," who are divided into-

1. Alawysh, who espen the Khalifah All to have been a prophet Abadiush, who hold that' Ali is divine. 2 Abadiush, who held that Ali is divine.

3 Shuoibiyah, who say Ali was the first and best of the Khalilahs.

4. Iskeqiyak, who say the uge of prophecy is not yet completed

2. Zaidiyak, who hold that prayers can ;

by be led by a descendant of 'Ali C. Abbanyah, who say al 'Abban, the uncle of Muhammad, was the only rightful Imam.

7. Imansiyah, who state that the world is never left without an linkin of the Band Hashim to lead the prayers

8 Neresiyak, who say it is blasphemy for one person to may he is better them another

9. Tanusukhiyah, who believe in the trans migration of souls

10. Laisnigal, those whe curse the names of Talhah, Zubair, and 'Ayishah

11. Ran iyuk, who believe that 'Ali is ludden in the clouds and will return again to this earth.

18 Murtazzeh, who say it is lawful for s Mushm to fight against his Imam

II -The Kharijiyah, "the Abens" who e divided into-l Azragiyah, who say there is no holy wisnon new to be obtained by the sons of men as the days of inspiration are past 2 Rayaziyah, who say a man is saved by good works, and not by faith

3 Sa'labiyah, who say God is indifferent to the actions of men, as though He were in a state of sleep

4 Januaryah, who hold true faith has not yet been made evident

b Khalfiyah, who say to run away even from double the number of mildels is a mortal am for Muslims

6 Kuziyai who say that the human body is not made ready for prayer unless the ablutions be such as entirely cleanse the body

7 Kansiyah, who do not regard the giving of saket as necessary

- \8 Mutazilah, who maintain that evil actions are not according to the decres of God, and that the prayers of a sinful man are not acceptable to God and that faith is of man's free will, and that the Qur'an is orested, and that almsgiving and prayer do not bemefit the dead, and that there is as missis or intab, &b, at the Day of Judg mont.
- 9 Manuscrival, who hold that belief m the unseen is absurd.

10 Muhbamiyah, who say God has not ro vealed Eis will to mankind

11 Sireginal, who believe the example of the saints is of no importance

12 Akhnapiyah, who held that there is no pumahment for an

III -The Jabanyal, the "Demors of Free Will " who are divided into-

1 Muziarry pt, who hold that both good and evil are entirely from God, and man is not responsible I., his actions

2 Affaliyah, who say man is responsible for his actions although the power to do and to not is alone from God

3. Mutyal, who bolleve that man possesses an antirely free will

Tariquyah. who say faith without works will ave a man

5 Bakktiyas who believe that as every mortal receives according to God's special gift, it is not therefore lawful for one to give to another

6 Mutamannyuh, who hold that good works are those from which comfert and haqpiness are derived in this world

7 Kasldniyah they who say punishment and reward is inflicted by God aly according to the actions of man,

8. Habibiyah, who held that as one friend never injures another, so God, who is a God of love, does not punish his own greation.

9 Khasfiyah, who say that just as a friend does not terrify his friend, so God dess not terrify his people by jadgments

10 Fikriyes, who say contemplation to better than worship, and more pleasing to GnA

11 Hasabiyah, who held that in the world there is no mich a thing as fats or predestine-

12 Hunganyak, who say that insamuch as God doeth everything and everything is of God, man cannot be made responeable for either good or evil

IV -The Qadanyah, the Asserters of Free Will," who are divided inte-

1 Ahadiyah, who accept the mjunctions of God, but not those of the Prophet

2 Sangunyah, who say there are etwo sternal principles, good and evil, good being of Yazdan and evil being of Ahraman.

8 Kausaniyak, who say our actions are other the creation of God or they are not

4 Shastanigah, who deny the personality of Satan

5 Sharikiyah, who say faith in giver make: lug, or 'uncreated'

6. Wakmiyas, who say the actions of man are of no consequence, whether they he good OF evel

7. Russadiyas, who maintain that the world has an eternal existence.

8 Nakwiyah, who say it is lawful to fight against the Imam or Khalifah.

9 Mutebarryah, who say the repentance of sumers is not accepted by Oud
10 Questyah, who hold that the acquire ment of wealth and learning is a raligiont duty ordered by God li Nazāmunā, who maintain that it is is is lawful to speak of the Almighty as a thing

(skm)
12 Matamally tych, who say it is not folk decree or wident whether evil is by God's decree or not

V - The Jakemiyah, the followers of Jahun the Salwar, who are divided into-

I Mu'aftanyah, who say the names and attributes of God are created

2 Mutarabismuk who hold that the power, knowledge, and purpose of Ged are created 8. Matardulbiput. who say Ged has place 4 Wardwal, who state that those who enter hell will never escane from it. and that mu'men or "believer will mever quier bell.

rrqlyah, who say the inhabitants of so burn, that in time they will be anikhlüqiyah, who believe that the the Taurat, the Injii, and the Zubur ted ariyah, who say Muhammad was a man, and a philosopher, but not a niyah, who say both Paradise and I be annihilated nadaqiyah, who say the Mi'raj, or of Muhammad to heaven," was only pirit, and that the world is sternal, there is no Day of Judgment

afziyah, who hold that the Qur'an is aspired writing, but that its instrucs of God abriyah, who say there is no punishthe grave

Vaqu'iyah, who state that it is not whether the Qur'an is create or un-

The Murjiyah, or "Prograstinators" divided intoriquyah, who say nothing is necessary z'iyah, who maintain that when once a las repeated the Muhammadan creed red jiyah, who believe that the worship a not necessary to piety, nor are good ecessary ikkiyah, who say a man cannot be if he has faith or not, for faith is hiyah, who say faith is knowledge, se who do not know the commandf God have not faith saliyah, who say faith is but good inquisiyah, who say faith is sometimes sometimes more ustagenyah, who deprecate assurance on, but say, "we are believers if God h'ariyah, who say quyas, or "analo-asoning, in matters of faith is untaigah, who hold that it is a duty to uler, even if he give orders which are fushabbihiyah, who say God did liteike Adam in his own image

Taskawiyah, who consider that in law there is no difference between much, and mustahab

-The Nanyah, or "Saved Ones," make omplete number of seventy-three ale traces all the Muhammadan sects sources — is Mu'tassliyaks, the followers of n'Ata, who may be said to have been t inventor of scholastic divinity in e Stfätiyaks, or Attributusts, who hold vary opinions of the Mutasiliyaks e Khāryiyaks, or Aliens Those who I from 'Ali.

e Shi ahs or the followers of All

The author of the Sharku'l-Munager says there are eight leading divisions of the sects of Islam —

1 The Mn'tazilah.

2 The Shi ahs

8 The Khawarij

4 The Murjivah 5 The Najjāriyah

6 The Jabariyah

The Mushabbihiyah

8. The Namyah

For an account of these leading sects, the reader is referred to the articles under their respective fitles

Shaikh 'Abdu 'l-Qādir says there are not less than 150 sects in Islām

SERMON The oration delivered at the Friday midday prayer is called the Lhufbah (Lhu), exhortations at any other time are termed wa'z (he). The former is an established custom in Islām, and the discourse is always delivered at the Massidu'l-Jāmi', or principal mosque, on Fridays, but sermons on other occasions although they are in accordance with the practice of Muhammad, are not common. Very few Maulawis preach except on Fridays. [KHUTBAH]

SERPENT, Arabic haryah (4.2), occurs in the Qur'an once for the serpent made from Moses' rod (Surah ii 21). The word used in another place (Surah vii. 104) is su'bān (Cites). The Hebrew [12] tanneen is also used for a large serpent in Muslim books, but it does not occur in the Qur'an

In the Qur'an, Sürah is 84, it is said Satan made Adam and Eve to backslide and "drove them out from what they were in," but no mention is made of the serpent

The commentators say that when the devil attempted to get into Eden to tempt Adam, he was stopped by the angelic guard at the gates of Paradise whereupon he begged the animals to carry him in to speak to Adam and his wife, but they all refused except the serpent, who took him between his teeth and so introduced him to our first parents (Tafsitu 'I-'Azīti, p. 124)

SETH Arabic Shis (4.4), Heb

The Sheth The third son of Adam A prophet to whom it is said God revealed fifty small portions of scripture [PROPHETS]

In the fourth century there existed in Egypt a sect of gnostics, calling themselves Sethians, who regarded Seth as a divine emanation (Nesuder's Ch Hut, vol u p 115), which will account for Muhammad classing him as an inspired prophet with a revelation.

 the Qur'an contains seven kinds of revelation. Commandment (amr), prohibition (nah), history (quadh), parable (muāl), exhortation (wa'a), promises (wa'dah), and threatening (wa'id) But the more common interpretation of aeruf is "dialects," by which is understood that by changing the infisctions and accentuations of words, the text of the Qur'an may be read in the then existing "seven dialects" of Arabia, namely, Quraish, Tany, Hawazin, Yaman, Saqif, Huzail, Tamim [Qur'an]

" peace," occurs -

Sureh xxx\1 58 "Peace shall be the word spoken unto the righteous by a merciful God"

Sürah xxxvn. 77 "Peace be on Noah and on all creatures"

Sūrah xxxvii 109 "Peace be on Abra-

Sürah xxxvii 120 "Peace be on Moses and Aaron"

Sürah xxxvii, 180 "Peace be on Eliss" Sürah xxxvii, 181 "Peace be on His apostles"

Surah xcvn 5 "It is peace until the breaking of the morn

These verses are recited by the religious Muslim during sickness, or in seasons of danger or distress. In some parts of Islam it is customary to write these seven verses of the Qur'an on paper and then to wash off the ink and drink it as a charm sgainst evil

SHABAN (Otal) Let "The month of separation." The eighth month of the Muhammadan year So-called because the Arabs used to separate themselves in search of water during this month

SHAB-I-BARĀT (حرب براه) The Persian title for the fifteenth day of the month Shabān, which is called in Arabic Lailatu nang min Shabān, or "the night of the middle of Sha'ban "

On this night, Muhammad said, God registers annually all the actions of mankind which they are to perform during the year, and that all the children of men, who are to be born and to die in the year, are recorded Muhammad, it is said, enjoined his followers to keep awake the whole might, to repeat one hundred rak'ah prayers, and to fast the next day; but there are generally great rejoicings instead of a fast, and large sums of money are spent in freworks. It is the "Guy Fawkee Day" of India, being the night for display of fireworks.

The Shab-s-Barāt is said to be referred to in the xixvih Sūrah of the Qur'ān, verse 2, as "the night on which all things are disposed in wisdom," although the commentators are not agreed as to whether the verse alludes to this night or the Shab-s-Qadr, on the 27th of the month of Ramazan

The Shab-i-Barat is frequently confounded with the Latlatu 'l-Qadr or, as it is called in India, the Shab-i-Qadr SHADI (ale). Persian Lit "Festivity" The ordinary term used for weddings amongst Persian and Urdu-speaking peoples In Arabio the term is 'ure (app).

[MARRIAGE.]

SHADĪDU 'L-QUWĀ (مديد العرب).

Let "One terrible in power" A title given to the agent of inspiration in the Süratu 'l-Najm (liii), verse 5 "Verily the Qur'an is no other than a revelation revealed to him one terrible in power (shadidu 'l-quud) taught it him."

Commentators are unanimous in assigning this title to the angel Gabriel SHAF' (246). A term used for rak'ahs of prayer when recited in pairs

SHAFA'AH (Lolas). [INTERCES-

ASH-SHĀFI'I (الشانعي) Imām Muhammad ibn Idris ash-Shāfi'i, the founder of one of the four orthodox sects of Sunnis, was born at Askalon in Palestine A H. 150 He was of the same tribe as the Prophet, and is distinguished by the appellation of al-Imamu I-Muttalibi, or Quraish Muttalibi, because of his descent from the Prophet's grandfather, 'Abdu 'l-Muttalib He derived his patronymic ash-Shad'i from his grand-father, Shad'i Ibn as-Sa'ib. His family were at first among the most inveterate of Muhammad's enemies Hie father, carrying the standard of the tribe of Hashim at the battle of Badr, was taken prisoner by the Muslims, but released on ransom, and afterwards became a convert to Islam. Ash-Shaff-I ia reported by Muslim writers to be the most accurate of all the traditionists, and, if their accounts be well founded, nature had indeed endowed him with extraordinary talents for excelling in that species of literature. It is said that at seven years of age he had got the whole Quran by rote, at ten he had committed to memory the Muwatta' of Mälik, and at fifteen he obtained the rank of Musti He passed the earlier part of his his at Gaza, in Palestine (which has occasioned many to think he was born in that place), there he completed his education and afterwards removed to Makkah lectures on the traditions, and composed his first work, entitled al-Usul From Baghdad he went on a relections. he went on a pilgrimage to Makkah, and from thence afterwards passed into Egypt, where he met with Imam Malik It does not appear that he ever returned from that country, but spent the remainder of his life there, dividing his time between the axercises of religion, the instruction of the ignorant, and the composition of his later works died at Cairo A.H 204 Although he was forty-seven years of age before he began to publish, and died at fifty-four, his works are more veluminous than those of any other Muslim doctor He was a great enemy to the scholastic divines, and most of his productions (especially upon theology), were written with a view to controvert their absurdates. He is said to have been the first who reduced the science of Jurisprüdenos into a regular system, and to have made a systematic collection of traditions Imam Hambal remarks that until the time of ash-Shaff'i men did not know how to dustinguish between the traditions that were in force and those that were cancelled first work was, as before-mentioned, the Usul, or "fundamentals," containing all the principles of the Muslim civil and canon law His next literary productions were the Sunan and Masnad, both works on the traditional law, which are held in high estimation among His works upon practical dithe Sunnie vinity are various, and those upon theology consist of fourteen volumes. His tomb is still to be seen at Cairo, where the famous Salahu d-din afterwards (A H 587) founded a college for the preservation of his works and the propagation of his doctrines mosque at Hīrah was built by Sultān Chiyasu d-Din for the same purpose Imam ash Shan'i is said to have been a person of acute discernment and agreeable conversation His reverence for God was such that he never was heard to mention his name except in prayer His manners were mild and ingratuating, and he reprobated all unnecessary moroseness or severity in a teacher, it being a saying of his that whoever advised his brother tenderly and in private did him a service, but that public reproof could only opciate as a reproach. His principal pupils were Imam Ahmad ibn Hambal and az-Zuhairi, the former of whom afterwards founded a sect [HANDAL]

The Shaff's sect of Sunnie is objectly met with in Egypt and Arabia.

SHAGHAR ( AM) A double treaty of marriage common amongst the pagan Araba, viz. the man marrying the sieter or daughter of another, and in return giving his sister or daughter in order to avoid paying the usual dower. It is strictly forbidden by the Muhammadan religion (ees Mishket, book zii. oh. 11), although it is even now practized by the people of Central Asıa

SHAH (54) Persian. "A King" A title usually given to members of the Ascetto order, and to Salyids, as Faqir Shāh, Akbar Shāh It has, however, become a common addition to surnames, both in India and other countries, and no longer denotes a position of dignity

SHAHADAH (šalaa) "Evidence" [WITNESSES.] Martyrdom. [MARTYRS.]

SHAHID (444). [MARTYRS, WIT-HRSS.]

ASE-SHAHID (Just). "The Witness " One of the ninety-nine names or attributes of God It frequently occurs in the Qur'an for the Almighty (e.g Sürah ili. 98) as one who seeth all things.

SHAHINSHAH Persian title given to the King of Persia-"King of Kings" It is a title strictly for bidden in Traditions, in which it is related that Muhammad said "King of Kings is the vilest name you can call a man, for there is no other King of Kings but God" (Mishkāt, book xxir ch viir)

SHAIKH (همنه), pl shuyūkh, ash-yūkh, or mashāyikh. A venerable old man. A man above fifty years of age. A man of A superior of an order of Dar-Shaykhu 'l-Islam, a title given to Wesues the chief Maulawi or Qazi of the cities of Constantinople, Cairo, Damaecus, &c

[DEVIL] (هيطان) DEVIL]

SHAJJAH ( , pl. shijāj [WOUNDS]

SHAKING HANDS Arabic musāfahah (مصافحة) Is enjoined in the Traditions, and is founded upon the express example of Muhammad hymself

Al-Bara' ibn Azib says the Prophet said, "There are no two Muslims who meet and shake hands but their sins will be forgiven them before they esparate" (Mishkat, book xxu ch. m.)

(الشكور) ASH-SHAKUR Acknowledger of Thanksgiving " One of the ninety-nine special attributes of the Al-mighty Quran, Surah xxxv 27 "Verily He (God) is forgiving, and an acknowledger of thanksgiving" When used for anyone but God it means one who is grateful, a.g. Quran, Sürah xxxiv. 12 'Few of my servants are grateful"

ASH-SHA'M (Ilala) Let "That which is on the left-hand (looking to the rising sun)," te the northern country to rising sun), Makkah Syria

ASH-SHAMS (الشمس) " The Sun" The title of the xcist Surah of the Qur'an, which begins with the word.

SHAQQU 'S-SADR (هن العدر)
Lif "The epitting open of the heart " Anas relates that "the Angel Gabriel came to the Prophet, when he was playing with boys, and took hold of him, and laid him on the ground, and split open his heart, and brought out a little bag of blood, and said to Muhammad 'This is the devil's part of you. After this, Gabriel washed the Prophet's heart with zamzani water, then sewed it up and replaced it. Then the boys who were with the Prophet came running to his nurse, saying, 'Verily Muhammad is killed.'" Anas also eave that he "had seen the marks of the sewing in the Prophet's breast." (Michkit, book xxiv ch. vi)

According to the commentators al-Bankwi, al-Kamalan, and Husain, the first verse of the xurvth Surah of the Qur'an refers to this event. "Have we not opened thy breast for thee, and taken off from thee thy burden, which galled thy back?" But it seems probable that this simple verse of one of the earliest chapters of the Qur'an refers merely to the enlightenment of Muhammad's heart, and that his followers afterwards invented the miracle in order to give a supernatural turb to the passage [MUHAMMAD]

SHAR' (A,S) [LAW]

SHARĀB (حراب) In its original meaning, "that which is drunk" A drink Always applied to wine and intoxicating drinks. In mystic writings, sharāb, "wine," signifies the dominion of Divine love over the heart of man

'Expound-SHARH (c,4)  $L_{t}$ ing" A term used for a commentary written in explanation of any book or treatise, as distinguished from tafsir which is used only for a commentary of the Qur'an expositions are written either in the toxt, or on the side of the book or treatise they attempt to expound The term, however, generally used for marginal notes is hashiyah For example, the Tanwiru '!-Absar is the mata, or text, of a great work on Muhammadan laws, written by Shamsu d Din Muhammad AH 995, the Durru'l Mukhtā: 18 a sharh, or commentary written on that work by 'Ala'd-Din Muhammad, AH 1088, and the Hashiyah, or marginal notes on these two works, is the Raddu'l-Muhtar, by Muhammad Amin

SHARI'AH (المرية) The law, including both the teaching of the Qui an and of the traditional sayings of Muhammad [LAW]

SHART (4,4) The conditions of marriage, of contracts, &c

SHAVING The shaving of the beard is forbidden in the Traditions, for Ibn 'Umar relates that the Prophet said "Do the opposite of the polytheists, let your beards grow long and clip your mustachies" The shaving of the head is allowed, provided the whole and not a part is shaven for the Prophet said "Shave off all the hair of the head or let it alone (Mishkat, xx ch iv pt 3)

In Alghanistan it is the custom to shave the head, but not in other parts of Islam

SHAVING THE HEAD Arabic tahliq (المالية) Forbidden in the Hadis (Mishkāt, book xi) ch v), although it is most common amongst the Muhammadans of India and Central Asia

SHAWWAL (1). Let "The month of raising the tail" The earth month of the Muhammadan year For a discussion of the meaning of the title of this month, see Lane's Arabic Dict in loco

SHA'YĀ' (alas) [ISAIAH]

SHECHINA. [SAKINAH, TABUT.]

SHEM Arabic Sam (al.) A son of Noah Not mentioned in the Qur'an, but his name is given in commentaries

SHI'AH (La.L.). Let "Followers." The followers of 'Ali, first cousin of Muhammand and the husband of his daughter Fājimah. The Shi'ahs maintain that 'Ali was the first legitimate Imām or Khalifah, or successor, to the Prophet, and therefore reject Abu Bakr, 'Umar, and 'Umain, the first three Khalifahs of the Sunni Muslims, as usurpers They are also called the Imāmorahs, because they believe the Muslim religion consists in the true knowledge of the Imām or rightful leaders of the faithful Also the Imā-'asharīyah, or the twelveurs, as followers of the twelve Imāma. The Sunni Muslims chill them the Rāfizī. or the forsakers of the truth. The Shi'ahs strenuously maintain that they are the "orthodox" Muslims and arrogate to themselves (as do also the Sunnia) the title of al-Mu'minān, or the "True Believere"

The spirit of division, which appeared among the followers of Muhammad, even before his death, broke out with greater violence after it and the rapid strides of his successors to even imperial power, only af forded a wider sphere for ambition. The great and radical difference between the Shi'ahe and Sunnis, as we have already remarked, arises from the former maintaining the divine and indefeasible right of 'Ali to succeed to the Khahfate on the death of the Prophet 'Ali s claims, they assert, rested on his nearness of kindred to Muhammad, of whom he was a cousin, and on his having married Fatimah, the only offspring of the Prophet which survived him They also assort that he was expressly declared his successor by the Prophet himself, under direct guidance from God

The text quoted in defence of the divine institution of the Khalifate in the Prophet's own family, is the 118th verse of the Süratu 'l-Baqarah, or the Second Chapter of the Qur'an, which reads—

"And when his Lord tried Abraham with words and he fulfilled them, He said, 'I am about to make of thee an IMAM to mankind', hs said, 'Of my offspring also?' 'My covenant,' said God, 'embraceth not evil doers.'"

According to the Shi'shs, this passage shows that the Imamate, or Khalifate, is a divine institution, and the possessor thereof must be of the seed of Abraham. This the Sunnis would also admit, as they hold that the true Khalifah can only be one of the Quraish tribe [EHALIFAH], but from the expression, "my covenant embraceth not evil doers," the Shi'sh doctors establish the supernatural character of the Khalifate, and hold that the divinely appointed leader must himself be without spot or blemish or espacity to sin. The primeval creation of 'Ali is therefore a dogma of the Shi'sh faith.

The author of the Hayatu '!- Quite (Mer-rick's ed., p. 4), says "The Prophet de-elared that the Most High had created him, and 'Ali and Fatimah, and Hasan and Husain, before the creation of Adam, and when as yet there was neither heaven, nor earth, nor darkness, nor light, nor sun, nor moon, nor paradise, nor hell ' [HAQIQATU'I.-WUHAMMADIYAH ]

The Shi'ah traditions also give very lengthy accounts of the nomination of 'Ali by the Prophet to be his successor The following is the account given in the Hayatu 'l-Qulub

(p 884) —
"When the ceremonies of the pilgrimage were completed, the Prophet, attended by 'Ali, and the Muslims, left Makkah for al-Madinah On reaching Ghadirkhum the Prophet halted, although that place had never been known as a stopping-place for earavans because it had neither water nor pasturage The reason for stopping at this place being a direct message from the Almighty. The Prophet had received divine messages on the subject before, but He had not before expressly appointed the time of 'Ali'e mauguration."

"As the day was very hot, the Prophet ordered them to take shelter under some thorn trees Having ordered all the camelsaddles to be piled up for a pnlpit, he commanded a herald to summon the people around him. Most of them had bound their cloaks on their feet as a protection from the When all the people were excessive heat assembled, the Prophet ascended the pulpit made of camel-saddles, and, calling to him the Commander of the Faithful ('Ali), placed him on his right hand Muhammad then gave praise to God, and foretold his own death, saying that he had been called to the gate of God He then said, 'I leave among you the Book of God, to which, while you adhere, you will never go astray I leave with you the members of my family who cannot be separated from the Book of God until both they and the Book join me at the fountain of al-Kausar' [KAUSAR] He then, with a loud voice, said, 'Am I not dearer to you than your own lives?' And all the people said, 'Yes' He then took the hands of All and raised them up so high, that the white of his arm-pits appeared, and said, Whoseever from his heart receives me as his master, then let him receive 'Alı O Lord, befriend 'Ali. Be the enemy of all his enemies. Help all who help him, and forsake all who forsake him "

The writer also says:-

"Certain authorities, both Shi'ah Sunni, declare that when the Prophet died, the hypocritical Muhājirs and Anears, such as Abu Bakr, 'Umar, and 'Abdu 'r-Rahman ibnu 1-'Auf, instead of visiting the family of the Prophet to comfort them at the time of his death, assembled at the abode of the Banu Saudah, and plotted to seize the Khalifate Most of them did not perform the prayers at the Prophet's burial, although 'Ali sent to call them for the purpose. This plan was to make Aba Bakr Khalifah, and for this they had plotted in the Prophet's lifetime. hypocritical Ansars, however, wished to make Sa'd ibnu 'l-Abadah Khalifah, but they were over-ruled by the Muhājira. A certain man brought the information that Abū Bakr was constituted Khahifah, when 'Alī was in the act of filling in the earth of the Prophet's grave, and said that the hypocrites had feared that if they waited till the funeral caremony was over, they would not succeed in their design of depriving 'Ali of his rights 'Ali laid his spade on the ground and recited the first verses of the xxixth Surah of the Qur'an 'A L M Do men reckon that they will be left alone who say, "We believe," and not be tried? We did try those who were before them, and God will surely know those who are truthful, and he will surely know those who are hars'"

The Shi'she believe that at this time God made special revelations to Fatimah, the Prophet's daughter, and 'Ali's wife These revelations are said to have been possessed by the last of the Imams, al-Mahdi, and to be still in his possession. [MARDI]

It need scarcely be added that the Sunni writers deny every word of these traditions

The strong hand of the Sunni Khalifah 'Umar kept the claims of 'Ali in abeyance, but when 'Umar died, the Khalifate was offered to 'Alī, on condition that he would govern according to the Qur'an, and the traditions as received by the Sunnis answer of Ali not being deemed satisfactory, the election devolved upon 'Usman (Othman). Usman was assassinated A H 85, and 'Ali was elected on his own terms, in spite of the opposition of 'Avishah, the favourite wife of the Prophet, who had become a great influence in Islam.

One of the first acts of 'Ali was to recall Mu'awiyah from Syria Mu'awiyah refused, and then claimed the Khalifate for himself His claims were supported by 'Avishah. 'Ali was eventually assassinated at Kufah, AR 40, and upon his death his son Hasan was elected Khalifah, but he resigned it in favour of Mu'awiyah, on the condition that he should resume it on the death of the latter Mu'awiyah consented to this arrangement, although secretly determining that his own son Yazıd should be his successor

Upon the death of Mu'āwiyah, A. H. 60, his son Yazıd, "the Polluted," obtained the posisition of Imam or Khalifah, without the form of election, and with this event commenced the great Shi'ah schism, which has divided the forces of Islam until this day

The leading, or "orthodox" sect of the Shi'shs, the Imamiyahs, receive the following as the rightful Khalifahs -

1 'Alī, the son-m-law of the Prophet

Al-Hasan, the son of 'Ali.

8 Al-Husain, the second son of 'Alī.

4 'Ali, surnamed Zamu 1-'Abidin, the son of al-Hussin.

5 Muhammad al-Baqur, son of Zainu 1 •Abıdīn

6. Jafar as-Sadiq son of Muhammad al-

7. Mūsā al-Kāşim, son of Jā'far

8. Ar-Rass, son of Müsä.

9 Muhammad at-Taqi, son of ar-Rază. 10. Ali an-Naqi, son of Muhammad at-Taqi

11 Al-Hasan al-'Askari, son of 'Ali an-

Nagi,

12 Muhammad, son of al-Hasan al-Askari, or the Imām al-Mahdi, who is supposed by the Shrahs to be still alive, 'hough he has withdrawn for a time, and they say he will again appear in the last days as the Mahdi, or "Director," which the Prophet prophesied would appear before the Day of Judgment

[MAMDI ]

The imagnites trace the descent of this Imam Muhammad as direct from 'Ali, thus making him the twelfth lawful Imam, on which account they are called the Isna 'asharigah, or the "Twelveans" They assert that this last Imam, whilst still a boy, being persecuted by the Abbaside Khalifahs, disappeared down a well in the courtyard of a house at Hillah near Baghdād, and Ibn Khaldun says, so late as even in his day, devout Shī'ahs would assemble every evening after sunset at this well and entreat the absent Imam to appear again on earth

In the present day, during the absence of the Imam, the Shi'ahs appeal to the Mujtakidan, or "enlightened doctors of the law," whose opinion is final on all matters, both temporal and spiritual

There have been two great schisms in the succession of the Imains, the first upon the death of 'Ali Zsinu I 'Abidin, when part of the sect adhered to his son Zaid, the founder of the Zaidiyah sect. And the second on the death of as-Şādiq, when his father nominated his second son, Musā al Kāzim as his successor, instead of allowing the Khalifate to go in Ismā'il's family, those who adhered to Isma'il's family being called Ismā'iliyah. The great body of the Shi'ahs acknowledge Musā al Kāzim and kis descendants as the true Imāms

The Isma'iliyah, like the Twelveans, make profession of a loyal attachment to the cause of 'Ali. Their schism was occasioned by a dispute regarding the succession to the Imamate on the death of Imam Jafar Sadiq Jafar had four sons, the eldest of whom was Ismā'il. One day, however, Ismā'il was seen m a state of mebriety, and his father disinherited him, and appointed his son Musa. greater number of the Shi ahs accepted this decision, but a small number, who regarded the drunkenness of the Imam as an evidence that he accepted the hidden meaning and not the legal precepts of Islam ('), remained attached to Ismail They say from the time of 'Ali to the death of Muhammad, the son of Ismā'il, the Imams were visible, but from his death commenced the succession of concealed Imams. The fourth of shore "concealed Imāms was a certain 'Abdu 'llāh, who lived about the third century of the Hijrah

The contentions of the Shī'ahs regarding the succession have become endless, and of the proverbial seventy-three sects of Islâm, not fewer than thirty-two are assigned in Shi'ahs, and, according to the Shari Munaqui, there are as many as seventhree sects of the Shi'ahs alone.

According to the Starke '-Munique, three principal sects of the Shi'as are Ghulāt, or Zealots, the title generally g to those who, through their excessive for the Imams, have raised them above degree of human beings (2) Zardī those who separated after the appointn of Muhammad Baqır to the Khalifate, followed Zaid (3) Imamiyah, or those acknowledged Jafar Şādiq as the righ Imām, to the exclusion of Isma'il, and wi appears to be what may be called the or dox sect of the Shi'as Out of these th great divisions have grown innumerable se which it would be tedious to define Shī'ah religionista are more or less infec with mysticism

Many of the Shi'ahs have carried to veneration for 'Ali so far, as to raise him the position of a divine person, and most the sects make their Imams partakers of divine nature. These views have their fodation in the traditions already quoted, where the pre-existence of Muhammad 'Ali, and they have undoubtedly been foste by the gnostic tendencies of all forms of pain belief especially Suffism [SUFL]

sian belief especially Suffism [SUFL]
Since the accession of Ismā'il, the first the Sūff dynasty, A.D. 1499, the Shi'sh ft has been the national religion of Per Nādir Shah, when at the summit of his pov attempted to convert the Persians to Sunni form of Islām, in order to assist ambitious designs, but the attempt falled, the attachment of the Persians to the Shi faith has remained as decided as ever

Sir Lewis Pelly remarks -

'Though the personal history of Ali i his sons was the exciting cause of the Sh schism, its predisposing cause hes far dee in the impassable ethnological gulf wh separates the Aryan and Semitio rac Owing to their strongly centralised form government, the empire of the Sassani succumbed at once before the onslaught the Saracene, still, Persia was never re-converted to Islam, and when Mohamm the son of Ali, the son of Abduliah, the of Abbas, the uncle of the Prophet Mohs med, proclaimed the Imamate as inherent divine right, in the descendants of the Cal Ali, the vanquished Persians rose at one n against their Arab conquerors. The sons Abbas had all espoused the cause of the outen Ali against Moswiyah, and when Ye succeeded to the Caliphate, Abdullah refu to acknowledge him, and retired to Mec It was he who tried to dissuade Husain fr going to Cufa His son was Ali, who, order of the Caliph Walid, was flogged s paraded through the streets of Damasc mounted on a camel, with his face to its to and it was to avenge this insult on his fat! that Mchammed resolved to overthrow dynasty of the Ommisdes

The Persians, in their hatred of 1

Arabs, had from the first accepted the rights of the sons of Ali and Fatiman to the Imamate. and Mohammed cumingly represented to them that the Imamats had been transmitted to him by Abou Hashim, the son of Mohammed, another son of the Caliph Ali, whose mother was a daughter of the tribe of Hanifah. This was a gross fraud on the descendants of Fatimah, but the Persians cared not so long as they threw off the Arab yoke." (Msracle Play, Intro., p xvi., W. H. Allen & Oo., 1879.)

The Muhammadans of the province of Oudh in British India are for the most part Shi'ahs, and there are a few in the region of Tirah, on the frontier of India With the exception of the province of Oudh, the Muhammadans of India are for the most part Sunnis of the Hanafi sect, but practices pecuhar to the Shi'ahs have long prevailed in certain localities. In most parts of India, where the parties are Shi'ahs, the law of this school of jurisprudence is always administered, especially with regard to marriage and inheritance

It is not correct, as stated by Sale (Introduction to the Koran) and others, that the Shi'ahs reject the Sunnah, or Traditions, for although the Shi'ahs do not receive the " six correct books of the Sunnis," they acknowledge five collections of their own. namely (1), Al-Kāfī, (2) Manlayastahzırahu 'l-Faqih, (3) Tahzīb, (4) İstibşar, (5) Nahju 'l-Balāghah. [TRADITIONS] The works 'l-Balaghah. [TRADITIONS] written on the traditions are very numerous

The Rev James L. Merrick (Boston, 1850) has translated into English portions of the Hayaru 'l-Quinb, the most popular book of traditions amongst the Shī'ahs. It was ori-ginally compiled by Muhammad Bāqir, son of Muhammad Tāki, whose last work was the well-known Haggu 'l-Yaqin, A.H. 1027 (A.D. 1627).

The Shiah school of jurisprudence is of earher date than that of the Sunnis, for Abu Hanifah, the father of the Sunni Code of Muslim isw, received his first instructions in jurisprudence from Ja'far as-Şādiq, the sixth Imam of the Shi'ahs, but this learned doctor afterwards separated from his teacher, and established a code of laws of his own.

The differences between the Shi she and the Sunnis are very numerous, but the following are the principal points -

(1) The discussion as to the office of Imam, already alinded to

(2) The Shrahe have a profound veneration for the Khalifah 'Ali, and some of their sects regard him as an moarnation of divinity, whilst they all assert that next to the Prophet, 'All is the most perfect and excellent of men.

(8) They still possess Mujiahids, or "enlightened doctors," whose opinion is final in matters of Muslim law and dootrine. The Mujtahid is the highest degree amongst Mu-hammadan doctors. The Sunnis say, in the present divided condition of Islam it is impossible to appoint them, but the Shi'ahs still elect them in Persia, and the appointment is confirmed by the king [MUSTAND]

(4) They observe the ceremonies of the Minharram in commemoration of al-Hasan and al-Husain, whilst the Sunnis only observe the tenth day of the Muharram, or the 'Askura', being, they say, the day on which

God created Adam [MUHARRAM.]
(5) They include the Majusi, or fire worshippers, amongst the Ahlu 'l-Kitāb, or people who have received an inspired record from God, whilst the Sunnis only acknowledge the Jews, Christians, and Muslims as such

(6) They admit the principle of religious compromise called Taqiyah (ht. "Guarding oneself") A pious fraud, whereby the Shī'ah Muhammadan believes he is justified in either smoothing down, or denying, the peculiarities of his religious belief in order to save himself from persecution. [TAQITAH.]

(7) There are also various minor differences in the liturgical coremonies of the Shi aha, which will be found in the account of the liturgical prayers [PRAYER.]

(8) The differences between the civil law of the Shi'ahs and Sunni have been carefully noted in Mr N B E. Baillie's Introduction to his Digest of the Imameea Code (London,

(a) "With regard to the sexes, any connection between them, which is not sanctioned by some relation founded upon contract or upon slavery, is denounced by both the sects as zina, or formication But, according to the Hanafiyahs, the contract must be for the lives of the parties, or the woman be the slave of the man, and it is only to a relation founded on a contract for life that they give the name of nikāh, or marriage According to the Shi'shs, the contract may be either tomporary, or for life, and it is not necessary that the slave should be the actual property of the man, for it is sufficient if the naufruot of her person be temporarily surrendered to him by her owner To a relation established in any of these ways they give the name of nikah, or marriage, which is thus, according to them, of three kinds, permanent, temporary, and servile. It is only their permanent marriage that admits of any comparison with the marriage of the Hanafiyahs And here there is, in the first place, some difference in the words by which the contract is effected According to the Hanafiyahs, the words may be sarek (express) or kinayah (ambiguous). According to the Shi'ahs, they must always be express, and to the two express terms of the other sect (wkah and tazwij) they add a third mutah, which is rejected by the others as insufficient [KUTAE.] Further, while the Hanafiyahs regard the presence of witnesses as essential to a valid contract of marriage, the Shī'shs do not deem it to be in anywise necessary The causes of prohibition correspond, to some extent, in both schools, but there is this difference between them, that the Hana-flyah includes a difference of dar, or nationality, among the causes of prohibition, and excludes kin, or imprecation, from among them while the Shi'sh excludes the former and includes the latter There is, also, some difference between them as to the conditions and restrictions under which fosterage becomes a ground of prohibition And with regard to infidelity, though both schools entirely prohibit any sexual intercourse between a Mushmah or Musalman woman and a man who is not of her own religion, the Hanafi allows of such intercourse, under the sanction of marriage or of slavery, between a Muslim and any woman who is a kitabiyah, that is, who belongs to any sect that is supposed to have a revealed religion, while the Shi'ah restricts such connection to mutah, or temporary and servils marriages Among Kitabiyah both schools include Christians and Jews, but the Hanafi rejects Majūsie, or fire worshippers, who are included among them by the Shi'ahs The Shi'ahs do not appear to make any distinction between invalid and valid marriages, all that are forbidden being apparently void accord ing to them But the distinction is of little importance to the parties themselves, as under neither of the schools does an unlawful marriage confer any nheritable quality upon the parties, and the rights of the children born of such marriagee are determined by another consideration, which will be advoited to in the proper place heroafter

"(b) With regard to the service marriage of the Shi'she, it is nothing more than the right of sexual intercourse which every master has with his clavee, but there is the same difference between the two sects, in this case, as in that of marriage by contract According to the Hanafiyahs, the right must be permanent, by the woman's being the actual property of the man. According to the Shi'aha, the right may be temporary, as when it is conceded for a limited time by the owner of the slave When a slave has borno a child to her own master, which he acknowledges, she becomes his umm-ul-walad, or mother of a child, and cannot be sold, while she is entitled to emancipation at her master's death According to the flanatiyahs, these privileges are permanent, but, according to the Shi ahs, the exemption from sale is restricted to the life of her child, and her atle to emancipation is at the expense of her child's share in the muster's estate If that be manificient, her enfranchisement is only pro tanto, or so far as the share will go Where the child's father has only an usufructuary right in the mother, the child is free, though the mother, being the property of another, does not acquire the lights of in umm-ulwalad.

"(c) With regard to the persons who may be legally slaves, there seems to be little, if any, difference between the two sects According to the Shi'she, slavery is the proper condition of the karabis, or eremies with the exception only of Christians, Jews, and Majusis, or fire-worshippeis, so long as they continue in a state of zimmah, or subjection, to the Mussulman community If they renounce their summah, they fall back into the condition of ordinary hurabis, and if a person should buy from a harabi his child, or wife, or at his consenguineous relations, the pe so purchased is to be adjudged a si There seems also to be but little rence in the manner in which slaves be enfranchised, or their bondage quali But there is an important difference a ohildren, for, according to the Hanafiy a child follows the conditions of its mot being free or a slave, as she ie the one of other, while, according to the Shī'ahs, free, if either of its parents be so Both sects are agreed that marriage may be solved by the husband at any time at pleasure, and to such dissolutions they give the name of talag

"(d) But there are some important d rences between the repudiation of the two s Thus, while the Hanafiyaha recognize forms, the Sunni and Bidai, or regular arregular, as being equally efficacious, subdivide the regular into two other fo one of which they designate as ahsun, or 1 and the other as hason, or good, the Shi reject these distinctions altogether, re mizing only one form of the Sunni, or regi be also as to the expressions by which re distion may be constituted, while the H fivalis distinguish between what they sarih, or exprese words, which are inflect of the word talag, and various express which they term kinayah, or ambiguous, Shi'ahs admit the former only Further, Hanafiyahs do not require intention express worde are used, so that, thoug man is actually compelled to use them. repudiation is valid according to them. do they require the presence of witne as necessary in any case to the valu of a repudiation, while, according to Shi ahs both intention and the presof two witnesses in all cases are essen Both sects agree that repudiation may either bain (absolute) or rapati (revocal and that s repudiation given three ti cannot be revoked, nor a woman so rep ated be again married by her husband t she has been intermediately married to other man, and the marriage with him teen consummated But, according to Hanafiyahs, repudiation may be made irre cable by an aggravation of the terms, or addition of a description, and three rep ations may be given in immediate success or even unico contextu, in one expressi while, according to the Shiahs, on the o hand, the irrevocability of a repudiation dependent on the state m which the wo may be at the time that it is given, three repudiations, to have their all eff must have two intervening revocati To the ba'm and repa'l repudiations both secte, the Shī'ahs add one peculiar themselves, to which they give the nam the talaq u'l-'iddak, or repudiation of 'iddah, and which has the effect of render the repudiated woman for ever unlawfu her husband, so that it is impossible them ever to marry with each other ag The power of revocation continues until expiration of the 'iddah, or probationary period for ascertaining whether a woman is pregnant or not After it has expired, the repudiation becomes absolute, according to both schools. So long as it is revocable, the parties are still in a manner husband and wife, and if either of them should happen to die, the other has a right of inheritance in the deceased's estate

"(s) With regard to parentage, maternity is established, according to the Hanafiyaha, by birth alene, without any regard to the connection of the parents being lawful or not According to the Shī'ahs, it must in all cases be lawful, for a waladu 'z-zina', or illegitimate child, has no descent, even from its mother, nor are there any mutual rights of inheritance between them. For the establishment of paternty there must have been, at the time of the child's conception, according to both stes, a legal connection between its parents by marriage or slavery, or a semblance of According to the Hansilyahs, an invalid marriage is sufficient for that purposser, even, according to the head of school, one that is positively unlawful, but, scording to the Shitshs, the marriage must mali cases be lawful, except when there is rror on the part of both or either of the queents. Again, as to the children by slaves. express acknewledgment by the father is required by both the sects, except when the slave is his ummu'l-malad, or has already borne a child te him, for though according to the Shi'ahs, there are twe reports on the subject, yet, by the mest generally received of these, a slave does not become the wife of her muster by mere coition, and her child is not affiliated to him without his acknowledgment. With regard te children begotten under a semblance of right, the Hanafiyahs require seme basis for the semblance in the relation of the parties to each other, while, according to the Shi'ahs, bond fide belief on the part of the men that the woman is his wife or his slave reems to be all that is required, while no relation short of a legal marriage or slavery, without such belief either on the part of the man er the woman, a enid apparently be sufficient.

"(f) On the subject of testimony, both sebools require that it shall be direct to the point in issue, and they also seem to be agreed that when two or more witnesses concur in asserting a fact in the same terms, the judge is bound by their testimony, and must give his judgment in conformity with it. They agree in requiring that a witness should in general have full knowledge, by the cognizance of his ewn senses, of the fact to which he is beering testimony, but both allow him, in certain exceptional cases, to testify en information received from others, or when he is sonvined of the fact by inference from circumstances with which it is connected.

"(g) Name, or descent, is included by both sects among the exceptional facts to which a witness is allowed to testify when they are generally notorious, or when he is credibly informed of them by others. But according te the Hanafiyaha, it is enough if the infer-mation be received from two just men, or one just man and two just women; while the Shi'ahs require that it should have been received from a considerable number of persons in succession, without any suspicion of their having got up the story in concort The Hanafiyahs class marriage among the exceptional facts, together with Nasab, but, according to the Shi'shs, it more properly follows the general rule, which requires that the witness should have the direct evidence of his ewn senses to the fact to which he is giving his testimony They seem, however, to admit an excep-tion in its favour, for they reason that as we adjudge Khadijah to have been the mother of Fatimah, the daughter of the Prophet, though we know it only by general hotomety and tradition, which is but continued hearsay so also we may equally decide her to have been the Prophet swife for which we have the same evidence thoughwe were not present at the centract of marriage nor even heard the Prophet acknewledge Both sects are agreed that a withess may lawfully infer and testify that a thing is the property of a particular person when he has seen it in his pessession, and so, according to the Hanafiyahs, 'When a person has seen a man and woman dwelling in the same house, and behaving familiarly with each other in the manner of mairied persons, it is lawful for him to testify that she is his wife, in the same way as when he has seen a specific thing in the hands of another'. The Shi'shs do not apply this principle of inference to the case of marriage, and there is no ground for saying that, according to them, marriage will be presumed in a case of proved continual cohabitation

"(h) There is difference between the two schools as to the person who is entitled to claim a right of shif'ah, or pre-emption. According to the Hanafiyahs, the right may be claimed, firstly, by a partner in its rights of nater and way; and thirdly, by a neighbour According to the Shi'ahs, the right belongs only to the first of these, with some slight exception in favour of the second. The claim of the third they reject altegether in gift the principal difference between the schools, which is rejected by the Hanafiyah is quite lawful according to the Shi'alis

"(s) In appropriation and alms there do not seem to be any differences of importance between the two schools. And in wills the leading difference seems to be that, while, according to the Hanafiyah, a bequest in favour of an heir is positively illegal, it is quite unebjectionable according to the Shi'ahs

"(j) In respect of inheritance, there are many and important differences between the two sects, but they admit of being reduced to a few leading principles, which I new proceed to netice, following the ordising which the different branches of the subject are treated of in this volume. The impediments to inheritance are four in namber, according to the Hansfiyahs, viz. slavery, homeide, difference of religion, and difference of där, or country. Of these the Shi'sh's recognize the first, the second also with some modification, that is, they require that the homicide be intentional, in other words, murder, while with the Hansfiyahs it operates equally as an impediment to inherit ance, though socidental For difference of ance, though accidental religion the Shirabs substitute infidelity, and difference of country they reject entirely Exclusion from the whole inheritance, according to the Hensfiyshs is founded upon and regulated by two principles. The one is that a person who is related to the de The one ceased through another has no interest in the succession during the life of that other, with the exception of half-brothers and sisters by the mother, who are not excluded by her The other principle is, that the nearer relativo excludes the more remote. The former of these principles is not ex-pressly mentioned by the Shi'shs, but it is molnded without the exception in the second which is adopted by them, and extended, so as to postpone a more remote residuary to a nearer sharer an effect which is not given to it by the Hanafiyaha "With regard to partial exclusion or the diminution of a share, there is also some difference between the sects According to the Hanafiyaha, a child, or the child of a son, how low seever, reduces the shares of a husband, a wife, and a mother, from the highest to the lowest appointed for them, while, according to the Shia he, the reduction is effected by any child, whether male or female, in any stage of descent from the deceased Further, when the deceased has left a husband or wife, and both parents, the share of the mether is reduced, according to the Hanafiyaha, from a third of the whole estate to a third of the remainder, in order that the male may have double the share of the female but, according to the Shiraha, there is no reduction of the mother's third in these circumstances, though, when the deceased has left a husband, the share of the father can only be a eight The shares and the person for whom they are appointed being expressly men-tioned in the Qur'an, there is no difference in respect of them between the two schools But they differ materially as to the relatives who are not sharers. They are divided by the Hanafiyahs into residuaries and distant The residuance in their own right they define as every male in whose line of relation to the deceased no female enters 'and the distant kindred,' as 'all relatives who are neither sharers nor residuaries. The residuaries not only take any surplus that may remain after the sharers have been satisfied, but also the whole estate when there is no sharer, to the entire exclusion of the distant kindred, sum bough these may, in fact, be much nearer ordi 1 blood to the deceased. This preference of the residuary is rejected with abhorrance by the Shrahs, who for objection to it, certainly with some ance of reason, on two passages of the sted below. Instead of the triple of the Hanafiyahs, they mix up the all the relatives together, and then them into three classes, according proximity to the deceased, each of its order is preferred to that which so that while there is a single in even a female of a prior class, no reom for the succession of an others.

"Within the classes operation is the doctrine of the return by the nearly in the same way as by th ffyahs that is, if there is a surp the shares, it reverts to the share the exception of the husband or v is proportionately divided among the cording to the Hanafivahs, this si always intercepted by the residuary is only when there is no residuary t is with them any room for the do-When the shares ex the return whole estate, the deficiency is distri the Hanafiyaha over all the shares ing the extractor of the case-a which is tormed the 'uni, or increase is also rejected by the Shi'sha, wi the deficiency to fall exclusively up among them whose relationship to ceased is on the father's side to the computation of shares, there appear to be any difference between the schools " A Digest of Monhummus Imamees Code N.R. R. Bailles, Londo

M: Wilfrid S Blunt, in his Future has the following remarks on the position of the Shi'sh sect—

"In theory, I believe the Shias I that there is an Imam and Caliph, will not tolerate the pretention of any in authority to the title, and leave it will not tolerate the pretention of any in authority to the title, and leave it ance until the advent of the Mohady or guido, who is to reunite Islam and its fortunes. So much is this the e sovereign though he be and absolut in Persia, the Shah is to the prelooked upon by the Persians as a and he himself acknowledges the rather curious ceremony. It is a ma Mussulmans of all sects that pray valid if made in another man's house his permission, and this being so, Shah admitting that his palaces of long not to himself but to the Mel 18 obliged to lease them according form from an alem ('ālam) or mujtā' ing or the supposed Mobady, before pray in them to his spiritual profit

"It will be readily understood to an organization and with each to deductive reasoning, a wide basis for divergence of opinion among the and that while the more highly editheir mollahs occasionally preach pantheirm, others consult the grown mations of the valger, and induly bearers with the most extravagant tales of miracle and superstition. These are a constant source of mockery to the Sunites Among the more respectable Shiite beliefs, however, there seems to be a general conviction in Persia that a reform of Islam is at hand, and that a new leader may be expected at any moment and from any quarter, so that enthusiasts are constantly found simulating the grifts of inspiration and affecting a divine mission The history of the Babites, so well described by M de Gobineau in his Religions of Ana, is a case in point, and similar occurrences are by no means rare in Persia. I met at Jeddah a highly educated Persian gentleman, who informed me that he had himself been witness, when a boy, to a religious produgy, notorious, if I remember rightly, at Tabriz that occasion, one of these prophets, being condemned to death by the supreme government, was bound to a cross with two of his companions, and, after remaining suspended thus for several hours, was fired at by the royal troops It then happened that, while the companions were dispatched at the first volley, the prophet himself remained unburt, and, incredible to relate, the cords which bound him were cut by the bullsts, and he fell to the ground on his feet 'You Christians,' said another Persian gentleman once to me 'talk of your Christ as the Son of God and think it strange, but with us the occurrence is a common one. Believe me, we have "sons of God" in nearly all our villages' [sur1]

"Thus, with the Shirter, extremes meet No Moslems more readily adapt themselves to the superficial atheisms of Europe than do the Persians, and none are more ardently devout, as all who have witnessed the miracle play of the two Imams will be obliged to admit Extremes, too, of morality are seen, flerce asceticisms and gross licentiousnesses By no sect of Islam is the duty of pilgrimage more religiously observed, or the prayers and ablutions required by their rule per-formed with a stricter ritual. But the very pilgrams who go on foot to Meson scruple not to drink wine there, and Persian morality is everywhere a by-word In all these circumstances there is much to fear as well as to hope on the side of the Shute sect, but their future only indirectly involves that of Islam proper Their whole consus does not probably exceed fifteen millions, and it shows no tendency to increase. Outside Persia we find about one million Iraki Arabs, a few in Byria and Afghanistan, and at most five miltions in India. One small group still maintains itself in the neighbourhood of Medina, where it is tolerated rather than acknowledged, and a few Shuites are to be found in most of the large cities of the west, but everywhere the sect of Ali stands apart from and almost in a heatile attitude to the rest of Islam It is noticeable, however, that within the last fifty years the religious bitterness of Shitte and Sunite is sensibly in decline"

For information on the History of the Shi'ahs, the English reader can refer to Malcolms History of Persia, 2 vela (A.B. 1815), Morier's Travels, 2 vols (A.D. 1812); Mark ham's History of Persia (A.D. 1874) A translation of their traditions is found in the Lefe and Religion of Mohammad, by the Rov James L. Merrick. Boston (1850). For Shrah Law, consult Tagore Lectures, 1874 A Digest of Mochammudan Law The Imamesa Cotte N B E. Baillie (1869) [MUHARRAM]

SHIEB (حرب) The share of water used for tillage [RIVER]

SHIRK (4,4) "Idolatry, paganism, polytheism" Ascribing plansity to the Deity. Associating anything with God According to Wahhabi writers, Shirk is

According to Wahhābī writers, Shirk is defined to be of four kinds Shirku'l'ilm, ascribing knowledge to others than God, Shirku't-tasarruf, ascribing power to others than God, Shirku'l-ibādah, offering worship to oreated things, Shirku'l-iādah, the performance of ceramomes which imply rehance on others than God

(1) Shirks Vila is illustrated by the statement that prophets and holy men have no knowledge of secret things unless as revealed to them by God. Thue some wicked persons made a charge against The Prophet was troubled in 'Ayishah mind, but knew not the truth of the matter till God made it known to him To ascribe then, power to soothsayers, astrologers and saints in Polytheism. "All who pretend to have a knowledge of hidden things such as fortune tellers, soothsayers, and interpreters of dreams, as well as those who profess to be inspired, are all hars. Again, "should anyone take the name of any saint, or invoke his aid in the time of need, instead of calling on God, or use his name in attacking an enemy, or read passages to propitiate him, or make him the object of contemplation-it us Skirku 'l-'ilm'

(2) Shirku 't-tasarruf is to suppose that anyone has power with God He who looks up to anyone as an intercessor with God commits Shirk Thus "But they who take others beside Him as lords, saying, 'We only serve them that they may bring us near God, —God will judge between them (and the Faithful) concerning that wherein they are at variance." (Sûrah xxxix 4) Intercession may be of three kinds For example a oriminal is placed before the King. The Vizier intercedes. The King, having regard to the rank of the Vizier, pardons the of-fender This is called Shafa'at-i-Wajakak, or "intercession from regard" But to suppose that God so esteems the rank of anyone as to pardon a sinner merely on account of it is Skirk Again, the Queen or the Princes intercede for the criminal. The King, from love to them, pardons him The is called Shafa at-z-mahabbak, or "intercession from affection" But to consider that God so loves anyone as to pardon a criminal on his account is to give that loved one power, and this is Shirk, for such power is not possible in the Court of God "God may out of His bounty confer on His favourite servants the epitheta of Habib, 'favourite,' or Khalil, 'friend,' do., but a servant is but a servant, no one can put his foot outside the limits of servitude, or rise beyond the rank of a servant" Again, the King may himself wish to pardon the offender, but he fears lest the majesty of the law should be lowered The Visier perceives the King's wish, and intercedes This intercession is lawful. Itis called Shafa'at-t-ba-zzn, interession by permission," and such power Muhammad will have at the Day of Judgment Wahhabis hold that he has not that power new, though all other Musalmans consider that he has, and in consequence (in Wahhabi opinion) commit the sin of Sherku't-tasar, of The Wahhabis quote the following passages in apport of their view "Who is he that can intercede with Him but by His own per-mission" (Surah ii 256) "Say Intercession is wholly with God! His the kingdoms of the heavons and of the earth." (Surah xxxix 45) They also say "Whenever an allusion is made in the Quran, or the Traditions to the intercession of certain prophets or apostles, it is this kind of intercession and no other that is meant

(3) Shirku 'l-'Ibādah is prostration before any created being, with the idea of wor shipping it, perambulating the shrines of departed saints "Prostration, bowing down standing with folded arms, spending money in the name of an individual, fasting out of respect to his memory, proceeding to a distant shrine in a pilgrim's garb and calling out the name of the saint." It is wrong "to cover the grave with a sheet, to say prayers at the shrine, to kiss any particular stone, to rub the mouth and breast against the walls of the shrine, &c" This is a stern condemnation of the very common practice of visiting the tombs of saints and of some of the special practices of the pilgrimage to Makkah. All such practices as are here condemned are called Izhrāk fī 'l-'Ibādah, "association in worship"

(4) Shirku 'l-'ādah is the keeping up of superstitious customs, such as the letighārah, seeking guidance from beads, &c., trusting to omens, geod or bad, believing in lineky and unlucky days, adopting such names as 'Abdu n-Nabi (Slave of the Prophet), and so on. In fact, the denouncing of such practices and calling them Shirk brings Wabhābilam into daily contact with the other sects, for scarcely any people in the world are such profound believers in the virtue of charms and the power of astrologers as Musaimāns. The difference between the first and fourth Shirk, the Shirku 'l-'ādah, seems to be that the first is the belgef, say in the knowledge of a sooth-sayer, and the second the habst of consulting him.

To swear by the name of the Prophet, of 'Alī, of the Imiens, or of Pīrs (Leaders) is to give them the henour due to Ged alone. It is Ishrāk fi 'l-adab, "Shirk in association" [WAHRARI]

SHIRKAH (K,a) "Partnership"
The term signifies the union of two or more persons in one concern. It is applied in Muslim law to contracts as well as to partnerships Shirkah, or association, with regard to the essence and person of God, is forbidden in Islâm

SHIS ( ........). [SETH ]

SHOES The removal of the sandals, shoes, or boots, from the feet upon entering either a mosque or house, or during

THE SHOES OF THE FAITHFUL. (A F Hole)

worship, is not enjoined in Muhammadan law although it has become a common custem in all Eastern countries, for the modern Muslim uncovers his feet upon entering the Ka'bah at Makkah (Burckhardts Arabia, vol. 1 p 270), the Muhammadans of Palestine remove the shoes upon entering their places of worship (Robinson's Researches, vol 11 p 36) and it is also the practice to take off the shoes in Egypt (Lane, vol. i pp_ 16, 105, vol. ii. p. 11), and in Hindustan

The number of traditions which prove that Muhammad allowed his followers to worship with their feet covered, is very numerous, and they are held to be Adding of good authority, and supported by the fatteds of sininent doctors of law

Shaddad ibn Aus relates that the Prophet said, "Act the reverse of the Jews in your prayers, for they do not pray in bonts or shoes."

Abū Sa'id al-Khadri says "the Prophet said his prayers with the Companions, and suddenly took off his shoes, and put them down on his left side, and when the people observed it, they took off theirs also, and when prayers were finished, the Prophet asked why they took their shoes off The Companions replied, 'We followed your example' The Proph t then said, 'Verily Gabriel came to me and told me there was a little filth on my shoes. Therefore, when any of you entor a mosque, look well at your shoes, and if you percente any durt on them, wipe it off, and then say your prayer in them."

'Anny ibn Shu'aib relates that he saw the Prophet saying his prayers sometimes with his shoes and sometimes without (Mishkāt, book iv ch 9)

In the Hidsyah it is enjoined that when there a sny uncloamness on the choos, such as dung, blood, &c, they must be rubbed with earth, and then they become legally clean and fit for worship (Arabic edition, vol 1 p 26)

This is confirmed by the Durru'l Mukhtar (vol 1 pp 20, 65), and by numerous traditions (Mishkat, book in ch 11)

If the dut cannot be removed from the shoes by rubbing them with earth, the law permits the Muslim to make them ceremonially clean by wetting his three fingers and drawing them once over the upper part of the shoes or boots [MASAR.]

According to the Traditions, when a Muslim sits down on the floor, he should take off his shoes and place them on one side, and he should take off the right shoe flist and then the left (Mishkut, book xx ch 111)

SHROUD Arabic kajan (A)
The act of shrouding is called takfin. A wooden coffin is called tabut, the use of which is generally held to be forbidden by Sunnis but it is used by the Shraha.

Muhammad is related to have said :-

"Do not be expensive in your shrouds, for they soon rot."

"Plain white is the best for the shrouds of your dead"

"The best cloth for a shroud is hullah" (i a white striped cloth used in Arabia)

"Ayishah says "The Prophet was shrouded in three garments but there was neither a coat nor a turban."

These three garments are still used as shrouds in all parts of leism

(i) Izar, a piece of cloth which covers from the waist to the feet.

(2) Rtda, covering from the fect to the shoulders

(3) Liftifah, a large sheet covering the whole body from head to feet, and closed at the ends.

The bodies of martyrs are not shrouded, but are buried in the garments in which they fell, for it is related that Muhammad so ordered the men who fell in the battle of Uhud

SHU'AIB ( The Muslim commentators generally suppose Shu'aib to be the same person with the father-in-law of Moses, who is named in scripture Reuel or Rageul and Jethro But Ahmad ibn 'Abdi T-Halim charges those who entertain this opinion with ignerance. They say (after the Jews) that he gave his son in-law [NOSES] that wonder-working rod with which he performed all those miracles in Egypt and the desort, and also gave excellent advice and instruction, whence he had the surname of Khatību 'l-Ambiyā' (alayl'), the 'Preacher to the Prophets'

The account given of him in the Qur'au,

Sürah vu. 88-91, 18 as follows —

"And prio Midian did we send their brother Shu'afb, who said, 'O my people! serve God, ye have no god save Him come to you a manifest sign from your Lord then give good weight and measure, and be not suggerdly of your gifts to men, and do not evil in the earth after it has been righted That is better for you if ye are believers, and sit not down in every path, threatening and turning from the path of God those who believe in Him, and craving to make it crooked Remember when ye were few and He multiplied you, and see what was the end of the evil doors! And if there be a party of you who believe in what I am sent with, and a party who believe not, then wait patiently until God judges between us, for He is the best of judges! Said the crowd of those who were hig with pride amongst his people, 'We will of a surety turn thee out, O Shu'aib, and those who believe with thee, from our village, or else thou shalt return unto our faith. Said he, What even if we be averse therefrom? Wo shall have devised a lie against God if we return unto your faith after Gou has saved us from it, and what should silus that we should isturn thereto, unless that God our Lord should please? Our Lord embraces everything in His knowledge, on God do we sely O our Lord' open between us and between our people in truth, for Thou art the best of those who open And the chiefs of those who disbelieved amongst his people said ' If ye follow Shu'aib, verily, ye shall be the losers' Then there took them the earthquake and in the morning they lay in their dwellings prom. Those who called Shu air a har, (were) as though they had not dwelt therein Those who called Shu aib a liar the wore the losers then! And he turned away from them and said, O my people' I proached to you the messages of my Lord, and I gave you good advice, how should Lbe vexed for a people who do musbelieve?'"

ASH-SHU'ARĀ (stant) "The Poets" The title of the xxvith Surah of the Qur'an, so called because at the concinsion of the chapter the Arabian poets are severely consured. [FORTS]

SHUF'AH (Acid) PREEMPTION.

ASH-SHURA (المُعُونِ) "The Consultation" The title of the xxxxxx Sūrsh of the Qur'in Taken from the 36th verse, in which the believers are commended for taking consultation together

SHURB (خرب) Let "Drinking" A term used for wine drinking, which is forbidden by the Muslim law. [DRUMKENNESS ]

Let "A dye" SIBGHAH (مسغة) A word which occurs in the Qur'an, Surah u. 132 "The dee of God! And who is better than God at dycing? And we are worshippers ', which both Mr Sale and Mr Rodof Him' well translate buptism, but which Professor Palmer says must be rendered "dye" Ac cording to al-Baizanī, it stands in the text for the Islam of God, but refers to Christian baptism [BAPTISW]

SIDDIQ (مديق) "One who speaks the truth " It occurs in the Qur'an for Idris (generally identified with Enoch), who is described as a men of eminent truthfulness Professor Palmer translates the word "confessor" (see Surah xix. 57)

As-Siddiq is a title said to have been given to the first Khalifah Abu Bakr by Muhammed himself

مدرة) SIDRA'TU 'L-MUNTAHĀ extremity " A tree in the seventh heaven, having its roots in the sixth Its fruits were like water-pats and its leaves like slephant's ears (Mishkal, book xxiv ch. vii pt 1)

It is mentioned twice in the Qur'an, Surah lm 8-18 -

"Then came he (Gabriel or the angel) nearer and approached,

And was at the distance of two bows, or even closer .--

And he revealed to his servant what he revealed

His heart falsified not what he saw

What! will ye then dispute with him as to what be saw?

He had seen him also another time.

Near the Sidrah-tree, which marks the boundary

Near which is the garden of repose

When the Sidrah-tree was covered with what ocvered it,

His eye turned not aside, nor did it wander

For he saw the greatest of the signs of his Lord '

The Sidiah-tree is the Zizyphus jujuba of Lannaus, the prickly plum, which is called Ber in India A decoction of its leaves is used in India to wash the dead, on account of the sacredness of the tree

SIFAH (dep) pl Sıfāt. An attrıbute Used for the attributes of God The Qur'an is also said to be a Sifah of the Almighty

Ismu's-Sifah, the name of an attribute, is a term applied to any of the minety-nine names or attributes of God. [GOD]

SIFATIYAH (Lith.) From Sifet, "attributes" A school of thought rather than a sect of Islam, although it is given by Mr Sale as one of the Muhammadan sects The orthodox Sunni claims to be a Sifati, or Attributist (as opposed to the Mutazilahs, who reject the idea of God's attributes being eternal), and maintains that the attributes of God are eternally inherent in His essence without separation or change, every attribute being conjoined with Him as life with knowledge, or knowledge with power With regard to the verses of the Qur'an which are held to be Mutashabih, and assign some resemblaure between God and His creatures, the Sifatiyahs say the expressions "hands," face, "sitting," &c., must simply be accepied as they stand, without any attempt at explanation [MO'TAZILAH, WAHHABI]

AS-SIHĀHU 'S-SITTAH المحاح) Leal), also called al-Kutubu 's-Sittah (الكتب ألينة) "The BIX correct (books)" The title given to the eix most trustworthy collections of traditions received by Sunn Muslims, namely, those by—

(i) Abū Abdi 'llāh Muhammad ibn Isma'il al Bulhāri, born A is 194, died A is. 256

(2) Abū 'l Husam Muslem ibn al-Hajjāj al-Qushairi, born a H 204, died A.H. 261

(3) Abū 'Isa Mubainmad ibn 'Isa 'l-Tirmizi, born A H 209, died A H 279

(4) Abu Da'ud Sulaiman ibn Ash'sa as-Sajastani, born AH 202, died AR 275

(6) Abu 'Abdı 'r-Rahman Ahmad ibn Shu'aib an-Nasi'i, born AR. 215, died A.H.

(6) Abū 'Abdı 'llah Muhammad ibn Yazīd, thi Majah, al-Qaswini, born AH. 209, died AH 273

The above are generally esteemed the six authentic collections but some substitute for the Sunan Ibn Majah the Munagta' of Abu 'Abdı 'llah Malık ibn Ansa ibn Malık ibn Abî 'Amır ıbn 'Amr ıbn al-Härıs al-Aşbahı al-Himyari, born A H 95, died A.H 179

(The above words in statics denote the popular title of the collection.)

Al-Bukhari and Muslem are held in highest reputation, and are called as Sahikan, or "the two authentics,"

The collection by Mähk, the founder of the second orthodox sect of the Sunnis, is the most ancient collection of traditions, and is held in high reputation, but it is sometimes omitted from the list by the Hanafis, because he is the founder of a certain school of jurispredence [TRADITIONS]

SIJDAH [BAJDAH]

SIJILL (سجل) A register. record of a court of justice. The decree of a judge. In the Quran, the word occurs when it is used for the angel which has charge of the register of the fate of mankind, or, according to others, it may mean the roll

Surah xx: 104 "The day when we will roll up the heavens as as-Syill rolls up his books, as We produced it at the first creation, will we bring it back again.

SIJJIN (was-). A deep pit in which is kept the register of the actions of the wicked, and hence this register itself Qur'an, Sürah Ixxxii. 7, 8 "The book of the wicked is in Sijjin, and what shall make thee know what Sijjin is?—It is an inscribed book" (See also Mishkat, book v ch iii pt. 3.)

SIKANDAR (مكندر) The Persian for Alexander, by which is meant Alexander the Great [Zu'L-QARNAIN]

SIKHISM (from the Panjabi word sikh or sikhā=Sanskrit sishya, "a disciple" or "pupil") The religion of the Sikhs in the Panjab. Founded by Nānak, who was born in the village of Talvandī (now known as Nankānā), on the banks of the river Rūvī. near Labore, m A.D 1469

The history of the Sikh religion has not vet been subjected to the scruting necessary to warrant strong dogmatism as to the ullimate source, or sources, whence the system of Nanak and his followers took its rise. The literature and traditions of Sikhism present a strange intermingling of Hindu and Muhammadan ideas, and this is so palpably apparent that even superficial inquirers have been led to conclude that Nanak purposely intended his creed to be a compromise hetween those two great religions Trumpp, the able translator of the Adi Granth (the sacred book of the Sikhs), who is the only euthor that has written with knowledge on the subject, 1s, however, distinetly of opinion that Sikhism has only an accidental relationship with Muhammadanism In the Introduction to his Translation of the Ads Granth (p cs ), he says .

"It is a mistake, if Nanak is represented as having endeavoured to unite the Hindu and Muhammadan ideas about God Nanak remained a thorough Hindu, according to all his views, and if he had communionship with Musalmans, and many of these even became his dissiples, it was owing to the fact that Suffam, which all these Muhammadans were professing, was in reality nothing but a Pantherem, derived directly from Hindu sources, and only outwardly adapted to the forms of the Islam Hindu and Muslim Pantheists could well unite together, as they enter-tained essentially the same ideas about the Supreme."

If the foregoing opinion accurately represouts the real truth, then Sikhism hardly deserves mention in the present work, but it will soon be seen that the halance of evidence is beavily on the other side. A careful investigation of early Sikh traditions points strongly to the conclusion that the religion of Nanak was really intended as a compremise between Hindhism and Muhammadanism, if it may not even be spoken of as the religion of a Maham. madan seqt The very listle that seems to be known as to the views of the early bikh teachers, coupled with the decided opinion put forth by Dr Trampp, has made it necessary to give here a longer article on Sikhism than its importance with respect to Islam would have otherwise warranted, because it was necessary to establish the relationship which astnally existed between the two faiths will be seen that the information given in this article is chiefly taken from original Panjabi books, and from manuscripts in the India Office Labrary, and it is supported by the authority of the Adi Granth which is the sacred canon of the Sikha

The Janum-Sükhes, or biographical sketches of Nanak and his associates contain a profusion of curious traditions which throw considerable light on the origin and develop-ment of the Sikh religion From these old books we learn that in early life, Nanak, although a Ihada by birth, came under Sufi influence, and was strangely attracted by the saintly demeanour of the fagirs who were thickly acattered over Northern India and swarmed in the Panjab Now, Suffism is not, as Dr Trumpp supposes, due to Hindu pantheism, for it arose in the very earliest days of Muhammadanism, and is almost pertainly due to the influence of Persian Zoroastrianism on the rude faith of Arab Islam-15m Persia has ever been the stronghold of Suffistic doctrine, and the leading writers who have illustrated that form of Muhammadanum have been the Persian poets Furdusi, Nizāmī, Sa'dı Jalalu d Din Hafiz, and Jāmī.

Hafir, the prince of Sufi posts, boldly declares "I am a disciple of the old Magian. be not angry with me, O Shukh! For thou gavest me a promise he hath brought me the reality." Although this stanza alludes directly to two persons known to Haftz, its almost obvious meaning is "I a Persian adhere to the faith of my ancestors Do not blame me, O Arab conqueror! that my faith is more subline than thine." That Hafig meant his readers to take his words in a gene ral sense, may be inferred from the stanza in which he says "I am the servant of the old man of the tavern (se. the Magian) because his beneficence is lasting on the other hand, the beneficence of the Shakh and of the Sai yid at times is, and at times is not " Indeed. Haffix was fully conscious of the fact that buffism was due to the influence of the faith of his ancestors, for, in another ede, iie plainly says "Make fresh again the essence of the creed of Zorosster, new that the tubp has kindled the fire of Nunrod." And Nizami, also, was aware that his ideas were perilously akin to heterodoxy, for, he says in his Khurn wa Shrin " See not in me the guide to the temple of the Fire worshippers, see only the hidden meaning which cleaveth to the alle-gory" These citations, which could be indefinitely multiplied, sufficiently indicate the Zoroastrian origin of the refined aperituality of the Sufis The sublimity of the Persian faith lay in its conception of the unity of I ternal Spirit, and the intimate association of the Divine with all that is manifest. Arab M hammadans believe in the unity of a per schal God, but mankind and the world were, to them, mere objects upon which the will of God was exercised. The Sufis approached nearer to the Christian sentiment embodied in the phrase, " Christ in us "

The Persian conquerors of Hindustan carried with them the mysticism and apirituality It was through of the Islamo Magran creed Persia that India received its flood of Muhammadanism, and the mysticism and asceticism of the Persian form of Islam found congenial soil for development among the speon-lative ascetics of northern India. It is, therefore, only ressenable to suppose that any Hindu affected by Muhammadanism would show some traces of buff influence fact we find that the doctrines preached by the Sikh Gurus were distinctly Suffistic, and, indeed the carly Gurus openly assumed the manners and dress of faqirs, thus plainly announcing their connection with the Suffistic side of Muhammadanism In pictures they are represented with small resaries in their hands, quite in Muhammadan fashion, as though ready to perform sike Gnru Arjun, who was fifth in succession from Nanak, was the first to lay aside the dress of a faqir The doc trines, however, still held their position, for we find the last Guru dying while making an open confession of Suffism His words are "The Smritis, the Sastias, and the Vedas, all speak in various ways I do not acknowledge one (of them) O possessor of happaness, bestow the morey (on me) I do not say 'I, I recognise all as 'Thee' (Sikhān de Ray de Vethi a p 81) Here we have not only the ideas, but the very language of Sufis implying a pantheistin denial of all else than Deity The same manner of expression is found in the 4th Granth itself, eg "Thou art I, I am thou. Of what kind is the difference?" (Translation, p 130), and again, 'In all the One dwells, the One is contained" (p 41) Indeed, throughout the whole Ach Granth, a favourite name for Derty is the "True One," that is, that which is truly one—the Absolute Unity It is hardly possible to find a more complete correspondence of ideas than thur furnished by the following sentences, one taken from the Yusuf we Aulinkha of Jami the Persian Sufi, and the others, from the Jap-ji and the Adi Granth Janu says —

"Dismiss every vam fancy, and abandon every doubt,

Blend into one every spurit, and form, and place,

See One—know One—speak of One— Desire One—chant of One—and seck One "

In the Jup-y, a formula familiar to every Sikh honsehold, we find —

"The Gurn is Isar (Siva), the Guru is Gorakh (Vishnu), Brahmā, the Guru is the mother Pārbati I should know, would I not tell? The story cannot be told O Guru, let me know the One; that the One liberal patron of all living beings may not be forgotten by me."

In the Adi Granth, we read -

"Thou recitest the One, thou placest the One in (thy) mind, thou recognizest the One.

The One (is) m eye, in word, in mouth, thou knowest the One in both places (se worlds).

In slesping the One, in waking, the One, in the One thou art absorbed."
(India Office MS, No 2184, fol 568)

It is not only with respect to the idea of the nuity of Ged that this Identity of expression is discernible, for other technical terms of Şüfiism are, also, reproduced in Sikhism. Thus the Sun Farida 'd Din Shakrgani calls Dety "the light of life," and Jalain 'd-Din speaks of "flathes of His love," while Jami represents the "light' of the Lord of Angels as animating all parts offthe universe, and Nizāmī exclaims, "Then fell a light, as of a lamp, into the garden (of my heart)," when he feels that a ray of the Divine has entered into his soul It is not difficult to collect many such instances from the works of Porsian Sufis Turning to Sikhism, we find that the Adi Granth is full of similar expressions. It is enough to cite the following exclamation of Nanak humself "In all (18) light. He (18) light From His light, there is light in all." (India Office MS, No 2484, fol 35) And in another place he says "The Lummons One is the mingler of light (with himself)" (fol 186) On fol 51 we find "There death enters not, light is absorbed in the Luminous One Another favorrite metaphor of Salis for the Detty 14 "the Beloved", for example, when Klaiz says "Be thankful that the Assembly is lighted and by the presence of the Beloved" This term is well recognized in bikhism, thus in the Adi Granth, "If they call thyself the servant of the Beloved, do not speak despitefully (of Him) (India Office MS. No 2484, fol 564) "Lova to the Beloved naturally puts joy into the heart I long to neet the Lord (Prabhu), therefore why should I be slothful." (India Office MS. 2484 fol 177) Also, "In my soul and hody are excessive pangs of separation, how shall the Beloved come to my house and meet (with me)?" And again "The Beloved has become my physician." (India Office MS. No 1728, fol. 87) The words used in the Pinjäbi texts are priva pritan, and priv. "a lover," or "beloved one"

Another remarkable proof of Persian influence is found in the form of the Adi Granth itself. It consists of a collection of short poems, in many of which all the verses composing the poem rhyme together, in singular conformity with the principle regulating the construction of the Persian glassal. This resemblance is rendered more striking by the fact that the name of Nāmak is worked into the composition of the last line of each of the poems. This last characteristic is too nt to be considered the result of i, and while it is altogether foreign practice of Hindu verse, it is in accord with the rule for the correct tion of the ghazal foregoing facts seem conclusive as to seuce of Persian Suffism on the origin ikh religion. Dr Trumpp, when disthe philosophy of the Ad Granth, the intimate connection between Sikh-Stiffism in the following words can distinguish in the Granth a grosser ner kind of Pantheism. In this ade of Pantheism, creation assumes n of emanation from the Supreme (as system of the Sufis), the atomo is either likewise considered co-eternal e Absolute and immanent in it, bemonided into various, distinct forms mergizing vigour of the absolute jots or, the reality of matter is more or sed (as by the Sufis, who call it the un ov) so that the Divine jots is the al essence in all "---(Introduction to tion of the Adi Granth, pp c ci) doubt that may remain on the quesms to be set at rest by the express nt in the life of Gura Aijun, who was y his followers to reduce to writing une utterances of Nanak, because" by the numerous verses and speeches y other Suf is, which have renerved the Baba Nanak, pride and worldly wisapringing up in the hearts of men de Raj di Vithi a, p 29) And in the inth itself, we find the following rele verses ascribed to Nanak ball of intoxication, of delusion, is iven by the Giver intoxicated forget death, they enjoy hemselves four days a True One is found by the Sof is, who eep fast his Court"

have not only a plane claim of kinth the Sufis, but the incorporation of of their favourite terms traditions of Nanak preserved in the Sakhi, are full of evidences of his with Muhammadanism He was a by birth, of the Vedi Khattri caste, the son of the patwart, or villageant, of the place now called Nankana, neighbourhood of Lahore In his rly days, he sought the society of and used both fair and unfair means them service, more especially in the l of alma. At fifteen years of age, he opriated the money which his father in him for trade, and this induced his to send him to a relative at Sultanpur, that he might be weaned from his for fagirs (India Office MS No His first act in his new home jour the service of a Muhammadan named Daulat Khan Lodi, and while him, he continued to give to fagira alary except the bare maintenance he i for himself While in the service of this Muhammadan, Nänsk received the ecstatio exaltation which he felt to be Divine inspiration. It is stated in the tradition of his life, that Nanak went to the river to perform his ablutions, and that whilst so engaged, he was translated bodily to the gates of Paradise. "Then a goblet of amrita (the water of life) was given (to him) by command (of God) The command was 'This amrita is the goblet of my name, drink thou it' Then the Gura Nanak made saintation, and drank the goblet. The Lord (Sahib) had meroy (and said) Nanak, I am with thee, I have made thee happy, and whoever shall take thy name they all shall be rendered happy by me Go thou, repeat my name, and cause other people to repeat it Remain uncontaminated from the world Continue (steadfast) in the name, in alms giving, in ablutions, in service, and in the remembrance (of me) I have given to thee my own name do thou this work " (fol 33) Here we have notions closely akin to those of the Sufis, who lay much stress on the repetition of the name of God, which they term ZIRR [qv], on religions ablutions [WAZU', qt], and on meditating on the unity of God [WAH-DANIYAII, q 2 ] No sconer had Nanak recovered from all transe than he uttered the key-note of his future system in the celebrated phrase, "There is no Hindu, and there is no Musalman" (fol 36) The Janam Sakhi then goes on to say that. "The people went to the Khan (his former employer) and said, 'Baba Nanak is saving, There is no Hindu, their no Musalman' The Khan replied, 'Do not regard his statement, he is a faqir' A Qazi sitting near said 'O Khan' it is surprising that he is saving there is no Hindu and no Musalman' The Khan then told an attendant to call Nanak, but the Guru Nanak said 'What have I to do with the Ehun?' Then the people said 'This stupid is become mad'

(Translation, p 23)

Then the Baba (Nanak) was silent When he said anything, he repeated only this statement 'There is no Hindu, there is no Mussiman The Qazi then said 'Khūn, is it right that he should say There is no Hindu, there is no Musalman? Then the Khan said 'Go fetch him' The attendant wont, and and 'Sir. the Khan is calling (you) The Khan says For God's sake give me an interview [Panj aj barā Khudo i de tān,i=Persian az barā, Khuda] I want to see thee' The Guru Nanak arose and went, saying 'Now the summous of my Lord (Sahtb) is come, I He nla ed a staff upon his neck and The khan said "snak, for God's will go wont sale take the staff from off thy neck, gird up thy waist thou art a good faqir' Then Guru Nanak took the staff from off (ins) neck and girded up his loins. The Khan said 'O Nanak, it is a misfortune to me that a stemard such as thou shouldst become a faqir' Them the Khan seated the Gnru Nanak near himself and said 'Qazi, if thou desirest to ask anything, ask now, otherwise this one will not again utter a word' The Qazi becoming friendly, smiled and said Nanak, what dost thou mean by saying, There is no Hindu, there is no Musalman' Nanak Te-phed 'To be called a Musalman is difsuit, when one (becomes it) then he may be called a Musalman First of all, Laving made religion (din) sweet, he olears away Musalman wealth Having become firm Having become firm رمسلم), religion (dm) in this way brings to an end the revolution of dving and hving '-(1 0 MS, 2484, fol 84) When Nanak had nttered this verso, the Qari became amazed.

The Khān said 'O Qāri is not the questioning of him a mistake?' The time of the afternoon prayer had come 'll arose and went (to the mosque) to prayers, and the Baba (Nanak) also went with them "Nanak then domonstrated his supernatural power by reading the thoughts of the Qazi "Then the Qazi came and fell down at his feet exclaiming Wonderful, wonderful f on this one is the favour of God. Then the Qizi believed, and Nanak uttored this stanza 'A (real) Musulmar claus away self, (he possesses) sincerity, patience, purity of speech (what is) erect he doos not annoy (what) hes (dead) he does not eat O Nënak! that Musalman goos to heaven (bihisht)' When the Baba had uttered this stanza, the Salyids, the sons of the Sharkhs, the Qazi, the Mufti, the Khan, the chiefs and leaders were amazed. The Khan said Qazi, Nauak has reached the truth, the additional questioning is a mistake ever the Baba looked, there all were saluting him After the Baba had recited a few stantas, the Khan came and fell down at his feet Then the people, Hindus and Mussi mans, began to say to the Khān that God (Khudā) was spesking in Nanak" (India Office MS 1728 fol. 36-41)

The foregoing ancedotes are taken from the India Office MS No 1726, but the ordinary Janum-Sakhis current in the Paniab vary the account somewhat by saying that when the Khan reproved Nanak for not coming to him when sent for, the latter replied "'Hear, O Nawab, when I was thy servant I came before thee now I am not thy servant, now I am become the servant of Khuda (God)' The Nawab said 'Sir, (if) you have become such, then come with me and say prayers (niwāj = nimāz, see prayer) It is Friday' Nanak said 'Go, Sir' The Nawab, with the Qazi and Nanak, and a great concourse of people, went into the Jami Masjid and stood there All the people who came into the Masjid began to say, 'To-day Nanak has entered this sect' There was a commetion among the respect able Hindus in Sultanpur, and Jairam, being much greved, returned home Nanaki percelving that her husband came home dejected, rose up and said, 'Why is it that you are to-day so grieved?' Jairam replied 'Listen, O servant of Paramesur (God), what has thy brother Nanak done! He has gone, with the Nawab. into the Jami' Masjid to pray, and, in the city, there is an outery among the Hindue and Musalmans that Nanak has become a Turk (Muslim) to-day'"
Office MS, No 2885, fol 89) (India

From the foregoing it is perfectly clear that the immediate successors of Nanak beheved that he went very close to Muham madanism, and we can scarcely doubt the accuracy of their view of the matter, when we consider the almost contemporaneous character of the record, from which extracts have been given, and the numerous confirmatory evidences contained in the religion itself It is particularly worthy of remark that a 'cup of carries" (i.e. immortality) is considered the symbol of inspiration, just as Hafiz exclaims, "Art thou searching, O Hafiz, to find the waters of eternal life?" And the same poet expresses his own ecstasy in a way almost identical with the reception accorded to Nanak at the gate of Paraduse His words are "Then he gave into my hand a cup which flashed back the splendour of Heaven so gloriously, that Zuhrah broke out into dancing and the lute-player exclaimed, 'Drink i'' The staff (muttaka) that is men tioned is, also, that of a faqir, on which a derotee supports himself while in meditation Another significant fact is that when Nanak speaks of himself as the servant of God, be employs the word Khuda, a Persian Muhammadan term, but when his brother-in-law Jairam speaks of God, he uses the Hindu word Paramenn It will, also be noticed that Muhammadans are affected by the logic and piety of Nanak, and to them he shows I imself so partial that he openly accompanies them to the mosque, and thereby causes his Hindu neighbours and friends to believe that ho is actually converted to the faith of Islam But, of course, the most remarkable expression of all is the emphatic and repeated announcement that "There is no Hindu; there is no Musalman" This can mean nothing else than that it was Nanak's settled intention to do away with the differences between those two forms of belief, by instituting a third course which should supersede both Nanak's whilem employer, in consequence of the foregoing manifestations of wisdom, became his devoted admirer After this, Nanak undertook a missionary tour, and it is noticeable that the first person he went to and converted was Shakh Sajan (P ), who showed himself to be a pious Muhammadan Nanak then proceeded to Panipat, and was met by a certain Shaikh Tatibar, who accosted him with the Minhammadan greeting, "Peace be on thee, O Darvesh!" (Salam-aleka Durves), to which Nanak immediately replied, "And upon you be peace, O servant of the Pir! (aleka us-salamu, ko Pir Le dasta-pee)." (India Office MS, No 1728, tol. 48) Here we find Nauak both receiving and giving the Muhammadan salutation, and also the ac knowledgment that he was recognized as a darvesh The Panjabi form of the Arabic salutation is given lest it might be thought that the special character of the words is due to the translation. The disciple then called his master, the Pir Sharkh Sharef, who repeated the salutation of peace, and after a long conversation acknowledged the Divine mission of Namek, kissed his hands and feet, and left him (fol. 52) After the departure of this Pir, the Guru Nānak wandered on to Dehli, where he was introduced to Sultān Ibrahīm Ledi, who also called him a darvesā The previous conversations and acts are found to have awakened the curiosity of Nānak's attendant Maidānā, who asked in surpriss "Is God, then, one?" To which Nānak firmly replied "God (Khudā) is one" (fol. 55) This was intended to satisfy Mardānā that there is no difference between the Muhammadan and the Hindū God

Nansk is next said to have proceeded to the holy city of Benarcs, and there he niet with a Pandit named Satrudas The MS 1728 (fol. 56) says "He came to this Nanak, and cried, 'Ram ! Ram!' Seeing his (Nanak's) disguise (bhekhu), he sat down, and eard to him, 'O dovotee (bhaqat), thou hast no sālsgram, no necklace of tules, no rosary, no tika of white elay, and thou callest (thyself) a devotee' What devotion hast thou obtained?'" In other words, the Pandit 18 made to challenge his piety, because he has none of the marks of a Hindu upon him Nanak explains his peculiar position and views, and is reported to have converted the Hindu Pandit to his own way of think ing This anecdote, also, shows that the immediate successors of Nanak were aware that their great Guru occupied an intermediate position between Muhammadanism and Hinduism, for we see that he is made to convert Muhammadans on the one hand and Hindus on the other After this primary attack on Hinduism, Nanak is said to have converted some Jogis, Khattris, Thags, necromanoers, witches, and even the personined Kallyug, or present age of the world These conquests over imaginary Hindus are obviously allegorical, though they clearly point to a well recognized distinction between the teaching

The most significant associate which Nanak found was, undoubtedly, Sharkh Farid He was a famous Muhammadan Piu and a strict bufi, who attracted much attention by his piety, and formed a school of devotees of his own. Shaikh Farid must have gained considerable notoriety in his day, for his special disciples are still to be found in the Panjab, who go by the name of Sharkh Farid's fagirs This strict Muhammadan became the confidential friend and companion of Nanak, and if all other traditions had failed, this alone would have been enough to establish the eclectic character of early Sikhism flist greeting of these famous men is significant enough Shakh Faild exclaimed, "Allah, Allah, O Darvesh", to which Nanak replied, "Allah is the object of my efforts, O Farid! Come, Shaikh Farid! Allah, Allah (only) is over my object." The words in the original being Allah, Farid, juhai, hamesa au, Selh Farid, juhds Allah Allah (India Office MS., No 1728, fol 86) The use of the Arabic term jund implies the energy of the purpose with which he sought for Allah, and the whole phrase is forcibly Muhammadan in tone.

of Nanak and that of orthodox Hinduism

An intimacy at once sprang up between these two remarkable men, and Sharkh Farid accompanied Nanak in all his wanderings for the next twelve years. The intended compromise between Hinduism and Islam is shown not only in the fact of this friendship, but in the important circumstance that no less than 142 stanzas composed by Shaikh Farid are admitted into the Adi Granth itself An examination of these verses still further proves the mingling of the two religions which Nanak effected. They are distinetly Suffistic in tone, containing such lines as, "Youth is passing, I am not afraid, if love to the Beloved does not pass"; and still more pointedly, "Full of sins I wander about, the world calls me a Darvesh", while, between these declarations of steady adherence to Islam, comes the remarkable Hindo line, "As by fire the metal becomes purified, so the fear of Ham removes the filth of folly" The fact that the compositions of a genuine Suil should have been admitted into the canonical book of the Sikhs, and that they should con tain such a clear admixture of Hinda and Muhammagan ideas, is conclusive evidence that Nanak, and his immediate successors, saw no incongruity in the mixture

As soon as Nanak and his friend Shaikh Farid begin to travel in company, it is related that they reached a piace called Bisi ar, where the people applied cow dung to every spot on which they had stood, as soon as they departed (I O MS, No 1728, fol. 94) The obvious meaning of this is, that orthodox Hindus considered overy spot polluted which Nanak and his companion had visited. This could never have been related of Nanak had he remained a Hindu by religion.

In his next journey Nanak is said to have visited Patan and there he met with Shaikh Ibrahim, who saluted him as a Muslim, and had a conversation with him on the Unity of God Nanak expressed his views in the following openly Suffictic manner "Thou thyself (art) the wooden tablet, thou (art) the pen, thou (art) also the writing upon (it) O Nanak, why should the One be called a second?" (India Office MS 1728, fol. 117) The Pir asks an explanation of this verse in these words "Thou sayest, 'There is One, why a second?' but there is one Lord (Sabto), and two traditions Which shall I accept, and which reject? Thou sayest, 'The only One, he alone is one, but the Hindus are saying that in (their) faith there is certainty, and the Musalmans are saying that only in Tell me, in (their) faith is there certainty which of them is the truth, and in which is there falsity?" Nanak replied, "There is only one Lord (Sant), and only one tradi-tion" (fol 119) This anecdote serves still further to illustrate the intermediate position between the two religions ascribed to Nanak by his immediate followers

Shortly after the foregoing episode, Nanak was captured among the prisoners taken by the Empsor Babar, who seems to have been attracted by the Gura's piety, and to have shown him some attentions. The chromoler informs us that "all the people, both Hindus and Musalmans, began to salute (Nauak) (fol. 137) After his release, Nanak recommenced his missionary work, and is described as meeting a Muhammadan named Miyan Mithā, who called upon him for the Kahmah [see EALIMAH], or Muhammadan confossion of faith (fol. 143), which leads to a long conversation, in which Nanak lays emphasis on the Sufi doctrine of the Unity of God In this conversation Nanak is made to say "The book of the Qur'an should be practised" (fol. 144) He also acknowledged that "justice is the Qur'an." (fol 148) When the Mivan asked him what is the one great name, Nanak took him aside and whispered in his ear, "Allah" [GOD] Immediately the great name is ut tered, Miyan Mithā is consumed to ashes, but a celestial voice again utters the word "Allah!" and the Miyan regions life and falls at the feet of Nanak (fol 147)

falls at the feet of Nanak (fol 147) Nanak then proceeded to convert some Jamas, and even a Rakshasas, or Hindu demon, and rext went to Multan, where he converted the famous Pir Maklidum Baha u d-Din. In Kashmu he met with a Hadu Pandit who recognized him as a sadhu, or virtuous person, Lacasked him why he had abandoned caste usages, wir he wore skins, and The Pandit a scruples ate meat and fish having been satisfied he flung away his idols, and became a devoted believer in Nunnak's doctrines This anecdote again furnishes us with distinct evidence that Nanak took up an intermediate position between Islam and Hinduism, and sought to bring both under one common system

In precise conformity with this deduction is the tradition of Nanak's pilgrimage to Makkah. The particulars of his visit to that holy place are fully given, in all accounts of Nanak's line and although, as Dr Trumpp reasonably concludes, the whole story is a fabrication, yet the mere invention of the tale is enough to prove that those who most intimately knew Nanak considered his relationsh p to Muhammudamam sufficiently close to warrant the behef in auch a pilgrim-In the course of his teaching in Mak ksh, Nansk is made to say "Though men they are like women, who do not obey the Sunnat, and Divine commandment, nor the order of the b ok (ie the Qur'an) (10 MS No 1728, fol 212) He also admitted the intercession of Muhammad, denounced the drinking of bhang, wine, &c, acknowledged the existence of hell, the punishment of the wicked, and the resurrection of mankind, in fact, the words here ascribed to Nanak contain a full confession of Islam These tenets are, of course, due to the narrator of the tale, and are only useful as showing how far Nanak's followers thought it possible for him to go

A curious incident a next related to the effect that Makhdum Bahā'n'd-Din, the Pir of Multan, feeling his end approaching, said to his disciples, 'O friends, from this time the faith of no one will remain firm, all will become faithless (he-iman)" His disciples asked for an explanation, and in reply he delivered himself of an oracular "O friends, when one Hindū sha Heaven (bhishi), there will be (ujālā) in Heaven" To this st nonncement his disciples replied, people say that Heaven is not d the Hindū, what is this that you hi (I O MS 1728, fol. 224) The Pithat he was alluding to Nānak at of his disciples to ask Nānak if he received an intimation of his al death

In this anecdote we have the ext admission from a Muhammadan tl would succeed in breaking up th Islam It is in consequence of having conquered Heaven itself, cated his right to a place in the ; Muhammad, that those who were fauth of the Prophet would lose co. his teaching Here again the ploved are useful, for the Pir u m that Muslima will become be-iman, torm specially applicable to the Islam and Heaven is called in th story bhisat, that is bihisht, the F Muhanimadans [see PARADISE], fo Hindű heavon been intended, some as swarq, or paralok, or Brahmalok v been used

The final incident in the life o lightened teacher is in precise accou that has been said of his former care came to the bank of the Ravi to d formity with Hindu enstem-by th natural stream of water It is exp that both Hindus and Muslim panied him He then seated hims fuot of a barth tree, and his Assem faithful (Sangat) stood around him asked him what their position was t he told them to subordinate ther the Guin Angad whom he had app his successor They were to succ power or dignity merely on the relationship, no hereditary claim recognized, on the contrary, the frankly told to consider themse entities. The words are "Sons, dogs of the Guru are not in want, clothos will be plentiful, and si mutter 'Guru' Guru' (your) 'if (properly) adjusted '(I O MS. 1721 The anecdote then proceeds in the remarkable manner "Then the H Musalmans who were firm in the God), began to express themselve the Musalmans said, 'We will bur and the Hindus said, 'We will bu Then the Baba said 'Place flower sides, on the right side those of th on the left side those of the Musaim we may perceive) whose will contin to-morrow If those of the Hin green, then burn (me), and if the Mussimans keep green, then bu Then the Baba ordered the Ass repeat the praises (of God), and sembly began to repeat the praise ingly [After a few verses had been he laid down his head. When the sheet (which had been stretched over him) was raised, there was nothing (under it), and the flowers of both (sides) rememed green. The Hindus took away theirs, and the Musalmäns took away theirs. The entire Assembly fell to their feet." (I O MS 1728, fol 239, 240)

240)
The mixture of Hindrism and Muhammadanism is evident in this tradition. obviously intended to summarize the life of Nanak and the object of his teaching He 18 not represented as an outcaste and a failure, on the other hand, his purposes are held to have been fully accomplished The great triumph was the establishment of a common basis of religious truth for both Muhammadan and Hindu, and this he is shown to have accomplished with such dexterity that at his death no one could say whether he was more inclined to Hinduism or to Muhamma danism His friends stood around him at the last moment quite uncertain as to whether they should dispose of his remains as those of a Muhammadan, or as those of a Hindu And Nanak is represented as taking care that the matter should ever remain a moot point The final muraculous disappearance of the corpse is obviously intended to convey the idea that Nanak belonged specially neither to one party nor to the other, while the green and flourishing appearance of the flowers of both parties conveys the lesson that it was his wish that both should live together in harmony and nuion The nari itol of the life clearly wishes his history to substantiate the prophetic statement recorded at the commencement of his book (I O MS 1728, fol 7) that, at Nanak's birth, "The Huidus said * The manifestation of some God (1) rate; has been produced, and the Musalmans said, Some holy man (sadiq) of (rod (Khada) has been born

The most potent cause of the unicitiuity as to Nanaka true position in the religious world, arises from the initial fact that he was born a Hindu, and necessarily breught up in He was a perfectly that form of belief uneducated man, there being no recson to suppose that he could either seed or a ste, or perform any other literals fest beyond the composition of extemporan one verses in his mother tengue Guin to an the fourth successor of Nanak, appears to have been the Arst chieftein of the frateunty who could read and write. The necessary result of \unak's early associations was that all his ideas throughout life were substantially Hindu, his mode of the ght and expression was Hindu, his illustrations were taken from Hindu sources, and his system n is based on Hindu models. It must be borne in mind that Nanak never openly seconded from the pale of Hinduisin, or ever contemplated doing 50 Thus in the Sakhi of Miyan Witha it is related that towards the end of Nanak s life a Muhammadan named Shiib Abdu 'r-Rahman acknowledged the great auvantages he had denved from the teaching of Nanak and sent his friend Miyan Mitha to the Guru so that he might derive similar benefit "Then Miyon Mitha said, 'What is his name? Is he a Hindu, or is he a Musalman?' Shah 'Abdu 'r-Rahman replied, 'He is a Hindu, and his name is Nanak'—(Sikhān de Rāj di Vithi,ā, 258) He struck a heavy blow at Hinduism by his rejection of caste distinctions, and on this point there can be no doubt, for his very words, preserved in the Adi Granth, are "Thou (O Lord) acknowledgest the Light (the ray of the Divine in man), and dost not ask after caste In the other world there is no caste "-(Translation of the Ad Granth, 494) In consequence of this opinion Nanak admitted to his fraternity men of all castes, his constant companions being spoken of as Salyids and Sikha, that is, Muhammadan and Hindu pupils Sikhs have ever before them the intermediate character of their religion by the stanza (21) of the Jap-Ji, which says, " Pandits do not know that time, though written in a Purana, Qazīs do not know that time, though written in the Qur an " Hindu scholars are told in the Adi Granth that they miss the true meaning of their religion through delusion * Reading and reading the Pandit explains the Veda, (but) the infatuation of Maya (delusion per-sonited) lulis him to sleep. By reason of dual affection the name of Hari (i e, God) is forgotten" (Translation p 117) In the same way Nanak turns to the Musalman and

"Thou must die, O Mullal thou must diel romain in the fear of the Ore-ator!

Then thou art a Mullä then thou ert a Qazī, if thou knowest the name of God (Ahuda)

None trough he be very learned, will remain, he hurries onwards

He is a Qazi by whom his own self is abandoned, and the One Name is made his support

He as, and will be, He will not be destroyed, time is the Creator

Five times he prays (ning augarhs), ho reads the book of the Quasi " (Iranslation, p 97) Nanak does not seem to have been fastic "9 as to the name under which he recognized the Duty, he was more concerned with impressing on his companions a correct understanding of what Derty was The names Haii, Ram, Govind, Brahma, Parames'war, Khuda, Allah, &c., are used with perfect freedom, and are even mixed up in the same The most common name for God in DOSE the Adr Granth is certainly Ham, but that does not seem to have shocked the Muslim friends of Nanak. Thus, in a poem addressed to Harr as "the invisible, maccessible, and infinite," we are told that, "Pus, prophets, sāliks, sādigs, maitvrs, shaikhs, mullās, and darveshes, a great blessing has come upon thom, who communally recite his salvation" -(Iranslation, p 75)

The chief point of Nanak's teaching was unquestionably the Unity of God. He set himself firmly against the idea of associating any other being with the Absolute Supreme This exalted idea of Divine Majesty enabled Nanak to treat with indifference the crowd To such a mmd as that of of Hmdū destres Nanak it would have been sheer waste of time to argue, with any earnestness, about the attributes, powers, or jurisdictions, of a class of beings, the whole of whom were subordinate to one great, almighty, and incomprehensible Ruler Without any overt attack on the Hindu pantheon, he caused the whole cluster of deities to subside into a condition similar to that of angels in modern Christianity, whose existence and operations may be the subject of conversation, but the whole of whom sink into utter inargnificance compared with the central idea of the Divine Majosty The One God, in Nanak s opinion (and, it may be added, in the opinion of all Suffis), was the creator of plurality of form, not the creator of matter out of nothing The phenomenal world is the manifestation of Deity, and it is owing to pure deception that the idea of severalty exists In the Adi Gianth we read-

"The cause of causes is the Creator
In His hand are the order and reflection
As He looks upon, so it becomes
He Himself, Himself is the Lord
Whatever is made, (is) according to His own pleasure
He is far from all and with all
He comprehends sees, and makes disorimination
He Himself is One, and He Himself is many
He does not die nor perssh, He neither comes nor goes

Nanak says He is always contained (in all) "—(Translation, p 400)

Notwithstanding this conception that the Supreme One comprehends both spirit and matter, and therefore is what is, He is nevertheless spoken of as in some way different from the creatures He has formed, such has been endowed with moral and intellectual qualities. Thus we find in the Adi Granth—

"Whose body the universe is, He is not in it, the Greater is not in it
Who is putting (the things) together, He is always aloof (from them) in what can He be said (to be contained)?"

(Translation, p. 474)

The soul of man is held to be a ray of light from the Light Divine, and it necessarily follows that, in its natural state, the soul of man is sinless. The impurity, which is only toe apparent in man, is accounted for by the operation of what is called Maya, or Delusion and it is this Mays which deludes creatures into egotism and duality, that is, into selfconsciousness or concert, and into the idea that there can be existence apart from the Divine This delusion prevents the pure soul from froeing itself from matter, and hence the spirit passes from one combination of matter to another, in a long chain of births and deaths, until the delusion is removed, and the entramelled ray returns to the

Divine Light whence it originally smanated The belief in metempsychosis is thus seen to be the necessary complement of pantheism, and it is essential to the creed of a Hindu, a Buddhist, and a Suff

In Sikhism, as in Buddhism, the prime object of attainment is not Paradise, but the total cossistion of individual existence. The method by which this release from transmigration is to be accomplished is by the perfect recognition of identity with the Supreme When the soul fully realizes what is summed up in the formula so ham, "I am that," s.e. "I am one with that which was, and is, and will be," then emancipation from the bondage of existence is secured. This is declared by Nanak himself in the Ads Granth in these words—

"Should one know his own self as the so kam, he believes in the esoteric mysters.

Should the disciple (Gur-mukh:) know his own self, what more can he do, or cause to be done?"—(I O MS 2484, fol 58)

The principles of early Sikhiam given above are obviously too recondite for acceptance among masses of men, accordingly we find that the pantheistic idea of Absolute Substance became gradually changed into the more readily apprehended notion of a self-conscious Supreme Being, the Creator and Governor of the universe. Here Dr Trumpp himself admits the influence of Muhammadanism, when he says. "It is not improbable that the Islam had a great share in working allently these changes, which are directly opposed to the teaching of the Gurus."—(Introduction to Translation of the Adi Granth, p. exii.) The teaching of Nanak was, however, very practical. His followers are daily remainded in the Jap-Jī that, "Without the practice of virtue there can be no worship."

In all that has preceeded we have confined ourselves strictly to the intimate relationship subsisting between early Sikhism and the Muhammadan rahijion It is, however, need ful to allude to the fact that certain surviving relics of Buddhism had no small share in moulding the thoughts of the Founder of the Sikh religion A full examination of this part of the subject would be out of place in the present work. It must suffice to say that Buddhism held its position in the Panjab long after it had disappeared from other parts of Northern India, and the abundance of Buddhistic relics, which are continually being unearthed in the district, prove the wide-spread and long-continued influence of the tenets of the gentle-hearted Buddha Indications of this influence on early Sikhism are seen in its freedom from caste, in the respect for animal life, the special form of metempsy chosis accepted, the importance ascribed to meditation, the profuse charity, the reverence paid to the seat of the Guru (like the Bud-dhistic worship of the throne), Nanak's respect for the lotos, his missionary tours, and the currous union substitting between the Guru and his Sangat. In the Travels of Guru Tegh Bahader, translated from the original Gurmukhî by an excellent scholar, Sirdar Atar Singh, we find the following remarkable sentence "The Guru and his Sangat are like the warp and woof in cloth,-there is no difforence between them" (p. 37) In the Adi Granth there is an entire Sukhmani, or poem, by Guru Arun, wholly devoted to a recita-tion of the advantages of "the society of the plous," the term employed being, however, in this case, sadk kan sang (I O MS 2484, fol. 134.) In addition to these points of resemblance, there is found in early Sikhism a curious veneration for trees, offerings to which were sometimes made, as will be seen by reference to pp 67, 70, and 83, of the Travels of Guru Tegh Bahadur, just cited In precise conformity with the tradition that Buddha died under a Sal tree, we have seen that Nanak purposely breathed his last under a Sarih tree. Anyone familiar with Buddhism will readily recognize the remarkable considences stated above, but the most conclusive of all 18 the positive inculcation of views identical with the crowning doctrine of Buddhism-the Nirvana itself The following is what Dr. Trumpp says on the subject -

"If there could be any doubt on the pantheistic character of the tenets of the Sikh Gurus regarding the Supreme, it would be dissolved by their doctrine of the Nirban Where no personal God is taught or believed in, man cannot aspire to a final personal communion with him, his aim can only be absorption in the Absolute Substance, ie individual annihilation. We find, therefore, no allusion to the joys of a future life in the Granth, as heaven or paradise, though supposed to exist, is not considered a desirable object. The immortality of the soul is only taught so far as the doctrine of transmigration requires it, but when the soul has reached its highest object, it is no more mentioned, because it no longer exists as individual soul.

The Nirban, as is well known, is the grand object which Buddha in his presching held out to the poor people. From his atherstic point of view, he could look out for nothing else, personal existence, with all the concomitant evils of this life, which are not counterbalanced by corresponding pleasures, necessarily appeared to him as the greatest evil His whole aim was, therefore, to counteract the treubles and pain of this existence by a stoical indifference to pleasure and pain, and to stop individual consciousness to its utmost limit, in order to escape at the point of death from the dreaded transmigration, which he also, even on his atheistic ground, had not ventured to reject. Buddhism is, therefore, in reality, like Sikhism, nothing but unrestricted Pessimism, unable to hold out to man any solace, except that of annihilation.

"In progress of time, Buddham has been expelled from India, but the restored Brahmanism, with its confused cosmological legends, and gorgoous mythology of the Puranas, was equally unable to satisfy the thinking minds. It is, therefore, very remarkable, that Buddhism in its highest object, the Nirban, seen emerges again in the popular teachings of the mediewal reformatory movements. Nämdev, Trelochan, Kabīr, Revidās, 60., and after these Nāṇak, take upon themselves to show the way to the Nirbān, as Buddha in his time had promised, and find eager listeners, the difference is only in the means which these Bhagats [saints] propose for obtaining the desired end." (Introduction to Translation of the Act Grents, p. ovi.)

Such, then, was the Sikh religion as founded by Guru Nāṇak. It is based on Hindūism, modified by Buddhism, and storred into new life by Suffiam. There seems to be superabundant evidence that Nanak laboured earnestly to reconcile Hinduism with Muhammadanism, by insisting strongly on the tenets on which both parties could agree, and by subordinating the points of difference impossible to deny that Nanak in his life-time actually did effect a large amount of reconciliation, and left behind him a system designed to carry on the good work. The orreumstances which led to the entire reversal of the project, and produced between Muhammadans and Sikhs the deadlest of fends, does not come within the purview of the present article | lt is enough to state that the process was gradual, and was as much due to political causes as to a steady departure from the teachings of the Founder of Sikhism.

The Sikhs acknowledge ten Gurus, whose names, with the year in which each died, are given in the following list —

| Name              | Date ofDeath | Duration of Gara-ship |
|-------------------|------------------|-----------------------|
| Guru Nanak .      | 1538             | Years.84          |
| Guru Angad        | 1552             | 14                    |
| Guru Amar-Das     | 1574             | 23                    |
| Guru Rām-Dās      | 1581             | 7                     |
| Garu Arjan        | 1606             | 25                    |
| Guru Har Govind , | 1638             | 82                    |
| Guru Har-Ra 1     | 1660             | 22                    |
| Guru Har-Kisan    | 1664             | 4                     |
| Guru Tegh-Bahadur | 1675             | 11                    |
| Guru Govind Singh | 1708             | 38                    |

It is thus seen that the Sikh fraterarty was under the guidance of personal Gurus frem A.D. 1504, when Nanak received the spiritual impulse which gave birth to the new sect, until A.D. 1708, a total period of 204 years. After the death of Guru Govind Singh, the Ach Granth itself was taken to be the over-existing impersonal guide.

The first successor of Nanak was appointed

The first successor of Nanak was appointed on account of his devotion to the cause. Shortly after the supposed visit to Makkub, Nanak met with a devotee named Lahana, whose faith and earnestness were so fully demonstrated that Nanak named him, in preference to either of his sons, as his successor in the leadership of the new sect. His name was also changed from Lahana to Angad (—unga-du, "body-giving"), implying that he was willing te give his very body to the cause of God. He was a poer and ignorant man, and maintained himself by rope-

He is said to have heard the whole account of Nanak's life from Bha,ī Bala, who had long been with the Founder It is related that all the counsel which Nanak had given to the Sikhs was sedulously inculcated (Sikhan de Raj di Vithi, a, p 19) bv hun Lake his predecessor, the Founder, he also named as his successor a devoted servant, although he had sons whom he might have appointed

Amar-Das, the third Gura, was a simpleminded and moffensive man, who was as unlearned as his two predecessors, nevertheless, he composed several verses incorporated in the Adi Granth It was in his time that we hear of the first differences between the Sikhs and the Muhammadans The gentle disposition of Amar Das was unsuited to the posi tion of ruler among the strong-willed people of the Panjab, accordingly, when a difference occurred, he was quite incapable of settling the matter It is related that Amai-Das was completely absorbed in the service of Paramesur (God) (Sikhan de Roj di Vithia, p 25) The uso of this word indicates a marked melination towards the Hindu side of Sikhism, and we may suppose that such an inclination would be resented by the firmer adherents to Islam for we find that the Muslims began to annoy this Gurus disciples by trivial acts of aggression The disciples asked their Guru what they had better do and he suggested various temporising expe dients, which only emboldened the aggressors When again appealed to, he desired his dis ciples to endure the wrong, as it was more meritorious to submit than to resent an insult The weak conduct of this Gurn left a legacy of ill-will for his successors to deal with Amar-Dās nominated his son in-law as his successor, an example which initiated the hereditary Guru-ship which followed

Ram-Das was a poor lad, who got a scanty hving by selling boiled grain. He was taken into the family of Amar-Das, and married his daughter He had acquired the elements of education, and was a peaceful and nonaggressive man On attaining the Guru-ship, hs set himself industriously to the acquisition of disciples, and took large contributions from them in the shape of voluntary offerings. This wealth placed him above his brothers in the faith, and conferred upon him the elements of a royal stats. He restored an old tank in magnificent style, for the purpose of religious ablution, and called it American, or the lake of the water of hie This tank enabled the Sikhs to perform their ablutions in a luxurious manner, and necessarily attracted many to the spot In the course of time, a town grew up round the tank, which gradually increased in importance and is now one of the most important places in the Panj-This assumption of dignity and increasing wealth in all probability awakened the auxiety of the Muhammadan governors of the com try , and the gradual drifting into common llinduism a centuated the feeling It is clear that the Muhammadous who had fought so desperately to overture the ancient Hindu kingdoms, could not view with indifference the up-growth of a Hindu sovereignty in their very midst. Ram-Das named his son as his successor in the Guru-ship-an act which soaled the fate of the Sikh attempt at compromise in religious matters, for every Muhammadan felt his position as a citizen threatened by the establishment of a rallying-point for disaffected Hindus

Guru Arjun, the fifth Guru, was an active and ambitious man He laid aside the drass of a faqir which had been worn by all his predecessors and converted the voluntary offerings of his disciples into a tax. This raised him to some importance, and enabled him to take men into his pay, a proceeding which conferred additional dignity upon him, and, at the same time, intensified the jealousy of his Muhammadan neighbours A an additional means of uniting his community into one compact body, he collected the words of Nanak, and those of other saintly personages, into a book, which he called Granth, ie "the book," and strictly enjoined his followers to accept no speech as authoritative which was not contained in " the book" The spark which lit the torch was, however, a distinct interference in political affairs, which provoked the resentment of the Muhammadan ruler at Delhi, and occasioued the arrest and, ultimately, the death of the Guru It is not clear whether the Emperor actually executed him, or whether the Guru committed suicide, but his death was brought about by the ruler of Delhi, and this was enough to inflame the passions of the Sikhs, who were eagor to revenge his death

Har-Govind succeeded his father in the Guru-ship, and at once proceeded to arm his followers, and slay those who had been personally concerned in procuring the death of the late Guru This did not, however, prevent him from entering the service of the Emperors Jahängir and Shah-Jahan in a mili tary capacity, but his turbulence got him into much trouble, and he spent a picda-tory, rather than a roligious, life. Under his Guru-ship the Sikbs were changed from faques into soldiers, and were freely recruited from the warlike Jat population, who eagerly availed themselves of any opportunity for securing plunder. It is evident that the actions of this Guru must have led him into frequent contests with the Muhammadan authorities, and provoked the efforts afterwards made to break up what the rulers must have felt to be a dangerous confederation.

Hai-Rai was the grandson of the last Guru, and was chosen as successor because Har-Govind distrusted the fitness of his sons for the office Har-Rā,ī fought against Aurangzīb in the interest of Dara-Shikoh, and when the latter was defeated he made his submission to the Emperor, and was pardoned.

Har-Kishan was the younger son of the preceding Nothing eventful occurred during his short tenure of power. He was called to Delhi by the Emperor Aurangzib, and was there attacked by small-pox, of which disease he died. The succession to the Guru-ship was broken by his death, for he was too weak to appoint a successor, and merely indicated that the next Guru would be found ın Bakala, a village near Anand-pur

SIKHISM

Tegh Bahadur, who happened to be residing in Bakala, was the son of Har-Govind, and had been passed over by his father in favour of Har-Rail. He was by nature contemplative, and not particularly anxious to assume the delicate position of leader among the belliouse Sikha Aurangab was in the full fury of his Telemizing mania and was accordingly specially solicitous to suppress the ambitious projects of the Sikh The Panjab appears to have been too carefully guarded to be pleasant to Togh-Bahadur, and he, there fore, began a wandering life over the north of India. An account of his travels has been translated from Panjabi into English by the learned Sirdar Atar Singh, and the story is singularly interessing to the student of Sikh We learn from one anecdate that, even in the time of this ninth Guru, Muham madans could feel a certain respect for the Sikhs The tale relates that a small party of Hindus and Muhammadans went to rob the Guru, but at the last moment the Muharamadans felt remorse, for they said, ' ne a is undoubtedly a prophet "-(Iraicle of Guru Tegh Bahadur, p 24) On reaching Sivaram the Guru met a Saivid sested under a Saria tree (the same kind of tree, be it remarked as that under which Nanak broathed his last, and the Saivid saluted the Guru with reverence saying "I am really happy now, ha ing seen your divine countenance" - (Travels, &c. p 46) Still more marked is the friendly feeling shown by the courteous reception which Tegh-Bahadus received from Sharafu 'd-Din, a Muhammadan gentleman residing near Patiala. This Muslim sent him presents, and then went out to meet him He conducted him with much ceremony to his own palace, where he entertained him. It is specially mentioned that "the Guru's eyes fell upon a mosque, and Sharafu 'd-Din immediately said that that was the house of God - (Travels, &c. p 2) Not withstanding this reverential treatment by pious "nhammadans, it is contain that Togh Bahadur spent his life in violent antagoniam to the Muslim rulers of the country book of Travels, from which we are quoting, gives numerous instances of this, as may be seen by those who care to study the details in pp 45, 49, 57, 58, 69, 126, 130 131 Some desperate fights took place, and after a specially severe engagement it is said on p 58 that " from that day the Muhammadans never ventured to fight with the Guru" However, the Guru appears to have been hunted from place to place, and on many occasions he nerrowly escaped capture. The apparent contradiction myolved in the reverential attitude of prous Muhammadans, and the skirmishes with Muhammadan soldiery, finds its explanation in the supposition that the religious aspect of Sikhiam was not artigo nistic to Munammadan ideas, while its | change was in progress the rengious aspect political aspect provoked the violence of the Court of Delhi In the present day much the same state of things is recognizable with respect to the Wahhabis The English Govern mert would never dream of interfering with the religious opinious of that, or any other, sect, but when their doctimes find expression in the subversion of civil authority leaders soon find themselves in the Andaman islands Tegh-Bahadur was at length alcosted and the Emperor is stated to have endeavoured earnestly to bring him over to the pure Mus lun faith, but when he proved obduratehe was thrown into prison, where long-continued cruelty induced hinr to command a Sikh, who was with him, to cut off his head

Govind Singh was the torta and last Guru and he succeeded his father Tegh-Bahadur when only 15 years of age, He was brought up under Hindu guidance and became a staunch devotee of the golden Durga; and by his pronounced preserence for Hindusan he caused a division in the Sikh community He introduced several important changes into the constitution of Sikh security The chief among these was the establishment of the Khālen, by which he bound his disciples into m army, and conferred upon each or thom the name Singh, or hom. He freely admitted all castes to the ranks of his army, and laboured more carnestly over their military than over thoir religious discipline. The nature of the cuanges which Gornd Singh effected in the fratermity is host shown by the fact that the special followers of Nanak personally sepa rated themselves from him, and formed a com munity of their own, rejecting the title of Singh In other words, they preferred the religious to the military idea. This Guro fongus against the Mahammadans with determination, and was so incensed against them that he insta luted a fine or 25 rupees for saluting a Muhammadan tomb, however saintly wards the end of his Gurn ship an attempt was made to raise this fine to 5,000 rapoes but it was ult mately fixell at 125 rupees (Travels, &c , pp 69 and 180) The spirit of toleration so marked during the life of Nauk was clearly gone, and in yet later times this hostility gave birth to the maxin that 'a true Sikh should always be engaged in war wish the Muhamma-dans and slay them fighting them face to tace.' After a turbulent reign, Guru Govind Singh was treacherously clain by the dagger of a Pathen follower He refused to name a successor telling his followers that after his death the Granth Sainh or "the Lord the Book," was to be their guide in every respect (Sikhan de Raj de Vith, a, p 79)

The firegoing sketch of the relation of the Sikks to the Muhammadens is sufficient to show that the religion of Nanak began in large-hearted tolerance, and that political causes operated to convert ats adherents into a narrow minded sect. The Hinduism which Nanal, had disciplined, reasserted us, superiority under his successers, and ulti-While thus mately tecamo predominant of the movement became gradually converted into a military and political propa No contrast, indeed, could well be abda greater than that between the moffensive and gentle-minded Nanak, and the warlike and ambitious Gurus of later times But while we cannot help being painfully impressed with the apparently undying feud which still sub-sists between the Sikhs and the Muhammadans, it seems perfectly clear that the intention of the Founder was to reconcile the differences between those creeds, and that m this excellent work he attained a large measure of success. His pious object was de feated by political causes and by the watlike nature of the people of the Panjah The name "Muhammadan' in the various coun tries in which it exists, is allowed to cover differences in religious belief quite as great as those between the views of Nanak and those of Muhammad, and in all probability would have done so in this instance also, but for the reasons pointed out We cannot, however concern ourselves with probabilities it is enough for the purposes of this article to have established the fact that Sikhism, in ils inception, was intimately associated with Muhammadanism, and that it was intended as a means of bridging the gulf which sepa rated the Hindus from the believers in the Prophet

There are five leading sects of Sikha, the names of which need only be mentioned They

- 1 The Udasis, or those who are 'indif ferent" to the world
- The Suthre, or the " pure " 3 The Diwane or ' mad " saints
- 4. The Nirmale Sadhu or "spotless saints "
- 5 The Akalus, or worshippers of the "Eternal One"

[The foregoing able review of the connection between Sikhism and the teachings of Islam has been contributed, specially for the present work, by Mr Fredoric Pincott, M.R.A.S]

The authorities upon which this article is based are -Dr Trumpp's Translation of the Ada Granth, the text of the Ada Granth, India Office MS No 2484, the Junam-Sakhi of Guru Nanak in old Panjabi, I O MS No 1728, the Janam-Patri of Guru Nanak I O MS. No. 2885, Sikhan de Rāj di Vithi ā (an Account of the Rule of the Sikhs, in Panjabi), The Travels of Guru Tegh-Bahadur and Guru Gobind Singh, translated from the origmal Gur-mukhi by Sirdar Atar Singh, Chief of Bhadaur, Jap-Ji Sāhib, the Panjabi text with commentary in Urdu, by Sirdar Atar Singh, Sri Guru Charitra Prabhakar, by Pandit Gyani Sant Singh, Sri Nanak Prakas, but Dhai Santabh Singh, Sei Cranth Gura by Bhā i Santokh Singh, Sri Granth Gur-Pratap Suraj Rāsā, by Bhā i Santokh Singh [FAQIR, MURAMMADANISM, SUFI]

SILSILAH (سلسلة) "A Lit chain" (1) The line of succession in any religious order, traced either to some religious loader of reputation, or to the four rightly directed Khalifaha, or to the Prophet himself (2) An unbroken tradition.

SIMON PETER Arabio Sham'un (مبعري) Not mentioned by name in the Qur'an, but al-Banawi says he is the Apostle who was sent to Antioch to succour the two disciples in prison (said to be John and Jude), and who is referred to in Surah xxxv1 18 "And we strengthened them with a third "

SIMSĀR (مسار), pl samāsırak A term used m Muḥammanan law for agents or brokers SIN Arabic samb (+13), khati'ah اثم), ssm (اثم) Heb المرة dshām, Muhammadan doctors NOT khet divido sin into two classes Kabirah, "great," and saghnah, "little" sins. Kabirah sins are those great sins of which, if a Musalman do not repent, he will be sent to the purgatorial hell reserved for sinful Muslims, whilst saghuah are those venial sine which are inherent in our fallen nature

Muhammadan writers are not agreed as to the exact number of kabirah sins, but they are generally held to be the following seventeen -

1 Aufr or insidelity

Constantly committing little sins 2

3 Desputing of God's mercy

- 4 Considering oneself safe from the wrath of (tod
- 5 False witness 6 Qazi or falsely charging a Muslim with adultery
  - 7 Taking a false oath
  - 8 Vagre
  - 9 Drinking wine
- 10 Appropriation of the property of orphans
  - 11 Usury
  - 12 Aduliery
  - 18 Unnatural crime

  - 14 Theft 15 Murder
- 16 Pleeing in battle before the face of an infidel enemy
  - 17 Disobedience to parents

The following are sayings of Muhammad, as given in the Traditions, on the subject of sin (Mishkat, book i ch ii) -

"He is not a believer who commits adul tery, or steals, or drinks Equor, or plunders, or embezzles, when entrusted with the plunder of the infidel. Beware!

"The greatest sin is to associate another with God, or to vex your father and mother, or to murder your own species, or to commit suicide of to swear, or to lie ' "The greatest of aims before God as that you call any other like unto the God who created you, or that you murder your child from an idea that it will eat your victuals, or that you commit adultery with your neighbour's wife "

"Abstain ye from seven ruinous destructive things, namely, (1) associating anything with God, (2) magic, (8) killing anyone without reason, (4) taking interest on money, (5) taking the property of the orphan, (6) run ning away on the day of battle, (7) and taxing an innocent woman with adultery"

<sup>2</sup> Do not associate anything with God, although they kill or burn you. Do not affront your parents, although they should order you to leave your wives, your children, and your property Do not abandon the divine prayers, for he who does so will not remain in the asylum of God Never drink wine, for it is the root of all evil. Abstain from vice, for from it descends the anger of God Refrain from running away in battle, although ye be killed. When a pestilence shall visit mankind, and you are in the midst of it, remain there Cherish your children, and chastise them in order to teach them good behaviour, and instruct them in the fear of Ged."

It is related that a Jew once said to his friend, " Take me to this Prophet." He said, "Do not call him a prophet, for if he hears it he will be pleased" And they came to the Prophet and asked him about the nine (sic) wonders (e e Ten Commandments), which appeared (from the hands of Moses) He said "Do not associate anything with God nor etesl, nor commit adultery, nor murder, nor take an moffensive person before the king to be killed, nor practise magic, nor take interest, nor accuse an innocent woman of adultery, nor turn your backs on the field of battle, and it is proper, particularly for the Jews, not to work on Saturday The Jews kissed the hands and feet of the Prophet, and said, "We bear witness that you are a Prophet" He said, "What prevented you from being my disciplee?" They replied, "David called on God to perpetuate the gift of prophecy in his family, and we fear the Jews will kill us if we become your followers

SINAI. Arabic Saina' (سياه), Heb Siner פרבר In the Qur'an Turu Saina' (طور سينيس), also Türu Sinin (طور سيناه), "Mount Sinai", and at-Tür (الطور), "the In Mushm Mount", Chaldee 7770 Tar commentarise, Jabalu Mūsā (جبل موسى), " the Mount of Moses."

It is referred to m the Qur'an as the mountain on which God gave the tables of the Law (Surah vii. 189), and as the place where God assembled the prophets and took a compact from them (Sürah ii. 75) In Sürah xov 2, Muhammad makes the Almighty swear "by Mount Sinai", and in Surah xxiii 20, we are told that, "a tree growing out of Mount Sinai produces oil and a condiment for those who est."

Al-Başawî (Fleischer's ed., vol. i. p. 848), and the author of the Mayma'n'l-Bilar (p. 57), both say that Moses received the tables of the Law on the mountain called Jebalu Zuban (بيال زاور).

SINGING. Arabio ghina' (die). Among Muslim theologians, singing is generally held to be unlawful, and the objection is founded on a tradition recorded by Jabur, who relates that Muhammad said, "Singing and hearing songs causeth hypocrisy to grow in the heart, even as rain causeth the corn to grow in the field." (Mishkat, book xxii. ch ix pt 3)

Shaikh 'Abdn 'l-Haqq, m his commentary, remarking on this tradition, says, it is not a tradition of any authority, and adds, "The traditionists all agree that there is no Hadis of any authority forbidding the practice of singing" (vol iv p 63)

The Sniis, who engage in the service of song as an act of worship, sey Muhammad only forbade songs of an objectionable character Still most divines of reputation regard the practice with disfavour

(سييارة) SIPĀRAH The Persian term for the thirty juz', or divisions of the Qur'an From si, "thirty," and parals, "a portion '

The Qur an is said to have been thus divided to erable the pious Muslim to recite the whole of the Qur'an in the month of Ramasan Muhammadans generally quote the Qur'an by the Siparah and not by the Surah [QUR'AN]

"Worthy of con-SIQAH (AB) fidence" A term used in the study of the Hadis for a traditionist worthy of confidence

SIRAT (Ly.) Let "A road" The word occurs in the Qur'an thirty-eight times, in nearly all of which it is used for the Sirātu 'l Mustayim or the "right way" of religion In Muslim traditions and other writings it is more commonly used for the bridge across the infernal fire, which is described as finer than a hair and sharper than a sword, and is beset on each side with briars and hooked thorns The righteous will pass over it with the swiftness of the lightning, but the wicked will soon miss their footing and will fall into the fire of hell. (Mulla 'Ali Qârī, p 110)

Muhammad appears to have borrowed his idea of the bridge from the Zoroastman system, according to which the spirits of the departed, both good and bad, proceed along an ap-pointed path to the "bridge of the gatherer" This was a narrow road (chinvat peretu) conducting to Heaven or Paradise, over which the souls of the pious alone could pass, whilst the wicked fell into the gulf below (Rawhnson's Seventh Oriental Monarchy,

The Jews, also, believed in the bridge of hell, which is no broader than a thread, which idolaters must pass. (Medrash, Yalkut, Reubest, sect Gehinnom.)

As-ŞIRATU 'L-MUSTAQIM (Lipa) "The right way," : e. the Muhammadan religion, e.g. Qur'an, Sürah iii. 44 "Fear God and obey me, of a truth God is my Lord and your Lord Therefore "The right way," : c. the weeship Hun. This is the right way" It occurs in about therty other places.

SIRIUS. Arabic ash-Shi'rā(())
"The deg-star" The Almighty is called in the Quran Surah his 50, Rabbu sh-Shi'rā, the "Lord of the Dog-star"

The Kamalan say that before the time of Muhammad this star was worshipped by the Benu Khuzë'ah, hence the reference to it in the Qur'en.

SITTING (جلوس) Arabic julia The traditionists are very particular in deserbing the precise position in which Muham tes of been been

Ibn Umar says "Year him sit with his kniess up and the bottom of his feet on the ground, and his arms round his logs Jabir says "I saw nim sitting reclining upon a pillow which was put under his

Kailah says "L saw hun sitting in the prosque upon his buttocks, in the greatest humility and lowliness "

The Prophet used, after Jahir says aguin he had said morning prayer to sit with his feet drawn under h m, until sun rise" (Mish kat book xxil eh vi Muhammadans sivers sit on the ground intheir places of putic worship. In social gatherman people of inferior position always alt lower than their superiors

SIX FOUNDATIONS OF FAITH

Al Iman (الايمان), or "the Faith,' 18 defined as consisting of the six articles of belief ~

1 Allah, God

2 Al-Mulätkah, the Angels

3 Al-Kutub, the Books (of the Prophete)
4 Ar Rusul, the Prophets
5 Al Younu I Alber, the Last Day

8 Al Qudar the Decrees of God

These Six Articles of Faith are entitled Sifatul Iman, "the Attributes of Futh," or Arkanul Iman; "the Pillars of faith ' fau-[HAMMADANISM ]

SIYAR (سعر) pl of eirah "Going in any manner or pace" The record of a man's actions and exploits Stories of the ancients

Knabu's Seyar is the little given to a his tory of the establishment of Islam, hence as-Seyur means an historical work in the life of Muhammad, or any of his Companions, or of his successors, do The earliest but r of the kind written in Islam is that by Imam Muhammad ibn Ishaq whe died an 51 (Kashfu '2 Zunan, Plugels edition, vol in p 684)

SLANDER, [QAZE.] SLAUGHTER OF ANIMALS

SLAVERY Arabic Ubudiyah (throw) Heb Minding abödáh

'Abd (عبد) (Surahii, 220), Heb اعبد) 'eded; Mamlük (معاولات) (Sürah zvi 77) A female slave, amah (del) (Surah ii. 220) The term generally used in the Qur'an for slaves is ma malaket amanukum,

"that which your right hands possess"

Muhammad found slavery an existing institution, both amongst the Jews and the idolaters of Arabia, and therefore it is recognised although not established in the Qur'an.

I - The TRACHING OF THE QUR'AN on the subject of slavery is as follows

(1) Muslims are allowed to cohabit with any of their femule slaves. Surah iv 8. "Then of new jeause staves. Strain is of Then marry what seems good to you of women, by twos, or threes, or fours, and if ye fear that ye cannot be equitable, then only one, or what your right hands possess." Surah is. 29 "File of what your right hands possess of young momen" Surah xxxiii 49 "O prophet" verily We make lawful for thee wives to whom thou hast given their hire (dowry), and what thy right hand possesses ut of the booty God hath granted thee."

(2) They are allowed to take possession of married women of they are slaves Surah iv 28 "Unlawful for you are . married women save such as your right hands possess"
(On this verse at-Jalulan the commentators that is it is lawful for them to cohebit with those women whom you have made capin e, even though their husbands be alive in the Daru 1-Harb")

(3) Muching are excused from street rules of decorum in the presence of their female slaves even as in the presence of their wives. Surah NIN 5 "Those who are strict in the rules of decorum, except for their wives, or what their right hands possess? See also Surah tx 20

'1) The helpless position of the slave as regards his master illustrates the helpless position of the false gods of Arabia in the presence of their Creator Surah xvi. 77 "God has struck out a parable, an owned alave, able to do nothing, and one provided with a good provision, and one who expends therefrom in alms secretly and openly, shall they be held equal? Praise be to God, most of them do not know" See also Surah xxx 27

(5) Muslims shall exercise kindness towards their slaves Surah iv. 40 "Serve God and do not associate anght with Him, and show kindness to your parents and to kindred . . and to that which your right hands passess "

(6) When slaves can redoem themselves at is the duty of Muslims to grant the emancipation Sürsh xxiv. 88 "And such of these whom your right hands possess as crave a writing (i.e. a document of freedom), write it out for them if ye know any good in them, and give them of the wealth of God which He has given you And do not compel your alays-girls to prostitution if they desire to keep continent

From the teaching of the Qur'an above quoted it will be seen that all male and female slaves taken as plunder in war are the lawful property of their master, that the master has power to take to himself any female alave, either married or single, that the position of a slave is as helpless as that of the stone idols of Arabia, but they should be treated with kindness, and be granted their freedom when they are able to sas for and pay for it

IL-From the TRACKING OF THE TRADI-TIONS, it appears that it was the custom of Mahammad either to put to death or take captive those of the enemy who fell into his hands. If a captive embraced Islam on the field of battle he was a free man, but if he were made captive, and afterwards embraced Islam, the change of creed did not emanerpate him 'Atiyatu 'l-Qurasi relates that. after his battle with the Banu Quraizah, the Prophet ordered all those who were able to fight to be killed, and the women and children to be enslaved

Very special blessings are attached to the emancipation of a slave Abū Hurairah relates that Muhammad said, "Whosoever frees a slave who is a Muslim, God will redeem every member of his body, himb for limb, from hell fire." Abil Zarr asked which slave was the best to emancipate, and the Prophet replied, "That which is of the highest price and most liked by his master An Arab once asked the Prophot what act would take him to Paradise, and the Prophet said, "Free a slave, or assist one in radeeming a bond of slavery The following redeeming a bond of slavery The following are some of the sayings of Muhammad re garding the treatment of claves

'It is well for a slave who regularly worships God and discharges his master's work properly'

"Whoever buys a slave and does not agree about his property, then no part of it is for the purchaser of the slave

"When a slave of yours has money to redeem his bond, then you must not allow him to come into your presence afterwards

"Behaving well to slaves is a means of prosperity, and behaving ill to them is a cause of loss"

"When any one of you is about to heat his slave, and the slave asks pardon in the name of God, then withhold yourself from beating him "

It is incumbent upon the master of slaves to find them in victuals and clothes, and not order them to do what they are ust able to do "

"When a slave-girl has a child by her master she is free at his death"

"Whoever frees a stave, and the slave has property, it is for the master, unless the master shall have agreed that it was the slave's at the time of freezes bim (See Mishkatu 'l Macabih, Sakihu I Bulbars Sahitu Muslem.)
III - With regard to the Englaving of

PAPITYES, the author of the Hidryak says

"The Imam, with respect to captives has it-ir his choice to sizy them, because the Prophet put captives to death, and also because slaving them terminates wicked-ness, or, if he choose, he may make them slaves, because by enslaving them the wickedness of them is remedied, and at the same time the Musicina reap an advantage; or, if he please, he may release them so as to make them freemen and Zimmie secording to what is recorded of Umar, but it is not lawful so to release the ido-laters of Arabia, or apostates. It is not lawful for the Imam to return the coptives to their own country, as this would, be strengthening the infidels against the Mus-lims If captives become Muslims, let not the Imam put them to death, because the wickedness of them is hereby remedied without slaying them, but yet he may lawfully make them slaves, after their conversion, because the reason for making them slaves (namely, their being secured within the Muslim territory) had existence previous to their embracing the faith. It is otherwise where infidels become Muslims before their capture, because then the reason for making them slaves did not exist previous to their conversion. It is not lawful to release infidel captives in exchange for the release of Muslim captives from the infidels According to the two disciples, this is lawful (and such also is the opinion of seh-Shaff ), because this produces the emancipation of Muslims, which is preferable to slaying the infidels or making them slaves. The argument of Imam Abu Hanifah is that such an exchange is an assistance to the infidele, because those captives will again return to fight the Mushins, which is a wickedness, and the prevention of this wickedness is preterable to effecting the release of the Muslims since as they remain in the hands of the infidels, the injury only affects them, and does not extend to the other Muslims, whereas the u mrv attending the release of intidel, captives extends to the whole body of Muslima An exchange for property (that 16. 1 eleasing infidel prisoners in return for property) is also unlawful, as this is assisting the infidels, as was before observed, and the same is mentioned in the Mazhabu'l-Mashhūr In the Sairu 'l-Kabir it is asserted that an exchange of prisoners for property may be made where the Muslims are necessitous, because the Prophet released the captives taken at Badr for a ransow. If a captive become a Muslim in the hands of Muslims, it is not lawful to release and send him back to the infidels in return for their releasing a Muslim who is a captive in their hands, because no advantage can result from the t susaction It however, the converted captive consent to it, and there be no appreheneion of his apostatizing, in this case the releasing of him in exchange for a Muslim captive is a matter of discretion. It is not lawful to confer a favour upon captives by releasing them gratuitously, that is, without receiving anything in return, or their becoming Zimusis, or being made alaves. Ash-Shaff's says that showing favour to captives in this way is lawful, because the Prophet showed favour in this way to some of the captives taken at the battle of Badr. The arguments of the Hanafi doctors upon this point are two-fold. First, it is said in the Qur'an, 'Slay idolaters wherever ye find them', secondly, the right of enslaving them is established by their being conquered and captured, and hence it is not lawful to annul that right without receiving some advantage in return, in the same manner as holds with respect to all plunder, and with respect to what ash-Shāfi'i relates that the Prophet showed favour in this way to some of the captives taken at the battle of Badr. It is abrogated by the text of the Qur'an already quoted (Hamilton's Hidāyah, vol ii p 160)

IV—SLAVE TRAFFIC is not only allowed but legislated for by Muhammadan law, and is clearly sanctioned by the example of the Prophet as given in the Traditions (see Sahihu Muslim, Kitābu 'l-Buyā', vol 1 p 2) In the Law of Sale (see Raddu 'l-Muhtō' Hidayah, Hamilton's ed, vol. ii p. 458), slaves, male and female, are treated merely as articles of merchandize. In chapters on sale, and option, and wills, the illustrations are generally given as regards slaves, and the same, or very similar rules apply both to the sale of anima's and bondsmen

The following traditions (Mishkat, book zin chap. zz.) with reference to the action of the Prophet in this matter are notable —

"Imran ibn al-Husain said a man ficed six slaves at his death, and he had no other property besides, and the Prophet called them, and divided them into three sections, and then cast lots, he then ordered that two of them should be freed, and he retained four in slavery, and spoke severely of the man who had set them free"

"Jabir said we used to sell the mothers of children in the time of the Prophet, and of Abu Bakr, but Umar forbade it in his

V—The Manumission of Slaves is permitted by Muhammadan law under the following forms (1) 'Atāq ('Atq, I'tāq), (2) Kitābah, (3) Tadbir, and (4) Istilād

(1) 'Atāq, in the literal sense, means power, and in law expresses the act of the owner of a slave (either male or female) giving immediate and unconditional freedom to his slave. This act is lawful when it proceeds from a person who is free, sane, adult, and the actual owner of the slave in question if such a person say to his slave, "Thou art free," or "Thou art mu'taq," or "Thou art consecrated to God," or make use of any similar expression to his slave, the slave becomes ipso facto free, whether the owner really mean emancipation or not

(2) K:tābah, hterally "a writing," aignifies a bend of freedom granted to a slave (male or female), in return for money paid it is founded on the teaching of the Qur'an Surah xxiv 83 "And such of those as your right hands possess as crave a writing, write it out for them if ye know any good in them," which precept is held to be recommendatory, although not injunctive. The slave thus ransomed is called mukātab, until the ransom is fully paid. During the interval between the promise of freedom and the payment of the money the mukātab enjoys a certain degree of freedom, but is nevertheless placed under certain restrictions. For example, although he is free to move from place to place, he cannot marry, or bestow aims, or become bail, or grant a loan, or make a pilgrimage, &c., without the permission of his master.

(8) Padbir signifies literally, "arrangement, disposition, plan" but in the language of the law it-means a declaration of freedom made to a slave (male or female), to take effect after the masters death. If the owner of a slave say, "Thou art free at my death," or "Thou art a mudabbir," or words to that effect the slave can claim his freedom upon the decease of his master, and any children born to him in the interval are placed in the same position

(4) Istitud, Let 'the obspring's claim," signifies a man having a child born to him of a female slave, which he claims and acknowledges as his own, which acknowledgment becomes ipso facto the cause of the freedom of the female slave. The woman is then called ummu'l walad, "the mother of offspring," and stands in relation to her master as his wife, the child being also free

(5) In addition to the above forms of emancipation, it is also established that the manumission of slaves is the legal penalty or expiration (kafförah) for certain sins, eq for breaking the fast of Ramazan the expiation is either the release of a slave or settler great poor persons, this expiation is also made for a rash oath [OATH], as also for the rash form of divorce known as gihar [Zihar] (See Raddu 'l-Muhtar, vol. ii p 175, iii p 92, ii p 952.)

VI.—Modern Muslim Slavery The slaves

VI.—Modern Muslim Slavery The slaves of the Arabs are mostly from Abyssinia and negro countries, a few, ohiefly in the homes of wealthy individuals, are from Georgia and

Cironssia

Mr Lane says, in Egypt "Abyssinian and white female slaves are kept by many men of the middle and higher classes, and often instead of wives, as requiring less expense, and being more subservient, but they are generally indulged with the same huxaries as free ladies, their vanity is gratified by costly dresses and ornaments, and they rank high above free servants, as do also the male slaves. Those called Abyssimans appear to be a mixed race between negroes and whites, and from the territories of the Gallas. They are mostly kidnapped and sold by their own countrymen. The negro female staves, as few of them have considerable personal attractions (which is not the case with the Abyssinians, many of whom are very beautiful), are usually employed only in coeking and other menial offices

"The female slaves of the higher classes are often instructed in plain needlework and embroidery, and sometimes in music and

Formerly many of them possufficient literary accomplishments to largely from esteemed poems, or even mpose extemporary verses, which they often accompany with the lute The ion of many concubine slaves is happy, nat of many quite the contrary These, il other claves of either sex, are genetreated with kuidness, but at first they ually importuned, and not unfrequently with much harshness, to induce them ibrace the Muhammadan faith, which Their services are t all of them do only light, the usual office of the male slave, who is called (memlook) mamluk, t of a page, or a military guard unuchs are employed as guardians of omen, but only in the houses of men in rank or of great wealth, on account important office which they fill, they encially treated in public with special leration. I used to remark, in Cairo, few persons saluted me with a more led and consequential air than these le but self-conceited beings. Most of are Abyssinians or negroes. Indeed, leves in general take too much advantation of the countenance of their masters, inly when they belong to men in power."

can Nights, vol 1 p 55)
Central Asia the great slave-trade is d on with Käfiristan. The Käfire, uch as they enslave each other in war, ier own countrymen and countrywomen lavery, and, when the slave market is the Muhammadans residing on their rs make inroads upon the Käfire and them (especially the women who are fair and pretty) into elavery Some slaves have risen to eminence in Cabul, te Sher Ali Khän's commander-in-chief, eðz Khān, being a Kāfir slave

Hindustan British rule has abolished ry, but it nevertheless exists in noble ies, where the slaves seem willingly to to their condition of bondage

—The TREATMENT OF SLAVES.—It has already shown that, both according to eaching of the Quran and also according injunctions of Muhammad, as given in raditions, kindness to slaves is strictly ied, and it must be admitted that the nent of slaves in Muhammadan countries asts favourably with that in America, slavery existed as an institution under

Lane (Arabian Nights, vol i p 55), ig from his personal observations of he master is bound to afford his slaves food and clothing, or to let them for their own support, or to sell, give, or liberate them. It is, however, leved disgraceful for him to sell a slave has been long in his possession, and it is happens that a master emancipatee ale slave without marrying her to some able to support her or otherwise programs.

he Prephet strongly enjoined the duty of kindness to slaves 'Feed your slaves,' said he, 'with food of that which ye eat, and clothe them with such clothing as ye wear, and command them not to do that which they are unable.' These precepts are generally attended to, either entirely or in a degree."

Some other sayings of the Prophet on this subject well deserve to be mentioned, as the following -

""He who beats his slave without fault, or slaps him on the face, his atonement for this is freeing him."

"'A men who behaves ill to his slave will not enter into Paradise '

""Whoever is the cause of separation between mother and child by selling or giving, God will separate him from his friends on the day of resurrection"

"" When a slave wishes well to his master, and worships God well, for him are double rewards'

"It is related of Othman ('Usman), that he twisted the ear of a memlook belonging to him, on account of disobedience, and afterwards, repenting of it, ordered him to twist his ear in like manner, but he would not Othman urged him, and the slave advanced and began to wring it by little and little He said to him, 'Wring it hard, for I cannot endure the punishment of the Day of Judgment [on account of this act]' The membook answered, 'O my master, the day that thou fearest I also fear'

"It is related also of Zainu "l-Abidin, that he had a memlook who seized a sheep and broke its log, and he said to him, 'Why didst thou this?' He answered, 'To provoke thee to anger' 'And I,' said he, 'will provoke to anger him who taught thee, and he is Iblis (ie the Devil) go, and be free, for the sake of God'

"Many similar anecdotes might be added, but the general assertions of travellers in the East are far more satisfactory evidence in favour of the humane conduct of most Mnalims to their slaves"

But although this testimony of Mr Lane's will be borne out with regard to the treatment of slaves in Islām in all parts of the Muhammadan world, the power which a Muslim possesses over the persons of his bondsman or bondsmand is unlimited. For example, according to the Hidāyah (vol iv. p. 282), "A master is not slain for the murder of his slave," nor "if one of two partners in a slave kill the slave is retaliation incorred." In this the law of Muhammad departs from that of Moses. See Exodis xxi 20 "And if a man smite his servant, or his maid, with a rod, and he die under his hand, he shall be surely punished (Heb avenged.) Notwithstanding, if he continue a day or two, he shall not be punished for he is his monoy"

Slaves have no civil liberty, but are entirely under the authority of their owners, whatever may be the religion, sex, or age, of the latter, and can possess no property, unless by the owner's permission. The owner is entire master, while he pleases, of the person and goods of his slave, and of the offspring of his female slave, which, if begetten by him or presumed to be so, he may recognise as his own legitimate child, or not the child, if recognised by him, enjoys the same privileges as the offspring of a free wife, and if not recognised by him is his slave.

He may give away or sell his slaves, excepting in some cases which have been mentioned, and may mairy them to wnom he will, but not separate them when married A slave, however, according to most of the doctors, cannot have more than two wives at the same time. Unemancipated slaves, at the death of their master, become the property of his heirs and when an emancipated slave dies loaving no male descendants or collateral relations, the former master is the heir, or, if he be dead, his heirs inherit the slave's property. As a slave enjoys less ad antages than a free person, the law, in some cases ordains that his punishment for an offence shall be half of that to which the free is hable for the same offence, or even less than half if it be a fine, or perumary compensation, it must be paid by the owner to the amount, if necessary, of the value of the slave, or the slave must be given in compensation

The owner, but not the part owner, may cohabit with any of his female slaves who is a Muhammadan, a Christian, or a Jewess, if he has not married her to another mar but not with two or more who are sisters, or who are related to each other in any of the degrees which would prevent then both heing his wives at the same time if they were free after having so lived with one, he must entirely relinquish such intercourse with her before he can do the same with another who is so related to her He cannot have intercourse with a pigar slave Christian or Jew may have slaves, but not enjoy the privilege above mentioned with one who is a Muhammadan The master must wait a certain period (generally from a month to three months) after the acquisition of a female slave before he can have such intercourse with her If he find any fault in her within three days, he is usually allowed to return her

When a man from being the bisband, becomes the master of a slave, the marriage is dissolved, and he cannot continue to live with her but as her master, enjoying, however, all a master's privileges, unless he emancipates her, in which case he may again take her as his wife, with her consent. In like manner, when a woman, from being the wife, becomes the possessor of a slave, the marriage is dissolved, and cannot be renswed unless she emancipates him, and be consents to the reunion.

There is absolutely no limit to the number of slave-girls with whom a Muhammadan may cohabit, and it is the correctation of this illimitable includence which so popularizes the Muhammadan religion amongst uncivilized nations, and so popularize, slavery n the Muslim religion.

In the Akhlāg-t-Jilāli, which is the popular work upon practical philosophy amongst the Muhammadans, it is said that "for service a slave is preferable to a freeman, inasmuch as he must be more disposed to submrt, obey and adopt his patron's habits and pursuits"

Some Muslim writers of the present day (Syed Ameer Alt's Life of Mehammed, p 257) contend that Muhammad looked upon the custom as temporary in its nature, and held that its extinction was sure to be achieved by the progress of ideas and change of circumstances, but the slavery of Islam is interwoven with the Law of marriage, the Law of sale, and the Law of inheritance, of the system, and its abolition would strike at the very foundations of the code of Muhammadaniam

Slavery is in complete harmony with the spirit of Islam, while it is abhorrent to that of Christianity. That Muhammad ameliorated the condition of the slave, as it existed under the heathen laws of Arabia, we cannot doubt, but it is equally certain that the Arabian legislator intended it to be a perpetual institution.

Althou I slavery has existed aide by side with Christianity it is undoubtedly contrary to the spirit of the teaching of our divine Lord, who has given to the world the grand ductring of universal brotherhood

Mr Lecky believes (European Morals, vol 11 p 70) that it was the spirit of Christianity which brought about the abolition of slaver, in Europe He says, 'The services of Christianity were of three kinds It supplied a new order of relations, in which the distinction of classes was unwhich the imparted a moral dignity to the service classes. It gave an unexampled impetut to the movement of enfraichise ment"

SLEEPING Arabic naum (eg)
Helb 553 naum It is usual for Mushims to sleep with the head in the direction of Makkah

Alū Zarr relates that on one occasion he was scoping on his belly and the Prophet saw him, and, kicking him, said, "O Jundub! this way of sleeping is the way the devils sleep!"

Abbab says he saw the Prophet sleeping on his back, with one leg lying over the other, but Jabir says the Prophet forbade that way of sleeping (Mishket, book xxii ch v pt 1)

According to the Muhammadan religion it is a sacied duty to reply to a sneeze For example, if a person sneeze and sav immediately afterwards, "God be praised" (albamdu is 'lidh, all and it is incumbent upon at least one of the party to exclaim, "God have mercy on you" (Yarhamu-ka'lidh all)). This custom of replying to a sneeze existed amongst the Jaws, whose aneezing formula was "Tobim khayim!" i.e. "Good

There are interesting chapters on saluting after eneszing in Tylor's Primitive Culture, and Isaac D'Israeli's Curiosities of Laterature

Replying to a sneeze is amongst the duties called Farz Kafā'ı (Mıshkāt, book v ch i. pt. 1)

Abū Hurairah relates that Muhammad said, "Verily God loves sneezing and hates yawning" (Mistkāt, book xxii ch vi)

SOLOMON Arabic Sulaimān (עליבור) Heb אל Shelōmūh

Both according to the Qur'an and the Muhammadan commentators, Solomon was celebrated for his skill and wisdom. The following is the account given of him in the Qur'an, with the commentators' remarks in takes, as given in Mr Lane's Selections from the Kur'an (2nd ed by Mr Stanley Lane-Poole)—

"And We subjected unto Solomon the wind, blowing strongly, and being light at his desire, which ran at his command to the land that We blessed (namely Syria), and We knew all things (knowing that what We gave him would stimulate him to be submissive to his Lord) And We subjected, of the devils, those who should dive for him in the sea and bring forth from it jewels for him, and do other work besides that, that is, building, and performing other services, and We watched over them, that they might not spoil what they executed, for they used, when they had finished a work before night, to spoil it, if they were not employed in something else." (Sürah xxi 81, 82)

"We gave unto David Solomon his son How excellent a servant was he! For he was one who earnestly turned himself unto God, glorifying and praising Him at all times Remember when, in the latter part of the day, after the commencement of the declining of the sun, the mares standing on three feet and touching the ground with the edge of the fourth foot, swift in the course, were displayed before him. They were a thousand matter, which were displayed before him after he had performed the noon-prayers, on the occurrency his desiring to make use of them in a holy war, and when nine hundred of them had been displayed, the sun set, and he had not performed the afternoon prayers. So he was greeved, and he said, Verily I have preferred the love of earthly goods above the remembrance of my Lord, (that is, the performance of the afternoon prayers.) so that the sun is concealed by the veil. Bring them (namely the horses) back unto me. Therefore And he began to they brought them back sever with his sword the legs and the necks, slaughtering them, and cutting off their legs, as a sacrifice unto God, and gave their flesh in alms, and God gave him in compensation what was better than they were and swifter, namely the wind, which travelled by his com-mand whithersoever he desired. And We tried Solomon by deprising him of his kingdom. This was because he married a woman of whom he became enamoured, and she used to worship an idol in his palace without his knowledge His dominion was in his signet, and he pulled it off once and deposited it with his wife, who was nomed El Emeeneh (Aminah), and a name came unto her in the form of Solomon, and took it from her And We placed upon his throne a counterfeit body namely that names, who was Sakhr (Sakhr), or another He sat upon the throne of Solomon, and the birds and other creatures surrounded him, and Solomon went forth, with a changed appearance, and saw him upon his throne, and said unto the people, I am Solomon —but they denied him. Then he returned unto his kingdom, after some days, having obtained the signet and put it on, and seated himself upon his throne He said, O my Lord, forgive me, and give me a do-minion that may not be to anyone after me (or beside me), for Thou art the Laberal Giver So We subjected unto him the wind. which ran gently at his command whither-soever he desired, and the devils also, every builder of wonderful structures, and diver that brought up pearls from the sea, and others bound in chains which connected their hands to their necks And We said unto him, This is Our gift, and bestow thou thereof upon whomsoever thou wilt, or refrain from bestowing, without rendering an account And verily for him was ordained a high rank with Us, and an excellent retreat. (Sürah xxxviii 29-39)

"We bestowed on David and Sclomon knowledge in judging men and in the language of the birds and other matters, and they said, Praise be to God who hath made us to excel many of His believing servants, by the gift of prophecy and by the subjection of the juni and mankind and the davils. And Solomon inherited from David the gift of prophecy and knowledge, and he said, O men, we have been taught the language of the birds, and have had bestowed on us of everything wherewith prophets and kings are gifted. Verily this is manifest excellence. And his armies of juni and men and birds were gathered together unto Solomon, and they were led on in order, until, when they came unto the valley of ants, which was at EtTaif [at-Ta't], or in Syria the ants whereof were small or great), an ant (the queen of the ents), having seen the troops of Solomon, said, O ants, enter your habitations, lest Solomon and his troops crush you violently, while they perceive not And Solomon smiled, afterwards laughing at her saying, which he heard from the distance of three miles, the wind conveying it to him so he withheld his forces when he came in sight of their valley, until the ents had entered their dwellings and his troops were on horses and on foot in this expedition. And he said, O my Lord, inspire me to be thankful for Thy favour which Thou hast bestowed upon me and upon my parents, and to do righteousness which Thou shalt approve, and admit me, in Thy meroy, among Thy servants, the righteous, the prophets and the saints

"And he examined the birds, that he might see the lap-wing, that saw the water heneath the earth, and directed to it by pecking the earth, whereupon the devils used to draw it forth when Solomon wanted it to perform the ablution for prayer, but he saw it not and he said, Wherefore do I not see the laphe said, Wherefore do I not see the lap-wing? Is it one of the absent? And when he was certain of the case he said, I will assuredly punish it with a severe punishment, by plucking out its feathers and its tail and casting it in the sun so that it shall not be able to guard against excessive thirst, or I will slaughter it, or it shall bring me a memfest convincing proof showing its excuse And it tarried not long before it presented ttself unto Solomon submissively, and raised its head and relaxed its tool and its wings so he forgave it, and he asked it what it had met with during its absence, and it said, I have become acquainted with that wherewith thou hast not become acquainted, and I have come unto thee from Sebs (a tribe of El Yemen) with a sure piece of nows I found a woman reigning over them, named Bilkees (Bilgu), and she hath been gifted with everything that princes require, and hath a magnificent throne (Its length was eighty cubits, and its breadth, forty cubits, and its height, thirty cubits it was composed of gold and silver set with fine pearls and with rubies and chrysolites, and its legs were of rubies and chrysolites and one alds upon it were closed seven doors to each chamber through which one passed to it was a closed door ) I found her and her people worshipping the sun instead of God, and the devil hath made their works to seem comely unto them, so that he hath hindered them from the right way, wherefore they are not rightly directed to the worship of God who produceth what is hidden (namely, the rain and regetables) in the heavens and the earth, and knoweth what they [that is, mankind and others | conceal in their hearts, and what they reveal with their tongues Ged: there is no deity but He, the Lord of the magnificent throne, between which and the three of Bilkees is a wast difference

4 Solomon said to the lapung. We will see whether thou hast spoken truth or whother then art of the hars Then the lapung of led Gem to the water, and it was drawn forth by the devils, and they quenthirst and performed the ablution an Then Solomon wrote a letter, the for was this - From the servant of God the son of David, to Bilkees the quee In the name of God, the Compassi Merciful, Peace be on whomsoever the right direction After this sale say, Act we not proudly lawards me, unto me submitting He then seale musk, and stamped it with his signet, unto the lapwing, Go with this my l throw it down unto them (namely B her people) then turn away from stay near them, and see what reply return So the lapwing took it, unto her, and around her were her fo he threw it down into her lap, and saw it, she trembled with fear sidered what was in it, and she sak nobles of her people, O nobles, an h (scaled) letter bath been thrown d It is from Solomon, and it i In the name of God, the Compassic Merciful Act ye not proudly tow but come unto me submitting nobles, advise me in mine affair decide upon a thing unless ye bear ness - They replied, We are endo strength and endowed with great va the command belongeth to thee, see what thou wilt command us to when they erter a city, waste it, an the mighty of its ir habitants abj thus will they do who have sent . But I will send unto them with a g will see with what the messen, return, whether the gift will be acc whether it will be rejected. If he be king, he will accept it and if he be i he will not accept it And she sent female servants, a thousand in equal five hundred of each sex, and five bricks of gold, and a crown set wi and musk and ambergers and other the messenger with a letter And the hastened unto Solomon, to tell him t on hearing which, he commanded that gold and silver should be cast, an horse-course should be extended to the nine leagues from the place where he that they should build around it a battlements, of gold and silver, and hundsomest of the beasts of the land a sea should be brought with the son jinn on the right side of the horse-co on its left

"And when the messenger came gift, and with him his attendants, u mon, he (Solomon) said, Do ye aid wealth? But what God hath gi (namely, the gift of prophecy and the is better than what He hath given worldly goods, yet ye rejoice in y because ye glory in the showy thing world Return unto them with the thou hast brought, for we will sure unto them with forces with which the not power to contend, and we will drive them out from it, (that is, from their country, Seba, which was named after the father of their tribe,) abject and contemptible, of they come not unto us submitting And when the messenger returned unto her with the gift, she placed her throne within seven doors, within her palace, and her palace was within seven palaces; and she closed the doors, and set guards to them, and prepared to go unto Solomon, that she might see what he would command her to do She departed with twelve thousand kings, each king having with him many thousands, and proceeded until she came us near to him as a league's distance; when he knew of her approach, he said, O nobles, which of you will bring unto me her throne before they come unto me submitting? An 'efreet ('Ifrit') of the jnn, answered, I will bring it unto thee before thou shalt arise from thy place wherein thou settlest to judge from morning until midday, for I am ablo to do it, and trustworthy with respect to the jewels that it comprises and other matters. Solomon said, I desire it more speedily And thereupon he with whom was knowledge of the revealed scripture (namely his Wezeer, Asaf the son of Barkhiya, who was a just person, acquainted with the most great name of God, which ensured an answer to him who invoked thereby) sa d, I will bring it unto thee before thy glance can be withdrawn from any object. And he said unto him, Look at the sky. So he looked at it, then he withdrew his glance, and found it placed before him for during his look towards. the sky, Asaf prayed, by the most great name, that God would bring it, and it so huppened, the throne passing under the ground until it came up before the throne of Solomon And when he saw it firmly placed before him, he said, This is the favour of my Lord, that He may try me, whether I shall be thankful or whether I shall be unthankful. And he who is thankful is thankful for the sake of his own soul, which will have the reward of his thankfulness, and as to him who is ungrateful, my Lord is independent and bountiful.

"Then Solomon said, Alter ye her throne so that it may not be known by her, that we may see whether she be rightly directed to the knowledge thereof, or whether she be of those who are not rightly directed to the knowledge of that which is altered. He desired thereby to try her intelligence. So they altered it, by adding to it, or taking from it, or in some other manner. And when she came, it was said unto her, Is thy throne like this? She answered, As though it were the same, (She answered them ambiguously like as they had questioned her ambiguously like as they had answered, Yes.) And when Solomon saw her knowledge, he said, And we have had knowledge bestowed on us before her, and have been Muslims. But what she worshipped instead of God hindered her from soorshapping Him, for she was of an unbelieving people. It was said unto her also, Enter the palace. (It had a floor of white, trumsparent plass, beneath which was running water, wherein were fish. Solomon had made et on eta being sand unto him that 'her legs and fest were hairy, like the legs of an ass. And when she saw it, she imagined it to be a great water, and she uncovered her legs, that the might wade through it, and Solomon was on his throne at the upper end of the palace, and he saw that her legs and her feet were handsome. He said unto her, Verily it is a palace evenly spread with glass And he invited her to embrace El-Islam, whereupon she said, O my Lord, verily I have acted unjustly towards mine own soul, by worshipping another than Thee, and I resign myself, with Solomon, unto God, the Lord of the worlds And he desired to marry her, but he disliked the hair upon her legs, so the devils made for him the depilatory of quick-line, wherewith she removed the hair, and he married her, and he loved her, and confirmed her in her kingdom. He used to visit her every month once, and to remain with her three days; and her reign expired on the expiration of the reign of Solomon It is related that he began to reign when he was thirteen years of age, and died at the age of three and fifty years Extolled be the perfection of Him to the duration of whose dominion there is no end!" (Surah xxvn 15-45)

We subjected unto Solomon the wind, which travelled in the morning (unto the person when the sun began to decline) the distance of a month's journey, and in the evening from the commencement of the declining of the sun into its setting) a month's journey And We made the fountain of molton brass to flow for him three days with their nights in every month, as water floweth, and the people worked until the day of its flowing, with that which had been given unto Solomon And of the jun were those who worked in his presence, by the will of his Lord, and such of them as swerved from obedience to Our command We will cause to taste of the punishment of hell in the world to come (or, as it is said by some, We cause to taste of its punishment in the present world, an angel beating them with a scourge from hell, the strips of which burneth them) They made for him whatever be pleased, of lofty halls (with steps whereby to ascend to them), and images (for they were not forbidden by his law), and large dishes, like great tanks for watering camels, around each of which assembled a thousand men, eating from it, and cooking-pots standing firmly on their legs, cut out from the mountains in El-Yemen, and to which they ascended by ladders And We said. Work, O family of David, in the service of God, with thanksgiving unto Him for what He hath given you —but few of My servants are the thankful. And when We decreed that he (namely Solomon) should die, and he died, and remained standing, and leaning upon his staff for a year, dead, the sinn meanwhile performing those difficult works as they were accustomed to do, not knowing of his death, until the worm ate his staff, whereupon he fell down, nothing showed them his death but the esting 1sptile (the worm) that ate his staff And when he fell down, the jum plainly perceived that if they had known things unseen (of which things was the death of Solomon), they had not continued in the ignominious affilction (that is, in their difficult works), imagining that he was alive, enconsistently with their opinion that they knew things unseen And that the period was a year was known by calculating what the worm had eaten of his staff since his death in each day and night or other space of time." (Sürah xxiv 11-18)

Mr Sale, quoting from the commentators al-Jalalan and al-Bairawi, has the following remarks on the foregoing account of Solomon -

"Some say the spirits made him (Solomon) two hons, which were placed at the foot of his throne, and two eagles, which were set above it, and that when he mounted it, tho hons stretched out their paws, and when ho sat down, the eagles shaded him with their wings, and that he had a carpet of green silk, on which his throno was placed, being of a prodigious length and breadth, and sufficient for all his forces to stand on, the men placing themselves on his right hand, and the spirits [or jinn] on his left, and that when all were in order, the wind at his conimand took up the carpot and transported it with all that were upon it wherever he pleased, the army of birds at the same time flying over their heads and forming a kind of canopy to shade them from the sun. The commentators tell us that David, having laid the foundations of the Templo of Joru salem, which was to be in licu of the tabernacle of Moses, when he died, left it to be finished by his son Solomon, who employed the genn in the work, that bolomon, before the edifice was quito completed, percuring his end drewnigh, begged of God that his death might be concealed from the genu till they had entirely finished it, that God there fore so ordered it that Solomon died as he stood at his prayers, leaning on his staff, which supported the body in that posture a full year, and the genu, supposing him to be alive, continued their work during that term, at the expiration whereof, the temple being perfectly completed, a worm, which had gotten into the staff, ato it through, and the corpse fell to the ground and discovered the king's death. That after the space of forty days, which was the time the image had been worshipped in his house, the devil flew away, and throw the signet into the sea the signet was immediately swallowed by a fish, which being taken and given to Solomon, he found the ring in its belle, and, having by this means recovered the kingdom, took Sakhr, and, tying a great stone to his neck, threw him into the Lake of Tiberias The Arab historians tell us that Solomon, having finished the Temple of Jerusalem, went in pilgrimage to Makkah, where having stayed as long as he pleasod, he proceeded towards al-Yaman, and leaving Makkah in the morning he arrived by noon at San'a', and being extremely delighted with the country rested there, but wanting water to ablution, he looked among the b lapwing which found it for him that Bilqis, to try whether Soli prophet or not, drest the boys he girls like boys, and sent him a pearl not drilled and an onyx d crooked hole, and that Solomon d the boys from the girls by t mannor of their taking water, one worm to bore the pearl, and pass a thread through the onyx "

Heb ben, walad (1), Heb wālād The of a son in favour of his parents 1 law is not admissible A son ci slave of his father A father c son without punishment being in him for the murder

According to the law of inherit. Sunni and Shi'ah, when there are they divide the property of the father equally, the eldest son bent to Shi'ah law, entitled to take phis father's eabre, Qur'an, signi robes of honour (Personal La Ameer Ah, p 74)

Ameer Ah, p 74)
For the Muslim doctrine reson-ship of Christ, refer to ar

CHRIST

SORCERY [MAGIC]

SOUL. There are two w in the Qur'an for the soul of man Heb my ruakh, and nass ( nephesh, eq — Sürah vvii 87 "They will ask spirit (rüh) Say, the spirit pr my Lord's command, but of know httle to you is given."

Sursh ui 24 "Each soul (na, paid what it has earned"

Muslim theologians do not dis tween the rule and nafs, but the r do Nafs seems to answer the G "soul or life," human beings be guished as an-nafsu 'n-nātsqah, which speake", animals as an-nafsu 'n-nabātsyah, while presses the Greek nveuma, "sp thus forming a tripartite natur jism, "body", "als nafs, "soul rule, "spirit", an idea which de expression in the Qur'an, but w pressed in the New Testament, 23 "And I pray God your whole soul, and body be preserved blan the coming of our Lord Jesus Ch tripartite nature of man is us. Pfander, and other controversia illustration of the Trimity in Unity

SPEAKING [CONVERSA

SPIDER, The. Arabic al-'Ankabūt (المنكبوت). The title of the xxixth Surah of the Quran, m the 40th verse of which is given the parable of the spider "The likeness for those who take to themselves guardians instead of God is the likeness of the spuler who buildeth her a house But verily, frailest of all houses surely is the house of the spider Did they but know this!"

SPIRIT Arabic (23) The word rub (pl. arwäh), translated "spirit," is the Arabic form corresponding to the Habrew It occurs mneteen times in makh. the Qur'an -

1-Baqarah (ii), 81 "We 1 Süratu strengthened him (Jesus) by the Holy Spirit

(Rūhu 'l-Qudus)'

2. Süratu 1-Baqarah (il.), 254 "We strengthened him (Jesus) by the Holy Spirit (Kūhu 'l-Qudus)"

3. Sûratu 'n-Nisa' (iv ), 169 " Tho Masih, Jesus, son of Mary, is only an apostle of God, and His Word which He conveyed into Mary and a Spirit (proceeding) from Himself (Rühun min-hu)"

4 Süratu "-Māi'dah (v), 109 "When I strengthened thee (Jesus) with the Holy Spirit (Rūhu'l-Qudus)"

5 Suratu 'n-Nahl (xvi ), 2 "He will cause the angels to descend with the spirit (Ruh) on whom He pleaseth among his servants, bidding them warn that there be no God but

6 Sûratu 'n-Nahl (xvl.), 104 "The Holy Spirit (Rûhu 'l-Qudus) hath brought it (the Qur'an) down with truth from thy Lord"

7 Suratu 'l-Mi'rāj (xvu.), 87 "They will ask thee of the spirit. Say The spirit (ur-Rub) proceedeth at my Lord s command, but of knowledge only a little to you is given.

8. Süratu 'eh-Shu'arā' (xxv.), 193 "The faithful Spirit (ar-Rūhu'? Amin) hath come down with it (the Qur'an)"
9 Süratu 'l-Mu'min (xl.), 15 "He sendeth forth the Spirit (ar-Ruk) at His own behest on whomsoever of His servants He pleaseth" 10 Süratu 'l-Mujädilah (lvin), 23 "On the hearts of these (the faithful) hath God graven the Faith, and with a spirit (pro-ceeding from Himself (Ruhun mun-hu) hath He strengthened them."

11 Süratu 'l-Ma'ārij (lxx.), 4 "The angels and the Spirit (ar-Rūh) ascend to Him in a day, whose length is fifty thousand years"

12. Süratu 'l-Qadr (xcvi.), 4 "Therein descend the angels and the Spirit (ar-Rūh) by permission of their Lord for every matter"

18. Süratu 'sh-Shürü (xlu.), 52 "Thus have we sent the Spirit (ur-Rüh) to thee with a revelation, by our command

14. Süratu Maryam (xix), 17 "And we sent our spirit (Ruba-na) to her, Mary, and he took before her the form of a perfect man"

15 Süratu 'l-Ambiya' (zxi ), 91 "Into whom (Mary) we breathed of our Spirit (min Riki-nd)."

16. Săratu 't-Tahrim (lavi.), 12 "Into whose womb (se Mary's) we breathed of our Spirit (mis Ruds-na)"

17 Süratu 's-Sajdah (xxxxx), 8 "And breathed of His Spirit (min Rühs-hi) into him (Adam)

18 Süratu 'l-Hijr (xv.), 29 "And when I shall have finished him (Adam) and breathed of my Spirit (min Ruhi) into him."

19 Süratu Şād (xxxviii), 72 "And when I have formed him (Adam) and breathed of my Spirit (min-Ruhi) mto him

Of the above quotations, all Muslim commentators are agreed in applying Nos 1, 2, 4, 5, 6, 8, 11, 12, 14, to the angel Gabriel, Nos 3, 15, 16, are said to be Jesus, the Ruha 'llāh, or "Spirit of God", Nos 17, 16, 19, the Ruh, or "Infe," given to Adam, Nos. 9, 13, "the Spirit of Prophecy", No 10 is held to mean God's grace and strength With reference to No 7, there is some discussion The Khalifah 'Alī is related to have said that it was an angel with 7,000 mouths, in each mouth there being 7,000 tongues, which uncessingly praised God. Ibn Abbas held that it meant the angel Gabriel Mujahid, that it meant beings of another world.

The Commentators al-Kamalan say the Jews came and asked Muhammad regarding the spirit of man, and the Prophet replied, "The Spirit proceedeth at my Lord's com-mand, but of knowledge only a little to you is given, 'from which it is evident that it is impossible for the finite mind to understand the nature of a spirit.

The philosophical bearings of the question are fully discussed, from an Oriental standpoint in the Kashshafu 'stilahati 'l-Funun, A Dictionary of Technical Terms used in the Sciences of the Mussalmans, edited by W Nassau Lees, LLD, 1862, vol 1 p 541, also in the Sharhu'l-Mawaqıf, p 582 Muhammadan writers hold very conflicting views regarding the state of the soul or spirit after death. All agree that the Angel of Death (Malaku 'l-Maut), separates the human soul from the body at the time of death, and that he performs his office with ease and gentleness towards the good, and with force and violence towards the wicked, a view which they establish on the testimony of the Qur'an, Surah lxxix. 1, where the Prophet swears by "those who tear out violently and those who gently release." After death the spirits enter a state called al-Barzakh, or the interval between death and the Resurrection, the "Atons of the New Testament. The souls of the faithful are said to be divided into three classes (1) those of the Prophets who are admitted into Paradise immediately after death, (2) those of the martyre who, according to a tradition of Muhammad, rest in the crops of green birds, which eat the fruits and drink of the waters of Paradise, those of all other believers, con-cerning the state of whose souls before the Resurrection there is great diversity of opinion. Some say they stay near the graves, either for a period of only seven days, or, according to others, until the Day of Resurrection. In proof of this, they quote the example of Muhammad, who always saluted the spirits of the departed when passing a Others say, all the departed grave-yard. spirits of the faithful are in the lowest heaven with Adam, because the Prophet deolared he saw them there in his pretended ascent to heaven [MTRAJ] Whilst others say the departed spirits dwell in the forms of white birds under the throne of God (which is a Jewish tradition).

Al-Baizāwī says the souls of the wicked are carried down to a pit in hell called Sijjin [SLIJIN], and there is a tradition to the effect that Muhammad said the spirits of the wicked are termented until the Day of Resurrection, when they are produced with their bodies for judgment

The author of the Sharhu 'l-Mawaquf (p 588), says that some Muslim philosophers state that after death the spirit of man will enther be in a state of enlightenment or of ignorance Those who are in a state of ignorance will go on from worse to worse, and those who are in a state of enlightenment will only suffer so far as they have contracted qualities of an undesirable character when in the body, but they will gradually improve until they arrive at a state of perfect enjoyment. This view, however, is not one which is tenable with the views propounded by the Qur'an, in which there are very decided notions regarding the future state of heaven and hell. [sour.]

SPITTING. According to the Traditions, Muslims must spit on the left side, and cover it over with earth Spitting in mosques is forbidden. (See 'Abdu l-Haqq's Commentary on the Mishkat, vol. i. p 295)

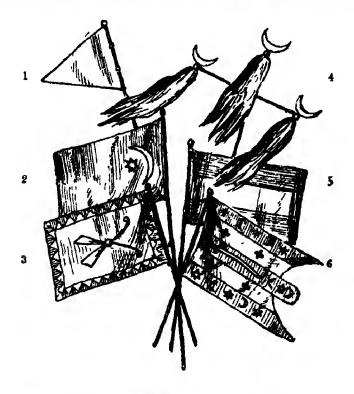

Muhammad said. "Spit not in front, for you are in God's presence Spit not on the right hand, for there standeth the angel who recordeth your good actions"

SPOILS, The. Arabic al-Anfāl (الاسال) The title of the vriith Surah of the Qur'an, in which are given instructions regarding the division of the spoils taken at the battle of Badr, a dispute having arisen between the young men who had fought and the old men who had stayed under the ensigns, the former insisting they ought to have the whole, and the latter that they deserved a share. [PLUNDER]

STANDARDS Arabic 'alam (علم), pl a lam Regarding the standards used by Muhammad, there are the following traditions -

Jabir says "The Prophet came into Makkah with a white standard.

MUHAMMADAN STANDARDS (A. F Hole)

Muslim Standard of Central Asian Tribes
 Standard of the Turkish Empire
 Standard of the Empire of Morocco

<sup>4</sup> Horse-tail Standard of Modern Turks 5. Standard of Egypt 6 Standard of Persia.

The 'Abbas says "The Prophet had two standards, a large black one and a small white one.

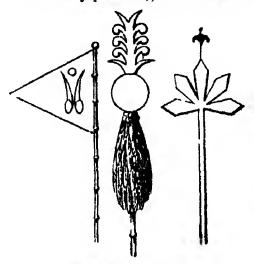

Al-Bara' ibn 'Azib says "The standard, I remember, was a square one, and black spotred with divers colours"

In the struggle between the Shī'ahs and the Sunnīs, the Fatimides adopted green as the colour of their etandard, whilst the Banī Umsiyah assumed white for theirs

In Central Asia, the ordinary Muslim standards are either black or green, and are triangular. The sign of the crescent, as it appears on Turkish standards, was adopted after the taking of Byzantium, for, long before the conquest of Constantinople, the crescent that been used in the city for an emblem of accordingly, as may be seen from the medals etruck in honour of Augustus and Trajan [CRESCENT]

There is a standard still preserved at Constantinople amongst the ancient relics, and called as-Sinyaqu'sh-sharif, which is held to be a most sacrod emblem, and is only produced on very special occasions. It is said to be the amoient standard of the Prophet

MUHARBAM STANDARDS

A modern writer, describing this flag, says "It is made of four lavers of silk, the topmost of which is green, those below being composed of cloth, embroidered with gold Its entire length is twelve feet, and from it is suspended the figure of a human usud, which clasps a copy of the Qur'an, transcribed by the Khalifah Usmān. In times of peace, the banner of the Prophet is kept in a chamber appropriated to the purpose, along with the clothes, teeth, the venerable locks, the stirrups, and the bow of the Prophet."

In the Muharram, when the martyrdom of al-Hasan and al-Husain is celebrated, numerous standards are carried about in the procession.

The origin of the horse-tail atandard borne by modern Turks, appears to have been from the people bearing the horse-tail as a distinction of rank, the two ranks of pashas being distinguished respectively by two and three tails, and a further distinction of rank being marked by the elevation of one of the tails above the others

MUHARRAM STANDARD

According to the Traditions, the Mahdi, in the Last Days will appear from the direction of Khorosan with black ousigns, and there seems to be every reason to regard the black standard as the primitive ensign of Islam, although the Wahhābīs have generally carried green standards

STATUES [SCULPTURE]

STONING TO DEATH Arabic In Muslim law, the razm (14) punishment of lapidation is only inflicted for adultery (Under the Jewish law idolaters and bearers of false witness were also stoned ) It is founded, not upon the Qur'an, where the only punishment awarded is one hundred strapes (Surah xxiv 2), but upon the Traditions (Mishlat, book xv ch 1), where Muhammad is related to have said, "Verily God hath ordained for a man or woman not married one hundred lashes and expulsion from their town one year, and for s man or woman having been married one hundred lashes and stoning " 'Abdn 'l-Haqq says the hundred lashes, in addition to the stoming, is sbrogated by the express example of the Prophet, who ordered stoning only, for 'Abdu 'llah ibn 'Umai relates the following tradition -

"A Jew came to the Prophet and said,
'A man and woman of ours have committed adultery And the Prophet said, 'What do you meet with in the Book of Moses in the matter of stoning?' The Jew said, 'We do not find stoning in the Bible, but we disgrace adulterers and whip them' Then 'Abdu Tläh ibn Saläm, who was a learned man of the Jews, and had embraced Islām, said, 'Yeu lie, O Jewish tribel verily the order for stoning is in the Book of Mosea' Then the book was brought, and opened, and a Jew put his hand upon the revelation for stoning, and read the one above and below it, and 'Abdu 'lläh said, 'Lift up your hand' And he did so, and behold the revolution for stoning was produced in the book, and the Jews said, 'Abdu 'lläh spoke true, O Muhammad! the stoning revelation is in the Book of Moses' Then the Prophet ordered both the man and woman to be stoned' (Mishkāt, book xv ch 1)

The author of the Hidayah (vol 11 p 9) gives the following instructions as to the correct way of carrying out the sentouce

"It is necessary, when a whoremonger is to be stoned to death, that he should be carried to some barren place void of houses or cultivation, and it is requisite that the atoning be executed—first by the witnesses, and after them by the Imam or Qazi, and after those by the rest of the bystanders, because it is so recorded from 'Ali, and also because in the circumstance of the execution being begun by the witnesses there is a precaution, since a person may be very bold in delivering his evidence against a criminal, but afterwards, when directed himself to commence the infliction of that punishment which is a consequence of it, may from compunction retract his testimony, thus, causing the witnesses to begin the punishment may be a moans of ontiroly preventing it Ash-Shiff's has said that the witnesses beginning the punishment is not a requisite, in a case of lapidation, any more than in a case of scourging. To this our doctors reply that reasoning upon a case of lapidation from a case of soourging is supposing an analogy between things which are essentially different, because all persons are not acquainted with the proper method of inflicting flagellation, and hence, if a witness thus ignorant were to attempt, it might prove fital to the sufferer, and he would die where death is not his due, contrary to a case of lapidation, as that is of a destructive nature, and what every person is equally capable of executing, wherefore if the witnesses shrink back from the commencement of lapidation the punish ment drops, because their reluctance argues their retraction.

"In the same manner punishment is remitted when the witnesses happen to die, or to disappsar, as in this case the condition, namely, the commencement of it by the witnesses, is defeated. This is when the whoredom is established upon the testimony of witnesses but when it is established upon the confession of the offender, it is then requisite that the lapidation be executed, first by the Imam or the Qazī, and after them by the rest of the multitude, because it is so recorded from "Ah Moreover, the Prophet threw a small stone like a bean at Ghamdiyah who had confessed whoredom. When a woman is to be stoned, a hole or excavation should be dug to receive her, as deep as her waist, because the Prophet ordered such a hole to be dug for Chamdiyah before mentioned, and 'Ali also ordered a hole to be dug for Shuraha Hamdiani is, however, immaterial whether a hole be dug or not, because the Prophet did not issue any particular ordinance respecting this, and the nakedness of a woman is sufficiently covered by her garments, but yet it is laudable to dig a hole for her, as decency is thus most effectually preserved There is no manner of nooessity to dig a hole for a man, because the prophet did not so in the case of Ma'ız. And observe, it is not lawful to bind a person in order to execute punishment upon him in this case, unless it appears that it cannot otherwise be inflicted.

"The corpse of a person executed by lapidation for whoredom is entitled to the usual ablutions, and to all other funeral cere momes, because of the declaration of the Prophet with respect to Ma'ız 'Do by the body as ye do by those of other believers', and also, because the offender thus put to death is slain in vindication of the laws of God, wherefore ablution is not refused, as in the case of one put to death by a sentence of retaliation, moreove the Prophet allowed the prayers for the dead to Ghamdiyah, after lapidation." (Hudayah, book ii. p 3)

This punishment of lapidation for adultery has become almost obsolete in modern times, even in Bukharah, where the institutes of Minhammad are supposed to be most strictly observed, it is not inflicted.

SUBHAH ( The resary of ninety-nine beads [BOSARY] SUBHĀNA 'LLĀHI (All) ("Holmess be to God!" An ejaculation which is called the Tusbìh It occurs in the lithrigical prayer, and is used as an ejaculation of surprise or fear [Tasbih.]

SUBHAN ( TABBIH ]

SUEAH (حولة) Banū Sūfah An ancient tribe of Arabia The descendants of Tābikha and Elyās (Mur, vol 1. p excix)

SUFI (حولى), more correctly با آيين (The Persian form of the plural being عوليان). A man of the people called عوليان Sufiyah, who profess the mystic principles of عوليا Tarawwuf There is considerable discussion as to the origin of this word It is said to be derived (1) from the Arabic Sūf, 'wool,' on account of the woollen dress worn by Eastern ascetios, (2) or from the Arabic Safū, "purity," with reference to the effort to attain to metaphysical purity (which is scarcely probable), (3) or from the Greek cochia, 'wisdom", (4) or, according to the Ghyāgu 'l-Luyhāt, it is derived from the Sūfah, the name of a tribe of Arabs who in the "time of ignorance," separated themselves from the world, and engaged themselves exclusively in the service of the Makkah

Temple.

It might at first eight appear almost an impossibility for mysticism to engraft itself upon the legal system of the Qur'an, and the Ahadin, with the detailed ritual and cold formality, which are so strikingly exemplified in Islam, but it would appear that from the very days of Muhammad, there have been always those who, whilst they salled themselves Muslims, set aside the literal meaning of the words of Muhammad for a supposed mystic or spiritual interpretation, and it is generally admitted by Sufis that one of the great founders of their system, as found in Islam, was the adopted son and son-in-law of the Prophet, 'Ali ibn Abī Tālib The Şūfis themselves admit that their religious system has always existed in the world, prior to the mission of Muhammad, and the unprejudiced student of their system will observe that Tasawwuf, or Su iism, is But a Muslim adaptation of the Vedanta school of Hindu philosophers, and which also we find in the writings of the old academics of Greece, and Sir William Jones thought Plato learned from the sages of the East

The Sufis are divided into innumerable sects, which find expression in the numerous religious orders of Darweshas or Faqira [FAQIR], but although they differ in name and in some of their customs, as diess, meditations and recitations, they are ell agreed in their principal tenets, particularly those which inculoate the absolute necessity of blind submission to a murshid, or inspired guide. It is generally admitted that, quite irrespective of minor sects, the Sulis are divided into those who claim to be only the Ithamiyah, or inspired of God, and those who assert that they are Ittihadiyah, or unionist with God

I The Doctrine of the Suf is

The following is a succinct account of the doctrines of the Sufis -

1 God only exists He in all things, and all things in Him.

2 All visible and invisible beings are an emanation from Him, and are not really distinct from Him

3. Religious are matters of indifference they however serve as leading to realities Some for this purpose are more advantageous than others, among which is al Islam, of which Safiism is the true philosophy

4. There does not really exist any difference between good and evil, for all 18 reduced to Unity, and God 15 the real Author of the acts of mankind

5 It is God who fixes the will of man man therefore is not free in his actions

6 The soul existed before the body, and is confined within the latter as in a cage Death, therefore, should be the object of the wishes of the Suff, for it is then that he returns to the bosom of Divinity.

7. It is by this metempsychosis that souls which have not fulfilled their destination here below are purified and become worthy of reumon with God.

8 Without the grace of God, which the Şafis call Fayazānu 'llāh, or Fazlu 'llāh, no one can attain to this spiritual union, but this, they assort, can be obtained by fervently asking for it

9 The principal occupation of the Saff, whilst in the body, is meditation on the wahdaniyah or Unity of God, the remambrance of God's names [ZIKE], and the progressive advancement in the Turiquit, or journey of life, so as to attain unification with God.

II The Sufi Journey

Human life is likened to a journey (safar). and the seeker after God to a traveller

(salik)
The great business of the traveller is to knowledge (mainfah) of God which is diffused through all things, for the Soul of man is an exile from its Oreator, and human existence is its period of banishment. The sels object of Sufusm is to lead the wandering soul onward, stags by stage, until it reaches the desired goal -perfect union with the Divine Being

The natural state of every human being is humanity (nāsūt), in which state the disciple must observe the Law (sherriah), but as this is the lowest form of spiritual existence, the performance of the journey is enjoined upon every searcher after true knowledge.

The various stages (manazil) are differently described by Sufi writers, but amongst those of India (and, according to Malcolm, of Persia also,) the following is the usual journey

The first stage, as we have already remarked, is humanity (nasūt), in which the disciple must live according to the Law (sharī'ah), and observe all the rites, customs, and precepts of his religion. The second is the nature of angels (malakut), for which there is the pethway of purity (tariqua). The third is the possession of power (jubrut), for which there is knowledge (mairifah), and the fourth is extinction (fand) (is absorp-tion into the Deity), for which there is Truth (haqıqah)

The following more extended journey is marked out for the traveller by a Sufi writer, 'Aziz ibn Muhammad Nafasi, in a book called al-Maqsadu 'l-Aqsa, or the " Remotest Aim," which has been rendered into English by the lamented Professor Palmer (Oriental Mysticism, Cambridge, 1867)

When a man possessing the necessary requirements of fully-developed reasoning powers turns to them for a resolution of his doubts and uncertainties concerning the real nature of the Godhead, he is called a fant, "a searcher after God"

If he manifest a further inclination to prosecute his inquiry according to their system, he is called a murid, or "one who molines "

Placing himself then under the spiritual instruction of some eminent leader of the sect, he is fairly started upon his journey and becomes a salik, or "traveller," whose whole business in life is devotion, to the end that he may ultimately arrive at the knowledge of God

1 Here he is exhorted to serve God, as the first step towards a knowledge of Him This is the first stage of his jorrney, and is called "sbudiyah ( ( ), ), or "service"

2 When in answer to his prayers the Divine influence or attraction has developed his inclination into the love of God, he is said to have reached the stage called 'Ishq or " love " (عشق)

8. This Divine Love, expelling all worldly desires from his heart, leads him to the next stage, which is zund ( ), or "seclusion"

4. Occupying himself henceforward with contemplations and investigations of metaphysical theories concerning the nature, attributes, and works of God, he reaches ma'rıfah (معرفة), or "knowledge"

5 This assiduous contemplation of start-ling metaphysical theories is exceedingly attractive to an oriental mind, and not unfrequently produces a state of mental excitement Such ecstatic state is conexcitement sidered a sure prognostication of direct illumination of the heart by God, and constitutes the next stage, called ward (344). or " eastary "

6 During this stage he is supposed to receive a revelation of the true nature of the Godhead, and to have reached the stage called haqiqah (dan), or "truth"

7 He then proceeds to the stage of . asl

رطر), or "umon with God" 8 Further than this he cannot go, but pursues his habit of self-denial and contemplation until his death, which is looked upon as fand (all), "total absorption into the Deity, extinction."

To develop this quasi "spiritual life" the Sufi leaders have invented various forms of devotion called gikr (نكر), or "recitations" These eccentric exercises have generally attracted the notice of travellers in the East. and have been described by Lane, Vambéry, Burton, and other Orientalists For an account of these ceremonies of Zikr the reader is referred to the article under that head [ETER.]

III The Perfect Man in Suf & Spiritualism

The late Professor E H. Palmer of Cambridge has in his Orsental Mysticism, compiled from nat.ve sources, given a very expect idea of what may be considered the spiritual side of Muhammadanism, as expressed in the teaching of Muslim Sufis

"The perfect man is he who has fully comprehended the Law, the Doctrine, and the Truth, or, in other words, he who is endued with four things in perfection, viz. 1 Good words, 2 Good deeds, 3 Good principles, 4 The sciences It is the business of the Traveller to provide himself with these things in perfection, and by so doing he will provide himself with perfection.

"The Perfect Man has had various other names assigned to him, all equally applicable, viz. Elder, Leader, Guide, Inspired Teacher, Wise, Virtuous, Perfect, Perfecter, Beacon and Mirror of the world, Powerful Autidote, Mighty Elizir, Isa (Jesus) the Raiser of the Dead, Khizar the Discoverer of the Water of Lafe, and Solomon who knew the language of Birde

"The Universe has been likened to a single person, of whom the Perfect Man is the Soul, and again, to a tree, of which mankind is the fruit, and the Perfect Man the pith and essence. Nothing is hidden from the Perfect Man; for after arriving at the knowledge of God, he has attained to that of the nature and properties of material objects, and can henceforth find no better employment than acting mercifully towards mankind Now there is no mercy better than to devote cneself to the perfection and improvement of others, both by precept and example. Thus the Prophet is called in the Coran 'a mercy to the Universe' (Cor cap 21, v 107) But with all his perfection the Perfect Man cannot compass his desires, but passes his life in consistent and unavoidable self-denial he is perfect in knowledge and principle, but imperfect in faculty and power,

"There have indeed been Perfect Men possessed of power, such power as that which resides in kings and rulers, yet a careful consideration of the poor extent of man's capacities will show that his weakness is preferable to his power, his want of faculty pioferable to his possession of it. Prophets and saints, kings and sultans, have desired many things, and failed to obtain them, they have wished to avoid many things, and have had them forced upon them Mankind is made up of the Perfect and the Imperfect, of the Wise and the Foolish, of Kings and Subjects, but all are alike weak and helpless, all pass their lives in a manner contrary to their desires, this the Perfect Man recognises and acts upon, shd, knowing that nothing is better for man than renunciation, forsakes all and becomes free and at leisure. As before he renounced wealth and digmity, so now he foregoes eldership and teachership, esteeming freedom and rest above everything the fact is, that though the motive alleged for education and care of others is a feeling of compassion and a regard for discipline, yet the real instigation is the love of dignity as the Prophet says, The last thing that is removed from the chiefs of the righteous is love of dignity' I have said that the Perfect Man should be endued with four things in perfection now the Perfectly Free Man should have four additional characteristics, viz renunciation, retirement, contentment, and leisure He who has the first four is virtuous, but not free he who has the whole eight is perfect, liberal, virtuous, and free Furthermore, there are two grades of the Perfectly Free-those who have renounced weak and dignity only, and those who have further renounced eldership and teachership, thus becoming free and at leisure. These againare subdivided into two classes, those who, after renunciation, retirement and coutentment make choice of obscurity, and those who, after renunciation, make choice of submission contemplation, and resignation, but the object of both is the same Some writers assert, that freedom and lessure consists in the former course, while others maintain that it is only to be found in the latter

"Those who make choice of obscurity are actuated by the knowledge that annoyance and distraction of thought are the invariable concomitants of society, they therefore avoid receiving visus and presents, and fear them as they would venomous beasts The other class, who adopt submission, resignation and contemplation, do so because they perceive that mankind for the most part are ignorant of what is good for them, being dissatisfied with what is baneficial, and delighted with circumstances that are harmful to them, as the Coran says, 'Perchance ye may dislike what is good for you, and like what is hurtful to you.' (Cor cap 2, v 218) For this reason they retire from society equally with the other class, caring little what the world may think of them

"Fellowship has many qualities and effects both of good and evil. The fellowship of the wise is the only thing that can conduct the Traveller eafely to the Goal, therefore all the aubmission, earnestness, and discipline that have been hitherto inculcated are merely in order to render him worthy of such fellowship. Provided he have the capacity, a single day, nay, a single hour, in the society of the wise, tends more to his improvement than years of self-discipline without it 'Verily one day with the Lord is better than a thousand years' (Cor cap. 22, v 46)
"It is, however, possible to frequent the society of the wise without receiving any benefit therefrom, but this must proceed either from want of capacity or want of will. In order then to avoid such a result tha Sufis have laid down the following rules for the conduct of the disciple when in the presence of his teachers

"Hear, attend, but speak little

- "Never answer a question not addressed to you, but if asked, answer promptly and concisely, never feeling ashamed to say, 'I know not.
  - "Do not dispute for disputation's sake

"Never boast before your elders

"Never seek the highest place, nor even accept it if it be offered to you.

"Do not be over-ceremonious, for this will compel your elders to act in the same manner towards you, and give them needless annoyance

"Observe in all cases the etiquette appropriate to the time, place, and persons present

"In indifferent matters, that 18, matters involving no breach of duty by their omission or commission, conform to the practice and wishes of those with whom you are associating

"Do not make a practice of anything which is not either a duty or calculated to increase the comfort of your associates, otherwise it will become an idel to you; and it is incumbent on every one to break his idols and renounce his habits."

IV Renunciation.

"This leads us to the subject of Renunciation, which is of two kinds, external and internal. The former is the renunciation of worldly wealth, the latter, the renunciation of worldly desires. Everything that hinders or veils the Traveller's path must be re-nounced, whether it relate to this world or the next Wealth and dignuty are great him-Wealth and dignity are great himdrances, but too much praying and fasting are often hindrances too. The one is a shroud of darkness, the other a veil of light. Traveller must renounce idolatry, if he desire to reach the Goal, and everything that have his progress is an idol. All men have some idol, which they worship, with one it is wealth and dignity, with another overmuch prayer and fasting. If a man sit always upon his prayer-carpet, his prayer-carpet becomes his idol. And so on with a great number of instances

"Renunciation must not be performed without the advice and permission of an It should be the renunciation of trifles, not of necessaries, such as food, clothing, and dwelling-place, which are indispensable to man, for without them he would be obliged to rely on the aid of others, and this would beget avarioe, which is the mother of vice 'The renunciation of necessaries produces as corrupting an influence upon the mind as the possession of too much wealth. The greatest of blessings is to have a sufficiency, but to over-step this limit is to gain nought but additional trouble

"Renunciation is the practice of those who know God, and the characteristic mark of the wise Every individual isnoies that he alone possesses this knowledge, but know-ledge is an attribute of the mind, and there is no approach from unaided sense to the attributes of the mind, by which we can discover who is, or who is not, possessed of this knowledge. Qualities however are the sources of action, therefore a man's practice is an infallible indication of the qualities he possesses, if, for instance, a man asserts that he is a baker, a carpenter, or a blacksmith, we can judge at once if he possesses skill in these crafts by the perfection of his handi-work In a word, theory is internal, and practice external, the presence of the practice therefore, is a proof that the theory too as there

"Renunciation is necessary to the real confession of faith, for the formula 'There is no God but God, involves two things, negation and proof Negation is the renunciation of other Gods, and proof is the knowledge of Wealth and dignity have led many God from the right path, they are the gods the people worship, if then you see that one has renounced these, you may be sure that he has expelled the love of this world from his heart, and completed the negation, and whosoever has attained to the knowledge of God has completed the proofs This is really confessing that 'there is no God but God', and he who has not attained to the knowledge of God, has never really repeated the confession of faith. Early prejudices are a great stumbling-blook to many people, for the first principles of Monotheam are contained in the words of the Hadís, 'Every one is born with a disposition [for the true faith], but his parents make him a Jew, a Christian, or a Magian.' The Unitarians also say, that the real confession of faith consists in negation and proof, but they explain negation by renunciation of self, and proof by acknowledgment of God

"Thus, according to the Sufis, confession of faith, prayer and fasting contain two distinot features, namely, form and truth, the former being entirely insflicacious without the latter Rennneiation and the knowledge of God are like a tree, the knowledge of God is the root, renunciation the branches, and all good principles and qualities are the fruit To sum up, the lesson to be learnt is that in repeating the formula the Traveller must acknowledge in his heart that God only always was, God only always will be This world and the next, nay, the very existence of the Traveller, may vanish, but God alone remains This is the true confession of faith, and although the Traveller before was blind, the moment he is assured of this his eyes are opened, and he seeth.

V Helps to Devotion

"The Suils hold that there are three ands necessary to conduct the Traveller on his

"1 Attraction (سيدة بالمجدل), 2 Devotion ('ibādah عادة 3 Llevation ('uruŋ (Attraction is the act of God, who draws wards this world, and is entangled in the love of wealth and dignity, until the grace of God steps in and turns his heart towards God The tendency proceeding from God is called Attraction, that which proceeds from man is called Inclination, Desire and Love As the inclination increases, its name changes, and it causes the Traveller to renounce everything else becoming a Kiblah, to set his face towards God, when it has become his Kiblah, and made him forget everything but God, it is developed into Love. [QIBLAST]

"Most men when they have attained this stago are content to pass their lives therein, and leave the world without making further progress Such a person Attracted ( majawa) Such a person the Sufis call

"Others, however, proceed from this to self-examination, and pass the rest of their lives in devotion. They are then called Devently Attracted (all majzüb-i-Satuk). If devotion be first practised, and the attraction of God then step in, such a person is called an Attracted Devotee ( Sālik-s-majzūb) If he practise and complete devotion, but is not influenced by the attraction of God, he is called a Devotee (alli-Sālık)

"Sheikh Shehab-uddin, in his work entitled 'Awarf al Madrif, says that an elder or teacher should be selected from the second class alone for although many may be estimable and righteons, it is but few who are fit for such offices, or for the education of disciples.

"Devotion is the prosecution of the journey, and that in two ways, to God and in God The first, the Sufis say, has a limit, the second is boundless, the journey to God 18 completed when the Traveller has attained to the knowledge of God, and then com-mences the journey in God, which has for its object the knowledge of the Nature and Attributes of God, a task which they confess is not to be accomplished in so short a space as the lifetime of man

The knowledge wisest men have shared Of Thy great power and Thee Is less, when with Thyself compared, Than one drop in a sea.

"The Unitarians maintain that the journey to God is completed when the Traveller has acknowledged that there is no existence save that of God, the journey in God they explain to be a subsequent inquiry into the mysteries of nature

"The term Elevation or ascent (Enc 'uru) is almost synonymous with Progress

VI The Intellectual and Spiritual Development of Man

"Every animal possesses a vegetative spirit, a living opirit, and an instinctive spirit; but man has an additional inheritance, Now this namely the Spirit of Humanity. was breathed by God into man directly from Himself, and is therefore of the same character as the Primal Element 'And when I have fashioned him and breathed My spirit into him' (Cor cap, 15 v 29) The Sufis do not interpret this of the Lafe, but of the Spirit of Humanity, and say that it is frequently not attained until a late period of life, thirty or even eighty years Before man can receive this Spirit of Humanity, he must be formshed with capacity, which is only to be acquired by purifying oneself from all evil and immoral qualities and dispositions, and adorning oneself with the opposite ones Sheikh Muhiy-uddin ibn ul 'Arabi, in his 'Investigations' (فهوص), says that the words and when I have fashioned him,' refer to this preparation, and the rest of the sentence, 'and breathed My spirit into him,' refere to the accession of the Spirit of Humanity.

"Two conditions are therefore imposed upon the Traveller, first, to attain Humanity, second, to acquire capacity.

"There are three developments of character that must be suppressed before man can attain to Humanity, the animal, the brutal and the fiendish. He who only ests and sleeps, and gives way to lust, is mere snimal, if besides these he gives way to anger and cruelty, he is brutal, and if in addition to all these he is crafty lying, and decentful, he is flendish.

"If the Traveller is moderate in his food, rest, and desires, and strives to attain a knowledge of himself and of God, then is the time for acquiring capacity by freeing himself from all that is evil and base, and adorning himself with the opposite qualities; after that by prayer he may obtain the Spirit of Humanity Some one has truly said that there is none of the perfection, essence, or immortality of man, save only among such as are 'created with a godly disposition.' When the Traveller has once been revivified by the Spirit of Humanity he becomes immortal, and inherits everlasting life. This is why it has been said that 'man has a beginning but no end.'

"If when he has attained this Spirit of Humanity, he is earnest, and does not waste his life in triffing, he soon arrives at the Divine Light itself. For 'God guideth whom He pleaseth unto His Light'. The attainment of this light is the completion of Man's upward progress, but no one can attain to it but those who are pure in spirit and in their lives. Mohammed asserted that he himself had attained it, 'To the light have I reached and in the light X live,' now this light is the Nature of God; wherefore he said, 'who seeth me seeth God' [NUR-I-MUMANIANAD.]

"The germ that contains the Primal Element of Man is the lowest of the low, and the Divine Light is the highest of the high, it is between these extremes that the stages of man's upward or downward progress he 'We have created man in the fairest of proportions, and then have thrown him back to be the lowest of the low, save only such a believe and act with righter usness, and verily these shall have thom reward' (Cor cap 95, v 4) This reward is said by the Sufis to be defined by the word aprat, 'reward,' itself This word contains three radical letters | g and , | stands for $alc|' return,'

g for Lie, 'paradise,' and , for Lie, that is 'those who have handed down the faith' Their acting righteensly is their return to the Nature of God, for when they have innshed their upward progress and reached this they are in Paradise, and in the presence of their God. He therefore is a man, in the true sense of the word, who being sent down upon earth strives upward towards Heaven. These aspirations are indispensable to man, he might by the Almighty Power of God exist without all beside, even had the Heavens and the elements themselves never been, but these things are the aim and want of all "It has been said that the Primal Ele-

"It has been said that the Primal Element or constructive spirit as well as the Spirit of Humanity proceed direct from God. They are therefore identical, and are both mcluded by the Sufis in the one term Concomitant Spirit. Now this Spirit, although distinct and individual, comprehends and governs the entire Universe. The Simple Natures are its administrators and exponents; of these the Seven Sires beget, and the Four Mothers conceive from the incarnation of this spirit in them, and their offspring is the triple kingdom, Mineral, Vegetable, and Animal. And so it is with the Lesser World of Man.

"Now this Spirit hath two functions, external and internal, the external is revealed in the material generation just alluded to, the internal abides in the heart of man. Whosoever purifies his heart from worldly impressions and desires, reveals this internal function of the Spirit within him, and illumines and revivities his soul

"Thus the Spirit at once comprehends the Universe and dwells in the heart of man,

VII Of the Upward Progress or Ascent of

"When Man has become assured of the truth of Revelation, he has reached the stage of Belief, and has the name of Mainin, Believer When he further acts in obedience to the will of God, and apportune the night and day for earnest prayer, he has reached the stage of worship, and is called an 'A'bid, or 'Worshipper' When he has an 'A'bid, or 'Worshipper' When he has expelled the love of this world from his heart, and occupies himself with a contemplation of the mighty Whole, he reaches the next stage, and becomes a Zdkid, or 'Recluse' When in addition to all this he knows God, and subsequently learns the mysterms of nature, he reaches the stage of Acquaintance, and is called 'A'ref, ' One who knows' The next stage is that in which he attains to the love of God, and is called a Welf, or 'Saint.' When he is moreover gifted with inspiration and the power of working miracles, he becomes a Nebi, 'Prophet'; and when entrusted next with the delivery of God's own message, he is called an 'Apostle,' Rusul. When he is appointed to abrogate a previous dispensation and preach a new one, he is called Ulu 'PAxm, 'One who has a mission' When this mission is final, he has arrived at the stage called Khatm, or 'the beal' This is the Upward Progress of Man. The first stage is the 'Believer,' the last the 'Seal'

"After separation from the body, the soul of Man returns to that Heaven which corresponds to the stage which he has attained, thus the Believer at last dwells in the hist or lowest Heaven, and the Seal in the Heaven of Heavens, for it will be noticed that the stages of upward progress correspond to the number of degrees in the Heavenly Spheres, namely, seven inferior and two superior

"The metaphysicians saythat these stages and degrees do not in reality exist, but that the Heavanly Intelligence which corresponds to the degree of intelligence attained by Man, attracts and absorbs his soul into itself after separation from the hody. Thus every one who has attained intelligence corresponding to that of the highest sphere, his soul returns thereto; and he who has attained intelligence corresponding to the lowest sphere, his soul in like manner returns to that, those who have not attained intelligence corresponding to any of these will be placed in Hell, which is situate below the lowest sphere.

"As each of the Heavenly Spheres is furnished with knowledge and purity in proportion to its position, the rank of Man's soul in the future state will, according to this last account, be in proportion to his degree of knowledge and purity of life while upon the earth.

"The Unitarians say that man's Upward Progress has no end, for if he strive for a thousand years, each day will teach him something that he knew not before, masmuch as the knowledge of God has no limit So Mohammed says, 'He who progresses daily is yet of feeble mind.'

"The religious account says that the soul of every man returns to an individual place after separation from the body This the metaphysicians deny, for how, say they, oan the soul of a man return to a certain place when it has not originally come from a cer tain place? The soul of man is the Primal Spirit, and if a thousand persons live, it is the same spirit that animates them all, and in like manner if a thousand dis, the same spirit returns to itself, and is not lessened or dimi-If a myriad persons build houses and make windows thorain, the same sun illumines them all, and though every one of them should be destroyed, the sun would not be lessened or diminished The sun is the lord of the sensible world, and the exponent of the attri-butes of the Primal Spirit. The Primal Spirit is the lord of the invisible world and the exponent of the Nature of God.

"When the heart of man has been reviviled and illumined by the Primal Spirit, he has arrived at Intelligence, for Intelligence is a light in the heart, distinguishing between truth and vanity. Until he has been so reviviled and illumined, it is impossible for him to attain to intelligence at all. But having attained to intelligence, then, and not till then, is the time for the attainment of knowledge, for becoming Wise. Intelligence is a Primal Element, and knowledge the attribute thereof. When from knowledge he has successively proceeded to the attainment of the Divine Light, and acquaintance with the mysteries of nature, his last step will be Perfection, with which his Upward Progress con-

"But dive he ever so deeply into the treasury of mysteries and knowledge, unless he examine himself and confess that after all he knows naught, all that he has acquired will slip through his hands, and leave him far poorer than before. His treasure of to-day should as much exceed the treasure of yesterday as an ocean exceeds a drop, but this can never be, unless he, leaving all else for contemplation and self-examination, have freedom and leisure to learn how poor he really is, and how much he needs the saving help of God.

"One class of Unitarians expi ward Progress of Man thus. The every stom of existent beings is light,

Arise and look around, for that has birth

Shines forth a lustrous bee mine all the earth.

but that man walks abroad is blinded by the lusts of life, and want of light that would, were he of it, involve him in the glorior brightest day

"Twere well to eatch the about our senses play,
For all the world is full of bl

the sweets away
What they mean is this, that beings are compounded of two the second light, which are indistiblended together. The light bel Invisible, and the darkness to second the former exercises a partiuence upon the latter. The objection of them, is to separate from the darkness, that its naturabutes may be understood, and in this Upward Progress.

"Although the light and the d never be entirely separated, for the it were the veil of the other, the l made to prevail, so that its attr become manifest.

"Now it is possible to separathe light from the darkness in cei in the bodies of men and animistance, there are certain organismork, whose sols object is this Thus, when food is introduced in much, the liver receives the creasence of it and transmits it to the heart, in like manner, extracts the this, which is the life, and transmits in the this, which is the life, and transmits in the this, and transforms it into the life, the real light of all.

"The clixir evolved by the b instinctive spirit, and is, as it will a lantern, but it gives forth aftifickering and cloudy light, and no should therefore be to strengthen it by Renunciation and Contempit give forth the true light which if Humanity When man has this he necessarily becomes free from the evil, and is adorned instead good and noble quality.

"The body of man is like a lyegetative Spirit is the lamp, the Spirit is the lamp, the Spirit is the lamp, the Spirit is the wick, the Instinctive oil, and the Spirit of Humanity the kindles all. 'Verily its off wo shine even though no fire kindles cap 24, v 35.) In other words, the Spirit should feed and supply of Humanity, as the oil feeds at the flame in a lamp. The Travaim at completing this lamp, the heart may be illumined, and he things as they really are. When the Spirit of Humanity a 'light upon light' (Cor cap 24, v. 85) has thus kindled the Instinctive Spirit, God 'guideth whom He pleaseth to His own light' (idenr), that is, to the divine light of His own nature, reaching which the Traveller's Upward Progress is complete, for 'from Him they spring, and unto Him return.'"

VIII Suficem adapted to Muhammadanism

A clear and intelligible exposition of the principles of Süfilem, or Oriental Spiritualism, is given by Muhammad al-Misrī, a Süfi of the Ilhāmiyah school of thought, in the following categorical form (translated by Mr J P Brown, in the Journal of the American Oriental Society) It represents more particularly the way in which this form of mystionem is adapted to the stern and dogmatic teaching of Islām

Question -What is the beginning of at-Tasawwui?

Answer—Iman, or faith, of which there are six pillars, namely, (1) Belief in God, (2) in His Angels, (8) in His Books, (4) and in His Prophets, (5) in the Last Day, and (6) in His decree of good and evil

Q - What is the result of at-Tasawwuf?

A—It is not only the reciting with the tongue these pillars of faith, but also establishing them in the heart. This was the reply made by the Murchid Junaidu T-Baghdādī, m answer to the same question.

Q.—What is the distinction between a Suff and an ordinary person?

A.—The knowledge of an ordinary person is but Imanu-i-Taqlidi, or "a counterfeit faith," whereas that of the Şūfi is Iman-i-Taqqiqi, or "true faith"

Q-What do you mean by counterfeit faith?

A -It is that which an ordinary person hae derived from his forefathers, or from the teachers and preachers of his own day, without knowing why it is essential that a man should believe in these six articles for his soul's salvation. For example, a person may be walking in the public streets and find a precious jewel which, perhaps, kings had cought for in vain, and rulers who had conquered the whole world had sought for and yet had not found. But in this precious jewel he has found that which is more effugent than the sun, when it is so bright that it obscures the lesser light of the moon, or even he has found an alchemy which can convert copper into gold And yet, perhaps, the finder knows not the value of the precious jewel, but thinks it a counter-feit jewel, and one which he would give away even for a drink of water if he were thirsty

Q.—What is the establishment of faith?

A.—The establishment of faith consists in a search being made for the true origin of each of these six pillars of faith, until the enquirer arrives at al-Maqigah, "the Truth" Many persons pursue the journey for ten, or twenty, or thirty, or even forty years, and, wandering away from the true path, enter upon the path of error, and hence there are known to be seventy-three ways, only one of which is the way of Salvation. [SECTA.] At last, by a perfect subjection to the teaching of the Murshid, or guide, they find out the value of the lost jewel which they have found, and their faith becomes manifest, and you might say that, with the light of a lamp, they have reached the sun. They then find out that the Tariqah, or journey of the Suff, is consistent with the Sharrah, or law of Islām

Q-in matters of faith and worship, to what sect are the Sufis attached?

A—(To this reply the author says, speaking, of course, of his own people, that they are chiefly of the Sunui sect. But he does not notice that mystic doctrines are more prevalent amongst the Shī'ahs.)

Q.—When Bāyasīd al-Bieţāmī was asked of what sect he was, he replied, "I am of the sect of Aliāh" What did he mean?

A —The sects of Allah are the four orthodox sects of Islam. [Here our author departs from true Sufi teaching ]

Q.—Most of the Sufis, in their poems, use certain words which we hear and understand as showing that they were of the Metempsychosians. They say, "I am sometimes Lot, sometimes a vegetable, sometimes an animal, at other times a man." What does this mean? A -Brother! the prophet has said . " My people, in the future life, will rise up in companies "-that is, some as monkeys, others as hoge, or in other forms—as is written in a verse of the Qur'an, Sürah kazviii 16 "Ye shall come in troops," which has been commented on by al-Bazawi, who cites a tradition to the effect that at the resurrection, men will rise up in the form of those animals whose chief obstacteristics resemble their own ruling passions in life the greedy, avaricious man as a hog, the angry, pas-sionate man as a camel, the tale-bearer or mischief-maker as a monkey For though these men, while m this life, bore the human form externally, they were internally no-thing different from the animals whose characters are in common with their own. The resemblance is not manifest during the life, but becomes so in the other existence, after the resurrection. Let us avoid such traits, repentance before death will free us from these evils The Prophet said with regard to this "Sleep is the brother of death. The tying man sees himself in his true character, and so knews whether or not he 18, by repentance, freed from his ruling passion of hie. In like manner, he will see himself during his clumbers, still following in the path of his passions" For instance, the money-calculator, in sleep, eees himself engaged in his all-absorbing occupation, and this fact is a warning from God not to allow himself to be absorbed in any enimal passion or degrading occupation. It is only by prayerful repentance that anyone can hope to see himself, in his sleep, delivered from his ruling earnal passion, and restored to his proper human, intellectual form If in your slumbers you see a monkey, consider it as a warning to abandon or abstain from the passion of mischief, if a hog, coase to selfo upon the goods of others, and so on Go and give yourself up to an upright Murshid, or spiritual guide, who will, through his prayers, show you in your slumbers the evil parts of your character, until one by one they have passed away, and have been replaced by good ones—all through the power of the name of God, whom he will nest you to invoke [ZIKR] at length you will only see in your slumbers the forms of hely and pious men, in testimony of that degree of piety to which you will have attained. This is what is meant by that expression of certain poets, referring to one's condition previous to the act of repentance, when the writer says, "I am sometimes an animal, sometimes a vegetable, semetimes a man", and the same may be said by the Sufis, in application to themselves, as of any other part of creation, for man is called the athiru '-maujudat, or "the climax of beings" for in him are com-prised all the characteristics of creation Many mystical books have been written on this subject, all showing that man is the larger part, and the world the smaller part, of God's creation The human frame is said to comprise all the other parts of creation and the heart of man is supposed to be even more comprehensive than the rainbow, because, when the eyes are closed the mental capacity can take in the whole of a vast city, though not seen by the eyes, it is seen by the capacious nature of the mind. Among such books is the Hauzu 'l Hayat, or the "Well of Lafe," which says that, if a man closes his eyes, ears, and nostrils, he cannot take cold, that the right nostral is called the sun, and the left the meen, that from the former he breathes heat, and from the latter cold air

Q.—Explain the distinctive opinions of the Sufis in at-Tanasukh, or the Transmigration of Souls

A—O Brother I our teaching regarding al-Barzakh (Qur'an xxiii 102) has nothing whatever to do with at-Tanānskh Of all the erring sects in the world, those who believs in Metempsychosis, or Transmigration of Souls, is the very worst

Q.—The Safis regard certain things as lawful which are forbidden. For instance, they enjoin the use of wine, wine-shops, the wine-cup, sweethearts, they speak of the curls of their mistresses, and the moles on their faces, cheeks, &c, and compare the farrows on their brows to verses of the Quran. What does this mean?

A—The Sufis often exchange the external features of all things for the internal, the corporeal for the spiritual, and thins give an imaginary signification to outward forms. They behold objects of a premous nature in their natural character—and for this reason.

the greater part of their words have a spuritual and figurative meaning. For instance, when, like Haffs, they mention wine, they mean a knowledge of God, which, figuratively considered, is the love of God. Wine, viewed figuratively, is also love love and affection are here the same thing. wine-shop, with them, means the murshedu 'lkāmul, or spiritual director, for his heart is said to be the depository of the love of God; the wine-cup is the Taloin, or the pronunci-ation of the name of God in a declaration of faith, as "There is no God but Allahl" or it signifies the words which flow from the Murshed's mouth respecting divine know-ledge, and which, when heard by the Sātik, or "one who pureues the true path," intoxicatee his soul, and divests his heart of passions, giving him pure spiritual delights. The sweetheart means the excellent preceptor, because, when anyone sees his beloved, he admires her perfect proportions, with a heart full of love; the Salik beholds the secret knowledge of God which fills the heart of his spiritual preceptor, or Murshid, and through it receives a similar inspiration, and acquires a full perception of all that he possesses, just as the pupil learns from his master As the lover delights in the presence of his sweetheart, so the Salik rejoices in the company of his beloved Murshid, or preceptor The sweetheart is the object of a worldly affection, but the preceptor of a spiritual attachment. The ourls or ringlets of the beloved are the grateful praises of the preceptor, tending to bind the affections of the disciple, the moles on her face signify that when the pupil, at times, beholds the total absence of all worldly wants on the part of the preceptor, he also abandons all the desires of both worlds-he perhaps even goes so far as to desire nothing else in life than his preceptor, the furrows on the brow of the beloved one, which they compare to verses of the Qur'an, mean the light of the heart of the Murshid, they are compared to verses of the Qur'an, because the attributes of God, in accordance with the injunction of the Prophet "Be ye endued with divine qualities," are possessed by the Murshid
Q.—The Murshids and their disciples often

Q.—The Mursheds and their disciples often say "We see God" Is it possible for anyone to see God?

A—It is not possible What they mean by this assertion is that they know God, that they see His power, for it is forbidden to mortal eyes to behold Him, as as declared in the Qur'an, Sürsh vi 103 "No sight reaches Him, He reaches the sight—the subtle, the knowing" The Prophet commanded us to "adors God, as thou wouldst didst thou see Him, for, if thou dost not see Him, He sees thee." This permission to adore Him is a divine favour, and they say that they are God's servants by divine favour "Ali said" Should the veil fall from my eyes, how would God visit me in truth?" This saying proves that no one really sees God, and that even the sainted 'Ali never saw Him.

Q—Can it possibly be erroneous to say that, by seeing the traces of anyone he may be beheld?

Men any person sees the brightness of the sun, he may safely say that he has seen the sun, twongh, undeed, he has not really seen it. There is another example, namely Should you hold a murror in your hand, you see a figure in it, and you may, therefore, say that you see your own face, which is really an impossibility, for no one has ever seen his own face, and you have asserted what is not strictly correct

Q.—Since everyone sees the traces of God, as everyone is able to do, how is it that the Sufis declare that they only see Him?

A.—Those who make this statement do not know what they see, for they have never really seen Him. A person who has eaten of a sweet and savoury dish given to him, but of which he knews not the name, seeks for it agam with a longing deems after it, and thus wanders about in search of what has given him so much delight, even though he be ignorant of what it really was. So are these who seek after God, without knowing Him, or what He is

Q—Some Shiis declare "We are neither airaid of Hell, nor do we desire Heaven"—a saying which must be blasphemous. How is this?

A -They do not really mean that they do not fear Hell, and that they do not wish for Heaven. If they really meant this, it would be blasphemous Their meaning is not as they express themselves, probably they wish to say "O Lord, Thou who crestedst us, and madest us what we are, Thou hast not made us because we assist Thy workings We are in duty bound to serve Thee all the mere devotedly, wholly in obedience to Thy holy will. We have no bargaining with holy will Thee, and we do not adore Thee with the view of gaining thereby either Heaven or Hell ' As It is written in the Qur'an, Surah 1x 112 "Verily, God hath bought of the believers their persons and their wealth, for the Paradise they are to have," which means that His bounty has no bounds, His mercy no end; and thus it is that He benefits His farthful servants. They would say "Thou hast no bargaining with anyone, our devotion is from the sineerity of our hearts, and is for love of Thee only Were there ne Heaven, nor any Hell, it would still be our duty to adore Thes. To Thee belongs the perfect right to put us either in Heaven or in Hell, and may Thy commands be exccuted agreeably to Thy blessed will! If Then puttest us in Heaven, it is through Thine excellence, net on account of our devotien, if Thou puttest us in Hell, it is from out of Thy great justice, and not from any arbitrary decision on Thy part, so be it for ever and for ever!" This is the true meaning of the Sufis when they say they do not desire Heaven or feer Hell

Q.—Thou saidst that there is no conflict between the Sharrah, "law," and the Harigah, "truth," and nething in the latter inconsistent with the former, and yet these two are distinguished from one another by "a something" which the Ahlu 'l-Hagiguk, " believers in the truth," conceal. Were there nothing conflicting, why should it be thus hidden?

A—If it be concealed, it is not because there is a contrariety to the law, but only because the thing hidden is contrary to the human mind, no definition is subtle, and not understood by everyons, for which reason the Prophet said "Speak to men according to their mental capacities, for if your speak all things to all men, some cannot understand you, and so fall into error." The Suffit therefore, hide some things conformably with this precept

Q—Should anyone not know the science which is known to the Sūfis, and still de what the law plainly commands, and he satisfied therewith, would his faith and Islām be less than that of the Sūfis?

A—No. He would not be inferior to the Sūfis, his faith and Islām would be equal even to that of the prophets, because Imān and Islām are a jewel which admits of no division or separation into parts, and can neither be increased nor diminished, just as the portion of the sun enjoyed by a king and by a jaqur is the same, or as the limbs of the poor and the rich are equal in number; just as the members of the body of the king and the subject are precisely alike, so is the faith of the Mushim the same in all and common to all, neither greater nor less in any case.

Q.—Some men are prophets, saints, pure ones, and others Fasigs (who knew God, but perform none of His commands), what difference is there among them?

A—The difference lies in their mairifah, or "knowledge of spiritual things", but in the matter of faith they are all equal, just as, in the case of the ruler and the subject, their limbs are all equal, while they differ in their dress, power and office

IX Suf : Poetry

The very essence of Sufusm is poetry, and the Eastern Mystics are never tired of expatisting on the 'Ishq, or "love to God," which is the one distinguishing feature of Suff mys-The Masnawi, which teaches in the sweetest strains that all nature abounds with love divine, that causes even the lowest plant to seek the sublime object of its desire, works of the celebrated Jami, so full of ecstatic rapture, the moral lessons of the eloquent Sa'di, and the lyric edes of Hafis. may be termed the Scriptures of the Safi sect, and yet each of these authors contains passages which are unfit for publication in an English dress, and advocate morals at variance with what Christianity teaches us to be the true reflection of God's Hely Will. Whilst propriety demands the suppression of verses of the character alluded to, we give a few odes as specimens of the higher order of Sali poetry

Jalkin 'd-die ar-Rümi, the author of the Magnasoi (A.K. 670), thus writes

I am the Gospel, the Psalter, the Qur'an ,-I am Essa and Lat—(Arabic delues)—Bell and the Dragon

Into three and seventy sects is the world divided,

Yet only one God, the faithful who believe m Him am I

Thou knowest what are fire, water, air and earth.

Fire, water, air, and earth, all am I

Lies and truth, good, bad, hard and soft, Knowledge, solitude, virtue, faith, The deepest ground of hell, the highest torment of the flames,

The highest paradise, The earth and what is therein,

The angels and the devils, Spirit and man. am I.

What is the goal of speech, Otell it Shams Tabrizi?

The goal of sense? This --- The world Soul am I "

And again ---

"Are we fools? We are God's captivity
Are we wise? We are His promenade. Are we sleeping? We are drunk with God.

Then we are His Are we waking? beralda.

Then His clouds of Are we weeping? wrath.

Are we laughing? Flashes of His love."

Every night God frees the host of spirits. Frees them every night from fleshly prison Then the soul is neither slave nor master, Nothing knowe the bondsman of his bond-

Nothing knows the lord of all his lordship Gone from such a night, is eating sorrow, Gone, the thoughts that question good or 6711.

Then without distraction, or division, In this One the spirit sinks and slumbers"

The following is from the mystic poet Mahmad -

All sects but multiply the I and Thou, This I and Thou belong to partial being When I and Thou, and several being vanish,

Then mosque and church shall find Thee nevermore.

Our individual life is but a phantom, Make clear thine eye, and see reality "

The following verses are by Faridu 'd-din Shakrgunj (A.W. 662) -

"Man, what thou art is hidden from thyself.

Knew'st not that morning, mid-day, and the ere

Are all within Thee? The ninth heaven art Thou;

And from the spheres into the roar of time

Didet fall ere-while, Thote art the brush that painted

The hues of all the world—the light of hfe

That ranged its glory in the nothingness" Joy! joy! I triumph now, no more I know Myself as simply me I burn with leve The centre is within me, and its wonder Lies as a circle everywhere about me.

Joy! joy! No mortal thought can fathom me

I am the merchant and the pearl at once. Lel time and space he crouching at my feet

Joy! joy! When I would revel in a rapture.

I plunge into myself, and all things know "

Mr Lane, in his Modern Egyptians, gives a translation of a Sufi poem recited by an Egyptian Darwesh -

"With my love my heart is troubled, And mine eye-lid hind'reth sleep My vitals are dissever'd, While with streaming tears I weep. My union seems far distant Will my love e er meet mine eye? Alas | Did not estrangement Draw my tears, I would not sigh

By dreary mghts I'm wasted Absence makes my hope expire My tears, like pearls, are dropping, And my heart is wrapt in fire Whose is like my condition? Scarcely know I remedy Alas' Did not estrangement Draw my tears, I would not sigh.

O turtle-dove! acquaint me Wherefore thus dost thon lament? Art thou so stung by absence? Of thy wings depriv'd and pent? He saith, 'Our griefs are equal Worn away with love, I he Alas! Did not estrangement Draw my tears, I would not sigh

O First, and sole Eternal ! Show thy favour yet to me Thy slave, Ahmad El-Bekree, Hath no Lord excepting Thee. By Tá-há, the Great Prophet! Do thou not has wish deny. Alas | Did not estrangement Draw my tears, I would not aigh "

Dr Tholuck quotes this verse from a Darweeh Breviary

"Yesterday I heat the kettle-drum of dominion,

I pitched my tent on the highest throne; I drank, crowned by the Beloved,

The wine of unity from the cup of the Almighty"

One of the most characteristic Suff poems is the Persian poem by the poet Jami, en titled Salaman and Absal. The whole narrative is supposed to represent the joys of Love Divine as compared with the delusive fascinations of a Lafe of Sense. The story is that of a certain King of Ionia, who had a son named Salāmān, who in his infancy was nursed by a young maiden named Absal, who, as he grew up, fell desperately in love with the youth, and in time ensuared him. Balaman and Absal rejoiced together in a life of sense for a full year, and thought their pleasures would never end A certain sage is then sent by the king to reason with the erring couple. Salaman confesses that the sage is right, but pleads the weakness of his own will. Salāmān leaves his native land in company with Absal, and they find themselves on an island of wonderful heauty Salaman, unsatusfied with himself and his love, returns once more to his native country, where he and Absal resolve to destroy themselves. They go to a desert and kindle a pile, and both walk into the fire Absāl is consumed, but Salāmān is preserved in the fire, and lives to lament the fate of his heloved one. In course of time he is introduced by the sage to a celestral beauty called Zuhrah, with whom he becomes completely enamoured, and Absal is forgotten.

Gelestial beauty seen,
He left the earthly, and once come to know

Eternal love, he let the mortal go"

In the epilogne to the poem, the author explains the mystic meaning of the whols story in the following language —

"Under the outward form of any story
An inner meaning lies—this story now
Completed, do thou of its mystery (Whereto the wise hath found himself a way)

Have thy desire—no tale of I and Thou, Though I and Thou be its interpreters What signifies the King? and what the Sage?

And what Salaman not of woman born? And what Absal who drew him to desire?

And what the Kingdom that awaited

When he had drawn his garment from her hand?

What means that Fiery Pile? and what the Sea?

And what that heavenly Zuhrah who at last Clear'd Absal from the murror of his eoul?

Learn part by part the mystery from

All sar from head to foot and understanding be.

The moomparable Creator, when this world world

He did create, created first of all

The first intelligence—first of a chain
Of ten intelligence, of which the last
Sole Agent is this our Universe,
Active intelligence so call'd, the one
Distributor of evil and of good,
Of joy and sorrow. Himself apart from matter,
In essence and in energy—His treasure

Subject to no such talisman—He yet 'Eath fashion'd all that is—material form,

And spiritual sprung from Him-by Directed all, and in His bounty drown'd. Therefore is He that Firman-issuing King

To whom the world was subject. But because

What he distributes to the Universe Humself from still higher power receives, The wise, and all who comprehend aright.

Will recognise that higher in the Sage

His the Prime Spirit that, spontaneously Projected by the tenth intelligence, Was from no womb of matter reproduced A special easence called the Soul—a Child

Fresh sprung from heaven in raiment undefiled

Of sensual taint, and therefore call'd Salāmān.

And who Absal?—The lust-adoring body.

Slave to the blood and sense—through whom the Soul,

Although the body's very life it be, Does yet imbibe the knowledge and desire

Of things of sense, and these united

By such a tie God only can unloose, Body and soul are lovers such of other

What is the Sea on which they sail'd ?—
the Sea

Of anumal desire—the sensual abyse, Under whose waters lies a world of being Swept far from God in that submersion.

And wherefore was Absil in that Isle Deceived in her delight, and that Saliman

Fell short of his desire?—that was to show

How passion tires, and how with time begins

The folding of the carpet of desire.

And what the turning of Salaman's heart

Back to the King, and looking to the throne

Of pomp and glory? What but the return

Of the lost soul to its true parentage, And back from carnal error looking up Repentant to its intellectual throne.

What is the Fire?—Assetic discipline,
That burns away the animal alloy,
Till all the dross of matter be consumed,
And the essential Soul, its raiment clean

Of mortal taint, be left. But foras-

As, any life-long habit so consumed, May well recur a pang for what is lost, Therefore the Sage set in Salāmān's

A soothing fantom of the past, but still Told of a better Venus, till his soul She fill'd, and blotted out his mortal leve

For what is Zuhrah?—That divine perfection,

Wherewith the soul inspir'd and all array'd

Its intellectual light is royal blest, And mounts the throne, and wears the crown, and reigns

Lord of the empire of humanity

This is the meaning of this mystery, Which to know wholly ponder in thy heart.

Till all its ancient secret be onlarged Enough—the written summary I close, And set my seal

THE TRUTH GOD ONLY KNOWS"

X The True Character of Suffirm

It will be seen that the great object of the Sūfī Mystic is to lose his own identity Having effected this, perfection is attained. This ideal conception of the Sūfī is thus expressed by Jalain 'd dinn'r-Rumī in his book, the Magnawī (p. 78). It represents Human Love seeking admission into the Sanctuary of Divinity—

"One knocked at the door of the Beloved, and a voice from within inquired, 'Who is there?' Then he answered, 'It is I' And the voice said, 'This house will not hold me and thee' So the door remained shut Then the Lover sped away into the wilderness, and fasted and prayed in solitude And after a year he returned, and knocked again at the door, and the voice again demanded, 'Who is there?' And the Lover said, 'It is Thou' Then the door was opened"

The Süfi doctrines are undoubtedly pantheistic, and are almost identical with those of the Biahmans and Buldhists, the Neo-Platonists, the Boghards and Beguins There is the same muon of man with God, the same emanation of all things from God, and the same final absorption of all things into the Divine Essence. And these doctrines are held in harmony with a Muhammadan view of predestination, which makes all a necessary evolution of the Divins Essence. The oreation of the oreation of the oreation of those who have departed from God, and their final return, are all events pre-ordained by an absolute necessity.

Bāyazīdu ?-Bieţāmī, a mystac of the ninth century, said he was a sea without a bottom, without beginning and without end Being asked, "What is the throne of God?" he answared, "I am the throne of God "What is the table on which the divine decrees are written?" "I am that table" "What is the pen of God—the word by which God orested all things?" "I am the pen. "What is Abraham, Moses, and Jesus?" "I am Abraham, Moses, and Jesus?" "What are the angels Gabriel, Michael, Israfil?"

"I am Gabriel, Michael, Israfil, for whatever comes to true being is absorbed into God, and this is God." Again, in another place, al-Bistami cries, "Praise to me, I am iruth I am the true God. Praise to me, I must be celebrated by divine praise."

The chief school of Arabian philosophy, that of al-Ghauzali (A.E. 505), passed over to Suffism by the same reasoning which led Plotinus to his mystical theology After long inquiree for some ground on which to haso the certainty of our knowledge, al-Ghaszali was led to reject entirely all belief in the senses. He then found it equally difficult to be certified of the accuracy of the conclusions of reason, for there may be, be thought, some faculty higher than reason, which, if we possessed, would show the uncertainty of reason, as reason now shows the uncertainty of the senses. He was left in sceptionem, and saw no escape but in the Sufi union with Deity There alone can man know what is true by becoming the truth itself "I was forced," he said, " to return to the admission of intellectual notions as the bases of all certitude. This, however, was not by systematic reasoning and accumulation of proofs, but by a flash of light which God sent into my soul! For whoever imagines that truth can only be rendered evident by proofs, places narrow limits to the wide compassion of the Orestor"

Suffirm (says Mr Cowell) has arisen from the bosom of Muhammadanism as a vague protest of the human seul, in its intense longing after a purer creed. On certain tenets of the Qur'an the Sufis have erected their own system, prefessing, indeed, to reverence its authority as a divine revolution, but in reality substituting for it the oral voice of the teacher, or the secret dreams of the Mystic Dissatisfied with the barren letter of the Qur'an, Suffism appeals to human consciousess, and from our nature's felt wante, seeke to set before us nobler hopes than a gross Muhammadan

Paradise can fulfil

Whilst there are doubtless many amongst the Süfis who are earnest seekers after truth, it is well known that some of them make thoir mystical oreed a clock for gross sensual gratification. A sect of Süfis called the Muhābiyah, or "Revered," maintain the doctrine of community of property and women, and the sect known as the Mald matiyah, or "reproached," maintain the doctrine of necessity, and compound all virtus with vice. Many such do not hold themselves in the least responsible for sins committed by the body, which they regard only as the miserable robe of humanity which enourcles the pure spirit.

Some of the Sūfi poetry is most objectionable MacGuckin de Siane. in his Introduction to Ibn Khaliikin's Biographical Dictionary, says—— It often happens that a poet describes his mistress under the attributes of the other sax, lest he should oftend that excessive prudery of Oriental feelings which, since the fourth century of Islamism, scarcely allows an allusion to women, and more particularly in poetry; and this rigidness is still carried so far, that Cairo public singers dare not amuse their auditors with a cong in which the beloved is indicated as a female. It cannot, however, be demed that the feelings which inspired poetry of this kind were not always pure, and that polygamy and jealousy have invested the morals of some Eastern nations with the foulest corruption

The story of the Rev Dr 'Imadu 'd-din (the emment native clargyman, a convert from Islam, now residing at Amritsar) is a remarkable testimony to the unsatisfying nature of Suffictic exercises to most the spiritual need of anxious soul. The following extract from the printed autobiography of his life will show this -

"I cought for union with God from tra-vellers and fagirs, and even from the insane people of the city, according to the tenets of the Sufl mystics The thought of utterly renouncing the world then came into my mind with so much power, that I left everybody, and want out into the desert, and became a faqir, putting on clothes covered with red cehre, and wandered here and there, from city to city and from village to village, step by step, alone, for about 2,000, or (2,500 miles) without plan or baggage Farth in the Muhammadan religion will never, indeed, allow true sincerity to be produced in the nature of man; yet I was then, although with many worldly motives, in search only of God. In this state I entered the city of Karuli, where a stream called Obolide flows beneath a mountam, and there I stayed to perform the Hisbu 'l-bahār I had a book with me on the doctrines of mysticism and the practice of devotion, which I had received from my religious guide, and held more dear even than the Quran In my journeys I slept with it at my side at nights, and took comfort in clasping it to my heart whenever my mind was perplexed religious guide had forbidden me to show this book, or to speak of its secrets to any-one, for it contained the sum of everlasting happiness, and so thus priceless book as even now lying useless on a shelf in my house I took up the book, and sat dewn on the bank of the stream, te perform the ceremonies as they were enjoined according to the following rules -The celebrant must first perform his ablutions on the bank of the flowing stream, and, wearing an unsewn dress, must sit in a particular manner on ons knee for twelve days, and repeat the prayer called Jugopar thirty times every day with a loud voice. He must not eat any food with sait, or anything at all, except some barley bread of flour lawfully carned, which he has made with his own hands, and baked with wood that he has brought himself from the During the day he must fast entirely, after performing his ablutions in the river before daylight and he must remain barefooted, wearing no shees; nor must be tench any man, nor, except at an appointed time, even speak to anyone object of all this is, that he may meet with God, and from the longing desire to obtain this, I underwent all this pain. In addition to the above, I wrote the name of God on paper 125,000 times, performing a certain portion every day, and I cut out each word separately with scassors, and wrapped them up each in a ball of flour, and fed the fishes of the myer with them, in the way the book My days were spent in this prescribed manner, and during balf the night I slept, and the remaining half I set up, and wrote the name of Ged mentally on my heart, and saw Him with the eve of thought. When all this toil was over, and I went thence, I had no strength left in my body, my face was wan and pale, and I could not even hold myself up against the wind."

Major Durie Osborn, in his Islam under the Khalifs of Baghdad (p. 112), says "The spread of this Panthesatio spirit has been and is the source of incalculable evil throughout the Muhammadan world. The true function of religion is to vivify and illuminate all the ordinary relations of life with light from a higher world The weakness to which reli gious minds are pecuharly prone is to suppose that this world of working life is an atmosphere too gross and impure for them to live in They crave for better bread than They attempt to can be made from wheat inshion a world for themselves, where nothing shall soil the purity of the soul or disturb the serenity of their thoughts The divorce thus effected between the religious life and the worldry life, is disastrous to both ordinary relations of men become empired of They are considered all divine significance as the symbols of bondage to the world or to an evil deity. The religious spirit dwindles down to a selfish desire to soquire a felicity from which the children of this world are hopelessly excluded Pre-emmently has this been the result of Mnhammadan mysticism It has dug a deep gulf between those who can know God and those who must wander in darkness, feeding upon the hoaks of rites and ceremonies. It has affirmed with emphasis, that only by a complete renunciation of the world is it possible to attain the true end of man's existence Thus all the best and purest natures—the men who might have put a soul in the decaying Church of Islam—have been drawn of from their proper task to wander about in deserts and solitary places, or expend their lives in idle and profitiess passivity disguised under the title of 'apiritual centemplation' [ZIER] But this has only been part of the evil The logical result of Pantheism is the destruction of a moral law If God be all in all, and man's apparent individuality a delusion of the perceptive faculty, there exists no will which can act, no conscience which can reprove or appland. The individual is but a momentary seeming, he comes and goes like the snow-lake on the river a moment seen, then gone for ever' To reproach such an ephomeral creature for being the slaves of its passions, is to chide the thistledewn for yielding to the violence of the wind. Muhammadans have not been slow to discover these consequences. Thousands of reckless and profligate spirits have entered the orders of the derweshes to enjoy the liesnee thereby obtained. Their affectation of piety is simply a cloak for the practice of sensuality, their emancipation from the ritual of Islam involves a liberation also from its moral restraints. And thus a movement, animated at its outset by a high and lofty purpose, has degenerated into a fruitful source of ill. The stream which ought to have expanded into a fertilising river, has become a vast swamp, exhaling vapours charged with disease and death" [FAQIR]

(For further information on the subject of Eastern Mysticism the English reader is referred to the following works Hunt's Pantheism., Tholuck's Sufismus, Malcolm's History of Persia, Brown's Darweshes, Oxford Essays for 1855, by E B Cowell, Palmer's Oriental Mysticism, De Slane's Introduction to Ibn Khallikan, Bicknell's Translation of Hāfiz of Shirāz, Onseley's Persian Poets, Vaughan's Hours with the Mystics Persian and Arabic books on the subject are too numerous to mention 'Abdu'r-Razzāg's Dictionary of the Technical Terms of the Sūfis was published in Arabic by Dr Sprenger in Calcutta in 1845) [Faqir, ZIER.

SUFTAJAH (هنگ The delivery of property by way of loan, and not by way of trust It is forbidden by the Sunni law (Hamilton's Hidayah, vol. 11. p 244)

SUHA LIBN 'AMR () One of the most noble of the Quraish, and one of their leaders on the day of the action of Badr. He was taken prisoner on that occasion. He embraced Islam after the taking of Makkah. He is said to have died a.H. 18.

SUICIDE Arabic Quttu nafsi-hi (i...ii j.i) Suicide is not once referred to in the Qur'an, but it is forbidden in the Tradiuons, where Muhammad is related to have said "Whoseever shall kill himself shall suffer in the fire of hell" (al-Bukhārī, Arabic ed., p 984), and "shall be excluded from heaven for ever" (ibid p 182) It is also related that the Prophet refused the funeral rites to a suicide (Abū Dā'ūd, Arabic ed., vol. li p 98), but it is usual in Muhammadan countries to perform the funeral service, although forbidden by the custom of the Prophet himself

SUKR (كر) [DRUNKENNESS]

SULAIM (مليم). Banū Sularm One of the powerful tribes of ancient Arabia, descended from the Banū 'Adwän.

SULAIMAN (chalm) [SOLOMON]

SULH (ملح) "Concord, reconciliation, peace." It occurs in the Qur'an, as follows.—

Sürah iv 127 "And if a waman fears from her husband perverseness or aversion.

It is no crime in them both that they should be reconciled to each other, for reconcileation is best"

SULS (ثلث). "Three-quarters" of a Siparah of the Qur'an or of the Qur'an itself [QUE'AN]

SULTAN (CLL) A word in modern times used for a ruler or king, as the Sultan of Turkey Its literal meaning is "strength" or "might," and in this sense it occurs in the Qur'an —

Sürah xvii. 35 "We have given his next of kin authority"

Surah lxix 29 "My authority has perushed from me"

Sursh h. 38 "We sent him (Moses) to Pharach with a manifest power (miracle, or authority)"

SUNNAH (&...) Let "A path or way, a manner of life" A term used in the religion of the Muslim to express the custom or manner of life. Hence the tradition which records either the sayings or doings of Muhammad. Consequently all traditional law is divided into (1) Sunnatu 'I-Fi'l, or what Muhammad enjoined, (2) Sunnatu 'I-Qaul, or what Muhammad enjoined, (3) Sunnatu 'I-Taqrir, or that which was done or said in the presence of Muhammad, and which was not forbidden by him,

Those things which the rophet emphatically enjoined on his fellowers are called Sunnatu 'l-Hudā, "Sunna of Guidanos," or as-Sunnatu 'l-Mu'akkadah as, for example, the sounding of the agan before prayers Those things which have not been emphatically enjoined, are called as-Sunnatu 'l-Za'sdah, or "Superc-gatory Sunnah "

The Honourable Syed Ahmed Khan, C S.L. says in his Essay on the Traditions, that "upon examining the sayings (or the Abadis), and the deeds (or the Sunnah) of the Pro-phet, we find (1) some of them relating to religion, (2) others connected with the peculiar circumstances of his life, (8) some bearing upon society in general, and (4) others concerning the art of Government." When Muhammad spoke on the subject of religion, he is held to have been inspired, and also when he performed a religious act he is beheved to have been guided by inspiration, but with regard to other matters, the degree to which he was inspired as held to be a subject for investigation as well as for discrimination. In support of this view, the following tradition is related by Riff' ibn Khadij: "The Prophet came to al-Madinah when the people were grafting the male bud of a date tree into the female in order to produce greater abundance of fruit, and he said, 'Why do you do this?' They replied, 'It is an ancient custom.' The Prophet said, 'Perhaps it would be better if you did not do it.' And then they left off the sustem, and the trees yielded but little fruit. The people complained to the Prophet, and he said, 'I am no more than a man. When I order anything respecting religion, receive at | but when Forder you about the affairs of the world, then I speak only as a man." (Mishkät, book i ch vi pt 1)

'Abdu 'llab ibu Mas'ad says "The Prophet drew a straight line for us, and said, This is the path of God.' Then he drew several other lines on the right and left of it, and said. There are the paths of those who follow the devil. Verily my path (sunnah) is straight and you must follow it."

It is upon the sayings and customs of Muhammad that that traditional law is founded which is handed down in the Hadig, and which is treated of under the article TRADI-

SUNNI (124). Let. "One of the path" A Traditionist A term generally applied to the large sect of Muslims who acknowledge the first four Khalitahs to h ve been the rightful successors of Muhammad, and who receive the Kutabu 's-Sittuh, or ' six authentic" books of tradition, and who belong to one of the four schools of jurisprudence founded by Imam Abu Hamfah, Imam ash-Shafi'i, Imam Malik, or Imam Ahmad ibn Hambal.

The word Sunni is really a Persian form, with its plural Sunnigan, and stands for that which is expressed by the Arabic Allu's-Sumah, "the People of the Path" The word summen meaning a "path," but being applied to the example of Muhammad

A Summi is held to be a traditionist, not that any section of Islam rejects the traditions, but merely that the hunn's have arro gated to themselves this title and the rest of the Muslim world has acquiesced in the assumption, hence it comes to pass that although the Shi ahs, even to a greater degree than the Sunnis, rost their claims upon traditional evidence, they have allowed their opponents to claim the title of traditionists, and consequently Mr Sale and many European writers have stated that the Shi'shs reject the traditions

The Sunnis embrace by far the greater portion of the Muhammadan world According to Mr Wilfrid Blant's census, they are 145 millions, whilst the Shi'ahs are but some 15 millions.

The principal differences between the Sunnis and the Shi'ahs are treated of in the article sur'AH.

Supererogation, acts of. [HAPL.]

SURAH (%)-) Let "A row or series." A term used exclusively for the chapters of the Quran, of which there are one hundred and fourteen in number These chapters are called after some word which. occurs in the text, e.g. Suratu 'l-Hadid, the "Chapter of Iron" The ancient Jews divided the whole law of Moses into fifty-four siderim, or "sections," which were named after the same manner as the Surahs of the Qur'an. QUR'AN

(سترة) Let "That SUTRAH wherewith anything is concealed or covered " Something put up befero one engaged in prayer facing Makkah, to prevent others from intruding upon his devotions. It may be a stick, or anything a cubit in height and an meh in thickness (Mishkat, book iv. ch. x ) [PRAYER.]

SUWĀ' (٤١) An idol mentioned in Sürah lxxi. 22 Professor Palmer saya it was an idol in the form of a woman, and believed to be a relic of antediluvian times (Introduction to the Qur'an, p. xii)

SWEARING OATH.

Arabic khinzir (عنوير), SWINE pl khanāzīr Hob און khazīr fiesh as strictly forbidden to Muslims in four different places in the Qur'an, namely, Suraha u 168, v 4, vi 146, xvi 116, in which places rts use is prohibited with that which dieth of itself and blood

In the Traditions, it is related that Mn-hammad said that " when Jesus the Son of Mary shall descend from the heavens upon your people as a just king, and he will break the cross and will kill all the steme (Mishkat, book xxiii ch vi)

SYNAGOGUES [CHURCHES] SYRIA [SHAM]

T.

TA'AH (Lell) Lat. "Obedience." A word which occurs once in the Qur'an, Surah iv 88 "They say 'Obedience!'" It is an old Arabic word used for the worship and service of God.

Let. "That TA'ALLUQ (الحاد) Int. "That which is suspended" A division or district. A term applied in India to a district including a number of villages, for which a fixed amount of revenue is paid, and the possession of which is hereditary as long as the revenue is paid. These to allugs, or, as they are commonly called, taluks, are of two kinds (1)

Huzur (from , "the State"), of which the revenue is paid direct to Government, and (2) Mazkurs (from ,. "specified"), of which the revenue is paid through a chief. who thus farms the revenue. The term was introduced to India by the Muslim con-

TA'AM (plat). [FOOD]

TA'AWWUZ (Jaw) The ejaculation "I seek refuge from God from the cursed Satan," which forms part of the Mu-hammadan daily prayer It is called also hammadan daily prayer 'augun bi-'llah [PRATBE.]

TABARRUK (قىرك ) The commutation for an offering incumbent upon a reli gious medicant helding some endowment (waqf)

TABA'U 'T-TABI'IN (نبع النابعين) Let "The followers of the followers." Those who conversed with the Tā'bi'un (which term is used for those who conversed with Companious of Muhammad) Traditions related by them are received, but are of less authority than those related by persons who had seen the Prophet. [TRADITIONS]

A doctor of me-(طبيب) TABIB diems One who practises at-tibb, the "science of medicine." Hakim (lit "a philosopher") is also used to express a medical practitioner

TABI'UN (() pl of Tubi'
Those who conversed with the Associates or companions of Muhammad The traditions which they related are of high authority and form part of the Sunnah or traditional law [TRADITIONS]

TABLES OF THE LAW Arabic Alwah (c1,11), pl of Lauh The giving of the Law to Moses on tables is mentioned in the Qur'an, Surah vii 142 "We wrote for him (Moses) upon tables (alwah) a monition concorning every matter. But Muslim doctors are not agreed as to the number of the tables. The commentators al-Jalalan say that there were either seven or ten. [TEN COMMANDMENTS]

TABÜK (قوك). A valley in Arabia, celebrated as the scene of one of Muhammad's military expeditions, and as the place where he made a treaty with John the Christian prince of Allah. [TREATY]

(تابوت) TĀBŪT (1) The Ark of the Covenant, mentioned in the Qur'an, Sürah il 249 "Verily the sign of his (Saul's) kingship shall be that the Ark (Tabut) shall come to you and in it Sakinah from your Lord, and the relies left by Moses and Aaron, the angels shall bear it."

Tubut is the Hebrow Tebah used for Noah's Ark, and the Ark of bulrushes, Ex. il 8, and not 1778 Aton, the word in the Bible for the Ark of the Covenant

The commontator, al-Baixawi, says the Sakman was either the Taurat, or Books of Moses, or an idel of emeralds or rubies, the head and tail of which was like that of a gost, and the wings of feathers, and utlared a feeble ery, and when the a some say it was a representation of th phets

Al-Jalalan say the relies left in th were the fragments of the two tables Law, and the rod and robes and sh Moses, the mitre of Aaron, and the v manna. [ARK OF THE COVENANT, SAK

(2) A coffin or beer for the burnsl dead

(3) The representation of the funeral

Husain [MUHATRAM.]
(4) The box or ark in which the box the child Moses was placed by his moti fear of Pharach. See Qur'an, Sarah : "When we spake unto thy mother wha spoken . Cast him into the ark the him on the sea [the river], and the sea throw him on the shore and an enemy and an enemy to him shall take him And I myself have made thee an obj love, That thou mightest be reared in eye

TADBIR (تدبير) Post obit n mission of slaves In its primitive se means looking forward to the event of a ness In the language of the law, it m declaration of a freedom to be estat after the master's death. As whe master says to his slave, "Thou ar after my death". The slave so freed is (Hamilton's Historyak, a mudabber p 475) [SLAVERY]

TAFAKKUR ( ) Lit, " templation or thought." According Kitâbu 't-Tu'rifāt, it is the lamp c heart whereby a man sees his own e VITTUES

TAFSIR (المسير) Lit "Ex ing' A term used for a commentary book, but especially for a commentary Qur'an. [COMMENTARIES]

ar-TAGHABUN (التماني) " tual decest" The title of the 64th St the Qur'an, the 1xth verse of which

"The day when He shall gather y gether for the day of the assembly v the day of Mutual Decest"

That is, when the blessed will dece disappoint the damned by taking the which they would have had in Paradi they been true behavers, and vice vered

TAGHLIB (-let) An Ar tribe who, on the first eproad of Islam occupying a province in Mesopotami professing the Christian faith. The Taghlib sent an embasey to Muha formed of sixteen men, some Muching some Christians The latter wore cro gold The Prophet made terms wit Christians, stipulating that they should selves continue in the prefession of religion, but should not baptize their al

Kätibu 'l- Waqedi, p 61

AT-TAGHTIS (التعليس) A term which coonrs in the Kashju 'z-Zunun for "baptism." [INJIL, SIGHBAH]

TĀGĦŪT (عاهوس). An idol mentioned in the Qur'an

Surah iv 54 "They believe in Jibt and Ţaghūt "

Strah if 257 "Whose distelleres in Taghüt and believes in God, he has got a firm handle, in which is no breaking off"
Sürah ii 259 'But these who misbelieve their patrons are Taghūt, these bring them lorth to darkness"

Jalalu 'd-din cays Taghat was an idol of the Quraish, whom certain renegade Jews honoured in order to please the tribe

Mr Lane observes that in the Arabian Nights the name is used to express the devil as well as an idol.

TA HA (山) The title of the exth Surah of the Qur'an, which begins with hese Arabic lettere Their meaning is unertain Some fancy the first letter stands or tuba, "beatstude," and the second for Hawiyah, the name of the lowest pit of hell Tak is also, like sah, and the English "hush," in interjection commanding silonce and might se here employed to enjoin a silent and reve ential listening to the revelation to follow

TAHALUF (WW) The swearng of botu plaintiff and defendant In a ivil suit of both seller and purchaser. In a lisagreement, if both should take ar cath, he Qazi must dissolve the sale, or contract Hamilton's Hedayah, vol u p 85) TAHANNUS (حنث) Avoiding and abstaining from sin Worshipping God or a certain period in seclusion. The word s used in the latter sense for the seclusion of Suhammad on Mount Hira', when he is supsoeed to have received his first revelation Mishkat, book xxiv c. v) [INSPIRATION, MA'AU

TAHĀRAH (طهارة) "Purificaion, Including uuzu tayammum, masah, hust, and miswok, accounts of which are iven under their respective articles [PURI-ICATION ]

TÄHIR (الحاجر) A woman in a [PUBLIFICATION ] tate of purity

(تهلیل) TAHLIL The ejaculation, Lā rlāha rllā 'llāh ''' (لا الله الا الله), There is no delty but God'" (Mishkat, ook x. ch. ii }

Abū Hurairah relates that the Prophet aid, "That person who recites 'There is no eity but God,' one hundred times, shall resive rewards equal to the emancipating of an slaves, and shall have one hundred good eeds recorded to his account, and one hun-red of his sins small be blotted out, and the words shall be a protection from the devil." ZIKR ]

TAHMID (نحميد) The ejaculation, "al-Hamdu h-'llah'" (المعد المال), "God be praised!" (Michkat, book x. chu)

'Umar ibn Shu'aib relates from his forefathers that the Prophet said, "He who recites 'God be praised,' a hundred times in the morning and again a hundred times in the evening, shall be like a person who has pro-vided one hundred horsemen for a phād, or religious war '"

TAHRIF (تحريف) The word used by Muhammadan writers for the supposed corruption of the Jewish and Christian scrip-[CORRUPTION OF THE SCRIPTURES]

AT-TAHRIM (التحريم) "The Pro-Qur'an, which begins with the words "Why O Prophet! dost thou forbid that which God hath made lawful to thee, from a deere to please thy wives" The object of this chapter was to free Muhammad from his obligation to his wife Hafsah, to whom he had recently eworn to separate entirely from the Coptio slave girl Mariyah

TAHZIB (تهديب) A book of traditions received by the Shi'shs, compiled by Shaikh Abū Ja far Muhammad, AH 466

AT-TÄ'IF (LUMI) The name of a town, the capital of a district of the same name in Arabia, which Muhammad besieged AH 8, but the city was surrounded by strong battlements and was provisioned for some months The siege was, therefore, raised by Muhammad, after he had out down and burned its celebrated vineyards (Mur's Life of Mahomet, new ed p 432)

TAIRAH (day8) 'Lightness. levity of mind." Condemned in the Hadis

TAIY (طی) An Arabian tribe who emigrated from al-Yaman to the Najd about the third century Some of them embraced Judaism and some Christianity, while a portion remained pagans and erected a temple to embraced Islam, A D 632, when 'Ali was sent to destroy the temple of Fuls

Hatim at Tally, a Ohnstian Bedouin Arab, celebrated for his hospitality, is the subject of Eastern poetry He lived in the "time of ignorance," viz before Muhammad, but his eon 'Adi became a Muslim, and is num-bered among the "Companione" Hatim at-Tā 17 8 most famous act of liberality was that which he showed to an ambassador of the Greek Emperor, sent to demand of him as a present for his master, a horse of very great price The generous Arab, before he knew the object of this person's mission, slaughtered his horse to regale him, having nothing at the time in his nouse to serve in its stead. It is also said that he often caused as many as forty camels to be slaughtered for the entertainment of his guests and the poor Arabs of the desert.

TAJ (gb) "A crown, a diadem."

The Mushm Khalifshs never wore a crown, the word is therefore not used in Muslim theology, but it is used by the Sufr faqire for the cap worn by a leader of a religious order, which is generally of a conical shape [EULAH]

AT-TAKASUR (ALSI). "Multiplying" The title of the cund Surah of the Qur'an, the opening verses of which are

"The desire of increasing riches occupieth you

Till you come to the grave "

TAKBIR (تكبير) The expression, "Allāhu akbar'" (אולה אליע), "God 18 very great!" (Mishkāt book x ch u)

The ejaculation frequently occurs in the daily liturey and in the numeral office.

[FRATER]

TAKBIRU 'T-TAHRIMAH ()

Linguis | The first takbir in the liturgical prayer, said standing, after the recital of which the worshipper must give himself up entirely to wiship [PRAYER, TAKBIR.]

TAKHARUJ (E) An arrangement entered into by some herrs at-law with ethers for their share of the inheritance, in consideration of some specific thing which excludes them from inheritance (Hamilton's Hidayah, vol. ii p 201)

AT-TAKWIR ( "The Folding up" The title of the LEERISt Surah of the Quran, which opens a solemn announcement of the Judgment Day by the words "When the sun shall be folded up"

TAKYAH ( LS) Lit. "A pillow; a place of repose" Used in all Muhammadan countries for—

(1) A place in which some celebrated saint has stayed. In Central Asia, these places are often merely marked by a few stones and a figs. but they are held sacred.

a flag, but they are held sacred.

(2) A monastery, or religious house, in which faqirs and ascetics reside, as the Takyahe at Constantinople and Cairo

(8) A hostel or rest-house, as the Takyah at Damascus, which is a hostel for pilgrims Dr. Robinson describes it as a large quadrangular enclosure, divided into two courts, in the southern court of which there is a large mosque. Around the wall of the court runs a row of cells, with a portice or gallery of columns in front. This takyah was founded by Sultan Salim, AD 1516 (Researches, vol. in. p. 459)

TALAQ (3%) (I) The sentence of divorce [Divorce] (2) The title of the Layth Sürah of the Qur'an which treats of the subject of divorce TALBİYAH (L.15) Let "Warting or standing for orders" The recitation of the following words during the pilgrimage to Makkah "Labbaika! Allahummah! Labbaika! Labbaika! Labbaika! Labbaika! Labbaika! Labbaika! Labbaika! Ma'lmuila' La Sharika-laka!" "I stand up for Thy service, O God! I stand up! I stand up! There is no partner with Thee! I stand up for Thy service; Verily Thine is the praise, the beneficence, and the kingdom! There is no partner with Thee!"

From the Mishkät (book xi. ch. 11 pt. 1), it appears that this hymn was in use amongst the idolaters of Arabia before Muhammad's time [HAJJ]

TALHAH (& ), son of 'Ubaidu' lluh, the Quraish, was a grand-nephew of Abū Bak: He was a distinguished Companion and was honoured with the position of one of the 'Askarah Mubashsharah, or "ten patriarchs of the Muslim faith." He saved the life of Muhammad at the battle of Uhud He was slain in the fight of the Cappel, a. 8 36. aged 64, and was buried at al-Basrah

TALIB (-JL). Let "One who seeks' An inquirer A term generally used for a student of divinity, is Talibu 'I'm"

TALISMAN. Arabic (all) feleam, pl talesm. The English word is a corruption of the Arabic. A term applied to mystical characters, and also to seals and atomes upon which such characters are engraved or inscribed. The characters are engraved or of some other magical kind. Taksmans are used as charms against evil, for the preserving from enchantment or from accident, they are also sometimes buried with a hidden treasure to protect it. [AMULET, EXORCISM.]

TALKING [CONVERSATION.]

of the Jews From Heb hand, "to learn" The learning of the Rabbia. Mr Emanuel Dentsch says

"It seems as if Muhammad had breathed from his childhood almost the air of contemporary Judaiam, as is found by us crystallized in the Talmud, the Targum and the Midrash.

"It is not merely parallelisms, reminiscences, allusions, technical terms, and the like of Judaism, its law and dogma and ceremony, its Halacha and its Haggadah (its law and legend), which we find in the Koran, but we think Islam neither more nor less than Judaism as adapted to Arabia—plus the Apostleship of Jesus and Muhammad."

(Literary Remains, p 64)

How much Muhammad was indebted to the Jewish Talmud for his doctrines, ethics, and ceremonial, is shown in an essay by the Jewish Rabbi, Abraham Geiger, in answer to the question put by the University at Bonn "Inquirator in fontes Alcorani sen legis Mohammedices cos, qui ex Judesismo derivandi sunt," of which a German translation has appeared, Was hat Mohammed aus dem Juden thume aufgenomment (Bonn, 1833), and is treated of in the present work in the article on JUDAISM

The Talmud consists of two parts The Mishna, or the text (what is called in Arabic the Matn), and the Gemara, or Commentary (Arabic Sharh). These two form the Tai-mud.)

The Mishna (from Shanah, to "repeat') or the oral law of the Jews, was not committed to writing until about the year A.D 190, by Rabbi Judah, although it is said it was first commenced by Rabbi Akibah, A.D 180

The Gemara (at "that which is perfect") are two commentaries on the Mishna The one compiled by Rabbi Jochonam at Jerusalem about the middle of the third century, and the other by Rabbi Ashe at Babylon, about the middle of the sixth

Canon Farrar (Lefs of Christ, vol is p 848), says "Anything more utterly unhistorical than the Talmad, cannot be conceived It is probable that no human writings ever confounded names, dates, and facts, with more absolute indifference."

And doubtless it is this unsatisfactory feature in the Talmud of the Jews which, to a great extent, accounts for the equally unhistorical character of the Qur'an.

For information on the Talmud, the English reader can consult the following works: The Tulmud, by Joseph Bakklay, IA.D., Bishop of Jerusalem, 1878, A Talmude Mescellany, by Paul Isaac Hershon, 1880, Selections from the Talmud, by H. Polono, The Talmud, an article in the Quarterly Review, October, 1867, by Emanuel Deutsch, The Talmud, a chapter in The Home and Synagogus of the Modern Jew (Religious Tract Society). A complete translation of the Talmud is being undertaken by Mr. P L Hershon, See Dr Farrar's Preface to the Talmudic Muscellany

TALQIN (cods) Lit. "Instructing" An exhortstion or instruction imparted by a religious teacher. It is specially used for the instruction given at the grave of a departed Muslim, at the close of the burnal service, when one of the mourners draws near the middle of the grave, addresses the deceased, and says—

"O servant of God and child of a female servant of God.

"O son of such an one, remember the faith you professed en earth to the very last, this is your witness that there is no deity but God, and that derianly Muhammad is His Apostle, and that Paradise and Hell and the Resurrection from the dead are real, that there will be a Day of Judgment, and say "I confess that God is my Lord, Islam my religion, Muhammad (on whom be themercy and peace of God) my Prophet, the Qur'an my guide, the Ka'bah my Qiblah, and that Mus lims are my brethren' O God, keep him (the deceased) firm in his faith, and widen his grave, and make his examination (by Munkir and Nakir) easy, and exalt him and have mercy on him, O Thou most Mercuful!"

TALUT (طالوت) [SAUL ]

TAMATTU' (2245) Let "Reaping advantage" The act of performing the 'Umrah until its completion, and then performing the Hajj as a separate ceremony, thus resping the advantages of both [HAJJ, UMRAH]

TAMIM (خميم) An independent Arab tube of Makkan origin who occupied the north-eastern desert of Najd They fought by the side of Muhammad at Makkah and Hunsin TAMJID (تمجيد) The expression.

"La haula wa lā quwwata ellā bi-'llāhi 'l
'aliyi 'l-'azīm'" (العليم المالي), "There is no power and strength but in God, the High one, the Great" (Mesh-kāt, book x. ch 11.)

Abu Hurarah relates that the Prophet said, "Recite very frequently, 'There is no power and strength but in God,' for these words are one of the treasures of Paradisa. For there is no escape from God but with God And God will open for the reciter thereof eeventy doors of escape from evil, the least of which is poverty"

TANÂSUKH (اللحي). (1) In Muhammadan law, the death of one heir after another before the partition of an inheritance.

(2) At-Tinasukh The metempsychosis or Pythagorean system of the transmigration of souls, a doctrine held by the Hindus and Buddhists, but forming no part of the Muhammadan system

TANFIL (الميل). "Plundoring in religious warfare." Commended in the Qur'an, Surah vini. 1 "They will question thee about the spoils Say. The spoils are God's and the Apostle's TAQARRUB (-, Let "Seeking admittance or striving to draw near" A term used to express the desire of propitisting the Deity by prayer almsgiving, or sacrifice

TAQDIR ( Lat "To measure" The doctrine of Fate or Predestina-Lat "To meation, al-Qadr [PREDESTINATION]

Let "Guarding TAQİYAH (اللهة) A Shi ah doctrine. A pious fraud oneself " whereby the Shi'ah Muslim believes he is justified in either smoothing down or in denying the peculiarities of his religious belief, in order to save himself from religious persecution A Shi'ah can, therefore, pass himself off as a Sunni to escape persecution

The Shi'sh traditionists relate that certain persons inquired of the Imam Sadiq if the Prophet had ever practised taqiyah, or "religious dissimulation," and the Imam replied, "Not after this verse was sent down to the Prophet, namely, Surah v 71 O thou Apostle! publish the whole of what has been O thou revealed to thee from thy Lord, if thou do it not, thou hast not presched His message, and God will not defend thee from wicked men, fer God guides not the unbelieving people When the Most High became surety for the Prophet against harm, then he no longer dissimulated, although before this revelation appeared he had occasionally done so" (The Hayatu 'l-Qulub, Merrick's ed, p 96) [BHI AH]

TAQLID (تعليد) round" (1) Putting a v Let "Winding (1) Putting a wreath round a victim destined to be slam at Makkah (2) Girding with a sword, as a sign of investiture of a high dignitary (2) A term used in Muham-madau law for the following of a religious leader without due inquiry

TAQWĀ (تقوى) [ABSTINENCE]

TARAWIH (زارنج) The plural of runk, "Rest" The prayers, of usually tarmh, "Rest" tarwit, "Rest" The prayers, of usually twenty rak'ahs, recited at night during the month of Ramazan, so called because the congregation sit down and rest after every fourth rak'ah and every second " Salam. [BAMAZAK]

(تکة) TARIKAH A legacy, a bequest, an inheritance

AT-TARIQ (الطارق) "The night-comer" The title of the LXXXVIIh Surah of the Qur'an, beginning thus

" By the heaven, and by the night-comer ! But what shall teach thee

What the night-comer is?

"Tie the star of piorcing radiance"

According to al Wahidi, these words were revealed when Abu Talib, at the time of the evening meal, was startled by a shooting star. Noldeke, however, observes that the three verses seem rather to apply to a planet or a fixed star of particular brightness

TARIQAH (La.) "A path." A term used by the Sufis for the religious life. SUFIT

TARWIYAH (1955) Let "Satisfying thirst," or, according to come, "giving attention" The eighth day of the pilgrimage, so called either because the pilgrims give their camels water on this day, or because Abraham gave attention (rawwa) to the vision wherein he was instructed to sacrifice his son Ishmael (?) on this day

TASAWWUF (تموف) A word used to express the doctrines of the Sufis or The word Muhammadan mystics Suffism does not occur in the celebrated Arabic Diotionary, the Qamue, which was compiled A.H. 817, nor in the Schah, A.H 893 [SUFI ]

TASBĪH (سبعان) (1) The ejacula-tion, "Subhāna 'llāh!" (السبعان), "I extol the holiness of God!" or "O Holy God!" A most menturious ejaculation which, if recited one hundred times, night and morning, is said by the Prophet to atone for man's sins, however many or great (Mishkat, book E. ch. 11) (2) A Rosary

[ROSARY, ZIKR ] (تفهد) TASHAHHUD Lat "Testimony" A declaration of the Muslim faith recited during the stated prayers, immediately after the Tahiyah, in the same attitude, but with the first finger of the right hand extended, as a witness to the Unity of God. It 18 an follows "I testify that there is no deity but God, and I testify that Muhammad is the Messenger of God" It is also used as an expression of fath upon a person becoming a Muhammada i (Mishkāt, book iv ch xvi) [PRAYERS]

TASHRIQ (تشريق). Let. "Drying flesh in the sun." A name given to three days after the sacrifice at Makkah during the Pilgrimage, either because the flesh of the victim is then dried, or because they are net slain until sunrise. [HAJJ]

TASLIM (نسليم) The benediction at the close of the usual form of prayer, "As-salemu 'alaskum wa rahmetu ileh!" الله ورحمة الله (عليكم ورحمة), "The peace and mercy of God be with you." [PRATES.]

Į

The following (تسبيع) 'TASMI' ejaculation which is recited by the Imam in the daily prayers "God hears him who praises Him." [PRAYERS]

TASMIYAH (نسمية) Let "Giving a name" (1) A title given to the Basmallah, or the initial sentence, "In the name of God, the Compassionate, the Merofful." This occurs at the commencement of each chapter or Surah of the Quran, with the exception of the 1xth Surah [QUE AN] (2) Also used at the commoncement of any religious act (except sacrifice), such as prayer, ablutions, ec (3) The usual "grace before meat," amongst Muslims. [BISMILLAH]

TASNIM (منيم) Let "Anything convex and shelving at both sides" The name of a fountain in Paradise mentioned in the Qur'an, Sarah Ixxxiii. 28 "Mingled therewith shall be the waters of Tasnim"

TASWIB (حربت) Repeating the phrase, "As-salātu khairun mina 'n-naum" (i.e. "Prayer is better than sleep"), in the Agan for the early morning prayer [ARAN, PRAYER ]

(خرع) 'UWWAŢAT An act of supererogation. A term which includes both the sunnah and saff actions of the Muslim

Surah of the Qur'an, beginning with the

"Wee to those who start the measure Who when they take by measure from others, exact the full,

But when they mete to them or weigh to them, minish-

Have they no thought that they shall be raised again For a great day "

We learn from the Itaan that some commentators see in this passage allusions to Madinah circumstances, and consequently think that the Surah, or at least part of it, was revealed in that town. But in connection with such obviously Makkan verses, as 30 and following, where it is said

"The miners, indeed, laugh the faithful to

And when they pass by them, they wing at one another,

And when they return to their own people, they return jesting,

And when thet see them, they say, 'Verily these are the erring ones'

it appears evident, that the pride and arregance of the Makkans, founded on their illgotten wealth, is contrasted with the humble and precarious condition of the followers of Muhammad, to convey at the same tune a solemn warning, that the positions will be reversed on the Great Dav of Reckoning

TATHIR (poles) A purifying or cleansing of anything which is ceremonially unclean For example, if a dog drinks from a vessel, it becomes name, or "impure," but it can be purified (tathir) by washing it seven times. A mosque which has been defiled can be cleansed with dry earth or water, and by recitals from the Quran If the boots on the feet have been defiled, they can be purified by rubbing them on dry earth

Bera' ibn 'Azib says that Muhammad taught that the micturation of an animal lawful for food does not render clothes coremousally unclean (Mishkat, book 111 ch 1x) [PURIFICATION]

TATTOOING Muhammad forbade the custom of the idolaters of Arabia to prick the hands of their women and to rub the punctures over with wood, indigo, and (Meshkat, book xii. ch. i. other colours pt. 1)

TAUBAH (قبة) (1) Repentance (2) 4t-Taubah, a title of the 1xth Surah of the Qur'an. [PARDON, REPENTANCE.]

AT-TAUBATU 'N-NASUH (العبدة) Let "Sincere repentance" A term used by divines for true repentance of the heart, as distinguished from that only of the lips

(نوحيد) TAUHID A term used to express the unity of the Godhead, which is the great fundamental basis of the religion of Muhammad. [GOD]

TAUJIH (قومية) Any plous eja-culation recited by the pious before or after the Takbir (Missket, book iv ch zii) PHAYER.

TAURĀT (和) The title given in the Qur'an (Surah in. 2), and in all Mubammadan works, for the Books of Moses It is the Hebrew Torak," the Law"

The author of the Kachfu z-Zunun (the bibliographical dictionary of Haji Khalifab),

The Taurat is the inspired book which God gave to Moses, and of which there are three well-known editions (1) The Tauratu 's-Sabaian, 'the Turah of the Seventy,' which was translated from the Hebrew into Greek by seventy-two learned Jews. (It is admitted by Christian writers that the Linw, e.e. the Pentatench, alone was translated first) It has since been translated into Syrjac and Arabic. (2) The Tauratu 'l-Qarra'm wa Rabbanis, 'the Taurat of the learned doctors and rabbins (3) The Tauratu 's-Sāmīruh, 'The Samaritan Pentatench'"

The same writer says the learned who have examined these editions of the Taurāt, found that although they agreed with each other and taught the unity of God, they do not contain an account of the stated prayers, the fast, the pilgrimage to Jerusalem, and althoughing, nor anything regarding heavon or hell, which is, he adds, a proof of the Taurāt having been altered by the Jews (Kashju 'g-Zunün, Flugel's edition, vol 11

p 459)

Although Muhammad professed to establish the Taurat of Moses (see Qur'an, Surahs in 180. in 78 iv 135), it would appear from the Traditions that he did not view with favour the reading of it in his presence.

It is related that 'Umar once brought a copy of the Taurat to the Prophet, and said, "This is a copy of the Taurat" Muhammad was silent, and 'Umar was about to read some portions of it Then Abu Bakr said, "Your mother weeps for you. Don't you see the Prophet's face look angry" Then 'Umar looked and he saw the Prophet was argry, and he said, "God protect me from the anger of God and of His Apostle I am satisfied with God as my Lord, Islam as my creed, and Muhammad as my Prophet' Then Muhammad said, "If Moses were alive and found my prophecy, he would follow me" [OLD TESTAMENT] at-TAUWAB (حائيا). Literally "One who turns frequently, hence," the Relenting "One of the amety-nine names or attributes of God Freeded by the article, as a name of God, it occurs four times in the Süratu 'l-Baqarah (ii. 85, 51, 122, 165) and twice in the Süratu 't-Taubah (ix. 105, 119) In three of these passages, God's relenting mercy is illustrated by siriking instances taken from ancient and contemporaneous history, vis. in the case of Adam, of the Jews after their worshipping the golden calf, and of the three men who did not accompany Muhammad in the expedition to Tabük, and who, put under interdiction after his return, were not released from it till after fifty days of pengage of penance

Surah h 85 "And words of prayer learned Adam from his Lord and God releated to wards him verily. He is the Releating, the Mercuiul"

Surah u. 51 "And remember when Moses said to his people 'O my people verily ye have sinned to your own hurt, by your taking to yourself the calf to worship it. Be turned then to your Creator, and slay the guilty among you, this will be best for you with your Creator.' So he relented towards you. verily He is the Relenting, the Merciful."

Sursh iv 119. "He has also turned in Mercy unto the the who were left behind, so that the earth, spacious as it is, became too straitened within them, that there was no straitened within them, that there was no was He turned to them that they might turn to Him Verily. God is He that turneth, the Merciful."

In the other places, mentioned above, and in two more (Sürahs xxiv 10 and xlix. 12), where the word is used as an adjective without the article, it describes God as ever ready to turn in forgiveness to man in general and to the Muslim in particular, if they turn in repentance unto him.

TAWAF ( ) The ceremony of circumambulating the Kabah seven times, three times in a quick step and four at the ordinary page. It is enjoined in the Quran, Sarah xxii 27 Shaikh 'Abdu 'I-Haqq says it was the custom of the Arabian idolaters to perform the tawaf naked. [HASJ]

TA'WIZ (Apsi). Let "To flee for refuge" An amulet or charm. A gold or silver case, inclosing quotations from the Qur'an or Hadis, and worn upon the breast, arm, neck, or we [AMULET]

TAXATION There are three words used for taxatiou in Muslim books of law (1) "Ushr (, de,), "the tenth", (2) Kharāj (el,4), "land revenue", (3) Jisyah (āya), "capitation tax"

(1) Lands, the preprietors of which become Muslims, or which the Imam divides among the troops, are 'Ushri, or subject to tithe, because it is necessary that something should be imposed and deducted from the subsistence of Muslims, and a tenth is the proportion most suitable to them, as that admits the construction of an oblation of act of piety, and also, because this is the most equitable method, since in this way the amount of what is levied depends upon the actual product of the lands

, (2) Lands, on the other hand, which the Imain subdues by force of arms and then restores to the people of the conquered territory, are Kharaji, or subject to tribute, because it is necessary that something be imposed and deducted from the subsistence of infidels, and tribute is the most suitable to their situation, as that bears the construction of a punishment, since it is a sort of hardship, the tax upop tribute land being due from the proprietor, although he should not have cultivated it. It is to be remarked, however that Makkah is excepted from this rule, as Muhammad conquered that territory by force of arms, and then restored it to the lahabitants without imposing tribute

It is written in the Janetu's-Saghir that all land subdued by force of arms, if watered by causis cut by the Gentiles, is subject to tribute, whether the Imam have divided it among the troops, or restored it to the original inhabitants, and if there he no eausis, but the land be watered by springs, which rise within, it is subject to tithe, in either case, because tithe is peculiar to productive land, that is, land capable of cultivation, and which yields increase, and the increase produced from it is occasioned by water The standard, therefore, by which tribute is due is the land being watered by tribute water, namely rivers, and the standard by which tithe is due is the land being watered by tithe water, namely, springs

If a person cultivate waste lands, the imposition of tithe or tribute upon it (according to Abu Yusuf) is determined by the neighbouring soils, in other words, if the neighbouring lands be subject to tithe, a tithe is to be imposed upon it, or tribute if they be subject to tribute, because the rule respecting anything is determined by what is nearest to it, as in the case of a house, for metance, the rule with respect to it extends to its court-yard, although it be not the owner's immediate property. The tribute established and imposed by 'Umar upon the lands of al-Iraq was adjusted as follows —Upon every parib of land through which water runs (that is to say, which is capable of cultivation) one sa and one dirham, and upon every jarib of pasture-land five dirhams, and upon every jarib of gardens and ore ards ten dirhams, provided they contain vines and date-trees

This rule for tribute upon arable and pasture lands, gardens, and orchards, 18 taken from 'Umar, who fixed it at the lates above-mentioned, none contradicting him, wherefore it is considered as agreed to by all the Compamons Upon all land of any other description (such as pleasure-grounds, saffron-fields, and so forth) is imposed a tribute according to ability, since, although 'Umar has not laid down any particular rule with respect to them, yet as he has made ability the standard of tribute upon atable land, so in the same manner, ability is to be regarded in lands of any other description The learned in the law allege that the utmost extent of tribute is one half of the actual product, nor is it allowable to exact more, but the taking of a half is no more than strict justice, and is not tyranmical, because, as it is lawful to take the whole of the persons and property of infidels, and to dutribute them among the Muslims, it follows that taking half their incomes is lawful a

(8) Jiegal, ercapitation-tax, is of two kinds. The first species is that which is established teluntarily, and by composition, the rate of which is such as may be agreed upon by both parties. The second is that which the liman himself imposes, where he conquers infidels, and then confirms them in their possessions, the common rate of which is fixed by his imposing upon every avowedly rich person a tax of forty-eight dirhams per annum, or four dirhams per month, and upon every person in midding circumstances twenty-four dirhams per annum, or two dirhams per month, and upon the labouring poor twelve dirhams per annum, or one dirham per month.

(For further information see Raidu 'l-Muhtar, vol. 11 7, Fatau a-1-'Alamgiri 11 860; Hidayah, vol. 1 102.)

TAYAMMUM ("Intending or proposing to do a thing" The ceremony of ablution performed with sand instead of water, as in the case of wazî. The permission to use sand for this purpose, when water cannot be obtained is granted in the Qur'an, Sûrah v 9—

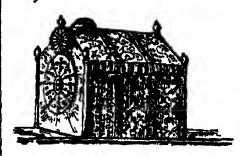

"He cannot find water, then take fine surface sand and wipe your faces and your hands therewith. God does not wish to make any hindrance for you."

It is related in the Traditions that Muhammad said. "God has made me greater than all preceeding prophets, inasmuch as my ranks in worship are like the ranks of angels, and the whole earth is fit for my people to worship on, and the very dast of the earth is fit for purification when water cannot be obtained. (Mishkāt, book in the X.)

Tayammum, or 'purification by sand," is allowable under the following circumstances (1) When water cannot be procured except at a distance of about two miles. (2) in case of sickness whon the use of water might be injurious. (3) when water cannot be obtained without incurring danger from an enemy, a beast, or a reptile, and (4) when on the occasion of the prayers of a Feast day or at a funeral, the worshipper is late and has ne tuno to perform the waru. On ordinary days this substitution of tayammum for wazu is not allowable [wazu]

TA'ZIAH (Lys) Let "A consolation" A representation or model of the tomb of Hasan and Husain at Karbalā', carried in procession at the Muharram by the Shī'ahs It is usually made of a light frame of wood-work, covered with paper, painted and ornamented, and illuminated within and without. It is sometimes of considerable size and of elaborate execution according to the wealth of the owner [MUHAR-HAM]

A TATIABL (A F Hole)

TA'ZIR (325) From 'asr, "to consure or repel" That discretionary correction which is administered for offences, for which Hadd, or "fixed punishment," has not been appointed

According to the Sunni law the following are the leading principles of Ta'zīr —

Ta'zir, in its primitive sense, means "prohibition," and also "instruction", in Law it signifies an infliction undetermined in its degree by the law, on account of the right syther of God, or of the individual, and the occasion of it is any offence for which hadd, or "stated punishment," has not been appointed, whether that offence consist in word or deed

(1) Chastisement is ordained by the law, the institution of it being established on the authority of the Qur'an, which enjoins men to chastise their wives, for the purpose of correction and amendment, and the same also occurs in the Traditions It is, moreover, recorded that the Prophet chastised a person who had called another perjured, and all the Companions agree concerning this Reason and analogy, moreover, both evince that chastisement ought to be inflicted for acts of an offensive nature, in such a manner that men may not become habituated to the commission of such acts, for if they were, they might by degrees be led into the perpetration of others more atrocious also written in the Fatawa-1-Timur Tashi of Imem Sirukhsh that in ta'zir, or "ohastisement," nothing is fixed or determined but that the degree of it is left to the discrotion of the Qazī, because the design of it is cor-lection, and the dispositions of mon with respect to it are different, some being aufficiently corrected by reprimands, whilst others, more obstinate, require confinement, and even blows

(2) In the Fatawa-1-Shafi's it is said that there are four orders or degrees of chastisement -First, the chastisement proper to the most noble of the noble (or, m other words, princes and men of learning), which consists merely in admonition, as if the Qazi were to say to one of them, "I understand that you have done hus, or thus,' so as to make him ashamed Secondly, the chastisement proper to the noble (namely, commanders of armies, and chiefs of districts), which may be performed in two ways, either by admonition (as above), or by jarr, that is, by dragging the offender to the door and exposing hum to Thirdly, the chastisement proper to the middle order (consisting of merchants and shopkeepers), which may be performed by jurr (as above), and also by imprisonment, and Fourthly, the chastisement proper to the lowest order in the community which may be performed by jarr, or by unprison-

ment, and also by blows

(3) It is recorded from Abu Yûsuf that the ruler of a country may inflict chastisement by means of property, that is, by the exaction of a small sum in the manner of a fine, proportioned to the offence, but this doctrine is rejected by many of the learned

- (4) Imam Timur Tashi says that chastisement, where it is incurred purely as the right of God, may be inflicted by any person whatever, for Abu Ja far Hinduani, being asked whether a man, finding another in the act of adultery with his wife, might slay him, re-plied, "If the husband know that expostulation and beating will be sufficient to deter the adulterer from a future repetition of his offence, he must not slay him, but if he sees reason to suppose that nothing but death will prevent a repetition of the offence, in such case it is allowed to the husband to slay that man and if the woman were consenting to his act, it is allowed to her husband to slay her also " from which it appears that any man is empowered to chastise another by blows, even though there be no magnetrate present He has demonstrated this fully in the Muntafi and the reason of it is that the chastisement in question is of the class of the removal of evil with the hand, and the Prophet has authorized every person to re-move evil with the hand, as he has said "Whosoever among ye see the evil, let him remedy it with his own hands but if he be unable so to do, let him forbid it with his tongue " Chastisement, therefore, is evidently contrary to punishment, since authority to infliot the latter does not appertain to any but a magistrate or a judge This species of chastisement is also contrary to the chastisement which is meurred on account of the right of the individual (such as in cases of slander, and so forth), since that depends upon the complaint of the injured party, whence no person can inflict it but the magistrate, even under a private arbitration, where the plaintiff and defendant may have referred the decision of the matter to any third person
- (5) Chastisoment, in any instance in which it is authorized by the law, is to be inflicted where the Imam sees it advisable
- (6) If a person accuse of whoredom a male or female slave, an ummu 'l-walad, or an infidel. he is to be chastised, because this accusation is an offensive accusation, and punishment for slander is not incurred by it, as the condition, namely, Ihsan (or marriage in the sense which induces punishment for slander), is not attached to the accused chastisement, therefore, is to be inflicted. And in the same manner, if any person accuse a Muslim of any other thing than who redom (that is, abuse him, by calling him a reprobate, or a villain, or an infidel, or a thief), chastisement is incurred, because he injures a Muslim and defames him, and punishment (hadd) cannot be considered as due from analogy, since analogy has no concern with the necessity of punishment chastisement, therefole, is to be inflicted. Where the aggrieved party is a slave, or so forth, the chastisement must be indicted to the extremity of it but in the case of abuse of a Muslim, the measure of the chastmement is left to the discretion of the magistrate be it more or less, and whatever he sees proper let him

1 }

(7) If a person abuse a Muslim, by calling him an ass, or a hog, in this case ohastisement is not incurred, because these expressions are in no respect defamatory of the person towards whom they are used, it being evident that he is neither an ass nor a hog Some allege that, in our time, chastisement is indicted, since, in the modern scooptation, calling a man an ass or a hog is held to be abuse Others, again, allege that it is esteemed such only where the person towards whom such expressions are used happens to be of dignified rank (such as a prince, or a man of letters), in which case chastisement must be inflicted upon the abuser, as by so speaking he exposes that person of rank to contempt, but if he be only a common person, chastisement is not incurred and this is the most approved doctrine

(8) The greatest number of stripes in chastisement is thirty-nine (see 2 Cor 2: 24), and the smallest number is three. This is according to Abu Hausfah and Imam Muhammad Abu Yusuf says that the greatest number of stripes in chastisement is seventy-The restriction to thirty-nine stripes is founded on a saying of the Prophet "The man who shall inflict accourging to the amount of punishment, in a case where punishment is not established, shall be accounted an aggravator" (meaning a wanton aggravator of punishment), from which saying it is to be inferred that the infliction of a number of stripes in chastisement, to the same smount as in pumshment, is anlawful, and this being admitted, Abu Hanifab and Imam Muhammad, in order to determine the utmost extent of chastisement, consider what is the smallest punishment and this is punishment for Alander with respect to a slave, which is forty stripes, they therefore deduct there-from one stripe, and establish thurty-nine as the greatest number to be inflicted in chus-Abu Yusuf, on the other band, tisement has regard to the smallest punishment with respect to freezen (as freedom is the original state of man), which is eighty stripes, he therefore deducts five, and establishes seventyfive as the greatest number to be inflicted in chastisement as aforesaid, because the same is recorded of 'Ali, whose example Abu Yusuf follows in this instance It is in one place recorded of Abū I usuf that he deducted only one stripe, and declared the utmost number of stripes in chasti-ement to be seventy-nine Such, also, is the opinion of Zafr, and this is agreeable to analogy. Imam Muhammad, in his book, has determined the smallest number of stripes in chastisement to be three, because in fewer there is no chastisement. The more modern doctors assert that the smallest degree of chastisement must be left to the judgment of the Imani or Quai, who is to inflict whatever he may deem sufficient for chastisement, which is different with respect to different men. It is recorded of Abu Ythanf that he has alleged that the degree thereof is in proportion to the degree of the offence, and it is also recorded from him that the chastisement for petty offences should be inflicted to a degree approaching to the punishment allotted for offences of a similar nature, thus the chastisement for libidinous acts (such as kissing and touching), is to be inflicted to a degree approaching to punishment for whoredom; and the chastisement for abusive language to a degree approaching to punishment for slander

(9) If the Qazi deem it fit in chastisement to unite impresonment with accorrging, it is, lawful for him to do both, since imprison-ment is of itself capable of constituting chastisement, and has been so employed, for the Prophet once imprisoned a person by way of chastising him. But as imprisonment is thus capable of constituting chastisement, in offences where chaspsoment is incurred by their being established imprisonment is not lawful before the offence be proved, murely upon suspicion, since imprisonment is in itself a chastisement contrary to offences which induce punishment, for there the accused may be lawfully imprisoned upon auspicion, as chastisement is short of pameh ment (whence the sufficiency of imprisonment alone in chastisement), and such being the case, it is lawful to unite imprisonment with hlowe

(10) The severest blows or stripes may be used in chastissment, because, as regard is had to lenty with respect to the number of the stripes, lenity is not to be regarded with respect to the nature of them, for otherwise the design would be defeated, and hence, lenity is not shown in chastisement by inflating the blows or stripes upon different parts of members of the body And next to chastisement, the severest blows or strapes sie to be inflicted in punishment for whoredom, as that is instituted in the Qur'ac. Whoredom moreover, is a deadly sin, insomuch that lapidation for it has been ordained by the law And next to pumshment for whoredom, the severest blows or stripes are to be inflicted in punishment for wine-drinking, as the occasion of punishment 18 there fully certified And next to punishment for wine-drinking, the severity of the blows or stripes is to be attended to in punishment for slander, because there is a doubt in respect to the occasion of the punishment (namely, the accusation), as an accusation may be either false or true, and also, because severity is here observed, in disqualifying the slanderer from appearing as an evidence wherefore severity is not also to be observed in the nature of the blows or stripes

(11) If the magnitrate infliot either punishment or chastisement upon a person, and the sufferer should die in consequence of such punishment or chastisement, his blood is Nadar, that is to say, nothing whatever is due upon it, because the magnitrate is sutherized therein, and what he does is done by decree of the law, and an act which is decreed is not restricted to the condition of safety. This is tualog us to a case of phishotomy, that is to say, if any person deafter

o be let blood, and should die, the operator is in no respect responsible for his death, and so here also It is contrary, however, to the case of a husband inflicting chastisement upon his wife, for his act is restricted to safety, as it is only allowed to a husband to chastise his wife; and an act which is only allowed is restricted to the condition of safety, like walking upon the highway Ash-Shāfi'i maintains that, in this case, the fine of blood is due from the public treasury, because, although where chastisement or punishment prove destructive, it is homicide by misadventure (as the intention is not the destruction, but the amendment of the sufferer), yet a fine is due from the public treasury, since the advantage of the act of the magnifrate extends to the public at large, wherefore the atonement is due from their property, namely, from the public treasury. The Hanafi doctors, on the other hand, say that whenever the magistrate inflicts a punishment ordained of God upon any person, and that person dies, it is the same as if he had died by the visitation of God, without any visible cause, wherefore there is no responsibility for it (See the Hidayah, the Durru 'l-Mukhtar, the Fatawa i-'Alamgiri, in loco) PUNISHMENT ]

TAZKTYAH (تركية) Lit "Purifying" (1) Giving the legal alms, or zakāt

(2) The purgation of witnesses (
Hamilton's Hidayah, vol 11 p 674) (See institution of inquiry into the character of

" Let "Joining (ترويع) Lat "Joining A term used for a marriage contract [MAR-

TEMPLE AT MAKKAH, The [MABJIDU 'L-HARAM ]

[AZAB] TERAH THEFT. LARCENY

THEOLOGY Arabic al-'Ilmu'l-العلم الألوى The Science of God" In the Traditions, the term 'Ilm, "knowledge," is specially applied to the knowledge of the Qur'an

Shaikh 'Abdu 'l-Haqq, in his remarks on the term 'Ilm, says religious knowledge consists in an acquaintance with the Qur'an and the Traditions of Muhammad

Muhammadan theology may be divided

(1) 'Ilmu 't-Tafsir, a knowledge of the Qur'an and the commentaries thereon.

(2) 'Ilmu 'l-Hadus, a knowledge of the Traditions

(8) 'Ilmu 'l-Usul, a knowledge of the roots, or of the four principles of the foundations of Muslim law, being expositions of the exegosis of the Qur'an and the Hadis, and the principles of Ima and Quas (4) 'Imu 'l-Fegh, Muslim law, wnether moral, civil, or ceremonial.

(5) 'Ilmu 'l-'Aqa'id, scholastic theology, tounded on the six articles of the Muslim creed, the Unity of God, the Angels, the Books, the Prophets, the Resurrection, and Predestination. ['ILM.]

THUNDER Arabic Ra'd (44). In the Quran, Surah xin. 18, 14, it is said "He (God) it is who shows you the lightning for fear and hope (of ram), and He brings up heavy clouds, and the thunder celebrates His praise, and the angels, too, fear him, and He sends the thunder-olap and overtakes therewith whom He will, yet they wrangle about God! But He is strong in might"

AT-TIBBU 'R-RUHANI (لطب الرجاني) Let 'The science (medical) of the heart" A term used by the Sulis for a knowledge of the heart and of remedies for its health (See Krtabu 't-Ta'rifat )

TILAWAH (8,33) Let "Reading"
The reading of the Qur'an [QUR'AN]

"The Fig" (التين) TIN-TA title of the xcvth Surah of the Qur'an, the opening words of which are "I swear by the fig and by the clive"

TINATU 'L-KHABAL (diagonal) الحال) Let "The clay of putrid matter" The sweat of the people of hell An expression used in the Traditions (Mishkāt, book xv ch. vn pt. 1)

AT-TIRMIZI (الترمذي) The Jāmi'u 't-Tirmizi, or the "Collection of Tirmizi" One of the six correct books of Sunni traditions collected by Abū 'Isā Muḥammad ibn 'Isā ibn Saurah at-Tirmigī, who was born at Tirmig on the banks of the Jahun, AH 209 Died AH 279 [TRADITIONS.]

TITHE TAXATION ]

TOBACCO Arabic dukhān (المال) (smoke) In some parts of Syria tabagh ( ) and tutun (تحن), in India and Central Asia, tumaku, corruption of the Persian tambākū (تنباكو) Tobacoo was introduced into Turkey, Arabia, and other parts of Asia soon after the beginning of the seventeeth century of the Christian era, and very soon after it had begun to be regularly imported from America into western Europe. Its lawfulness to the Muslim is warmly disputed Wahhabis have always maintained its unlawfulness, and even other Muslims hardly contend for its lawfulness, but it has become generally used in Muslim countries In India, smoking is allowed in mesques, but in Afghanistan and Contral Asia, it is generally forbidden. The celebrated Muslim leader, the Akhund of Swat, although an opponent of the Wahhabis, condemned the use of tobacco on account of its exhibitating effects

TOLERATION, RELIGIOUS Muhammadan writers are unanimous in assering that no religious toleration was extended to the idolaters of Arabia in the time of the Prophet The only choice given them was death or the reception of Islam

685

But they are not agreed as to how far idolatry should be tolerated amongst peoples not of Arabia. Still, as a matter of fact, Hindus professing idolatry are telerated in all Muelim countries Jews, Christians, and Majusis are telerated upon the payment of a capitation tax [JIZYAH, TREATY] Persons paying this tax are called Zimmis, and enjoy a certain teleration. (Fatāwā-1-'Alamgirī, vol. i. p 807) [ZDML]

According to the Hansfis, the following restrictions are ordained regarding those who do not profess Islam, but enjoy protection on payment of the tax

It behoves the Imam to make a distinction between Muslims and Zimmis, in point both of dress and of equipage. It is, therefore, not allowable for Zummis to ride upon horses, or to use armour, or to use the same saddles and wear the same garments or headdresses as Muslims, and it is written in the Jāmi'u 's-Saghir, that Zimmi's must be directed to wear the kistij openly on the outside of their clothes (the kistij is a woollen cord or belt which Zimmis wear round their waists on the outside of their garments), and also that they must be directed, if they ride upon any animal, to provide themselves a saddle like the panniers of Bri SAR

The reason for this distinction in point of clothing and so forth, and the direction to wear the kistly openly, is that Muslims are to be held in honour (whence it is they are not saluted first, it being the duty of the highest in rank to salute first [SALUTATION]), and if there were no outward signs to distinguish Muslims from Zimmis, these might be treated with the same respect, which is not allowed. It is to be observed that the insignia incumbent upon them to wear is a woollen rope or cord tied round the waist, and not a silken belt.

It is requisite that the wives of Zimmis be kept separate from the wives of Muslims, both in the public roads, and also in the baths, and it is also requisite that a mark be set upon their dwellings, in order that beggars who come to their doors may not pray for them The learned have also remarked that it is fit that Zimmis be not permitted to ride at all, except in cases of absolute necessity, and if a Zimmi be thus, of necessity, allowed to ride, he must alight wherever he sees any Muslims assembled, and, as mentioned before, if there be a necessity for him to use a saddle, it must be made in the manner of the panners of an ass Zmmis of the higher orders must also be prohibited from wearing rich garments

The construction of churches or synagogues in the Muslim territory is unlawful, this being forbidden in the Traditions, but if places of worship originally belonging to Jews or Christians be destroyed, or fall to decay, they are at liberty to repair them, because buildings cannot endure for ever, and as the imam has left these people to the exercise of their own religion, it is a necessary inference that he has engaged not to prevent them from rebuilding or repairing their churches and synagogues. If, however, they attempt to remove these, and to build them in a place different from their former situation, the Imam must prevent them, since this is an actual construction, and the places which they use as hermitages are held in the same light as their churches, wherefore the construction of those also is unlawful

It is otherwise with respect to such places of prayer as are within their dwellings, which they are not prohibited from constructing, because these are an appurtenance to the What is here said is the rule habitation with respect to caties, but not with respect to villages or hamlets, because, as the tokens of Islam (such as public prayer, festivals, and so forth) appear in cities, Zimmis should not be permitted to celebrate the tokens of infidebty there in the face of them, but is the tokens of Islam do not appear in villages or hamlets, there is no occasion to prevent the construction of synagogues or churches

Some allege that Zummis are to be prohibited from constructing churches or synagogues, not only in cities but also in villages and hamlets, because in the villages various tokens of Islam appear, and what is recorded from Abū Hanifah (that the prohibition against building churches and synagogues is confined to cities, and dues not extend to villages and hamlets) relates solely to the villages of al-Kūfah, because the greater part of the inhabitants of villages are Z minis, there being few Muslims among them, wherefore the tokens of Islam did not there appear, moreover, in the territory of Arabia Zimmis are prohibited from constructing churches or synagogues, either in cities or villages, because the Prophet has said "Two religions cannot be possessed together in the peninsula of Arabia" (See Fatawa-1-'Alamgiri, Durru 'l Mukhtar, Hidayah, in loco ) [ZIMMI]

TOMBS. The erection of tombs and monuments over the graves of Muslims is forbidden by the strict laws of Islam the teaching of the Traditions on the subject is unmistakable, as will be seen by the follewing Ahadis (Mishkat, Look v ch. vi. pt. 1)

Jabir says "The Prophet prohibited building with morter on graves"

Abū "l-Haiyāj al-Asadī relates that the Khalifab 'Ali said to him "Shall I not give you the orders which the Prophet gave me, namely, to destroy all pictures and images, and not to leave a single lofty temb without lowering it within a span from the ground "

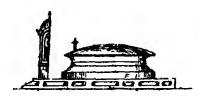

Sa'd ibn Abi Waqqas said, when he was "Make me a grave towards Makkah, and put unburnt bricks upon it, as was done upon the Prophet's "

The Wahhabis consequently forbid the erection of monuments, and when they took possession of al-Madinah, they intended to destroy the handsome building which covers the grave of the Prophet, but were prevented by accident. (See Burton a Prigrimage, vol. 1.

p. 854.) [WAHHARI ]
But notwithstanding the general consensus of orthodox opinion, that the erection of such buildings is unlawful, domed tombs of anbstantial structure, similar to the illustration given en this page, are common to all Mu-hammadan countries, and masonry tembs are always erected over the graves of persons of respectability.

Some have a head-stone, in which there are recesses for small oil lamps, which are lighted every Thursday evening Persons of distinction are generally honoured with tombs constincted with domes The specimens given in the illustrations are common to all parts of the Mushin world.

The most common form of structure is not dissimilar to that which is erected in Christian cemeteries but it is usual to put a head stone to the grave of a male on which is a figure representing the turban as a sign of authority Sometimes there is a cavity in the top of the grave-stone filled with mould, in which flowers are planted

Writing of the grave vards of Damascus, Mr Wellsted says "I know of nothing which displays the Moslem character to more ad vanings than the care they bestow on their burns grounds On Friday the Moslom Sun-day, those of Damescus afford at once a touching and animated scene. The ste selected for the remains of those most cherished in life is generally picturesqualy situated, in some lower spot, beneath the lofty cypress or quivering poplar Here a headstone of marble, covered with macriptions and of a male, surmounted with a turban, mingles with costher buildings, of an oblong form, very tastefully and elaborately inscribed with sentences from the Koran The greatest care is observed in preserving those sepul-chral monuments. A small aperture is left in some portions, which is filled with earth, and in them the females plant myrtle and other flowers, and not infrequently water them with their tears On the day I have named, they may be perceived in groups, hastening to perform the sad but pleasing office of mourning for the departed '(Tracele to the City of the Calipha, vol 1 p 848)

Mr Lane (Arabian Nights, vol 1 p 488) says the tomb "1s a hollow, oblong vault, one side of which faces Mekkeh, generally large enough to contain four or more bodies, and having an oblong monument of stone or brick constructed over it with a stella at the head Upon the former of these two and foot stel (which is often inscribed with a text from the Kur-un, and the name of the deceased, with the date of his death), a turban, or other head-dress, as sometimes carved, shewing the rank or class of the person or persons burned beneath, and m many cases, a cupola, supported by four walls, or by columns, &c , 13 constructed over the smaller monument. The body is laid on its right side, or inclined by means of a few crude bricks, so that the face is turned towards Mekkeb, and a person is generally employed to dictate to the deceased the answers which he should give when he is examined by the two angels Munkir and Nekoor" [TALQIN]

The tombs of the imperial family of Turkey are amongst the most interesting sights of the city of Constantinople. They are prisicipally eracted in the outer courts of mosques and behind the mibrab One of the finest of these mausoleums is that of Sultan Sulaiman I., who died a.D 1566 It is an estagonal building of divers coloured marbles, with support the dome, which is elaborately painted in red and discate arabesque It contains the remains of three Sultans, Sulaiman I, Sulaiman II, and Ahmad II, besides some female members of the family. The biers are decorated with rich embroideries and costly shawls, and with turbans and aigrettes; and that of Sulaiman I is surrounded by a railing initial with mother-of-pearl. The mansoleum of the Emperor Jahangur at Shahdarrah, near Lahore, is one of the finest Muhamwidan tombs in the world It is situated in a garden 1,600 feet square There is, first, a fine corridor 238 feet long, from which to the central dome is 108 feet The passage to the tomb is paved with beau tifully streaked marble from Japur and other places. The earcophagus stands on a white marble platform, 18 feet 5 mches long from north to south, and 8 feet 9 inches broad The sarcophagus itself is of white marble, and is 7 feet long On the cast and west hides of it are the minoty-mine names of God [GOD, NAMES OF] most beautifully carved, and on the south side is inscribed "The glorious tomb of His High Majesty, the Asylum of Protectors, Nuru 'd-din Muhanimad, the Emperor Jihangir, A.H 1037 (A D 1627) On the north end of the tomb is in Arabic, "Allah the Laving God. There is no derty but God over the invisible world and all things. He is the Merciful and the Compassionate." On the top is a short passage from the Qur'an, written in beautiful Tughra The central dome of the building is 27 feet square, and on the four sides there are tine screens of trells work Just inside the entrance, and to the right of it, is a staircase with twenty-five steps, which loads up to a magnificent tesselated pavement, at each corner of which is a minaret 95 feet high from the platform. This platform is 211 feet 5 mohes square, and is truly beautiful marble wall ran round the payoment, butait was taken away by the Sikhs, and it has been replaced by a poor substitute of masonry. The minerets are tour storeys high, and are built of magnificent blocks of stone & feet by 61 feet, and in them are stops leading to the top of the building, from which there is s fine view of Labore

The tomb of Ahmad Shah Abdali st Kandahar, is an ectagonal structure, overlaid with coloured porcelain bricks, and is surmounted with a gilded dome, surrounded by small minarets. The pavement inside is covered with a carpet, and the sarcophagus of the Afghan king is covered with a shaw. The tomb reself is made of Kandahar stone, mailed with wreaths of flowers in coloured marble. The interior walls are prettily painted and the windows are of fine trellis wefi.

The sepulchre of the Taimur, who died A.D. 1405, is at Samarkand in Bukharah, and is described by M Vambery as a neat little chapel crowned with a splendid dome, and encircled by a wall in which there is an arched gate On both sides are two small domes, minature representations of the large one in the centre. The court-yard between the wall and the chapel is filled with trees; the garden being much neglected. entering the dome, there is a vestibule which leads to the chapel itself This is octagonal, and about ten short pages in diameter the middle, under the dome, that is to say, in the place of honour, there are two tombs, placed lengthways, with the head in the direction of Makkah. One of these tombs is covered with a very fine stone of a dark groun colour, two and a half spans broad and ten long, and about the thickness of and fingers. It is laid flat in two pieces over the grave of Taimar. The other grave is covered with a black stone. It is the temb of Mir Synd Bakar, the teacher and spiritual guide of Taimur, and beside whose grave the great Ameer gratefully desired to be buried Round about he other tembstones great and The inscriptions are simple, and are small in Arabic and Perman

It has often been the case that Muhammadan kings have erected their mansoleums during their lifetime, although such acts are strictly contrary to the teachings of their Prophet. A remarkable matance of this is to be seen at Bujapur in India, where the unfinished tomb of 'Ah 'Adl Shab (A.D. 1557) 18 still to be seen, having never been completed after his burnal His successor, Ibrahim (A.D. 1579), warned by the fate of his predecessor's tomb, commenced his own on so small a plan -116 feet square—that, as he was blessed with a long and prosperous reign, it was only by ornament that he could render the place worthy of humself This he accomplished by governing overly part with the most exquisite and elaborate carvings. The ornamental carvings on this tomb are so numerous, that it is said the whole Qur'an is engraven on its walls The principal apartment in the tomb is a square of forty feet, covered by a stone roof perfectly flat in the centre, and supported by a cove projecting ten feet from the wall on every side Mr Fergusson says "How the roof is supported is a mystery, which can only be understood by those who are familiar with the use the Indians make of masses of concrete which, with good mortar, seems capable of infinite applications unknown in Europe." (Architecture, vol m p 562.) The tumb of Mahmud, Ibrahim's successor (A D 1626), was also built in his lifetime, and remarkable for its simple grandeur and constructive boldness. It is internally 185 feet each way, and its area is consequently 18,225 square feet, while the Pantheon at Rome has only an area of 15 888 feet.

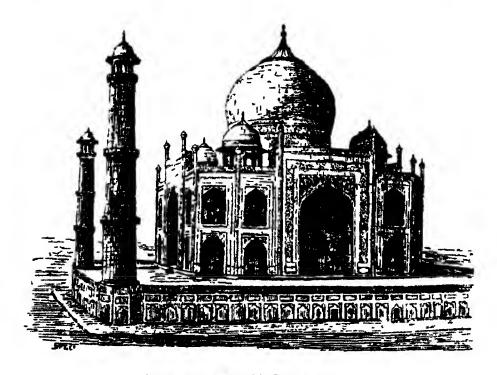

The tomb of linem ash-Shaffi, the founder of one of the four orthodox scots of the Sunnis, and who died a H 204, is still to be seen near the city of Caire. It is surmented h a large dome, with a weathercock in the form of a boat. It is said to have been erected by Yūsuf Ṣalāhu 'd-Dīn (Ṣaladın). The interior is cased to a height of eight feet with marble, above which the whole building is coloured in recent and unartistic style. The windows contain coloured glass. There are three niches, with a fourth in the form of a mārāb, marking the direction of Makkah. The covering of the tomb of the celebrated Muslim doctor is of simple brocade, embroidered with gold. It is enclosed with a wooden railing, inlaid with mother-of-pearl, the corners being clasped with silver fittings. At the head of the tomb is a large surban, partly covered with a Cashmere shawl Near the head of the tomb is a marble pillar, with sculptured miscriptions, coloured red and gold. From the roof are suspended a few porcelain lamps, and lamps of glass, as well as estrich eggs, hang in profusion from the canopy of the tomb and from light wooden beams. The walls and tomb-enclosure are adorned with scrolls. Close to the building are four other tombs of the Imām's family.

The tomb of Zubaidah, the beloved wife of the celebrated Khalifah Hārūnu 'r-Rashid, the hero of the tales of The Thousand and One Nights, is a simple edifice standing on a aloping eminence, within an extensive cemetery outside the city of Baghdad It is a building of an octagonal shape, thirty feet in diameter, and surmounted by a spito In the upper part of the building are two ranges of windows, the upper of which presents the flattened and the lower the pointed arch. The spire is a mere sharpened cone, ornamented without with convex divisions corresponding to concave arches within. The interior is occupied by three oblong buildings of masonry, coated with lime. A modern Pacha and his wife have now the honour of reposing beside the remains of the fair Persian, and an inscription over the porch testifies that their remains were deposited nine centuries after the favourite wife of the renowned Khalifah

A very interesting specimen of tomb architecture is found at Sultaniah in Persia. It is the sepuchre of one Muhammad Khuda-Texter ascribes the building to bandıa Khudabandish, of the Sufi dynasty, A.D 1577-85, but Fergusson says its style shows that the monument must be two or three hundred years older than that king Ker Porter says it is the work of the Tartar Mu-hammad Khudabandia, who was the suocossor of Ghazan Khan, the builder of the celebrated mosque at Tabriz, who, being seized with as much zeal for his Shi ite faith as his predecessor had been for the Sunnite, his intention was to lodge in this mansoleum the remains of 'Ali and his son al-Husain. This intention, however, was not carried into effect, and consequently the bones of the founder repose alone in this splended shrine, and not under the central dome, but in a side chamber The general plan of this building is an octagon, with a small chapel opposite the entrance, in which the body lies. Internally, the dome is 81 feet in diameter by 150 feet in height, the octagon being worked (Mr Fergusson says) into a circle by as elegant a series of brackets as, perhaps, ever were employed for this pur pose The form of the dome is singularly graceful and elegant, and superior to anything of the kind in Persia. The whole is oovered with glazed tiles, rivalling in richness those of the celebrated mosque at Tabriz, and with its general beauty of cutline, it affords one of the finest specimens of this style of architecture found in any country

THE TAJ AT AGRA. (A. F Hole.)

The grave of the Persian poet Hāfiz, at Shiras in Persia, is a single block of beautiful murble from Yezd, of which shout eighteen inches appear above the ground It is a fine slab, is perfectly flat, and is nine feet long by two feet nine inches in width. Raised in low relief, in the centre of the top of the slab, is one of the poet's odes in the beau-tiful letters of the Porsian alphabet, and round the edges, in a band about five inches deep, is another ode. The temb which is probably about two hundred years old, is utuated in a square enclosure or garden, and the ground around is thickly beset with tombs, mostly flat like that of the poet.

The finest specimen of monumental architecture is the celebrated Tay at Agra, erected over the grave of Urjammad Banu Begum, called Muntaz-1-Muhall, or the "Exalted One of the Palace," the favourite wife of the Emperor Shah Jahan, who died about A.D 1629 The designs and estimates for the building are said to have been prepared by a Venetian named Geronimo Verrouso, but the architect died at Labore before its completion, and the work is supposed to have been handed over to a Byzantine Turk. Mr Keene says that it is certain Austin the French artist, was consulted Mr Fergusson gives the following particulars of this remarkable building

"The enclosure, including garden and outer court, is a parallelogram of 1,860 feet by more than 1,000 feet The outer court, surrounded by arcades and adorned by four gateways, is an oblong, occupying in length the wholo breadth of the enclosure, and is about 450 The principal gateway leads from feet deep this court to the garden, where the tomb is seen framed in an avenue of dark cypross trees The plinth of white marble is 18 feet high, and is an exact square of 313 fest each way At the four corners stand four columns or towers, each 137 feet high, and crowrod with a little pavilien. The mausoleum itself occupies a space of 186 feet square, in the centre of this larger square, and each of the four corners is cut off opposite each of the The central dome is 50 feet in diameter by 80 feet in height. On the platform in front of the jumeb, or false mosque, is a tracing of the topmost spine, a gilded spike crowning the central dome to the height of 30 feet. The interior is lighted from marble trellised-screen lights above and below "--- Fergusson's History of Archi-tecture, vol li p 693) [EIYARAH]

TRADITION. It is the belief of all Muhammadans, whether Sunni, Shi'ah, or Wahhabi, that in addition to the revelation contained in the Qur'an, the Prophet received the Wahy ghair Matlu (let. " an unread revelation"), whereby he was enabled to give authoritative declarations on religious questions, either moral, ceremonial, or doctrinal. Muhammad traditions are therefore supposed to be the unmapired record of mapired sayings, and consequently occupy a totally difditions in the Christian Church The Arabic words used for these traditions are Hadig (مديمه), pl Ahādu, "a saymg", and Sunnah (فد), pl Sunan "a custom" The word Hadis, in its singular form, is now generally used by both Minhammadan and Christian writers for the collections of traditions. They are records of what Mnhammad did (Sunnatu 'l-fi'l), what Muhammad enjoined (Sunnatu'l quul), and that which was done in the presence of Muhammad and which he did not forbid (Sunnatu 't-tagrir') They also include the authoritative sayings and doings of the Companions of the Prophet

The following quotations from the Traditions as to the sayings of Muhammad on the subject of this oral law, will explain the position which he intended to assign to it.

"That which the Prophet of God hath made unlawful is like that which God himself hath made so."

"I am no more than a man, but when I enjoin anything respecting religion receive it, and when I order anything about the affairs of the world, then I am nothing more than

"Verily the best word is the word of God, and the best rule of life is that delivered by

Muhammad'

"I have left you two things, and you will not stray as long as you hold them fast The one is the book of God, and the other the law (sunnah) of His Prophet"

" My sayings do not abrogate the word of God, but the word of God can abrogate my sayings

" Some of my injunctions abrogate others" (Mishkat, book 1 ch. vl.)

Muhammad gave very special injunctions respecting the faithful transmission of his sayings, for, according to at-Tirmizi, Ibn 'Abbas relates that Muhammad said "Convey to other persons none of my words, ex-bept those ye know of a surety Verily he who represents my words wrongly shall find a place for himself in the fire."

But notwithstanding the severe warning even by their Prophet, it is admitted by all Muslim scholars that very many spurious traditions have been handed down Abū Da'ūd received only four thousand eight hundred traditions out of five hundred thousand, and even in this careful selection, he states, that he has given "those which seem to be authentic and those which are nearly so" (Vide Ibn Khalikan, vol 1 p 590)
Out of forty thousand persons who have been instrumental us handing down traditions, al Bukhārī only acknowledges two

In consequence of the unrobable character of the Traditions, the following canons have been framed for the reception or rejection (wide Nukhbatu 'l-Fuyr, by Shaith Shihabu 'd-Din Ahmad, ed by Captain N Lucs)

I With reference to the character of those who have handed down the tradition -

(1) Hadigu 's-Sahih, a genume tradition, is one which has been handed down by truly pious persons who have been distinguished for their integrity

(2) Harligu !- Hasan, a mediocre tradition, 18 one the narrators of which do not approach in moral excellence to those of the Sahih class

(3) Hadiga 's-Za'if, a weak tradition, is one whose narrators are or questionable authority

The disputed claims of narrature to the e three classes have proved a fruitful source of learned discussion, and very numerous are the works written upon the subject.

II With reference to the original relators of the Hadis

(1) Hadigu 'l-Marfit, an exalted tradition is a saying, or an act, related or performed by the Prophet himself and handed down in a tradition

(2) Hadigu 'l-Mauguf, a restricted tradition, is a saying of an act related or performed by one of the ashab, or Companious of the

Prophet

(3) Hadisu 'l-Maqtu', an intersected tradition, is a saying or an act rolated or per formed by one of the Tabi'un, or those who conversed with the Companions of the Prophet

III With reference to the links in the chain of the narrators of the tradition, a Hadis is either Muttagel, connected, or Munquit', disconnected If the chain of parrators is complete from the time of the first utter ance of the saying or performance of the act recorded to the time that it was written down by the collector of tradit one, it is Muttagil, but it the chain of narrators is incomplete, it is Mungati'

IV With reference to the manner in which the tradition has been nurrated, and trans mitted down from the first -

(1) Hadigu 'l-Mutawiter, an undoubted tradition, is one which is banded down by very many distinct chams of parrators, and which has been always accepted as authentic and genuine, no doubt even having been raised against it. The learned doctors say there are only five such traditions, but the exact num ber 14 disputed

(2) Hudin 'l-Mashhu, i well-known tradition 14 one which has been landed lown by at least three distinct lines of part iters It is called also Mustafiz, dufused Ir in also used for a tradition which was at first rocorded by one person, or a few advidual, and afterwards became a popular tradition

(8) Hadigu 'l-'Azīz, a rere tradition, is one related by only two lines of narrators,

(4) Hadigu l-Gharib, a poor tradition, is one related by only one line of narrators.

(5) Khabaru'l-Währd, a single saying, is a term also used for a tradition related by one person and handed down by one line of narrators. It is a disputed point whether a Khibar Wahid can form the basis of Muslim dectrine

(6) Hadieu 'l Mursal (lit. " a tradition let loose"), is a tradition which any collector of traditions, such as al-Bukhari and others, records with the assertion, "the Apostle of God said."

(7) Rwaynh, is a Hadis which commences with the words "it is "slated," without the authority being given.
(8) Hadigu V-Mauzu, an excented tradition, is one the untruth of which is beyond dispute.

The following is a specimen of a hadis, as given in the collection of at-Tirmizi, which will exemplify the way in which a tradition is recorded .

"Abū Kuraib said to us (haddasa-nā) that Ibiāhīm ibn Yūsui ibn Abī lehāq said to us (haddaşu-nü), from (an) his father, from (an) Abū Ishāq, from ('an) Tulātā ibn Musārif, that he said, I have heard (samt'tu). from 'Abdu 'r Rahman ibn Ausajah, that he said (yaqulu), I have beard (sumstie) from Bara ibn 'Azib that he said (yaqulu) I have heard (sumifu) that the Prophet said, Whoever shall give in charity a milch cow, or silver, or a leathern bottle of water, it shall be equal to the freeing of a slave."

The Honourable Syed Ahmed Khan Bahadur, OSI, an educated Muhammadan gentleman, in an L say on Mohammedan Traditions, gives the following information -

The Style of Composition employed in the emparting of a Tradition

For the purpose of expressing how a tradition had been communicated from one per son to another, certain introductory verbal forms were selected by duly qualified persons, and it was incumbent upon every one about to narrate a tradition, to commence by that particular form appropriated to the said tradition, and this was done with the view of securing for each tradition the quantum of credit to which it might be justly entitled

These introductory verbal forms are as follow (1) عدنيا "He said to me" (2) معمد "I heard him saying , (3) لكا "He told me", (4) لكر لدا "He related to me", (5) المبالا "He informed me", (6) "المبالا" He mformed me ', (7) " From."

The first four natroductory forms were to be used only in the case of an original narintor communicating the very words of the tradition to the next one below him. fifth and sixth introductory verbal forms were used when a narrator inquired of the narrator immediately above him whether which or such a fact, or circumstance, was or was not correct. The last form is not suffrozently explicit, and the nonsequence is that it cannot be decided to which of the two putsons the tradition related belongs, so that unless other facts be brought to bear upon it. it cannot be satisfactorily proved whether there be any other persons, one or more than one, intermediary between the two narrators As to any external facts that might prove what was required to be known, the learned are divided in their opinions

First If it be known of a certainty that the narrator is not notorious for fraudulently omitting the names of other parties forming links in the chain of narration, and who also lived at such a time and in such a locality that it was possible, although not proved, that they visited each other, then it might be taken for granted that there were no other narrators intermediary between these

Secondly. Other learned authorities add that it must be proved that they visited each other, at least once in their life-time

Others assert that it must be Thirdly proved that they remained together for such a time as would be sufficient to enable them to learn the tradition, one from the other

Fourthly Some hold that it must be proved that one of them really learned the tradition from the other

Degree of Authenticity of the Narraturs us judged by their Acquirements

The associates of the Prophet, and those persons who lived immediately after them, used to relate, with the exception of the Quran, the sense of the Prophet's words in their own language, unless they had to use some phrases containing prayers, or when they had to point out to others the very words of the Frophet It is natural to suppose that deeply learned persons would them selves understand and deliver, to others, the sense of the sayings better than persons of inferior parts, and therefore narrators have been divided into seven grades

First Persons highly conspicuous for their learning and legal acquirements as well as for their retentive memory Such persons are distinguished by the title of deli A'immate 1-Hader, that is " Louders

ın Hadiş "

Second Persons who, as to their knowledge, take rank after the first, and who but very rarely committed any mustake

Third Persons who have made alterations in the pure religion of the Prophet, without cerrying them to extremes by prejudice, but respecting whose integrity and honesty there is no doubt

Fourth Persons respecting whom nothing

18 known

Fifth Persons who have made alterations in the pure religion of the Prophet, and, actuated by prejudice have carried them to extremes

Sixth Persons who are pertunctionally sceptical, and have not a retentive momory

Seventh Persons who are notorious for inventing apprious traditions Learned di-vines are of opinion that the traditions related by persons of the first three classes should be accepted as true, according to their respective ments, and also that traditions related by persons coming under the three last classes should be, at once, entirely rejected; and that the traditions related by persons of the fourth class, should be passed over unnoticed so long as the narrator remained unknown

Causes of Difference among Traditions

We should not be justified in concluding that, whenever a difference is met with in traditions, those latter are nothing more than so many mere inventions and fabrica tions of the narrators, since, besides the fabrication of hadis, there are also other natural causes which might occasion such differences, and we shall now consider these natural causes which produce such variety among hadis

(1) A misunderstanding of the real sense of the saying of the Prophet

(2) Difference of the opinions of two narrators in understanding the true sense of the Prophet's saving

(3) Inability to enunciate clearly the sense of the Prophet's saying

(4) Failure of memory on the part of the parrator -- in consequence of which he either left out some portion or portions of the Prophet's saying or mixed up together the meanings of two different hadis

(5) Explanation of any portion of the hadis given by the narrator, with the intention of its being easily understood by the party hearing it, but unfortunately mistaken by the latter for an actual portion of the

hadiq itself

(6) Quotations of certain of the Prophet's words by the narrator, for the purpose of supporting his own narration, while the heurers of the narration erroneously took the whole of it as being the Prophet's own

(7) Traditions borrowed from the Jews erroneously taken to be the words of the Prophet, and the difference existing between such Jewish traditions was thus transferred to those of the Muhammadans The stories of ancient persons and early prophets, with which our histories and commentaries are filled, are all derived from these sources.

(8) The difference which is naturally caused ur the continual transmission of a tradition by oval communication, as it has bean in the case of traditions having miracles for their subject matter

(9) The various states and circumstances in which the different narrators saw the

Prophet

Apocryphul Hadis

There exists no doubt respecting the circomstance of certain persons having fabricated some hadis in the Prophet's name. Those who perpetrated so impudent a forgery were men of the following descriptions .

(1) Persons desirous of introducing some praiseworthy custom among the public, forged hadis in order to secure success fabrication is restricted exclusively to those hadis which treat of the advantages and benefits which reading the Qur'en and praying precure to any one, both in this world and the next, which show how reciting passages from the Qur'an cures overy disease, ets. the real object of such frauds being to lead the public into the habit of reading the Qur'an and of praying According to our religion, the perpetrators of such frauds, or of any others, stand in the list of sinners

(2) Preachers, with a view of collecting large congregations around them, and of amusing their hearers invented many traditions, such traditions being only those which describe the state and condition of paradise and of hell, as well as the state and condition of the soul after death, etc in order to awaken the fear of God's wrath and the hope of salvation.

(8) Those persons who made alterations in the religion of the Prophet, and who, urged by their prejudices, carried the same to ex tremes, and who, for the purpose of successfully confronting their controversial antagoniste, forged such traditions in order to favour their own interested views

(4) Unbehevers who malicionaly coined and circulated spurious hadis Learned men, however, have greatly exerted themselves in order to discover such fabricated traditions, and have written many works upon the subject, laying down rules for ascertaining false traditions and for distinguishing them from

genume ones

The modes of procedure were as follows Such persons examined the very words employed in such traditions, as well as their style of composition, they compared the contents of each hadis with the commands and injunctions contained in the Qur'an, with those religious doctrines and dogmas that have been deduced from the Qur'an, and with those hadis which have been proved to be genuine, they investigated the nature of the import of such traditions, as to whether it was unreasonable, unprobable, or impossible

It will therefore, be evident that the hadis considered as genuine by Muhammadans, must indispensably possess the following characters The narrator must have plainly and distinctly mentioned that such and such a thing was either said or done by the Prophet, the chain of narrators from the last link up to the Prophet, must be unbroken, the subject related must have come under the actual ken of its first narrators, every one of the narrators, from the last up to the Prophet, must have been persons conspicuous for their piety, virtue, and honesty, every narrator must have received more than one hadis from the narrator immediately preeeding him, every one of the narrators must be conspicuous for his learning, so that he might be safely presumed to be competent both to understand correctly, and faithfully deliver to others the sense of the tradition, the import of the tradition must not be contrary to the injunctions contained in the Qur'an, or to the religious doctrines deduced from that Book, or to the traditions proved to be correct, and the nature of the import of the tradition must not be such as persons might hesitate in accepting

Any tradition thus proved genuine can be made the basis of any religious doctrine, but notwithstanding this, another objection may be raised against it which is that this tradition is the statement of one person only, and therefore, cannot, properly, be believed in implicitly For obvisting this, three grades have been again formed of the hadis preced as genuise. These three grades are the following Store Mutawater Jack Mathhur, and and Mathhur, and

Mutawater is an appellation given to those hadis only that have always been, from the time of the Prophet, ever afterwards recognised and accepted by every associate of the Prophet, and every learned individual as authentic and genuine, and to which no one has raised any objection. All learned Muhammadan divines of overy period have declared that the Quran only is the Hadis Mutawatir, but some doctors have declared certain other hadis also to be Mutawatir, the number however, or such hadis not exceeding fire Such are the traditions that are implicitly believed and ought to be religiously observed

Mashhur is a title given to those traditions that, in every age, have been believed to be genuine, by some learned persons These are the traditions which are found recorded in the best works that treat of them, and, having been generally accepted as genuine, form the nucleus of some of the Muslim doc-

tranos

hhabar-ı-Ahad (or hadig related by one person), is an appellation given to traditions that do not possess any of the qualities be-longing to the traditions of the first two grades Opinions of the learned are divided whether or not they can form the basis of any religious doctrine

Persons who undertook the task of collecting traditions had neither time nor opportunity for examining and investigating all the above particulars, and some of them collected together whatsoever came under their notice, while others collected only those whose narrators were acknowledged to be trustworthy and honest persons, leaving en tirely upon their readers the task of investigating and examining all the above mentioned particulars, as well as of deciding their comparative merita, their genuineness, and the quantum of credit due to them

There is some difference of opinion as to who first attempted to collect the traditions, and to compile them in a book Some say 'Abdu 'l-Malik ibn Juraij of Makkah, who died AH 150, whilst others assert that the collection, which is still extent, by the Imitm Mālik, who died a H 179, was the first collec-tion. The work by Imam Mālik is still held in very great esteem, and although not generally included among the standard six, it is believed by many to be the source from whence a great portion of their materials are derived

The following are the Saddhu's-Sittah, or "six correct" books, received by Sunni Muslims

- (1) Muhammad Ismā'il al-Bukhārī, A.H.
- (2) Muslem ibnu 1-Hajjāj, A.H. 261 (8) Abu 'Isa Muhammad, at-Termizi, A.H. 279
- (4) Abū Da'ūd as-Sajistāni, A.H. 275 (8) Abū 'Abdı 'r-Rahman an-Nasa'ı, AH. ROR
- (6) Abū 'Abdi 'liāh Muḥammad Ibn Mājah, AH 278

According to the Ithafu 'n-Nubala', there are as many as 1,465 collections of traditions m existence, although the six already re corded are the more generally used amongst

- It is often stated by European writers that the Shi'she reject the Traditions This is not correct. The Sunnis arrogate to themselves the title of Traditionists, but the Shraha, although they do not accept the cullections of traditions as made by the Sunnis. receive fixe collections of Ahadis, upon which their system of law, both civil and religious, 18 founded
- (1) The Kaji, by Abu Ja'far Muhammad ibn Ya'qub, AH 329
- (2) The Man-la-yastahzerahu 'l-Faqeh, by
- Shaikh 'Ali, A.E 361
  (3) The Tahzib, by Shaikh Abu Ji far Muhammad ibn 'Alı ibn Hussin, A H 460
  - (4) The Istebsar, by the same author (5) The Nahju 'l-Balaghah, by Salyid ar-

Razī, a H. 406

There are many stories which illustrate the importance the Companions of the Prophot attached to Sunnah. The Khalifah Umar looked towards the black stone at Makkah, and said "By God, I know that thon art only a stone, and canst grant no benefit, canst to no harm. If I had not known that the Prophet kissed thee, I would not have done so, but on account of that I do Abdu 'lish ibn 'Umar was seen riding his camel round and round a certain place In answer to an inquiry as to his reason for so doing, he said 'I know not, only I have seen the Prophet de so here." Ahmad ibn Hanbal is said to have been appointed on account of the care with which he observed the Sunnah. One day when sitting in an assembly, he sions of all present observed some formal motom authorised by the practice of the Prophet Gabriel at once appeared and informed him that now, and on account of his act, he was appointed an Imam And on another occasion it is said this great traditioniet would not even eat water melous, because, although he knew the Prophet ate them, he could not learn whether he ate them with or without the rind, or whether he broke, but or out them and he forbade a woman, who questioned him as to the propriety of the act, to spin by the light c torches passing in the etreets by night, be cause the Prophet had not mentioned that 1 was lawful to do so

The modern Wahhabis being, for the mos part, followers of Ibn Hanbal, attach grea importance to the teaching of the Traditions and have therefore caused a revival of the branch of Muslim literature [WAHHABI]

We are indebted to Sir William Muir' Introduction to the Life of Mahomet, for th following

"Mahometan tradition consists of the say ings of the friends and followers of the Pro phet handed down by a real or supposes chain of narrators to the period when the were collected, recorded, and classified process of transmission was for the most par

oral It may be sketched as follows
'After the death of Mahomet, the man employment of his followers was arms pursuit of pleasure, and the formal round o religious observances, filled up the interstice of active life, but afforded scanty exercise fo the higher faculties of the mind The tedium of long and mksome marches, and the lazy intervals from one campaign to another, fel listlessly upon a simple and semi-barbarou race These intervals were occupied, and that tedium beguiled, chiefly by calling up race the past m familia: conversation or more for mal discourse On what topic, then, would the early Moslems more enthusiastically des cant than on the acts and sayings of that wonderful man who had called them into ex istence as a conquering nation, and hac placed in their hands 'the keys both of this world and of Paradise'?

"Thus the converse of Mahemet's follower would be much about him. The majesty o his character gained greatness by contempla tion, and, as time removed him farther and farther from them, the lineaments of the mys terious mortal who was wont to hold familia intercourse with the messengers of heaven rose in dimmer, but in more gigantic propor The mind was unconsciously led on to think of him as endowed with supernatura power, and ever surrounded by supernatura agency Here was the material out of which Tradition grew luxuriantly Whenever there was at hand no standard of fact whereby these recitals may be tested, the memory was aided by the unchecked efforts of the imagi nation, and as days rolled on, the latter element gamed complete ascendancy

"Such is the result which the lapse of time would naturally have upon the minds and the narratives of the As-hab or 'Companions of Mahomet, more especially of those who were young when he died And then anothe race sprang up who had never seen the Pro phet, who looked up to his contemporarie with a superstitious reverence, and who ha tened to their stories of him as to the tiding ' Is i of a messenger from the other world possible, father of Abdallah! that thou has been with Mahomet?' was the question ad dressed by a pious Moslem to Hodseifa, in th mosque of Kufa, didst then really see th Prophet and wert thou on familiar terms with him? - Son of my uncle! it is indeed as thou sayest .- And how wert thou wont to behave towards the Prophet?'- Verily, we used to labour hard to please him'-Well, by the Lord!' exclaimed the ardent listener, had I been but alive in his time, I would not have allowed him to put his blessed foot upon the earth, but would have borne him on my shoulders wherever he listed' (Hisham, p 295) Upon another occasion the youthful Obeida listened to a Companion who was reciting before an assembly how the Prophet's head was shaved at the Pil grimage, and the hair distributed amongst his followers, the eyes of the young man glistened as the speaker proceeded, and he interrupted him with the impatient exclamation,— Would that I had even a single one of those blessed hairs! I would cherish it for ever, and prize it beyond all the gold and silver in the world' (Kattb a' Wackadı, p. 279) Such were the natural feelings of fend devotion with which the Prophet came to be regarded by the followers of the 'Companions

"As the tale of the Companions was thus taken up by then followers, distance began to invest it with an increasing charm, while the products of living faith and warm imagi nation were being fact debased by supersti-tions credulity This second generation are termed in the language of the patriotic loro of Arabia, Tabian, or 'Successors' Here and there a Companion survived till near the end of the brst century, but, for all practical purposes, they had passed off the stage before the commencement of its last quarter first Successors who were in some measure also their contemporaries, flourished in the laster half of the same century, though some of the oldest may have survived for a time in the second

"Meanwhile a now cause was at work, which gave so the tales of Mahomet's companions a fresh and an idventitious impoi-

"The Arabs, a simple and unsophisticated race, found in the Coran ample provisions for the regulation of all their affairs, religious, social, and political But the aspect of Islam soon underwent a mighty change Sourcely was the Prophet dead when his followers issued forth from their barien peninsula, armed with the warrant of the Goran to impose the faith of Mahomet upon all the nations of the earth Within a century they had, as a first step to this universal subjugation, conquered every land that intervened between the banks of the Oxus and the farthest shores of Northern Africa and of Spain , and had enrolled the great majority of their peoples under the standard of the Coran This vast empire differed widely indeed from the Arabia of Mahomet's time; and that which well sufficed for the patriarchal sunplicity and limited social system of the early Arabs, became utterly inadequate for the hourly multiplying wants of their descendants Crowded cities, like Fosta Rufa, and Damascus, required an elaborate compilation of laws for the guidance of their courts of justice new pelitical relations demanded s system of international equity the speculations of a people before whom literature was preparing to throw open her atena, and the controversies of eager factions upon nice points of Mahometan faith, were impatient of the narrow limits which confined them -all called loudly for the enlargement of the scanty and naked dogmas of the Coran, and for the development of its defective code of othics

"And yet at was the cardinal principle of early Islam, that the standard of Law, of Thoology, and of Politice, was the Coran and the Coran alone By it Mahomet himself ruled, to it in his teaching he always referred, from it he professed to derive his opinions, and upon it to ground his decisions. If he, the Messenger of the Lord, and the Founder of the faith, was thus bound by the Colan, much more were the Caliphs, his uninspired substitutes New and unforeseen circumstances were continually arising, for which the Coran contained no provision. It no longer sufficed for its original object. How then were its deficiencies to be supplied /

"The difficulty was resolved by adopting the Custow or 'Sunnar' of Mahomet, that is, his sayings and his practice, as a supplement to the Coran The recitals regarding the life of the Prophet now acquired an unlookedfor value He had never held himself to be infallible, except when directly inspired of God, but this new doctrine assumed that a heavenly and unerring guidence pervaded every word and action of his prophetic life Tradition was thus invested with the force of law, and with some of the authority of inspiration. It was in great measure owing to the ruse of this theory, that, during the first century of Islam, the cumbrous recitals of tradition so far outstripped the dimensions of reality The prerogative now claimed for Tradition sumulated the growth of fabri-cated evidence, and led to the preservation of every kind of story, spurious or real, touching the Prophot Before the close of the century it had imparted an almost incredible impulse to the search for traditions, and had in fact given birth to the new profession of Collectors Men devoted their lives to the business They travelled from city to city. and from tribe to tribe, over the whole Mahometan world, sought out by personal inquiry every vestige of Mahomet's biography yet lingering among the Companions, the Successors, and their descendants, and committed to writing the tales and reminiscences with which they used to edily their wondering and admiring auditors.

"The work, however, too closely affected the public interests, and the political aspect of the empire, to be left enturely to private and individual zeal. About a hundred years after Mahomet, the Caliph Omar II issued oiroular orders for the formal collection of all extant traditions [He committed to Abu Bacr ibn Muhammed the task of compling all the traditions he could meet with. This traditionist died a.m. 120, aged 84. Sprenger a Médicamed, p. 67.] The task thus begun continued to be rigorously prosecuted, but we possess no authentic remains of any complements of an earlier date than the middle or end of the second century. Then, indeed, ample materials had been amassed, and they have been handed down to us both in the shape of Biographies and of general Collections, which bear upon every imaginable point of Mahomet's character, and detail the minutest incidents of his life.

"It thus appears that the traditions we new possess remained generally in an unreoorded form for at least the greater part of a century It is not indeed denied that some of Mahomet's sayings may possibly have been noted down in writing during his life-time, and from that source copied and propagated afterwards. We say possibly, for the evidence in favour of any such record is meagre, suspicious, and contradictory The few and uncertain statements of this nature may have owed their origin to the authority which a habit of the kind would impart to the name of a Companion, supposed to have practised it. It is hardly possible that, if the cus-tom had prevailed of writing down Mahomet's sayings during his life, we should not have had frequent intimation of the fact, with notices of the writers, and special references to the nature, contents, and peculiar autho-rity of their records But no such references or quotations are anywhere to be found. It cannot be objected that the Arabs trusted so implicitly to their memory that they regarded oral to be as authoritative as recorded narratives, and therefore would take no note of the latter, for we see that Omar was afraid lest even the Coran, believed by him to be divine and itself the subject of heavenly care. should become defective if left to the memory of man. Just as little weight, on the other hand, should be allowed to the tradition that Mahemet prohibited his followers from noting down his words, though it is is not easy to see how that tradition could have gained currency at all, had it been the regular and constant practice of any persons to record his sayinge The truth appears to be that there was in reality no such practice, and that the story of the prohibition, though spu rious, embodies the after-thought of serious Mahemetans as to what Mahemet would have said, had he foreseen the loose and fabricated stories that sprang up, and the real danger his people would fall into of allowing The evils Tracktion to supersede the Coran. of Tradition were, in truth, as little thought of as its value was perceived, till many years after Mahomet's death

"But even were we to admit all that has been advanced, it would prove no more than that some of the Componions used to keep morands of the Prophet's sayings. Now, unless it be possible to connect such memorands with extent Tradition, the concession would be useless. But it is not, as far as I know demonstrable of any single tradition or class of traditions now in existence, that they were copied from such memoranda, or have been derived in any way from them. To prove, therefore, that some traditions were at first recorded will not help us to a knowledge of whether any of these still exist, or to a discrimination of them from others resting on a purely oral basis. The very most that could be urged from the premises is, that our present collections may contain some traditions founded upon a recorded original, and handed down in writing, but we are unable to single out any individual tradition and make such affirmation regarding it. The entire mass of extant tradition rests in this respect on the same uncertain ground, and the uncertainty of any one portion (apart from internal evidence of probability) attaches equally to the whole We cannot with confidence, or even with the least show of likelihood, affirm of any tradition that it was recorded till nearly the end of the first century of the Hegira.

"We see, then, how entirely tradition, as now possessed by us, lests its authority on the memory of those who handed it down, and how dependent therefore it must have been upon their convictions and their prejudices, For, in addition to the common frailty of human recollection which renders tradistional evidence notoriously infirm, and to the errors or exaggerations which always distort a narrative transmitted orally through many intesses, there exist throughout Mahometan Tradition abundant indications of actual fabrication, and there may everywhere be traced the indirect but not less powerful and dangerous influence of a silently working bias, which insensibly gave its colour and its shape to all the stories of their Prophet treasured up in the memories of the believers

"That the Collectors of Tradition rendered an important service to I-lam and even to history, cannot be doubted. The vast flood of tradition, poured forth from every quarter of the Moslem empire, and daily gathering volume from innumerable tributaries, was composed of the most heterogeneous elements, without the labours of the tradi-tionists it must soon have formed a chaotic see, in which truth and error, fact and fable, would have mingled together in undistinguishable confusion It is a legitimate inference from the foregoing sketch, that Tradition, in the second century, embraced a large element of truth That even respectably dorived traditions often contained much that was exaggerated and fabulous, is an equally fair conclusion. It is proved by the tests mony of the Collectors themselves, that thousands and tene of thousands were current in their times, which possessed not even a shadow of authority The mass may be likened to the image in Nebuchadnessar's dream, formed by the unputural union of gold, of silver, of the baser metals, and of clay, and here the more valuable parts were fast commingling hopelessly with the bad' (Muir's Lefe of Mahomet, vol. 1, Intro p XXVIII )

TRANSMIGRATION OF SOULS [TANASUKH.]

The TREATY Arabic 'Ahd (342) observance of treaties is enjoined in the Qur'an (Sürah viii. 58, ix 4), but if peacs be made with aliens for a specified term (e.g. ten years), and afterwards the Muslim leader shall perceive that it is most advantageour for the Muslim interest to break it, he may in that case lawfully renew the war, after giving the enemy due notice (Hidayah, vol ii p 151, Arabic edition, vol ii p 423) The negotiations between John the Christian prince of Ailah, are an interesting incident in the life of Muhammad, as indicating the spirit of Islam, in its early history, towards Christianity In the first place, Muhammad addressed to John the following letter

"To John (Yahya) the son or Rubah, and the chiefs of the tribe of Arlah Peace be unto you! Praise be to God, besides whom there is no God. I will not fight against you until I receive an answer to this letter Beheve, or else pay tribute (nzyah) dient unto God and to His Apostle Re obethe embassy of God's Apostle, and honour them, and clothe them with excellent vest ments, and not with inferior raiment Specially henous Haris ibn Zaid, for as long as my messengers are pleased, so am I likewise Ye know the tribute If ye desire security by sea and by land, obey God and His Apostle, and you will be detended from every attack; whether by Arab or by foreigner But if you oppose God and His Apostle, I will not accept a single thing from you until I bave fought against you, and have slain your men, and have taken captive your women and children For in truth, I am God's Apoetle Believe in God and in His Apostle, as you do in the Messish the son of Mary: for truly he is the Word of God, and I believe in him as an apostle of God Submit, then, before trouble reaches you. I commend this embassy to you. Give to Harmalah three measures of barley, fer Harmalah hath indeed interceded for you. As for me, if it were not rot the Lord and for this intercession, I would not have sent any embassy to you, until you had been brought face to face with my army But now submit to my embassy, and God will be your protector, as well as Muhammad and all his followers This embassy doth consist of Shurahbil, and Ubary, and Harmalah, and Hāris ibn Zaid Unto you is the protection of God and of his Apostle If you submit, then pasce be unto you, and convey the people of Maquah back to their land."

Upon receipt of this message, John hastened to Muhammad's camp, where he was received with kindness, and having made submission and having agreed to pay tribute of 300 dinars a year, the following treaty was ratified -

"In the name of God the Merciful, the Gracious. A treaty of Peace from God, and from Muhammad the Apostle of God, granted unto Yahya ibn Rübah and unto the tribe of Ailah For them who stay at home and for those who travel abroad, there is the security of God and the security of Muhammad the Apostle of God, and for all who are with them, whether they belong to Syria, or to al Yaman, or to the sea-coast Whose breaketh this treaty, his wealth shall not save him, it shall be the fair prize of whosever shall capture him. It shall from going to the hinder the men of Allah from going to the springs which they have hitherto used, nor from any journey they may desire to make, whether by land or by sea. This is the writing of Juham and Shurabbil by the command of the Apostlo of God " [TOLERATION]

TRIBUTE [JIHAD, JIZYAB, TAXA-TION, TREATY ]

TRINITY Arabic Taslis (تثليث), " Holy Trinity," as Sālūsu 'l-Aqdas (الثالوف) The references to the doctrine of (القدسر the Holy Trunty in the Qur'an occur ir two Surahs, both of them composed by Muhammad towards the close of his career at al-Madinah

Surah iv 169 "Believe, therefore, in God and Hie apostles, and say not 'Three.'"

Sürah v 77 'They misbelieve who say,
'Verily God is the third of three'
The Messiah, the Son of Mary, is only a prophet, and his mother was a confessor, they both ate food "

Surah v 116 "And when God shall say, O Jesus son of Mary, hast thou said unto mankind Take me and my mother as two Gods besides God?

Al-Banzawi, in his remarks on Surah iv 169, says, the Christians made the Trimty consist of Allah, al-March, and Maryam; and Jalalu 'd-din takes the same view Baizāwi, however, refers to a view taken of the Tunity, by some Christians in his day who explained it to be, Ab, Father, or the Essence of God, Ibn, Son, or the Knowledge of God, and Ruhu 'l-Quds, the Lafe of God

In a work quoted in the Kashfu'z-Zunan, entitled al-Insanu '!-Kamul (written by the Shakkh 'Abdu 'l-Karim ibn Ibrahim al Jili, hved A.H 767-811) it is said that when the Christians found that there was at the commencement of the Infil the superscription باسم الأب و الابن , : « In the name of tho Father and Son,' they took the words in their natural meaning, and [thinking it ought to be Ab, father, Umm, mother, and Ibn, son] un-Ab, lather, Umm, mother, and Ion, son understood by Ab, the Spirit, by Umm, Mary, and by Ibn, Jesus, and on this secount they said, Sāligu Sulāgatin, ie (God is) the third of three.' (Sūrah v 77) But they did not understand that by Ab is meant God Most High, by Umm, the Māliyatu 'L-Kayā'ig, or 'Essence of Truth" (Quidattas veritatum), and by the the Book of (lod mires) is called the by Ion, the Book of God, which is called the Wuyudu "I-Mutlag or Absolute Existence," being an emanation of the Essence of Truth, at it is implied in the words of the Qur'an

the Nazarenos (Nasara) say there are three squaim, or principles, namely, we wild (entity), bayar (life), and 'tim (knowledge), and also Ab (Fatuer), Ibn (Son), and Ruhu 'l-Quds (Holy Spirit). [RUML, JESUS, SPIRIT]

It is evident neither Muhammad nor his followers (either immediate or remote), and any true conception of the Oatholic doctrine of the Trimty but the elimination of the Holy Spirit from the Trinity is not strange, when we remember that Muhammad was under the impression that the angel Gabriel was the Holy Ghost

As the doctrine of the Holy Trinity is one of several stumbling blocks to the Muslim's reception of Christianity, we cannot refrain from quoting Charles Kingelsys words addressed to Thomas Cooper on the subject

(vol i p 311)

"They will say 'Three in one' is contrary to sense and experience Answer, That is your ignorance Every comparative anatomist will tell you the exact contrary, that among the most common, though the most puzzling phenomena, is multiplicity in unity dryided life in the same individual of every extraordinary variety of case That distinction of persons with unity of individuality (what the old schoolmen properly called substance) is to be met the in some thousand species of animals, eg all the compound polypes, and that the soundest physiologists, like Huxley, are compelled to talk of these animals in metaphysic terms, just as para doxical as, and almost identical with those of the theologian. Ask them then, whother granting one primordial Being who has concerved and made all other beings it is about to suppose in Him, some law of multiplicity in unity, analogous to that on which He has constructed so many millions of His creatures.

"But my heart demands the Trinity, as much as my reason. I want to be sure that God oares for us, that God is our Father, that God has interfered, stooped, sacrificed Himself for us I do not merely want to love Christ-a Christ, some creation or emanation of God's—whose will and character, for aught I know, may be different from God's I want to love and honour the absolute, abysma! God Himself, and none other will satisfy me and in the docume of Christ being co-equal and co-eternal, sent by, sacrifloed by, His Father, that He might do His Father's will, I find it and no puzzling texts, like those you quote, shall rob me of that rest for my heart, that Christ is the exact counterpart of Him in whom we live, and move and have our being '

Arubic lugtah (444) TROVES, signifies property which a person finds on the ground, and takes away for the purpose of preserving it in the manner of a trust trove under ten dirhams must be advertised

Strah rili 91 'And with him is the Ummi for some days, or as long as he may deem 'l-Kriāl, or the Mother of the Book.'" expedient but if it exceed ten dirhams in In the Chiyagu 'l-Lughat, in loco, it is said value, he must advertise it for a year (Hamilton's Hidayal, vol. ii p 266)

> Arabic pur (190) TRUMPET According to the Qur'an, Sincah Exxis. 68, the trumpet at the Day of Resurrection shall be blown twice. "The trumpet shall be blown (first), and those who are in the heavens and in the earth shall swoon (or die), save whom God pleases Then it shall be blown again, and, lo! they shall rise again and look on."

> Al-Bazzawi says there will only be these two blazts, but Traditionists assert there will be three The blast of consternation, the blast of examination, and the blast of resurrection, for an account of which, see the article on BESURRECTION

> TUBBA' (تنج) A tribe of Himyarate Arabs, whose kings were called Tubbet. or "Successors," and who are mentioned in the Qur'an, Surah xliv 85 "Are they better than the people of Tubba' and those before them? Verily, they were sinners, and we destroyed them '

> TUHR ( ) The period of partication | The period of purity in a woman

> rulathah (Lall). A chief of the Banu Asad, a warrier of note and in-fluence in Najd, who claimed to have a PULALHAH (Lall). divine commission in the days of Muhammad, but who was afterwards subdued by Khālid under the Khalifate of Abu Bakr, and embraced Islam (Muur's Lefe of Mahomet, vol 1v p 246)

> TÜR (طرر) Chaldee (1) A cant At Tur the mountain mentioned in Chaldee 770 in the Qur'an, Sûrah ii 60 " When we took a covenant (migaq) with you, and held the a covenant (migay) with you, and neto the mountain (ready to fall) over you." Thus is generally understood to mean Türe Sana", or Mount Sina, but al-Baizāwī says it was Jabal Zubail In Persian, the mountain is called Kok 1-Tür, or the Mount of Tür In Arabia, the name is given to the Mount Sinai of Scripture

(2) The title of the Lirnd Surah of the TURBAN. Arabic 'imamah (doles) Persian dastār (دعر); Hindustānī payrī (دعر) The turban, which consists of a stiff round cap, occasionally rising to a considerable height, and a long piece of muslim, often as much as twenty-four yaids in length, wound round it, is amongst all Muhammadan nations a sign of authority and honour, and it is held to be disrespectful to stand in the presence of a person of respectability, or to worship God, with the head uncovered Shaikhe and persons of religious pretensions wear green turbans The Coptio Christians in Egypt wear a blue turban, having been compelled to do so by an edict published in AD 1301 Ir some parts of Islam, it is usual to set apart a Maulawi, or to appoint a chief or ruler, by placing a turban on his head

The mitre, bonnet, hood, and diadem of the Old Testament are but varieties of the head dress known in the East as the turban. Canon Cook, in the Speaker's Commentary, on Exodus Exvil. 4, 87, says the mutenepheth, or "mutre" of the Hebrew Bible, "according to the derivation of the word, and from the statement in verse 89, was a twisted band of linen coiled into a cap, to which the name metre in its original sonso closely answers, but which in modern mage would rather be called a turban."

The term used in the Hebrow Bible for putting on the transph or the peer, "bunnet," in Ex. xxix. 9, Lev vii 13 is min had khavash, "to bind round," and would therefore indicate that even in the earliest periods of Jewish bistory the head-dress was similar in character to that now seen amongst the different Mushim tribes of the world Josephus' account of the high priest's mitre is peculiar, he says (Antiquities, book iii. ch vii. p 3) "Its make is such that it seems to be a crown, being made of thick swathes, but the contexture is of linen, and it is doubled many times, and sown together; besides which. a piece of fine linen covers the whole cap from the upper part, and reaches down to the forehead and the seams of the swather, which would otherwise appear indecently, this adheres closely upon the solid part of the head, and is thereto so firmly fixed that it may not fall off during the sacred service about the saorlfices "

The varieties of turban worn in the East are very great, and their peculiarities are best illustrated by the accompanying drawing, giving seventeen different styles of tying up the turban In books written upon the subject in Eastern languages, it is said that their are not fewer than a thousand methods of binding the turban It is in the peculiar method of tying on, and of arranging this head-dress, that not only tribal and religious distinctions are seen, but oven peculiarities of disposition. The humility or pride, the virtue or vice, as well as the social standing of the individual, is supposed to be indicated in his method of hinding the turban upon his head. And travellers in the East can at once distingmish the different races by their turbane.

[DRESS ]

(A F Hole) MUSLIM TURBANS

TURK Arabic tark or turk (4)3), pt. atrak (1) A term applied by European writers to express Muhammadans of all natronalities (See Book of Common Prayer

Collect for Good Freday)
(2) An inhabitant of Turkomania, Turkistan or Transoxania, so named from Tur, eldest son of Faridun, to whom his father gave it for an inheritance Also of those numerous races of Tartars who claim to be descended from Turk, a son of Japhet Turks chen, a Chinese Tartar

(8) A native of European or Actalic orkey Helaku, the Turk, a grandson of Turkey Jengiz Khān, took Baghdad AD 1258, and about forty years afterwards 'Uşman (Oth man) founded the 'Uşmanı or Turk dynasty at Constantinople, a D 1299 Hence Muhammadans were known to the European Chris tians as Turks.

The word Turk is also frequently used by Sikh writers to express Muhammadans in general. The terms Turk and Musulman are employed interchangeably [KHALIFAH]

(طوي) TUWĀ A sacred valley

mentioned in the Qur'an -Surah xx 12 "O Moses! verily I am thy Lord so take off thy sandals, thou art in the sacred valley of Tuwa, and I have chosen theo

Surah laxix 16 "Has the story of Moses reached you? when his Lord addressed him in the holy valley of Tuwa."

U.

'UBADAH IBN AS-ŞAMIT ( &) Le (بن الماسع One of the Ansara of al-Madinah, who was afterwards employed by Abu Bakr to collect the scattered sen tences of the Qur'an

(عبودية) SIAVERY (عبودية)

AL-UFUQU 'L-A'LA (الأحقى الأعلى)

Let "The Loftsest Tract" (1) The place in which it is said Gabriel was when he taught Muhammad, see Sūrah lui 7 '()re mighty in power (Shadidu 'l-Quwā) taught him, endowed with sound understanding, and ap-

(2) According to the Suis, it is the highest sparitual state a man can attain in the mystic

(احنوخ) UHNUKE The Enoch of the Old Testament, supposed to be the Idris of the Quran A full account of this per sonage will be found in the article on IURIS

UHUD (sel) Ohod A hill about three miles distant from al-Madinah and de soribed by Burokhardt as a rugged and almost insulated offshoot of the great mountain range Celebrated for the battle fought by Muhammad and the victory gained over the Muslims by the Quraish, A.H 3 (Muir's Life of Mahomet, new ed p 266 ragg) [MUBAHNAD]

'UJ (e.e.) The son of 'Uq grant who is said to have been born in the days of Adam, and lived through the Deluge as the water only came up to his waist, and to have died in the days of Moses, the great lawgiver having smitten him on the foot with his rod He lived 8,500 years (Chivern'l Lughet, in loco) The Og of the Bible, concerning whom as Suyūti wrote a long book taken chiefly from Rabbinic traditions (Ewstd, Gesch 1 806, An apperyphal book of Og was condemned by Pope Gelasius (Dec. vi. 18:)

UKAIDAR (اکیدر) The Christian chief of Dumah who was taken prisoner by Khilid, A.H 9 (Muir's Lafe of Manomet, now

ed p 458)
In the Traditions at is said "Khalid took Ukaidar prisoner because the Prophet forbade killing him And the Prophet did not kill him, but made peace with him, when he paid the poll-tax " (Mishkat, book xvii ch iz.) Sir W Muir says he became a Muslim, but revolted after the death of Muhammad.

'UKAZ (Like). An annual fair of twenty-one days, which was held between at

Tāli and Nakhlah, and which was opened o the first day of the month of Zu 'l-Qa'dal at the commencement of the three excre months It was abolished by Muhammad

Mr Stanley Lane Poole says (Selection from the Kur-an) --

"There was one place where, above a others, the Kaseedehs (Qaşīdahs) of the an cient Arabs were recited this was Okad. ('Ukar) the Olympia of Arabia, where ther was held a great annual Fair, to which no merely the merchants of Mekka and th south, but the poet-heroes of all the land re sorted. The Fair of Okadh was hold durin the sacred months -- a sort of 'God a Truce when blood could not be shed without a vic lation of the ancient oustoms and faiths o the Bedawees Thither went the poets of rival clans, who had as often locked spear as hurled rhythmical curses. There was little fear of a bloody ending to the poetse contest for those heroes who might meet there wit enemies or blood-avengers are said to hav worn masks or veils, and their poems wer recited by a public crater at their dictation That these precautions and the eacredness c the time could not always prevent the ill feeling evoked by the pointed personahues c rival singers leading to a fray and bloodshe se proved by recorded metanocs, but suc results were uncommon, and as a rule th onstoms of the time and place were respected in spile of occasional broils on the spot, an the lasting fouds thich these poetro contest mus, have excited, the Fair of Okadh was grand institution. It served as a focus fe the literature of all Arabia everyone wik any pretensions to poetic power came, and , he could not hunself gain the appliance of in assembled people, at least he could form en of the critical audience on whose verdit rested the fame or the shame of every per The Fan of 'Okidh was a literary congress without formal judges, but with unbounde influence. It was here that the polishe heroes of the desert determined points c grammar and prosody here the seven Golde Songs were recited, although (slas for th charming legend') they were not afterward suspended on the Kaabeh, and here ' magical language, the language of the Hijaz was built out of the dialects of Arabia an was made ready to the skilful hand of Mu hammad, that he might conquer the worl with his Kur-an "The Fair of 'Okadh was not merely centre of emiliation for Arab poets it wa also an annual review of Bedawee virtues It was there that the Arab nation once-a-yea inspected steels, so to sav, and brought forth and criticised its ideals of the noble and th beautiful in life and in poetry For it was a peetry that the Arab - and for that matte each man all the world over—expressed his highest thoughts, and it was at 'Okadh that these thoughts were measured by the standard of this Bedawee ideal. The Fair not colly maintained the highest standard of postry that the Arabic language has ever reached, it also upheld the noblest idea of life and duty that the Arab nation has yet set forth and obeyed. 'Okadh was the press, the stage, the pulpit, the Parliament, and the Académie Française of the Arab people, and when, in his fear of the infidel poets (whom Imra-el-Kéys was to usher to hell), Mohammad abolished the Fair, he destroyed the Arab nation, even whilst he created his own sew nation of Muslims, and the Muslims cannot sit in the places of the old pagan Arabs."

'UKUF (عکوف). Let "Remaining behind." A term used to express a life of prayer of one who remains constantly in the mosque.

"ULAMA" (close), pl of 'alım
"One who knows, leatned, a scholar" In this plural form the word is used as the title of those bodies of learned doctors in Muhammadan divinity and law, who, headed by their Shaikhu 7-Islam, form the theocratic element of the government in Muslim countries, and who by their fatwas or decisions in questions touching private and public matters of importance, regulate the life of the Muhammadan community Foremost in influence and authority are naturally reckoned the 'Ulama' of Constantinople, the seat of the Khalifah, and of Makkah, the Holy City of Islam Like the Ashab or Companions of the Prophet under his immediate successors, they cor-respond in a certain measure to what we would call the representative system of our modern constitutions, in partially limiting and checking the autocratism of an other-wise absolute Oriental ruler

ULUHIYAH (الوهية) "Divinity, godheed"

"The Possessors of Constancy" A title given to sertain prophets in the Quran, said by the commentators to have been Noah, Abraham, David, Jacob, Joseph, Job, Moses, Jesus, and Muhammad. (Vide Ghyāsu'l-Luphāt) See Sürah xivi 84 "Then be thou constant, as the Apostles endowed with a purpose were constant, and hasten not on."

UMANA' (Alea), pl. of amen "Faithful Ones" A title given by the Sufis to those pious persons who do not make their religions experiences known. They are known also as the Malamatiyah, or those who are willing to undergo misrepresention rather than boast of their piety

'UMAR ( ) AL BN AL-KHATTAB (Omar) the second Khalifah, who succeeded Abū Bakr, A.H 13 (AD 684), and was assessmated by Firoz, a Persan slave, AH 23

(A D 644), after a prosperous reign of ten years. His conversion to Islam took place in the sixth year of Muhammad's mission, and the Prophet took 'Umar's daughter Hafsah as his third wife.

'Umar 10 emment amongst the early Rhalifahs for having chiefly contributed to the spread of Ielam. Under him the great generals, Abu 'Ubaldah, Khalid ibn al-Walid, Yazid, drove the Greeks out of Syria and Phœnicia, Sa'd ibn Abi Waqqas Qaqa'ah, Nu'man, completed the conquest of the two Trags and the overthrow of the Persian Empire, 'Amr ibn al-'As (commonly called Amru) subdued Egypt and part of the Libyan coast, after having, as commander in Palestine, prepared by his victories and a severe siego, the surrender of Jerusalem [JRRUSALEM] into the Khalifah's own hands Umer's name is, moreover, intimately connected with the history of Islâm, by the initistory and important share which he took in the first collection of the Qur'an, under Abū Bakr, by the official introduction of the Muhammadan era of the Hijrah, and by the first organisation of the diwan, or civil list of the Muhammadans The two former subjects have been treated of in this Dictionary in their proper places, the third metatution, which laid the foundation to the marvellous successes of the Muslim arms under this and the succeeding Governments, is ably explained in the following extract from Sir W Muir's Annals of the Early Camphate

"The Arabian nation was the champion of Islam, and to fight its battles every Arab was jealously reserved. He must be the soldier, and nothing else. He might not settle down in any conquered province as oultivator of the soil, and for merchandise or other labour, a busy warlike life offered but little lessure Neither was there any need The Arabs lived on the fat of the conquered land, and captive natives served them. Of the booty taken in war, four parts were dis-tributed to the army in the field, the fifth was reserved for the State, and even that, after discharging public obligations, was shared among the Arabian people. In the reign of Abu Bakr, this was a simple matter But in the Caliphats of Omar, the spoil of Syria and of Porsia began in ever-increasing volume to pour into the treasury of Medina, where it was distributed almost as soon as received What was easy in small beginnings, by equal sharing or discretionary preference, became now a heavy task. And there began, also, to arise now sources of revenue in the land assessment, and the poll-tax of subject countries, which, after defraying civil and military charges, had to be accounted for to the Central Government, the curplus being, like the royal fifth, the patrimony of the Arab nation.

"At length, in the second or third year of his Caliphate, Omar determined that the distribution should be regulated on a fixed and systematic scale. The income of the commonwealth was to be divided, as heretofere, amongst the Faithful as their heritage, but apon a rule of precedence befitting the miliary and theocratic groundwork of Islam. For this end three points only were considered priority of conversion, affinity to the Prophet, and military service. The widows of Mahomet, Mothers of the Faithful, took the precedence with an annual allowance of 10,000 pieces each, and all his kinsmen were with a corresponding liberality provided for 'The famous Three Hundred of Bedr had 5,000 each, presence at Hodeibia (Hudaibīyah) and the Pledge of the Tree, gave a claim to 4,000, such as took part in quelling the Rebellion (immediately after Muhamatal) mad's death), had 3,000, and those engaged in the great battles of Syria and Irac, as well as sons of the men of Bedr, 2,000, those taking the field after the actions of Olderiya and the Yermuk, 1,000 Warriors of distinction received an extra grant of 500 And so they graduated downwards to 200 pieces for the latest leviss. Nor were the households Women had, as a rule, one tent forgetten. of a man's share Wives, widows, and children had each their proper supend, and in the register, every mant, as soon as born, had the title to be entered, with a minimum allowance of ten places, rising with advancing age to its proper place. Even Arab slaves (so long as any of that race remained) had, strange to say, their portion

"The Arabian aristocracy thus created was recognised by the whole Moslem world. The rank and stipend now assigned descended in the direct line of birth. Even rewards given for special gallantry in the field were heritable. By making thus the revenues of Islam the heritage of the nation militant, their martial genus was maintained, and their employment perpetuated as the standing army of the Caliphate.

"To carry out this vast design, a register and to be drawn and kept up of every man, woman and child, entitled to a stipend from the State-in other words, of the whole Arab ace employed in the interests of Islam This was easy enough for the higher grades, but a herculean task for the hundreds and thousands of ordinary fighting men and their families who kept streaming forth from the Peninsula, and who, by the extravagant indulgence of polygamy, were multiplying rapidly But the task was sumplified by the strictly tribal composition and disposition of the ferces Men of a tribe, or branch of a tribe, fought together and the several corps and brigades being thus territorially arranged in clans, the Register assumed the same form. Every soul was entered under the stock and tribe and class whose lineage it claimed And to this exhaustive classification we owe in great measure the elaborate genealogies and tribal traditions of Arabia before Islam Register itself, as well as the office for its maintenance and for pensionary account was called the Dewan (Discon), or Department of the Exchequer" (Sir W. Muir, Annals of the Early Caliphate, London, 1888, p. 228)

It was fortunate for Islam, that the reign of Abu Bakr, short in duration, but pregnant with decisive issues, should precede that of 'Umar During the critical period, immediately after Muhammad's death, when three false prophets and a prophetess gathered increasing numbers round their rebellious standards, when in the north, east, and south of the Pennania, tribe after tribe, apostatused from the newly-adopted creed, and when al-Madinah itself was repeatedly threatened by hostile invasions of the neighbouring clans it needed all the spirit of compromise and conciliation which blended in Abū Bakr's character with penetrating shrewdness and dauntless courage, to steer the bark of the Muslim commonwealth through the dangers which were surrounding it on every side Umar's prepressible impetuosity would, at that time, probably have caused more harm than good, while, on the other hand, the unprecedented success which clowned Abū Bakr's wise and temporising politics, taught him to temper his own impulses of hold enterprise with prudence and oautiousness, when, in his turn, the reponsibilities of office rested on his shoulders

The original violent bent of Umar's nature is forcibly illustrated by the history of his conversion as it is told in various traditions. In his youth and early manhood, a zealous and devoted adherent of the religion of his forefathers, he hated and persecuted Muhammad as a dangerous innovator, who had come to lead his people astray, and to sow discord between them Infuriated at some fresh success of the pretended Prophst, he sallied for th one day to kill him, when he met his kinsman, Nu'aim ibn 'Abdi 'llah, who, seeing him armed and forcely excited, asked him "Whither goest thou, and what is thy intent?" "I seek Muhammad," was 'Umar's reply, "and I will slay him, he has vilified our gods and dishonoured our ancestors" "Passion blinds thee," retorted Nu'aim, "knowest thou not that, if thou killest Muhammad, thou wilt draw the vengeance of the Hashmites and the Banu Muttalib upon thy head? Better far it would be for thee, to heed the welfare of thy own family, and to bring back to the right path those members of it who have forsworn their ancestral religion." "And who are they," asked 'Umar. "Thy brother-in-law, Said ibn Zaid, and Fatimah, thy very own meter," answered Nu'sım

Forthwith the incensed man nurried on to the house of the culprits. Here Khabbab ibn al-Aratt, a devoted disciple of Muhammad, the same who had made them acquamted with his teaching and won them over to Islam unknown to 'Umar, was reading with them at that moment a new fragment of the Qurfan. When he heard 'Umar coming, he concealed himself, and Fâțimah tried to hide the manuscript in the bosom of her dress. On entering, 'Umar asked. "What have you been reading just now? I heard your voices!" "Nothing," she replied, "thou art mistaken" "You have been reading something, and I am told that you belong to the sect of Muhammad" With these words he threw hunself upon me brother-in-law, and struck him. Fatimah rushed in between them. Both husband and wife boldly con-fessed "Yes, we are Muslims, we believe that there is no god but God, and that Muhammad is his sent one, kill ne, if thou wilt "

No sconer had 'Umar seen the blood flowing from a wound which ne had inflicted on his sister, than shame for his own unmanly act, coupled with admiration of their courageous conduct, brought about a powerful revulsion of his feelings. He asked to be shown the manuscript, and when, after his solemn promise not to destroy it, the fragment was handed over to him, he read -

"Not to sadden thee have We sent down this Qur'an to thee,

But as a warning for him who feareth, A missive from Him who hath made the earth and the lofty heavens,

The God of Mercy who sitteth on His throne '

His, whategever is in the heavens and whatsoever is in the earth, and whatso over is between them both, and what soever is beneath the humid soil

And thou needest not raise thy voice in prayer He verily knoweth the secret schisper, and the yet more hidden! God' there is no God but Him! Most excellent His titles!"

("Grah xx 1-7)

"How pobly said and how sublime!" exclaimed 'Umar, when he had read the pas sage Thereupon Khabbab came forth from his place of concealment, and summoned him to testify to the teaching of Muhammad 'Umar asked where Muhammad was, went to him, and made his profession of faith to the

Prophet himself

Henceforth 'Umar remained attached to the person of Muhammad with the most devoted friendship, and embraced the cause of Islam with all the energies of his strong nature We find 'Umar, immediately after Muhammad's death, unable at first to grasp the reality of the fact. When the news was imparted to him, he exclaimed wildly before the assembly of the latthfut. "The Prophet is not dead, he has only swooned away " And, again, when Mughirah tried to convince him that he was mistaken-" Thou heat!" he cried, " the Prophet of the Lord shall not die, until he have rooted out every hypocrite and unbe-hever. At this point Aba Bakr quoted the verses of the Qur'an, revealed after the defeat at Uhud 'Mnhammad is no more than an Apostie, verily the other apostles have gone before him What then! If he were to die or be killed, would you turn back in your heels?" And he added the memorable appeal "Let him then know, whoseever worship peth Muhammad, that Muhammad indeed is dead, but whose worshippeth God let him know that the Lord liveth and doth not die"

Then, and only then, on hearing those words, spoken by the book, as if he had never heard them before, the truth burst upon 'Umar with crushing force "By the Lord," he would tell in later days, " it was so that when I heard Abu Bakr reciting those verses, I was horror-struck, my limbs trembled, I dropped down, and I knew of a certainty that Muhammad indeed was dead

The paramount ascendency which Muhammad, during his lifetime, exercised over Umar, could not fail to seften his passionate and vehement nature, and to train him to those habits of self-command, which form one of the most essential elements in the character of a good ruler If it was an act of wise foresight on the part of Muhammad to designate, at the approach of death, the older and sedater Abu Bakr as his successor, by appointing him to conduct the public prayers during his last illness he could at the same time feel assured that 'Uniar, far from contesting the choice of his dying friend, would respect it and make it respected against any defection or rival ambition by his cordial and powerful support. But it was equally natural and wise on the part of Abū Bakr, when the time had come, to fix the choice of his own successor upon Umar It is related that, feeling his end to be near, and willing to fortify his own conviction by the sense of others, he first consulted 'Abdu r-Itahman, the son of 'Auf, who praised 'Umar 'as the fittest man, but withal inclined to be severe.' "Which," responded the dying Khalifah, " is because he saw me soft and tenderhearted, when himself the Master, he will forego much of what thou sayest. I have watched him narrowly If I were angry with one, he would intercede in his behalf, if over-lement, then he would be severe 'Usman, lement, then he would be severe ' 'Usmān, too, confirmed Abū Bakr's choice "What is hidden of 'Umar," he said, 'is better than that which doth appear There is not his equal amongst us all "

And so it was at in bodily stature 'Umar towered high above his fellow-men, so he excelled in every quality required in an imposing commander of the Faithful (Amir at-Mu'minin), this being the title which he adopted in preference to the more cumber-some of "buocessor of the Apostle of God" (Khalifatu 'r-Rasulı 'llah) It lies outside the scope of the present work to give a complete biography of Umar, and we must refer the reader who should wish to make himself acquainted with it, to the above-quoted attractive volume of Sir W Muir, Annals of the Early Caliphate Our less ambitious object here has merely been to sketch as it were, in a few salient traits culled from it, the picture of a man, who, as a founder of Islam, was second only to Muhammad himself. Gifted with a high and penetrating intellect, and possessed of a strong sense of justice, he was impartial, skilful, and fortunate in the choice of his military and civil agents, and had learnt to temper severity with elemency and wise forbearance it was he who, in his earlier days, after the battle of Badr, had advised that the priseners should all be put to death, his later resentment against Khalid, with whose name the cruel fate of Malik ibn Nuwairah and the gory tale of the "River of Blood" are linked in history, on the contrary, took rise in Khālid's unscrupulous and savage treatment of a fallen foe And the fanatic miclerance of some of the Muslim captains is favourably contracted with 'Umar's treatment of the Christianised Arab tribe of the Bann Tagh-They had tendered their submission to Walld ibn 'Uqbah, who, solicitous for the adhesion to Islam of this great and famous race, pressed them with some rigonr to abjure their ancient faith 'Umar was much displeased at this...' Leave them," he wrote, "in the profession of the Gospel It is only within the bounds of the peninsula, where are the Holy Places, that no pulviherst tribe is permitted to remain "Walid was removed from his command; and t was enjoined on his successor to stipulate only that the usual tribute should be paid, that no member of the tribe should be hindered from embracing Islam, and that the children should not be educated in the Christian faith The last condition can only have been meant as a nominal indication of the supremacy of Islam, for if it had been enforced we should not read of the Bann Tagblib onthining in the profession of Christianity under the next two dy nasties and even later The tribe, deeming in its pride the payment of tribute (juzyah) an indignity, sent a deputation to the Khalifah, declaring their willingness to pay the tax if only it were levied under the same name as that taken from the Muslims 'Umar evinced his liberality by allowing the conces sion and so the Band Laghib enjoyed the singular privilege of bring asse-sed at Chris tians at a "double titlie" (ushr), instead of paying jazyah the obnoxious badge of subjugation (Sir W Muir, Annals p 218)

As the original asperity of 'Umar's character had been mellowed in the school of Life and in close communion with Muhammad and Abu Bakr, so the same influences, together with the responsibilities of his posiimpetuosity with prudence and cautiousness While his captains in Syria and the 'Iraq were continually urging him to push on his conquests to the north and east, he would not allow any advance to be ventured upon, before the Mushm rale in the occupied provinces was well established and firmly courshdated In like manner he evinced a singular dread of naval enterprise, ever after an expedition sent to Abyssima across the Red Sea in the seventh year of his reign had met with a signal disaster, and he was countenanced in this aversion for the treacherous element by a not less daring general than 'Amr, son of al-'As, who, consulted on the subject, wrote to him .

"The sea is a boundless expanse, whereou i great ships look but tiny specks, there is nought saving the heavens above and the waters beneath. Trust it little, fear it much. Man at sea is an insect floating on a splinter, if the splinter break, the insect perisheth"

Wher the wily Amr wished to raise his people in the estimation of the Egyptians, he had a feast prepared of slaughtered camels, after the Bedoum fashion, and the Egyptians looked on with wonder, while the army satisfied themselves with the rude repast. Next day he commanded a sumptions banquet to be set before them; with all the dainties of the Egyptian table, and here "gain the warriors fell to with equal cast. On the third day, there was a grand parade of all the troops in battle array, and the people flocked to see it. Then 'Ami addressed tham, saying "The first day's entertainment was to let you see the plain and simple manner of our life at home, the second, to show you that we can not the less enjoy the good things of the lands we enter, and yet retain, as ye see in the spectacle here before you, our martial vigour notwithstanding."

'Ami gained his end, for the Copts retired, saying one to the other,' See ye not that the Arabs have but to raise their heel upon us, and it is enough!" 'Umar was delighted with his heutenant's device and said of him, "Of a truth it is on wisdom and resolve, as well as on merc force, that the success of warfare doth depend "

But at the same time, 'Umar was much too thoughtful and far seoing himself not to recognise the danger for the future of Islam, which was linking in this sudden acquisition of unesaured riches. On one coession, when he was shout to distribute the fifth of some Persian spoils, he was seen to weep "What," it was said to him, 'a time of joy and thankfulness, and thou sheddest tears" "Yea," replied the simple-minded Khalifah, "it is not for this I weep, but I foresee that the wealth which the Lord hath bestowed upon us will become a spring of worldliness and eavy, and in the end a calamity to my people'

Moreover the luxury and estentation which was thus engendered in the enriched leaders, was utterly repulsive to his own frugal habits and homely nature. On his first visit to Syria, Abū Ubaidah, Yazīd, and Khāid, met him in state to welcome him. A brilliant cavalcade, robed in Syrian brocade, and mounted on steeds richly caparisoned, they sode forth as he approached. At the sight of all their lineity, Umar's spirit was stirred within him. He stooped down, and, gathering a hindful of gravel, flung it at the asto nished chiefs. "Avaunt!" he cuied, "is it thus attired that we come cut to meet me? All changed thus in the space of two short years! Verily, had it been after two hundred, ye would have deserved to be degraded."

This primitive simplicity of the Arab chieftain is another grand and highly captivating feature in 'Umar's character. We see in our mind's eye the mighty mover of armies the time when the destinies of Islam were mbling in the balance on the battle-field of lisiyah, lesuing on feet from the gates of Medinah in the early morning, if perchance might meet some messenger from the ande the city, who to 'Umar's question ress shortly, "The Lord has discomfited the sian host" Unrecognised, 'Umar followed measurger, leading the camel, and with long strides keeping pace with the h-stepping animal, to glean from him the line of the great battle When they ened al-Madinah, the people crowded round Khalifah, saluting him, and hearing the py news, wished him joy of the triumph e courier, absended, cried out, "O Comnder of the Faithful, why didst thou not me?" but his mind was instantly set at t by the Khalifah's kindly answer "It is ll, my brother " or we may fancy him perambulating winp band, the streets and markets of al Madi i, ready to punish the offenders on the t, may be his own son and his boon com sions, who had indulged in the use of wine. r on this head 'Umai did not brook pleatry When news of some arch-transgressors this score was sent from Damascus, and ulgence from the strict enforcement of law was claimed for them on the plea of ar exalted position and military ments, he the back "Gather an assembly and bring m forth. Then ask, Is wene lawful, or as orbidden? If they say forbidden, lay eightv ipes upon each of them, if they say lawthen behead them every one" aishment, if inflicted by 'Umar's own hand, s telling, for it became a proverb nar's whip is more terrible than another's

Dr. again, with the groan of repentance of well-chastised offender still ringing in sears, we may watch the same 'Umar, as rneying in Arabia in the year of famine, comes upon a poor woman, seated with hungry and weeping children round a whereon is an empty pot He hurries to next village, procures bread and meat, the pot, and cooks an ample meal, ving the little ones laughing and at play luch a man was 'Umar, the great Khalid adorn his tombstone, then his dving rds - It had gone hard with my soul, if ad not been a Muslim." [DAMASOUS, JERUem, Jihad, Muhammad

The Editor is indebted to Dr Steingass. learned author of the English-Arabic ctionary, AD 1882, and Archic-English ctionary, AD 1884 (W H Allen & Co, adon), for this review of 'Umar's influence the Muslim religion )

UMM (م), pl ummāt, ummahāt lother" Heb DN êm A word which quently occurs in combination with other rds, eg Ummu 'l-Qurā, "the mother of ages" the metropolis Makkah, Ummu 'lum, "the mether of sciences," grammar

UMMAH ( LI) Heb TON ummah.

The word occurs A people, a nation, a sect about forty times in the Qur'an
Ummatu Ibrāhīm, the people of Abraham

Ummatu 'Isa, the people of Jesus

Unmatu Muhammad, the people of Muham-

UMMI (احى) The title assumed by Muhammad, and which occurs in the Qur'an, Sürah vin. 156 "Who shall follow the Apostle, the illiterate Prophet (an-Nabiyu 'I-ummi)", and in the 158th verse of the same Sürab

Commentators are not agreed as to the derivation of this word, the following are the three most common derivatious of it -

(1) From Umm, "mother," as one just as he came from his mothers womb

(2) From Ummah, "people," 1 e a gentile, one who was ignorant, alluding to the time of Muhammad's ignorance.

(3) From Ummu 'l-quoa, 'the mother of villages," a name given to Makkah, se a native of Makkab

Muhammad appears to have wished to be thought ignorant and illiterate, in order to raise the elegance of the Qur'an into a miracle

UMMU HABIBAH (ام حبيبة One of Muhammad's wives She was the daughter of Abu bufyan, and the widow of 'Ubaidu'llah, one of the Four Inquirers," who, after emi-grating as a Muslim to Abyssima, embraced Christianity there, and died in profession of that faith

UMMU KULSUM (أم كثنوم) The youngast daughter of Muhammad by his wife Khadijah She had been married to her cousin Utaibah, son of Abu Lahab, but separated from hum and became, after the death of her sister Ruqayah, the second wife of 'Usman, the later Khalifah She died a vear or two before Muhammad, who used, after her death, to say he so dearly loved Usman, that had there been a third daughter, he would have given her also in marriage to

UMMU 'L-KITAB (ام الكتاب). Int. "The Mother of the Book"

(1) A title given in the Hadig to the first Surah of the Qur'an (2) In the Suratu Ahli Imran (iii) 5, it is used for the Qur'an itself

(3) In the Suratu'r-Raid (xiir-) 89, it seems to be applied to the preserved tablet, on which were written the decrees of God and the fate of every human being

UMMU'L-MU'MININ (أم المومنين) 'A mother of the Faithful" A title which English authors restrict either to the Prophet's wife Khadijah, or te 'Ayishah, but it is a title applied to each of the wives of Muham-mad Quran, Sürah xxxiii 6 . "His wives are their mothers" UMMU 'L-QURA (م الم العرف). Int. 'Mother of Villages" A name given to Makkah. The Metropolis.

term used in Muhammadan law for a female slave who has burne a child to her master, and who is consequently free at his death. [SLAVERY]

UMMU SALMAH (أم سلمة) One of the wives of the Prophet The widow of Abu Salmah, to whom she had borne several children Abu Salmah was killed at Uhud, and Muhammad married his widow four months afterwards

"UMRĀ (عمرى). A life grant, or interest in anything, e.g. if the proprietor of a house says to another, "This is yours as long as you live"

'UMRAH (5,46) A Lesser Pilgrimage, or a visitation to the sacred mosque at Makkah, with the ceremonies of encompassing the Ka'bah and running between al-Marwah and as-Şafâ, but omitting the sacrifices, &c It is a meritorious act, but it has not the supposed merit of the Hay or Pilgrimage It can be performed at any time except the eighth uinth and tenth days of the month Zü'l Hijiah these being the days of the Hay or Greater Filgrimage [HAJJ]

UMUMIYAH (موصية) "Maternity" A term used in Muslim law (Hidā-yah, vol in p 417)

UNBELIEVERS There are several terms used in Islam for those who are unbelievers in the mission of Muhammad, ، Kafir (کائر), One who hides the truth A term generally applied to idolaters, and not to Jews er Christians

Muchral (مشرك). One who gives companions to God Believers in the Blessed Trinity are so called. The term is also applied by the Wahhābis to any Muslim who observes ceremonies which are not clearly enjoined in the precupts of the Muslim religion, as visiting shripes, &c

Mulhid (الملحة). One who has deviated from the truth

Murtadd (مرتد), An apostate from Islam

Dahrı (دهری), An Athoret

(For further explanations, refer to the words in their places)

UNCLEAN MEATS [FOOD]
UNCLEANNESS [PURIFICATION]
UNITY OF GOD [TAURID]

UNLAWFUL. Arabic haram (مرام).

- UQAB (--ua) A black eagle A celebrated standard belonging to Muhammad (See Hayan 'l-Qulub, p 88, Merrick's edition.) [STANDARDS] 'UQBA (1998). Let. "End." A reward or punishment Hence used to express the life to come either of good or evil. [PARADISE, HELL.]

'UQBAH (Asc) IBN 'AMIR AL-JUHANI A Companion of great celebrity He was afterwards Governor of Egypt, where he died, AH 58

UQNUM (A) pl. aquantm According to Muslim lexicographers, it is. "a word which means the root or principle of a thing, and, according to the Nasara (Nasaranes), there are three Aquam, namely, while (entity or substance), hayat (life), and 'lim (knowledge), and also, Ab (Father), Ibm (Son), and Rühu 'l-Quds (Holy Spirit), and it is also the name of a book amongst the Nasaranes which treats of these three (See Chiyagu 'l-Lughat, in loco) [TRINITY]

"UQUBAH (Aple) "Punishment, chastisement" A legal term for punishment inflicted at the discretion of the magistrate "Uqubah shadidah is severe punishment extending to death [TAZIR.]

AL-'UQULU'L-'ASHARAH (Jack)

Jet "The Ten Intelligences"

Ten angels who, according to the philosophers, were created by God in the following manner First, He created one angel, who then created one heaven and one angel, this second angel then created a second heaven and a third angel, and so on until there were created mine heavens and ten angels. The tenth angel then, by the order of God, created the whole world (See Ghydin' Lughāt, in loco)

'URS (هرس) (1) Marriage festivities, as distinguished from nikāh, "the marriage ceremony' [MARRIAGE]

(2) A term also used for the ceremonies observed at the anniversary of the death of any colebiated saint or murshed

'USHR (عنبر), pl a'shār and 'ushūr A tenth or tithe given to the Muslim State or Baitv l-Māl [BAITU 'L-MAL.]

'USMAN (class) IBN 'AFFAN. The third Khalifah, who succeeded 'Umar A.H. 28 (A D 643), and was slain by Muhammad, son of Abū Bakr and other conspirators on the 18th of Zū "-Hijah, A.H 85 (June 17th, A D 656), aged eighty-two, and having reigned twelve years He is known amongst Muslims as Zū Nūrain, "The Possessor of the Two Lights," because he married two of the Prophet's daughters, Raquiyah and Ummu Kulaum. His chief ment with regard to the cause of Islam was the second and final revision of the sacred book, which he caused to be made, and of which an exhaustive account has been given in our article on the Qur'an.

Although Muhammadan historians distinguish the reigns f the first four Khalifahs as founded on faith (dins), from these of the later ones, as based on the world and its passions and vanities (dunyana), it must be admitted that worldly motives entered al ready largely into the politics of 'Usman and 'All, as contrasted with Abu Bakr and 'Umar 'Usmān, by his weakness and nepotism, 'Alī by holding aloof with culpable indifference, during the protracted death-struggle of his predecessor, by abetting his murderers in the open field, and by his vacillating spirit, where firmness of purpose was needed, gave rise to those flerce dissensions between rival religious and political parties, which led for the time being, to the establishment of the Umaiyah dynasty, and eventually caused the division of Islam into the two great sects of the Sunnie and Shi'she

USUL (احول), pl of asl Lat "Roots" The roots or fundamentals of the Muhammadan religion, as opposed to furus (Eigh) "branches," a term used for Muham madan law, civil, ceremonal and religious The usul of Islam are universally held to be four (1) The Qur'an, (2) The Hadis, (3) Ima, and (4) Wiyas, terms which will be found explained under their respective titles

'I'mu t-Usul is the science of interpreta tion of exegests of these four fundamentals

USURY Arabic mba' (41) word which, has the Hebrew Tit weakek includes all gain upon leans, whether from the loan of money or goods or property of any kind In the Mosaic law, conditions of gain for the loan of money or goods, were regorously prohibited "If thou lend money to any of my people that is poor by thee thou shalt not be to him as an usurer neither shalt then lay upon him usur? (Exedus xxii 25) "If thy brother be waxen poor take no usury of him of increase but fear thy God that thy brother may hve with thee Thou shalt not give him thy money upon usury nor lend him thy victuals for increase viticus XXV 35-37 )

(1) The teaching of the Qui an on the subject is given in Saiah in 276, "They whe swallow down usury, shall arise n the Last Day only as he ariseth, whom Satan has infeated by his touch. This for that they say, 'Selling is ouly the like of nanry,' and vet God hath allowed selling and forbidden usury, and whosoever receiveth this admome on from his Lord, and abstaineth from at, shall have pardon for the past and his lot shall be with God But they who return to usury, shall be given over to 'he Fire,therem to abide for ever

(2) In the Traditions, Muhaninard is related to have said .

"Cursed be the taker of usury, the giver of usury, the writer of usury, and the wirness of usury, for they are all equal"

" Verily the wealth that is gained in usury, although it be great, is of small advantag (Sakihu Mushm, Babu 'r Riba')

(S) Reba', in the language of the law, signifies 'an excess socording to a legal standard of measurement or weight, in one of two homegeneous articles (of weight or measurement of capacity) opposed to each other in a contract of exchange, and in which such excess is stipulated as an obligatory condition on one of the parties, wethout any return that is, without anything being opposed to it. The sale, therefore, of two loads of barley, for maiance, m exchange for one load of wheat does not constitute usury, since these articles are not homogeneous, and, on the other hand, the sale of ten yards of cloth in exchange for five yards of cloth, is not usury, since al though these articles be homogeneous, still they are not estimable by weight or measurement of capacity

Usury, then, as an illegal transaction, is occasioned (scoording to most Muhammadan doctors) by rate, united with species, where, bewever it must be observed, that rate, amongst the Musaimans, applies only to articles of weight or measurement of capacity, and not to articles of longitudinal measurement, such as cloth, &c , or of tale, such as eggs, dates, walnuts, &c when exchanged from hand to hand Ash Shafi'l maintams that usury takes place only m things of an seculent nature, or in money, and according to him, therefore, articles of the last-men tioned description would give occession to usury It is, furthermore, to be observed that superiority or inferiority in the quality has no effect in the establishment of the nanry, and hence it is lawful to sell a quantity of the better sort of any a-ticle in exoltange for an equal quantity of an inferior sort. Nor doos usury exist where the qualities of an article of weight or measurement by capacity are not ascertained by some known standard of measurement. Thus it is lawful to sell one handful of wheat n ex change for two handfuls, or two handfuls for four, because, in such case, the measurement not having been made according to a legal standard, the superiority of measurement, establishing naury, has not taken place, and, since the law has fixed no standard of measure beneath half a set, any quantity less than such is considered equivalent to a handful

Where the quality of being weighable or measureable by capacity, and correspondence of species (being the causes of usury) both exist, the stipulation of inequality or of sus pension of payment to a future period, are both usumous Thus it is usumous to sell either one measure of wheat m exchange for two measures,-or one measure of wheat for one measure deliverable at a future period If on the contrary, neither of these circum stances exist (as in the sale of wheat for money), it is lawful, either to stipulate a superiority of rate, or the payment at a future period If, on the other hand, one of these circumstances only exist (as in the sale of wheat for barley, or the sale of one slave tor another), then a superiority in the rate may legalis be stipulated, out not a auspension in the payment. Thus one measure of wheat may lawfully be sold for two measures of harley or one slave for two slaves but it is not lawful to sell one measure of wheat for one measure of barley, payable at a future period, nor one stave for another, deliverable

at a future period

According to the majority of doctors, everything in which the usuriousness of an excess has been established by the Prophet on the ground of measu ement of capacity (such as wheat, barley, lates and sait), or on the ground of weight (I ke golder silver), is for ever to be considered a of that nature, although mankind should forsake this mode of estimation, because the custom of mankind, which regulates the measurement, is of inferior force to the declaration of the Prophet, and a superior court cannot yield to an inferior Abu Yüsuf, however, is of opinion that in all things practice or custom ought to prevail, although in opposition to the ordinances of the Prophet, for the ordinance of the Prophet was founded on usage and practice of his own time In ordinances, therefore, the prevalent customs among mankind are to be regarded, and as these are hable to alter, they must be attended to rather than the letter of an ordinance

Usury cannot take place between a master and his slave, because whatever is in the possession of the slave is the property of the master, so that no sale can possibly take place between them, and hence the possibility of usury is excluded a fortion. Nor can it take place cetween a Muslim and a hostile mfidel in a hostile country, in accordance with the saying of the Prophet "There is no usury between a Muslim and a hostile infidel m a foreign land," and on the further ground, that the property of a hostile infidel being free to the Muslim, it follows that it is lawful to take it by whatever mode may be possible, provided there be no deceit used It is otherwise with respect to a gimmi, or protected alien, as his property is not of a neutral nature, because of the protection test has been accorded to him, and, therefore, usury is as unlawful to his case as in that of a Muslim Abū Yusuf and ash Shafi i conceive an analogy between the case of a hostile insidel, in a hostile country and that of a zimmi, and hence they hold contrary to the other Muslim doctors, that usury can take piace also between a Muslim and a hostile infidel in a foreign land

The testimony of a person who receives usury is madmissible in a court of iaw. It is received in the Mabeut, however, that the evidence of a usurer is madmissible only in case of his being so in a notorious degree, because mankind often make invalid contracts, and these are in some degree usurious. (Hideyah, Grady's edition, p. 862)

For further information on the subject of neurv and for cases, illustrative of the above-stated principles, see Hidayah, Hamilton's translation, vol. ii., p 489, seqq, Grady's edition, p 289 seqq, the Durre's Mukhtar, the Fatawa-t-Alamgri, in loco.

USWAH, also ISWAH (8,-1). "Az esample." The word occurs in the Qur'an, Sürah xxxii 21. "Ye had in the Apostle of God a good example" (uswatum hasanatun) Ar-Rāghib says it is the condition in which a man is in respect of another's imitating him.

UTERINE BELATIONS Arabic zawū 'l-arhām (دور الارهام), called by the English lawyers "distant kindred."

They are divided into four classes —
(1) Persons descended from the deceased, how low seever, at the children of daughters or of son's daughters.

(2) Those from whom the deceased is descended, how high soever, i.e. False grand-parents, in contradistinction from the True, a true grandfather being one between whom and the deceased no famale intervenes, a true grandmother, one between whom and the deceased no false grandfather intervenes (3) Those descended from the parents of the

(3) Those descended from the parents of the deceased, how low soever, se the daughters of full-brothers and of half brothers (by the same father only) the children of half-brothers (by the same mother only), and the children of Bisters

(4) The children of the two grandfathers and two grandmothers of the deceased. as father's half-brothers and sisters by the same mother only and their children, the deceased's paternal aunts and their children, maternal uncles and aunts and their children, the daughters of full paternal uncles and half-paternal uncles by the same father only.

This classification, however, does not exhaust the distant kindred, which, in the language of the law, are defined as those relations of a deceased person who are neither sharers nor residuaries [INHERITANGE]. Thus, cousins who are children of residuaries, but are not residuaries themselves (e.g. paternal uncles' daughters) are distant kindred, though not members of any of the torogonize classes, or related through any member of such a class

When the distant kindred succeed, in coine quence of the absence of sharers and residuaries, they are admitted according to the order of their classes Within the limits of each perticular class it is a general rule that a person nearer in degree succeeds in preference to one more remote, and in all classes, if there be several of an equal legree, the property goes equally among them if they are of the same sex. There is, however, some disagreemen as to cases in which persons through whom they are related to the deceased are of different sexes or of different blood, and it is maintained by Muhammad, against Abu Yusuf that regard must be had partly to the "roots" or intermediate rela ilons and not only to the "branches," o actual claimants Thus all are agreed that it a man leave a daughter's son and a daughter's daughter, the male will have a double portion, for there is no difference of sex in the intermediate relations. but if there be a daughter's son's daughter and a daughter's daughter's son, it is said by Abu Yusuf that the male will have a double portion, on account of his sex, but by Muhammad, that the female, instead of the male, will take the double portion, by reason of her father's sex. And on the other hand, all are agreed that if there be two daughters of different brothers, they will take equally between them; but if there be a daughter of a brother and a daughter of a half-brother by the father only, Muhammad rules that the latter will take nothing, for naving regard to the caroamstances that a brother excludes a half-brother by the father only, he considers that thore is nothing to be handed down to the descendant of the latter, and that the whole will go to the descendant of the former

This rule of Muhammad, which in its application to the different classes of the distant kindred, leads to curious results of a complex character, seems to deserve a particular notice, as resting to a large extent on the principle of representation, which otherwise is all but foreign to the Muhammadan law of inheritance. (A Rumse), Mochammadan Law of Inheritance, p. 56, Syed Ameer Ali, Personal Law, p. 52, Durru'l-Mukhtar, p. 878)

TZAIR (عربر) [EZRA.]

UZHIYAH (انحمة) [SACRIFICE]

'UZLAH (due) "Retirement A term used by the Sufis for a religious life of retirement from the works

'UZR (ale) "An excuse." A legal term for a claim or an objection

AL-'UZZĀ (كان) An idol mentioned in the Qur'an Sūrah lifi 19 "What think ye then of al-Lāt and al-'Uzzā, ...d Manāt, the third idol besides." According to Husain, it was an idol of the tribe of Ghatafān For a discussion on the subject, see the article on Lai

V.

VEILS [DRESS]

VESSELS In the early days of lelam there were four kinds of drinking-vessels forbidden to Muhammadans on account of their being used for wine, namely, bantam (Δελ), a green vessel, dubba (Δελ), a large gourd hollowed out, naqūr (Δελ), a cup made from the hollowed root of a tree muzaffat (Δελ), a vessel covered with a kind of black pitch, or the glutincus substance with which the bottom of b ats are payed (Mishkāt, book i ch i pt i) But, according to Muslim law, the vessels used by Thristians and Jews, and even by idolators, are lawful, but they muss be ree from the laste or smell of wine

VIGIL Arabic 'arafah (3,e) The only Muhammadan festival which has a vigil s the 'Idu 'I-Azhā, (1 "Feast of Sacrifica" '1DU 'L-AZHA]

VISITING THE SICK Arabic uyādah (&slee). An incumbent religious duty enjoined by Muhammad on his ollowers. The following traditions illustrate us teaching on the subject (Mishkut, book r ch 1)—

"When a Muslim visits a sick brother, ho pathers the fruits of Paradise from the time ie leaves his home until he returns"

"If a Muslim visit a sick person and say even times, I ask the Almighty God, who is ord of the great throne, to give thee health' he prayer shall be granted, unless the apcounted time of his death nath surely come?"

"Verily God will say at the Day of Resurection, 'O sons of Adam! I was sick and ye lid not visit me.' And the sons of Adam will say, 'O our Defender' how could we visit thee, for Thou art the Lord of the universe and art free from sickness?' And God will say, 'O men! did you not know that such a one of my servants was sick, and you did not visit him? Do you not know that had you visited that servant you would have met mo thore?''

'Ayishau says' "Whou any one of us was sick, the Prophet used to rub his hands upon the rick person's body, after which he would say, 'O Lord of man! take away this pain and give heith for Thou art the giver of health, there is no health but thine, that health which leaveth no sickness"

"When any person complained of being out of order, or having a wound or sole, the Prophet would say, when passing his finger over the part affected, 'In the name of God, the earth of our ground mixed with the spittle of our mouth we have done this in order to restore the sick to health, by permission of our Lord'"

POWS Arabic nazr (الله), pl nuzūr. Hol, الله) neder They who fulfil their vows are amongst those who drink of the waters of Kafūr in Paradise (Qur'ān, Surah lxxvi. 7), and the non-performance of a vow is sin (Mishkāt, book xiii. ch xxii.) But the Prophet is related to have said "Do not make a vow for it cannot siter fate, still it does extract something from the wealth of the stingy"

The atonement for a vow which has been not performed is the same as for an oath namely, the freeing of a slave or elothing ten poor persons, or feeding tempersons, or three days fast (Hidaph Arabia ed., vol. i. p.

350) [OATH ]

WADI'AH (legs) Let "A thing put down" The legal term for a deposit. (See Hamilton's Hadayah, vol ili p. 259)

The Loving (الرسود) One," or "The Beloved One" One of the the ninety-nine special attributes of God It occurs twice in the Qur'an -

Surah x: 92 "My Lord is Merciful and Loving "

Surah lxxxv 14 'He is the Forgiving, the Loving"

At-Maliku 'l- Wadud, the "King of Love"

(وعدنية) WAHDANIYAH theological term for the doctrine of the Unity of God (2) The name of a sect of bufis [COD, SIKHISM, SUFL.]

WAHDATU 'L - WUJŪDĪYAH A pantheistic sect of (وحدة الوجودية) hiffis, who say that everything is God, and of the same essence.

" The (الوهاب) AL-WAHHĀB Bestower of guite" One of the ninety-nine special attributes of God It occurs in the Qur'an, ag Sürah ni 6 "Thon art He who bostoweth gifts '

WAHHĀBĪ (وهايي) A sect of Mushm revivalists founded by Muhammad, son of 'Abdn 'I-Wahhab, but as their opponents could not call them Muhammadans, they have been distinguished by the name of the father of the founder of their sect, and are called Wahhābīs

Muhammad ibn 'Abdu l-Wahhāb was born at Avinah in Najd in AD 1691 Carefully instructed by his father in the tenets of the Muelim faith, according to the Hanbali sect, the strictest of the four great schools of inter-pretation the son of 'Abdu 'l-Wahhab determined to increase his knowledge by visiting the schools of Makkah, al-Basrah and Bagh dad The libraries of these celebrated centres of Mnhammadanism placed within the reach of the zealous student those ponderous folios of tradition known as the "six correct books, and also gave him access to numerone manu-script volumes of Muslim law Having performed in pilgrimage to Makkah with his father, and visited the Prophet's tomb ab al-Madinah, he remained at the latter place to eit at the feet of Shaikh 'Abdu 'llah ihn Ihrahim, by whom he was carefully instructed in all the intreactes of the exegetical rules laid down for the exposition of ethics and jurisprudence.

For some years he resided with his father at Horemelah, a place which, according to Palgrave, claims the honour of his birth, but after his father's death he returned to his native village, Ayinah, where he assumed the position of a religious leader

In his various travels, Muhammad ibn 'Abdu 'l-Wahhab had observed the laxities and superstitions of those who, whilst they professed to accept the stern unbending precepts of the Prophet of Arabia, had succeeded in stretching the rigid lines of Islam almost to breaking Omens and augu-ries, sacred shrines and richly ornamented tombs, the use of intoxicating drugs, the silks and sature of the wealthy, all seemed to the earnest reformer lamentable departures from the first principles of Islam, and nawarrantable concessions to the luxury, idolatry, and superstitions of the age Having carefully studied the teachings of the Quran and the sacred traditions, he thought he had learned to distinguish between the essential elements of lulam and its recent admixtures, and now once more in the home of his childhood, he determined to teach and to propagate nothing but the pure faith" as laid down by the precepts and practice of the Prophet himself. The Muslim world had departed from the worship or the Unity, and had yielded a blind allegiance to Walis, Pirs, and Saints, and all because the teachings of the sacred traditions had been neglected for that of learned but ambitious teachers

To accept any doctrine other than that of those "Companions" who received their instructions from the Prophet's lips was simply the blind leading the blind, and, therefore, the Reformer, refusing to join his faith to the uncertain leading-strings of even the four orthodox doctors, determined to establish the right of private judgment in the inter-pretation of those two great foundations of Islam—the Quran and the Ahadis

His teaching met with acceptance, but his increasing influence excited the opposition of the ruler of his district, and he was compelled to seek an asylum at Daraiah, under the pro tection of Muhammad ibn Sa'ud, a chief of considerable influence The protection of the religious teacher was made a pretext for more ambitions designs, and that which the zealous cleric had failed to accomplish by his persuasive eloquence, the warrior chief now sought to attain by the power of the swerd, and he thus established in his own person that Wahhabi dynasty which, after a chequered existence of more than a hundred years, still exercises so powerful an influence not only in Central and Eastern Arabia, but wherever the Muhammadan creed is pro-fessed Like other great men before him, the Chief of Deraish strengthened his position by a matrimonial alliance, which united the nterests of his own family with that of the reformer He married the daughter of Muhammad ibn 'Abdu'l-Wahhāb, and the became the mother of the celebrated Wahhabi ehief 'Abdu 'l-'Aziz, who upon the death of his fatuer (A.D 1705), led the Wallhabi army to victory, and succeeded in pushing his conquests to the remotest corners of Arabis

'Abdu l-'Azız was not only a brave warmor, put a pious Muslim, and t is said that he fell a victum to the sernpulous regularity with which he performed his devotions in public A Persian fanatic plunged his sharp Khurasan dagger into his side, just as he was prostrating himself in piever in the

mosque ef Deraiah (A D 1803)

But the great military champion of the reformed doctrines was Sa'nd, the eldest son of 'Abda ! Azız, who during the lifetime of his father led the Wahhabi armies te victory, and threatened even the conquest of the whole Turkish empire He is said to have been a remarkably handsome man, praised for his wisdom in counsel and skill in war Having wielded the sword from his youth (for he fought his first battle when a lad of twelve), he was regarded by the wild Arabs of the desert as a fit instrument to effect the conversion of the world, and men from all parts of Arabia flocked round his standard

Sa'ud gamed several domaive victories over Sulaman Pasha, and afterwards, with an army of 20,000 men marched against Kar-bala, the famed city of the East which con tains the tombs of the Shi'sh Khalifahs The city was entered with the Wahhabi cry, "Kill and strangle all infidels which give companions to God," and every vestige of supposed idolatry, from the bright golden dome of al Husains tomb to the smallest tobacco pipe, was ground to the very dust whilst the offerings of the numerous devotees, which formed the rich treasure of the sacred shrines, served to replease the impoverished exchequer of the Wahhabi chief

The following year the fanatical army effected the conquest of Makkah, and, on the 27th April 1803, Sa'ud made his formal entry into the sacred city of the Kabah The sanctity of the place subdued the barbarous spirit of the conquerors and not the slightest excesses were committed against the people The stern principles of the reformed doc trines were, however, strictly enforced Piles of green huqqas and Persian pipes were collected, rosaries and amulets were forcibly taken from the devotees, silk and satin dresses were demanded from the wealthy and worldly, and the whole, collected into the one heterogeneous mass was burnt by the infuriated reformers So strong was the feeling against the pipes, and so necessary did a public example seem to be, that a respectable lady, whose delinquency had well nigh escaped the vigilant eye of the Muhtanb, was seized and placed on an ass, with a green pipe suspended from her neck, and paraded through the public streets—a terrible warning to all of her sex who may be inclined to indulge in forbidden luxuries When the usual hours of prayer arrived, the myrmidons of the law sallied forth, and with leathern whips drove all slothful Muslims to their devotions The mosques were filled. Never since the days of the Prophet had the sacred city witnessed so much picty and devotion Not one pipe, not a single tobacco-stopper, was to be seen in the streets or found in the houses, and the whole population of Makkah prostrated themselves at least five times a day in solemn adoration. Having carried out his mission with fidelity, Sa'ud hastened to convey the news of his success to the Sultan of Tarkey in the following charac teristic letter

"Sa'nd to Sahm -- I entered Makkah on the fourth day of Muharram in the 1218th vear of the Hijiah I kept peace towards the inhabitants, I destroyed all things that were idelatiously worshipped labelished all taxes except those required by the law.

1 confirmed the Qazī whom you had appointed agreeably to the commands of the Prophet of God I desue that you will give orders to the rulers of Damascus and Cairo not to come up to the sacred city with the Mahmal and with trumpets and drums. Religion is not profited by these things May the peace and blessing of God be with you." MAHMAI]
Before the close of the year, al-Madinah was added to the Wahhati conquests, and so thoroughly did Sa'nd carry out the work of reform, that even the Hujrah, containing the tomb of the Prophet, did not escape. Its richly ornamented dome was dostroyed, and the curtain which covered the Prophet's grave would have been removed, had not the Leader of the Faithful been warned in his dreams not to commit so monstrone a sacri-

lege [HUJRAH.]
For nine years did the Wahhabi rule exist at Makkah, and so strong was the position occupied by the Wahhahi army, and so rapidly did Wahhabi opinions spread amongst the people, that the Sultan of Turkey began to entertain the worst fears for the safety of his empire 'Ali Pasha was therefore ordered by the Sultan of Turkey to collect a strong army to suppress the Wahhābī movement, and eventually, Makkah and al-Madīnah were taken from the fanatics

Upon the death of Saind (AD 1814), his son, 'Abdu 'lish, became the Leader of the Faithful He was even more distinguished than his father for personal bravery, but he lacked that knowledge of men which was so necessary for one called upon to lead the undisciplined nomadic tribes of the Alabian deserts 'Abdu 'llah and him army met with a series of reverses, and he was at last taken prisoner by Ibrahim Pashah and sent to Constantiuople He was executed in the public square of ht Sophia, December 19th, 1818 Turki, the son of Abdu Ilah, abandoned all hope of regaining the position, and fled to Riyaz, where he was afterwards assassmated Fazzul succeeded his father AD 1880, and established the Wahhabi rule in Kastern Arabia, making Rivas the capital of his kingdom It was this chief who entertained the traveller Palgrave in 1863, and received Lieutenant-Colonel (new Sir Lewis Pelly), as Her Majesty's representative, in 1865 Faizul died in 1866, soon after Sir Lewis Pelly s visit, and was succeeded by his sen 'Abdu 'Hāh

But although the great political and mili-tary power of the Wahhubis had been well nigh crushed, and the rule of the dynasty of Sa'ud circumseribed within the limits of the province of Najd, the principles laid down by Muhammad ibn 'Abdu 'l-Wahhāb were still zealously maintained by certain religious teachers within the sacred mosque itself And so it came to pass that when a restless spirit from India was endeavouring to redeem a lawless life by performing the pilgrimage to Makkab, he fell in with teachers who had imbibed Walihabi doctrines and were secretly disseminating them amongst the pilgrims. Saiyid Ahmad, the freebooter and bandit of Rai Bareli, having performed the racted rites of the Pilgrimage, returned from Makkah (A.D 1822), resolved to reclaim the whole of North India to the Faith of Islim Bing a direct descendant from the Prophet, he possessed (unlike the Wahlishi of Najd) the necessary qualification for a Leader of the Faithful, and the Muslims of India at once hailed him as the true Klishfah or al Mahdi Unheeded by the British Govern ment, he traversed our provinces with a numerous retinue of devoted disciples, and converted the populare to his reformed doc trines by thousands. He appointed deputies at Patna, and the proceeded to Delin, where he met with a ready between in Muhammad Isma'll, who became his most devoted disciple, and recorded the sayings of the new Khalifah in the well known Wahhabi book, entitled the Stratu'l Mustagem
On the 21st December 1826, Saiyid Ahmad,

the Leader of the Faitnful, declared a religious war, or Ishad, against the Sikhs, and, hoping to unite the hosts of Islam in Central Asia under his banner, he commenced an insurrection on the Peshawai frontier A fanatical war of varied successes followed, and lasted for four years but the Wahhabi array was soen reduced in strength, and its disisters culminated in the death of its chief, who was siam by Sher Smgh in an engagement at Balakot in Hazarah, May 1831 The remnant of the Salvids army fled across the horder and settled at Sait ma, where in 1857, their numbers were augmented by mutineers, who joined then camp They were even-tually displaced by the British Government in the Umbayla War of 1863, but there are still some three hundred of them residing at Palosi on the banks of the Indus, where they are ruled by Shaikh 'Abdu 'liah, an old matineer of 1857, who has recently married his daughter to a formor Imam of the Peshawar, Sadar Bazar, in order to combine the Wahhabi influences of Peshawar with those of the Paloss settlement.

But as in the case of the Wahhabis of Najd, so with the Wahhabis of India. The religious tenets of the reformers did not die with their political leader What Sa'ud of Najd and Akmad of Bareli failed to accomplish with the sword, the cheapness of lithographic printing has enabled less daring leaders to accomplish with the pen The reformed doctrines, as embodied in the Stratu 'l-Mustagim and the Taguzzate 'l-Iman, still exercise a powerful influence upon Muhammadan thought in India

Wahhabiism has sometimes been designated the Protestantism of Islam, and so it really is, although with this remarkable dif-terence, that whilst Christma Protestantism is the assertion of the paramount authority of sacred scripture to the rejection of traditional teachings, Wahhabiism is the assertion of the paramount authority of the Qur'an with the Traditions But both systems contend for first principles, and if there appears to be any incongruity in applying the term Protestant to a sect which recoives, instead of rejects, tradition, it arises from the very important fact that what is called "tradition" in Islam occupies a totally different place in the Muhammaden system from that which it does in the Christian, Tradition in Islam being nothing less than the supposed inspired sayings of the Prophet, recorded and handed down by uninspired writers, and being absolutely neceswary to complete the structure of the faith The daily prayer, the customs of the pilgrimage, and humerous other daties and dogmas nela to be of Divine institution, being found net m the Qur'an but in the Ahadis, or Tradi-tions Hence it is that the Wahhabis of Najd and India call themselves Ahl-1-Hadis, or the people of Tradition, and promote in overy way they can the study of those records TRADITION

The Walhabis speak of themselves as Muwahhid, or 'Umtarians," and call all others Mushrik, or those who associate another with God, and the following are some of their distinctive religious tenets

1 They do not receive the decisions of the four orthodox socts, but say that any man who can read and understand the Qur'an and the sacred Hadis can judge for hunself in matters of doctrine They, therefore, reject lima after the death of the Companions of the Prophet

2 That no one but God can know the secrets of men, and that prayers sheald not be offered to any prophet, wall, pir, or saint, but that God may be asked to grant a peti-

3 That at the Last Day, Muhammad will obtain permission (izn) of God to intercede for his people. The bunnis believe that permission has already been given.

4 That it is unlawful to illuminate the shrines of departed saints, or to prostrate before them, or to perambulate (tawaf) round them, they do not even perform any act of reverence at the Prophet's temb at al-Madinah

5 That women should not be allowed to visit the graves of the dead, on account of their immederate weeping

6 That only four festivals ought to be observed, namely, 'Idu 7-Fitr, 'Idu 7-Ashā, 'Ashūrā, and al-Lailatu 7-Mubārakah

7 They do not observe the ceremonies of Maulid, which are celebrated on the anniversary of Muhammad's birth.

S They do not present offerings (Nazi) at any shrine

3. They count the ninety-nine names of God on their fingers and not on a resary

10 They understand the terms "sitting of God" (Arabic Istiwa"), and "hand of God" (Yadu 'llāh), which occur in the Qur'an, in their literal (Haqīqi) sense, and not figuratively (Mayāzī), but, at the same time, they sav it is not revealed how God sits, or in what sense he has a hand, &o, and on this account the Christian doctrines of the Trinity and the Sonship of Christ do not present the same difficulties to the mind of a Wahhābī which they do to that of a Sunni

Mr Wilfrid Blunt, in his Future of Islam,

SAVS -

"I believe it is hardly now recognised by Mohammedans how near Abd el Wahhab was to complete success Refore the cluse of the eighteenth century, the chiefs of the Ibn Saouds, champions of Unitarian Islam, had established their authority over all Northern Arabia as far as the Euphrates and in 1808 they took Mecca and Medina in the mean while, the Wahhabite doctrines were gaining ground still further afield India was at one time very near conversion, and in Egypt, and North Africa, and even in Turkey, many secretly subscribed to the new doctrines Two things, however, maired the plan of general reform and prevented its full accomplishment In the first place, the reform was too completely reactive. It took no account whatever of the progress of modern thought, and directly it attempted to leave Arabia it found itself face to face with difficulties which only political as well as religious success could overcome It was impossible, except by force of arms, to Arabianise the world again, and nothing less than this was in coutemplation. Its second mietale, and that was one that a little of the Prophet's prudence which always went hand in hand with his zeal might have avoided was a too rigid in sistance upon trities Abd el Wahhab condemned minarets and tombstones because neither were in use during the first years of Islam The minarets, therefole, were everywhere thrown down, and when the holy places of Hejaz fell into the hands of hie followers, the tombs of saints which had for centuries been revered as objects of pilgrimage were levelled to the ground. Even the Prophet's tomb at Medina was laid waste and the treasures it contained distributed among the soldiers of Ibn Saoud roused the indignation of all Islam, and turned the tide of the Wahhabite fortunes Respectable feeling which had bitherto been on their side now declared itself against them, and they never after regained their position as moral and social reformers Politically, too, it was the cause of their inin The optside

Muselman world, looking upon them as sacrilegious barbarians, was atraid to visit Mecca, and the pilgrimage decimed so rapidly that the Hejazi became alarmed. The source of their revenue they found cut off, and it seemed on the point of ceasing altogether. Then they appealed to Constantinople, urging the Sultan to vindicate his claim to be protector of the holy places. What followed is well known. After the peace of Paris, Sultan Mahmud commissioned Mehemet Ali to dishver Mecca and Medina from the Waihabite heretics and this he in time effected. The war was carried into Nejd, Derrych, their capital, was sacked, and Ibn Sacud himself taken prisoner and decapitated in front of St. Sophia at Constantinople. The movement of reform in Islam was thus put back for, perhaps, another hundred years

"Still, the seed cast by Abd el Wahhabhas not been entirely without fruit Wahhabism, as a political regeneration of the world, has failed, but the spirit of reform has remained. Indeed, the present unquiet attitude of expectation in Islam has been its indirect result. Just as the Lutheran reformation in Europe, though it failed to convert the Christian Church, caused its real reform, so Wahhabbism has produced a real deere for reform if not yet reform itself in Mussulmans Islam is no longor seleep, and were another and a wiser Abd el Wahhab to appear, not as a heretic, but in the body of the orthodox sect, he might play the part of Loyola or

Borromeo with success

"The present condition of the Wahhabites as a sect is one of decline. In India, and I believe in other parts of Southern Asia, their missionanes still make converts and their preschers are held in high ceteern But at home in Alabia, ther real has waxed cold, giving place to liberal ideas which in truth are far more congenial to the Arabian mind The Ibn Saoud dynasty no longer holds the first position in Nejd, and Ibn Rashid who has taken their place, though nominally a Wahhabite, has little of the Wahhabite fansticism He is in fact a popular and national rather than a religious leader, and though still designated at Constantinople as a postilent heretic is counted as their ally by the more liberal Sunites It is probable that he would not withhold his allegiance from a Caliph of the legitimate house of Koreysh."

(The following English works may be consulted on the subject of Wahhābiam Burek-herdi's Bedouns and Wohhābia, Brydge's Brief History of the Wahhābia, Sir Lewis Pelly's Political Mission to Najd, Hunter's Musulmans of India, Palgrave's Central and Eastern Arabia, Lady Ann Blunt's Pilgrimage to Najd, Dr Badger's Imams and Sey yids of 'Oman, Blunt's Future of Islam.)

AL-WAHID (Model). "The One."
One of the mnety-nine special attributes of the Almighty It occurs frequently in the Qur'an, eg Surah ii. 158 "Your God is One God."

WAHY (ومى) [INSPIRATION] "

STAW (tety). "A preacher" The word thatib is generally applied to the Maulawi who recites the thatbut on Fridays, sweet so f more general application. In the Quads dictionary, the waits is defined as one who reminds mankind of those punishments and rewards which soften the heart. The usual time for preaching is on Fridays, and in the months of Muharram and Ramazan. [KHUTBAR]

WAJD ( Ecstasy " A Suffi term for the fifth stage of the mystic journey, when the spiritual traveller attains to a state of mental excitement which is supposed to indicate a high state of divine illumination [suri ]

WAJH (44) Lut "Presence, face " The word occure in the Qur'an for the presence of God Surah u 109 "Wherever ye turn there is the face of God (Washu Wash)."

WAJIB ( ). Let "That which is obligatory" A term used in Muhamuradan law for those injunctions, the non-observance of which constitutes sin, but the denial of which does not attain to downright infidelity For example, that Muslim who does not offer the sacrifice on the day of the Great Festival [IDU 'L-AZHA] commits a sin, and if he says the sacrifice is not a divine institution, he is a sunner, but not an infidel, and he who does not observe the fast [RAMAZAN] 18 2 sinner, but if he deny that the fast is a divine institution, he is an infidel. The sacrifice being want, whilst the fast is far-

[LAW]
(2) A term which frequently occur- in com bination with others For example, al-Wajibu I wujud, "the necessary existence"
-God, Wajibu 'l-ittiba', "won'hy to ho —God, Wānbu 'lettībā', "wor'hy to ho obeyed," as a teacher or prophet, Wānbi 'lada, "necessary to be discharged" as a debt or duty

AL-WAJID (الراحد) "The Finder, Inventor, or Maker" One of the minety mine "The Finder, attributes of God, but the word does not occur in the Qur'an

WAKĀLAH, WIKĀLAH (گالغ) The office of substitute An embassy, an agency, attorneyship For the Muhammadan law, with regard to agency for sale, see Hamilton's Hidayah, vol in pp 1-62 [AGENT, BALL, SALE ]

(وکیل) WAKIL An attorney, an agent, an ambassador [AGENT]

AL-WARIL (الوكيل) "The Guardian" One of the ninety-nine special attributes of God. It occurs in the Quran, Surah iv 68 "For God is all sufficient for a Guardian "

WALA' (*39) Let "Proximity, kin, friendship." A peculiar relationship voluntarily established, and which confers a content parties right of inheritance on one or both parties connected It is of two kinds -

(1) Waldu 'l-Ataqah (III. 3), Relationship between a master and a manumitted slave, in which the former mherits any property the latter may acquire after emancipatrop.

(2) Wala'u 'l-Muwalat ($31,41 ,3,), The connection arising out of mutual friendship especially between a Muhammadan and a (See Hidayak, Grady's edition, p 518.)

WALAHAN (مالها). The demon who troubles people when they are performing their ablutions (Mishkat, book ii. ch. 7) The name signifies grief or distraction of mind (See Muntaha 'l-' Arab )

WALI (رئي), pl autryā', "One who is very near" (I) Saints, or hely men, eg Surah x. 68 "Are not, verily, friends (aultyd) of God they on whom there is no feer?" [sames.]

(2) Next of kin or kindred, e.g Sürah viii 78 'These shall be next of kin to each other "

Wall 'ahd, an heir, especially to a sovereignty

Wali baild a legal guardian of a more remote degree than father, brother, or uncle Wali jubir, an anthoritative guardian re cognised by law Wali mimat, a title of respect for a father, a patron a benefactor

Waliyu'd-dam, a relative entitled to exact retaliation

(3) A benefactor or helper, eg Sursk n 114 "Thou hast no helper but God" (4) Al Wali "the Helper" One of the ninety-nine special attributes of God

WALI (والى), pl unitat A prince governor A term used for the ruler of or governor A term used for the ruler of a country It is assumed by the Ameer of Afghanistan in his treaties

The title implies one who rules a Muslim country as an Amir, or m behalf of the Kha-

lifah of Islam

(2) God Qur'an, Sürah xui. 12 "Nor have they any governor beside Him "

AL-WALID IBN 'UQBAH (الوليد ن عقمة (بن عقمة A celebrated Companion A brother to the Khalifah Usman, who was Governor of al-Kufah, and died in the reign of Mu'āwijah

(وليمة) WALIMAH The nuptial feast The wedding breakfast, which is generally given on the morning after the mar-riage. The custom is founded on the example of Muhammad, who is related to have given a feast of dates and a meal on the occasion of his marriage with Safiyah Ibn Mas'ud says the Prophet regarded the wedding feast as of divine authority, and he who is invited on such an occasion must accept the invitation (Mishkat, book xiii.

ch ix pt. l)

WALIYU (ولى العهد) L-'AHD'-L' The heir to a kingdom or Vulg Wahrahd

WALKING DEPORTMENT

(رتف) WAOF "Standing, Lst stopping, halting", (1) A term which in the language of the law signifies the appropriation or dedication of property to charitable uses and the service of God. An endowment The object of such an endowment or appropriation must be of a perpetual nature, and such property or land cannot be sold or transferred If a person build a mosque his right of proporty is extinguished as soon as prayers have been recited in the building

According to the Imam Abu Yusuf, if the place in which a mosque is situated should become deserted or uninhabited, masmuch as there is no further use for the mosque, no person coming to worship therein, still the r operty does not revert to the original owner and founder But Imam Muhammad alleges that in such a case the land and the material (bricks, &c ) again become the property of the founder or his heir

If a person construct a reservoir or well for public use, or'a caravansera, for travellers, or a hostel on an initial frontier for the accommodation of Muslim warriors, or dedicate ground as a burying-place, his right is not extinguished until the magistrate, at his request, issues a decree to that effect. This is the opinion of Imam Abu Hanifuh, but Imam Abu Yusuf maintains that the person's right of property ceases on the metant of his saying "I have made over this for such and such purposes" Whilst Imam Muhammad asserts that as soon as the property is used for the purpose to which it is dedicated, it ceases to be the property of the original owner (Se: Hamilton's Hidayah, vol u p 334)

(2) A term used for a full pause, and particularly for certain pauses in the reading of the Qur'an, which are marked with the letters in the text قف

WAQI'AH (in)) Let The "inevitable" (1) A term generally used for an accident or an unavoidable circumstance in

(2) The Day of Judgment See Quran, Surah lvi. 2 "When the mevitable happens none shall call its happening a he."

(3) The title of the Lvith Surah of the Qur'un

AL-WAQIDI (الراقدي) His full name Abu 'Abdı 'lleh Muhammad ıbn 'Umar al Wāqıdī A celebrated Muslim historian, much quoted by Muir in his Life of Mahamet Born at al-Madinah A n. 180, died A = 207 Ho is said to have left a library of 600 boxes of books,

WAQŞ (وقص), pl anyās Any property under the regulated value or number upon which zakāt or legal alms is due

(وقىتە) WAQT The present time as distinguished from al-Waqtu'd-Da'em or the eternal existence of God

AL-WAQTU'D-DA'IM(asialicatif).

Let "The Everlasting Time" A Safi term for the extent of the existence of the Eternal One ('Abdu 'r-Razzūq's Dictionary of Suf. Terms )

WARAQAH (3) Waraqah ibn Naufal ibn Asad ibn 'Abdi 7-'Uzza. The consin of Khadijah, to whom she first made known the supposed revelation, or dream, of Muhammad, and who is related to have said that the Prophet must have seen the Namus which God sent to Moses. (Mishkat, book Exit oh v pt 1)

In the Arabic Dictionary al-Qamus, it is stated that Waraqah was the son of one of Khadijah's uncles, and that it is not cortain if he ever embraced Islam 'Abdu 'l-Haqq the commentator on the Mishkat, says he had embraced Christianity and had translated the Gospels into Arabic There does not seem to be any good authority for the supposition that he was originally a Jaw He appears to have died soon after the incident in the cave at Hira' [MUHAMMAD.]

WARFARE There are three terms used in the Traditions for warfare.

(1) Jihad (June), warfare carried on by Muslims for the extension of Islam.

(2) Fitan (فترن), seditions and commotions which will precede the Resurrection

(8) Malakim (ملاهم), pl of malkamah, warfare carried on between Muslim nations and tribes. These are also signs of the Resurrection [FITAN, JIHAD, MALAHIM.]

AL-WARIS (مالوارمة) "The Heir" (of all things) One of the ninety-nine attri "The Heir" butes of the Almighty

WASAN (رئي), pl ausan

WASANI (وثنى), from wasan, an idol An idolater [LDOLATER.]

WASAYA (مومان), pl. of wasiyah

Let 'Precepts' Used in Muslim law for wills and regulations concerning them [WILLE ]

"The Capa-God It occurs in the Qur'an, Surah ii. 248 God is the Capacious one and knows."

WASILAH (Aprel). Ltt. "Near-ness" The name of the highest station in Paradise, which Muhammad said was re served for one person only, and which he hoped to obtain for himself (Maskat, book xxiv. ch ii pt 2)

It is usual for religious Muhammadans to pray, after the call to prayer (agen) has been concluded, that Muhammad may obtain this station of Wasilah Hence the place of intercession, and the office of mediator. That which effects nearness to God

WASITAH (وأسطة). A thing or person intervening, an agent, a broker. Hence, e mequator

WASL (1-5) "Meeting; union."
A Sufi term used for the seventh stage in the spiritual journey, when the mystic, as it were, sees the Divine One face to face. The stage previous to find, or extinction in the essence of the Eternal One [surl.]

WASWASAH (L., ) Let "Inspiring," or "suggesting" A suggestion from the devil. The machinations of the devil, to the consideration of which a chapter is devoted in the Traditions. (Mishkat, book as he is it.)

Muhammad said, "There is not a single child of man except Mary and her son, who is not touched by the devil at the time of his birth, and hence the child makes a loud cry when he is born, nor is there one human being who has not a devil appointed to attend him. The devil sticks close to the sons of Adam, and also an angel, the business of the devil is to do evil, and that of the angel to guide them unto truth"

WATER Arabic ma' (A), pl
miyāh, amwāh Heb mayim, waters
In the Qur'an, Sūrah xxi 31, it is said. "We clave them (the heavens and the earth) asunder, and by means of water, We gave his to everything "Which, as Sprenger (vol i p. 30n) remarks, is one of the principles of the Ebionite doctrine Al-Bairāwī says it means either that God made all animals from water, or that the chief element in animal life is water, or that animal life is supported chiefly by water

Muhammadan writers say there are seven kirds of water which are lawful for the purposes of purification and drinking—

Ma'u' 'l-matar, rain-water Ma'u' 'l-'ain, apring-water Ma'u 'l-bīr, well-water Ma'u 'l-barad Lail-water Ma'u 'a salj snow-water Ma'u 'l-bahr nea-water Ma'u 'n-nahr, river water

Water which is considered lawful for ablution is also lawful for drinking, and vice versa. Ibn 'Umar relates that Muhammad was asked about the water of the plains in which animals go to drink, &c, and he said, 'When the water is equal to two quildhs, it is not impure?' 'Abdu 'l-Haqq says two quildhs are equal to 250 mans. (Mishkat, Matthew's ed., vol. 1 p. 107) [WELLS.]
Mr Sell, in his Katth of Islam, says—

Mr Sell, in his Fasth of Islam, says

"Minute regulations are laid down with regard to the water which may be used for purification. The following kinds of water are lawful—rain, sea, river, fountain, well, snow, and ice-water—Ice is not lawful—The first kind is authorised by the Qurán. "He sent you down water from heaven that He might thereby cleanse you, and cause the pollution of Satan to pass from you—(Sura viii 11)—The use of the others is sanctioned by the Traditions—I give one illustration—A m in one day came to the Prophet and said
I am going on a voyage and shall only have a small supply of fresh water, if I use it for ablutions I shall have none wherewith to quench my thirst, may I use ses-water?' The Prophet replied 'The water of the sea is pure Tirmizi states that this is a Hadis-Great difference of opinion exists i-Sehih with regard to what constitutes impurity in water, and so renders it unfit for ablutions It would be wearsome to the reader to enter into all details but I may briefly say that, smongst the orthodox, it is generally held that if a dead body or any unclean thing falls into flowing water, or into a reservoir more than 15 feet square, it can be used, provided always that the ooleur, smell, and taste are not changed It is for this reason that the pool near a mosque is never less than ten cubits square If of that size, it is called a dak dar dak (literally 10×10) It may be, and commonly is, larger than this It should be about one foot deep

Rights regarding water According to Muhammadan law, water is of four kinds —

(1) The water of the ocean, to which every person has a perfect and equal right, for the enjoyment of the ocean is common to everyone, in the same manner as the light of the sun or the air we breathe

(2) The waters of large rivers such as the Euphrates, the Tigris, the Indus, or the Oxus, from which every person has an absolute right to drink, and also a conditional right to use it for the purpose of irrigating his lands. For example, if a person desire to cultivate waste land, and dig a watercourse or canal for the purpose of conveying water to it from the river, he may lawfully do so, provided the act be in no sense detrimental to the people. The same law applies to the crection of a water-mill on the banks of a river.

(3) Water in which several have a share; in which case also the right of drinking is common to all, whilst there are certain restrictions regarding its use for the purposes of irrigation, which will be hereafter treated of

(4) Water which is kept in vessels, which is regarded as property, except in times of scercity, when it is even lawful to seize it for common use

The law regarding the division of water for the purposes of irrigation, known as shirt (خرب), or 'a right to water," is most important in the East, where so much of the cultivation of land depends not upon the fall of rain but upon irrigation. In Afghanistan, there are more disputes and more murders committed over the division of water than with regard to any other question. A claim of shirb, or "right of water," is valid, independent of any property in the ground, for a person may become endowed with it. exclusive of the ground, either by inheritance or bequest, and it sometimes happens that whom a person sells his lands, he reserves to himself the right of shirb. No person can alter or obstruct the course of water running through his ground, and in the case of disputes regarding a rivulet held jointly by several, it is the duty of the judge to make a distribution of the water according to the extent of land which they severally possess, for, as the object of right to water is to moisten the lands, it is but fit that each should receive a just proportion A rivulet neust not be dammed up for the convenience of one partner without the consent of the others, nor can he dig a trench or erect a a mill upon a rivulet used for ingration, withons the general consent of all persons con-serned The same restriction applies, also, to a water-engine of a bridge One partner cannot alter the mode of partition without the others' consent, nor increase the number of sluces or openings through which he recoives his share, nor convey his share into lands not entitled to receive it, nor even to lands which are entitled to recoive it, nor can he shut up any of the sluices or exchange the manner of division in any way, as for example, by taking the water in rotation instead of division by sluices. A right to water cannot be consigned as a dower, nor given as a consideration in Khul, when a wife bargains for her divorce [KHUL'], nor in composition for a claim, nor sold to discharge the debts of a dofunct owner. It is also noted that if a person, by irrigating his lands, should by that means overflow those of his neighbour, he is not hable to make compensation, as he was not guilty of any transgression

WA'Z (be) A sermon KHUT-BAH, WAI'2.]

WAZIFAH (Last), from wazf, "a daily ration of food" (1) A term used for a duly lesson, or portion from the Quran which is read by devout Muslims The Qur'an is divided into thirty siparahs as the dully wazifuh to be read during the month of Ramezan.

(2) A pension or stipond granted to pious persons

(8) Revenue collected at a stipulated rate

(وزير) WAZIR A Vezeer The principal minister in a Muhammadan country There are three opinions respecting the etymology of the word Some derive it from wizr "a burden," because the wazir bears the burden of state, others from wazar, "a because the ruler has recourse to the counsels of the wazir, others from arr, "the back, or strength," because the ruler is strengthened by his wazir as the human frame is by the back

Mr Lane (Arabian Nights, Intro, p 28), says "The post of weseer was the highest that was held by an officer of the pen, and the person who occupied it was properly the next to the Sultan, but the Turkish Sultans of Egypt made the office of nath, or "viceroy," to have the pre-eminence Under them, the post of wezeer was sometimes occu pred by an officer of the pen, and sometimes by an officer of the sword, and in both cases the wereer was called 'the Saheb'"

Khalil az-Zähir relates that Muhammad said, "Whoseever is in authority over Musluns, if God prosper him, shall be given a virtuous wazir. The wasir shall remind him when he forgetteth his duty, and shall assist him when he doth remember it. But to a bad ruler God giveth an evil-minded wasir, who, when the ruler forgetteth his duty, does not remind him of it, and when he remembereth his duty, doth not assist him to perform it "

WEDDING MARRIAGE

WEEK. Arabie usbū' (2,,....), subū' (سبوع), Heb shāvūa'. שבוע Muhammadan week (as the Jewish and Christian) begins with Sunday and ends with Saturday In the Quran, Surah vi 52, it is said "God created the heavens and the earth in six days" In Sürah xvi 125, it is said, "the Sabbath was only made for those who dispute thereon," which *1-Baixāwī says means that the Sabbath was established for the Jews who disputed with Moses regarding it, but there is no injunction in the Qur'an for the due observance of the Sabbath FRIDAY ]

WEEPING BUKA'

Arabic bi'r (,24), pl WELLS Heb TNI Be'er If a person dig a ab ār well for public use, it is held by Imam Muhammad that his right to the well ceases as soon as the people drink of the well, but Imam Abu Hanifah is of opinion that it does not become common property until the magistrates issue a decree to that effect (Hulayah, vol n p 357)

If a person dig a well in a high road (where no person is entitled to dig a well) he is liable to a fine for any accident which may happen by people falling into it. (Hedayah, vol is p 719)

If any animal, or impurity of any kind, fall into a well, all the water must be drawn out before the well can be lawfully used and if it be impossible to draw the whole of the water, then not less than 800 bucketfuls must be drawn out If the animal has in any way become putrified in the well, then the water must not be used for three whole days, but in any other case the water can be used after the lapse of a whole day (Shurku 'l- Wigayak, p 10)

WHISTLING Arabic mukā' (مکاه) Mentioned in the Qur'an, Surab viii 35 "Their (the Quraish) prayer at the House was naught but whistling and olspping hands! Taste, then, the torment, for that ye misbelieve." From which it is understood that whistling was one of the idolatrous ceremonies in the days of ignorance in the Makkan temple. Whistling is therefore gene rally held to be unlawful for prous Muslims WIDOWS Arabic armalah (ارطة) Ħбр מלמנה almanah Mourning is menmiont upon a widow for a period of four months and ten days after the death of her husband (Hamilton's Hidayok.

vol. i p. 870) After this period she may lawfully take another husband, provided she be not pregnant of her first husband A widow's share of her late husband's property is one-sighth when there is a child, or a son's child, how low seever, and a fourth when there is no child Though a man may have as many as four wives, the provision for two or more is the same as that for one the fourth or eighth, as the case may, being divisible among them equally (Bailhe's Law of Inheritance, p 59)

If a Muslim, whose wife was once a Christian should die, and his widow appear before a Qazi and declare that she is Muslim, and that she embraced the faith prior to the death of her husband, and the heirs assert the contrary, the assertion of the heirs is to be credited to the exclusion of the rights of the widow And if a Christian die, and his widow appear before the Qisī as a Muslim, and the heirs declare the contrary, the assertion of the heirs is to be credited to the exclusion of (Grady's Hidayah, p 84?) the widow

WILLS Arabic wasiyah (ومية), pl wasāyā, which term is held by Muslim legists to mean "an endowment with the property of anything after death, as if one person should say to another, 'Give this article of mine, after my donth, to a particular person '"

The testator is called muys, fem. musiyah The legatee is termed musa la-hu The legacy, muşa bi-hi The person appointed to carry out the will, or the executor, is called the wasiy, pl ausiya.

It is not necessary that the will of a Mushm should be executed in writing, but it must be certified to by two male witnesses, or one male and two females

The following are some of the chief points in Muslim law, regarding the making and the execution of wills

Wills are lawful and valid to the extent of a third of the testator's property, but not to any further extent unless to consent of the heirs, and it is laudable to avoid making bequests when the heirs are poor

A bequest to an heir is not valid unless confirmed by the other heirs, and a bequest to a person from whom the testator has received a mortal wound is not valid, and if a legatee slay his testator, the bequest in his favour is void.

A bequest to a part of the heirs is not valid Bequests are valid between Muslims and Zimmis, that is, between Muhammadans and Jews or Christians under protection [ZIMML]

The acceptance or rejection of bequests is not determined until after the death of the

The legatee becomes proprietor of the legacy by his acceptance of it, which may be either expressed or implied

A bequest by an insolvent person is void, as also that of an infant, or a mukātab (a slave who has ransomed himself). A bequest favour of a factus in the womb is also invalid , but ash-Shati'i says it is valid

A female slave may be bequeathed, with the exception of her progeny To bequesth the offspring of a female slave is unlawful

A bequest is resounded by the express declaration of the testator, or by any act on his part implying his retractation, or which ex-tinguishes his property in the legacy. But the teststor's danying his bequest is not a retractation of it, nor his declaring it unlawful or usurious, nor his desiring the execution of it to be deferred. A bequest to one person is annulled by a subsequent bequest of the same article to another, unless that other be not then shye

A legacy after being divided off by the magistrate, descends to the legatee's listers in oase of his decease

Concerning the Bequest of a Third of the Estates

If a person leave a third of his property to one man and a third to another, and the heirs refuse their consent to the execution of the whole, it is then restricted to one third

If a person bequeath the third of his estate to one, and then a sixth of it to another, and the heirs refuse their consent, in that case one-third of his estate is divided into three shares, of which two are given to the legatee of the thi d and one to the legatee of the sixth.

A bequest of a son's portion of inheritance is void, but not the bequest of an equivalent to it. For example, if a person say, "I bequeath my son's portion," such a bequest is null, but the bequest will be valid if he say, "I bequeath an equivalent to my son's portion."

A bequest of a "portion" of the estate is executed to the extent of the smallest portion inherited from it, and a haquest of "part of the estate," undefined, may be construed to apply to any part

A person bequeathing a third of any particular property, if two-thirds of it be lost, and the remainder come within a third of the testators estate, the legatee is entitled to the whole of such remainder, and a bequest of "the third of " an article, part of which is afterwards destroyed, holds with respect to a third of the remainder

A legacy of money must be paid in full with the property in hand, although all the rest of the estate should be expended in debts

A legacy left to two persons, one of them being at that time dead, goes entire to the hving legates

A legacy being bequeathed to two persons indefinitely, if one of them die, a moiety of it only goes to the other

A bequest made by a poor man is of force

li he afterwards become rich

A bequest of any article, not existing in the possession or disposal of the testator at he decease, is null, unless it was referred to his property, in which case it must be discharged by a payment of the value

An acknowledgment of debt, upon a deathbed, is efficient to the extent of a third of the estate.

Any accident occasioning urcertainty with respect to the legatees, annula the bequest.

An hear, after partition of the estate, acknowledging a bequest in favour of another, must pay the acknowledged legates his proportion of such bequest

The Period of Making Wills

As has already been remarked Muhammadan wills are not as a rule written documents, and therefore the institutions of the law are entirely made for verbal rather than written bequests

Gratuitous acts, of immediate operation, if executed upon a death-bed, take offect to the extent of one-third of the property only

An acknowledgment on a death-bed is valid in favour of the person who afterwards becomes an hoir, but not a bequest or gift neither is an acknowledgment so made valid, if the principle of inheritance had existed in the person provious to the deed

Such acknowledgment gift, or bequest, in 'avour of a son, being a slave, who afterwards becomes ires, previous to the father's decease, is nevertheless void.

Rules for Ascertaining a Death bed Ilhiess

The following curious paragraph occurs in the Hidayah on this subject -

"Paralytic, govty, or consumptive persons, where their disorder has continued for a length of time, and who are in no immediate danger of death, do not fall under the description of maris or 'siok,' whence deeds of gift, executed by such, take effect to the exlong time has elapsed, the patient has become familiarised to his disease, which is not then accounted as sickness. The length of time requisite by its lapse, to do away with the idea of sickness in those cases, is determined at one year, and if, after that time, the invalid should become bed 1 idden, he is then accounted as one recently sick If, therefore, any of the sick persons thus described make a gift in the beginning of their illness, or after they are bedridden, such gift takes effect from the third of their property, because at such time there is apprehenaion of death (whence medicine is given to them) and therefore the disorder is then coundered as a death-bed dinose ' (Hiddyah Gredy's ed. p 685)

Emancipation of Slaves upon a Lieuth-bal

Emancipation and deeds of gift on a deathbed, take effect to the extent of a third of the property, and emancipation precedes in their execution the actual bequests

The appropriation of a sum by bequest to the emancipation of a slave is annulled by the subsequent loss or failure of any part of it, but not the appropriation of a sum to the performance of a pulgramage.

performance of a pilgrimage
A slave, exceeding one-third of the property emancipated on death-bed, is exempted from emancipatory labour by the heirs as senting to his freedom.

A bequest of emancipation in favour of a slave is annulled by his being made over in compensation for an offence committed by him

Where the heir and the legates agree conoerning a slave having been emancipated by the testator, the allegation of the heir is oredited with respect to the date of the deed.

Bequests for Plous Purposes

In the execution of bequests to certain pions purposes, the duties ordained by the command of God precede those which are voluntary, and are then benevolent acts towards mankind.

If a person will that ' the pilgrimage which was incumbent upon him be performed on his behalf after his death," the heirs must depute a person for this purpose and pay all his expenses to Makkab.

But when all the purposes mentioned be of equal importance, the arrangement of the testator must be followed

A legacy, appropriated to pilgramage, if lost, must be repaired to the extent of a third of the estate

Wills made by Jews and Christians

Zimmis, or Jews and Christians paying tribute for protection, can make bepased and they are held good in Muslim law and are subject to the same restrictions with those of Muslims

A church or synagogue founded during health descends to the founder's here, but the bequest of a house to the purpose of an infidel place of worship, is appropriated, whether any particular legatoes be mentioned or other wise

Abu Hamfah says the bequests of Zimmis are of four kinds .--

(1) Those made for purposes held sacred in their belief, but not in that of Muslims, such as the building of a church or synagoguo, which according to Hanifab is valid under certain restrictions

(2) Those made for purposes held pious by Muslims and not by Zimmis, such as the building of a mosque, in which case the bequest is invalid

(3) Those made for a purpose held sacred by both Muslims and Zimmis, such as an offering to the Temple at Jerusalem, which are valid.

(4) Those made for purposes held to be wrong by both Zimmis and Muslims, such as the support of singers and dissolute woman, which are invalid as being sinful

The will of a sensualist or innovator is the same as of an orthodox Mussulman, unless he proceed to avowed apostasy. The will of a female apostate is valid, but not thus of a make apostate

A Zimmi may bequesth the whole of his property but if he bequesth a part only, the residue is transacted to his heirs.

An emancipation granted by him on his death-bed, takes effect in toto.

Any bequest in favour of a Zimmi us valid, and he may make a bequest in favour of an unbeliever of a different sect not being a hostile infidel

Usufructuury Wills

An article bequeathed in usufruct must be consigned to the legatee, but if it constitute the sole estate being a slave, he is possessed by the hears and legatee alternately, or, being a house, it is held among them in their due proportions, nor are the heirs in the latter instance allowed to sell their slaves. The bequest becomes youd on the death of the legatee

A bequest of the produce of an article does not entitle the legatec to the personal use of the article, nor does a bequest of the use entitle him to let it to hire. A bequest of the use of a slave does not entitle the legates to carry him out of the place, unless his family reside elsewhere. A bequest of a year's product, if the article exceed a third of the estate, does not entitle the legatec to a consignment of it.

In a bequest of the use of an article to one, and the substance of it to another, the legatee of usufruct is exclusively entitled to the use during his term. A bequest of an article to one, and its contents to another, if connectedly expressed, entitles the second legatee to nothing.

A bequest of the fruit of a garden implies the present fruit only, unless it be expressed in perpetuity, and a bequest of the produce of an animal implies the existent produce only in every instance

The Executors

An executor having accepted his appointment in presence of the testator, is not afterwards at liberty to reject it, but his silence leaves him an option of rejection, but any act indicative of his acceptance binds him to the execution of the office.

Having rejected the appointment after the testator's decease, he may still accept of it, unless the magistrate appoint an executor in the interim.

Where a slave a reprobate, or an infidel are appointed, the magistrate must nominate a proper substitute

The appointment of the testator's slave is invalid if any of the heirs have attained to maturity, but not otherwise.

In case of the executor's meanacity, the magnetrate must give him an assistant, but he must not do so on the executor pleuding incapacity without due examination, and if he appear perfectly equal to the office, he cannot be removed, not oven on the complaint of the heirs, unless his culpability be ascertained.

One of two joint executors cannot act without the concurrence of the other, except in such matters as require immediate execution, or which are of an incumbent nature, or in which the interest or advantage of the estate are concerned.

In case of the death of a joint executor, the magnetrate must appoint a substitute, unless the deceased have himself nominated his successor. The executor of an executor is his substitute in office.

An executor is entitled to possess himself of the portions of infant and absent adult heirs on their behalf, but not of the legacies of infant or absent legatees

An executor may sell a slave of the estate, for the discharge of the debts upon it, in absence of the oreditors, unless the slave be involved in debt.

An executor having sold and received the price of an article which afterwards proves to be the property of another, is accountable to the purchaser for the price he had acreceived, but if this has been lost he may reimburse himself from the person to whom the article had fallen by inheritance

An executor may accept a transfer for a debt due to his infant ward, or sell or purchase movables on his account. He may also sell movables on account of an absent adult hear, but he cannot trade with his ward's portion. He may sell movable property or account of the infant or absent adult brother of the testator

The power of a father's executor precedes that of the grandfather If there be no executor, the grandfather is the father's representative

Evidence with respect to Wills.

The evidence of two executors to the appointment of a third is not valid, unless he claim or admit it, and the evidence of orphans to the appointment of an executor is not admitted if he deny it

The testimony of executors with respect to property on behalf of an infant or of an absent adult is not admitted.

The mutual evidence of parties on behalf of each other to debts due to each from an estate is valid, but not their evidence to legacies, unless each legacy respectively consists of a slave.

A mutual evidence of this nature is void where it involves a right of participation in the witnesses

WINDS. Arabic right (ch), pl of rik Heb [17] rinkh. There are four special winds mentioned in the Quran Sarsar, a violent hurricane (Sürah kix. 6), 'aqun, a barren wind (Sürah li 42), lawaqik, fertilizing winds (Sürah xv 22); umbask shirāt, harbingers of ram (Sürah xxx. 47) And it is related that the Prophet said he was assisted by an east wind at the battle of the Ditch, and that the tribe of 'Ad was destroyed by a west wind a special chapter is devoted to the Prophet sayings with regard to the wind, as it appears that he had a supermitten of it Ari shah and, that when the clouds appeared, the Prophet used to change colour, and come out of his house and walk to and fro, nor would his alarm cease until the storm had passed When she expressed her surprise at his excitement, he said, "O'Ayıshah, peradventure these winds be like those which destroyed the tribe of 'Ad"

WINE Heb המר khemer, Is 1 22, " old wine " Wine under the term khamr () which is generally held to imply all things which intoxicate, is forbidden in the Quran in the following

Sürah ii. 216 " They will ask thee concerning wine and games of chance both is great sin, and advantage also, to men, but their sin is greater than their advantage "

Sūrab v 92 "O believers! surely wine and games of chance, and statues, and the divining arrows, are an abomination of Satan's work! Avoid them, that ye may prosper Only would Satan sow hatred and strife among you, by wine, and games of chance, and turn you aside from the remembrance of God, and from prayer will ye not, therefore, abstain from them? Obev God and obey the Apostle, and be on your guard but if ye turn back, know that our Apostle is only bound to deliver a plain announcement "

Al-Jalalan, the commentators, on these verses, say, 'Only that wine is forbidden which intoxicates the brain and affects the steadmess of the body" But all Muslim doctors hold that wine of any kind is for-

Imam Abu Hanifah says "This doctrine is founded upon a precept of the Prophet, who said, 'Whoever drinks wine, let him suffer correction by scourging as often as he drinks thereof" (Hamilton's Hidayah, vol 11 53)

If a Musalman drinks wino, and is seized whilst his breath yet smells of wine, or be brought before the Qazi whilst he is yet inloxicated, and two witnesses give evidence hat he has drunk wine, scourging is to be inflicted The punishment is eighty lashes for a free man and forty lashes for a slave.

Mr Lane says "Several stories have been told as to the occasion of Muhammad's prohibiting the drinking of wine. Busbequins says Muhammad, making a journey to a triend at noon, entered into his house, where there was a marriage feast, and, sitting down with the guests, he observed them to be very nerry and jovial, kissing and embracing one mother, which was attributed to the cheerulness of their spirits raised by the wine, so hat he blessed it as a sacred thing in being hus an matrument of much love among men But, returning to the same house the next lay, he beheld another face of things, as goreblood on the ground a hand cut off, an arm, 'oot, and other limbs dismembered, which he was told was the effect of the brawls and lightings occasioned by the wine, which made them mad, and inflamed them into a fury, hus to destroy one another Whereon he changed his mind, and turned his former blessing into a curse, and forbade wine ever after to all his disciples' Epist. 8. This prehibition of wine hindered many of the Prophet's contemporaries from embracing his religion Yet several of the most respectable of the pagan Arabs like certain of the Jews and early Christians, abstained totally from wine, from a feeling of its injurious effects upon moral, and, in their elimate, upon hoalth, or, more especially, from the fear of being led by it into the commission of foolish and degrading actions Thus Keys (Qais), the son of Asim, being one night overcome with wine, attempted to grasp the moon, and swore that he would not quit the spot where he stood until he had laid hold of it After leaping several times with the view of doing eo, he fell flat upon his face, and when he recovered his senses, and was acquainted with the cause of his face being bruised, he made a solemn vow to abstain from wine ever after"—Lane's Arabian Nights, vol i pp 217, 218

WITNESS Arabic shakid (400), dual sháhidán, pl zhuhadá, or shuhud.

Terms which are used for witness in legal cases, an account of which is given in the article on EVIDENCE, and also for those who die as martyrs for the Muslim faith, or meet with sudden death from any accidental circumstance [MARTYR.]

(وتر) WITR Lit "An odd number" Weer rakiahs are an odd number of rak'ahs, 3, 5, or 7, which may be said after the last prayer at night, and before the dawn of day Usually they are added to the Salatu I-Ishā. Imam Abū Hamiah says they are want, that is, ordered by God, although they are not authorised by any text in the Quran. But they are instituted by traditions, each of which is generally received as a Hadis Sahih, and so witr rak'abs are regarded as being of divine authority Imam Shafa'i, however, considers them to be sun nah only
The Traditions referred to are

The Prophet said "God has added to your prayers one prayer more know that it is wife, say it between the Salatu I-Isha and the dawn"

On the authority of Busar, it is recorded that the Prophet said "Wetr is wend upon Muslims," and in order to enforce the practice he added "Witr is right, he who does not observe it is not my follower

The Prophet, the Companions, the Tābi'an and the Taba'u 't-Tährin, all observed it

The word wetr literally means "odd number," and a tradition says "God is odd, He loves the odd "

Mussimans pay the greatest respect to an id number. It is considered unlucky to odd number begin any work, or to commence a journey on a day, the date of which is an even number

The number of lines in a page of a book is nearly always an odd number (SALATU'L-WITE Arabic sauj (53), pl ak. pl saujšt. Although azway, also zauyak, pl sauyat. Although Muhammad hunself claimed the special indulgence of sleven lawful wives, he imuted his followers to four, allowing at the same time as many female concubines or domestic slaves as the master's right hand possessed See Qur'an, Sürah iv 8 "Marry what seems good to you of women, by twos, or threes, or fours, or what your right hand possesses [MARRIAGE]

According to the Shi'ahs, he also sanctroned temporary marriages, an account of which will be found in the article on MUTAH.

Regarding the treatment of wives, the following verse in the Qur'an (Surah 17 88) allows the husband absolute power to correct them "Chide those whose refractoriness you have cause to fear Remove them into sleeping chambers apart, and beat them But if they are obedient to you, then seek not occasion against them "

(For other injunctions in the Qur'an on the subject, see the article women )

The following is Muhammad's teaching as given in the Traditions (see Mishlat, Arabio edition, Bābu 'n-Nikāh) —

"That is the most perfect Muslim whose disposition is the best, and the best of you is he who behaves bost to his wives"

"When a man has two wives and does not treat them equally, he will come on the Day of Resurrection with half his body fallen off"

"When a man calls his wife, she must come, although she ho at an oven"

"The Prophet used to divide his time equally amongst his wives, and he would say, 'O God I divide impartially that which thou hast put in my power"

"Admonish your wives with kindness, because women were created from a crooked hono of the side, therefore, if you wish to straighten it, you will break it, and if you let it slone, it will always be crooked

"Not one of you must whip his wife like whipping a slave '

· A Muslim must not hate his wife, for if he be displeased with one bad quality in her, then let him be pleased with another that is good"

"A Muslim cannot obtain anything efter than an amiable and beautiful wife, such a wife who, when ordered by her husband to do a thing, will obey, and if her husband looks at her will be happy, and if her busband awears by her, she will make him a swearer of truth, and if he be absent from her, she will honour him with her own person and property'

It is related that on one occasion the Prophot said "Beat not your wives" Timar came to the Prophet and said, "Our wives have got the upper hand of their hus-bands from hearing this." Then the Prophet permitted beating of wires Then an immense number of women collected round the Prophet's family, and complained of their husbands beating them. And the Prophet said, "Verily a great number of women are assembled in my home complaining of their husbands, and those men who beat their wives do not behave well. He is not of my way who teaches a woman to go astray and who entices a slave from his master "

The legal position of a wife under Sunni, and with some slight differences, under Shi'ah law also, may be generally stated as follows -

Her consent to a marriage is necessary, She cannot legally object to be one of four wives Nor can she object to an unlimited number of hand-maids. She is entitled to a marriage settlement or dower, which must be paid to her in case of divorce or separation. She may, however, remit either whole or part of the dower She may refuse to join her hasband until the dower is paid She may be at any time, with or without cause, divorced by her husband She may seek or claim divorce (khul') from her husband with her husband's consent She may be chastised by her husband. She cannot give evidence in a court of law against her husband. According to the Sunnis, her evidence in favour of her husband is not admissible, but the Shi'ahs maintain the opposite view Her husband can demand her seclusion from public If she becomes a widow, she must observe hidad, or mourning, for the space of four months and ten days. In the event of her husband's death, she is entitled to a portion of her husband's estate, in addition to her claim of dower, the claim of dower taking precedence of all other claims on the estate.

There are special arrangements made by Muslim law for the partition of the husband's time amongst his wives in case he may have two or more wives For it is related that Muhammad said, "The man who has two or more wives, and who, in partition of his time, inclines particularly to one of them, shall in the Dav of Judgment meline to one side by being paralytic" And 'Ayishah relates that the Prophet said, "O God, I make an equal partition amongst my wives as to what is in my power, do not, therefore, bring me to account for that which is not in my power, namely, the affections" It is therefore ruled that the wife of a prior marriage and of a recent one, are all alike in the matter of the partition of time spent with them. The husband can, however, arrange and determine the measure of the partition of his time as to whether it be one day or more at a time. But if a man marry two wives, the one a free woman and the other a bond-maid, he must divide his time into three portions, giving two portions to the free woman and one to the bond-maid When the husband is on a rourney, his wives can make no claim to accompany him on the journey, and it is entirely at his option to carry along with him whomscever he pleases, but it is preferable for him to cast lots and take with him on the journey her upon whom the lot may happen to fall The tune of the journey is not to be counted against a husband, and she is therefore not obliged to make up for the partition lost within that time. It is also ellowed by the law, of one wife to give up her right as re gards partition of time to any other of her bashand's wives But if a weman give up her right, she is not at liberty to resume it Durru 'l-Mukhtar, in loco )

The position of a wife as regards the law of divorce, is treated under the article

DIVORCE.

We are indebted to Moulvi Syed Ameer Ali, M.A., LL B., a Muhammadan Barristerat-Law, and Presidency Magistrate of Caloutta, for the following able exposition of the position of wives under the Mushm law -

"Prior to the Islamic legislation, and especially among the pagan Arabs women had no locus stands in the eye of the law The pre-Islamic Arab customs as well as the Rabbuncal law, dealt most harshly with them. (3 Caussin de Perceval, Hist des

Arabes p 887,

"The Koran created a thorough revolution in the condition of women For the first time in the history of Oriental legislation, the principle of equality between the sexes was recognised and practically carried into effect 'The women,' says the Koran, 'ought to behave towards their husbands in like manner as their husbands should behave towards them, according to what is just' (Koran, chap u , v 228) And Mohammed in his discourse on Jabl-1-Arafat, emphasised the precept by declaring in eloquent terms, 'Ye men, we have rights over your wives, and your wives have rights over you (Ibn Hishum) In accordance with these precepts the Mahommedan law declares equality between the married parties to be the regulating principle of all domestic relationship. Fidelity to the marriage bed is inculcated on both sides, and unfaithfulness leads to the same consequences, whether the delinquent be the hushand or the wife. Chastity is required equally from man and woman

"The husband is legally bound to maintain his wife and her domestic servants, whether she and her servants belong to the Moslem faith or not This obligation of the husband comes into operation when the contract itself comes mto operation, and the wife is subjected thereby to the marital control. It continues in force during the conjugal union, and in certain cases even after it is dissolved.

"The maintenance (nafkak) of a wife in cludes everything connected with her support and comfort, such as food, raiment, lodging, &c , and must be provided in accordance with the social position occupied (1 Futâwa-i-Alamgiri p 187, 1 Fatâwa-i-Kâzi Khân Jâma-ush-Shattât, Fusul-Imádiyah Majátsh, 1 Hed., Eng Trans , p 892.)

"The wife is not entitled merely to maintenance in the English sense of the word, but has a right to claim a habitation for her own exclusive use, to be provided consistently with the husband's means

"If the wife, however, is a minor, so that the marriage cannot be consummated, according to the Hanafi and the Shiah doctrines, there is no legal obligation on the husband's part to maintain her (1 Retawa-i-Alumgiri, p 778; Kanz-ud-Dakski; 1 Hed., Eng. Trans, p 394, Jama-ush-Shattat.) "With the Shafers it makes no difference, in the obligation of the husband to maintain his wife, whether the wife be a minor or not. (Kitâb-wi-Anwar, 1 Hed, Eng Trans., p. 394 )

"Not is a husband, under the Hanafi and the Shiah law, entitled to the custody of the person of a minor wife whom he is not bound to maintain (In re Khatija Bibi, 5 Bengal Law Reports, O O J 567)

"If the husband be a minor and the wife an adult, and the incapacity to complete or consummate the contract be solely on his part, she is entitled to maintenance. (1 Hed., Eng Trans p 395, Funil-t-Imadiyah, 1 Falawa-i-Kazi Khân, p 480, Jâma wah-

Shattet )

It makes no difference in the husband's hability to maintain the wife whether he be in health or suffering from illness, whether he be a prisoner of war or undergoing pumehment, 'justly or unjustly,' for some crime, whether he be absent from home on pleasure or business, or gone on a pilgrimage (1 Fattion-i-Alamgus, p 788) In fact, as long as the status of marriage subsists, and as long as the wife is subject to the marital power, so long she is entitled to maintenance from him. Nor does she lose her right by being afflicted with any disease (1 Fatawat-Alangire p. 734, Juma-ush-Shattat)

"When the husband has left the place of the conjugal domicil without making any ar rangement for his wife's support, the Kazi is anthorised by lan to make an order that her maintenance shall be paid out of any fund or property which the husband may have left in deposit of in trust, or invested in any trade or husiness. (1 Fathwa-1-Alamgeri, p 750)

"A wife may contract debts for her support during the husband's absence, and if such debts are legitimate, contracted bond fide for her support, the ereditors have a "right of recovery" against the husband. (Nail-ul Marâm) In the same way, if the husband he unable for the time being to maintain his wife, 'it would not form a cause for separation,' says the Hedayak, 'but the magnetrate may direct the woman to pledge her husband's credit and procure necessaries for herself, the husband remaining hable for the debts' (1 fled., Eng Trans., p 297)

"When the husband is absent and has left real property either in the possession of his wife or of some other person on her behalf, the wife is not entitled to sell it for her support, though she may raise a temporary loan on it, which the hasband will be bound to discharge, provided the mortgage was created bond fide for her or her children's support, and did not go beyond the actual necessity of the case. Under such circumstances the mortgages is bound to satisfy himself that the money advanced is applied legitimately to the support of the family of the absent husband (1 Fatdwa-1-Alumgiri, p. 787.)
"When the woman abandons the conjugal demicil without any valid reason, she is not entitled to maintenance (1 Faidwa-1-Alam-girl, p. 788; Fusil-1-Inddiyah, Jima-ush-Shattist) Simple refractoriness, as has been entitled to maintenance popularly supposed, does not lead to a for-feiture of her right. If the live in the house but do not obey the husband's wishes, she would not lose her right to her proper mamtenance If she leave the house against his will without any valid reason, she would lose her right, but would recover it on her return to the conjugal domicil. (Fathwa-:-Alamgirl, Jama-ush-Shattat, Kitab-min la-Euhazzar al-Fakth)

"What is a valid and sufficient reason for the abandonment of the conjugal domicil is a matter for the discretion of the Kazi or judge As a general principle and one which has been adopted and enforced by the Kazis' makkamas in Algeria, a wife who leaves her husband's house on account of his or his relations' continued ill-treatment of her,-does not come within the category of nashizah and continues entitled to her maintenance

"A woman who is imprisoned for some offence, or is undergoing mearceration in the civil jail for non-payment of a debt, or who goes on a voyage or pilgramage without her husband's consent, has no right to claim any maintenance during her absence (1 Fathwa-1-Alamgiri, p. 784)

"Among the Shishs, if she goes on an obligatory pilgrimage, even without her husband's consent, she is nevertheless entitled to maintenance.

"The husband's liability to support the wafe continues during the whole period of probation, if the separation has been caused by any conduct of his, or has taken place in exercise of a right possessed by her The husband would not, however, be hable to support the wife during the eddat, if the separa tion is caused by her misconduct (Fathwaı-Alametrı, p. 746., Jüma ush-Shuttat 1 Fa-tawa-ı-Kazi Khán, p. 481

"If see is prognant at the time of separation her right remains intact until she is confined of the child.

"The Heddya seems to imply that a woman is not entitled to maintenance during the period of probation she observes on the death of her husband (1 Hed p 407) As the Koran, however, distinctly says, 'Such of you as shall die and leave wives ought to bequeath to them a year's maintenance, several jurists have held that a widow has a right to be maintained from the estate of her husband for a year, independently of any share she may obtain in the property left by him This right would appertain to her whether she be a Moslemah or non-Moslemah.

"In the case of probation (iddat) observed by a woman on the death of her husband, the Sunnis calculate the period from the actual date of his decease, the Shiahs from the day on which the wife receives the news of the death

"According to the Sunnis, the hability of the husband to maintain a pregnant wife from whom he has separated ceases at her confins-ment (1 Hed. p 360) The Shiahs, on the other hand, hold that the hability lasts for the same period after confinement as if the woman was not encernts. (Jama-ush-Shattat)

"If the husband be meane, the wife is entitled, according to the Shafer doctrines and the views of the compilers of the Fatawa-i-Alamgiri, to maintenance for the period of one year, which is fixed by the Kazı m order to discover whether the meanity is curable or The Mankie, with whom the author of the Hedaya seems to agree, deny to the wife the right of asking for a dissolution of the marriage tie on the ground of the husband's insamty Among them the wife, therefore ietains the right of maintenance during the meanity of her husband, however long con-With the Shiahs the wife is entitled to a cancellation of the marriage contract if the husband's insamity be incurable Should she exercise this right and dissolve the marriage her right to maintenance ceases

The Mahommedan law lays down dis tinctly (1) that a wife is bound to live with her husband, and to follow him wherever he desires to go, (2) and that on her refusing to do so without sufficient or valid reason, the courts of justice, on a sur for restitution of conjugal rights by the husband would order her to live with her husband.

"The wife cannot refuse to live with her husband on pretexts like the following

'(1) That she wishes to bve with her parenta

"(2) That the domicil chosen by the husband is distant from the home of her

"(3) That she does not wish to remain away from the place of her birth.

"(4) That the climate of the place where the husband has established his domical is likely to be injurious to her health

"(5) That she detests her husband "(6) That the husband ill-treats her frequently (unless such ill-treatment is actually proved, which would justify the Kazi ta grant a separation)

"The obligation of the woman, however, to live with her husband is not absolute. law recognises circumstances which justify her refusal to live with him. For instance, if he has habitually ill-treated her, if he has deserted her for a long time, or if he has directed her to leave his house or even connived at her doing so, he cannot require her to re-enter the conjugal domicil or ask the assistance of a court of justice to compel her The bad conduct or gross to hve with him neglect of the husband is, under the Mussulman law, a good defence to a suit brought by him for restitution of conjugal rights "In the absence of any conduct on the husband's part justifying an apprehension that, if the wife accompanied him to the place chosen by him for his residence, she would be at his mercy and exposed to his violence, she is bound by law to accompany him wherever he goes At the same time the law recognises the validity of express stipulations, entered into at the time of marriage, respecting the conjugal domicil. If it be agreed that the husband shall allow his wife to live always with her parents, he cannot afterwards force her to leave her father's house for his own. Such supulation in order to be practically carried into effect, must be entered in the deed of marriage, a mere vertal understanding is not sufficient in the eve of the law

"If the wife, however, once consent to leave the place of residence agreed upon at the time of marriage, she would be presumed to have waived the right acquired under express stipulation, and to have adopted the domicil chosen by the husband If a special place be indicated in the deed of marriage as the place where the husband should allow the wife to hve, and it appear subsequently that it is not suited for the abode of a respect able woman, or that injury is likely to bappen to the wife if she remain there, or that the wife's parents were not of good character the husband may compel the wife to remove from such place or from the house of such parents

"The husband may also insist upon his wife accompanying him from one place to another, if the change is occasioned by the requirements of his duty

"Every case in which the question of conjugal domicil is involved will depend, says Do Ménerville, upon its own special features, the general principle of the Mussulmen law on the subject being the same as in other systems of law, viz. that the wife is bound to reside with her husband, unless there is any valid reason to justify her refusal to do so The sufficiency or validity of the reasons is a matter fer the consideration of the Kazi or judge, with special regard to the position in life of the parties and the neages and customs of the particular country in which they reside "

Faqii Jam Muhammad As'ad, the author of the Akhlag-r-Jalati gives the following sage advice which expresses very much the ordinary Oriental view of the question -

As regards the Selection of a Wife

The best of wives would be such an one as is graced with intellect, honour, chastity, good sense, modesty, tenderness of heart, good manners, submission to her, busband, and gravity of demeanour Barren she should gravity of demeanour not be, but prolific. 4 free woman is preferable to a bond woman, masmuch as this supposes the accession of new friends and councetions, and the pacification of snemics and the furtherance of temporal interests Low birth is likewise objectionable on the same account A young maiden is to be preferred, because she may be expected more readily to attend to her husband's guidance and injunctions, and if she be further graced with the three quali ties of family, property, and beauty, she would be the acres of perfection

To these three qualities, however, sundry dangers may attach, and of these we should accordingly beware. For family engenders songert, and whereas women are noted for weskness of mind, she will probably be all the clower to submit to the husband's cou-rol, nay, at times she will view him in the light of a servant, which must needs prove a perversion of interest, an inversion of relation, and an injury in this world and the next. As to property and beauty, they are liable to the same inconvenience; while in beauty there is this further and peculiar evil, that a beauty is coveted of many, and since women possess less of that judgment which restrains from orime, it may thus lead to misobief without end

As regards the Management of a Wife.

There are three things to be maintained and three things to be avoided

Of the three things to be maintained —

1 Dignity —The husband should constantly preserve a digmined bearing towards her, that she may forbear to slight his commands and prohibitions This is the primary means of government, and it may be effected by the display of his metric and the concealment of his defects.

2. Complanance - He is to comply with his wife as far as to assure her of his affection and confidence otherwise, in the idea of having lost it, she will proceed to set herself in opposition to his will. And this withal, he is to be particular in veiling and secluding her from all persons not of the harim, in con-versing with her in conciliatory terms, and consulting her at the outset of matters in ench a manner as to ensure her consent (Observe the seclusion and secling is here put as a complement rather than a restraint.)

8 Towards her friends and connections he in to follow the course of deference, politeness, cordiality, and fair dealing, and never, except on proof of her depravity, to take any wife besides her, however superior in family, preperty and person. For that jealousy and acrimony which, as well as weakness of judgment, is implanted in the nature of women, mestes them to misconduct and vice Excepting, indeed, in the case of kings, who marry to multiply offspring, and to whom the wife has no alternative but obedience, plurality of wives is not defensible Even in the case of kings, it would be better to be cautious, for husband and wife are like heart and body, and like as one heart cannot supply life to two bodies, one man cannot properly provide for two wives or divide his affection equally between them

The wife should be empowered to dispose of provisions as occasion may require, and to prescribe to the domestics the duties they are to perform. In order that idlesees may not lead her into wrong, her mind should be kept constantly engaged in the transaction of domestic affairs and the superintendence of family interests.

As to the three things to ne avoided in a husband towards his wife .

1. Excess of affection, for this gives ber the predominance and leads to a state of perversion When the power is overpowered and the commender commanded, all regularity must infallibly be destroyed. If troubled with redundance of effection, let him at least conceel it from her

2. Let him not consult her on matters of paramount importance, let him not make her acquainted with his secrets, nor let her know the amount of his property, or the stores he casesses, beyond those in present consumption, or her weekness of judgment will infellibly set things wrong

3. Let him allow her no musical matruments, no visiting out of doors, no listening to man's stories, nor intercourse with women noted for such practices, especially where eny previous suspicion has been raised.

The particulars which wives should abide by are five —

1 To adhere to chastity

2. To wear centented demeanous

8. To consider their husband's dignity and treat them with respect.

4. To submit to their husband's directions

5. Te humour their husbands in their moments of merriment and not to disturb them by captious remarks

'The Rafuge of Revelation (Muhammad) asclared that if the worship of one created thing could be permitted to another, he would have enjoined the worship of husbands Philo sophers have said, 'A good wife is as a mother for affection and tenderness, as a lave-girl for content and attention, as a friend for con-cord and sincerity Whilet, on the other hand, a bad wife is as a rebel for unruliness and contumacy; as a fee for contemptuousness and reproach, and as a thiefful treacherous designs aron her husband's purse

The Arab philosophers also say there are five sorts of wives to be avoided the yearners, the favourers, the deplorers, the backbiters, and the toadstools. The yearner is a widow who has had a child by e former husband, and who will indulge her child out of the property of her present one favourer is a woman of property who makes a favour of bestowing it upon her husband The deploter is one who is the widow of a former husband whom she will ever ever to be better than her precent one. The back-biter is one invested with the robe of conti-zence, and who will ever and anon in his absence brand his blind side by speaking of his faults. The toadstool is an unprincipled beauty, whe is like regetation springing up to corruption. (See Albieg-1-Jaieli, Thomp sen's ed., p. 263.)

Mr Lane, in his Modern Egyptians, remarks -

"Polygamy, which is also attended with very migurious effects upon the morals of the husband and the wives, and only to be defended because it serves to prevent a greater immorality than it occasions, is more rare among the higher and middle classes than it is among the lower orders, and it is not very semmon among the latter — A poor men may indulya himself with two or more wives, each of whom may be able, by some art or occu-pation, nearly to provide her own subsistence, but most persons of the middle and higher orders are deterred from doing of by the con sideration of the expense and discomfort which they would mour. A man baving a wife who has the mistortune to be barren, and being too much attached to her to divores her, is sometimes induced to take a second wife, merely in the hope of obtaining off spring, and from the same motive, he may lake a third, and a fourth, but fickle passion is the most evident and common motive both to polygamy and repeated diverces. They are comparatively very few who gratify this passion by the former practice. I believe that not more than one husband among twenty has two wives

"When there are two or more wives belonging to one man, the first (that is, the one first married) generally enjoys the highest rank, and is called the great lady' Hence it often happens that, when a man who has already one wife wishes to marry another girl or woman, the father of the latter, or the female herself who is sought in marriage, will not consent to the union unless the first wife be previously divorced The women, of course, do not approve of a man's marrying more than one wife Most men of wealth, or of moderate circumstances, and even many men of the lower orders, if they have two or more wives, have, for each, a separate house"

Mrs Meer Hassan Ali, an Englishwoman who spent twelve years in a Mühammadan zananah at Lucknow, and who in 1832 published her Cheerrations on the Musaimans of

Indea, says

"Although he (the Muslim) may be the husband of many wives in the course of time, and some of them prove greater favourstes, yot the first wife takes precedence in all matters were dignity is to be preserved. And when several wives meet (each have separate habitations if possible), all the rest pay to the first wife that deference which superiority exacts from inferiors; not only do the secondary wives pay this respect to the first, but the whole circle of relations and friends make the same distinction, as a matter of course, for the first wife takes precedence in every way

· The latitude allowed by the law preserves the many-waved Musalman from the world's censure, and his conscience rests un accused when he adds to his numbers, if he cannot reproach ismself with having neglected or unkindly treated any of the number bound to him, or their children. But the privilege ir not always indulged in by the Musalmans; much depends upon encumetances, and more on the man's disposition. If it be the happy lot of a kind hearted, good mun to be married to a woman of assimilating mind, possessing the needful requirements to render home agreeable, and a prospect of an increasing family, then the husband has no motive to draw him into further engagements, and he is satisfied with one wife. Many such men I have known in Hudastan, particularly among the Say-yade and religious characters, who deem a ulurality of wives a plague to the possessors in proportion to their numbers."

There is a curious work published in Persian suittled Ketabs Kulmin Nanch, in which are given the maxima regarding wives as they are supposed to exist in Persia. It pretends to be a grave work, compiled under the direction of seven matron law givers, but is really a specimen of Persian humour, a jeu d'esprit, founded upon female customs and supersti-The work is of little worth as regards its legal value, but shows the popular views of Persian women regarding their own and the opposite sex. The chapter relating to "The Conduct of the Wife to her Husband, Mother-in-Law, and other Relations," is a fair specimen of its character "That man is to be praised who confines himself to one wife, for if he takes two it is wrong; and he will certainly repent of his folly. Thus say the seven wise women—

Be that man's life immersed in gloom Who weds more wives than one, With one his cheeks retain their bloom His voice a cheerful tone, These speak his honest heart at rest, And he and she are always blest But when with two he seeks for joy. Together they his soul armov With two no sun beam of delight Can make his day of misory bright

That man, too, must possess an excellent disposition who never fails to comply with his wife's wishes, since the hearts of women are gentle and tender, and harshness to them would be cruel If he he angry with her so great is her sensibility, that she loses her health and becomes weak and delicate wife, indeed, is the mirror of her husband, and reflects his character, her jovous and agreeable looks being the best proofs of his temper and goodness of heart She never of herself departs from the right path, and the colour of her cheeks as like the full blown rose but if her husband is continually angry with her, her colour fades, and her complexion becomes yellow as saffron He should give her money without limit God forbid that she should die of sorrow and disappointment! in which case her blood would be upon the head of her husband

The learned conclave are unanimous in declaring that many instances have occurred of women dying from the harbarous cruely of their husbands in this respect, and if the husband he even a day-labourer, and he does not give his wages to his wife, she will claim them on the Day of Judgment It is incumbent on the husband to hestow on the wife a daily allowance in cash and he must also allow her every expense of feasting, and of excursions and the bath, and every othe. kind of recreation If he has not generosity and pride enough to do this, he will assuredly be punished for all his sine and omissions on the Day of Resurrection. And whenever he goes to the market, he must buy fruit and other uttle things, and put them in his handkerchief, and take them to his wife, to show his affection for her, and to please her neart And if she wishes to undertake a little journey, to go to the house of her friends for a month, to attend the baths, or enjoy any other pastime, it is not fit for the husband to deny those wishes, and distress her much by refusal And when she resolves upon giving an entortainment, it is will that he should anticipate what she wants, and bring to her all kinds of presents, and food, an wine, required on the festive occasion. And in Sutertaining her guests, and mixing among them, and doing all that hespitality and cordian friendship demand, she is not to be interrupted or interfered with by her husband saying, 'What have you done? where have you been?' And if her female guests choose to remain all night, they must be allowed to sleep in the woman's room, while the hus-band sleeps apart and alone. The learned conclave unanimously declare that the woman who possesses such a husband—a man so accommodating and obedient, is truly fortunate, but if he happens to be of an opposite character, morose, disoblying, and irritable, then indeed must she be the most wretched of womankind In that case she must of necessity sue for a divorce, or make him faithfully promise future obedience and readi ness to devote himself wholly to her will and pleasure If a divorce is demed, she must then pray devoutly to be unburthened of her husband, and that she may soon become a widow By artifice and manœuvring the spouse may thus be at length induced to say 'Do, love, whatever you please, for I am your dutiful slave Bibi Jan Afroz says, 'A woman is like s nosegay, always retaining its moisture so as never to wither not, therefore, proper that such a lovely object should be refused the comfort and felicity of taking pleasant walks in gardens with her friends, and manifesting her hespi tality to her guests, nor as it reasonable that she should be prevented from playing on the dyra, and frequently visiting her acquain tance

"Should her husband, however, mahelously and vexatiously refuse these rights, she can not remain longer in his house. An old or ugly woman does not be under the same obligation, she may submit to any privation without infringing the rules of decorum The couclave also declare that the bushand mother, and other relations, are invariably minical to the wife it is therefore wajib that she should maintain her authority when thwarted in her views, by at least ence a day using her fists, her teeth and kicking and pulling their hair, till tears come into their eyes, and fear prevents further inter ference with her plans, Kulsum Nanch says that she must continue this indomitable spirit of independence until she has fully established her power, and on all occasions she must ring in her husbands ears the threat of a divorce. If he still resiste, she must redouble all the verations which she knows from experience irritate his mind, and day and night add to the batterness and misery of his condition. She must never, whether by day or by night, for a moment relax. For instance, if he condesseeds to hand her the loaf she must throw it from her, or at him, with indignation and con-tempt. She must make his shoe too tight for him, and his pillew a pillew of stone so that at last he becomes weary of his, and is glad to acknowledge her authority On the other hand, should these resources fail, the wife may privately convey from her husband's house everything valuable that she can lay her hands upon, and then go to the Kass, and complain that her husband has beaten her with his shoe, and pretend to shew the bruises on her skin. She must state such facts in fayour of her case as she knows cannot be refuted by evidence, and pursue every possible plan to escape from the thraidom she endures. For that purpose, every effort of every description is perfectly justifiable, and according to law

"And the seven learned expounders of the customs regarding the conduct and demoanour of women in Persia declare, that among the forbidden things is that of allowing their features to be seen by men not wearing turbans, unless indeed they are handsome, and have soft and captivating manners, in that case their veils may be drawn aside without the apprehension of incurring blame, or in any degree exceeding the discretionary power with which they are traditionally invested But they must scrupulously and religiously abstain from all such liberties with Millahs and Jews, since, respecting them, the pro-hibition is imperative. It is not necessary, however, to be very particular in the oresence of common people, there is nothing oriminal in being seen by singers, musicians, hammam-servants, and such persons as go about the streets to sell then wares and trinkets." (Atkinson's Customs and Manners of the Women of Pereta, p. 54)

WOMEN. Arabic nua' ( ......).

I - The Condition of Women before the time of Muhammad

Although the condition of women under Muslim law is most unsaturactory, it must be admitted that Muhammad effected a vast and marked improvement in the condition of the female population of Arabia

Amongst the Arabs who inhabited the was extremely degraded, for amongst the gan Arabs a woman was a mere chattel. She formed the integral part of the estate of her husband or father, and the widows of a man descended to his son or sons by right of inheritance, as any other portion of patri, mony. Hence the frequent unions between stop-sons and mothers-in-law, which were subsequently forbidden by Islam, were branded ander the name of Nikahu'l-Magt, or "odious marriages."

The pre-Islamic Arabs also carried their aversion to women so far as to destroy, by burying alive, many of their female children. This fearful eastom was common amongst the tribes of Quraish and Kurdah For although they used to call the angels "daughters of God," they objected (as do the Badawi to this day) to female offspring, and used to bury their infant daughters alive. This horrible custom is referred to in the Qur'an, where it is said, Sürah vi. 188. "Thus have their associates made seemly to many of the idolaters the killing of their children to destroy them " And, again, Sürah xv1.60,61 "When any one of them has tidings of a female child, his face is overclouded and black, and he has to keep back his wrath. He skulks away from the public for the evil tidings he has heard;—is he to keep it in diagrace, or to bury it in the dust?"

It is said the only time on which Usman shed a tear, was in the days of igno-rance, when his little daughter, whom he was burying alive, wiped the dust of the grave-

earth from his beard

The ancient Arabic proverbs illustrate the ideas of pre-Islamic Arabia as to the position of women, eg .

"A man can bear anything but the mention of his wives,"

"Women are the whips of Satan."

- " frust norther a king, a horse, nor a woman "
- "Our mother forbids us to err and runs into error
- · What has a woman to do with the councils of a nation?"
- "Obedience to a woman will have to be repented of

II - The Fearling of the Qur'an.

It has often been asserted by European writers that the Qur'an teaches that women have no sculs Such, however, is not the What that book does teach on the CASE subject of women will be gathered from the following selections -

Sürah axxın 85 -

" Verily the resigned men and the resigned women,

The behaving men and the believing women,

The devout men and the devout women, The truthful men and the truthful women,

The patient men and the patient women, The humble men and the humble women The charitable men and the charitable women,

The fasting men and the fasting women, The chaste men and the chaste women. And the men and women who oft remember God.

For them hath God prepared forgiveness and a mighty recompense

Sürah xxiv. 81 -

"Speak to the believing women that they refram their eyes, and observe continence, and that they display not their ornaments, except those which are external, and that they throw then veils over their bosoms, and display not their ornaments except to their husbands or their fathers, or their husbands fathers, or their sons, or their husbands' sons, or their brothers, or their brothers' cons, or their sisters' sons, or their women, or their slaves, or male domestice who have no natural force, or to children who note not wemen's nakedness And let them not strike their feet together, so as to discover their hidden ornaments. (See Isalah iii 16) And be ye all turned to God, O ve Behevers! that it may be well with you"

Strah iz 10-12 -

"O Behevers! when believing women come over to you as refugees (Muhājurs), then make trial of them God best knoweth their faith, but if ye have also ascertained their faith, let them not go back to the ni-fidels, they are not lawful for them, nor are But the unbelievers lawful for these women give them back what they have spent for their dowers. No crime shall it be in you to marry them, provided we give them their dowers. Do not retain any right in the in fidel women, but demand back what you have spent for their dowers and let the unbefrevers demand back what they have spent for their wives This is the ordinance of God which He ordaineth among you and God is Knowing, Wise.

'And if an, of your wives escupe from you to the Infidels from whom ve afterwards take any epoil, then give to those whose wives shall have fled away, the like of what they shall have epent for their doucis and fear God in whom ye believe

"O Prophet! when believing women come to thee, and pledge themselves that they will not assoc ate aught with God, and that they will not steal or commit adultery, nor kill their children, nor bring scandalous charges, nor disobey thee in what is right, then plight thou thy faith to them, and ask pardon for them of God for God is Indulgent Mer-ciful!"

Sūrah iv 1 -

"O Mon! fear your Lord, who hath created you of one man (nats, eoul), and of him created his wife, and from these twain hath spread abroad so many men and women And fear ye God, in whose name we ask mutual favours—and reverence the wombs that bare you. Verily is God watching YOU !

"And entrust not to the mespable the substance which God hath placed with you as a means of support but maintain them therewith, and clothe them, and speak to them with kindly speech

Men are supermr to women on account of the guanties with which God had gifted the one above the other, and on account of the outlay they make from their anbatance for them. Virtuous women are obedient, careful during the husbands absence, occause God hath of them been careful But chide those for whose refractormess ye have cause to fear, remove them into eleeping chambers apart, and scourge them, but if they are obedient to you, then seek not occasion against them, verily God is High, Great!

"And if a wife fear ill-usage or aversion on the part of her husband, then shall it be no fault in them if they can agree with mutual agreement, for agreement is best. Men's souls are prone to avarioe, but if ye act kindly and piously, then, verily, your actions are not unnoticed by God!

"And ye may not have it at all in your power to treat your wives with equal justice even though you fam would do so, but yield not wholly to disinclination, so that ye leave one of them as it were in suspense, if ye come to an understanding and act in the fear of God, then verily, God is Forgiving, Merciful!

· But if they separate God can compensate both out of His abundance, for God le Vast,

W139 1 '

Sürah Exiv 4-9 -

"They who defame virtuous women, and bring not four witnessee, scourge them with fourscore stripes, and receive ye not their testimony for ever for these are persuise per-8018-

"Save those who afterwards repent and live virtuously, for truly God is Lemient,

Merciful'

' And they who shall accuse their wives, and have no witnesses but themselves, the testimeny of each of them shall be a tostimony by God four times repeated, that he m indeed of them that speak the truth.

And the lifth time that the malison of God be upon him, if be be of them that

" But it shall avert the chasticement from her if she testify a testimony four times repeated, by God, that he is of them that

"And a fifth time to call down the wrath of God on her, if he have spoken the

trutb

III -The Teaching of Muhammud, as given in the Traditions,

will be gathered from the following quetations ~

'I have not left any calamity more detrimental to mankind than women.

"A bad omen is found in a woman, a house, or a borse

"The best women are these that ride on camels, and the virtuous women of the Quraish are these who are affectionate to young children and who are most careful of their husband's property "

"The world and eil things in it are valu able but-more valuable than all is a virtuous

Woman'

"Look to your actions and abstain from the world and from women, for verily the first ain which the children of Israel committed was on account of women.

"God will reward the Muslim who, having beheld the beauties of a woman, shuts his a Do not visit the houses of men when they are absent from their homes, for the devil circulates within you like the blood in your veins It was said, O Prophet, in your veins also?' He replied, 'My veins also But God has given me power over the devil and I am free from wickedness ""

"Two women must not eit together, because the one may describe the other to her husband, so that you might say the husband had seen her himself."

* De not follow up one look at a woman with another, for verily the first look is exonsable, but the next is unlawful

III .- Muhammadan law secures the following Rights to Women

An adult woman may contract herself in marriage without her guardian's consent and an adult virgin cannot be married against her will. When divorced or a widow, she is at liberty to marry a second husband She must be treated with respect and it is not lawful for a judge to see more than her face and the palms of her hands. She should go shroad veiled. She is not required to engage in war, although she may be taken by her husband on a military expedition, but she can have no share in the plander. She is not to be sizin in war

The fine for a woman is half that of a man. and in evidence the testimour of two women is but equal to that of one man except in the case of a birth, wher the evidence of one woman is to be accepted. Her evidence is not accepted in the case of retahation. [Quean] In the event of a person being found elain in the house or village belonging to a woman, the outh (in the matter of evidence) is administered to her fifty times re peatedly before the fine is imposed. If she apostatise from the faith of Islam, she is not to be put to death, but to be imprisened until she return to the faith for aithough Imam ash-Shaffi maintains that she is to be put to death, Imam Abu Hanifeb holds that the Prophet has forbidden the slaving of women, without making any distinction between those who are apostates or those who are original infidels. But, according to an express injunction, they are to be stoned to death for adultary, and beaten for formeshon. Women who have no means of subsistence are to be supported by the state.

(The law of divarce is treated under the article DIVORCE.)

It is a curious arrangement of Muslum law, that (according to the Hadayah, Grady's ed., p. 340) a woman may execute the effice of a basic or judge, except in the cases hadd and que, in conforming with the rule that her evidence is accepted in every legal case except in that of hadd and great, or "retaliation" There is, in fact, no distinct prohibition against a woman assuming the government of a state The rulers of the Muhammadan State of Bhopal in Central India have been women for several generations

IV -The Position of Women in Muhammadan Countries

has been the subject of severe entitiesm as well as of some controversy Mr Stanley Lane-Poole says -

"The fatel blot in lalam is the degradation Yet it would be hard to lay of women. the blame altogether on Mohammed. The real roots of the degradation of women he much deeper When Islam was matituted, polygamy was almost necessitated by the number of women and their need of support, and the facility of divorce was quite necessitated by the separation of the sexes, and the consequence that a man could not know or even see the woman he was about to marry before the marriage ceremony was accomplished It is not Mohammad whom we must blame for these great evils, polygamy and divorce, it is the state of society which de-manded the separation of the sexes, and in which it was not safe to allow men and women freely to associate, in other words, it was the sensual constitution of the Arab that lay at the root of the matter Mohammad might have done better He might boldly have swept away the traditions of Arab society, unveiled the women intermingled the sexes, and punished by the most severe measures any license which such association might at first encourage With his boundless influence it is possible that he might have done thus, and, the new system once fairly settled, and the people acoustomed to it, the good effects of the change would have bugun to show themselves But such an idea could never have occurred to him We must always remember that we are dealing with a social system of the seventh century, not of Mohammad's ideas about the ninetoenth women were like those of the rest of his con temporaries He looked upon them as charming snares to the believer, ornamental articles of furniture difficult to keep in order, pretty playthings, but that a woman should be the counsellor and companion of a man does not seem to have occurred to him It is to be wondered that the feeling of respect he always entertained for his first wife Khadeejeh, (which, however is partly accounted for by the fact that she was old enough to have been his mother) found no counterpart in his general opinion of womenkind . Woman was made from a crooked rib, and if you try to bend it straight it will break, therefore treat your wives kindly Mohammad was not the man to make a social reform affecting women, nor was Arabia the country in which such a change should be made, nor Arab ladies per haps the best subjects for the experiment Still he did something towards bettering the condition of women he limited the number of wives to four, laid his hand with the atmost severity on the incestuous marriages that were then rife in Arabia, compelled husbands to support their divorced wives during their four months of probation made arevotable diverce less common by adding the rough, but deterring, condition that a woman triply divorced could not return to her husband without first being married to some one else-a condition exceedingly disagreeable to the first husband, and required four witnesses to prove a charge of edultery against a wife—a merciful provision, difficult to be fulfilled The evil permitted by Mohammad in leaving the number of wives four instead of insisting on monogamy was not great. Without considering the sacrifice of family peace which the possession of a large harem entails, the expense of keeping several wives, each of whom must have a separate suite of apartments or a separate house, is so great, that not more than one in twenty can afford it It is not so much in the matter of wives as in that of concubines that Mohammad made an irrotrievable mistake. The condition of the female slave in the East is indeed deplorable She is at the entire mercy of her master, who can do what he pleases with her and her companions, for the Muslim is not restricted in the number of his concubines, as he is in that of his wives. The female white slave m kept solely for the masters sensual gratification, and is sold when he is tired of her, and so she passes from master to master, a very wreck of womanhood Her condition is a little improved if she bear a son to her tyrant, but even then he is at liberty to refuse to acknowledge the child as his own though it must be owned he seldon does this Kind as the Prophet was himself towards bonds women, one cannot forget the unutterable brutalities which he suffered his followers to inflict upon conquered nations in the taking of slaves The Mushim soldier was allowed to do as he pleased with any infidel weman he might meet with on his vic-torious march. When one thinks of the thousands of women, mothers and daughters, who must have suffered untold shame and dishonour by this license, he cannot find words to express his horror And this ornel indulgence has left its mark on the Muslim character, nay, on the whole character of Eastern life" (Selections from the Kur-un 2nd ed , Preface.)

 $\Gamma^{\rm he}$  strict legislation regarding women as expressed in Muhammadan law, does not affect their position amongst wild and uncivilized tribes Amongst them she is as free as the wild goats on the mountain tops Amongst the Afreedees in the Afghan hills, for example, women roam without protection from hill to hill, and are engaged m tonding cattle and other agricultural pursuits If ill-trested by their husbands, they either demand divorce or run away to some neighbouring tribe Not a few of the tribal fends arise from such car

enmetances

Amongst the Bedoums (Badists), Mr. Pal-grave tells us, their armies are led by a maiden of good family, who, mounted amid the fore ranks on a camel, shames the timid and excites the brave by satirical or enco-mastic recitations (Arabia, vol. ii. p 71)

The influence which Afghan women have exercised upon Central, Asian politics has been very great, and, as we have aiready remarked, the Muhammadan State of Bhopal in Central India has for several generations past been governed by female severeigns. CONCUBINES DIVORCE MARRIAGE, WIVES

WORD OF GOD INSPIRATION, OLD AND NEW TESTAMENTS, PROPRETS, QUE'AN ]

WOUNDS Arabic shipaj (sha), pl. of shapah The Muhammadan iaw only treats of wounds on the face and head, all other wounds being compensated for by arbitrary atonement

According to the Hidayah, shijaj are of ten kinds

Härtsah, a scratch, such as does not draw blood

Dami'ah, a scratch which draws blood without causing it to flow

Damyah, a scratch which causes the blood to flow

Baztah, a out through the skan.

Mutalakimah a cut into the flesh.

Simhaq, a wound reaching to the perioranium

Müsshah a wound which lays bare the bone

Hashimah, a fracture of the skull

Munagquah, a tracture which requires part of the skull to be removed Ammah, a wound extending to the mem brane which encluses the brain.

According to the injunctions of the Pro phet, a twentieth of the complete fine murder is due for musikah, a tenth to hashimak three-twentieths for munaggilah. and a third for animak. All other fines are left to the discretion of the judge

WRITING Arabic 'Ilmu 'l-Khatt (علم النما) Sir William Muir, in the Introduction of his Lafe of Makomet, writes on this subject as follows.

"De Sacy and Caussin de Perceval concur in fixing the date of the introduction of Arabic writing into Mecca at AD. 580 (Men. de l'Acad, vol. 1 p 806, C de Pere, vol. 1 p. 294) The chief authority is contained in a tradition given by Ibn Eballican, that the Arabic-system was invented by Moramir at Anbar, whence it spread to Hirs. It was thence, shortly after its invention, intro-duced into Mesca by Harb, father of Abu Sofian, the great opponent of Mahomet. (Ibn Khallican, by Slane, vol. is p 284) Other raditions give a later date, but M C de Perceval reconciles the discrepancy by referring them rather to the subsequent arrival some sealous and successful teacher than the first introduction of the art (vol. i 305). I would observe that either the ove traditions are erroneous, or that some rt of writing other than Arabic must have on known long before the date specified, A.D. 560 Abd al Muttalib is described writing from Mecca to his maternal relaces at Medina for help, in his younger ys, s.e about AD 520. And still farther ck, in the middle of the fifth century, issed (Questy) addressed a written demand a similar tenor to his brother in Arabia from (Kâtib al Wâchidi, 11½, Tabara, 28.)

"The Himyar or Mushad writing is said by in Khallican to have been confined to meen, but the verses quoted by C de inserval (vol. i. p. 295) would seem to imply at it had at one period been known and ed by the Meccans, and was in fact supmeted by the Arabic. The Syriac and brew were also known and probably extensely used in Medina and the northern parts. Arabla from a remote period.

"In fine, whatever the system employed by have been, it is evident that writing of me sort was known and practised at Mecca ing before A. 560 At all events, the fralent notices of written papers leave no om to doubt that Arebic writing was well lown, and not uncommonly practised, there

iown, and not uncommonly practised, there Mahomet's early days I cannot think, th Well, that any great 'want of writing aterials' could have been folt, even 'by e poorer Moslems in the early days of lasts' (Mohammed, p 350) 'Reeds and lm-leaves would never be wanting "(Mur's ahomet, Intro. p viii)

The intimate connection of the Arabic phabet, "as it is now in use, with the abrew, or rather Phomician elphabet, is own not only by the form of the letters emselves, but by their more ancient numeral arrangement, known by the name of bjad, and described under that head on ge 3 of the present work. This arrangement; it will be remembered, is contained in a six meaningless words.

The first six of these words correspond to a Hebrew alphabet, the last two consist of a letters peculiar to Arabio, and it will be on that the words about, knowers, and the case transmittention, express the nine lite, together with ten, kalamen and saifes, a tens from twenty to ninety, and qurashet, him, and rapage, the hundreds together the one thousand,

The present arrangement of the Arabic alphabet, in the form which the istters take as finals, is the following —

FINALS

| Order | ReducedOrder | Separate.                          | Joined.    | Trans-literation |
|-------|------------------|----------------------------------------|------------|----------------------|
| 1     | 1                | 1                                      | ı          | a (i, a)             |
| 2     | 1) (             | ب                                      | 4          | Ъ                    |
| 8     | 2                | 420                                    | -          | +                    |
| 4     | p t              | دىرق                               | مانمان |                      |
| K     | 1) [             | 8                                      |            | 1                    |
| 6     | } 8 {            |                                        | 2          | þ                    |
| 7     | K i              | t 3                                    | 8 6 4      | kh                   |
| 8     | 1 4              | 3                                      | ۵          | d                    |
| 9     | K ?              | E .                                    | -          | 5                    |
| 10    | 5                | 77 6 6 6 6 6 6 6 6 6 6 6 6 6 6 6 6 6 6 | ,          | r                    |
| 11    | 15 3             | 1 3                                    | }          | 2                    |
| 12    | 6                | س                                      | ښ          |                      |
| 13    | 13               | ھر ا                                   | عي         | sh                   |
| 14    | 7                | •                                      | من         | •                    |
| 15    | 13 3             | عب ا                                   | هي         |                      |
| 16    | 8                | -                                      | jaL    |                      |
| 17    |                  |                                        | *          | 2                    |
| 18    | 9                | Įξ                                     | Ç          | 1                    |
| 19    | K                | 3                                      | Ĉ          | gh                   |
| 20    | 10               | ٠                                      |            | 1                    |
| 21    | l' '             | ٤                                      | ا          | q                    |
| 22    | 11               | 3                                      | GD.        | ) k                  |
| 23    | 12               | ١                                      | J          | ] 1                  |
| 24    | 18               | r                                      | •          | 103                  |
| 25    | 14               | 9 6                                    |            | n                    |
| 26    | 15               | 1                                      |            | h                    |
| 27    | 16               | ,                                      | •          | W                    |
| 28    | 17               | 3                                      | ي          | 7                    |

On examining these characters, as repre sented in the above synopsis, it will at once be seen that, with the exception of the first and the seven last ones, such character stands for two or three sounds, their only distinction consisting in from one to three dots, which are added at the top or bottom of the letter, and that thereby the number of characters is reduced from twenty-eight to seventeen. It will, moreover, he noticed that several of these characters have an appendix or tail, which is well adapted to mark the end of a word, but which would prevent the letter from being readily joined to a following one, and therefore is dispensed with if the letter be initial or connected with others. pressing those dots and outsing off these bails, and arranging the characters in their reduced order, and in that form which fits them to appear as initials or medials, we obtain the following simplified schedule —

INTELS AND MEDIALS

| .L               |               |             |             |                 |
|------------------|---------------|-------------|-------------|-----------------|
| ReducedOrder | Final         | Initial | Me-dial | Value           |
| 1                | 11            | 1           | 1           | a (1, 11)       |
| 2                | ب ب           |             | •           | b, t, s         |
| 8                | 2 2           |             | -           | 1, h, kh |
| 4                | 2 2           | ່ ວ         | 7           | d, 7            |
| 5                | , ,           | ,           | 7           | 1, Z            |
| 6                | س س           |             |             | da ,۶           |
| 7                |               | 1 00        | -4          | 8, Z            |
| 8                | ص ص           | 1 L  | L L         | ķ, z            |
| 9                | 5 3           | 2           |             | ', gh    |
| 10               | د عله د ع |             |             | f, c            |
| 11               | لك ك          | 5           | ×    | k               |
| 12               | JJ            | 3           | 1           | 1               |
| 18               | 4 4           | *           | •           | m               |
| 14               | ט ט           |             | ٤           | n               |
| 15               | 8 4           | 4           | 6           | h               |
| 16               | , ,           | ,           | ,           | K               |
| 17               | ی ی           | 2           | •           | V               |
|                  |               |             |             |                 |

A further examination of this reduced list shows, that the characters, 1, 4, 5 and 16, 1, 2, 3 and 3, do not admit of the horizontal prolongation towards the left which serves to connect a letter with a following one, or, in other words, that they can only be joined to a preceding letter, and that the characters 14 and 17, viz. and 3, in their initial and medial form, differ from the character to only by the superadded dots, and may therefore count for one with it, finally limiting the number of characters to fifteen. Thus the whole Arabic alphabet resolves itself into the four eigns which can be joined to a preceding letter, but must, even in the middle of a word remain separate from a following one, and the eleven signs

۲ د رو

مصطعمكلية

which can be connected either way

These, then, are the graphical elements, in their simplest expression, by means of which Arabic, etymologically perhaps the richest language in existence, was originally written, and which were expected to transmit the sacred text of the inspired book to the coming generations. The first in the above series of connectible characters (s) represents five different sounds, b, t, g, n, and y, the second (a) three sounds, h, j, and kh, the next five (a, a, b, a, a), together with and two sounds each, s and sh, s and g, t and g, and gh, f and q, d and g, r and g, respectively, and only five out of the whole number of fifteen (g, a, l, s, l) are single signs for a single consonantal sound each. As for the vowels, only the long ones, $\bar{a}_i \bar{s}_i$, and $\bar{i}_i$, were in this system of writing graphically expressed, being represented by the so-called wesk consonants, $\bar{i}_j$, and $\bar{a}_i$, which, in this case, act as letters of prolongation. Yet the corresponding short vowels, $\bar{a}_i$, and $\bar{i}_i$, where of the utmost importance for the correct reading of a text, for the whole system of Arabic inflection is based upon them, and their faulty employment in the recital of the Qur'an would frequently lead to grave mistakes, or, at all events, grievously shock the pions and the learned.

So it will be easily understood that the want of additional signs was soon felt, to obviate this double insufficiency of the original alphabet, that is to say, on the one hand to distinguish between letters of the same form but of different sound, and on the other hand to show with what vowel a letter was to be encureed in accordance with the rules of the Prab or grammatical inflection.

rules of the Irab or grammatical inflection.

Accounts differ as to when and by whom these signs were invented and introduced into the sacred se well as the secular writing We must here at once remark that the form in which they now appear is by no means their oldest form, as we have also, with regard to the characters of the alphabet themselves, to distinguish between two styles of writing, the one called Cufic, used in inscriptions un monuments and coins, in copies of the Qur'an, and documents of importance, the other of a more cursive character, better adapted to the exigencies of daily life. This latter style it is true, seems to have existed, like the former, long before Muhammad, and resembles in a document of the second century of the Hijrah, which has come down to us already very much the so-called Naskhi character now in use. But the two kept from the first quite apart, and developed independently from each other up to the middle of the fourth century of the Muhammadan era when the more popular system began to supplant the older one, which it finally superseded even in the transcriptions of the sacred book

In tracing the origin of the vowel-marks and the discritical signs, as we may now oali them, in the first instance of the Oulic alphabet, we will follow Ibn Khallikan, whose information on the subject seems the most intelligible and self-consistent that has reached us In his celebrated biographical dictionary, he relates that Ziyad, a natural brother of the first Umaiyah Khalifah Mu'awiyah, and then Governor of the two 'Iraqs, directed Abu Aswad ad-Du'ili, one of the most eminent of the Tabi'un, to compose something to serve as a guide to the public, and enable them to understand "the book of God," meaning thereby a treatise on Grammar, the elements of which Abu Aswad was said to have learned from 'Ali, the son-in-law of the Prophet himself He at first asked to be excused, but when he heard a man, on reciting the passage (Sürah ix 3) Anna 'liaha bari'en masa 'lmushrikina wa rasiluku, pronounce the last word rasilike, which changes the meaning of the passage from "That God is clear of the idolaters, and His Apostle also," into "That God is clear of the idolators and of His Apoetle," he exclaimed, "I never thought that things would have come to such a pass." He then went to Ziyad and said, "I shall do what you ordered, find me an intelligent scribe who will follow my directions "On this a scribe belonging to the tribe of 'Abdu 1-Qais was brought to him, but did not give him satisfaction another then came, and 'Abdu 'l-Aswad said to him "When you see me open (fata) my mouth in pronouncing a letter, place a point over it, when I close (same) my mouth, place a point before the letter, and when I pucker up (kasar) my mouth, place a point under the letter "Noldeke, the learned author of Geschichte des Korans, rejects this part of the story as a fable, and it is certainly not to be taken in the literal sense, that each time a letter was pronounced, the scribe was supposed to watch the action of the dictator's lips But it scems ressonable enough to assume that in cases where much depended on the correct vocalisation of a word, and where the reciter would naturally put a particular emphasis on it, Abu Aswad should instruct his amannensis not to rely upon his ears only in fixing upon the sound, but also call the testimony of his eyes to his aid At any rate, Fathah, the name of the vowel-points fathah, "opening," for a, zammah, "contraction," for u, and kasrah, "fracture" (as the puckering up of the mouth may fitly be called), is well explained, and the notation itself for fathah, . for zammah and for kasrah, is that which we still find in some of the old Cufic manuscripts of the Qur'an marked in red ink or pigment Wo refer the reader to the first specimen of Cufic writing given below (p 687), which he is requested to compare with the transcript in the modern Arabic character and with our Roman transiteration, when i will readily perceive that the points or dots in the Cufic fragment coirespond to the short vowels of the transliteration, while, in the Arabic transcript, they serve to distinguish the consonants for instance, the point above the second icter of the third word, and it will at once be seen that in the Cufic form it expresses the a after the nof tanazzalat, for it recurs egain arter the in the last syllable, and that in the Naskhi character it distinguishes the # (1) neelf from the preceding double pointed to the think the preceding the pointed to the the think the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer of the transfer o tinctive sign in the Cufic

To return to Ibu Khallikan he relates in another place, after Abū Ahmad al-Ackari, that in the days of 'Abdu i-Malik ibn Marwan, the fifth Khalifah of the Umaiyah dynasty, the erroneous readings of the Qur'an had become numerous and sp ead through Traq This obliged the governor, al-Hajjāj ibn Yūsuf, to have recourse to his ketios, for the purpose of putting distinctive marks on the words of uncertain pronunciation, and it is said that Nasr ibn Asim undertook that duty and imagined single and double points (nugat, pl. of nugtah, "drop," "dot"), which he placed in different manners people then passed some time without making any copies of the Qur'an but with points, the usage of which did not, however, prevent some false readings from taking place, and for this reason they invented the I'jam (signs serving to distinguish the letters of the same form from one another), and they thus placed

the t'jam posteriorly to the nugat

Prima facie, this seems to contradict the passage quoted previously, according to which Abū Aswad would be the inventor of the augat or vowel-points, and the same remark apphes to another account of the same author, which we shall adduce presently Pending our attempt to reconcile the diffe rent statements, we notice here two fresh par-For the first ticulars of some importance time mention is made of double points, and we shall scarcely be wrong if we refer this to the way in which the Nunnation or Taucin, that is the sounding of an n after the vowels, is expressed in the early writing It is simply by doubling the vowel-signs in the same position in which the single points are of for an, of for un and of for placed Secondly, we meet with the distinct assertion that the invention of the span or discritical signs followed that of the sugar or vowel-points Noldeke thinks the reverse more probable, not only because the letter & (+) is found already pointed on coins of Abdu l-Malik, but also because the disorrtical signs are in the ancient manuscripts, like the letters themselves, written with black ink, while the vowel-points are always of a different colour But the early use of a pointed b does not prove that the other letters were similarly marked at the same time. On the contrary, if such a distinction was once established for the b, which would be most liable to be confounded with one of its four sister forms, the other characters of a like shape could for some time dispense with distinctive signs, as for an Arabian reader acoustomed to hear, see, and think certain groups of consonants together, and deeply imbued with an instinctive consciousness of the phonetic laws of his language, the danger of mistaking one letter for another would not be by far so great as it appears to us as for the argument taken from the different colour of the ink, Nöldeke himself remarks that it was natural to use the same tint for the consonants and their distinctive signs, which form only a part of them, while the vowsl-points are an entirely new element.

According to a third tradition, it was Yahya ibn Ya'mar (died A.H. 129) and al-Hasan al-Başrî (died A.H. 110), by whom al-Hajja caused the Qur'an to be pointed, and it is stated that Ibn Shirin possessed a copy of it, in which Yahya ibn Ya'mar had marked the vowel points He was remarkable as a Shi'sh of the primitive class, to use Ibn Khalhkan's expression one of those who, in assert-the superior morit of the People of the louse, abstatued from depreciating the mérit those Companions who did not belong to tat lamily It is related by Asim ibn Abi -Najid, the Qur'an reader (died a.m 127), at al-Hajji summoned Yabya on that secunt into his presence and thus addressed

"Do you pretend that al-Hasan and al usain were of the posterity of the Apostle i God? By Alish, I shall cast to the ground at part of you which has the most hair on (that is I shall strike off your head), un see you exculpate yourself ""If I do so," aid Yahya, "shall I have amnesty?" "You sail," replied al-Hajiāj "Well," said abya, "God, may His praise be exalted!

And We gave him (Abraham) lease and Jacob, and guided both aright, and We had before guided Noah, and of his posterity, David and Solomon, and Job, and Joseph, and Moses and Aaron Thus do We reward the lighteous Zachariah, John. Jesus, and Elias all were just persons.' (Sürah vi. 84, 85) ow, the space of time between Jesus and branam is greater than that which sepaited al-Hasan and al-Husain from Muhamad, on all of whom be the blessing of God id his salvation!" Al-Hajjaj answered, "I ust admit that you have got out of the difmilty, I read that before, but did not un-urstand it ' In the further course of con reation, al-Hajjaj said to him "Toll me I commit faults in speaking" Yahya mamed allent, but as al Hajjāj maisted on ving an answer, he at length replied "O nir, sirce you ask me, I must sav that you alt what should be depressed, and depress sat should be exalted" This has the immatical meaning You put in the nomitive (10f') what should be in the accusa-re (104b), and vice versa but it is at the me time an epigrammetical stricture on al ujai's arbitrary rulership, which, it is said, m for Yahya the appointment as Qazī in arw, that is to say, a honorary banishment m the former's court.

According to other sources, Yahya had quired his knowledge of grammar from w Aswad sd-Du iii It is related that, an Abh Aswad drow up the chapter on agent and patient (fail, subject, and ful, object of the verb), a man of the tribe Lais made some additions to it, and that it Aswad, having found on examination it there existed, in the language of the det Arabs, some expressions which could not made to enter into that section, he stopped ort and ahandened the work Ibn Khai an thinks it possible that this person was hyā ibn Ya'mar, who, having contracted alliance by oath with the tribe of Lais, s considered as one of its members. But it squally possible that the before-mentioned ar ibn 'Asim whose patronymic was alisi may have been that man, and this presention would enable us to bring the difent statements which we have quoted mto some harmony. To Abt Aswad the honour can scarcely be contested of having invented the same yows-points or sugar Naar ibn 'Asim, walking in his track, may have added the double points to designate the Tanwin. Lastly, Yahya would have completed the system by devising the sydes, or discritical signs of the consonants, and introduced it to a fuller extent into the writing of the Quran, in which task he may have been assisted by al-Hasan al-Basel, one of the most learned and accomplished Qur'an-readers amongst the Täbian.

But whoever may have been the inventor of the discritical signs in their earlier form, we must again remark that their shape in Cune manuscripts, like that of the vowelpoints, is essentially different from the dots which are now employed for the same per-pose. They have the form of accents (##), or of horizontal lines (##), or of triangular points, either resting on their basis or with their spex turned to the right ( ~ 1). As it cannot be our intention to give here an exhaustive treatise on Arabic writing, we pass over the remaining orthographical signs made use of the the old copies of the Gur'an, in order to say a few words on the system of netation which is employed in the Naskhi character and our modern Arabic type

If, with regard to the Oufic alphabet, we have spoken of discritical signs to distinguish between the consonants, and of vowel-points, we must now reverse these expres sions, calling the former discritical points, the latter vowel-signs. For, as already has been seen from the synopeus of the alphabet on p 681, the point or dot is there made use of for the distinction of consonants, while the vowels, which in the Greek and Latin alphabets rank as letters equally with the consenants, have no place in that synopsis As this style of writing was to serve the purposes of daily life, it is probable that the want of some means of fixing the value of the consonants was here more immediately felt, and that therefore the use of points for this end preceded the introduction of the vowel marks, or to speak more accurately, of marks for the short vowels. For the long vowels a s, and u, were, as in the Onfic writing, also expressed by the weak consonants I, and , taken as letters of prolongation

When, later on, the necessity arose to represent the short vowels equally in writing, the point or det, as a distinctive mark, was disposed of, and other signs had to be in-vented for that purpose. This was accomvented for that purpose. This was accom-plished, we are told, by al-Khalil, the sele brated founder of the Science of Arabic Prosedy and Metric. His device was samply to place the abbreviated form of the beforementioned weak consonents themselves above or beneath the letter after which any short vewel was to be pronounced. The origin of the samual or u (___) from the , is at once evident. The sign for the fitthet or e (___) differe only by its slenting position from the mentary to the Arabic alphabet, which may be called orthographical signs, and which, in their present form, were probably also invented and introduced by al-Khalil, at all events, this is distinctly stated with regard to two of them, the Hamush and the Tashdid. The Hamsah, to be well understood, must be considered in connection with the letter 'ain (2) of which its sign (a) is the abbreviated form. If the latter assertion needed proof against the erroneous opinion, put forth by some writers, that the Hamzah is derived from the , this proof would be afforded by the following anecdote. The Khalifah Harunu 'r-Rashid was sitting one day with a favourite negro conoubine, called Khāllaah, when the poet Abu Nuwas entered into his presence and recited some verses lu his praise Absorbad in conversation with the fascinating alays-girl, the Khalifah paid no attention to the poet, who, leaving him in anger, wrote upon ar-Rashid's door —

لقد ماع همری علی بابکم کما ماع عقد علی

Lagad zā'a shi rī 'ala bābikum, kama zā'o 'igdun 'ala Khālisah.

"Forsooth, my poetry is thrown away "t your door, as the jewels are thrown away on the neck of Epalicah"

When this was reported to Hārun, he ordered Abū Nuwās to be called back. On restring the room, Abū Nuwās effaced the final stroke of the g in the word gla ($\vec{a}^*a," is lost" or "thrown away"), changing it thereby into $\vec{a}\lambda_s$ ($\vec{a}^*a\rangle," written with the Hamsah and entirely different in meaning For when the Khalifah asked "What have you written upon the door?" the answer was now

"Truly, my poetry sparkles upon your door, as the jewels sparkle on the neck of Khālisah."

The fact is, that both the letter ain and the Hamsah are different degrees of the distinct effort, which we all make with the muscles of the threat, in endeavouring to prenounce a vewel without a consonant. In the case of the 'ara, this effort is so strong for the Arabie organ of speech, that it partiakes in itself of the nature of a consonant, and found, as such, from the first, a representative in the written alphabet, while the slighter effort, embedied in the Hamsah, was left to the utterance of the speaker. But when their language became the object of a favourite study with the learned Araba, this difference not only called for a graphical expression, but led even to a further distinction between what is called Hamzatu 'l-Qat' or Hamzah of Disjunction, and Hamzatu'l-Wusl or Hamzah of Conjunction. We will try shortly to explain this difference

If we take the word polanir, "a com-mander or chief," the initial a remains the same, whether the word begins the sentence or is preceeded by another word we say is per amirun qala, "a commander said" (according to the Arabic construction litewell as for a commander, he said"), as well as yell of a commander, there said a commander" (in Arabic literally "he said, namely, a commander"). Here the Hamsah (a), with the Alif (t) as its prop and the fathah or a as its vowel, is called Ham zatu 'l-Qat', because in the latter case it disjoins or cuts off, as it were, the initial a of the word amirun from the final a of the word qala, and the same holds good if the Hamzah is pronounced with t, as in imerah, "commandership," or with u, as in alpoi umara, "commandors," plural of amer But it would be otherwise with If al if Joined a of the article with the word amir In الأسر قال al-amiru qula, "the commander said," it would preserve its original sound, because it begins the sentence, but if we invert the order of words, we must drop it in pronunciation altogether, and only sound the final a of qāla instead, thus qāla 'l-nmira, ' said the commander,' and the same would take place if the preced ing word terminated in another vowel, as yagulu 'l-umuru "saye the commander," or be-gonds 'l-umuru ' by the word of the commander." Here the Hamzah would no longer be written but _ (, ) ju, etc.), and would be called Hamzatu 'L Wasl or Hamzatu 's-Sılah, because it joins the two words together in closest connection.

In the article, as it has been stated above, and in the word aiman, ' oath," the original sound of the Hamzatu ! Wast is fathan. a , it occurbesides in a few nouns, in several derived forms of the verb, and in the Imperative of the primitive triliteral verb, in all of which cases it is sounded with basrak or a, except in the Imperative of those triliteral verbs whose corist takes zammah or u for the vowel of the second radical, where the Ham sah is also pronounced with zammak ( ...... unkut, " be silent"). But the reader must always keep in mind that it preserves this original pronunciation only at the beginning of a serience if it is preceded by any other word, the final vewel of that preceding word takes the place of the Hamzab, and if this word terminates in a consonant, the Hammh is generally pronounced with a - We say generally because the only exceptions are after the proposition on min, where it is sounded with a, and after the pronounnal affixes of the second and third person plural, kum and he kum, where it takes u

We can pass over more rapidly the other signs of this class, which are the Maddah, the Tashdid, and the Jazmah or Sukun If in consequence of any grammatical operation an Alif, as prop of a Hamzah sounded with futbah, comes to stand before another such Alif, we write \( \), profounced \( \tilde{a} \), instead of \( \tilde{1} \), and the upper horizontal sign is called Maddah or Madd, "lengthening," prolongation "While thus the Maddah is the sign for the doubling of an Alif, the Tashdid (__is the sign for the doubling of a consonant (_=bb) if, lastly, a consenant is not to be followed by a vowel, the sign or _ named Inz mah (cutting off) or Sukun (rest), is placed above it, and the consonant is called "quiescent" (sāknah), in contradistinction from a "moved" consonant (muharakuh), that is, one sounded with a vowel (harakah, "motion")

We have seen that the Hamratu 1-Qat'

(_______) is an abbreviated form of the letter

'Ain (E) In similar manner, the sign for the Hamzatu 'l-Wael or Hamzatu 's Silah

(______) is an abbreviated form of the initial

(_______) is an abbreviated form of the sign for the Maddah (_______), as written in old manuscripta, seems to be a stretched out form for the word Madd (________) itself, and the sign for the Tashdid (________) represents the initial a of the word Shiddah, which is the technical term for it The original sign for the Jazimah

(________) is the expher or zero, employed to indicate the absence of a yowel sound. A native
Arab scholar of our days, the late Nasif al Yaziji of Beyrout, has combined the vowel marks as well as the last-mentioned orthographical signs in the words

أيط الهجاء

Akhuttu 'l-hıya'a

"I write out the Alphabet," and these words, together with the two formulas given on page 682 (,,,) and collapses), and the dot as a discritical sign, contain the whole system of Arabic writing, as it were, in a nut shell.

However indispensable these various supplementary signs may seem to us for fixing the meaning of an Arabic text educated Araba themselves look at them in a different light Although the need for them was from the first most urgently felt for the purpose of securing the correct reading of the Qur'an, several of the learned doctors of early Islam atrongly opposed their introduction into the sacred book as a profane innovation. The great Sunni traditionist, Malik ibn Anas (died A.m. 179), prohibited their use in the copies employed at the religious service in the mosque (ummahātu "I-masāht"), and allowed them only in the smaller copies, destined for the instruction of the voung in schools. In course of time, however, when even the office of reading the Qu'an publicly mere and more frequently devolved upon persons who had not received a special theological training, the necessity of carefully marking the text with these signs all through went on 'ncreasing, and became at last a generally acknowledged principle In secular literature and in epistolary intercourse amongst the educated, on the contrary, their use should, according to the competent authorities, be limited to those cases where ambiguity is to be apprehended from their omission If there is no danger of miscomprehension, we are told by Haff Khalifah, it is preferable to omit them, especially in ad-dressing persons of consequence and refinement, whom it would be impolite not to suppose sudded with a perfect knowledge of the written language Moreoyer, to a chastened taste, a superabundance of those extraneous signs seems to disfigure the graceful outline of the Arabic character When a piece of highly elaborate penmanship was presented to 'Abdu Ilah ibn Tähir, the accomplished governor of Khurasan under the Abbaside Khalifah al-Ma'mun, he ex-claimed, How beautiful this would be if there were not so much corrander seed scattered over it. The discritical points of the consenants, of course, are now always added, for they have grown to be considered as integral elements of the alphabet steelf Their absonce, or their accidental misapplication. gave rise, in former times, to numberiess indi erous or serious perplexities and mistakes, instances of which abound in Muhammadan history Al-Baladori, e.g., relates that the poet al-Farazdaq (died AH 110) intercoded by letter with Tamim, governor of the bonn daries of Sind, in order to obtain release from military service for the son of a poer woman of the tribe of Tai) The youth woman of the tribe of Tai. The youth' name was Hubaish ( ), but as the dis ritical points were not marked in al-Farazana's lstter, Tamım was at a loss whether to read Hubeish or Khunnis ( and solved), and solved the difficulty by sending home all soldiers whose names contained the dubious letters. A more tragical event is record d by Hāji Khalifeh, to which we would fam apply the Italian saying Se non e vere è b trovato The Khalifah al Mutawakkel is said to have sent an order to one of his officials to ascertain the number of Zimmis in his province, and to report the amount Unfortunately, "a drop fell, as the Arabic original expresses it. upon the second letter of the word (ahai, "count"), and the result was, that the officious functionary submitted the ill-fated Zimmis to a certain painful and degrading operation, in consequence of which they all died but two.

On the other hand, the employment of these signs in the Qur'an, together with several others, to mark its division into verses, chapters, sections, and portions of sections, to call attention to the pauses that should be observed in reciting it, and to indicate the number of rutue or inclinations with which the recital is to be accompanied, gave cocasion for graphical embellishment of various kinds. Brilliantly coloured ink or a solution of gold to write with, delicately tinted and smoothly pressed pergament or paper, frequently overspread with gold or silver dust, highly finished ornamental designs of that fanciful and elegant description which has received the name of arabesques, such are the means which serve to render the copies of the Quran of the haloyon days of Islam gorgeous and oftentimes artistically beautiful Writing became indeed an art, diligently cultivated, and eloquently treated upon in prose and verse by its possessors, to whom it opened access to the most exalted positions in the State Amongst the most celebrated calligraphists are mentioned thu Wazir Muhammad ibn Ali ibn Muqlah (died A.H. 828), 'Alī ibn Hilāl, surnamed al-Bauwāb (died A H. 413), and Abû 'd-Durr Yaqût ibn Yaqût ibn 'Abdi 'llah ar-Rûmi al-Must'asam. (died AH 698), whose father and grand-father had excelled in the art before him, but who, according to Haji Khalifah, was never surpassed in it by any of his successors
It was a natural consequence of the general development of the art of writing, that various styles were invented and oultivated independently of each other, and it will now be our task shortly to speak of the principal varieties, trying to describe their distinguishing features by help of a few illustrations chosen from Bresnier's Cours de Langue Arabe Along with the fundamental distinction already mentioned, of the Cufic or monumental, and the Naskhi or manuscript style, there runs, in the first instance, that of the Maghrib-Berber or Western, and Mashrio or Eastern style. It must, however be re-marked, that the Western Naskhi stands in closer connection and has preserved a greater resemblance with the Western Cufic, than is the case with the Eastern Naskhi in reference to the Eastern Cufic, as the reader will scarcely fail to perceive on comparing the following specimens

The first is the before-mentioned fragment of the Qur'an, written in the Cufic manuscript style, and provided with the vowel-points as invented by Abū Aswad ad-Du'll (or Nasr 1bn 'Asim, see page 682) Like the remainder of our specimens, we accompany it with a transcript in modern type, a transliteration in Roman character, and a rendering into English.

No 1

CUFIC MANUSCRIPT CHARACTER.

Wa mā tunuzzalat bi-ki askshayatını wa mã yanbaghi la-hum wa mê (gastați ina).

"The Satans were not sent down with it (the Qur'an) it beseemed them not, and they had not the power"

(Sürah xxvi. 210, the words in italice correspond to the word yastati ma, which is not contained in the Cufic original)

The next two specimens illustrate the Oufic style, as it is employed on monuments, and more particularly so its Maghrebian development.

नातिहाः विकासितिति मातिना मारिक्षेत्रे भागा निष्ये

CUTIC MONUMENTAL CHARACTER

No 2 is part of an inscription copied from a public building in Tarragona in Spain. It

سم الله بركة من الله لعبد الله عبد الرحمن المرابع المومنين الحال الله (بقامة)
Bi-ami 'llāhi! barakatuu mna 'llāhi!-'abdi llähr abdi 'r-rahman amiri 'l-mu'minina atāla 'llāhu (baqā'a hu)

"In the name of God! May a bleasing from God be upon 'Abdillah 'Abdurrahman, Commander of the Faithful; may God lengthen his life"

No 3

MAGHRIB MONUMENTAL CHARACTER.

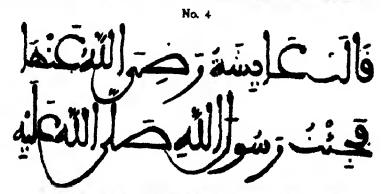

No 3, an inscription taken from the Al hambra, exhibits a style of monumental writing which can scarcely be called Cuffe any longer, so much resembles it the Naskhi character. While in the previous specimen neither vowel points nor discritical signs are made use of, here we find them employed in the shape, which they assume in manuscripts written in that hand. The reader will not have much difficulty in tracing the component letters by comparison with the following transcript and transliteration.

يا وارث الانمار لا عن كلاله تراث جلال تستخف الرواسيا

Yā warışa 'l-anşārı lā 'an kalālulin turaşa jalālın tastakhiffu 'r rawāsiyā

"O thou who inheritest from the Ansars, and not by way of distant kindred, a neirloom of glory that makes every summit of fame appear low" It will be noticed that the $ (f) of the word tastable fix is left without the discritical point which distinguishes this letter from the letter $ (q). This tallies with a remark of Hājī Khalifah, according to which the discritical points of these two latters may be put or omitted as librium, and we seem therefore justified in concluding that the necessity for their distinction was latest felt and provided for Hence arises one of the peculiarities which at once mark the difference between the Western and Eastern styles of writing, and which the reader will observe in the pext three specimens, presenting instances of the Maghrib manuscript character.

The first (No 4) is written in a bolder hand, and consequently shows more strikingly the close relationship with the monumental style of the Western Arabs

TYPICAL FORM OF THE MAGNETS HARUSCRIFT GRARACTER

قالت عايشة رمى الله عنها فجدُّت رسول الله ملى الله عليه

Qālat 'Ayıshatu razıya 'llāhu 'an-hā fa-ji'tu rasūla 'llāhı şalla 'llāhu 'alaı-hı

"'Ayishah, may God be gratious to her, related

I went to the Apostle of God, may God's blessing be upon him," &c

On comparing the initial letter of either line, it will be found that the one is 3 (in  $q\bar{a}lat$ ), the other 3 (in fa-p; tu), but in the Maghrebian original, the former is marked by a dot above, the latter by a dot beneath the character, instead of the superscribed double and aingle point respectively in the tran-script. This is the distinguishing feature between the two styles previously alluded to, and it seems to prove that the use of the diacritical points for these two letters is of later origin, and dates from a time when the two great divisions of the nation had definitely separated and followed each their own destimes Another point to which we draw at tention, is the different form of the Tashdid, The Maghrib as seen in the word Allah form 18 \_\_ matead of \_\_\_, and while in the Oriental writing the vowel signs are placed over it, the Western style places the sign for the Tashdid and for the vowel frequently side by side, as it is done here.

No 5

ٵڒڸۼ۫ٳڮڗۼۣ؞ٵڵڎٵڵۼؙڒڣڝؠٞۏالۻٚڗۼۿڬۅيؖڐ ۊڵڒڣؙڎۻٷۊالۼڔؠؘڋڂۼؿۊاڵڣڞٙؠؙٞؖڠٮڛ؉

GOOD MACHRIB WRITING

قال اظراط رحمه الله العمر قمير والمناعة طويلة والوقت ضيق والتجربة خطر والقفاه عسر والوقت خيق والقاد عمر والمناد عمر والقاد عمر والقاد القاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد والقاد و

- "Hippocrates, may God have compassion upon him, said Life is short, art is long.
  - Time is parrow, experience dangerous, judgment difficult "

No 6:

إِنَّا بِهِ إِللَّهُ إِنْ مَعَدُّ مَهُ وَهُ الرَّالِيَّ بِإِللَّهُ الْعُلِلَ الْمُعَدِّ مِنْ آلِ لِهِ لِكُنَّةُ الْمُنْ مِنْ الْمُنْ الْمُنْ الْمُنْ الْمُنْ الْمُنْ الْمُنْ الْمُنْ الْمُنْ الْمُنْ الْمُنْ الْمُنْ الْمُنْ الْمُنْ الْمُنْ الْمُنْ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ الللْمُولِ الللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ الللْمُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ الللْمُ اللللْمُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ الللْمُلْمُ اللَّهُ اللللْمُولِ الللْمُلْمُ اللللْمُلْمُ الللْمُلْمُ الللْمُلْمُ الللْمُلِمُ الللْمُلْمُ ال

SCPREIOR MACHRIS WEITING

أن أبقراط لم يالن لمن دعته ههوله الى الشرب بالليل أن يشوب أو لشرب لكنه أن هرب ونام بعد هوله قاله أجود من أن لا ينام ودلك لان النوم يتدارك أور الشرب وللك أن العادة لم

عبر بالشرب بالليل فادا هرب فية فلا محالة أن ذلك الشرب يحدث فى الهدم فجاجة وفسادا كحال الماء السارد أذا سب فى قدر فيها طعام وهو يغلى على النار

Inna Abugrāta lam yazan h-man da'at-hu shahsoatu-hu ila 'sh-shurbi bi-'l-laiti an yashraba an lä yaskruba läkinna-hu in shariba wa nama ba'da shurbi-hi fa'inna-hu ajwadu min asi lä yanāma we zālika li`anna 'n-nauma yatadāraku parara 'sh-shurbi wa zālika anna 'l-'ādata lam tajrı bir'sh-shurbı bı 'l-luslı fa 'ızā sharıba fi-hı fa-lā mahalata anna zālıka 'shshurba vuhdusu skurba yuhdışıı fī 'l-haşmı fajājatan wa fasāden ka-hālı 'l mā'ı 'l-bārıdı ızā subba fı qudrın fi-hā ta'āmun wa huwa yaghk 'ala 'n-

"Hippocrates neither allows nor forbids a man, who has a desire to drink at might-time, to satisfy his desire If, however, he drinks, and sleeps after drinking, it is better than not to sleep, this being so because sleep counteracts, in this case, the evil effect of drinking, for it is not customary to drink at nighttime, and if one does so, this will of necessity produce a disturbance and derangement in the digestion, just as if sold water were poured into a vessel containing food that is being boiled."

These two fragments scarcely call forth any further remark, except that in the last both forms of the Tashdid are employed, the ordinary form even more frequently than the Maghrebian for the latter occurs only twies, in bi-'sh-shurbs, which is the second word in the fourth line, and in ash-shurbs, which is the last word but one in the same line Moreover, it will be useful to notice the peculiar shape which the letters J(d) and J(x) take in the Maghrib character, as in the words aswads towards the end of the second line, and ya'gan near the beginning of the first.

Desmissing the Maghrib-Berber style of Arstic writing, with its numerous local varieties, as less interesting for the English reader, we now turn to the Oriental style, where we meet again with a bipartition, viz. into the Eastern Naskhi, as it is written in Arabia itself, Egypt, and Syria, and the Tailiq, current in Persia, India, and Central Asia.

No 7 is a specimen of the Naskhi in the more limited sense of the word, meaning the style generally employed in manuscripts, and derived from naskhon nuskhoh, "copy"

No 7

قَالَيَا حَمُ النِّهُمْ فِي النَّهُ فَلَمَا النَّالَةُ فِي النَّالِمُ قَالَا لَمُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ الللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ الللَّهُ الللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللللَّهُ

NAMEHI CHARACTER FROM A GOOD EGYPTIAN MANUSCRIPT

قال یا آدم البثهم باسمائهم فلما الباهم باسمائهم قال الم اقل لکم الی اعلم غیب السموات والارض واعلم ما تبدوں وما کنتم تکتموں ، وال قلنا للملاقکت اسجدوا

Qāla yā Adamu 'nbi'-hīm hī-asmā'i-hīm falammā anba'a hum bī-asnā'i-hīm qala alam aqul la-kum

Anni a'lamu gharba 's-samawâti' wa 'larzı wa a'lamu mā tabdūna

We mâ kuntum taktumüna Wa 14 qulnü lı-'l-malâ'ı-katı 'syudü "He said 'O Adam, inform them of their names,' and when he had informed them of their names, He said; 'Did I not say to you,

That I know the hidden things of the heavens and of the earth, and know what we bring to helt what ye bring to light,

And what ye hide?' And when we said to the angels 'Bow down'."

(Sårah il. 31, 82.)

From this ordinary Naskhi several more create manuscript styles are derived, as the Rihami, Yaquii, and Sulus. They are distinguished principally by the relative proportions of the characters, and in the Sulus.

in particular, of which we give a specimen under No 8, the letters are three times the size of the ordinary Naskhi, while the Rihānī and Yāqūti show intermediate proportions between the two

No 8

SULUS STYLE

كنت نبيا والادم بين الماء والطين Kuntu nabiyan wa 'l-adamu basna 'l ma r wa 't-fins

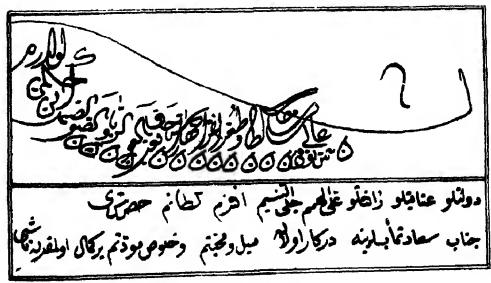

"I was a prophet, when man was yet a mixture of water and clay '

It will be observed that beneath the (m) of the words [3] (al-adamu) and [3] (al-mā'i), in the Sulus fragment, the letter is written a second time in a smaller character and that, moreover in the word [3] it is surmounted by the sign [3], which in Maghnb writing, as we have seen, generally represents the Tashdid This is done in the above-mentioned cornate styles, especially with those letters which admit of discritical points, viz. [5, 3, 5, 4]. E. A. To indicate that no such discritical point is intended, the sign [3] is placed on the top of the letter, or to make still curer of preventing a mistake, the letter itself is repeated in a minute shape at the bottom. Only the letter a(h), as distinguished from  $\tilde{s}(t)$ , is, in this case, written above the line, because it frequently occurs as abbreviation of ab hiwa, "He," or all Allah, "God," and it would therefore be considered irreverential towards the Deity to write it beneath the other letters. As a feature common to this division of the Eastein Arabic manuscript style, we lastly point out the inclination of the characters from the left to the right, in contradistinction both to the Maghrib and Ta liq writing, where the letters are traced perpendicularly, or even with a slight bend from the right to the left

Two other deviations from the pure Naskhi style are the Jan and Diwani, officially employed in Turkey, and exhibited in the specimen No. 9—

No 9

The Jars fragment in the upper division is a faceimile of the formula which accompanies the seal of the Sultan, and runs as follows.—

نشان هریف عالیشان سامی مکان ولغرای غرای جهان ارای ستان عاقان نفذ یالعون الزبانی والمون الممدانی حکمی اولدر که

Nishāns sharifi 'ālīshān sāmi makān va tvahrā'i gharrā'i jihān arā'i sitāni khā- gān nufiza bi 'l-aun ar-rabbānī wā 'ssaun as samadāni ļukmi oldur ki

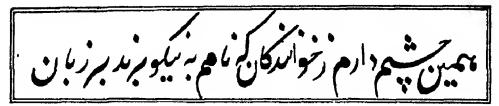

"This is the noble, exalted, brilliant sign mannal, the world illuminating and adorning cipher of the Khāqān (may it be made efficient by the sid of the Lord and the protection of the Eternal)
His order is that, etc "

The beauty of this style is considered to consist in its being written either diagonally from the top to the bottom of the page, or ascending eliptically from the bottom to the top

The Diwani style, of which the lower division gives an example, is used in the official correspondence of the Turkish administration. The final letters, and even words, are placed on the top of one another, and its more intricate varieties the letters run together in a fanoiful manner, which randers the decipherment of this writing frequently very difficult

Finally, we present in No. 10 a specimen of the Persian Ta'liq writing —

No. 10

TA'LIQ CHARACTER

همین چشم دارم ر خوانندگان که نامم به نیکو برند بر زبان

Hamın chashmı däram zı khwānandagūn Kı nāmam ba nıkū barand bar zabān

"Such hope I cherish that in minstrel's lay,

With right fair fame my name will live

(Firdaust)

From this style of writing the Shikastah is derived, and bears the same relation to it which the Diwani bears to Naskhi While in general preserving the peculiar outline of the Tarliq, it superposes finals and words, and joins letters in a similar way to the Diwani, with which, however, it contrasts favourably by a far more elegant and graceful delineation of the characters

It remains now only to add a few words on the writing materials which the Arabs, and Orientals in general, make use of From the nature of the character and from the direction of the writing from the right to the left, it will be easily understood that our quill and steel pens would answer the purpose rather indifferently. The bolder stroke requires a broader nib, and, at the same time, the edges of the writing instrument should be smooth enough to glide with ease over the paper, so as to enable the hand to give that fine swing and swell to the curved lines, which form one of the chief beauties of the Arabio writing. These conditions are admirably fulfilled by the qulum or reed pen. For the same reasons their ink is richer and their paper more glossy than those which we employ ourselves. The best ink is said to be made of lamp-black and vinegar or verjuice, to which red ochre is added, well beaten up and mixed with yellow arsenic and camphor. The paper, before being used for writing, is submitted to the action of the press, or made smooth by placing it on a well-levelled board of chestnut wood, and polishing it with an egg of crystal of about half a pound's weight.

We cannot here enter into further particulars on the subject. The reader who might feel interested in it, will find some curious details in a short poem by Abū 'l-Hasan 'All ibn al Bauwāb, which De Sacy has published and translated in his Chrestomathic. As mentioned before, this calligraphist was one of the greatest masters of his art, so much so that whon he died, AH 413 or 423, the following lines were written in his praiss.—

"Thy loss was felt by the writers of former Thy loss was felt by the writers of former times, and each successive day justifies their grief. The ink-bottles are therefore black with sorrow, and the pens are rent through affliction."

pens are rent through affliction."

Ibn Khalikan, from whom we quote, finds these verses very fine Without disparaging his taste, we can happily assure our readers that Ibn al-Bauwabe verses are finer. With regard to the galam, however, he rather mystifies us on the very point which would be most interesting, namely, the manner in which the nib should be cut or made. He

"Give your whole attention to the making of your mb, for on this, verily, all else depends <sup>46</sup> But do not flatter yourself that I am going to reveal this secret, it is a secret which I guard with a miser's jealousy jealousy

"All that I will tell is, that you must observe the golden mean between a too much rounded and too much pointed form"

Disappointed as we are at this oracular saying, we will condone him for his niggardly reticence on account of his final lines, with which we will also terminate our article —

"Let your hand devote its fingers to writing only useful things that you will leave behind you on quitting this abode of illusion

"For man will find, when the book of his actions will be unrolled before him, all that he has done during the days of his life"

WUJUD (وجود) An existence Philosophers say existences are of three kinds —

Wāṇbu 'l-Wujūd, a necessary existence—God

Mumkinu 'l- Wujūd, a possible existence— Creation.

Mumianiu 'l-Wujud, an impossible existence—an Associate with God

WUQUF (وقولت) "Standing"
A name given to those ceremonies of the Pilgrimage which are performed on Mount
'Arafah. (Burton, Pilgrimage, vol n p 383)

WUZU' (وخوم) The ablution made before eaying the appointed prayers. Those which are said to be of divine institution are four in number, namely to wash (1) the face from the top of the forehead to the chin, and as far as each ear, and (2) the hands and arms up to the elbow, (8) to rub (masah) with the wet hand a fourth part of the head, also (4) the feet to the ankles. The authority for these actions is the Qur'an, Sarah v. 8 "O Believers! when ye address yourselves to prayer, wash your hands up to the elbow, and wipe your heads, and your feet to the ankles." The Sunnis wash the feet the Shi'ahs are apparently more correct, for they only wipe, or rather rub (masah) them. In these ablutions, if the least portion of the specified part is left untouched, the whole act becomes useless and the prayer which follows is vain

The Sunnah regulations (or those established on the example of Muhammad) regarding it are fourteen in number (i) to make the intention or niyah of wuzu', thus "I make this wuzu for the purpose of putting away impurity", (2) to wash the hand up to the wrist, but care must be taken not to put the hands entirely into the water, until each has been rubbed three times with water poured on it, (3) to say one of the names of God at the commencement of the waze', thus "In the name of the Great God," or "Thanks be to God", (4) to clean the teeth (missoik), (5) to rinse the mouth three times, (6) to put water into the nostrils three times, (7) to do all the above in proper order, (8) to do all without any delay between the various acts, (9) each part is to be purified three times (10) the space between the fingers of one hand must be rubbed with the wet fingers of the other, (11) the beard must be combed with the fingers; (12) the whole head must be rubbed once, (13) the ears must be washed with the water remaining on the fingers after the last operation, (14) to rub under and between the toes with the little finger of the left hand, drawing it from the little toe of the right foot and between each toe in succession. [ABLUTION. PRAYER, WATER.]

Y.

YADU 'LLAH (الله عن). "Hand of God." The expression occurs in the Qur'in:--

Sürah xlvin 10 "God's hand is above

Sürah v. 69 "The Jews say, 'God's hand is fettered."

The expression is a subject of controversy amongst the Muhammadans. The Wahhābis maintain that it is wrong to hold that it is merely a figurative expression, but rather that God doth possess a hand in such a manner as it exists, without attempting to explain the manner how. On the other hand, some maintain that it is merely a figurative expression for God's power

YAGHUS ((4)42) An idol mentioned in the Qur'an, Sürah lxxi 28. Professor Palmer says it was in the figure of a lion. Al-Baizāwi says it was the name of a hero who lived between the days of Adam and Noah, who was afterwards worshipped in an idol of the name.

YA HÜ ( ) ( ) "O He!" that is, "O God" An exclamation often recited by facirs or darveshes in their religious gikrs. The third personal pronoun singular, As (kuwa), "He" being a name for God, se "He who exists." [ZIKR.]

YAHUD (3-12), the plural of Jews Yahūdī. Heb. ידורדי. word used in the Qur'an (together with Banu Israil) for the Jews [JEWS. JUDAISM]

YAHYA ( John the Baptist The son of Zacharish, whose birth is mentuoned in the Quran, Surah xix 1 in 34, and who is said in the latter Surah to have been sent with glad tidings "to confirm the Word from God (Jesus), a chief and a chaste one and a prophet from the righteous" And in Strah vi. 85, his name occurs with that of Zachariah, Jesus, and Ehas, as one of the "righteous ones" [JOHN THE HAPTIST]

YA'JŪJ WA MA'JŪJ(المع وماجوع وماجوع) [GOG AND MAGOG ]

YALAMLAM (يلملم) The migat or stage where the pilgrims from al-Yaman assume the pilgrim's garb at the pilgrimage [HAJJ]

YAMAMAH ( Lale) A province in the eastern portion of the Hijaz frequently mentioned in the history of Muhammad western province of Arabia It is considered the most fortile part of the country, and is called the garden of Arabia

YAMIN (cree) OATH

AL-YAQIN (البقين) "The certainty" (1) A term which implies belief, sure knewledge, and which occurs in the Qur'an to express the hour of death Sûrah lxxiv 43-48 "They shall say, 'We were not of those who prayed, we did not feed the poor, but we did plunge into discussion with those who plunged, and we called the Judgment Day a he until the certainty did come upon us'"

Surah xv 99 "Serve the Lord until the certainty come upon thee"

Muslims say there are three degrees of spiritual knowledge

- ا علم اليقين), that which a man apprehends with his intellectual faculties
- 2. 'Anu 'l- Yaqın (عين اليقين), that which he sees with the eye
- 8 Haqqu'l-Yaqın (حق العقين), that which he fully embraces with the heart, the highest form of spiritual knowledge, especially of the Unity of God

YAQŢĪN (ياماين) Heb קיקיין. The gourd tree under which Jonah sheltered after he escaped from the belly of the fish Sürah xxxvii. 145, 146 "We east him on a barren shore and he was sick and we made to grow over him a gourd tree."

YA'QUB (يعقوب) JACOB.]

(یا سین) YĀ SIN (یا سین) The two Arabic letters s and corresponding to the English y and s The title of the xxxvith Surah of the Qur'an which begins with these two letters, the mystic import of which is said to be unknown Al-Baişawi says porhaps they mean Ya Insan! (علامان), "O Man!" Husain suggests that they mean Ya Sasya! (ميد له), "O Sasya!" whilst the Jalalan think the meaning is known alone to God Muhammed said this chapter was the Qalbu 'l-Qur'an, "the heart of the Qur'an," and it is consequently held in high estimation It is usually read to dying persons.

Ya Sin is a title given to Muhammad with the belief that he is referred to as "O Saigid," in the first verse of the Sarah referred to

YAŞRIB The (پېرب) ancient name of al-Madinah, mentioned once in the Qur'an, viz Surah xxxii 18 According to the traditionist, the Prophet changed the name from Yasrib to Madinatu 'n-Nabī, " the City of the Prophet," because Yagrib was a name of shame and reproach. (Majmu'u 'L Bihār, vol ii. p 499)

YA'SÜB ( Lit "A prince or chief" The King of the Bees A title given to 'Ali (Mayma's 'l-Bihar, vol. iii A name of one of Muhammad's 502) (Richardson's Dictionary)

YATHRIB [YASRIB]

YATIM (يتيم) ORPHAN

YAUM (pr) A day of twenty-four hours, pl. anyam. In contradiction to luil wa nahar, " night and day "

The seven days of the week are known

Yaumu 'l-ohad, first day, Sunday Yaumu 'l-ignum, second day, Monday Yaumu 'l-galāgā', third day, Tuesday Yaumu 'l-arba'ā', fourth day, Wednesday. Yaumu 'l-jum'ah, day of Assembly, Friday Youns 's-sabt, Sabbath day, Saturday

YAUMU 'D-DIN (غوم الدين), " Day of Judgment"

Sarah i "The King of the Day of Judg-

Sürah luxun 17 "What shall make thee know what the Day of Judgment in?"

AL-YAUMU 'L-AKHIR (العوم الاعر) " The Last Day " A name given in the Qur'an to the Day of Judgment.

YAUMU 'L - 'ASHURA' (المحرم) The tenth day of the month of Muharram ['Assura']

"Day of Severing" The Day of Judgment Surah lexvil. 13, 14 "For the Day of Severing! and who shall teach thee what the Day of Severing is ""

YAUMU 'L-FTTR (برم اللعار) "The Day of breaking the fast " ['IDU 'L-FITR ]

YAUMU 'L-HARA' (stall cg)
"The day of the stony country" mentioned in the Traditions (Mishkātu'l-Masābih, book xxiv. ch ix) The day on which Yazid sent an army to al-Madinah and laid it in rums (See Ockley's Saracens, p 425)

YAUMU 'L-HASHR (يوم الحشر)
"Day of Assembly" The Day of Judgment

"Day of Reckming" The Day of Judgment Sürah al 28 "And Moses said, Verily, I will take refuge in my Loid and your Lord from every one who is big with pride, and believes not on the Day of Reckming"

YAUMU 'L-INQITA' (ولا النقاع) "The Day of Cessation" The day on which anything terminates In law, the last day on which anyone who has become possessed of property illegally may restore it, or make compensation to the owner

YAUMU 'L-JAM' (حبر البحر) "Day of Gathering" The Day of Judgment.
Surah lxiv 9 "On the day when He shall gather you to the Day of Gathering"

YAUMU 'L-KHULUD (بوم الحارف)
"Day of Eternity" Sürah 1 84 "Enter into it in peace this is the Day of Eternity

"The Day of Exedus" The Day of Judgment Surah 1 41 'The day when they shall hear the shout in truth, that is, the Day of Coming Forth"

YAUMU 'L-QARR ( البوم الله ).
"The Day of Rest. The day after the sacrifice at the Haji, when the pilgrims rest YAUMU 'L - QIYAMAH ( )-1 Lolati) "Day of Standing up" The Day of Resurrection" [RESURRECTION]

"The Day of Threstenings" The Day of Judgment Sürah 1 19 "And the trumpet shall be blown l—that is the threstened day."

"A Known Day," ie known to God. The Day of Judgment. Sürah lvi 50 "Gathered chall they surely be for the tryst of a known flav."

YAUMU 'N-NAHR (غرم النحر). "Day of Sacrifice" A term used for the Feast of Sacrifice ['IDU 'L-AEHA.]

YAUMU 'S-SABU' (کوم البیج).
The "Day of Sabu'," mentioned in the following tradition (Mishkätu'l-Masābih, book xxiv ch. 16) —

"Abu Hurairah says, 'Whilst a man was with his goats, beheld a wolf came in amongst them, and took a goat, and the man released it. And the wolf said to the man, "Who is to guard these goats on the day of Sabu, when there will be no shepherd but me "And the people said, "The wolf speaks" And the Prophet said, "I believe that the wolf did speak" Abu Bakr and 'Umar also said so'"

'Abdu 'l-Haqq says there is a difference of opinion as to what the Day of Sabu is, either it is a day of meurrection, or a festival amongst the ancient Arabs, when the flocks were left to themselves.

YAUMU 'T - TAGHABUN (التهابن) "Day of Mutual Deceit."
The Day of Judgment Surah lxiv 9 "On that day when he shall gather you to the Day of Gathering, that is the Day of Mutual Deceit"

Al-Barzawi says "Both the righteous and the wicked will disappoint each other by reversing their positions, the wicked being punished, while the righteous are in bliss"

YAUMU "T-TALÂQ (يوم العلق).
"Day of Meeting" The Day of Judgment.
Sürah xl 15 He throws the Spuit by his bidding upon whom He will of His servants to give warming of the Day of Meeting"

YAUMU 'T-TANAD (Start) (MA) Day of Mutual Outery "A name given to the Day of Judgment in the Qur'an Surah at 34 "O my people! verily I fear for you the day of crying out to one another"

YA'ŪQ (352) An idol mentioned in the Qur'an, Sürah lazi. 28 Professor Palmer says it was in the figure of a horse. Al-Baizāwi says it is the name of a certain hero who lived between the days of Adam and Noah, and was afterwards worshipped in an idol of the name

YAWNING Arabic tasāwub (عثارت) From the Traditions it appears yawning is regarded as an evil; for Abū Hursirah relates that Muhammad said, "God loves sneezing and hates yawning As for yawning, it is of the devil Therefore, if any of you yawn, let him suppress it as much as possible If he cannot step it, let him put the back of his left hand upon his mouth, for, verily, when anyone yawns and opens his mouth, the devil laughs" (Miskkāt, book xxii ch vi)

YAZID (442) The son of Mu'a-wiyah The second Khalifah of the house of Umanyah (Ommiyah), who reigned from A.D 679 to A.D 683 (A.H. 60-64) He is celebrated in Muslim history as the opponent of al-Husain. (See Ockley's Hist Saracens p 893.)

YEAR. Arabic sanah (Lu), pl anun, sanawāt, 'ām (عام), pl a'wām, مُعناً , pl. ahwāt; Persian sāl (الله), pl. salka.

The ancient Arabian year is supposed to have consisted of twelve lunar months, as now observed by the Muhammadans, but about the year A.D 412, the Arabians introduced a system of interculation, whereby one month was intercalated into every three years (See M de Perceval, vol 1 p 242)
This system of intercalation existed in the time of Muhammad, but it is related that, at the farewell pilgrimage, the Prophet recited the khutbah on the Day of Sacrifice, and said "A year is twelve months only, as at the time of the creation," and thus again introduced the lunar year (See Mishkut, book zi ch. zi.) The Muhammadan year, therefore, consists of twelve lunar months, without any intercalation to make it correspond with the course of the sun, and amounts very nearly to 354 days and 9 hours Hence the Muhammadan New Year's Day, Nau Roz, will happen every year about eleven days earlier than in the preceding year

There also existed amongst the Arabians a system of commutation whereby the Muharram, the last of the three continuous sacred months [MONTHS], became secular, and Safar sacred Some traditions say that the power also existed of commuting the isolated sacred month Rajab, for the one succeeding it, When this was done, it became Sha'bān. lawful te war in the sacred months of Muharram and Rajab, and Safar and Shaban acquired the sacredness of the months for which they had been substituted It is with reference to this custom that Muhammad says in the Qur'an (Sûrah iv 86, 37) -

"Verily, twelve months is the number of months with God, according to God's Book, ever since the day when He created the Heavens and the Earth, of these, four are sacred this is the right usage Thorefore, wrong not yourselves therein, and attack those who join gods with God, one and all, as they attack you one and all, and know that Ged 15 with those who fear Him To carry over a sacred month to another is only an increase of unbelief They who do not believe are led in error by it They allow it one year and forbid it another, that they may make good the number of months which God hath hallowed, and they allow that which God hath prohibited '

This system of commutation is said to have been introduced by Quasiv, who wished, by abridging the long three months' osssation of hostilities, to humour the warlike Arabs, as well as to obtain the power of making a sacred month secular when it might best suit his purpose, but Sir William Muir is inclined to think that this system of commuta.

tion was an ancient one, and merely restored by Quany (Mur's Makemet, vol i p covii.) Both in India and in Egypt, in the present day, the Muhammadans use the lunar year for their religious observances and the ordinary affairs of life, but for the purposes of agriculture and other calculations, for which the lunar year is inconvenient, they employ

the Julian calendar

To find the number of solar years elapsed since any given Muhammadan date, subtract the given year of the Hijrah from the current year of the Hijrah, and from the remainder deduct three per cent., the remainder will be the number of solar years which have elapsed. Thus, suppose we see a manuscript written AH 681, and wish to know its real age in Christian or solar years, we subtract, in the first place, the number 681 from the current year of the Hijrah, say 1256, and there remains 575, from this last we deduct three per cent, or 17, and there remains 558, which at that period ie the real age of the manuscript in solar years,

If the object, however, be to find the precise Christian date corresponding to any given year of the Hijrah, apply the following rule -From the given number of Musalman years, deduct three per cent., and to the remainder add the number 621 54, the sum is the period of the Christian era at which the given current Mussiman year ends For example from AH. 942, deduct three per cent., or 28 26, and the remainder is 918 74 To this last add 62154, and the sum is 1535 28, which shows that A H 942 ended in the spring of A D 1586. This simple rule is founded on the fact that 100 lunar years are very nearly equal to 97 solar years, there being only eight days of excess in the former period, hence to the result found, as just stated, it will be requisite to add 8 days, as a correction for every century

The following is a more accurate rule Express the Muhammadan date in years and decimals of a year, multiply by 970225, to the product add 621 54, and the sum will be the process period of the Christian era. (Dr

Forbes)

If it is desired to find the year of the Hij rah which comes in in a given year of the Ohristian era , it is sufficient to subtract 621 from the year given, and to multiply the remainder by 10,307 (Murray)

YUHANNA (يوحنا) The Arabic Christian name for John the Baptist, and John the Apostle, the corresponding Muslim name being lahya [YAHYA.]

YÜNUS (يوس). [JONAH] YÜSHA' (يوهع) [JOSHUA] YUSUF (يوسف). [JOSEPH.]

Z.

(دبع) ZABH Heb The sebakh

Arabio lexicographers define the word to mean the act of cutting the throat In the language of the law, it denotes the act of slaying an animal agreeably to the prescribed forms, without which its flosh is not lawful for the food of man See Qur'an, Suralt 11 167, 168

"Eat of the good things wherewith we have provided you, and give thanks unto God, if we are His worshippers He has only forbidden for you that which is dead, and blood, and flesh of swine, and whatsoever has been consecrated to other than God; but he who is forced, neither revolting nor transgressing, it is no sin for him for verily God

16 forgiving and moreiful.

The injunctions in the Traditions are more explicit (Mishket, book xviii ch 1), for Abu Tufail relates that 'Ali was axample once saked, "Has the Prophet ever told you anything with regard to religion which he has not told others?" And 'Ali replied," Nothing, unless it be that which I have in the scab-bard of my sword" Then 'All brought out of his scabbard a piece of paper, and thereon was written 'May God curse those who slay without repeating the name of God, in the same manner as the polytheists did in the names of their idols, may God curse those who remove their neighbours' landmarks, may God curse those who curse their fathers may God curse those who harbour innovators in matters of religion.'

According to Sunni law, zabh is of two kinds (1) Ikhtiyari, of choice, and (2) Izti-

rāri, of necessity

The first is effected by cutting the throat above the breast and reciting the words Allahu abbar, " God is most great", and the second by reciting these words upon shooting an arrow or discharging a gun

The latter act, however, is merely a substitute for the former, and accordingly is not of any account unless the former be impracticable, for the proper zabh is held to be by the shedding of blood, and the former method is most effectual for this purpose

It is absolutely necessary that the person who slays the animal should be a Muslim or a kitābi (i e a Jew or a Christian), and that he should do it in the name of God alone, it signifies not whether the person be a man or a woman, or an infant, or an idiot, or an uncircumcised person

An animal siain by a Magnan is unlawful, as also that slam by an idolater or a poly theist Zabh performed by an apostate from the Muslim faith (who is worthy of death) is also unlawful; but, according to Abil Hanifah, if a Jew or a Christian become an apostate from his own creed, his good is lawful, for the Mushm law still regards him, with respect to zahh, in the same light as formerly

If the slayer wilfully omit the invocation, "In the name of the most great God, flesh of the animal is unlawful, but if he omit the invocation through forgetfulness; it is lawful, although there is some difference of opinion on this subject amongst the Sunni doctors Ash-Shaff'i is of opinion that the animal is lawful in either case, but the Imani Mülik maintains that it is unlawful in both.

Abu Yusuf and all the Hanafi doctors have declared, that an animal slain under a wilful omission of the invocation is ntterly unlawful, and that the magistrate must forbid the sale of meat so killed

It is a condition of gabh thhtyari that the invocation be pronounced over the animal at the time of slaying it, but in the case of zabh exterere (se when a person slays an animal in hunting), the condition is that the invocation be pronounced at the time of letting loose the hound or hawk, or of shooting the arrow or gun, or casting the spear

It is a condition of zabh that nothing but the invocation Bismi 'llahi Allahi akbar, "In the name of God, God the most great," should he said That is, no prayer or other matter must be mentioned

The place for slaying is betwirt the throat and the head of the breast-bone (Arabic labbah), and the vessols it is requisite to cut are four, al-hulgum, " the wind-pipe," al-mart'. "the gullet" and al-warden, or al-wadajan, " the two jugular veins

Ash-Shafi'i holds that if a man slay an animal with a nail or horn or teeth, the flesh is unlawful, but this is not the opinion of other doctors. (See Durru 'l-Mukhtar and Hidayak, in loco)

Az-ZABĀNĪYAH (الزمالية) Guards" The angels in charge of hell, of whom Malik is said to be the chief Surah xevi. 17, 18 "So let him call his council we will call the guards of hell (az-Zahaniyah) "

ZABIHAH (المناعة). Lit "Cut or divided lengthways" Heb 777 zebakh An animal slaughtered according to the law, a sacrifice [LAWFCL FOOD, SACRIFICES ]

ZABIR ( pet). A name for Mount Sinsi Al-Baizawi says at 18 the mountain on which the Lord conversed with Moses. BINAI, TUR.

"Occupation, ser-ZABT (هبط) 'In Muhammadan law it means attachment, distraint, or sequestration, taking lands under the management of Government officers

Also ZABUR (زبور), pl subur. From the Heb. zubur, pl of zibr zimrāh, "a psalm or chant" (Psa. ixxxi 2, xoviii. 5) The title given to the Psalms of David in the Qur'an, where it occurs only three times.

Stratu 'n-Nist' (iv ) 161 "And to David we gave Psalins (subtran)."

Süratu 'l-Mır'aj (xvn) 57 "And Psalms (zaburan) we gave to David"

Süratu 'l-Ambiya' (xxi) 105 "And now, since the exhortation (zikr) was given, have we written in the Psalms (fi'z-zaburi) that my servants the righteons shall inherit the earth."

Both Sale and Rodwell take this last to be a quotation from Psa xxxvii 29 (it appears to be the only direct quotation from either the Old or New Testament in the whole of the Qur'an), and they have both translated the Arabic giler "the law," meaning, of course, the Taurat Amongst Muslim commentators, there is considerable difference of opinion as to what is meant in this verse by zikr and zabūr

The commentator al-Baizāwī says there rre three views Said ibn Jubair and Mujaryrd explained the word zabūr to mean all inspired books and that by zikr was meant the Preserved Tablet (al-Lauhu l-Mahfuz) Ibn Abbas and az-Zahhāk said by zabūr was meant the Taurat, and by 21kr those books which came after And Sha'bi said the zuber was the Book of David, and the gikr that of Мовев

Al-Baghawi and al-Jalalan decide in favour of the first interpretation, Hussin decides in favour of the third, whilst al-Baixawi leaves it an open question.

Jalalu 'd-din as-Suyuti gives the word zabur as one of the fifty-five titles of the Qur'an

ZACHARIA8 Arabic Zakariya' (زکریاء) ZAKARIYA'

ZAFIR ( pos) Let. "Drawing back the breath because of distress, groan-Lat. "Drawing ing" In the Qur'an, for the groans of hell. Surah x: 108 "In the Fire, there shall they grean."

ZA'FIRÂNIYAH (معارانية). ٨ sect of Muslims, who say the Quran is a created thing, the orthodox school maintaining that the Word of God 18 uncreated (Kitābu 't-Tatrifat, in loco )

ZAHF ( A) Let "A swarming multitude." An army, a military force arrayed for battle

Quran, Snrah vin. 15 "O ye who believe i when ye meet the marshalled hosts of the unhelievers, turn not your backs to them" Hence, battle, combat

ZÄHID (anij). Lit "Abstinent; nument." An ascetic person. Zāhid-i-Let "Abstinent: continent." khushk, Persian, " a dissembler, a hypocrite" ZÄHIR (, "Outward, exterior, manifest." A word much used in Muslim theology to express that which is manifest, as distinguished from begin, "interior," or khafi, " that which is hidden.

Az-ZÄHIR (العاهر). "The Evident"

One of the ninety-nine attributes of God. Qur'an, Surah lviu 8 "He is the First and the Last, the Evident and the Hidden "

'L-MAZHAB ZÄHIRU (المدهب An expression used by Hanafi Muslims for those theological questions which are decided in the four wellknown Sunni books al-Mahsūt, al-Jāmi'u 'l-Kabır, al-Janı'u's Saghir, as-Sairu 'l-Kabır ZĀHIRU 'L-MUMKINĀT ( " (الممكمات An expression used by theologians for the proofs of God's existence, power, and attributes, as exhibited in nature ZAID IBN AL-HĀRIŞ (ید بن) (الحسارث Muhammad's freedman and adopted son. Muhammad having seen and admired Zaids wife Zzinab, her husband divorced her The relations of the ancient Arabs to their adopted children were very strict, and Muhammad's marriage with the divorced wife of his adopted son occasioned much scandal amongst his contemporaries A revelation was consequently produced which revoked the inconvenient restrictions

Surah xxxiii 37 'And when Zaid had actiled the necessary matter of her divorce, we did wed her to thee, that it might not be a crime in the faithful to marry the wives of their adopted sons, when they have sottled the necessary affair concerning them '

Zaid was slain at the battle of Mütah, as he carried the standard of Islam, AH 8

ZAIDIYAH (زيدية) A Shiah Those who followed Zaid the son of 'Ali ibn al-Husain instead of the other son Jafar as-Şādıq [suran]

ZAIGH (===:). Lut "Turned aside" (from the Truth) It occurs in the Quran, Surah in 5,6 "In whose hearts is perversity O Lord, percest not our hearts"

ZAINAB (بنب)). The daughter of Khuzaimah and the widow of Ubaid, Muhammad's cousin, who was slain at Badr She married Muhammad in the third year of the Hijrah. Zamab was renowned for her kindness to the poor, and was called Ummu 'l-Masakin, "the mother of the poor," from her care of destitute converts. She and Khadijah were the only wives of the Prophet who died before him

ZAINAB (—-ij). The daughter of Jahah and the divorced wife of Muhammad's adopted son Zaid Being the wife of an adopted son, she was unlawful to the Prophet, but a pretended revelation (see Quran, Surah xxxiii. 37) settled the difficulty, and Muhammad married her. [MU-[ DAMMAH

ZAINAB BINT MUHAMMAD (بنت بنت محمد) The daughter of Muhammad by Khadijah She married Abu 7-As The story of the conversion of Abu 1-As, through the devotion of his wife, is told by Muir (vol. 1v p 7) She died A H. 61

ZA'IR (راتر). A pilgrim to Muhammad's grave at al-Madīnah, as distin guished from a hājī, or pilgrim to Makkah According to Burton, Zā'irs are ordered to visit the tomb perfumed and in their best clothes. The person who conducts the za'ir to the sacred spot is called a muzaworr, who on the occasion of Captain Burtons visit recited the following prayer -

"In the name of Allah and in the Faith of Allah's Prophet' O Lord, cause me to enter the entering of truth, and cause me to issue forth the issuing of Trath, and permit me to draw near to Thee and make me a King victorious!" (is over the world, the flesh, and the devil) Then follow blessings on the Prophet, and afterwards "() Allah open to me the doors of Thy mercy, and grant me entrance into it, and protect me from the stoned devil!" (Burton's El-Medinah and Meccah, vol u p 296)

ZAKARIYA' (رکرناء) Zacharias The father of John Baptist, the husband of Hannah's sister, and the uncle of the Virgin

Mary Mentioned four times in the Qur'an — surah in. 32 'So with goodly acceptance did her Lord accept her, with goodly growth did Hemake her grow, and Zakarıya' reared her So oft as Zakarıya' went in to Mary at the sanctuary, he found her supplied with food 'Oh Mary' said he, whence hast thou this?' She said, 'It is from God, verily God supplieth whom He will without reckoning. There did Zakariya call upon his Lord, O my Lord' said he, venchaafe me from Thyself good descendants, Thou vorily art the hearer of prayer' Then did the angels call to him, as he stood praying in the sanctuary 'God announced John (Yahya) to thee, who shall be a verifier of the Word from God, and a great one, chaste, and a prophet of the number of the just? He said, O my Lord! how shall I have a son now that old age has come upon me and my wife is barren? He said 'Thus will God do his is barren? He said 'Thus will God do his pleasure' He said, 'Lord! give me a token' He said, 'Thy token is, that not for three days shalt thou speak to man but by signs But remember thy Lord often, and praise Him at even and at morn."

Sürah vi 85 "And Zakarīyā', John, Jesus, and Elias all were just persons"

Sürah ziz. 1-12 "A recotal of thy Lord's mercy to His servant Zakarīya', when he called upon his Lord with secret calling He said 'O Lord, verily my bones are weak and the hoar hairs glisten on my head, and never, Lord, have I prayed to Thee with ill success. But now I have fear for my kindred after me, and my wife is barren. Give me, then, a successor as Thy special gift and an heir of the family of Jacob and make him, Lord, well-pleasing to Thee 'O Zakariya, verily We anucunce to Thee a son,his name Yahyā (John) that name We have given to none before him He said 'O my Lord' how when my wife is bailen shall [ have a son, and when I have now reached old age, failing in my powers?' He said 'So shall it be Thy Lord nath said, Easy is this to Me, for I created thee aforetime when thou wast nothing' He said 'Vouchsafe me, O my Lord! a sign.' He said 'Thy sign shall be that for three nights, though sound in health, thon speakest not to man' And he came forth from the sanctuary to his peopls, and made signs to them as though he would say, 'Plaise God at morn and even."

Sürah xxi 89 "And Zakatiya, when he called upon his Lord saying, 'O my Lord leave me not childless but there is no better hear than Thyself So We heard him and gave him Yahyā (John), and We made his wife fit for child bearing"

ZAKAT (زکوة) In its primitive sonse the word zalat means purification. whence it is also used to express a portion of property bestowed in alms, as a sanctification of the remainder to the proprietor. It is an institution of Islam and founded upon an express command in the Qur'an (wide Surah ii 77), being one of the five foundations of practical rollgion.

It is a religious duty incumbent upon any person who is free, sane, adult, and a Muslim, provided he be possessed in full property of such estate or effects as are termed in the language of the law nisab, and that he has been in possession of the same for the space of one complete year. The msab, or fixed amount of property upon which zakāt 18 due, varies with reference to the different kinds of proporty in possession, as will be seen in the present article

The one complete year in which the property is held in possession is termed haulu 'l hou! Zakat is not incumbent upou a man against whom there are debts equal to or exceeding the amount of his whole property, nor is it due upon the necessaries of life, such as dwelling-houses, or articles of clothing, or bousehold furniture, or cattle kept for immediate use, or slaves employed as actual servants or armour and woapons deaigned for present use, or upon books of science and theology used by scholars, or upon tools used by craftsmen.

(1) The zakāt of camels Zakāt is not due upon less than five camels, and upon five camels it is one goat or sheep, provided they subsist upon pasture throughout the year, because zakat is only due upon such camels as live on pasture, and not upon those which are fed in the home with forage One goat is due upon any number of camels from five to nine, two goats for any number of camels from ten to fourteen, three goats for any number from twenty to twenty-four. Upon any number of camels from twenty-five to thirty-five the zakāt is a bint mekhāz, or a yearling female camel, from thirty-six to forty five, a bent laban, or a two-year-old female camel, from forty-six to sixty, a higgah, or a threeyear-old female camel, from sixty-one to seventy-five, a jaz'ah, or four-year-old female camel, from seventy-five to ninety, two camels female two-year-old colts, and from nunety-one to one hundred and twenty, two When camele' female three-year old colts the number of camels exceeds one hundred and twenty, the sakat is calculated by the aforesaid rule.

(2) The sakat of bulls, cous, and buffalors No zakāt is due upon fewer than thirty cattle, and upon thirty cattle which feed on pasture for the greater part of the year, there is due at the end of the year a tablah, or a one-yearold calf; and upon forty is due a musim, or a calf of two years old, and where the number exceeds forty, the zakāt is to be calculated according to this rule For example, upon sixty, the zakāt is two yearling calves, upon seventy, one tabiah and one musim upon eighty, two musims, upon dinety, three tabliah, upon one hundred, two tabliahs and one musim, and thus upon every ten head of eattle a musim and a tabiah alternately Thus upon one hundred and ten kine, the zakat is two museus and one tabeah upon one hundred and twenty, four tabi ahs The usual method, however, of calculating the zakat upon large herds of cattle is by dividing them into thirties and forties, impos ing upon every thirty one tab ah, or upon crory forty one musim

(8) Zakāt upon sheep and goats. No zakat is due upon less than forty, which have fed the greater part of the year upon pacture, upon which is due one goat, until the number reaches one hundred and twenty for one hundred and twenty one to two hundred, it is two goats or sheep, and above this, one for every hundred The same rules apply to both sheep and goats, because in the Traditions the original word ghanam applies to both species.

(4) Zakāt upon horses When horses and mares are kopt indiscriminately together, feeding for the greater part of the year on pasture, it is the option of the proprietor to give a zakāt of one dīnūr per head for the whole, or to appreciate the whole, and give five per cent upon the total value. No zakāt whatever is due upon droves of horses consisting entirely of males, or entirely of mares. There 18 no zakāt due upon horses or mules, unless they are articles of merchanduse, nor is it due upon war horses, or upon beasts of burden, or upon cattle kept for drawing ploughs and so forth.

(5) Zakāt upon silver It is not due upon silver of less value than two hundred dirhams, but if one be possessed of this sum for a whole year, the zakāt due upon it is five dirhams. No zakat is due upon an excess above the two hundred dirhams till such excess amount to forty, upon which the zakāt is one dirham, and for every succeeding forty, one dirham Those dirhams in which silver predommates are to be accounted silver, and the laws respecting silver apply to them, although they should contain some alloy, and the same rule holds with regard to all articles falling under the denomination of plate, such as cupe and goblets

(6) Zakāt upon gold. No sakāt is due upon gold under the value of twenty misquis, and the zakāt due upon twenty misgāle is half a misqual When the quantity of gold exceeds twenty misqala, on every four misqals above twenty are due two qurata, and so on in proprotion.

Zakāt is due upon gold and silver bullion, and upon all gold and silver ornaments and ntensils.

(7) Zakāt upon articles of merchandise Articles of merchandise should be appraised and a zakāt of 21 per cent, paid upon the value, if it exceed two hundred dirhams in

(8) Zakāt upon mines, or buried treasures Mines of gold, silver, iron, lead, or copper, are subject to a rakat of one-fifth (khume), but if the mine is discovered within the precincts of a person's own home, nothing is due And if a person find a deposit of buried treasure, a fifth is due upon it. No zakāt is due upon precious stones

(9) Zakāt upon the fruits of the earth Upon extracting produced from the ground there is a tenth ("ashr or "ashr), whether the soil be watered by the overflow of rivers or by periodical rains, excepting the articles of wood, bamboo, and grass, which are not subject to the tithe. Land watered by means of buckets, or machinery, or watering camels, is subject to a twentieth Honey and fruits collected in the wilderness are subject to tithe

The zakat is received by a collector duly appointed for the purpose, although it is lawful for the possessor to distribute his alms himself. If a porson come to the collector, and make a declaration on oath as to the amount of his property upon which sakat is due, his statement is to be credited.

There are seren descriptions of persons upon whom rakat may be bestowed

(1) Factors, or persons possessed of property, the whole of which, however, does not amount to a msab

(2) Muskins, or persons who have no proporty whatever

(8) The collector of zakat

(4) blaves (5) Debtors (6) Fi sebīl: 'Uāh, 1 e in the service of God, or religious warfare

(7) Travellers
The above laws with reference to zakāt
The above laws with reference to zakāt are those according to the Hansflynh sect, but the differences amongst the Imams of the Sunnis on this subject are but small. They may be seen upon reference to Hamilton's translation of the Hidiyak, vol. i. p 1.

العام الله) ZAKHĀ'IRU 'LLĀH (عام العام). Let "Repositories of God." A Baff term for a class of behavers whe, on account of their spiritual attainments, are the means of preventing troubles in a nation, in the same manner as stores (zakhā'ır) of grain keep away famines

ZÄKTR (503). One who remembers God by reciting His names and praises
The reciter of a gikr [ZIKR.]

ZALĀLAH (334) "Error" The word frequently occurs in the Qur'an, ag surah ii. 15 "These are they who have purchased error, at the price of the guidance"

ZAMB (---), pl. zumūb "A sin, a orime" A charge of such. The word occurs frequently in the Qur'an, a.g.—

occurs frequently in the Qur'an, a.g.—
Sürah xxvi 13 "They have a charge against me (s.e. Anron), and I fear lest they put me to death"

Sürah xl. 2: [From God] "the forgiver of sen v

Sürah lxxxi 9 "For what crime she was put to death" [sin]

ZAMZAM (مرض). The sacred well within the precincts of the mosquo at Mak kah. It is supposed to be the identical spring from which Hagar and Ishmael drank in the wilderness (Genesis xvi 4), but which is stated in the Scriptures to have been between Kadesh and Bared.

The origin of the word zamzam is uncertain. According to Johnson's Arabic Dictionary, it means the low buzzing sound, made by the ancient fire worshippers, and may therefore allude to the muimining of the water of the well. Some Muslim commentators derive it from zamm' zamm' i.e. "fill fill?" Hagar's words to Ishinael when she saw the water. Salo translates it "Stay! Stay!" and adds that Hagar called out in the Fgyptian language to prevent

Ishmuel wandering

The building which encloses the well Zamzam stands close by the Maqam Hanbali, and was elected in A H 1072 (A D 1661) According to Burckhardt, it is of a square shape, and of massive construction, with an entrance to the north, opening into the room which contains the well. This room is beauticontains the well. fully ornamented with marbles of various colours, and adjoining to it, but having a separate door, is a small room, with a stone reservoir, which is always full of Zamzam water This the pilgrims get to drink by passing their hand, with a cup, through an iron-grated opening which serves as a window, into the reservoir, without entering the room. The mouth of the well is surrounded by a wall five feet in height, and about ten feet in diameter Upon this the people stand who draw up the water in leathern buckets, an iron railing being so placed as to prevent their falling in The water is then poured into earthen jars, called daureg, which Captain Barton describes as little amphores, each marked with the name of the denor and a peculiar cypher. These jars are placed in long rows on the ground, along the paved causewave which lead up to the Kabsh, and between which grass appears growing in several places, produced by the Zamzam water oczang out of the pare

The Zamzam water is held in great esteem throughout the East It is used for drinking and ablution, but for no baser purposes, and the Makkans advise pilgrims always to break their fast with it Captain Burton says "It is apt to cause diarrhos and bells, and I never saw a stranger drink it without a wry face Sale is decidedly correct in his assertion the flavour is salt-bitter, much resembling an infusion of a teaspoonful of Epsom salts in a large tumbler of tepid water Moreover, it is exceedingly heavy to the taste, for this reason, Turks and other strangers prefer ram-water collected in cisterns, and sold for five furthings a guglet The water is transmitted to distant regions in glazed earthen jure covered with basket-work, and sealed by the Zem Zemis (Zamzamis, or dispensers of the holy water) Religious men broak their lenten fast with it. apply it to their eyes to brighten vision, and unbibe a few drops at the hour of death, when Satan stands by holding a bowl of purest water, the price of the departing soul The copious supply of the well is considered at Meccah mirarnious, in distant countries it facilitates the pronunciation of Arabic to the student, and everywhere the nauseous draught is highly meritorious in a religious point of view"

According to the same author, the name has become generic for a well situated within the walls of a mesque, and amongst these, naturally, the Zanzam of al-Madinah stands mearest in dignity to the Makkah well, with which it is said to be connected by a subterraneous passage. Others believe that it is filled by a vem of water springing directly under the Prophet's grave, whence it is generally called Bi'ru 'n-Nabī, or the Prophet's well. It stands at the south-east angle of an enclosure within the court of the mesque of al-Madinah, called the garden of Fāṭimah, under a wooden roof supported by pillars of the same material

ZANANAH (&U) A Persian adjective derived from the word zan, "a woman' That which belongs to women It denotes the household of a Muhammadan, his wives and children, and the apartments in which they reside For a full account of an Indian zananah by Mrs Meer Ali, see HARIM

"A zananah massion" is a Christian mission established for the benefit of the wives and daughters of Muhammadans ZANJABIL ("Ginger." An aromatic with which the cups of Paradise are flavoured See Qur'an, Sürah laxvi.

17 "And they shall drink therein a cup tempered with sanyabil"

ZANN (6), pl. gunun. "Opinion; suspicion" in Muhammadan law, a presumption that a charge is well-founded, although the evidence is inconclusive As Zennu 'l-Ghalib, expresses a strong presumption of truth in a charge, although the evidence does not amount to conviction The "Not proven" of Scotch law The word gam, in the sense of "suspicion," cocurs in the Qur'an, Sürah xlix 12 "O Believers! avoid frequent suspicions, for some suspicions are a crime

ZAQQUM (رنوم) An infernal tree described in the Qur'an.

Surah xxxvii 60-64 "Is this the better repast or the tree az-Zaqqum? Verily We have made it for a subject of discord to the wioked Lo, it is a tree which cometh up from the bottom of hell, its first is as it were the heads of Satans, and, lo the damned shall surely eat of it and fill their bellies with it "

Surah xhv 48, 44 "Verily the tice of az

Zaqqum shall be the sinner's food "

Surah lv: 51-59 "Then verily ye () je the erring, the imputers of falsehood shall surely out of the tree of Zaqqum, and fill your belies with it"

It is a name now given to , therny tree, whose fruit is sweet and styptic, and from the stone of which oil is extracted (Richardson s Dictional v ) (زرامية) ZARĀMIYAH A sect of Shi ah Muhammadans, who say that the next Imame after Ali were Muhammad ibn Hanflyah, 'Abdullah, 'Alı ıbn 'Abdıllah ıbn Abbas, and afterwards his progeny, as far as Mansii, until at last the Divine power entered into Abu Muslim, who they assert, was not really slain (Kashfu 'l-Istelāhāt, in

ZARĀRĪYAH (﴿رَارِيُّ) A sect of Muslims founded by one of the Companions, named Zarārah, who say the attributes of God are not eternal (Kitābu 't-Tu'nīfāt, in loco )

ZARB (خرب) Let. "Striking" In arithmetic, "Multiplication." The con-cluding foot of a line in poetry A term used Lit. "Striking" by Şūfī mystics for the ceremony of zeki (الداريات) AZ-ZARIYAT Scatterers." The title of the List Surah of the Qur'an which begins with the words "By the Scatterers who scatter" By which is understood the winds of heaven.

Az-ZARR (العار) "The Distresser" One of the ninety-nine attributes of God In the Qur an the word is applied to Satan.

Surah lyfii 11 "Only of Satan is this olandestine talk, that he may bring the faithful to grief, but, unless by God's permission, not aught shall he harm them (lassa be-zarrihim)! in God, then, let the faithful

God, therefore, is called the "Distresser," in so far as evil befalls man only by His permission.

ZARRAH (53). "An atom."

The word occurs in the Qur'an in the following verse -

Surah xeix. 6. "On that day shall men come up in separate bands to behold then works, and whoseever shall have wrought an atom's weight of good shall behold it, and whosoever shall have wrought an atom's weight of evil shall behold it

ZAT (عان), pl zawāt. From zā, "a possessor," of which zāt is the feminine From zä, In the Diotionaly al-Mughrab it is defined as the essence of a thing, meaning that by being which a thing is what it is, or that in being which a thing consists, or the ultimate and radical constituent of a thing. It is used for the nature or essence of God, Allah being called the Isnu 'z-Zāt, or "Essential name of God." Zātu 'llāh, the "Es sence of God,' is a scholastio theological expression. In Muslim law, zāt signifies the body connected with the soul, in opposition to bads, which means the "material body "

ZAWÜ 'L-ARḤĀM (الرود الرحام). [UTERINE RELATIONS]

رنبور العروض) ZAWÜ 'L-FURÜZ' (نبور العروض). The Sharers of inhoritance whose shares are specified in the Qur'an itself [INHERIT ANCE ]

ZEALOTS [GHULAT]

Lit "Likening to ZIHAR ( 🙌) the back" A form of imprecation which involves the separation of husband and wife until expiration is made. According to the Hidayah zihar signifies the likening of a woman to a kinswoman within the prohibited degrees, which interpretation is found in the comparison being applied to any of the parts or members of the body improper to be seen. The usual formula is Ants 'alaiya ka zahri ummî, 'Thou art unto me as my mother's back "

Before the establishment of Muhammadanism, zihār stood as a divorce, but Muham mad changed it to a temporary prohibition, for which expistion must be performed, vis. either freeing a slave, or two months' fast, or feeding sixty persons. Qur'an, Süratu 'i-Mujädilah (lvili ), 1-5 -

"God hath heard the words of her who pleaded with thee against her husband, and made her plaint to God, and God hath heard your mutual intercourse for God Heareth

Beholdeth

"As to those of you who put away their wives by saying, " Be thou to me as my mother's back"—their mothers they are not, they only are their mothers who gave them birth! they certainly say a blameworthy thing and an untruth

"But truly, God is Forgiving, Indulgent. "And those who thus put away their wives, and afterwards would recall their words, must free a captive before they can come together again. To this are ye warned come together again. To this are ye warned to conform and God is aware of what ye do.

"And he who findeth not a captive to set free, shall fast two months in succession before they two come togother And he who shall not be able to do so, shall feed sixty poor mon. This, that he may believe in God and His Apostle These are the statutes of God and for the unbelievers is an afflictive chastise ment ! "

The above injunction was occasioned by Khaulah, the daughter of Sa'labah, having pleaded her case with the Prophet because she had been divorced by her husband Aus ibn as-Samit, by the formula above-mentioned, and which was understood by the Arabs to imply perpetual separation. Muhammad had in the first metance, decreed the divorce in accordance with ancient Arabic law but rolaxed his order in consequence of the woman s carneet pleadings

ZIKR (کر) Lut "Remembering" Heh 737 zākha: The religious ceremony, or act of devotion which is practised by the various religious orders of Faques or Darweshes. Almost every religious Muhamma dan is a member of some order of Fagirs and, consequently, (he performance of zikr is very common in all Muhammadan countries, but it does not appear that any one method of performing the religious service of zikr is peculiar to any order

Zikrs, are of two kinds zikr jule, that which is recited sloud, and ziki khafi, that which is performed either with a low voice or mentally

The Nagahbandivah order of Faque usually perform the latter, whilst the Chishtiyah and Qadıriyah orders celebrate the former There are various ways of going through the exercise, but the main features of each are similar in character The following is a zikr jali, as given in the book Quulu 'l-Jamil, by Maulawi Shah Waliyu 'llah, of Delhe -

The worshipper sits in the usual sitting posture and shouts the word Allah (God), drawing his voice from his left side and then

from his throat

Sitting as at prayers he repeats the word Allah still louder than before, first from his right knee, and then from his left side

Folding his legs under him he repeats the word Allah first from his right knee and then from his left side, still louder!

Still remaining in the same position, he shouts the word Allah, first from the left knee, then from the right knee then from the jeft side, and lastly in front, still louder !

Sitting as at prayer, with his face towards Makkah, he closes his eyes, says "In"-drawing the sound as from his navel up to his left shoulder, then he says slaha, drawing out the sound as from his brain, and lastly " : !la 'llahu," repeated from his left

Each of these stages is called a zarb They are, of course, recited many hundreds of times over, and the changes we have desoribed account for the variations of sound and motion of the body described by Eastern travellers who have witnessed the perform ance of a galer

The following is a zikr khaf i, or that which 12 performed in either a low voice or men-

Closing his eyes and lips, he says, "with the tongue of the heart,

Allahu Samrun, "God the Hearer" Allahu Busirun, "God the Seer" Allahu 'Alımun, "God the Knower"

The first being drawn, as it were, from the navel to the breast, the second, from the breast to the brain, the third, from the brain up the heavens, and then again re-peated stage by stage backwards and forwards

He says in a low voice, "Allah," from the right knee and then from the left side

With each exhalation of his breath, he says, "lā ılāhā," and with each inhalation, "illā'llāhu."

This third zarb is a most exhausting act of devotion, performed, as it is, hundreds or even thousands of times, and is, therefore, considered the most meritorious

It is related that Maulawi Habibu 'llab, living in the village of Gabasanri, in the Gadun country, on the Peshawur frontier, became such an adept in the performance of this zarb, that he recited the first part of the zikr la ilaha with the exhalation of his breath after the mid-day prayer and the second part, illā 'llāhu, with the inhalation of his breath before the next time of prayer, thus sustaining his breath for the period of about three bours!

Another act of devotion which usually sccompanies the zikr, is that of Muraqabah, or meditation

The worshipper first performs gibr of the following

Allaho haziri, "God who is present with me

Allaho nazim "God who sees me" Allaho shahidi, "God who witnesses me ' Allaho ma'i, "God who is with me."

Having recited this zikr, either aloud or mentally, the worshipper proceeds to meditate upon some verse or verses of the Qur'an Those recommended for the Qadriyah Fagirs by Maulavi Shah Waliya 'llah are the follow ing, which we give as indicating the line of thought which is considered most devotional and spiritual by Muslim mystics -

1 Suratu I-Hadid (lvil ), 8 -The Mani-"He (God) is first. He is last fest and the Hidden, and who knoweth all tlungs,

Z Sürstn I-Hadid (lvn), 4 —
"He (Ged) is with you wheresoever ye be" 3 Sārēlu Qēf (1), 16 —

We (God) are closer to hum (mau) that his neck-vein."

Süratu 7-Baqarah (11.) 109 -

"Whichever way ye turn, there is the face of God."

5. Suratu 'n-Nisa' (iv ), 125 -"God encompasseth all things 6 Süratu 'r-Rahman (Iv.), 96, 27 —

"All on earth shall pass away, but the face of thy God shall abide resplendent with majesty and glory"

Some teachers tell their disciples that the heart has two doors, that which is flushly, and that which is spiritual, and that the zikr jake has been established for the opening of the former, and giler khaf i for the latter, in order that they may both he enlightened

To the uninitiated such a coremony appears but a meaningless rate, but to the Suff it is one calculated to convey great beneut to his inner man, as will appear from the following instructions which are given by a member of the Order respecting the zikr, which he says is a union of the heart and the tongue in calling upon God's name ' In the first place, the Shaikh, or teacher, must with his heart recite, 'There is no God but Allah, and Muhammad is the Prophet of Allah, whilst the Murid keeps his attention fixed hy placing his heart opposite that of the Shaikh, he must close his eyes, keep his mouth firmly shut, and his tongue pressed against the roof of his mouth, his teeth tight against each other, and hold his breath, then, with great force, accompany the Shaikh in the sikr, which he must recite with his heart and not with his tongue He must retain his breath patiently, so that within one respiration he shall say the 21kr three times. and by this means allow his heart to be impressed with the meditative sikr

"The heart," the same writer continues, "in this manner is kept constantly occupied with the idea of the Most High God, it will be filled with awe, love, and respect for Him, and, if the practiser arrives at the power of continuing to effect this when in the company of a crowd, the gikr is perfect. If he cannot do this it is clear that he must con tinue his efforts. The heart is a subtle part of the human frame, and 14 apt to wander away after worldly concerns so that the easier mode of arriving at the proceeding is to compress the breath, and keep the mouth firmly closed with the tongue forced against the lips The heart is shaped like the cone of a fir-tree, your meditations should be forced upon it, whilst you mentally recite the zier. Let the La" be upward, the "Ilaha" to the right, and the whole phrase "La ilaha illa 'llaha" (There is no God but Allah) be formed upon the fir-cone, and through it pass to all the members of the whole frame, and they feel its warmth By this means the world and all its attractions disappear from your vision, and you are mabled to behold the excellence of the Most High. Nothing must be allowed to distract your attention from the zikr, and ultimately you retain, by its medium, a proper conception of the Tauhid, or Unity of God

"The cone-shaped heart rests in the left breast and contains the whole truth of mare Indeed, it signifies the 'whole truth', it comprisea the whole of man's existence within itself, and is a compendium of man, mankind great and small are but an extension of it and it is to humanity what the seed is to the whole tree which it contains within itself . In fine, the essence of the whole of God's book and of all His secrets is the heart of man. Whoever finde a way to the heart obtains his desire; to find a way to the heart is needed by a heartful service, and the heart accepts of the services of the heart. It is only through the fatigues of water and ashes that the Murid reaches the conversation of the heart and the soul, he will be then so drawn towards God that afterwards, without any difficulty, he may without trouble, in case of need, turn his face from all others towards Him He will then knowsthe real meaning of the Tark (the abandonment of the world), the Hagget (the truth), the Hurryst (the freedom), and the Zikr (the recital of God's names and praises)

As a ourious instance of the superstitious character of this devotional exercise, the Chishtiyah order believe that if a man sita cross-legged and seizes the vein called Lus mas, which is under the leg, with his toes, that it will give peace to his heart, whon accompanied by a gikr of the " nat i wa isbat." which is a term used for the Kalimah, namely

Lā slūha sllā 'llāhu, " These is no desty but God "

The most common form of galr is a recital of the mnety-nine names of God [NAMES OF GOD] for Muhammad promised those of his followers who recited them a aure entrance to Paradise (Mishkat, book exi.) and to faciirtate the recital of these names, the zaker (or reciter) uses a tashih (or resary) [TASHH]

In addition to the forms of gakr already mentioned there are three others, which are even of more common use, and are known as Tasbih, Tuhmid, and Talbir They are used as exclamations of joy and surprise, as well as for the devotional exercise of gikr

Tasbih is the expression Subhana 'llah' 'Holmess be to God'"

Tuhmid, Alhamdu lı-'llah' "Praise be tu God'"

Takbir, Allahu ukbar' "God ia great'" When the Tashih and Tahmid are recited together it is said thus, Subhana Uahi bihamdish, se "Holmess be to God with His praise" It is related in the Hadis that Muhammad said, "Whoever recites this sentence a hundred times, morning and evening, will have all his sine forgiven.

Muhammad said "Repeat the Tashik a hundred times, and a thousand virtues shall be recorded by God for you, ten virtuous deeds for each repetition

In forming our estimation of Muhammad and Muhammadanism, we must take into consideration the important place the devotional exercise of gekr occupies in the system. not forgetting that it has had the authoritetive sanction of " the Prophet" himself

The following is a graphic description of one of these devotional performances, by Dr Eugene Schuyler, in his work on Turkistan '-"At about ten o'clock one Thursday evening, in company with several friends, we went to the mosque, and were at once admitted Some thirty men, young and old, were on their knees in front of the qublah, reciting prayers with loud cries and violent move ents of the body, and around them was a circle, two or three deep, of men standing, who were going through the same motions We took up a position in one corner and watched the proceedings. For the most part the performers or worshippers had taken off their ontside gowns and their turbans, for the night was warm and the exercise was violent They were reciting the words 'My defence is in God! May Allah be magnified! My light, Muhammad—God bless him! There is no God but God!" These words were chanted to various semi-musical notes in a low voice, and were accompanied by a violent move ment of the head over the left shoulder towards the heart, then back, then to the right shoulder, and then down, as if directing all the movements towards the heart These texts were repeated for hundreds and hundreds of times, and this zikr nanally lasted for, an hom or two At first the movements were slow, but continually increased in rapidity, until the performers were unable to endure it any longer If anyone failed in his duty, or was slower, or made less movement than was required, the persons who regulated the enthusiasm went up to him and struck him over the head, or pushed him back out of the circle and called another into it sionally persons got so worn out with their cries, and so wet with perspiration, that it became necessary for them to retire for a few minutes rest, and then places were unmediately taken by others When their voices became entirely hoarse with one cry another was begun, and finally the cry was struck up, 'He lives! He lives ' God lives!' at first slowly, with an inclination of the body to the ground then the rhythm grew faster and in cadence, the hody became more vertical, until at last they all stood up the measure still increased in rapidity, and, each one placing his hand on the shoulder of his neighbour, and then forming several concentric rings, they moved in a mass from side to side of the mosque, lesping about and always crying 'He lives' God lives!' Hitherto, there had been something wild and unearthly in it, but now to persons of weak nerves it became positively painful, and two of my friends were so much impressed as to be obliged to leave the mosque Although I was sufficiently cold-blooded to see the ridiculous rather than horrible side of this, I could not help receiving an impression that the devotoes were a paok of madmen, whose motions were ntterly independent of any volution of their own

The intonations of the voice were very remarkable, and were often accompanied by most singular gestures, the hands or a book being often held to the side of the mouth in order to throw the volce as far as possible Often those recitations are merely collections of meaningless words, which always seem to preduce the same effect on the hearers, and are constantly interrupted by cries of Hi, ho.

och, och, ba, ba, and grouns and sobs, and the hearers weep, beat their breasts with their fists, or fall upon the ground."

The dancing and howling darweshes at Constantinople and Cairo have become public sights, and are familiar to those Europeans who have visited these cities

We are indebted to Mr Brown's account of The Dervishes (Trubner and Co, Ludgate Hill) for the following graphic description of one of these public recitals of zikr [FAOTE.]

The ceremony commences by the recital by the Shaikh of the seven first attributes of the Divinity, called by them the seven mysterions words "He uext chants various passages of the Koran, and at each pause the Dervishes, placed in a circle round the hall, respond in chorus by the word 'Allah' (God) or 'Hoo!' (Huwa or Hū, He). In some of the societies they sit on their heels, the elbows close to those of each other, and all making simultaneously light movements of the head and body In others, the movemont consists in balancing themselves slowly from the right to the left, and from the left to the right, or inclining the body methodically forward and aft There are other societies in which these motions commence seated, in measured cadences, with a staid countenance, the eves closed or fixed upon the ground, and are continued on foot singular exercises are consucrated under the name of Murakebeh (exaltation of the Divine glory) [muraqabith, 'meditation'], and also under that of the Tevheed (celebration of the Divine unity) [Tauhid], from which comes the name Tevheed khaneh given to the whole of the balls devoted to these religious

"In some of these institutions such as the Kådırces, the Rufa'ees, the Khalwettees, the Bairamees, the Gulshences, and the 'Ushakees. the exercises are made, each holding the other by the hand, putting forward always the right foot, and increasing at every step the strength of the movement of the body. This strength of the movement of the body is called the Devr (Daur), which may be translated the 'dance or 'rotation.' The duration of these dances is arbitrary,—each one is free to leave when he pleases Every one, however, makes it a point to remain as long as possible. The strongest and most robust of the number, and the most enthu-siastic, strive to persevere longer than the others, they uncover their heads, take off their turbans, form a second ourcle within the other, entwine their arms within those of their prethren, less their shoulders against each other gradually raise the voice, and without ceasing reseat 'Yà Allah'' (O God), or 'Yà Hoo'' (O Ie), increasing each time the movement of the body, and not stopping until their entire strength is exhausted

"Those of the o ier of the Rufa'ees excel in these exercises. They are, moreover, the only ones who use fire in their devotions. Their practices embrace nearly all those of the other orders, they are ordinarily divided into five different scenes, which last more than three hours, and which are preceded, accompanied, and followed by certain cere-monies peculiar to this order The first commences with praises which all the Dervishes offer to their sheakhs, seated before the altar Four of the more ancient come forward the first, and approach their superior, embrace each other as if to give the kiss of peace and next place themselves two to his right, and two to his left. The remainder of the Dervishes, in a body, press forward in a procession, all having their arms crossed, and their heads inclined Each one, at first, salutes by a profound how the tablet on which the name of his founder is inscribed Afterwards, putting his two hands over his face and his beard, he kneels before the Sheikh, kisses his hand respectfully, and then they all go on with a grave step to take their places on the sheep-skins, which are spread in a half-circle around the interior of the hall So soon as a crele is formed, the Dervishes together chant the Takbeer (Takbir, the exclamation Allaku akbar, 'Ged is exalted') and the Fatiha (Fatikah, the first chapter of the Qur'an) Immediately afterwards the shalkh pronounces the words 'La ilaha ill' Allah' (There is no deity but Ged), and repeats them incessantly, to which the Dervishes repeat 'Allah!' balancing themselves from side to side, and putting their hands over their faces, on their breasts, and their abdomen, and on their knees

"The second scene is opened by the Hamdee Mchammadee, a hymn in honour of the Prophet, chanted by one of the elders placed on the right of the sheath. During this chant the Dervishes continue to repeat the word 'Allah' moving, however, then bedies forward and aft A quarter of an hour later they all rise up, approach each other, and press their elbows against each other, balancing from right to left, and afterwards in a reverse motion,—the right foot always firm, and the left in a periodical movement, the reverse of that of the body, all observing great precision of measure and cadence. In the midst of this exercise, they cry out the words. 'Ya Allah'' followed by that of 'Ya Hool' Some of the performers sigh, others sob, some shed tears, others porspire great drops, and all have their eyes closed, their faces pale, and the eyes languishing

TIRE IA F Hole \

"A pause of some minutes is followed by a third scene. It is perfor ied in the middle of an Hahee, chanted by the two elders on the right of the sheikh. The Hahees are spiritual cantiques, composed almost exclusively in Persian by sheil's deceased in the odour of sanctity. The Dervishes then hasten their movements, and, to prevent any relaxation, one of the first among them puts him self in their centre, and ex ites them by his example. If in the assembly there be any strange Dervishes, which often huppens, they give them through politoness, this place of bonour, and all fill it successively, the one after the other shaking themselves as aforosaid. The only exception made is in favour of the Mevlevees, these never perform any other dance than that peculiar to them own order, which consists in turning round on each heel in succession

"After a new pause commences the fourth arene. Now all the Dervishes take off their turbans form a circle, bear their arms and shoulders against each other, and thus make the circuit of the hall at a measured pace, striking their feet at intervals against the floor, and all springing up at once. This dance continues during the Ilahees, chanted alternately by the two elders to the left of the sheigh. In the midst of this chant the cries of 'Ya Allah!' are increased doubly, as also those of 'Ya Hoo! with frightful howlings, shrieked by the Dervishes together in the dance. At the moment that they would seem to stop from sheer exhaustren, the sheikh makes a point of exerting them to new efforts by walking through their midst, making also himself most violent movements. He is next replaced by the two elders, who double the quickness of the step and the agristion of the body, they even straighten themselves up from time to time, and excite the envy or emulation of the others in their astonishing efforts to continue the dance, until their strangth is entirely exhausted.

"The fourth scene leads to the last, which is the most frightful of all, the wholly prostrated condition of the actors becoming converted into a species of ecstasy which they call Halet (Halah) It is in the midst of this abandonment of self or rather of religious delnium, that they make use of red hot prons Several cutlasses and other instruments of sharp pointed iron are suspended in the miches of the hall, and upon a part of the wall to the right of the sheikh \ear the close of the fourth scene, two Dorvishes take down eight or mue of these instruments, heat them red-bot and present them to the sheikh. He, after reciting some prayers over them and invoking the founder of the Order Alimed or Rufa'ee, breather over them, and raising them slightly to the mouth, gives then to the Dervishes, who ask for thom with the greatest Then it is that 'hese fanatics, eagerness transported by frenzy, seize upon these irons, gloat upon them tenderly, lick them, bute them, hold them between then teeth and end by cooling them in their mouthal Those who are unable to produce any seize upon the outlesses hanging on the wall with fury, and stick them into their sides arms, and legs

"Thanks to the furv of then frenzy, and to the amazing boldness which they deem a morit in the eyes of the Divinity, all stocally bear up against the pain which they experence with apparent gaiety. If, however, some of them fall under their sufferings they throw themselves into the arms of their con fières, but without a complaint or the least sign of pain. Some minutes after this the sheikh walks round the hall visits each on of the performers in turn, breathes upon their wounds, rubs them with saliva, recites prayers over them, and promises them speedy cures. It is said that twenty four hours afterwards nothing is to be seen of their wounds.

"It is the common opinion among the Ruff'ees that the origin of these bloody practices can be traced back to the founder of the Order. They protond that one day, during the transport of his frenzy, Ahmed Ruff'ee put his legs in a burning basin of coals, and was immediately oured by the breath and saliva and the prayers of 'Abdul Kidir Ghilânes, they believe that their founder received this same prerogative from neaven, and that at his death he transmitted it to all the sheakhs his successors. It is for this reason that they give to these sharp instruments, and to these red-hot froms, and other objects employed by them in their mysterious frenzy, the name of Gul, which signifies 'rose, wishing to indicate thereby that the use made of them is as agreeable to the soul of the elect Dervishes as the odour of this flower

may be to the voluntuary

These extraordinary exercises seem to have something prodigious in them, which imposes on common people, but they have not the same effect on the minds of men of good sense and reason The latter believe less in the sanctity of these pretended thaumaturges than in the virtue of certain secrets which they adroitly use to keep up the illusion and the credulity of the spectators, even among the Dervishes themselves It is thus, perhaps that some assembles of these fanatics have given, in this age of light, and in the ridiculous spectacle of those pious and barbarous buffoonerres known by the name of convulsions At all times, and amongst every people of the earth, weakness and oredulity entinusiasm and charlatanry, have but too frequently profaned the most holy faith, and objects the most worthy of our veneration.

"After the Rufa'ces, the Sa'dees have also the reputation of performing miracles, pretty much of the same sort as the preceding One reads in the institutes of this Order, that Sad cd Deen Jebanee, its founder, when cut ting wood in the vicinity of Damasous, found three snakes of an enormous length, and that after having recited some prayers and blown upon them, he caught them alive, and used them as a rope with which to bind his To this occurrence they ascribe the pretended virtue of the sheikhs and the Dervishes of this society, to find out snakes, to handle them, to bite them, and even to eat them, without any harm to themselves Their crercises consist, like those of the Rufa'ces and other Orders, at first in sesting themselves, and afterwards in rising upright, but in often changing the attitude, and in re doubling their agitation even until they become overcome with fatigue, when they fall upon the floor motionless and without knowledge Then the sheigh, aided by his vicars, employs no other means to draw them out of this state of unconsciousness than to rub their arms and legs, and to breathe into their ears the wor is 'La ilaha ill' Allah '

"The Mevievees are distinguished by the singularity of their dance, which has nothing 311 common with that of the other societies. They call it Sem a (Sama') in place of Devr (Dour), and the halls consecrated to it are called Sem'a khaneha Their construction is The apartment represents a also different kind of pavilion, sufficiently light, and sus-tained by eight columns of wood. These Dervishes have also prayers and practices peculiar to themselves Among them the public exercises are not ordinarily made by more than nine, eleven, or thirteen individuals. They commence by forming a circle, seated on sheep-skin spread upon the floor at equal distances from each other, they remain nearly a half-hour in this position, the arms folded, the 'eyes closed, the head inclined, and absorbed in profound meditation

"The sheikh, placed on the edge of his seat on a small carpet, breaks silence by a hymn in honour of the Divinity, afterwards he mystes the assembly to chant with him the first chapter of the Koran 'Let us the first chapter of the Koran ohant the Fatsha, he says, in 'glorifying the holy name of God, in honour of the blessed religion of the prophets, but above all, of Mohammed Mustapha, the greatest the most august, the most magnificent of all the celestial envoys, and in memory of the first four Caliphs, of the sainted Fatimah, of the chaste Khadeeja, of the Imams Hassn and Husam, of all the martyrs of the memorable day, of the ten evangelical disciples, the virtuous sponsors of our sainted Prophet, of all his zealous and faithful disciples, of all the Imams, Multahids (sacred interpreters), of all the doctors, of all the holy men and woman Let us chant also in of Mussulmanism honour of Hazreti Mevlana, the founder of our Order, of Hazreti Sultan ul 'Ulema (his father), of Sayid Burhan ed Deen (his teacher), of Sheikh Shems ed Din (his consecrator), of Valideh Sultan (his mother) of Mohammed 'Allay ed Deen Efendi (his son and vicar), of all the Chelebees (his successors), of all the sheakhs, of all the Dervishes, and all the protectors of our Order, to whom the Supreme Being deigns to give peace and merov Let us pray for the constant prosperity of our holy society for the preservation of the very learned and venerable Chelebes Efends (the General of the Order), our master and lord, for the preservation of the reigning Sultan, the very majestic and clement Emperor of the Mussulman faith, for the presperity of the Grand Vizier and of the Sheikh ul Islam, and that of all the Mohammedan militia, of all the pilgrims of the holy city of Mekkeh Let us pray for the repose of the souls of all the institutors, of all the sheikhs, and of all the Dervishes of all other Orders, for all good people, for all those who have been distinguished by their good works, their foundations, and their acts of beneficence Let us pray also for all the Mussul mans of one and the other sex of the east and the west, for the maintenance of all prosperity, for preventing all adversity for the accomplishment of all salutary vows, and for the success of all praiseworthy enterprises finally, let us ask God to deign to preserve in us the gift of His grace, and the fire of holy

"After the Fatiha, which the assembly chant in a body, the Sheikh recites the Fatiha and the Salawat, to which the dance of the Dervishes succeeds Leaving their places all at once, they stand in a file to the left of the superior, and, approaching near him with slow steps, the arms folded, and the head bent to the floor, the first of the Dervishes, arrived nearly opposite the Sheikh, salutes, with a profound inclination, the tablet which is on his seat, on which is the name of Hazreti Mevlana, the founder of the Order Advancing next by two springs forward to the right side of the superior, he truns toward him, salutes him with reverence, and commences the dance, which consists in turning on the left heel, in advancing slowly, and almost meensibly making the turn of th hall, the eyes closed, and the arms open 18 followed by the second Dervish, he by the third, and so on with all the others, who and by filling up the whole of the hall, each repeating the same exercises separately, and all at a certain distance from each other

"This dance lasts sometimes for a couple of hours, it is only interrupted by two short pauses, during which the Sheikh recites different prayers Towards the close of the exercises, he takes a part in them himself, by placing himself in the midst of the Dervishes, then isturning to his seat, he recites some Persian verses expressive of good wishes for the prosperity of the religion, and the State The General of the Order is again named, also the reigning Sultan, in the following terms . The Emperor of the Mussalmans and the most august of momarchs of the house of 'Othman, bultan, son of a sultan, grandson of a sultan, Sultan -Sultan - Khan,' &c

" Here the poem mentions all the princes of blood, the Grand Vizier, the Muftee, all the Pashas of the empire, the Ulemas, all the Sharkha, benefactors of the Order, and of all the Mussulman peers, invoking the benediction of heaven on the success of their arms against the enemies of the empire. 'Finally, let us pray for all the Dervishee present and absent for all the friends of our holy society, and generally for all the faithful, dead and living, in the east and in the west

"The ceremony terminates by chanting the Fatiha, or first chapter of the Koran" (John P Brown, The Derrushes, or Oriental Spiritualism p 218 segg)

These coremones of gild would at first aight sppear to have little in common with original Muhammadamem, but there appears to be little doubt that the practice of reciting the word Allah and other similar expressions, com merced in the days of Muhammad himself, and this even the Wahhabis admit, who at the same time condemn the extravagances of the Howling and Dancing Darveshes of Turkistan, Turkey, and Egypt.

A chapter is devoted to the Prophet's injunctions on the subject in all large books of traditions, called Babu 's-Zihr, from which the following sayings of Muhammad have been selected '-

Whenever people sit and remember God, they are surrounded by angels which cover them with God's favour, and peace descends upon them, and God remembers them in that assembly which is near him.

Verily there are angels who move to and fro on the roads and seek for the rememberers of God, and when they find an ac-sembly remembering God, they say to one another," Come ve to that which ye were seeking" Then the angels cover them with their wings as far as the lowest heaven, called the region of the world. The Prophet said :- When the angels go to the court of God, God asks them, while knowing better then they, " What do my servants say and do?" Then the angels say, "They are reciting the Tasbih, the Takbir, the Tahmid, and the Tamjid for Thee" And God says, "Have they seen Me?" The angels say, "No, by God, they have not seen Thee" Then God says, "What would their condition be if they had seen Me?" The angels say, "If they had seen Thee, they would be more energetic in worshipping Thee and in reciting the Tamjid, and they would be more excessive in repeating the Tasbib." God eavs, "Then what do they want?" The angels say, "Paradise?" Then God says, "Have they seen Paradise?" The angele say, "We swear by God they have not" Then God says, "What would their state have been had they seen Paradise?" The angels say, 'If they had seen Paradise, they would be very ambitious for it and would be excessive wishers of it, and very great desirers of it. God says, "What thing is it they seek protection from?" The angels say, "From hell fire." God says, "Here they say he for the fire." "Have they seen the fire?" The angels say, "No, by God, if they had seen the tire-God says, "How would they have been had they seen the fire?" The angels say, "If they had seen the fire, they would be great run-ners from it, and would be great fearers of it" Then God says, . I take ye as witnesses that verily I have pardoned them" One of the angels said, "There is a person amongst them who is not a rememberer of Thec and is only come on account of his own needs"

There is a polish for everything that takes rust, and the polish for the heart is the re-membrance of God, and there is no act that redoems from God's punishments so much as the remembrance of Him The Companions said, "Is not fighting with the unfidels also have this?" He said, "No, although he fights until his sword be broken."

"Shall I not inform you of an action which is better for you than fighting with infidels and cutting off their heads, and their cutting off yours?" The Companions said, "Yes, inform us" The Prophet said, "These actions are remembering God"

'Abdullah ibn Aus said -An 'Arabi came to the Prophet and asked, "Which is the best of men?" The Prophet said, "Blessed is the person whose life is long and whose actions are good." The 'Arabi said, "O Prophet! which is the best of actions, and the most rewarded?" He said, "The best of actions is this, that you separate from the world, and die whilst your tongue is moist in repeating the name of God."

A man said, " O Prophet of God, really the rules of Islam are many, tell me a thing by which I may lay hold of rewards" The Propliet said, "Let your tongue be always most in the remembrance of God "

" Verily there are minety nine names of God, whoseever counts them up shall enter into Paradise." And in another tradition it is added, "God is Witr and like Witr"

When Zo 'n-Nen (Jonah) the prophet prayed his Lord, when he was in the fish'

belly, he said, "There is no Deity but Thee I extel Thy holiness Verily I am of the un-just ones" And a Musselman who suppli-Aud a Musselman who supplicates God with this petition will have his prayer granted

The best expressions are these four Subhana Allahı al-Hamdu Lıllahı, La ılaha illā 'llāhu, and Allāhu akbar, and it does not matter with which of them you begin

Verily I like repeating these four expres-sions O Holy God! Praise be to God! There is no derty but God! and God is Great! better than anything upon which the

No one can bring a better deed on the Day of Resurrection (unless he shall have said the like or added to it) than he who has recited, "O Holv God! Praise be to Thee!" one hundred times every morning and grineve

There are two expressions light upon the tongue and heavy in the scale of good works, and they are, "O Holy God! Praise be to Thee!" and "O Holy God! the Mighty

One ! '

That person who shall say, "There is no derty but Ged, who has no partner, to whom is dominion and praise and power," one hundred times, shall receive rewards equal to the oman spating of ten slaves, and one hundred good actions shall be written for him, and one hundred of his sins shall be blotted out, and those words shall be a protection to him from the devil and his wickedness in that day in which he shall have repeated them, until the mucht Not can anyone perform a better deed for the Day of Resurrection than this, unless he har done even more

Moses said, "O my Lord, teach me how I am to call upon Thee" And God said, "O Moses, recite 'There is no deity but God!'" Then Moses said, "O my Lord every one of Thy people say thie" And God said, "O Moses, if the seven heavens and their inhabitants and the soven earths were put into one scale, and this expression, 'There is no deity but God,' into another, these words would exceed in weight "

Reciting "O Holy God" is half the scale of good works, and reciting "God be praised," fills the scale. The recital of "There is no delty but one," removes the curtain between the worshipper and his God

He who recites with an unsulted heart "There is no deity but God," shall have the doors of heaven open for him until he reaches the throne of God, as long as he abstains from great sins

The ejaculation, "There is no power and strength but in God," is medicine for ninetynme pains, the least of which is melancholy
"There are two qualities which, being prae-used by anyone, shall cause him to enter Paradise, they are small and easy, and it is easy for anyone to practise them. One of them is this saying 'God is holy' ten times after every prayer, 'Praused be God' ten times, and 'God is great' ten times " And verily I saw the Prophet counting these words on his hand, and he would say, "Then these words are one hundred and fifty with the tongue in the day and night, but they are one thousand and five hundred in the scale of actions, reckoning ten for one And the second is this when he goes to his bed-chamber, let him say, 'God is hely,' and 'God be praised,' and 'Ged is great,' then that is one hundred on the tongue and a thousand in the scales Then which of you is it that commits two thousand five handred vices in the day and night, so that these words may cover them '" The Companions said, " If when we repeat these words we have so many rewards, why should we not say them?" The Prophet said, "The Devil comes to one of you when at prayers and says to him, 'Remember so-and-so, till you have finished your prayers, and the Devil comes to you in your bed-chamber, and is always making you sleep '

AZ-ZILLU 'I-AUWAL (الثلاث الأول)
"The first shade" A Shift term for al-'.lqlu
"L-Auwal [SUE1]

ZILLU 'LLAH (all ) "The Shade of God" A Suff term for the Insans "Kāmil, or the 'perfect man" [Suff]

Az-ZILZAL (الرابرال) "The Earthquake." The title of the xcixth Sheah of the Qur'an, beginning with the words 'When the earth shall quake with its quaking "

ZIMMAH (Los), pl zunam, from the root zamm, "to blame" A compact, covenant, or contract, a league or treaty, any engagement or obligation because the breaking thereof necessitates blame, and a right or due, for the neglect of which one is to be blamed The word is also synenymous with amon, in the sense of security of life and property, protection or safeguard, and promise of such hence while 'z-zimmah, or, with suppression of the noun uhlu, simply az-zimmah, the people with whom a compact or covenant has been made, and particularly the Kitabis, or the people of the book as Jews and Christians, and the Majusi or Sabeans, who pay the polltax called jazyah [JAZYAH] An individual of this class—namely, a free non-Muslim subject of a Muslim Government, who pays a poll- or capitation-tax, for which the Mus-lims are responsible for his security, personal freedom, and religious teleration—is called grammi (see the following article)

In the Qur'an the word zimmah occurs once, in the sense of clientship, or good faith as oppposed to ties of blood Sürah ix 7-10—

"How can they who add gods to God be in league with God and with His Apostle, save those with whom ye made a league at the sacred temple? So long as they are true to you, be ye true to them verily, God leveth those who fear Him

"How can they? muce if they prevail against you, they will not regard, in their dealing with you, either ties of bleed or good faith. With their mouths they content you, but their hearts are averse, and most of them are perverse doors

'They sell the signs of God for a mean price, and turn others aside from his way. of a truth, evil is it that they do!

"They respect not with a believer either ties of blood or good furth and these are the transgressors"

In modern language, the word semmes has frequently the meaning of conscience (Compare Lane's Arabic Dictionary, in loco)

ZIMMI (كانى), a member of the Ahlu 'z-Zimmah, a non-Muslim subject of a Muslim Government, belonging to the Jewish, Christian, or Sabean creed, who, for the payment of a poli- or capitation-tax, enjoys security of his person and property in a Muhammadan country

One of the most urgent duties enjoined by Muhammad upon the Muslim or true believer, was the Jihad fi Sabih Tlahi, or exertion in the road of God, it warfare for the apread of Islam, amongst the infidels within and without Arabia [SHAD], thus the whole world came to be regarded as divided into two great portions, the Dāru 'l-Harb and Daru I Islam [DARL 1-HARB, BARU L-ISLAM] the territories of War and the territories of Peace These two divisions, one of which represented the land of infidelity and darkness, the other that of light and faith, were supposed to be in a continual state of open or latent belligerous, until the Dura I Islam al ould have absorbed the Daru I-Harb and fuith conquered unbehel Infidelity, however, admits of degrees. Its worst shape is idolatry, that is, the worship of idols instead of or besides the one true God, and this, again, 14 a crime most shommable on the part of Arabs, "suice the Prophet was sent amongst them, and manufested himself in the midst of them and the Qur'an was delivered down in their language" Of an equally atrocious character is the infidelity of sposiates, "because they have become sufidely, after having been led into the way of faith, and made acquainted with its excellence" in the case of neither, therefore, is a compromise admissible they must accept or re-embrace the faith, or pay with their lives the full penalty of their crime

With regard to the idolaters of a non-Arabic or 'Ajam country, which latter expression in the times of early Islam particularly applied to the Persian Empire, ash-Shāfi'i maintains that destruction is incurred by them also, but the other learned doctors agree that it is lawful to reduce them to slavery thus allowing them, as it were, a respite during which it may please God to direct them into the right path, but making, at the same time, their persons and substance subservient to the cause of Islam.

The least objectionable form of infidelity in the even of Muhammad and his followers, is that of the Kitābis or people of the Book (ahis 'k-kitāb'), i.e. the Jews, as possessors of the Old Testament, or Taurāt, and the Christians, to whom, moreover, the Injil (Gespel) was revealed. As they are not guilty of an absolute denial, but only of a partial perversion of the truth, only part of the punishment for disbelief is their due, and it is imposed upon them in the shape of a tribute, called poll- or capitation- tax [JALYAH], by means of which they secure protection for their property, personal freedom, and religious toleration from the Yushim Government. The same privilege is extended to the Majusi or Sabeans, whose particular form of weiship was more lemently judged by Muhammad and the Traditionists than that of the idelators of Persia

This is the state of things if a country inhabited by such infidels be conquered by a Muslim arm; theoretically, the inhabitants, together with their wives and children, are considered as plunder and property of the State, and it would be lawful to reduce them to slayery In practice, however, the milder course prevails, and by paying the stipulated capitation-tax, the subdued people become. in the quality of Zimmis, free subjects of the conquering power, whose condition is but little interior to that of their Muslim fellowaubiects

The relations of an alien or Harbi-that is, one who belongs to the people of the Darn 'lharb-to a Muslim community which he visits, in time of peace, for the sake of traffic or any other legitimate purpose are regulated by that high conception of the duties of hospitality, which was mnate with the ancient Arab, and which prompted him to defend and honour even a mortal enemy, as soon as he might have crossed as a chance quest the threshold of his tent

On ontering the territory, an alien can claim a guest s protection from the first met Muslim, he it even the lowest peasant, and having obtained this protection, he is entitled to remain in the country unmolested for the term of a whole year Tue authorities, however, must within the year give him notice that, if he should remain nutil its completion, oapitation-tax will be imposed upon him, and in such notice the permission for his stay may be limited to some months only, if for some reason or other it should appear advisable or necessary to do so If the alien continue in the country beyond the full or limited time presonded, he becomes spec facto hable to the capitation-tax, and if, after thus becoming a Zimmi, he he desirous of returning to his own country, he may be prevented, as now heing bound to the Mushim Government by a contract of fealty. In similar manner as alien becomes a Zimmi upon purchasing tribute land and paying the impost on it, and is then hable to captitation-tax for the ensuing An alien woman turns Zimmiyah by year manying a Zummi, because thereby she undertakes to reside in the Muhammadan (See Hamilton's Hidayah, vol ii p 196.)

Zimmis do not subject thomselves to the laws of Islam, other with respect to things which are merely of a religious nature, such as fasting and prayer, or with respect to those temporal acts which, though contrary to the Muhammadan religion, may be legal by their own, such as the sale of wine or swine's The construction of places of worship in the Muslim territory is unlawful for them, unless within their own houses, but if churches and synagogues originally belonging to Christians and Jows be desiroyed or fall to decay, they are at liberty to rebuild and repair them. This is the rule with regard to cities, because, as the tokens of Islam, such as public prayor, festivals, &c , appear there, Zimmis should not be permitted to exhibit the tokens of midelity in the face of them, in villages and hamlets, on the other hand, where the tokens of Islam do not appear, there is no occasion to prevent the construc tion of Christian and Jewish places of wor-(See Hamilton's Hidayah, vol n p 219)

Save some slight restrictions with regard to dress and equipage, Zimmis are held in all transactions of daily life pretty much on a footing of equality with Muslims Like children, women and slaves, a Zimmi has no legal share in the booty but only a discretionary allowance out of it, if he has taken part in the fight. If he has acted as a guide, and his services as such have been attended with any eminent advantage, he may, however, receive even a larger share than a Muham madan combatant (Hamilton's Hidayah

vol n,p 178)

Every marriage that is lawful between two Muslims, is lawful between two Zimmis Marriages that are not lawful between two Muslims are of several kinds Of these there is the marriage without witnesses. When a Zimmi marries a Zimmiyah without witnesses, and such marriages are sanctioned by their religion, the marriage is lawful So that, if they should afterwards embrace the Muslim faith, the marriage would still be established And in like manner, if they should not embrace that faith, but should both claim from the judge the application of the rules of Islam, or one of them should make such a claim, the judge is not to separate them There is also the marriage of a woman during hor 'tddah on account of another man ['IDDAR] When a Zimmi marries a woman in her 'iddah for another man, that man being a Muslim, the marriage is invalid, and may he objected to before their adoption of the Muhammadan religion, even though their own religion should recognise the legality of marriage in the state of "iddah, but if the 'addah were rendered incumbent on the woman on account of an infidel, and marriages in a state of 'adduk are accounted lawful in the religion of the parties, it cannot be objected to while they remain in a state of infidelity, according to general agreement If under those cucumstances they afterwards adopt the Muslim faith, the marriage remains fixed and established, according to Abia Hanifah, whose decision is considered valid in spite of the different opinions of Abû Yusuf and Muhammad, and the judge is not to separate them, though both of them er only one of them should adopt the faith, or both or only one of them should bring the matter before the judge In the Mabsüt it is stated that the difference between the masters was only when the reference to the judge, or the adoption of the faith, takes place during the subsistence of the 'sddah', but where it does not take place till after the "addah has expired, the parties are not to be separated according to all their epinions (Baillie's Digest of Mochumundan Law, Hans

feen, p 178)
If a Zimmi marry a Zimmivali making the dewer consist of wine or pork, and one or both should afterwards embrace the faith before the wife has obtained seisin, according to Abu Hamfah, the woman is entitled to receive the actual article, if it has been "identically specified,' but if not, the estimated value of the wine or her proper dower in heu of the pork, as the case may be Abu Yusuf maintains that she is to have her proper dower, and Muhammad the estimated value in all cases If a Christian Zimmi marry a Christian Zimmivah, without epecifying any dower, or on a specified dower consisting of carron (flesh of an animal not lawfully slain), such as may be deemed lawful by members of their profession and have sexual intercourse with her, or divorce her without consummation, or die without concummation, according to Abu Hanifah, she is not entitled to any dower, aithough both parties may have embraced the faith in the interim, but according to Abu Yusuf and Muhammad, she will take her proper dower if the husband concummate the marriage, or die without consummation, and will be entitled to a present if she be divorced without consummation. (A Rumsey, Mochumundan Law of Inheritance, p 378)

When one of an infidel married couple embraces the Muhammadan faith, Islam is to be presented to the other, and if the other adopt it, good and well if not, they are to be sepa rated If the party is cilent and says nothing, the judge is to present Islam to him time after time, till the completion of three, by way of cantion And there is no difference between a discerning youth and one who is adult, so that a separation is to be made equally on the refusal of the former as of the latter, according to Abu Hanifah and the Imam Muhammad But if one of the parties be young and without sufficient discernment, it is necessary to want till he has understanding, and when he has understanding, Islam is then to be presented to him, and if he adopt it, well, if not, a separation is to be made without waiting for his arriving at pa berty And if he be mad, Islam is to be pre sented to his parents and if they, or one of them, should embrace it, good and well, if not, a separation is to be made between the married parties If the husband should embraco the faith and the wife refuse, the sepsration is not accounted repudiation, but if the wife should embrace the faith and the husband decline, the separation in consequence is considered a repudiation, since the cause of

When a sope separation proceeds from him ration takes place between them by reason of refusal, and it is after consummation, she is entitled to the whole dower; and if it is before consummation and through his refusal, she is entitled to half the dower; but if through her own refusal, she has no dower at all If, however, the husband of a Kitabiyah adopt the faith, their marriage remains unaffected in accordance with the general principle, that the marriage between a Muslim and a Kitabiyah is originally lawful. (Bailley, Hantfeen Code, p 180)

When a Zimmi has repudiated his Zimmiyah wife three times, and then behaves to her as he had done before the repudiation, without marrying her sgain, or saying the words of the contract over her, or when his wife has obtained a And or release [KHUL'], and he then acts to her as before without renewing the contact—they are to be separated, even though they should not bring the matter to the judge. But if he repudiates her three times, and then renews the contract of marrisge with her without her being married to another, they are not to be separated (Ib.)

The child follows the religion of the better of its parents Hence, if one of them be a Muslim. the child is of the Muslim religion. The mother could not be so ab initio, but only in consequence of conversion to the Muhammadan faith, for a Mushm woman cannot lawfully be the wife of any other than a man of her own religion So also, if one of them should sub-sequently embrace Islam, having an infant child, the infant would become Muslim by virtue of the parent's conversion, that is, when there is no difference of dar, by both of the parents being either within the Daru'l-Islam or the Daru 'l-Herb, or by the child being in the former at the time that its parent embraces the Muslim faith in the foreign country, for he then becomes constructively one of the Muslim people, but when the child is in the foreign country, and the parent within the Muslim territory, and he adopt the faith there, the child does not follow him, and is not a Muslim A Majusi is worse than a Kıtabi and if one of the parents be a Majūsī and the other Kıtâbī, the child is a Kitabi, and may be lawfully married by a fuslim, to whom also things slaughtered by the child would be lawful

Generally, an infidel cannot sakerst from a believer, nor, on the other hand, can a behever inherit from an infidel, but infidel subjects of a Muslim state can inherit from one another. And it is immeterial, for such a purpose, whether they be of the same religion or not, all unbelievers being, in this respect, considered as of one class. A Muslim may, however, make a bequest to a Zimmi and a Zimmi to a Muslim, as well as to another infidel, whether of the same or of a different religion, not being a hostile alies. The testamentary power of a Zimmi is subject to the same limitations as that of a Muslim, so that bequests to a person entitled by inheritance are invalid, and bequests to any other person are invalid so far as they exceed one-third of the testator's property This for the reason that, on entering into the comsect of Zimmah, he has agreed to conform to the laws of Islam in all temporal concerns (See A Rumsey, Mochummidan Law of In Seritance, p. 222)

The will of a Zimmi for secular purposes is valid, according to all opinions than secular purposes are of four different kinds First, there are purposes which are wood, or a means of approach to Almighty God, both with Zimmis and Muslims, and bequests for these purposes are valid, whether they be to a set of particular persons or not Thue, wuen a Kitabi has directed by his will, that slaves be purchased and emancipated on his account, whether with or without a speci fication of individuais, or that a third of his property be bestowed in charity on beggars and the mdigent, or expended in lighting a lamp in the Bastu 'l-Muqaddas or Holy Temple of Jerusalem, or in making war against the infidel Tartars the begnest is valid

Second, there are purposes which are sinful both with the Zimmis and the Muslims, and bequests for these purposes are valid, if they are to a set of particular persons, and the bequest is a grift without regard to the purposes but if the persons are not particularised the bequest is void. If, therefore, a Zimmi should bequeath, for instance, a third of his property for the support of dissolute women, singers, and the like, the bequest is valid, if such persons are particularised and it is a grift to them, but if they are not particularised, it is vo d.

Third, there are purposes which are qu bah with the Muslims, but sinful with the Zimmis. In this, as in the previous case, the bequest is a gift and valid if in favour of a set of particular persons, but it is void, if the persons are not particularised. Hence, if the third of a man's property is to be expended in sending a set of Muslims on pilgrimage, or building a masjid, and the persons are parti cularised, the bequest or gift is valid and considered to be coupled with a counsel to accomplish the stated purpose, leaving them at liberty to perform the pilgrimage or crect

the most te, or not, as they please Fourth and last, there are purposes which are emful with a Muslim, but gurbah or meritorious with a Zimmi, and bequests for these are valid, according to Abn Haulfah, whether the porsons be particularised or not, but void, according to Abu Yusuf and the Imam Muhammad, when they are not specified for instance, a Kitābi bequeath a third of his property for the erection of a church or synagogue, or bequeath his mansion to be converted into a place of worship of his religion, the bequest, so ording to the two disciples, is void, as sinful in the eyes of a Mushim, unless it is for a particular class of persons, when it is a gift to them, but, according to Abu Hanifah, it is valid under all circum-This, however, subject to the condition stated above, that the erection of such buildings takes place in villages and not in | place of the departed teaches the hving, towns, the bequest in the latter case being inoperative (See Bailley, Hangesa Code, p. 678)

If a Jew or a Christian, being in sound health, huld a church or a synagogue, and then die, such building is an inheritance, according to all the doctors, and therefore descends to the heirs in the same manner as any other of the founder's property From the point of view taken by the two disciples this is evident enough. But with regard to Abu Hanifah's doctrine, the question may be raised What is the difference between the building of a church or synagogue in the time of health, and the bequeathing it by will, that Abu Hanifah should hold it inheritable in the former instance, and not in the latter This "objection" is met in the Hidayah with the "reply" "that it is not the mere erecting (of the church, &c) which extinguishes the builder's property, but the exclusive dedication of the building to the ser vice of God, as in the case of mosques erected by Mussulmans, and as an infidel place of worship is not dedicated to God indisputably, if therefore still remains the property of the founder, and is consequently inheritable (in common with his other effects), whereas a bequest, on the contrary, is used for the very purpose of destroying a right of property (Hidayah, Grady's Translation p 696)

ZINA' (+Uj) [ADULTEBY]

(زندین) ZINDIQ A term now nsed to express a person in a hopeless state of infidelity Some say the word is derived from the Persian Zan din, t c a woman's religion. Others assert that it is a term of relation to the word Zand or Zend, which means "explanation," ie the explanation of the book of Zardusht or Zorouster (See Lane's Arabic Dictionary, in loco)

ZIPPORAH SAFURA'

ZIYĀRAH (اربارة), from the root zaur, "to visit," visitation, particularly of the tomb of the Prophet, and of the grave of any martyr or saint of the Muhammadan faith. In India and Central Asia the word, always pronounced ziyarat, is, by way of abbreviation, used for esyarat-gah, se. for the place of such visitation, or the shrine connected with it

Although it is held by Wahhabis and other Muslum purstans that the Prophet forbade the visitation of graves for the purposes of devotion, the custom has become so common, that it may be considered part of the Mnhammadan religion. And, indeed, it is difficult to believe that a . eligious teacher of Muhammad's cast of mind should have in principle opposed a practice which is an natural to the However much he may have human heart objected to the clamorous wailings and lamentations over the dead, in which the pagan Arabs of the ignorance, especially the women, indulged, he was not likely to be insensible to the solemn lesson which the resting7.4

30 E. -

or to stifle in his followers the plous remem-brance of beloved friends and kindred who have gone before We see, therefore, no resson to doubt the genmeness of the following traditions, which we translate from a manuscript of the Munkan, belonging to the Library of the India Office (Arabic MSS., No. 2143, New Catalogue, 154), and which the compiler of that work has taken from such authorities as Muslim, Ibn Majah, at-Turmiai, &c

Burnidah related, the Apostle of God said "(Formerly) I forbade you to visit the graves, but you may visit them now "(Muslim) but you may visit them now Abu Hurairah related the Prophet visited the grave of his mother, and he wept and caused those who were around him to weep also. Then he said "I begged leave from my Lord to ask forgiveness for her, but it was not granted me, then I begged leave to visit her grave, and it was granted ine, visit therefore the graves, for they remind you of death " (Mushm.)

Buraidah related The Apostle of God used to instruct them, when they issued forth to the burnal-places, to pronounce the words "Peace be upon von, O ye people of these abodes from amongst the Believers and the Resigned, and we, if God please, are surely overtaking you to ask salvation from God for us and you." (Muslim) Ibn 'Abbas related The Prophet passed by some graves in al-Mudinah, and he turned his face towards them and said "Peace be upon you O ye people of the graves, may God forgive us and you, ye are the van of us and we (following) in your steps"

'Aylshah related that when the turn of her night had come on the Prophet's part, he used to step out towards the end of the night into al-Baqi' (the burial ground of al-Madinah) and to say "Peace be with the abode of a beheving people, and the time that has been promised you as your appointed term may come to you on the morrow (speedily), and we, if please God, are overtaking you O God, grant forgiveness to the people of Baqiu 'l-Garqad." She asked "What shall I say, Q Apostle of God, to wit, on vusiting the graves?" He replied "Say, Peace be upon the people of these abodes from amongst the Believers and the Resigned, and God have compassion on those of as that go before and those that follow, and we, if please God, are overtaking you." (Muslim)

Muhammad ibn Nu'am related, the Prophet said "He who visits the grave of his father and mother, or of either of them, on every Friday, his sms are forgiven, and he is written down as one prous" (Barhaqi)

Ibn Mas'ud related, the Apostle of God said " I had forbidden you to visit the graves, but now ye may visit them, for they detach from this world and remind of the world to come.

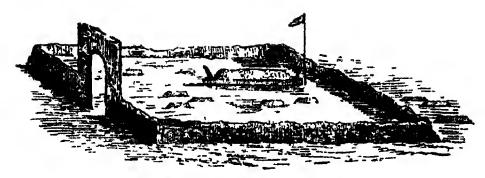

(Don Majah.)
Abu Hurairah related "The Apostle of God sursed women visiting the graves." To this the compiler of the Mishkät adds. At Tirmisi calls this tradition a well-supported and genuine one, and says, " Some of the learned are of epinion that this happened before the Prophet permitted the visitation of th but that when he did so, both man an were included in the permission; again allege, that he only disapp women visiting the graves, because but little given to patience and fear "

In the face of these texts we canno that the practice of visiting the grav a marked feature in the religious li Muhammadans, and that the teml founder of Islam and the burial-pla chief confessors have become the c great devotional reverence. Pilgrime kah (except the Wahhabis) always p al Madinah to visit the Prophet's al to claim an interest in his interess in all Muhammadan countries there rate or "shrmes," which are visited votees in order to obtain the interces the departed saint Such a ziyara grave of Khwajah 'Abda 'liah Ans flourished about the time of our Ki A.D 1200, and who established such tation for sanctity that even to this tomb, at Gezarghaugh near Herat, h by pilgrims from all, parts of the 1 This tomb is an exceedingly fine Oriental sculpture Upon its marble : mecribed, in the finest sulus writing from the Qur'an But the chief histo rest in the shrine of this saint is four fact that Dost Muhammad Khan, t Afghan Ameer of Cabul (A D 1868), r that his bonos should be interred at of Khwajah 'Abdu 'llah, in order dark deeds of blood may obtain for through the potent intercession of thi saint Such is one of the many insi the great importance which Easter have attached to the sanctity of ground in which have been buried the of some great teacher or ascetic.

In towns and in great sentres of pop the tombe which are visited as zigusually substantial structures, but in they are often the most simple graves. by a few flags, and surrounded by a to keep the sacred spot free from de Oftentimes the Eastern traveller wi ziyārai on the road-side of some desi way. Probably it is the resting-place pilgrim who, returning from Makkah disease or was slain by highway ro either case, according to the doct Islam, suffering a martyr s death. [3 Such a mydrat will be taken charg some poor darwesh or fagir, who wil shed near the secred spot, and sug weary traveller with a cup of cold w he stops and raises his hands in sup at the shrine of the martyred saint.

The cures performed at sigurate a vified Some will be celebrated as t where rheumatism can be cured, of suitable for small-pox patients, whil have even gained a reputation as I healing for those who are bitten by m The grave of Khushhal Khan Kha werrier poet of the Afghins, in the P valley, is visited by thousands of childless women.

A GIYARAT IN CENTRAL ASIA (A F Hole)

The ziyārais are always visited with the feet uncovered, and when the grave is covered with stones or pebbles, these are used to rub upon the afflicted limbs Some more substantial monuments are supplied with brushes, which are used for the double purpose of cleaning up the court-yard and for rubbing upon the diseased body of the devotes

These ziwarats are always lighted up with small lamps on Thursday evening, which is the beginning of the Eastern Friday But Sunday is held to be a propitious day for visiting shrines

Adjoining many sugarats of eminence, there i will be mosques supported by large endowments, in which will be found a large number of students Such is the renowned sigurat of Kaka Sahib in the Khatak hills on the Afghān frontier Many ziyarats are very largely endowed by princes and nobles, who have believed that they have obtained assistsuce from the intercessions of the departed saint There is, however, no proof that Muhammad ever snoouraged the behef that the prayers of departed saints were of any avail in the presence of the Almighty Indeed, it is a distinctive teaching of Islam that even the Prophet himself cannot intercede for his own people until the Day of Judgment TERCESTION ]

A ROAD-SIDE ZIYARAT IN CENTRAL ASIA. (E S. Jukes)

ZODIAC, The signs of Arabic intagatu 'l-buruj' (عبرية) Arabic mintagatu "The girdle or some of towers." Greek Mentioned three times in the πύργοι. Quran Strah ixxxv 1 the heaven with its Towers!" Strah xxv 62

"Blessed be He who hath placed in the Heaven the sign of the Zodiac! who hath placed in it the Lemp of the Sem, and the light-giving Moon!"

Sürah xv 16

"We have set the signs of the redisc in the Heavens, and adorned and decked them forth for the beholders.

"And We guard them from every stoned

"Save such as steal a hearing and him doth a visible flame pursue."

In explanation of the last verses, commen tators tell us that the devils listen at the gate of heaven for scraps of the knowledge of futurity, and when detected by the ungels, are pelted with shooting stars (see Sürah in 81 "the pelted devil", also Sürah xxxvii. 8 " hurled at from every side"

So in the Talmud, in Chaguya xvi 1, the shadeem, or "demons," are said to learn the secrets of the future by listening behind the pargod or "veil."

The names of the signs are

- 1. Hamal, Ravo 2 Saur, Bull 8 Jauza', Twins
- 4. Sartan, Crah
- 5. Asad, Lion
- 6 Sumbalah, lit an "ear of corn," Virgin
- 7 Mizan, Scales
- 8. 'Agrab, Scorpion
- 9 Ques, Archer
- 10 Jadi Ha-goat 11 Dalw, Watering-pot

12 Hut, Fish.

ZOROASTRIANISM The ancient religion of Persia is only referred to once in the Qur'an, Surah xxu 17, as the religion of the Majus (المجوس), the Mugians Most Muhammadan writer especially amongst the Shi ahs, believe them to have formerly possessed a revelation from God which they have since lost [AL-MAJUS.]

ZUBAIR IBN AL-'AUWAM (١٣١) المرام) Cousin german to Mu-hammad, and one of the dret who embraced his religion He is one of the ten, called al-'Asharah al-Mubashsharah, to whom the Prophet gave certain assurances of Paradise He was slain by 'Amr ibn Jurmuz on the day of the battle of the Camel (waq'utu 'l-Janal),

(نحی) ZUHĀ (1) That part of the day about half-way between sunrise and

(2) A period of voluntary prayer [PEAYER]

(8) Az-Zuka, the title of the xonnid Surali of the Qur'an, which begins with the words, " By the noon-day brightness" ( suhu),

ZUHD (زهد). Abstinence, a religious life Exercising oneself in the service of God, especially being abstinent in respect of eating, subduing the passions

" Gilding " (الزعرف) Gilding " The name of the xLILITA Surah of the Quran, in the 84th verse of which the word occurs "And but that men would then have been one nation, we would have made for those who misbelieve in the Merciful, one roof of silver for their houses and steps up thereto which they might mount and to their houses doors, and bedsteads on which they might recline, and gilding"

ZULAIKHA', more correctly ZA-LIKHA (رليحاه) The wife of Potiphar (Quifir) Al-Baizāwi says she was also called Ra'il An account of her tempting Joseph is found in the xiith buish of the Qūr'ān, 23-25 -

"And she in whose house he was, conceived a passion for him, and she shut the doors and said, 'Como hither' He said, 'God keep me' Verily my lord bath given me a good home verily the mjunous shall not prosper '

"But she longed for him, and he had longed for her had he not seen a token from his Lord (the apparition of his father, who said, 'Hereafter shall the names of thy brethren, engraven on precious stones, shine on the breast of the High Priest. Shall thine be blotted out?') Thus we averted evil and debloment from him, verily he was one of our sincere servants

"And they both made for the door, and she rent his shirt from behind, and at the door they met her lord 'What,' said she, 'shall be the recompense of him who intended evil to my family, but a prison or a solo punish ment?'

'He said, 'She solicited me to evil' And a witness in hor own family (an infant in the cradle) witnessed 'If his shirt be rent in front, then hath she spoken truth, and he is a liar

" But if his shirt be rent from behing, then she hath hed and he is a man of truth

"And when his lord saw his shirt torn from behind, he said, 'This verily is one of your devices I verily your devices are great !

" 'Joseph! 'urn away from this, and thou O wase, ask pardon for thy crime verily thou hast anned

"And in the city the women said, 'The wife of the Prince hath schoited her servant he nath fired her with love verily we perderve her to be in a manifest error

"And when she hoard of their cabal, she sent to them and get ready a banquet for them, and gave each one of them a knife and said, loseph, come forth to them' And when they saw him they extelled him, and cut their hands (metead of their food, through surprise at his beauty), sud said, 'God keep us! This is no man! This is none other than a noble angel!"

"She said, 'This, then, is he about whom ye blamed me. And I wished him indeed to yield to my desires, but he stood firm. But if he obey not my command, he shall surely be cast into prison, and become one of the contemptible.

"He said, 'Omy Lord ! I profer the prison to compliance with her bidding but unless Thou turn away their shares from me, I shall play the youth with them, and become one of the unwise

So his Lord heard him and turned aside heir snares from him, verily He is the Hearer, the Knower

"Then resolved they, even after they had seen the signs of his tanocence, to imprison him for a time"

The explanations put into parentheses are notes of Mr Rodwell's, in whose translation the passage is given, and who quotes the corresponding Talmudio legends

This story of Yusuf wa Zulaikhā' has been celebrated in a well-known Persian posm by 'Abdu 'r-Rahman Jamī, and hence Joseph has become the Adonis of the East

ZŪ 'L-FIQAR ZU 'L-FIQAR () Lat "The Lord of the Vertebras of the Back" The name of the celebrated sword which Muhammad gave to his son-in-law 'Ali.

ZÜ 'L-HIJJAH (البو السجة) Let "The Lord of the Pilgrimage" The twelfth month of the Muhammadan year, so called because it is the month appointed for the Makkan pilgrimage.

ZŪ 'L-JALĀL (دو الجلال) "Lord of Majesty" One of the minety nine attri-" Lord butes of God See Quran, Surah lv. 78 "Blessed be the name of thy Lord possessed of majesty and glory, لنو الكفل) Lit "Lord (دو الكفل) Lit of a portion" A worthy mentioned in the Qur'an, Surah xx: 85 "And Ishmael, and Idris, and Zu I-Kifl, all of these were patient, and we made them enter into our mercy, verily they were among the righteous" Al-Barrawi says he was so called because he had a portion with God the Most High, and gua ranteed his people, or because he had double the work of the prophets of his time, and their reward According to some writers, he was either Elias, or Joshua, or Zachariah

The root kaft, naving also the meaning of "care," "support," other interpretors identify him with the Obadiah of 1 Kings xviii 4, who supported one hundred prophets in the cave, or Ezekiel, who is called hafil by the Arabs See Niebuhr, Travels, vol 11 p 265

Lit "Putting a اللم (علم) ZULM thing not in its proper place " (Ar-Raghib, in loce ) Wrong-doing, acting tyranically Mu hammad ibn at-Taiyib, the author of Annotutions on the Camus, says zulm is of three kinds (1) between man and God, (2) between man and man, (3) between man and himself In the Qur'an-

Sarah iii 50 "God loves not the tyrants

(az-zalimina) " Surah iti. 104 "God desires not lyranny

(zulman) unto the worlds" Surah xxx1 12: "Associating (with God) is a nighty wrong (zulmun 'azumun)" Sürah ii 54 " It was themselves they were wrongung (kānū anfusa-hum yazlımuna)

ZULMAH (LLL), pl gulamüt "Darkness" A term used in theology for (1) Ignorance, (2) Belief in a plurality of gods, (3) Transgressions, (4) Afflictione
Qur'an, Sürah xxiv 40 "Or like darkness

(ka-zulumatin) on a deep sea, there covers it a wave above which is a wave, above which is a bloud, darkness one above another, when one puts out his hand he can scarcely see it, for he to whom God has given no light, he has no light "

كل 'L-QA'DAH (دو القعدة ) Lat The 'Master of Truce." The eleventh month of the Muhammadan year, so called because it was the month in which the ancient Arabs abstained from warfare [NONTHS.]

ZŪ 'L-QARNAIN (دو الغريس) Lst. "Hu of the two horns" A celebrated personage mentioned in the 18th chapter of the Qu'ran, who is generally considered to be Alexander the Great, although Muslim writers hold him to have been contemp...ary with Abraham

Al Qastalanī, the commentator on al-Bikharî, says 'Zu l-qarnain was a king named Sakandar, whose wazu, or chancellor, was Khizr [KHIZR], and was contemporary with Abraham, the Friend of God, with whom he visited the Ka'bah at Makkah There is some difference of opinion as to his being a prophet, but all leained men are agreed that he was a man of faith and piety

Al-Baizawî says "He was Sakandar ar-

Rumi, King of Persia and Greeco"
Al-Kamulain say "He was Sakandar ar-Rumi, but was contemporary with Abraham, and not the Sakandar who lived about three hundred years before Christ, who was an infidel."

Muhammad, in his Qur'an, whilst professing to give an inspired account of Zu'l-qarnain, supplies us with but a confused description, as follows .

"They will ask thee of Zu'l-garnam, Say I will recite to you an account of him Verily We (God) established his power upon the earth, and We gave him a means to ac-complish every end, so he followed his way, until when he reached the setting of the sun. he found it to set in a miry found, and hard by he found a people We (God) said, O Zū'l-qarnam! whether thou chastise or whether thou treat them generously'- As for him who is impious' he said, 'we will chas-tive him,' then shall he be taken back to his Lord, and He will chastise him with a grievous chastisement But as to him who shall have a generous recompense, and We will lay on them our easy behests. Then followed he a route, until when he reached the rising of the sun, he found it to rise on a people to whom We had given no shelter from it Thus it was And We had a full knowledge of the forces that were with him Then followed he a route until he came be tween the two mountains, beneath which ho found a people who scarce understood a language They said, 'O Züll-qarnam ! Verily Gog and Magog (1 e the barbarous people of Eastern Asia) waste this land, shall we then pay thee tribute, so thou build a rampart between us and them? He said, 'Better than your tribute is the might wherewith my Lord hath strengthened me, but help me strenously, and I will set a barrier between you and them. Bring me blocks of iron?—until when if filled the space between the mounain sides, 'Blow,' said he, 'upon it'—until when he had set it on fire he said.' Bring ne molten brass that I may pour upon it and Geg and Magog were not able to scale t, neither were they able to dig through it This,' said he, 'is a mercy from my Lord 'Qur'an, Sûrab xviii 82-96')

There are different opinions as to the reacon of the surname, "twe-horned" Some hink it was given him because he was King of the East and of the West, or because he lad made expeditions to both those extreme exits of the earth, or else because he had we horns on his diadem, or two curls of hair, like horns, on his forehead Perhaps there some allusion to the he-goat of Daniel, albough he is represented with but one horn

Dan vin. 5

Az-ZUMAR ("Troops" "Troops" he title of the EXEXETH Sürah of the Qur'ān, the 75rd verse of which the word occurs But those who fear God shall be driven to 'aradise in troops"

ZUNNAR (زنار) In Persia, the elt worn by Christians and Jews In India, to Brahmanical thread A term used amongst to Sūfis for sincerity in the path of reliion (Kashfu'l-Istilāhat, in loco)

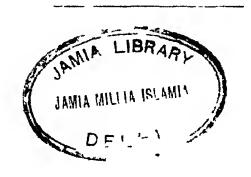

ZŪ'N-NŪN (كواللون). Let. " Man of the fish." A title given to the Prephet Jonah, in Qur'an, Sürah zzi. 87. [JOHAH]

ZURAH (cl.) Let "That which is very distant." A term used by al-Baigawi the commentator for the Bette 'l-Ma'mar, or the model of the Ka'bah, which is said to be in the fourth heaven, and is referred to in the Qur'an, Sûrah hi 4 "By the visited home (i.e. Baitu 'l-Ma'mar)." (See al-Baizawi, in loco.)

ZŪ 'R-RAHIM (فو الرحم), pl. sawii 'l-arhām, or wiū 'l arhām Lul. "A possessor of the womb" A uterme relation. The plural form قائد 'l-arham occurs twice in the Qur'an.

Sürah vih 76, "And they who have believed and have since fled their country, and fought at your side, thase also are of you. Those who are united by ties of blood (ülü 'lai kām), are the nearest of kin to each other according to the Book of God Verily God knoweth all things."

Sürah xxxm o "Nearer of km to the faithful is the Prophet, than they are to their own selves. His wives are their mothers According to the Book of God, they who are related by blood (ulu 'l-arham) are nearer the one to the other than other believers, and than those who have fied their country for the cause of God but whatever kindness ye show to your kindred, shall be noted down in the Book.

INDEX.

| Äbdast, 8, 1                  | إبدست                     |
|-------------------------------|---------------------------|
| Ābiq, 3, 1 , 7. 1 , 182, 1    | ابق                       |
| Āpr, 176, 1                   | 74.                       |
|                               | إعر الموجو                |
| 616. 1                        | المر المراما              |
| Akhır-1-chahar-1-shambah, فسه | A. lan . 5                |
| 12, 11                        |                           |
| Ākh ūnd, 12, n         | .1.48                     |
| Akhundenda 10                 | آخوند              |
| Äkhūndzādalı, 12, 11          | اعوندزاده                 |
| Ādāb, 285, 11                 | إداب                      |
| Adam, 9, 1, 440, 1, 475, 11.  | إدم                       |
| Azād, 116, 1                  | آزاد                      |
| Azar, 440, 1                  | آزر                       |
| Asiyah, 25, 11                | أسية                      |
| Aeaf, 23, 11                  | John                      |
| Al, 12, n                     | آل                        |
| Aminali, 2, 1                 | أمنة                      |
| Ammah, 128, 11 , 680, 11      | Lot                       |
| Amin, 14, 11                  | آسین               |
| Ayatu 'l-hıfz, 15, 1 , 27, 1  | آيات الما                 |
| Ayah, 26, 11, 350, 1, 489, 11 | 144                       |
|                               | 7.3 114-                  |
| Ayatu 'l-fath, 26, 11         | آية الفتح                 |
| Ayatu 'l-kursī, 27, 1         | أية الكرسوأية الموازع |
| Ayatu 'l-mawaris, 27, 1,      | الموازا                   |
| 207, 1.                       |                           |
| Ab, 646, 11                   | اب                        |
| Au, Uno, II                   |                           |

Ab, 646, 11

Tbāhīyah, 188, 1

Ibāziyah, 188, 1

Ibāq, 7, 1, 188, 1.

Abad, 1, 1i.

Abadī, 1, 1i

Abadī, 101, 1

Ibrāhīm, 440, 1, 475, 11

Abkam, 101, 11

Ibili, 49, 1

Ibhīa, 84, 1, 188, 1

Ibn, 604, ii., 646, 1i

Ibnu 'l-harām, 168, 1

Ittihād, 222, 11.

Ittihādyah, 609, 1.

| Ittifāq sukūtī, 197, m                              | افغاق سكوتي         |
|-----------------------------------------------------|---------------------|
| Ittifaq fili, 197, 1                                | الغاق فعلى          |
| Ittifaq qaulī, 197, i.                              | القلق قولي          |
| Işbāt, 261, 1                                       | البان               |
| Agar, 23, 11                                        | اعر                 |
| Agaru 'sh-sharif, 28, 11.                           | اكر الشريف          |
| Ism, 220, 11, 594, 11                               |                     |
| Ignā-'ısharīyah, 220, 11,                           | المالعا عشرية   |
| 572, iı                                             |                     |
| Ijārab, 175, 11 , 283, 11 , 299                     | 2, 11 8, lal        |
| Ijtihād, 197, 11Ijtihād fī 'sh-shar', لفرع      | احتهاد              |
| litihad ii 'sh-shar', (a.g.                         | اجتهاد في ا         |
| 198, 11.                                            | 1 125               |
| البذهب, البذهب, البذهب, البذهب, البذهب              | المعهاد مي ا        |
| 198, 11 , 199, 11Ijtihad fī 'l masā'il, المسائل | t male. 4           |
| 198, n; 199, n                                      | ، جمهان حي ،        |
| Ajrah (Ajrat), 618, 1                               | 148                 |
| Ajal, 12, ii                                        | أجل                 |
| Ijmā', 60, 1, 197, 1, 286, 11                       | أجماع ,             |
| 400, 11 , 548, 1 , 656, 1 , 6                       | 61. n               |
| Ajnabi, 12, u                                       | اچنہی               |
| Ajir. 12. 11                                        | 1430                |
| Ahādig, 106, 11 , 400, 11                           | احاديث              |
| intikar, 197, 1 , 354, 11                           | احتكأر              |
| Ihtilām, 140, 1., 197, 1                            | احتلم               |
| Ahad 12, 1                                          | احد                 |
| Uhud, 377, 1, 649, 1.                               | احد                 |
| Ihdād, 196, 11, 366, 1.                             | احداد               |
| Ahadiyah, 12, 1, 568, 11                            | احدية               |
| Ihram, 156, i , 196, n., 317,                       | احرام ; 11.         |
| 338, 1                                              | 3. 3                |
| Ahzāb, 12, u                                        | أحزاب               |
| Ihsān, 196, u , 632, u.                             | احسان               |
| Ihsaru 'l-hajj, 197, 1.                             | احدار الحجاحدار |
| Ihzār, 197, LAhmad 12, 1                        | أحدد                |
| Uhnākh, 649, i.                                     | احنوع               |
| Ihyā'u 'l-mawāt, 197, 1.                            | أحياء المواد        |
| Ikhlas, 199, u.; 286, 1.                            | اعلاص               |
| Akhlaq, 12, 11                                      | اعلاق               |
| Akhnasiyah, 568, 1                                  | المنسية             |
| Ada', 9, 1                                          | 166-                |
| Adab, 10, i                                         | ادنيا               |
| Idrāk, 214, 1.                                      | أدرألت              |
|                                                     | ,                   |

| 720 IN                                                                                                          | DEX.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 77 - 700 : 440 · 478 · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · ·                                                      | Ielām, 220, 1, 586, i.; 564, i.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| الرس المارة, 192, i ; 440, 1. , 475, 11                                                                         | Ism, 429, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| Ad'iyatu 'l-Ma'gurah, أيعية المالورة                                                                            | Ism, 429, 1Ismu 'l-a'gam, 220, 11;                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| 10, ii                                                                                                          | 226, n , 303, n , 547, n                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Agan, 465, 1, 664, 11                                                                                           | ' Ismu 'z-zāt, 220, 11,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| Izn, 222, 11, 661, 11                                                                                           |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Irādah, 146, n , 215, n                                                                                         | 702, 11 Ism ralālī, 220, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| اراهي Arāzī, 21 11                                                                                              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Arbu'ah 'anasır, 77 1 , lie an,                                                                                 |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| ارتداد Irtıdād, 16, 1, 477, 1                                                                                   |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Ardau, Urdunn, 250, 1.                                                                                          | 582, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| اره Arah 23. ۱۱                                                                                                 | Asmā'u 'r-rijāl, 42, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| Arz, 102, 1 , 283, 1Arkānu 'l-īmān, 596, 1                                                                  | Ismā'il, 216, 11, 440, 1,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Arkanu 'l-iman, 596, 1 ركان الايمان                                                                             | 475. n : 220. n                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Jram, 215, 11                                                                                                   | Ismā'ılıvah, 220, 11, 574, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| Iram, 215, 11 Armalah, 666, 11                                                                                  | Asman, 170, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| ارسيا Irmiyā, 227, 1 , 440, 1                                                                                   | Uswah, Iswah, 657, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
|                                                                                                                 | Asir. 49. 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| 2211207                                                                                                         | Ishārātu 's-sā'ah, 539, 11 Laller                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| As Miles                                                                                                        | اهارة الملك , Ishāratu 'l-malak, 218, س , المالة                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
|                                                                                                                 | 216, n                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
|                                                                                                                 | 216, nIshārah, 519, n                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
|                                                                                                                 | i danatan, ozo, z                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| Ughii 666 11                                                                                                    |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Istrbrá', 221, 1                                                                                                |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Istibear, 221, 1, 643, 1                                                                                        | 569 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| Istisna', 223, 11                                                                                               |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Ist-harah, 221, 1, 221, 11                                                                                      |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Istihsan, 221, 11                                                                                               |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Istikhārah, 221, n , 580, n                                                                                     |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Istidraj, 221, 1, 269, 11                                                                                       | Ashabu 'l-ahrah, 46, 11 - الماب المراب المراب                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| 350, n                                                                                                          | Ashābu 'l-Aıkah, 151, 1 الماب الأيكا                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| استدلال lstidlal 221, ، , 519, ،                                                                                | امحاب المغة Ashābu 's-suffah, 24, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| آسترهاغ (Stirjā', 222, 11                                                                                       | اماب الغيل المجانب الغيل Ashābu 'l-fīl, 24, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| Istisqa', 922, 11                                                                                               | امحاب الكهف ، Ashābu 'l-rahf, 24, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| Istishāb, 222, n                                                                                                | and the second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second second s |
| Istianah, 221, 1                                                                                                | احاب النار Aşhâbu 'n-nār, 171, u                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Isti'māl, 519, 1 Jineam                                                                                         |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Istighfär, 221, 11, 318, 11,                                                                                    | Igrar 221, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| 451.1                                                                                                           | Iştilāh. 222, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
|                                                                                                                 |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| tandebing man, r                                                                                                |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Istiqbal, 222, 11                                                                                               |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Istinja', 222, 1, 477, 11                                                                                       |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Istinshaq, 222, 1                                                                                               |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| التهلال Istahlāl, أأاا, ا                                                                                       |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Istawa', 662, 1                                                                                                 | I'ādah, 613, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| استدان Istı'zān, 181, ۱                                                                                         | I'taq, 598, 1, 109, 1, 222, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| استيلاد Istilād, 222, 1 , 598, 1                                                                                | I'tiqadat, 285, 11 while                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Ishāq, 216, 1, 440, 1, 475, 11                                                                                  | اعتكات 1 Likaf, 195, 1 , 222, u , 584, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| اسماتية Ishāqīyah, 216, 11 , 567 11                                                                             |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Asad, 74, 11; 201, 11                                                                                           |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Asadu 'llāh, 13, 11 هنا الله                                                                                    | A'raf. 20. 11 . 41. 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| Usara', 49, 1 ol, 1                                                                                             |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| اسراف Israf, 113, 11 , 221, 1                                                                                   | A'lā, 18, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| اسرافیل Isrāfīl J5, 11, 221, 1                                                                                  |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| اسراکیل العدم العدم العدم العدم العدم العدم العدم العدم العدم العدم العدم العدم العدم العدم العدم العدم العدم ا | A'mā, 43, n.A'ūzu bi-llāh, 26 n.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
|                                                                                                                 |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
|                                                                                                                 |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| [eqai, 4, 1.; 221, 1.                                                                                           | A'yanu 'g-gabitah, 26, 11 Anlah wies                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
|                                                                                                                 |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |

| A'yun, 114, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Al-Baitu 'l-harām, 156, الميت الحرام المالية                                       |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| ال Uff, 452, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Al-Baitu 'l-ma'mur, المهدف المعمور                                                 |
| افسون Afsūn, 11, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | 352, n                                                                             |
| litar, 196, ii                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Al-Bartu 'l-muqaddas, البيت البقدس                                                 |
| Iqālah, 215, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | 229, 1 , 833, i ; 557,                                                             |
| اتامة المقسمة, 50, 11; 215, 1; 465, 11 المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة المامة الما  | 1 8eqq                                                                             |
| التماد Iqtışad, 354, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | At-Taslis, 213, 1 التغليث                                                          |
| Iqtışā', 215, 11 , 519, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | At-Tahrim, 625, 11                                                                 |
| اقرار اقرار اقرار                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | At-Tatfif, 629, 1                                                                  |
| انزارُ الآثام Iqrāru '1-āgām, 215, يا                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | At-Taghabun, 624, 11 (1441)                                                        |
| اقرار عام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام المعام | At- laghtis, 213, 1, 625, 1                                                        |
| اقرار ماسه Iqrar namah, 215, n                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | At-Takāşur, 626, 1                                                                 |
| Uqnum, 213, 1, 655, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | At-Tukwir, 626, 1                                                                  |
| Akāsırah, 279, 1 3,(1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | At-Tanasukh, 616, 1                                                                |
| Ikrāh, 59, 1, 200, 1. aljsī                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | At-Tauwab, 142, 1., 630, 1                                                         |
| Al-Ahad, 142, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | At-Taubatu 'u-nasūh, والموع المروة الموع                                           |
| Al-Ākhir, 142, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | 629, 11                                                                            |
| Al-'Arba'un, 122, u                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | At-Tin, 128, 1, 684, 11                                                            |
| Al-Azwaju 'l-mutah- الأرواع العلوات                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | الثقيف الاقدس As-Salu- al-aqdas, 646, 11                                           |
| harāt, 399, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Al-Jasiyah, 226, 1                                                                 |
| Al-Islam, 400, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Al-Jami', 142, 1                                                                   |
| الاسم الاعظم ( Al-Ismu 'l-A'zam, 142                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Al-Jahiliyun, 460, 1                                                               |
| Al-Asmā'u 'l-Jaļālīyah, السماء الحالية                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Al-Jabbar, 141, 11, 223, 11                                                        |
| 142, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Al-Jibt, 191, 11                                                                   |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Al-Jabr wa'l-muqabalah, الجبر والمقابلة                                            |
| Al-Asmā'u 'l-Jamāliyah, الاسماء الهماليه                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | 106, n                                                                             |
| الأعلى الأعلى 142, 11 Al-Ufugu 'l-A'lā, 649, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Al-Jabariyah, 223, 1                                                               |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Al-Jahim, 171, 1                                                                   |
| الامام الاعظم 11-Al-Imāmu 'l-a'zam, 263, 11 الامام المهدى Al-Imāmu 'l-mahdī,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | الماليل Al-Jalil, 141, 11                                                          |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Al-Jannah, 440, 1                                                                  |
| 204, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | الجودي Al-Jūdi, 255, n , 485, n                                                    |
| Al-Amīu 809, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Al-Hāqqah, 162, 11                                                                 |
| Al-Insan, 213, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Al-Hākim, 141, ii                                                                  |
| Al-Insanu 'l-Kamıl, الانسان الكامل                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |                                                                                    |
| 213,1, 710,1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |                                                                                    |
| Al-Inshirāh, 213, 11 الأمشراح                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |                                                                                    |
| Al-Anfāl, 606, 11 الاطال                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Al-Hajaru 'l-aswad, 154, العجر الأسود 11, 333, 11                                  |
| Al-Infitar, 207, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Al-Hudaibiyah, 182, n                                                              |
| الأول Al-Auwal, 142, 1Al-Aıyāmu 'l-Biş, 124, 11 الأيام المبض                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Al-Hadid, 215, 11                                                                  |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |                                                                                    |
| Al-Iman, 596, 1.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | الحسيب Al-Ḥasīb, 14I, u , 168, u الحمرات الحسيب Al-Ḥazarātu 'l-khams, الحمرات الحس |
| Al-Bārī, 141, n                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | 169, 11                                                                            |
| Al-Basit, 141, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Al-Hutamah, 171, 1, 187, 1                                                         |
| الباطن Al-Bāṭɪn, 142, ۱                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Al-Hatim, 257, 1                                                                   |
| Al-Bā'ıs, 141, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |                                                                                    |
| الماقى Al-Bāqī, 142, 1.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |                                                                                    |
| البحر (البعل Al-Bahr, 366, 11 مالحر الابعل العلم الابعل العلم الابعل العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم العلم ال  | Al-Haqq, 141, 11, 162, 11                                                          |
| Al-Bahru 'l-abyaz, 367, 1 البحر الابيض                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Al-Huqiqatu 's-samā-                                                               |
| Al-Bahru 'l-ahmar, 536, 1, البحر العمر                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | wiyah, 547, 1                                                                      |
| 567, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Al-Haqiqatu 'l-Mu- ayanadi sa til                                                  |
| Al-Bahru 'l-akhzar, 567, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | hammadiyah, 547, 1.                                                                |
| Al-Bahru 'l-azraq, 567, 1. البحر الزرق                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Al-Hukmu 'sh-shar'i, الحكم الشرعي                                                  |
| Al Rahmi 'laswad, 567, 1 June                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | 184, 1                                                                             |
| Al-Barr, 142, 1.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Al-Ilikmatu 'l-jāmi'ah, هما المكمة الماسعة                                         |
| Al-Barzakh, 605, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | 175,1                                                                              |
| Al-Başīr, 141, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | المحمة المجهولة - Al-Hikmatu 'I-majhū                                              |
| Al-Bayan, 108, 11 (144)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | lah, 175, 1                                                                        |
| •                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | ' 91                                                                               |

| 722 IN                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | DEX                                                             |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------|
| Al-Hokmatu 'l-maskū- الحكمة المسكولة                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Ar-Rūḥu 'l-'ulwi, 547, 1 الربع العاري المحكم Ar-Rūḥu 'l-muḥkam, |
| tab 17K s                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Ar-Rūḥu 'l-muḥkam,                                              |
| Al-Hikmatu 'l-mantū- المعطوفة                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | 547, 1                                                          |
| qah, 175, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Ar-Ruhu 'l-Mukarram, الروع المكرم                               |
| Al-Hakim, 141, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 133, n.                                                         |
| Al-Hulqum, 697, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Ar-Ruhu 'n-nabati, 547, 1 Links                                 |
| Al-Halim, 141, n , 160, n                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Ar-Rauzah, 585, 11                                              |
| Al-Hamd, 160, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | الروك Ar-Ra'uf, 142, 1, 535, 11                                 |
| Al-Ḥamdu la 'llāh, 104, 1 المد لله                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Ar-Rūm, 150, 1; 549, 11                                         |
| Al-Hamid, 141, 11, 161, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | An Zahiniwah 607 22                                             |
| Al-Hambaliyah 567, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Az-Zalzāl, 710, 1 Az Zalzalah, 485, 1                           |
| Al-Hanafiyah, 567, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Az Zalzalah, 485, 1                                             |
| الحواس الحمسة Al-Hawasu 'l-Khamsah, الحواس                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | As-Sa'ah, 177, 11, 537, 1                                       |
| 129, n , 169, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | As-Sami, 141, ii , 564, 1                                       |
| الحي 11-Ḥaɪy, 142, 1 , 154, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | As-Sāmirī, 362, 1, 564, L.                                      |
| الحانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف المانف ا | السلم As-Salām, 141, 11, 561, 1                                 |
| Al-Khāliq, 141, n                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 563, 1                                                          |
| Al-Khabir, 141, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | As-Sunanu 's-sughra, السنى المغرى                               |
| Al-Khizr, 227, 1, 272, 11,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | 431, 1                                                          |
| 364, 11,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | As-Sunanu 'l-kubrā, السن الكبرى                                 |
| الحلفاء الراهدون -Ll-Khulafa'u 'r-rashı                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | 431, 1                                                          |
| dun, 264, 1, 274, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | As-Sunnatu 'z-Zā'ıdah, قالالله الراكلة                          |
| 11-Khannas, 269, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | 622, n.                                                         |
| الدولة الاموية , ld-Daulatu 'l-Umawiyah                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | السنة الموكدة -As-Sunnatu 'l-mu'akka                            |
| 448, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | dah, 622, 11                                                    |
| الدولة الفاطمية ,Ld-Daulatu 'l-Fātımiyah                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | السواد الاعظم , As-Sawadu 'l-a'zam                              |
| 125, n                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | 566, 1                                                          |
| الداريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات العاريات ال | As-Saiyarah, 459, 11.                                           |
| الرائع 17-Rāfi', 141, 11 , 531, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Ash-Shāfi iyah, 567, 11 مانعية                                  |
| الرب (tr-Rabb, 531, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Ash-Shām, 571, u                                                |
| الرحس , 141, u , 347, n , الرحس                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Ash-Shar', 285, 11                                              |
| 532, п                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | الشريعة Ash-Shari'ah, 285, 11                                   |
| الرحيم , r-Rahim, 141, n , 347, n ,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | الشعراء Ash-Shu'ara', 581, 11.                                  |
| 532, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Ash-Shı'rā, 596, 1                                              |
| الرد r-Radd, 581, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | الشكور Ash-Shakur, 141, 11 , 571, 11                            |
| الرزاق Rezzāq, 141, n , 535, n                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | الشمس Ash-Shams, 459, 11 , 571, 11                              |
| الرس (Rass, 535, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Ash-Shahid, 141, 11 , 571, 1 الشهيد                             |
| الرسل r-Rusul, 596, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Ash-Shahidu 'l-kāmil, الشهيد الكاسل                             |
| الرهبد 1-Rashid, 142, 1., 535, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | 327, ii                                                         |
| الرماء ( Rızā', 319, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |                                                                 |
| الرعد r-Ra'd, 531, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | الغورى Ash-Shūrā, 582, 1As-Sāffāt, 554, 11                  |
| الرفيب r-Raqīb, 141, 11 , 535, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Aş-Şālıḥāt, 149, 1                                              |
| الراقيم .r-Raqīm, 535, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Aş-Şabür, 142, 1                                                |
| r-Ruknu 'l-Yamānī, الركن اليماني                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | As-Sihāhu 's-sittah,                                            |
| 548, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | 582, 11                                                         |
| الروح الاعظم ; r-Ruhu 'l-a'zam, 133, u                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Aş-Şakhrah, 227, 11, 333, 1,                                    |
| 547, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |                                                                 |
| الروح الألهي r-Rubu'l-ılahi, 547, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | 480, 1; 541, 1, 557, 1 seqq                                     |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | المراط Aq-Sırāt, 544, 1 المراط As-Saff, 554, 11                 |
| الرق الاسين ، r-Būḥu 'l-amin, 133, i484, u , 547, 1 , 605, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |                                                                 |
| الروح الانساني 1-Rūḥu 'l-insānī, 547, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | As-Safā, 554, 11                                                |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Aş-Şalāt, 561, 1                                                |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Ap-Samad, 142, 1., 564, 1.                                      |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Az-Zārr, 142, 1; 702, 1                                         |
| 547, 1.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | At-Tārıq, 628, 1                                                |
| الروع السفلي                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | At-Taghut, 191, 11.                                             |
| r-Ruhu 't-tab'ī, 547, 1. الروح الطبعى                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | At-Ta'ıf, 381, 11., 625, 11.                                    |

| A                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | 120                                                              |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------|
| At-Tibbu 'r-ruhani, الطب الروحامي                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Al-Qurra'u 's-sab'ah, danul alati                                |
| 684, n.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | 478, u                                                           |
| Az-Zāhir, 142, 1., 698, 11.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | Al-Quran, 656, 1.                                                |
| الطل الاول Az-Zıllu 'l-auwal, 710, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Al-Quranu 'l-'azīm, العران العظيم                                |
| الله الغالب العالب العالم Az-Zannu 'i-ghālib, 702, العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب العالب  | 530, n                                                           |
| العاديات Al-'Adiyat, 485, 1 ساريات                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Al-Qana, 479, 1                                                  |
| Al-'Azar, 292, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Al-Qaswa, 390, 1., 479, 11                                       |
| A1-"Ailm, 141, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Al-Qalam, 478, 11                                                |
| العالد السفلي 1 . Al-'Alamu 's-suffi, 531 العالد السفلي 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Al-Qamar, 459, 11 , 478, 11.                                     |
| Ai-'Alamu 'l-'ulwi, 531, 1 (cole) allell                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Al-Qahhar, 141, 11, 478, 1                                       |
| العدل المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار المدار الم | Al-Qahhar, 141, u, 478, 1 Al-Qawi, 141, u, 479, u.               |
| Al-Traq, 215, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Al-Qawī, 141, 11 , 479, 11. القرينAl-Qıyāmah, 482, ، القيامة |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |                                                                  |
| العربي العربي العربي العربي العربي العربي العربي العربي العربي العربي العربي العربي العربي العربي العربي العربي                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Al-Qaiyum, 142, 1, 478 11 (25)                                   |
| 4144                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |                                                                  |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Al-Kabir, 141, n , 259, n                                        |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Al-Kıtāb, 280, 11, 484, 1                                        |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Al-Kıtābu 'l-hukmī, الكتاب الحكمي                                |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | 280, n                                                           |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Al-Kitābu 'l-mubīn, الكتاب المبين                                |
| المقلُ الأول "Al-'Aqlu'l-auwal, 547, 1., المقلُ الأول                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | 280, n.                                                          |
| 710, 1.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Al-Kıtabu 'l-muqaddas, الكتاب المقدس                             |
| Al-'Uqulu'l-'ashrah, العقول العشرة                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 566, 11                                                          |
| 655, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | الكتب Al-Kutub, 596, 1                                           |
| Al-'Ilmu 'l-allāhī, 684, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Al-Kutubu 's-sittah, الكتب الستة                                 |
| العلم الشيعي 11 -111111 1-180111 1203 العلم الشيعي                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 555, 1 , 582, 11                                                 |
| العلى الر,141 ما الم-الم                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Al-Karim, 141, 11, 261, 11.                                      |
| العنامر الاربعة Al-'Anäşır al-arba'ah,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | الكعبة Al-Ka'bah, 256, 1                                         |
| 108, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | الكنر المعلى Al-Kanzu 'l-makhfi, الكنر المعلى                    |
| Al-'Ankabūt, 605, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | 261, n                                                           |
| Al-'Ahd al-jadid, 433, ، العهد ألجديد                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Al-Kahf, 260, 11 (اکهف                                           |
| Al-'Ahdu 'l-'atiq, 439, 11. العهد العنيق                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Al-Kausar, 262, 1                                                |
| Al-'Idu 'ب-ṣaghir, 192, u , العيد المغير                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Al-Kufah, 281, 11.                                               |
| 194, u                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Al-Kimiya', 277, 11                                              |
| Al-'Îdu 'l-kabîr, 192, 11 العيد الكبير                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Al-Kımıya'u 'l-Akbar, الكيمياء الأكبر                            |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | 278, 1                                                           |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Al-Lāt, 191, 11 , 285, 1 , 540, 1. اللت                          |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Al-Latif, 141, 11, 285, 1                                        |
| Al-Ghaffar, 141, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Alläh, 141, 1, 596, 1                                            |
| Al Ghafur, 141, n                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Allāhu akbar, 14, 1 بنائة اكبر                                   |
| Al-CTHAM, 100, 11 , 192, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Al Fouch il mobiliza 990 km it - itt                             |
| Al-Gharb al-mutlaq, الغيب المطلق                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | اللوح المُحفوط ,Al-Lauhu 'l-mahfūz, 280                          |
| 138, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | n., 285, n , 474, n ,                                            |
| Al-Fatthah, 125, 1, 485, 1.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | 698, 1.                                                          |
| Al-Fattah, 127, 1 , 141, 11 class                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Al-Laılatu 'l-mubārakah, الليلة المباركة                         |
| Al-Fath, 125, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | 282, n , 534, n , 662, 1                                         |
| Al-Firdaus, 449, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | الماعون Al-Mā'ūn, 347, 1                                         |
| العرقان Al-Furgan, 132, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Al-Mālık, 312, 1                                                 |
| Al-Fil. 128. 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Al-Ma'idah, 307, 11                                              |
| Al-Qabız, 477, 1 , 141, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | المانع 142, 1, 313, 1                                            |
| Al-Qadır, 142, 1., 478, 1.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Al-Mubdi, 141, 11 , 367, 1.                                      |
| Al-Qari'ah, 479, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Al-Muta'akhırun, 460, 1 (المتاخرون                               |
| Al-Qubbatam, 889, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | المتعالى                                                         |
| Al-Qadar, 478, 1, 596, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Al-Mutagaddimun, 460, 1                                          |
| Al-Qudratu 'l-halwa', القدرة العلواء                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Al-Mutakabbir, 141, n., 424, n                                   |
| 482, n                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Al-Matin, 141, 11; 346, 1i. المتين                               |
| Al-Quddus, 141, 11 , 482, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Al-Maṣānī, 328, n                                                |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Al-Mujādilah, 418, 11 المجادلة                                   |
| Al-Qadim, 478, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |                                                                  |

| · = £                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | LX         |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| Al-Majūs, 310, 1. Al-Mujīb, 141, n., 418, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | المالم |
| جيد 310, 1 ; 310, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | الد        |
| مدنوں Al-Muhdisun, 460, i                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | ألم        |
| Al-Miḥrābu 'n-nabawī, حراب النبوى 344, ii                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |            |
| Al-Muhai, 141, n , 418 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | ال         |
| Al-Muhyi, 141, n , 418, 1  Al-Mukhazramun, 460, a                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | IL11   |
| المالية Al-Mukhazramun, 460, a المالية Al-Muddasır, 367, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | 2111   |
| مدينة 1-Madinah, 303, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | 31         |
| 1-Mužill, 426, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | 11         |
| المرسلات الماسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات الماسل المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المرسلات المر | 37tt   |
| 616, ii                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | `          |
| امریء Il-Mari', 697, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | 1          |
| لمريم Li-Mirrikh, 459, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | 1          |
| المرمل ال-Muzzammil, 426, 1المرسل ال-Muzil, 141, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | :          |
| d-Musabbihat, 422, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |            |
| المستحاب LI-Mustajāb, 548, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | ij         |
| المسجد الاتمى المسجد الاتمى المسجد الاتمى المسجد الاتمى المسجد الاتمى المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد الاتمان المسجد المسجد المسجد المسجد المسجد المسجد المسجد المسجد المسجد المسجد المسجد المسجد المسجد المسجد ال |            |
| المسجد الجامع المامع المسجد الجامع                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |            |
| 343, 11,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | 1          |
| السجد الحرام , Masjidu 'l-harām,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |            |
| 155, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |            |
| المسيح المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال المهال ا | 1          |
| 828, n., 589, n                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | İ          |
| المفتري Mushtari, 459, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |            |
| 1-Muşauwir, 141, 11, 423, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | 1          |
| المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعارة المعا | -          |
| 1-Mn4zz 141 11 419 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | 1          |
| 1-Mu't1, 142, 1 . 425, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |            |
| rema addinar, 200, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |            |
| المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات المعودات ال |            |
| 1-Mughui, 142.1, 867.11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |            |
| 1-Mudtadir, 142 1 420 11 11 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | 1          |
| المفادم المفادم المفادم المفادم المفادم المفادم الألماد الألماد الألماد الألماد الألماد الألماد الألماد الألماد الألماد الألماد الألماد الألماد الألماد الألماد الألماد الألماد الألماد الألماد الألماد الألماد الألماد الألماد الألماد الألماد الألماد الألماد الألماد الألماد الألماد الألماد الألماد الألماد الألماد الألماد الألماد الألماد الألماد الألماد الألماد الألماد الألماد الألماد المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعاملة المعا | I          |
| البقيدُ الأقسى -miaqaudu 1-aqaä, البقيدُ الأقسى - 609, ii                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | -          |
| l-Mugsit, 142 , 490                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |            |
| 1-mugit, 141, 11, 42(), 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |            |
| 1 Mult 410                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | 1          |
| 136 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | 1          |
| i-Maliku 'l-wadud                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |            |
| 659, 1.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | 1          |
| الملكيد الملكيد الملكيد الملكيد الملكيد                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | 1          |
| l-Mumtahmah, 419, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |            |
| المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت المبيت ا | 1          |
| المنظم ( 142, 1 ; 420 ) المنظم                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Æ          |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |            |

المبر Al-Mahdi, 305, 1 , 540, n. Al-Muhammin, 141, 11, 367, 11. ( ) Al-Mautu 'l-abyaz, 847, 1 المرس الابيض الب الم Al-Mautu 'l-aswad, 347, 1. الموت الأسود it. Al-Mu'akhkhur, 142, 1, 366, 11 Al-Muwalladun, 460, 1 البوسن Al-Mu'min, 141, ii , 419, ii Al-Mu'minin, 419, 11 ; 572, 11. Al-Maisir, 309, 11 An-Nājiyah, 428, 1; 567, 11 العار An-Nir, 170, u, 430, 1. An-Nām'āt, 431, n العاش An-Nās, 430, 1 النانع An-Nafi', 142, 1 , 427, 1 An-Naba', 427, 1 An-Nabiyu'l-ummi, 654, يا الأحق An-Najjārīyah, 428, 1 An-Nujabā', 436, 1. النجباء Au-Najm, 428, 1 Au-Nujumu 's-eawabit, النجوم الثوابعه 459, 11 An-Nujimu 's-saryarah, النجوم السيارة 201, 11, 459, 11 An-Nahl, 427, 11 النمز An Nisa', 434, 11. العساء العمر An-Nasr, 431, 1 النمير An-Nazir, 431, 11 An-Nafsu 'l-wahidah, النفس الواحدة 547, 1 An-Nuqaba', 436, n. An-Nagshbandiyah, 430, a. النقشبندية العمل An-Naml, 429, n البواج An-Nawah, 440, 1 An-Nür, 142, 1 , 436, 11 Al-Hadı, 142, 1 الهمرة Al-Humazah, 184, 1 Al-Wäjid, 142, 1, 368, 1 Al-Wähid, 142, 1, 662, 11. Al-Waris, 142, 1 664, 11. Al-Wasi, 141, 11, 664, 11. Al-Waqı'ah, 664, 1 الراتعة M-Wili, 112, 1. الوّالي Al-Wajudu 'l-mutlaq, الرمود المطلق 213, 1, 646, n Al-Wadajan, 697, n الوصمان Al-Wadud, 141, 11, 659, 1 Al-Waridan, 697, u. الوريتمان Al-Waqtu'd-da'ım, 664, 11. 1111 Al-Wakil, 141, 11, 663, 1 Al-Wali, 141, 11. Al-Wahhāb, 141, 11, 659, 1 Al-Yasa', 108, u , 440, 1 , 475, m Al-Yaqin, 694, 1 Al-Yaminu 'l-ghamus, 437, 1.

| Al Vantan Il access a ser as                                                 | **                                  |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------|
| Al-Yaminu 'l-niun'aqid, saatil (                                             | اليمير                              |
| الأخر Al-Yaumu 'l-ākhır, 537, 1 , الأخر                                      |                                     |
| 596, 1., 694, 11                                                             | اليوم                               |
| Al-Yaumu 'l-muhit, 537, 1 land!                                              | أاليم                               |
| ALR, 517, 11                                                                 |                                     |
| Alfāz, 518, 1                                                                | الرالفاط                        |
| Ilqā', 202, 11, 486, 1                                                       | القاء                               |
| AL M, 517, n.                                                                | الم                                 |
| ALMR, 517, 11.ALMS, 517, 11Ilāh, 200, 1                              | اكمر                                |
| A L M S, 517, u                                                              | المص                                |
| IIAN, 200, 1                                                                 | th                                  |
| Ilhām, 200, 11, 213, 11., 470, 11                                            | الهامالهاميا                    |
| Ilhāmīyah, 609, 1Ilāhī, 200, 11                                          | الهاسيد                             |
| Alwah, 14, 1, 624, 1                                                         | الهيالوا ع               |
| Uluhiyah, 650, 1                                                             | الوهد                               |
|                                                                              | الناس                               |
| Ilyāsīn, 108, 11                                                             | الياسير                             |
| Umm, 654, 1                                                                  | in                                  |
| Ummu 'l-'ulūm, 654, 1                                                        | أم العا                             |
| Ummu 'l-Qur ān, 125, 1                                                       | : أم ا لقر                   |
|                                                                              | ام القر                             |
| 655, 1                                                                       | a                            |
| CAH OF A                                                                     | ام الك                              |
| 647, 1, 654, 11Ummu 'l-mu'minin, 654, 11 ومنينUmmu 'l-walad, 576, 1, | 41 114                              |
| Trans 1 waled 576 1                                                          | 121 2                               |
| 632, 11 , 655, 1                                                             | -2- 'F'                             |
| Imām, 58, 1, 203, 1, 278, u,                                                 | أسام                                |
| 475. 1                                                                       |                                     |
| Imam barah, 204, 1                                                           | اسام یا                             |
| Imam mubin, 475, 1                                                           | اصام م                              |
| Imamiyah, 204, 1, 568, 1,                                                    | امامية                              |
| 572, 11, 574, 11Aman, 14, 1, 69, 11, 109, 1                              |                                     |
| Aman, 14, 1, 69, 11, 109, 1                                                  | امانالحدادة                     |
| Transmission and a                                                           | ً أمانانعأمثال                  |
| Amsāl 440, 1                                                                 | امياك                               |
| Imbak, 200, 1                                                                | أمنات                               |
| Umana, 650, 1                                                                | أمة                                 |
| Amah, 596, 11                                                                | امة                                 |
| Ummah, 654, 11Ummatu Ibrāhīm, 654, 11                                    | امة ابر                             |
| Ummahātu 'l-maṣāḥıfdaleali                                                   | أمهات                               |
|                                                                       |                                     |
| 686, 1.Umm Walad, 152, 1.                                                | أم ولد                              |
| TT                                                                           | أصوصية                              |
| Ummi, 138, 1., 654, 11                                                       | امی                                 |
| Amir, 14, 11, 278, 11, 548, 11                                               | أسىأسيرأسير الاأسير الا |
| Amīru 'l-umarā', 14, 11                                                      | أمير ألا                            |
|                                                                              |                                     |
| Amiru 'l-mu'mmin, 14, 11, 12, 12, 14                                         | اصير اده                            |
|                                                                              |                                     |
| Amin, 14, 11.  Amin 'l-bait, 14, 11                                          | امینامین اانانیه            |
| Amin 7-0816, 12, 11                                                          | انانية                              |
| Ananiyah, 15, 1.                                                             | -                                   |
|                                                                              |                                     |

Ambiya', 14, ii انهياء Injizab, 612, 1. انجذاب Injīl, 62, 1., 149, 11.; 211, 1., اجيل 439, 1. Inzi āj, 215, 1 انرعاج Insan, 40, 1 Insha', 213, 1 انسان انشاد Inshā'llāhu ta'āla, أنشاء الله تعالى 213, 11 إتعام An'ām, 15, 1; 49, 11 In'am, 206, 1 أنعام Ansab, 566, 11 آلماب انصار Ansar, 16, 1 اعطارً Inzār, 215, 1 الفاق Infāq, 207, 1. إعاز Anfāl, 15, 1 أهانة Ihanah, 350, 11 اهتمام Ihtimam, 197, 1 أهلال اهل البيت Ihlal, 196, n Ablu 'l-hait, 12, 1 اهل الحقيقة Ahlu 'l-haqiqah, 617, u اهل الدمة Ahlu 'z-zımmah, 710, 1 اهل السنة Ahlu 's-sunnah, 623, 1. Ahlu 'l-kabā'ır, 215, 1 اهل الكماكر اهل الكتاب Ahlu 'l-kitāb, 12, 1, 220, 1 , 423, n , 575, n اهل الهواء Ahlu 'l-hawa', 12, 1 Ahlu sunnah wa اهل سنة و جمعة jam'ah, 60, 1. Ahlu Kimiya, 278, 1 Autad, 26, 1 Aurashalim, 227, L Aulād, 50, 11 Tlu 'l-'azm, 475, u , 600, 1 Auliya, 26, 11. Aivāmu (Ayyāmu) 'l-bīz, 27, 1 Ayāmu t-tashriq, 27, u , ايام التشريق 157, m Aıyamu 'l-qarr, 27, u Aiyamu 'n-nahr, 27, 11 آیام ایشار lsår, 216, n โๅลีb, 197, 1 . 314, ที Aikah, 151, 1 Ilā', 88, 11 , 200, 1 Ilīyā', 227, 1 ايلياه A191m (Ayyım), 27, 1. 150 رمان , İmän, 198, 1 , 204, 11. , 400, 11 564, 1 , 615, 1 أيمان تحقيقي Iman-1-tahqiqi, 615, 1 أيمان تقليدي Imān-1-taqlīdī, 615, 1 ايماي مجمل Iman mujmal, 204 n آيمان مفصل المة الاسماء Imān mufaşşal, 204, n. A'ımmatu 'l-asma', 27, 1 المة العديث A'ımmatu 'l-hadiş, 641, 1 Alyub, 440, 1 , 475, 11 آيوب

Bid'iyah, 569, i.

Badn, 702, 11 Badawi, 30, 1

|                           |              | Badī', 80, 1                      | 844                                                     |
|---------------------------|--------------|-----------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------|
| Ļ                         |              | Bazl, 79, 1.                      | ہدل                                                     |
| man                       | at at a de   |                                   |                                                         |
| Bābu Ibrāhīm, 842 1       | باب ابراهیم  | Barr, 88, 11                      | بربراق                                              |
| Bābu 'l-abwāb, 29, 1      | باب الأبواب  | Buraq, 44, 11, 851, 11            |                                                         |
| Bābu 'r-rahmah, 344, 11   | باب الرحمة   | Barā'ah, 36, 1                    | براحة                                                   |
| Bābu 'z-zīyādah, 342, 1   | باب الزيادة  | Burj, 76, 1                       | , 67 <sup>t</sup>                                       |
| Bābu 's-salām, 29, 1;     | ياب السلام   | Burdah, 46, 11                    | بردةبردون                                           |
| 888, 11            |              | Birzaun, 177, 1                   | بردون                                                   |
| Babu 'l-'ashrah, 342, 1   | ياب العشرة   | Barzakh, 38, 11                   | ارزخ                                                    |
| Bābu 'ş-Şafā, 342, 1      | باب المفاء   | Burqa', 48, 1, 96, 1, 280, 1      | برتح                                                    |
| Bābu 'J-'umrah, 342, 1    | باب العبرة   | Buru, 48, 1 , 76, 1.              | Bart                                                    |
| Bābu 'n-nabī, 342, 1      | باب النبي    | Buzurg, 48, n , 556, 1            | بروچبررک                                            |
|                           | باب النساه   | Bazl, 73, 1                       | بزل                                                     |
| Bābu 'n-nisā', 29, 11     | ياب الوداع   | Bismillāh, 43, 1, 51, 1.,         | بسم ا                                                   |
| Bābu 'l-Wadā', 342, 11    | 7 4 1001     | 104                               |                                                         |
| Bābu bani sharbah,        | باب بنی هینة | 104, 1                            |                                                         |
| 29, n                     | 1 4 1.       | Bushrā, 48, 11                    | بسرى                                                    |
| Bābu 'Uşmān, 344, 11      | باب عثمان    | Basarah, 39, 1                    | بهماره                                                  |
| Bābu 'Alī, 842, 1         | باب على      | Başar, 39, 1 , 147, 1             | بم ر                                         |
| Bābil, 29, 1.             | بابل         | Başīr, 39, 1                      | بشریبصارةبسربسیربسیرهبسیرهبسیره |
| Babu Muhammad, 228, 1     | باب محمد     | Başīrah, 39, 1, 130, 1            | بميرة                                                   |
| Babuj (baboog), 95, 1     | بابوع        | Başit, 39, 1                      | Same?                                                   |
| Pādshāh, 278, 11          | ياسفاق       | Bızā'ab, 43, 1                    | delap                                                   |
| Bārīḥ, 305, 1             | بارع         | Bu'āş, 44, 1                      | بعاب                                                    |
| Bäriqah, 36, 11           | بارقة        | Ba's, 39, 1                       | بعث                                                     |
|                           | بارة وفاص    |                                   | يعل                                                     |
| Bārah-1-wafāt, 36, 1      |              | Pools 410                         | 14.                                                     |
| Bāri', 36, 11.            | باریء        | Baghl, 419, 1                     | ,                                                       |
| Ba'z, 169, 11             | ب از  | Baghī, 129, n                     | بعی                                                     |
| Bāzaq, bāzıq, 39, 11      | مازق         | Baqar 'id, 192, ii                | یملبغیبقر هیدبقرةبقرة                   |
| Bāzi'ah, 128, 11, 680, 11 | بامعة        | Baqarah, 36, 1.                   | يقرة                                                    |
| 3ātil, 39, 11.            | واطل         | Baqī'u 'l-gharqad, 36, 1, المرقد  | بقيع ا                                                  |
| Bātın, 39, 11.            | واطن         | 714, 1                            |                                                         |
| Bā'15, 34, 11             | بأعث         | Bukā', 44, 1, 366, 1              | بكاء                                                    |
| Bā'ūs, 39, 11.            | باعوث        | Bukm (pl of abkam), 101, 11.      | بكبر                                                    |
| Bäghi, 536, 1             | الفي         | الم Bıladu 'l-Islam, 42, i        | بلاد الا.                                               |
| Bāqī, 86. 1., 73, 11.     | باقى         | ارب Bıladu 'l-'Arab, 17, 1        | بلاد اله                                                |
| Bālā khānah, 180, 1       | بالأعانه     | Bilāl, 42, 1                      | بلال                                                    |
|                           | بالغ         |                                   | ہلد                                                     |
| Bāligh, 35, 11            | ہان          | Balad, 35, 11, 288, 1             |                                                         |
| Bā'ın, 88, 1.             | ماله د ده د  | Baldah, 13, 1                     | بلدة                                                    |
| Pāk nawishtah, 566, ii.   | باك نوعته    |                                   | بكليس                                                   |
| Batul, 89, 11.            | بتول         | Bulügh, 476, 1.                   | بلوغ                                                    |
| Bahr, 546, 1, 566, 11     | . yer        | Bulughiyah, 476, 1                | بلوهية                                                  |
| Bahru 'l-khizr 567, 1     | حر الجدر     | Banāt, 70, 11                     | بنأس                                                    |
| Bahru 'z-zulmāt, 102, 11. | حر الظلمات   | Bint, 70, 11                      | ېلىق                                                    |
| Bahru 'l-qulzum, 536, 1,  | حر القلوم    |                                   | بىت ل                                                   |
| 566, 11                   | , ,          |                                   | بنس م                                                   |
| Bahru 'l-muḥīt, 102, 11   | حر المحيط    | Banu Ierā'il, 85, 1 , 36, 1       | بنو اس                                                  |
| Bahru Lüt, 567, 1         | حر لوط       | Banu 'l-Mustaliq, 378, n.;        | 11 T                                                    |
| Bahira, 30, 1             | lyen.        | 428, n                            |                                                         |
| Bahirah, 30, 11           |              | Ranii II                          |                                                         |
| Bakhtiyah, 568, 11        | 7            |                                   | بدو امد                                                 |
|                           | ملاية        | Binyamin, 41, ii.                 | ينهامهو                                                 |
| Bakhūr, 206, u            | بخور         | Banish (beneesh), 98, 1.          | بنيش                                                    |
| Badr, 378, 1 seqq.        | بدر          | Buhtan, 29, 11.; 44, 1; 49, 1     | بهنان                                                   |
| Bid'ah, 42, i.            | بدهة         | Biliaht, 42, 1., 449, 1.; 586, 1. | -                                                       |
|                           |              |                                   |                                                         |

| 7003 44 3                                                     |                |
|---------------------------------------------------------------|----------------|
| Būlas, 44, i.                                                 | J <sub>P</sub> |
| ان الغريف ، Bîbanu 'sh-sharîf, 342, الغريف                    | اي             |
| Bart, 178, 1                                                  | بيہ            |
| Bastu 'l-haram, 35, 1                                         | -01            |
| Baitu 'l-harām, 35, 1 الحرامBaitu 'l-hikmah, 35, 1 الحكمة | •••            |
| Bastu 'l-hamd, 35, 1                                          |                |
| Baitu 's-sa'd, 280, 1                                         |                |
| Bastu 'l-quds, 35, 1                                          |                |
| Bastu 'llah, 35, 1, 333, 11                                   | ~ _ |
| Restor 1 mai 95 ; CKK 11 th                                   |                |
| ع المال 'l-māl, 35, i , 655, n                                | ٠٠,            |
| Bartu 'l-midras, 35, 1 Landing                                | 45             |
| Bartu 'l-ma'mur, 35, 1, Janes                                 | 4              |
| 257, n.                                                       |                |
| ت المقدس Baitu 'l-muqaddas, 35, 1                             | بيہ            |
| ت المقدس Baitu 'l maqdis, 227, 1                              | -21            |
| Bı'r, 666, 11.                                                | بثر            |
| Bı'ru 'n-Nabī, 701, 11                                        |                |
| Bi'r zamzam, 42, 11, 837, 11                                  |                |
| Bi'r ma'unah, 42, 11                                          | عد             |
| Bī-shar', 43, 1                                               |                |
|                                                               |                |
| Baı', 30, 11.  Baı'u 'l-wafā', 34, 1, 35, 1                   | 7              |
|                                                               | 701            |
| Bi'ah, 42, 1, 56, 11                                          |                |
| Baryinah, 35, 11                                              | ٠.             |
| Pir, 458, 11, 556, 1 Paighāmbar, 449, 1                       | پير            |
| Paighāmbar, 449, 1                                            | پيا            |
|                                                               |                |

تابعرن Tabi'un, 624, 1 تابوت Tābūt, 410, 11 seqq , 560, 11 , 624, 1 Tabut khanah, 411, n تابوت عانه تاج Taj, 120, 1 , 282, 11 , 626, 1 تاريخ Ta'rikh, 440, 1 Ta'anni, 82, 11 Tabarruk, 624, 1 Tubba', 647, 11 Taba'u 't-tabi'in, 624, 1 Tabagh, 634, 11 Tabl, 300, n Tabanni, 10, 11 Tabūk, 624, 1 Tabi'ah, 700, 1 Tatāyum, 300, 11 Tutun, 634, 11 Taşawub, 695, n Taglig, 646, 11 Taswib, 629, 1 Tıjarah, 59, 1 Tahaluf, 625, 1 Tahrif, 61, 11, 625, 11 Tahrif-1-lafzi, 61, 11 Tahrif-1-ma'nawi, 61, 11

|                                            | . – .          |
|--------------------------------------------|----------------|
| Taḥrīmu 'n-nasab, 317, 1,                  | جديد ا         |
| Tahliq, 572, 1                             | مسليق          |
| Tahmid, 13, n , 625, n., 704, n.           | حميد           |
| Tahannus, 625, 1                           | فعسف           |
| Tahiyah, 26, 1, 468, 1                     | معية           |
| Takhāruj, 626, i                           | معاره          |
| Tadbīr, 598, 1, 624, 11                    | تدبير          |
| Tarāwih, 628, 1                            | تراوين         |
| Tarbush, 93, 1                             | تربوش          |
| Turk, 648, 1                               | ۍ لک           |
| Tark, 704, 11                              | ترک            |
| Tarikah, 628, 1                            | تركة           |
| Tarwiyah, 628, 11                          | 4275           |
| Tazkiyah, 634, 1                           | تركية          |
| Tazwij, 575, 11 , 634, 1                   | فزواج          |
| Tazyirah (tezyeereh), 95, 1                | تزييرة         |
| Tasbîh, 546, 11, 628, 11,                  | يسبيح          |
| 704, 11                                    |                |
| سهدة Tasbih-1-sıjdah, 467, 1 منهدة التحالي | تسيح           |
| Taslim, 537, 1, 628, 11                    | تسليم          |
| Tasmi', 467, 1 , 629, 1                    | قسميغقسمية |
| Tasmiyah, 466, 11, 482, 1, 629, 1          | ogew.          |
| Tasnīm, 629, 1                             | تسليم          |
| Tashdīd, 686, 1                            | تشديد          |
| Tashriq, 628, 11                           | تشريق          |
| Tashahhud, 468, 1, 628, 11                 | تشهد           |
| Tazarrufāt shariyah, مُرعية                | تسرفاب         |
| 315, 1                                     | •              |
| Taşauwuf, 608, n , 628, n                  | لموت           |
| Tatauwu', 629, 1                           | تبلوع          |
| Tathir, 477, 11, 629, 11                   | yes al         |
| Ta'zīb, 476, 11.                           | تعذيب          |
| Ta'zīr, 632, 1 seqq                        | تعرير          |
| Ta'zıyah, 366, 1, 409, 11,                 | تعزية          |
| 631, n                                     |                |
| Ta'alluq, 623, 1                           | تعلق           |
| Ta'awwu z , 466, 11 , 482, 1.,      | تعوذ           |
| 624, 1                                     | 1              |
| Ta'wig, 14, n, 630, n                      | تعويذ          |
| Taghrib, 85, 11                            | تغريب          |
| Taghlib, 624, 11                           | تفسير          |
| Tafsīr, 106, u , 572, 1 , 624, 11          | J       |
| Tafakkur, 624, 11                          | تفكر           |
| Tafauwul, 305, 1                           | Tire           |
| Tafwiz, 286, 1                             | تفويض          |
| Taqdīr, 82, 1, 472, 1, 628, 1              | تقدير          |
| Taqarrub, 628, 1                           | اللوب          |
| Taqlid, 628, 1                             | عليد           |
| Taowa, 7, 11, 628, 1                       | كالوى          |
| Taqwıyatu 'l-iman, 661, 11.                | تحويد الا      |
| Taqiyah (takeeyeh), 94, 11 ,               | تقيك           |
| 575. n . 628. 1                            | _              |
| Takbir, 14, 1, 45, 1, 546, 11,             | تكيير          |
| 626, 1 , 704, n.                           |                |
|                                            |                |

anawiyah, 568, 11

aur, 73, n,, 201, n

aiyibah, 315, n., 556, 1

awab, 566, 1

| Takbīr-i-tahrīmah, 466, i., 4626, 1. | تكبير معريه    |                 |
|--------------------------------------|----------------|-----------------|
| Takbīr-ı-jalsah, 467, 11.            | لكبير جلسا     |                 |
|                                      | تكسر ركوع      | i               |
| Takbir-1-rukû', 466, 11.             | تكبير سجد      | 1               |
| Takbir-1-sıjdah, 467, 1.             | 11 1 2         |                 |
| Takmila 's-Suluk, 120, 11            | تكميل الد      | Jāsuliq, 226    |
| Takyah, 118, 1, 407, 1, 626          | , II - 5 %     | Jūsī, 281, 1    |
| Tilawah, 517, 1, 634, 11             | تلاوةتلبية | Jār, 432, 11    |
| Talbiyah, 157, 11, 261, 1, 626, 11   | ننبهه          | Jar mulasıq     |
| Talqin, 120, ii., 616, 11            | تلقيس          | Jāsūs, 429, 1   |
| 627, n                               |                | Jägir, 224, 1   |
| Tamattu', 627, 11                    | تبتع           | Jalūt, 440, 1   |
| Tamjīd, 627, 11                      | تمهيد          | Jami', 73, 11   |
| Tamhid, 546, 11                      | تمهيد          | Jann, 134, 1    |
| Timsāh, 63, 11                       | تمساح          | Ja'ı-มะเทลิz, : |
| Tamim, 627, 11                       | تميم           | Jubb, 88, 1     |
| Tanāsukh, 627, 11                    | تساسخ          | Jabbarun, 35    |
| Tanasukhiyah, 568, 1                 | تناسحية        | Jubbu 'l-huz    |
| Tambākū, 634, 11                     | تىباكو         | Jabrā'il. 15,   |
| Tana"um, 302, 11                     | النعم          | Jabarut, Jabi   |
| Tanfil, 627, 11                      | تىقىل          | Jabarivan, 4    |
| Tauwin, 683, 11                      | تنوين          | Jibrīl, 15, 11  |
| Tahzīb, 625, 11, 643, 1              | ىھذيف          | Jabariyah, 56   |
| Tahlil, 625, 1                       | تهليل          | Jabal Zubail,   |
| lauwāb (tawwāb), 75, 11              | ، نواب         | Jabal Musa,     |
| Fawābi', 530, 1                      | توابع          | Jubbah (gibb    |
| ľawazu', 286, 1                      | توامع          | Jabil, 223, 11  |
| Paubah, 451, 1, 536, 11, 629, 1      | ا تونه ١       | Juhfah, 350,    |
| l'aujih, 629, 11.                    | أتوجيه         |                 |
| Caubid, 629, 11, 704, 1              | توهيد          | Jaddah; 150,    |
| faurāt, 53, n , 62, 1 , 114, u ,     | توراة          | Jiddah, 226,    |
| 856, 1, 439, 1, 440, 1, 560,         | I              | Jady, 74, 11,   |
| и, 629, и, 698, і                    |                | Jazbah, 226,    |
| ľawakkul, 286, 1                     | ا حکل          | Jaz'ah, 226,    |
| Fayammum, 3, 11, 477, 11,            | أتهمم          | Jarr, 226, 1 ,  |
| 631 , 11                      | ′ }            | Jarad, 298, 11  |
|                                      |                | Juif, 225, n    |
|                                      | }              | Jari, 691, 11   |
|                                      | 1              | Jarib, 631, 1   |
| w                             | i              | Jarid, 178, 1   |
|                                      | 1              | Juz', 256, 11 , |
| jābit, 75, 11                        | ثابت           | 517, 1          |
| la kh az, 681, 1              | 350            | Jazmah, 686,    |
| nı'bān, 569, 11                      | ا تعمان        | Jaziratu 'l-'A  |
| a'labiyah, 568, 1                    | ثعلبية         | Jizyah, 14, 11  |
| iqah, 595, n                         | Las            | 653, 1 , 710    |
| iuls, 489, it , 492, 1 , 622, 11     | ا ثلث          | Jull, 255, 11   |
| ulus, 691, 1                         | ا ثلث          | Ja'lu 'l-jauf,  |
| amud, 17, 1, 563, 1                  | ر څمود         | Jallad, 112, 11 |
| anamirah teo                         |                |                 |

5, 1 , 226, 1 IJ 225, 11 , 547, 1 224, 11 5, 11 zn, 255, 1 rūt, 223, 1 , 609, 11 73, 1 , 440, 1 68, 1 l, 647, 11 223, 1 bah), 93, 1 المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال المال ., 223, 11 1 11 , 201, n 11 1, 700, 1 632, 1 , 489 u , 492, 1., rab. 17, 1. , 109, 1. , 630, n. , 225, 1. Jallad, 112, 11 نمود Jalal, 225, 1 Jaldah, 85, n. Julus, 596 1 Jamadat, 531, 1 Jumada'l-ukhrā, 255, ii. , مادى العرى 355, 1

3

| Jumāda 'l-ūlā, 255, 11 , والمادى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأولى الأ |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Jimā', 140, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| Jamrah, 225, 1.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Jamratu 'l-'aqıbah, 225, i مبرة العاتبة                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Jam'u 'l-jam', 225, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| Jum'ah, 60, 1.; 131, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Jumlah, 530, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Jinn, 40, 11 , 183, 11 , 225, 14                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| Janab, 225, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Janabah, 225, 11 فولنوJannatu 'l Firdaus, الفولوس الفولوس 226, 1 , 449, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| Jannatu 'l Firdaus, مات الفردوس                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| 226, 1 , 449, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Jannatu 'l-Mawa, 226, ۱; جنات الماري                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| 449 , 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Jannatu 'n-nafim, 226, 1 , جنات النعيم                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| 449, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| جنات عدی , Jannātu 'Adn, 105, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| 226, 1 , 449, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Janazah, 11nazah, 42 1, 44, 1, 814                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| 132, n , 225, n                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| Junub, 140, 1, 255, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| Jannah, 183, 11, 225, 11, 613, 1 44                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| Jannatu 'l-khuld, 226, 1, عنة ألحلا                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| 449, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| Jannatu 'Adn, 105, 11 , منة عدن                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| 188, n                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| الم Jihad, 70, 1, 82, 1, 286, 1,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| 520, n , 664, n , 710, n                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Jahl, 224, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| Jahımiyah, 568, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| المجاهم الكلم Jahannam, 170, 11 , 171, 1حوامع الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| جوامع الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم الكلم |
| Jauzā', 73, 11, 201, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| Jaryid, 225, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| Jahūn, 224, 11 05-24                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |

ζ

Hājı, 155, 1.

Hājiz, 39, 1

Hājiz, 39, 1

Hāji, 155, 1, 699, 1

Hādis, 153, 11

Hārisīyah, 167, 11.

Hārisīhah, 680, 11

Hāshiyah, 572, 1

Hāzir zāminī, 170, 1, 312, 11

Hāzir zamanī, 34, 11

Hāfiz, 154, 1

Hāfizu 'l-bait, 154 1

Hākim, 160, 1.

Hāl, 160, 1.; 580, 1

Hālif, 175, 11.

| BX.                                                       |              | 729          |
|-----------------------------------------------------------|--------------|--------------|
| Hālah, 707, i.                                            |              | حالة         |
| Hā mīm, 161, 1                                            |              | سا س         |
| Hā'ız, 347, 1î                                            | r            | حائض         |
| Hã'ızah, 154, 11                                          |              | حالمة        |
| Hubb, 50, 1, 286, 1, 300,                                 | 1            |              |
| Habarah, 95, 11                                           |              | حبرة         |
| Habs, 205, 11                                             |              | حبس          |
| Hubs, 181, u.                                             |              | حبس          |
| Habwah, 153, 11                                           |              | حبوة         |
| Habibiyah, 568, 11                                        | 4            | -101-        |
| Hajj, 129, 11, 155, 1.; 401                               | , 1 ,        | 6            |
| 458, 11 , 481, 1 , 545, 655, 1                            | и,           |              |
| Hıjāb, 14, 1, 174, 1                                      |              | حجاب         |
| Hıjāz, 17, 1, 174, n                                      |              | حجار         |
| Hijamah, 43, 1                                            | å            | حجاسا        |
| Hajb, 155, 1                                              |              |              |
| Hujattiyah, 568 u                                         |              | Luga         |
| Hijr, 174, 11, 211, 1, 837                                | , 1          | 7-           |
| Hijru Ismā'il, 337, 1                                     | ،سماعسل      | حنحرا        |
|                                                           |              | عيدرة حج الم |
| Hajj mabrūr, 160, 1                                       | זפג   | ~, &~        |
| Hujjah, 182, 11 Hujjatu 'l-haqqı في العلق                 | l t          | -            |
| 'ala 'l-khalq, 183, 1                                     |              | محفوه ا      |
| Hajjatu 'l-wada', 160, 1.,                                | لوداع        | 1 Kan        |
| 382, 1                                                    |              |              |
| Hadd, 153, 11, 476, 11, 68                                | 32, 1,       | عد    |
| Hidād, 174 i , 671, ii                                    |              | حداد         |
| Haddu 'r riddah, 286, i                                   | 8.           | حد الر       |
| Haddu 'z-zmā', 286, 1                                     | بام          | حد الر       |
| Haddu 's-sarigah, 286, 1                                  | برقة         | حد ال        |
| Haddu 's-shurb, 286, 1                                    | برب          | حد اله       |
| Haddu 'l-qazf, 286, 1                                     | دف.          | حد اله       |
| Hudiidu 'l-haram, 163, 1, 1Hadīs, 62, 11, 153, 11, 54 | الحرم 1      | حدود ا       |
| 639, 11, 656, 1                                           | 0,1,         | حديث         |
| Hadīs hasan, 640, 1                                       | ome          | حديث         |
| Hadis sahih, 640, 1                                       | محيح         |              |
| Hadis za'if, 640, 1                                       | معنف         |              |
| Hadis 'aziz, 640, 1                                       |              | حديث         |
| Hadis gharib, 640, u                                      |              | حديث         |
| Hadis qudsi, 153, u                                       |              | حديث         |
| Hadis muttasıl, 640, ı                                    | متصل         | حديث         |
| Hadiş mutawatır, 640, 1                                   |              | حديث         |
| Hadis mursal, 640, 11                                     |              | حدبث         |
| Hadīş marfū', 640, 1Ḥadīş mashhūr, 640, 1             |              | حديث         |
|                                                           | مشهور        |              |
| Ḥadīs maqtūʻ, 640, 1Hadīs munqatıʻ, 640, 1            | منقطع        | حلوبحلوب |
| Hadis mauzū, 640, 11                                      | مونوع        |              |
| Hadis mauquf, 640, 1.                                     | موقوف        |              |
| Hadid, 153, in : 430, 1                                   | - , , | حديد         |
| Hadid, 153, ii ; 430, 1Hagar (hizr), 58, ii ; 169,    | 11           | ملد          |
| Ніга', 175, 11 , 484, 11                                  |              | حراد         |
|                                                           |              | F     |

|                                                         | L                   |
|---------------------------------------------------------|---------------------|
| Harām, 57, ia.; 163, 1, 286, î655, i                | حرام                |
| Harbu bu'āş, 44, 1                                      | عرب يعا             |
| Harabi, 576, 1,                                         | عربی                |
| Hirs, 176, ii                                           | عرض                 |
| Harf, 163, u , 489, u                                   | حرف                 |
| Harqiyah, 569, 1                                        | حرقية               |
| Haram, 163, 1Haramu 'l-Madinah, 163, 1 &4.          | ~ es                |
| Haramu Makhah, 163, 1                                   | عرم المهعرم مكة |
| Hurmah, 11, 1                                           | عرم سد   |
| Harim, 163, 11; 180, 1                                  | رحودم           |
| Hurriyah, 315, 1 , 7/14, 11                             | ه که                |
| Hizqīl, 114, 1 , 440, ì                                 | سمويل               |
| Huzu, 11, 11                                            | موں                 |
| Hies, 176, n                                            | -                   |
| Hisab, 106, 11Hisbit 'l-bahar, 621, 1               | حساب                |
| المهار Hiss hātin, 176, 11                              | حسبحس با        |
| Hasabiyah, 568, 11                                      | حسية                |
| Hased, 109, 11 , 168, 1                                 | حسد                 |
| اهر Huss gabur, 176, 11                                 | عس ا                |
| شترك Hise mushtarak, 130, 1                             | حس م                |
| الحلى Husnu 'l-khulq, 187, 1                            | حسن                 |
| Hashr, 168, 11                                          | حشرحشرية        |
| Hashriyah, 46, 1                                        | حشرية               |
| Hizanah, 151, 1 , 176, 11                               | منائد               |
| Hazrah, 170, 1Hazratu 'l-jämi'ah, 169, 11           | معرة                |
| Haziatu 'sh-shahādati &                                 | 3-4-                |
| 'l-mutlaqah, 169 11 dat                                 | الم                 |
| الغيب المطلق ١٠ Hazratu 'l-garbı 'l-                    | -                   |
| mutlaq, 169, 11                                         | •                   |
| الم الارواع ,Hazratu alamı'l-arwih الم الارواع ,169, u. | حدرة:               |
| Hazratu 'alamı 'l-mısal, المثال                         | -                   |
| 169, 11                                                 |                     |
| Hu tt i, 681, 1                                  | احطى                |
| Hatim, 337, 1                                           | طيم                 |
| Hifzu 'l-'ahd, 174, 1.                                  | 1                   |
| Haqq, 74, 11, 162, 11 Haqqu 'l-'abd, 162, 11            | مق                  |
| Haqqu 'llāh, 163, 1                                     | حق                  |
| Haqqu 'n-nās, 163, 1                                    | ا مق                |
| Haqqu'l-yaqin, 163, 1                                   |                     |
| 694, 1                                                  |                     |
| Higgali, 175, 11, 700, 1                                | 1=                  |
| Huqqah, 167, u                                          | in.                 |
| maqiqan, 162, 1, 519, 1                                 | حقيقا               |
| 609, 11 segg , 704, 11                                  |                     |
| Haqiqatu I-muhamma- wasasii 3 diyah 162, 1, 486, n      | عقيه                |
| Надід. 162, и , н62, 1                                  | طة                  |
| Hakam, 160, 1                                           | مكم                 |
| Hukm, 183 11                                            | مکم                 |
| Hikmah, 175, 1, 440, 1                                  | أحكب                |

|   | Hakim, 160, 1.                            | مكسد                |
|---|-------------------------------------------|---------------------|
| • | Notal 58 1 180 1                          | 13.                 |
|   | Unlalizah QG iz                           | 431                 |
| • | Hilf, 175, 11                             | اف                  |
| • | 77.36- 21 famel 17K at                    | ملف العمول          |
| - | 1 Milli 1-10201, 110, 11.                 | ملف الصول           |
| • | Hilf namah, 175, u                        |                     |
| • | Hilm, 175, 11                             | ملم                 |
|   | Hulm, 92, 1                               | مليم                |
|   | Hullah, 581, 1                            | ملة                 |
|   | Hulū1, 184, 1                             | ملول                |
|   | HM, 518, 1                                | مم           |
|   | Ramalah, 160, n                           | ممالة               |
|   | Hama il, 14, 11 , 16', 1'                 | حمائل               |
|   | Hamd, 13, 11                              | حمد          |
|   | Hamdu lı-llab, 13, u                      | حبد لله             |
| 1 | Hamziyah, 161, 11                         | حمزية               |
| ı | HM'SQ. 518, 1                             | _                   |
| 1 |                                           | حيعسل               |
| I | Hamal, 73, 1, 201, 11                     | حمل الم             |
| ļ | Homalatu 'l-'arsh, 160, 11                | حمله العرش          |
| i | 162, 11                                   |                     |
| 1 | Himā, 175, u                              |                     |
| 1 | Hinna', 40, 1, 175, n                     | ملام                |
| 1 | Hanbalı, 286, u                           | عنبلى               |
| į | Hantam, 99, u , 658, i                    | حلتم                |
| i | Hanafi, 286, 11                           | حنفي                |
| ļ | Hanif, 161, 11, 402, 11                   | حسقت                |
| 1 | Hunarn, 184, 1                            | حسن                 |
| Ì | Hauw 1', 110, 11                          | عواه                |
| l | Hawari, 110, 11Hawari, 16, 11, 169, 1 | حواري               |
| l | Hawalah, 169, 1                           | حواله               |
| ļ | Hawainim, 169, 1                          | حواميم              |
| İ | Hut, 75, n , 201, n                       |                     |
| ļ | Him 104 m                                 | هوت                 |
| i | Hūr, 184, n                               |              |
| ï | Hauru 'l-hayat, 616, 1                    | عوض المحبوة         |
|   | Hauru 'l-kaugar, 168, 11                  | حوض الكوثر          |
|   | Haul 696, 1.                              | . مول               |
|   | Haulu 'l-haul, 699, u                     | حُولٌ البعول        |
| Ì | Hawaban 'l-haul, 168, 4                   | حولان العول         |
| ' | Haya, 169, 11, 854, 1                     | عياه                |
|   | Haiz, 140, 1, 169, 11                     | حيض                 |
|   | Hayawan, 16. 1                            | حيوان               |
|   | Haiwan, 154, u                            | حبوان               |
|   | Haiwanat, 531, 1                          | حبوانات             |
|   | Hayawan-1 a'jam, 40, 11                   | ميوان اعجم          |
|   | Huwîn sakit, 154, n                       | عيوال ساكت          |
|   | Haiwan natiq. 40, 11,                     | الموال المالية      |
|   | 154                                       | حيوان ناطق          |
|   | 154, n                                    | ,                   |
|   | Haiyah, 569, ii                           | حنة                 |
|   | Hayat, 146, n , 169 n ; 6,                | ميوة 11 ,55, 55, 1t |
| 1 | Haiyatu 'd-dunyā, 169, n                  | his!! sur           |
|   |                                           |                     |
|   |                                           |                     |

| i.r                                                 | עו  |
|-----------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Ahatimu 'n-nabīyin, عائم النبيس                     |     |
| 270, 1.; 567, 1                                     | 1   |
| Kharijiyah, 422, 1, 568, 1                          | ı   |
| لمارق العادة المادة Khāriqu 'l-'ādah, 350, 1        | -   |
| عاص دالم الم الم الم الم الم الم الم الم الم        | ١   |
| Khātib, 330, 11                                     | -1  |
| Khātībah, 322, 1                                    | ١   |
| Khatir, 270, 1                                      | - { |
| لله الله الله الله الله الله الله الله              | -   |
| Khālıq, 75, 11                                      |     |
|                                                     | ı   |
|                                                     | - 1 |
|                                                     | ١   |
|                                                     | 1   |
| T21 1 21 2 200                                      | į   |
| Khabar wāḥid, 262, 11, عبر واحد 640, 11             | i   |
| Wholes are                                          | 1   |
| Khabia, 262, 11                                     | 1   |
| Khitan, 57, 1                                       | ١   |
| Khitanah, 57, 1                                     | 1   |
| Khatm, 73, 1, 613, 11                               | ١   |
| عتم منزل فيل                                        | ļ   |
| 517, 1                                              |     |
| Khatmah, 196, 1, 270, 1,                            | ·   |
| 323, u                                              |     |
| Khatn, 270, 1                                       | 1   |
| Khatnah, 57, 1                                      |     |
| Khuda, 273, ii , 585, 11 seqq 134                   |     |
| Khudawand, 274, 1 white                             |     |
| عدلال Khızlan, 272, u                               |     |
| Kharabat, 269, 11 white                             | 1   |
| الله الله الله الله الله الله الله الله             |     |
| Kharqii 'l-'adah, 269, 11 Islandi and               |     |
| Khirqah, 271, 1                                     |     |
| Khusraw, 53, 1                                      | 1   |
| Khusuf, 105, 1                                      |     |
| Khashyah, 269, 11                                   | 1   |
| Khashyatu 'llah, 269, 11. منيد الله                 |     |
| Khaar, 270, 1                                       |     |
| Khususu 'l-jins, 518, 1 موس الجنس                   | -   |
| Khuşüşu 'l-'am, 518, 1.                             | 1   |
| Thusus 'n-nau', 518, 1.                             | -   |
| Khasi, 110, 1.                                      | ı   |
| Khatt. 271. 1                                       | - ( |
|                                                     | -   |
| 4 4 4 4 4 4 4 4 4 4 4 4 4 4 4 4 4 4 4               | -   |
|                                                     | İ   |
| 330, 11; 569, 1, 663, 1.  Khuthatu 'n-na't, 274, 11 | ŀ   |
| 1111 m a c man a) -1 -1 -1                          | -   |
| Khuthatu 'l-wa'z, 274, 11                           | 1   |
| Khutbatu 'l-waqfah, 277, 11                         | 1   |
| Khatib, 274, 11., 330, 11.;                         |     |
| 472, 1 , 663, 1                                     | 1   |
| Khati'ah, 594, u                                    | 1   |
| Khuff, 95, 11                                       | j   |
| Khaftan, 92, 11.                                    | 1   |
| hafz, 530, 1                                        | - ] |
| Khafr, 268, 1, 518, 11                              | i   |
|                                                     |     |

|                                    | • • •                            |
|------------------------------------|----------------------------------|
| Khilafah, 264, 1                   | حلامة                            |
| Khultin, 274, 1                    | علطين                            |
| Khul', 90, 1, 274, 1, 367, 1,      | سلع                              |
| 671, n , 712, n                    | Ç.                               |
| Khil'ah, 270, ii.                  | خلعة                             |
| Khalfiyah, 268, 1                  | خلفية                            |
| Khulq, 274, 1                      |                                  |
| Khalqah, 62, n                     | علقحلقت                      |
| Khalqah, 62, 11Khulūd, 274, 11 | علود                             |
| hhalwah, Khilwah, 122, 11,         | خلوه                             |
| 271, 1                             | ,                                |
| Khalīfah, 203, 1, 263, 11 seqq,    | حليفة                            |
| 278. 11 . 548. 11                  |                                  |
| Khalilu'llah, 4, 1, 269, 1, M      | خلل ال                           |
| 475, 11                            | •                                |
| Khamr, 130, 1, 269, 1, 670, 1      | حدر                              |
| Khums, 274, 11; 700, 11            | حمش                              |
| Khunsā, 173, 11                    | عىشى                             |
| Khanzab, 84, 11, 269, 11           | خصوبها                           |
| Khinzīr, 623, 11                   | عنرير                            |
| Khwajah, 277, 11                   | وأجة                             |
| Khawarij, 270, n                   | 2019                             |
| Khauf, 270, 11                     | عوف                              |
| Khaufiyah, 568, 11.                | غوفيد                            |
| Khiyar, 272, 11                    | سيار                             |
| Khiyaru 't-ta'yin, 272, 11         | عيار الت                         |
| Khiyaru 'r-ruyah, 272, 11 &        | عيار الر                         |
| Khiyaru 'sh-shart, 272, 11         | عيار الرعيار الشعيار الع |
| Khiyaru 'l-'aib, 272, ii           | عيار الع                         |
| Aniyaru i-majiis, 272, 11   | ڪيار الم                         |
| Khyanah, 43, 11, 272, 11           | غابة                             |
| Khaibar, 263, 1, 379, 11           | عيراتعورات                   |
| Khairāt, 263, 1, 439, 11           | خمرات                            |
| Khairu 'l-qurun, 263, 1 💩          | عير القرو                        |
| Khail, 177, 1                      | غيل                              |
|                                    |                                  |

J

Dābbatu 'l-arz, 64, 1 , 539, 11 ماية الأرض المتابع (69, 1 , 178, 1 ) منار الابتلاء المتابع (1-10 للابتلاء المتابع (1-10 للابتلاء المتابع (1-10 للابتلاء المتابع (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للابتلاء (1-10 للاب

| Daru 'l-khilafah, 69, u.                                                       | ا دار العلا                                         |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------|
| Daru 'l-thuld, 69, 11.                                                         | دار العلددار السرودار السلا                 |
| Daru 'a-gurur 69 11.                                                           | el. 11                                              |
| Dāru 's-surūr, 69, u.Dāru 's-salām, 70, u ,                                | 3 11 11                                             |
| AAO -                                                                          | , ,,,,,                                             |
| 449, 1                                                                         |                                                     |
| Dāru 's-saltanah, 70, 11                                                       | دار السلا                                           |
| Dāru 'sh-shifā', 69, u.                                                        | ا دار العقا                                         |
| Dāru 'z-zarb, 69, 11.  Dāru 'z-ziyāfah, 69, 11                                 | دار الشفادار المربدار الميان                |
| Dăru 'z-ziyāfah, 69, 11 - A                                                    | دار المياة                                          |
| Daru 'l-ghurur, 69, 11                                                         | ا دار الغرور                                        |
| Dāru 'l-fana', 69, 1                                                           | دار الغروردا، الفاءدار الفراردار الغماء |
| Dāru 'l-qarār, 70, ii . 449, 1                                                 | دار القرار                                          |
| Daru 'l-qaza', 69, 11.                                                         | دار العماء                                          |
| Dāru 'l-kutub, 69, 11 -                                                        | دار الكت                                            |
| Daru 'n-na'im 69, 11                                                           | دار البعي                                           |
| Dārān, 69, 1                                                                   | داران                                               |
| Dāmi'ah (not Damiyah),                                                         | اداسعة                                              |
| Damitan (not Damiyan),                                                         | 1                                                   |
| 128, 11, 680, ii                                                               | دامله                                               |
| Dāmiyah, 128, 11 680 11                                                        |                                                     |
| Dāniq, 85, 1                                                                   | دانق                                                |
| Danival, 69, 1, 440, 11                                                        | دانيال                                              |
| Dāwud, 71, 11Dāwud, 71, 11, 440, 1, 475, 1                                 | داود                                                |
| Dawud, 71, 11, 440, 1, 475, 11                                                 |                                                     |
| Dubba', 99, n , 658, 1                                                         | eye.                                                |
| Dibäghah, 84, 11                                                               | ८५४क                                                |
| Dabūr, 64, ı                                                                   | دبور                                                |
| Dajjāl, 64, 11                                                                 | دجأل                                                |
| Dukhān, 101, 11, 634 11                                                        | راها                                                |
| Dargah. 69, 11                                                                 | دركاة                                               |
| Dirrah (durrah), 85, 11Durratu '1 baizā', 101, 11Dirham, 85, 1, 854, 1 | درة                                                 |
| Durratu 'I baiza', 101, n                                                      | درة البيه                                           |
| Dirham, 85, 1 . 854, 1                                                         | درهم                                                |
| Durud, 45, 1 , 101, 11 , 318, 1                                                | درود                                                |
| Darwish, 70, 11                                                                |                                                     |
| Dastar, 647, n.                                                                | درویش                                               |
|                                                                                | دسار                                                |
| Dastarkhwän, 166, in.Du'ā', 45, ii , 101, i , 468, ii                      | دسترعوار                                            |
| Dut 1, 101, 1, 408, 11                                                         | دعاء                                                |
| Du'a'u 'l-qunut, 101, 1 وب                                                     | دعاء القم                                           |
| Du'ā'-1-ma'gūr, 101, 1                                                         | دعاء ساتو                                           |
| Da'wah 72, 11, 303, 11.                                                        | بعوة                                                |
| Da'wā, 72, 11                                                                  | دهوی                                                |
| Daffiyah (diffeeyeh), 94, 1.                                                   | دنية                                                |
| Dalālah, 322, 11.; 519, 11                                                     | دلالة                                               |
| Duldul, 101, 11                                                                | دلدل                                                |
| Dalhan, 137, it                                                                | دلهان                                               |
| Dalw, 75, 11, 201, 11.                                                         | دلو                                                 |
| Dalīl, 64, 11.                                                                 | دليل                                                |
| Dalil burhānī, 64, n                                                           | دلیل برد                                            |
| Dalil qati', 64, 11                                                            | دليل نطي                                            |
| Dimashq, 64, 11                                                                |                                                     |
|                                                                                | ادمشق                                               |
| Dunyawî, 656, 1                                                                | دليوي                                               |
| Dahhā, 64, 1                                                                   | 1007                                                |
| Dahr, 64, 1                                                                    | ادهر                                                |
| Dahri, 64, 1, 207, 1, 655, i                                                   | دهری                                                |
| Dawa', 347, 1                                                                  | elgs                                                |
| Dübat, 462, 1                                                                  | لوبيت                                               |
| •                                                                              |                                                     |

| Dūzakh, 101, n; 170, ii  Daulah, 544, ii.  Dūmah, 71, n.  Daiyán (dayyān), 73, n  Dain (Dayn), 81, ii.; 64, ii;  81, 11  Dīn, 84, n., 198, 1; 220, t,  348, n.; 400, 11, 536, i;  564. 1, 586, 1  Dīnār, 84, 11, 354, 1.  Dini, 655, 11  Diyah, 91, 1, 114, 1, 128, i  Diwān, 91, 1, 180, 1, 650, 11  Dīvānī, 91, 1, 691, 11 | Daur, 73, 1, 705, il.         | 1900  |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------|-------|
| Daulah, 544, 1i.  Dūmah, 71, 1i.  Daiyān (dayyān), 73, 11  Dain (Dayn), 81, 1i.; 64, 1i;  81, 11  Dīn, 84, 11., 198, 1; 220, 1,  348, 11.; 400, 11, 536, i;  564. 1, 586, 1  Dīnār, 84, 11, 354, 1.  Dīnār, 84, 11, 354, 1.  Dinī, 655, 11  Diyah, 91, 1, 114, 1, 128, i  Dīwān, 91, 1, 180, 1, 650, 11                      | Dūzakh, 101, v; 170, ii       | سرزخ  |
| Daiyán (dayyān), 73, 11  Dain (Dayn), 81, 11; 64, 11; 64, 11;  81, 11  Din, 84, 11, 198, 1; 220, 1,  348, 11, 360, 11, 536, 1;  564, 1, 586, 1  Dinār, 84, 11, 354, 1.  Dinī, 655, 11  Diyah, 91, 1, 114, 1, 128, 1  Diwān, 91, 1, 180, 1, 650, 11                                                                           | Daulah, 544, 1i.              |       |
| Daiyán (dayyān), 73, 11  Dain (Dayn), 81, 11.; 64, 11; 64, 11;  81, 11  Din, 84, 11., 198, 1; 220, 1, 64, 11; 64, 11; 536, 1; 564, 1, 586, 1  Dinār, 84, 11, 354, 1.  Dini, 655, 11  Diyah, 91, 1, 114, 1, 128, 1  Diwān, 91, 1, 180, 1, 650, 11                                                                             | Dumah, 71, n.                 | دومة  |
| Dain (Dayn), 81, 11.; 64, 11; 81, 11  Din, 84, 11., 198, 1; 220, 1, 848, 11.; 400, 11, 536, 1; 564. 1, 586, 1  Dinār, 84, 11, 354, 1.  Dini, 655, 11  Diyah, 91, 1, 114, 1, 128, 1  Diwān, 91, 1, 180, 1, 650, 11                                                                                                            | Daiyan (dayyan), 73, 11       | دياي  |
| Din, 84, 11., 198, 1; 220, 1, 848, 11.; 400, 11, 536, 1; 564. 1, 586, 1  Dinār, 84, 11, 354, 1.  Dini, 655, 11  Diyah, 91, 1, 114, 1, 128, 1  Diwān, 91, 1, 180, 1, 650, 11                                                                                                                                                  | Dain (Dayn), 31, ii.; 64, ii; | (Sty  |
| 348, 11.; 400, 11, 536, 1;564. 1, 586, 1Dīnār, 84, 11, 354, 1.Dīnī, 655, 11Dīyah, 91, 1, 114, 1, 128, 1Dīwān, 91, 1, 180, 1, 650, 11                                                                                                                                                                     |                               |       |
| 348, 11.; 400, 11, 536, 1;564. 1, 586, 1Dīnār, 84, 11, 354, 1.Dīnī, 655, 11Dīyah, 91, 1, 114, 1, 128, 1Dīwān, 91, 1, 180, 1, 650, 11                                                                                                                                                                     | Din, 84, n., 198, 1; 220, 1,  | Off   |
| كيار كايم كايم كايم كايم كايم كايم كايم كايم                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | 348, 11.; 400, 11, 536, i;    |       |
| كيارDini, 655, uDiyah, 91, 1 , 114, 1 , 128, iDiwan, 91, 1 , 180, 1 , 650, u                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | 564. 1 , 586, 1               |       |
| دين الله الله الله الله الله الله الله الل                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Dinar, 84, 11, 354, 1.        | دينار |
| Diwan, 91, 1, 180, 1, 650, 11 6123                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |                               | ديني  |
| Diwan, 91, 1, 180, 1, 650, 11 6123                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Diyah, 91, 1, 114, 1, 128, i  | 43    |
| كيواني Dīwanî, 91, 1, 691, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Diwan, 91, 1, 180, 1, 650, 11 | ديوان |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Divánî, 91, 1, 691, 11        |       |

| Zát, 702, 11                  | ذاب                    |
|-------------------------------|------------------------|
| Zātu 'l-fuzūl, 386, 1         | ذات الد                |
|                               | دات الله               |
| Zäkir, 76, 1 , 701 1 , 704, u | داكر                   |
| Zâ'ıqah, 130, 1               | MAIN!                  |
| Zabh, 105, 1, 184, 11, 551, 1 |                        |
| 697, 1                        | , 6,-                  |
|                               | دبع أعتيار             |
| 697, 1                        |                        |
| Zabb iztirāri, 130, 1, 697, 1 | نابع اضطرار            |
| Zabīhah, 697, 11              | Lynn                   |
| Zakhā'ıru 'llāh, 700, 11      | لعاكر الله             |
| Zazum, 601, 1                 | لذوم                   |
| Zarrah. 702, 1                | 1,3                    |
| Za'faraniyah, 698, 1          | لكفرانية               |
| Zagan, 40, 1                  | ڏڻڻ ُ                  |
| Zikr, 323, n., 346, n., 418,  | ىكى 1.,                |
| 545, u , 562, in., 610, 1 see | 10:                    |
| 698, 1 , 703, 1 seqq          | 12 '                   |
| Zikr jali, 118, n., 703, 1.   | لەكر جلى               |
| Zikr khafi, 117, 11, 703, 1   |                        |
| Zimmah, 576, 1, 710, 1,       | لگرعفیدمه          |
| Zimmi, 56, 1 , 69, 11; 112, 1 |                        |
| 635, 1. , 710, ii segg        | , 3                    |
| Zamb, 115, 1, 594, ii, 701,   | دنب ۽                  |
| Zahab, 149, 1                 | دهب .                  |
| Za 'l-jabin, 386, 1           | در الهبين              |
| Zū 'l-jalāl, 225, i           | لو الجلال              |
| Zū 'l-jalāl wa 'l-            | لنو الجلال             |
| ıkram, 142, i.                | , 0-4-7                |
| Zā Lhingh SKK .               | لر العجة               |
| Zu 'l-hulafa', 850, 1,        | نہ الحالال             |
| Zū 'l-himar (khimar), 25, ii. | در العماردو العمار |
| Zū 'l-fiqār, 886, i.          | Lad -1                 |
| Zu 'l-qarnam, 18, 1.;         | لو اکرنین              |
| 475, ii,                      | G47-17                 |
|                               |                        |

| Zū 'l-qa'dah, 855, 1.Zū 'l-kıfl, 114, i ; 475, 11. | در القصدة                                       |
|--------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------|
| Zā 'n-nūn, 249, ii.                                    | دو العمدةدو الكفلدو النوندوو الرحام |
| Zawū 'l-arhām, 207, 11., 657, 11., 702, 11             | ا لوّو الرّحام                                  |
| Zawû 'l-'uqul, 40, 11                                  | دوو الحقولدوو الغروض                        |
| Zawū 'l-furūz, 207, 11 ,702, 11.                   |                                                 |
| Zawū gairi 'l 'uqul, 40, 11                            | دوو غير العقول                                  |

د

Rājifiyah, 568, 1 Rahīl, 531, 11 Ra s, 170, 1 Rafizah, 582, 1, Rafizi, 534, 1 , 572 11 Rafiziyah, 567, 11 Ra'fah, 348, 1 Rāhib, 532, 1 Rabb, 75, 11 Riba, riba' (reba), 31, 1, 479, 1, 544, 11 , 656, 1 رباط Ribāt, 544, 11. رب السلم Rabbu 's-salam, 561, 1 Rabbu 'sh-shı'rā, 596, 1. رّب الشعرى Rub', 489, 11, 492, 1, 546, 11 21) رَبّ نوع ربيع الاعر Rabbu nau', 531, 1 Rabi'u 'l ākhir, 355, 1, 531, n Rabi'u 'l-auwal, 355, 1, ربيع الاول 531, ri Ratq, 88, 1. رتق Rajab, 355, 1., 533, 1, 696, 1 *) رجعة Raj'ah, 533, 1 Rajm, 476, 11; 533, 1, 607, 11 رجم Raji', 88, 1 رجيح Rajun, 538, 1. ** Rukh, 547, u Rida', 196, n., 581, 1 ť۶ رداء Raddu 's-salam, 531, 11. Rahmah, 347, 11, 437. 11., ∖532, i Rahil, 532, 1 Risalah, 545, 11 Rasm, 585, 1 Rasul, 16, 11; 449, 1., 475, 11; 585, n ; 613, in رسول الله Rasūlu 'llāh, 229, 11., 475, m رهوا Rishwah, 43, 11 Rashidah, 315, u Rizā , 537, 1 Riză', 546, 1

| Rı zā'ah, 131, 1i                                 | žols,        |
|----------------------------------------------------------|--------------|
| Diamen KAC                                               |              |
| Rizwan, 546, 1                                           | رنبوان       |
| Rati, 595, 11.                                           | رطال         |
| Ra'd, 634, 11                                            | رعد          |
| Raf', 684, 1                                             | رفح          |
| Kıqq, 545, 11                                            | رق           |
| Raqabah, 585, 1.                                         | 4,3,         |
| Ruqba, 549, 11                                           | رقبى         |
| Raqs, 69, 1                                              | رقص          |
| Riqqatu 'l-qalb, 847, 11                                 | رنة العلب    |
| Ruqyah, 303, 11., 549, 11                                | ، تساة       |
| Bikāz, 545, 1                                            | ريّز.        |
| Rak'ah, 466, 1 seqq , 533, 1                             | 7.3          |
| Ruků', 11, 1 , 489, 11 , 492, 1                          | رکوع ,       |
| 548, 1                                                   | رج ،         |
| Pamer #90                                                |              |
| Ramz 533, 11                                             | رمص          |
| Ramazān, 124, 11, 355, 1,                                | رسفان        |
| 533, ii                                                  |              |
| Ramyu 'l-11mar, 535, 1.                                  | رمى الهما    |
| Ramyu r-rijam, 157, ii                                   | رمى الرماه   |
| Rihan, 532, 11                                           | رهان         |
| Rahbaniyah, 354, 1.                                      | رهبانية      |
| Rahn, 582, 11                                            | رهن          |
| Rahīb, 354, 1                                            | رهيب         |
| Rawa, 286, 1.; 535, 11.                                  | las          |
| Riwayah, 546, i; 640, 11                                 | والية        |
| Rūbil, 544, ir                                           | . لما .      |
| Rüh, 546, 11., 604, 11, 605, 1Rühu 'l-1lqā, 133, 11. | 5-125        |
| Rühu 'lalaa 183. n.                                      | روع الألماء  |
| Rūhu 'l-qudus, 183, 1,                                   | روع القدس    |
| 177, 1 , 605, 1 , 646, 11                                | C (2)        |
| Rühu 'lläh, 475, n                                       | 1994         |
| Dalam man Allah                                          | روع الله     |
|                                                          | - 6 011      |
| Roz-1-qatl, 408, 1                                       | روز تعل      |
| Rozah, 124, 11, 546, i1                                  | روزة         |
| Rūya', 92, 1., 549, 11                                   | روياه        |
| Ruwaidiyah, 568, 11.                                     | رويدية       |
| Rú'ah, 613, 1                                            | K2           |
| Rıya', 187, 11., 546, 1.                                 | رياء         |
| Rıyah, 669, 11                                           | 2.6          |
| Riyaziyah, 568, 1                                        | ربامية       |
| Raiyan, 532, 1.                                          | ريادي        |
| Raiyan ibn al-Walid, البد                                | رَيَان بن ال |
| 252, 1 , 452, 11.; 533, 1                                | J. J.        |
| Rīhānī, 691, 1                                           | وحالى        |
|                                                          | لا - ي       |
|                                                          |              |

>

| Zahf, 696, 1 Zubal, 73, i, 201, ii, 459, ii Zarāriyah, 702, 1 Zarāriyah, 702, 1 Zarāriyah, 702, 1 Zarāriyah, 703, 1 Zafāratr 'l-hammām, 325, ii Zafāratr 'l-hammām, 325, ii Zafāratr 'l-hammām, 325, ii Zafāratr 'l-'arīnah, 325, ii Zafāratr 'l-'arīnah, 325, ii Zafāratr 'l-'arīnah, 325, ii Zafāratr 'l-'arīnah, 325, ii Zafāratr 'l-'arīnah, 325, ii Zafāratr 'l-'arīnah, 325, ii Zafāratr 'l-'arīnah, 325, ii Zafatr 'l-'arīnah, 325, ii Zafatr 'l-'arīnah, 325, ii Zanatri, 473, ii, 684, ii, 684, ii, 689, ii Zalazh, 401, ii, 449, ii, 546, ii, 656, ii Zalazh, 401, ii, 446, ii, 575, ii Zalazh, 49, ii, 571, ii, 701, ii Zanath, 163, ii secq , 180, ii, 581, 585, ii Zanath, 163, ii secq , 180, ii, 581, 585, ii Zanath, 163, ii secq , 180, ii, 581, 585, ii Zanath, 49, ii, 571, ii, 701, ii Zanath, 49, ii, 701, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, iii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 183, ii Zanath, 18 | 197                                     | DEA.                                 |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------|--------------------------------------|
| Zuhal, 73, 1, 201, 11; 459, 11 Zarāriyah, 702, 1. Zarāriyah, 702, 1 Zarāriyah, 702, 1 Zarāriyah, 702, 1 Zarāriyah, 702, 1 Zarāriyah, 702, 1 Zarāriyah, 703, 1 Zarāriyah, 702, 1 Zarāriyah, 702, 1 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah, 703, 11 Zarāriyah | Zahf 800 .                              | Sab'at ahruf, 163, n.,               |
| Zarāriyah, 702, 1 Zarāmiyah, 702, 1 Zarāmiyah, 702, 1 Zarāmiyah, 702, 1 Zarāmi, 46, 11, 325, 1 Zafāta 'l-hammām, 323, 11 Zafāta 'l-hammām, 323, 11 Zafīta 'l-hammām, 323, 11 Zafīta 'l-hammām, 323, 11 Zafīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Zarīta 'l-hammām, 325, 11 Z | Zuhal 79 : . 901 vi . 460 v             |                                      |
| Zaghārit, 46, u., 325, 1 Zufar, 8, u.  Zaffatu 'l-hammām, 323, ii Zaffatu 'l-'arūsah, 325, u Zafī, 698, 1 Zaqūm, 702, 1 Zakāt, 42, 1, 58, u, 73, 1, (55)) atj Zaqūm, 702, 1 Zakāt, 42, 1, 58, u, 73, 1, (55)) atj Zaqūm, 702, 1 Zakāt, 42, 1, 58, u, 73, 1, (55)) atj Zaqūm, 702, 1 Zakāt, 42, 1, 58, u, 73, 1, (55)) atj Zalatah, 101, 1, 419, 1, 434, u, 439, u, 545, 1, 664, 1, 699, u segg Zakarīyā, 475, u, 571, u, 701, u Zalatah, 43, u, 1476, u, 575, u Zanānh, 163, u seqq, 180, 1, su Zanjabil, 449, i, 701, u Zanjabil, 449, i, 701, u Zanjabil, 449, i, 701, u Zanjabil, 449, i, 701, u Zanjabil, 449, i, 701, u Zanjabil, 449, i, 701, u Zanjabil, 449, i, 701, u Zanjabil, 568, i, 574, u, 698, u Zaigh, 698, u Zaigh, 698, u Zaigh, 565, 1 Salik, 116, i, 556, i, 563, i, Salik, 116, i, 556, i, 563, i, Salik, 116, i, 556, i, 563, i, Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik | Zuna, 70, 1; 201, 11; 200, 11           | Saha'n 'I-masani, 550, 11 , steat am |
| Zaghārit, 46, u., 325, 1 Zufar, 8, u.  Zaffatu 'l-hammām, 323, ii Zaffatu 'l-'arūsah, 325, u Zafī, 698, 1 Zaqūm, 702, 1 Zakāt, 42, 1, 58, u, 73, 1, (55)) atj Zaqūm, 702, 1 Zakāt, 42, 1, 58, u, 73, 1, (55)) atj Zaqūm, 702, 1 Zakāt, 42, 1, 58, u, 73, 1, (55)) atj Zaqūm, 702, 1 Zakāt, 42, 1, 58, u, 73, 1, (55)) atj Zalatah, 101, 1, 419, 1, 434, u, 439, u, 545, 1, 664, 1, 699, u segg Zakarīyā, 475, u, 571, u, 701, u Zalatah, 43, u, 1476, u, 575, u Zanānh, 163, u seqq, 180, 1, su Zanjabil, 449, i, 701, u Zanjabil, 449, i, 701, u Zanjabil, 449, i, 701, u Zanjabil, 449, i, 701, u Zanjabil, 449, i, 701, u Zanjabil, 449, i, 701, u Zanjabil, 449, i, 701, u Zanjabil, 568, i, 574, u, 698, u Zaigh, 698, u Zaigh, 698, u Zaigh, 565, 1 Salik, 116, i, 556, i, 563, i, Salik, 116, i, 556, i, 563, i, Salik, 116, i, 556, i, 563, i, Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik, 160, i Salik |                                         | Sobleh (sehleh), 95, 1               |
| 28ffatu '1-hammām, 823, ii 28ffatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 825, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii 28afta, 826, ii 28afta, 826, ii 28afta, 824, ii 38af |                                         |                                      |
| 28ffatu '1-hammām, 823, ii 28ffatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28affatu '1-'arūsah, 825, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 825, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii, 556, ii 28afta, 824, ii 28afta, 826, ii 28afta, 826, ii 28afta, 824, ii 38af |                                         | Cartin Mich KAR 1 551 1 All L.       |
| 224                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Zufar, 8, 11.                           | Sabiru Tian, 040, i., 001, i.        |
| 224                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | رنة الحمام . Zaffatu 'l-hammam,         | Satr, 565, 1                         |
| Zafir, 698, 1 Zaqqūm, 702, 1 Zakāt, 42, 1, 58, 11, 73, 1, (5,5)) sisj 129, 11, 283, 1, 286, 1, 401, 1, 419, 1, 434, 11, 439, 11, 545, 1, 664, 1, 699, 11 segg Zakarīyā, 475, 11, 664, 1, 669, 11 Zalzakh, 103, 1 Zalzam, 49, 11 Zamam, 157, 11, 571, 11, 701, 11 ppi Zamādq, 130, 11; 476, 11, 575, 11 Zamam, 157, 11, 575, 11 Zamādqqyah, 569, 1 Zamādqqyah, 569, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq, 207, 1 Zandādq,  | 823. ii                                 | Sutrah, 623, 11                      |
| Zaqūm, 702, 1 Zaqūm, 702, 1 Zakāt, 42, 1, 58, 11, 73, 1, (55) 151 129, 11, 283, 1, 286, 1, 434, 11, 439, 11, 543, 11, 699, 11 eegq Zakariyā, 475, 11, 664, 1, 699, 11 Zaliz, 74, 1 Zalizah, 103, 1 Zalizah, 103, 1 Zalizuh, 103, 1 Zalizuh, 157, 11, 575, 11 Zamzam, 157, 11, 575, 11 Zanādqiyah, 569, 1 Zanādqiyah, 569, 1 Zanādqiyah, 569, 1 Zanādqi, 207, 1 Zanabl, 449, 1, 701, 11 Zanjabl, 449, 1, 701, 11 Zanjabl, 449, 1, 701, 11 Zanjabl, 568, 11 Zandah, 163, 11 Zandah, 186, 1 Zandah, 186, 1 Zandah, 186, 1 Zandah, 186, 1 Zandah, 186, 1 Zandah, 186, 1 Zandah, 186, 1 Zandah, 186, 1 Zandah, 568, 1, 574, 11, 585, 11 Salik, 116, 1, 556, 1, 563, 1, 51 Salik, 116, 1, 556, 1, 563, 1, 51 Salik, 116, 1, 556, 1, 563, 1, 51 Salik, 116, 1, 556, 1, 563, 1, 51 Salik, 116, 1, 556, 1, 563, 1, 51 Salik, 116, 1, 556, 1, 563, 1, 51 Salik, 116, 1, 556, 1, 563, 1, 51 Salik, 116, 1, 556, 1, 563, 1, 51 Salik, 116, 1, 556, 1, 563, 1, 51 Salik, 116, 1, 556, 1, 563, 1, 51 Salik, 116, 1, 556, 1, 563, 1, 51 Salik, 116, 1, 556, 1, 563, 1, 51 Salik, 116, 1, 556, 1, 563, 1, 51 Salik, 116, 1, 556, 1, 563, 1, 51 Salik, 116, 1, 556, 1, 563, 1, 51 Salik, 116, 1, 556, 1, 563, 1, 51 Salik, 116, 1, 556, 1, 563, 1, 51 Salik, 116, 1, 556, 1, 563, 1, 51 Salik, 116, 1, 556, 1, 563, 1, 51 Salik, 116, 1, 556, 1, 563, 1, 51 Salik, 116, 1, 556, 1, 563, 1, 51 Salik, 116, 1, 556, 1, 563, 1, 51 Salik, 116, 1, 556, 1, 563, 1, 51 Salik, 116, 1, 556, 1, 563, 1, 51 Salik, 116, 1, 556, 1, 563, 1, 51 Salik, 116, 1, 556, 1, 563, 1, 51 Salik, 116, 1, 556, 1, 563, 1, 51 Salik, 116, 1, 556, 1, 563, 1, 51 Salik, 116, 1, 556, 1, 563, 1, 51 Salik, 116, 1, 556, 1, 563, 1, 51 Salik, 116, 1, 556, 1, 563, 1, 51 Salik, 116, 1, 556, 1, 563, 1, 51 Salik, 116, 1, 556, 1, 563, 1, 51 Salik, 116, 1, 556, 1, 563, 1, 51 Salik, 116, 1, 556, 1, 563, 1, 51 Salik, 116, 1, 556, 1, 563, 1, 51 Salik, 116, 1, 556, 1, 563, 1, 51 Salik, 116, 1, 556, 1, 563, 1, 51 Salik, 116, 1, 1, 10 Salik, 116, 1, 1, 10 Salik, 116, 1, 1, 10 Salik, 116, 1, 1, 10 Salik, 116, 1, 1, 10 Salik, 116, 1, 10 Salik, 116, 1, 10 Sa | زفة العروسة Zaffatu 'l-'arūsah, 325, 11 | Sattuqah, 565, 1                     |
| Zaqqūm, 702, 1 Zakāt, 42, 1, 58, 11, 73, 1, (55) 165, 129, 11, 283, 11, 286, 1, 401, 1, 419, 1, 434, 11, 439, 11, 434, 11, 439, 11, 545, 1, 664, 1, 699, 11 eeqq  Zakarīyā, 475, 11, 604, 11, 675, 11 Zalzam, 49, 11 Zalzam, 49, 11 Zanzam, 157, 11, 575, 11 Zanzam, 157, 11, 575, 11 Zanzam, 163, 11 eeqq, 180, 1, 445, 11, 11, 11 Zanzam, 163, 11 eeqq, 180, 1, 446, 11, 459, 11 Zanzam, 186, 1, 574, 11 Zanzam, 186, 1, 574, 11 Zanzam, 186, 1, 574, 11 Zanzam, 186, 1, 574, 11 Zanzam, 186, 1, 574, 11 Zanzam, 186, 1, 574, 11 Zanzam, 186, 1, 574, 11 Zanzam, 186, 1, 574, 11 Zanzam, 186, 1, 574, 11 Zanzam, 186, 1, 574, 11 Zanzam, 186, 1, 574, 11 Zanzam, 186, 1, 574, 11 Zanzam, 186, 1, 574, 11 Zanzam, 186, 1, 574, 11 Zanzam, 186, 1, 574, 11 Zanzam, 186, 1, 574, 11 Zanzam, 186, 1, 574, 11 Zanzam, 186, 1, 574, 11 Zanzam, 186, 1, 574, 11 Zanzam, 186, 1, 574, 11 Zanzam, 186, 1, 574, 11 Zanzam, 186, 1, 574, 11 Zanzam, 186, 1, 574, 11 Zanzam, 186, 1, 574, 11 Zanzam, 186, 1, 574, 11 Zanzam, 186, 1, 574, 11 Zanzam, 186, 1, 574, 11 Zanzam, 186, 1, 574, 11 Zanzam, 186, 1, 574, 11 Zanzam, 186, 1, 574, 11 Zanzam, 186, 1, 574, 11 Zanzam, 186, 1, 574, 11 Zanzam, 186, 1, 574, 11 Zanzam, 186, 1, 576, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1, 576, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1, 576, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1, 576, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1, 576, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1, 576, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1, 576, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1, 576, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1, 576, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1, 576, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1, 576, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1, 576, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1 Zanzam, 186, 1 Zanzam, | Zafir. 698. 1                    | Sihr, 72, 11, 303, 11                |
| 401, 1, 419, 1, 454, 11, 439, 11, 454, 11, 439, 11, 564, 11, 699, 11 eegg  Zakariyā, 475, 11, 699, 1  Zalzaka, 103, 1  Zalam, 49, 11  Zalam, 49, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 571, 11, 701, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 571, 11, 701, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 575, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 575, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 575, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 575, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 575, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 575, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 575, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 575, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 575, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 575, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 575, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 575, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 575, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 11, 555, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 11, 555, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 11, 556, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 11, 556, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 11, 556, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 11, 556, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 11, 556, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 11, 556, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 11, 556, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 11, 556, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  | Zeooum, 702. 1                          | Sahūr, 555, 11                       |
| 401, 1, 419, 1, 454, 11, 439, 11, 454, 11, 439, 11, 564, 11, 699, 11 eegg  Zakariyā, 475, 11, 699, 1  Zalzaka, 103, 1  Zalam, 49, 11  Zalam, 49, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 571, 11, 701, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 571, 11, 701, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 575, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 575, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 575, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 575, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 575, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 575, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 575, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 575, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 575, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 575, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 575, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 575, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 575, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 11, 555, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 11, 555, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 11, 556, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 11, 556, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 11, 556, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 11, 556, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 11, 556, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 11, 556, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 11, 556, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 11, 556, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  | 70 bit 40 , 50 11 73 1 (851) als        | Sajjādah, 224, 11., 556, 11          |
| 401, 1, 419, 1, 454, 11, 439, 11, 454, 11, 439, 11, 564, 11, 699, 11 eegg  Zakariyā, 475, 11, 699, 1  Zalzaka, 103, 1  Zalam, 49, 11  Zalam, 49, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 571, 11, 701, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 571, 11, 701, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 575, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 575, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 575, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 575, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 575, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 575, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 575, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 575, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 575, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 575, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 575, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 575, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 575, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 11, 555, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 11, 555, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 11, 556, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 11, 556, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 11, 556, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 11, 556, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 11, 556, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 11, 556, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 11, 556, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11, 11, 556, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  Zanzam, 157, 11  | 190 999 986 1                           |                                      |
| Sajdatu 'sh-shukr, 556, ii.   Sajdatu 'sh-shukr, 556, ii.   Sajdatu 'sh-shukr, 556, ii.   Sajdatu 'sh-shukr, 556, ii.   Sajdatu 'sh-shukr, 556, ii.   Sajdatu 'sh-shukr, 556, ii.   Sajdatu 'sh-shukr, 556, ii.   Sajdatu 'sh-shukr, 556, ii.   Sajdatu 'sh-shukr, 556, ii.   Sajdatu 'sh-shukr, 556, ii.   Sajdatu 'sh-shukr, 556, ii.   Sajdatu 'sh-shukr, 556, ii.   Sajdatu 'sh-shukr, 556, ii.   Sajdatu 'sh-shukr, 556, ii.   Sajdatu 'sh-shukr, 556, ii.   Sajdatu 'sh-shukr, 556, ii.   Sajdatu 'sh-shukr, 556, ii.   Sajdatu 'sh-shukr, 556, ii.   Sajdatu 'sh-shukr, 556, ii.   Sajdatu 'sh-shukr, 556, ii.   Sajdatu 'sh-shukr, 556, ii.   Sajdatu 'sh-shukr, 556, ii.   Sajdatu 'sh-shukr, 556, ii.   Sajdatu 'sh-shukr, 556, ii.   Sajdatu 'sh-shukr, 556, ii.   Sajdatu 'sh-shukr, 556, ii.   Sajdatu 'sh-shukr, 556, ii.   Sajdatu 'sh-shukr, 556, ii.   Sajdatu 'sh-shukr, 556, ii.   Sajdatu 'sh-shukr, 556, ii.   Sajdatu 'sh-shukr, 556, ii.   Sajdatu 'sh-shukr, 556, ii.   Sajdatu 'sh-shukr, 556, ii.   Sajdatu 'sh-shukr, 556, ii.   Sajdatu 'sh-shukr, 556, ii.   Sajdatu 'sh-shukr, 556, ii.   Sajdatu 'sh-shukr, 556, ii.   Sajdatu 'sh-shukr, 556, ii.   Sajdatu 'sh-shukr, 556, ii.   Sajdatu 'sh-shukr, 556, ii.   Sajdatu 'sh-shukr, 556, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   Sajduil, 11, ii.   | 401 . 410 . 494 11                      | Saidatu 's-sahw, 556, 11 gent Same   |
| Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Signature   Sign   | 400, 1, 419, 1, 40%, 11,                |                                      |
| Zakāryā, 475, n , 699, 1  Zakī, 74, 1  Zalazlah, 108, 1  Zalazlah, 108, 1  Zalazlah, 108, 1  Zalazlah, 108, 1  Zalazlah, 108, 1  Zalazlah, 108, 1  Zalazlah, 108, 1  Zalazlah, 108, 1  Zalazlah, 108, 1  Zalazlah, 108, 1  Zalazlah, 108, 1  Zalazlah, 108, 1  Zalazlah, 108, 1  Zalazlah, 108, 1  Zalazlah, 108, 1  Zalazlah, 108, 1  Zalazlah, 108, 1  Zalazlah, 108, 1  Zanzam, 157, n , 571, n , 701, n , 505, n                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |                                         |                                      |
| Zakā, 74, 1 Zalzalah, 103, 1 Zalzalah, 103, 1 Zalzalah, 103, 1 Zalzalah, 103, 1 Zalzalah, 103, 1 Zalzalah, 103, 1 Zalzalah, 103, 1 Zalzalah, 103, 1 Zalzalah, 103, 1 Zalzalah, 103, 1 Zalzalah, 103, 1 Zalzalah, 103, 1 Zamzam, 157, 1, 571, 1, 701, 1, 701, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 571, 1, 701, 1, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 571, 1, 701, 1, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 650, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 671, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 671, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 671, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 671, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 671, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 671, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 671, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 671, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 671, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 671, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 671, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 671, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 671, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 671, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 671, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 671, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 671, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 671, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 671, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 671, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 671, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 671, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 671, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 671, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 671, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 671, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 671, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 671, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 671, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 671, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 671, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 671, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 671, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 671, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 671, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 505, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 505, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 505, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 505, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 505, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 505, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 505, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 505, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 505, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 505, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 505, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 505, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 505, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 505, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 505, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 505, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 505, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 505, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 505, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 505, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 505, 1 Zanzam, 157, 1, 505, 1 Zanzam, 162, 1, 352, 1, 505, 1 Zanzam, 162, 1, 352, 1, 505, 1 Zanzam, 162, 1, 352, 1, 505, 1 Zanzam, 162, 1, 352, 1, 505, 1 Zanzam, 162, 1, 352, 1, 505, 1 Zanzam, 162, 1, 352, 1, 505, 1 Zanzam, 162, 1, 352, 1, 505, 1 Zanzam, 162, 1, 352, 1, 505, 1 Zanzam, 162, 1, 352, 1, 505, 1 Zanzam, 162, 1, 352, 1, 505, 1 Zanzam, 162, 1, 102, 1 Zanzam, 162, 1, 102, 1 Zanzam, 162, 1, 102, 1 Zanzam, 16 |                                         |                                      |
| Zallatu Adam, 115, 1 Zamzam, 157, n, 571, n, 701, 1 Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanažin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 50, n Sarazin, 50, n Sarazin, 50, n Sarazin, 50, n Sarazin, 50, n Sarazin, 50, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, | Zakariya, 475, 11, 699, 1               |                                      |
| Zallatu Adam, 115, 1 Zamzam, 157, n, 571, n, 701, 1 Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanažin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 50, n Sarazin, 50, n Sarazin, 50, n Sarazin, 50, n Sarazin, 50, n Sarazin, 50, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, | Zakī, 74, 1                             | Sulud, 11, 1                         |
| Zallatu Adam, 115, 1 Zamzam, 157, n, 571, n, 701, 1 Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanaži, 130, n; 476, n, 575, n Zanažin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 50, n Sarazin, 50, n Sarazin, 50, n Sarazin, 50, n Sarazin, 50, n Sarazin, 50, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarik, 130, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, 73, n, 201, n Sarazin, | ربرانه Zalzalah, 103, 1                 | Saknawan, 250, 1; 259, 1.            |
| Zamzam, 157, n , 571, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, | Zalbiii. 49. II                         | Sidratu 1-muntana,                   |
| Zamzan, 157, n , 571, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, n , 701, |                                         |                                      |
| Zanādqqyah, 569, 1 Zanādqqyah, 569, 1 Zanānah, 163, 11 seqq, 180, 1, 4015 701. 11 Zanjabil, 449, 1, 701, 11 Zanjabil, 449, 1, 701, 11 Zuhd, 610, 1 Zuhd, 610, 1 Zuhd, 671, 1 Zauj, 167, 1, 671, 1 Zaudiyah, 568, 1, 574, 11, 556, 1 Zaigh, 698, 11 Zaigh, 698, 11 Zaigh, 698, 11 Zaigh, 696, 1. Sāilik, 116, 1., 556, 1, 563, 1, 610, 1 seqq Sālik-1-maj zūb, 612, 11 Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrāh, 130, 1 Sāmrāh, 130, 1 Sāmrāh, 130, 1 Sāmrāh, 130, 1 Sāmrāh, 305, 1 Sāmrāh, 305, 1 Sāmrāh, 305, 1 Sāmrāh, 555, 11 Samānah, 140, 1, 475, 11, 56mrāh, 150, 1 Samānah, 140, 1, 475, 11, 56mrāh, 150, 1 Samānah, 140, 1, 475, 11, 56mrāh, 150, 1 Samānah, 140, 1, 475, 11, 56mrāh, 150, 1 Samānah, 140, 1, 475, 11, 56mrāh, 150, 1 Samānah, 140, 1, 475, 11, 56mrāh, 150, 1 Samānah, 140, 1, 475, 11, 56mrāh, 150, 1 Samānah, 140, 1, 475, 11, 56mrāh, 150, 1 Samānah, 140, 1, 475, 11, 56mrāh, 150, 1 Samānah, 140, 1, 475, 11, 56mrāh, 150, 1 Samānah, 140, 1, 475, 11, 56mrāh, 150, 1 Samānah, 140, 1, 475, 11, 56mrāh, 150, 1 Samānah, 140, 1, 475, 11, 56mrāh, 150, 1 Samānah, 140, 1, 475, 11, 56mrāh, 150, 1 Samānah, 140, 1, 475, 11, 56mrāh, 150, 1 Samānah, 140, 1, 475, 11, 565, 1 Samānah, 140, 1, 475, 11, 565, 1 Samānah, 140, 1, 475, 11, 565, 1 Samānah, 140, 1, 475, 11, 565, 1 Samānah, 140, 1, 475, 11, 565, 1 Samānah, 140, 1, 475, 11, 565, 1 Samānah, 140, 1, 475, 11, 565, 1 Samānah, 140, 1, 475, 11, 565, 1 Samānah, 140, 1, 475, 11, 565, 1 Samānah, 140, 1, 475, 11, 565, 1 Samānah, 140, 1, 475, 11, 565, 1 Samānah, 140, 1, 475, 11, 565, 1 Samānah, 140, 1, 475, 11, 565, 1 Samānah, 140, 1, 475, 11, 565, 1 Samānah, 140, 1, 475, 11, 565, 1 Samānah, 140, 1, 475, 11, 565, 1 Samānah, 140, 1, 477, 1, 505, 1 Sarīvu 'l-nalāb, 50, 1. Sarīvu 'l-nalāb, 50, 1. Sarīvu 'l-nalāb, 50, 1. Sarīvu 'l-nalāb, 50, 1. Sarīvu 'l-nalāb, 50, 1. Sarīvu 'l-nalāb, 50, 1. Sarīvu 'l-nalāb, 50, 1. Sarīvu 'l-nalāb, 50, 1. Sarīvu 'l-nalāb, 50, 1. Sarīvu 'l-nalāb, 50, 1. Sarīvu 'l-nalāb, 50, 1. Sarīvu 'l-nalāb, 50, 1. Sarīvu 'l-nalāb, 50, 1. Sarīvu 'l-nalāb, 50, 1. Sarīvu 'l-nalā | Zamzam, 157, n , 571, n , 701, 1        |                                      |
| Zanādiqiyah, 569, 1 Zanānah, 163, 11 seqq, 180, 1, still, 50, 1 Zanjabil, 449, 1, 701, 11 Zanjabil, 449, 1, 701, 11 Zandīq, 207, 1 Zuhd, 610, 1 Zuhd fi 'd-dunyā, 286, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Zmā', 130, n; 476, n, 575, n            |                                      |
| Zanānah, 163, 11 seqq, 180, 1, 201, 11  Zandīq, 207, 1  Zandīq, 207, 1  Zuhd, 610, 1  Zuhd, 610, 1  Zauba'ah, 136, 1  Zauba'ah, 136, 1  Zaudiyah, 568, 1, 574, 11, 698, 11  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sārah, 565, 1  Sarahdit, 59, 1  Sarahdit, 59, 1  Sarahdit, 59, 1  Sarahdit, 59, 1  Sarahdit, 59, 1  Sarahdit, 59, 1  Sarahdit, 59, 1  Sarahdit, 59, 1  Sarahdit, 59, 1  Sarahdit, 59, 1  Sarah, 565, 1  Sarahdit, 59, 1  Sarahdit, 59, 1  Sarahdit, 59, 1  Sarahdit, 59, 1  Sarahdit, 59, 1  Sarahdit, 59, 1  Sarahdit, 59, 1  Sarahdit, 59, 1  Sarahdit, 59, 1  Sarahdit, 59, 1  Sarahdit, 59, 1  Sarit, 137 1  Sarit, 137 1  Surfat, 59, 1  Sarit, 137 1  Surfat, 59, 1  Sufta, 137 1  Sarqā' 171, 1, 556, 1  Surfat, 59, 1  Sarit, 137 1  Surfat, 59, 1  Sufta, 137 1  Sarahdit, 59, 1  Sufta, 137 1  Sarahdit, 59, 1  Sufta, 137 1  Sarahdit, 59, 1  Sufta, 59, 1  Sufta, 137 1  Sufta, 137 1  Sarahdit, 59, 1  Sufta, 137 1  Sufta, 137 1  Sufta, 137 1  Sufta, 137 1  Sufta, 137 1  Sufta, 137 1  Sufta, 137 1  Sufta, 137 1  Sufta, 137 1  Sufta, 137 1  Sufta, 137 1  Sufta, 137 1  Sufta, 137 1  Sufta, 137 1  Sufta, 564, 1  Sufta, 137 1  Sufta, 137 1  Sufta, 137 1  Sufta, 137 1  Sufta, 137 1  Sufta, 137 1  Sufta, 137 1  Sufta, 137 1  Sufta, 137 1  Sufta, 137 1  Sufta, 137 1  Sufta, 137 1  Sufta, 137 1  Sufta, 137 1  Sufta, 137 1  Sufta, 137 1  Sufta, 137 1  Sufta, 137 1  Sufta, 137 1  Sufta, 137 1  Sufta, 137 1  Sufta, 137 1  Suf | زمادقية Zanādigiyah, 569, 1             | Sarıqah, 284, 1, 477, 1, 565, 1      |
| Zanjabil, 449, 1, 701, 11 Zandiq, 207, 1 Zuhd, 610, 1 Zuhd fi 'd-dunyā, 286, 1   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil | Zananah, 163, 11 seqq, 180, 1, silij    | حرندیب Sarandib, 50, 1               |
| Zanjabil, 449, 1, 701, 11 Zandiq, 207, 1 Zuhd, 610, 1 Zuhd fi 'd-dunyā, 286, 1   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil   Levil | 701, n                                  | Sarī'u 'l-ijābah, 73, نوع الأجاله    |
| Zandiq, 207, 1 Zuhd, 610, 1 Zuhd, 610, 1 Zuhd fi 'd-dunyā, 286, 1 Zuhrah, 73, 11, 201, 11; 459, 11 505, 1 Zauba'ah, 136, 1 Zauj, 167, 1, 671, 1 Zaudiyah, 568, 1, 574, 11, 591 Zaudiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 1, 574, 11, 591 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 1, 574, 11, 591 Zaidiyah, 568, 1, 574, 11, 591 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 1, 574, 11, 591 Zaidiyah, 568, 1, 574, 11, 591 Zaidiyah, 568, 1, 574, 11, 591 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 568, 11 Zaidiyah, 5 |                                         | Surriyah, 59, 11.                    |
| Zuhd, 610, 1  Zuhd fi 'd-dunyā, 286, 1  Zuhrah, 73, 11, 201, 11; 459, 11 (36);  Zauba'ah, 136, 1  Zaul, 167, 1, 671, 1  Zauldiyah, 568, 1, 574, 11, (32);  698, 11  Zaidiyah, 568, 11  Zaigh, 698, 11  Sārah, 565, 1  Sālik, 116, \bar{1}, 556, 1, 563, 1, (31);  Sālik, 116, \bar{1}, 556, 1, 563, 1, (31);  Sālik, 116, \bar{1}, 556, 1, 563, 1, (31);  Sālik-1-majzūb, 612, 11  Sāmiri, 49, 1.  Sāmiri, 49, 1.  Sāmiri, 49, 1.  Sāmiri, 305, 1  Sālimān  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11, (32);  Salimān, 560, 11  Salimān, 561, 11.  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 470, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 440, 1, 470, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 440, 1, 470, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 440, 1, 470, 11, (32);  Salimān, 440, 1, 440, 1 |                                         | Sa'fas, 681, 1                       |
| Zuhd fi 'd-dunyā, 286, 1   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan   Jan |                                         |                                      |
| Zuhrah, 73, 11, 201, 11; 459, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Zuha fi 'd dunya 286 . Luli . das.      |                                      |
| Zauba'ah, 136, 1 Zauj, 167, 1, 671, 1 Zaidiyah, 568, 1, 574, 11, 698, 11 Zaigh, 698, 11  Sārah, 565, 1 Sāli, 696, 1. Sālik, 116, 1, 556, 1, 563, 1, 610, 1 seqq Sālik-1-majzūb, 612, 11 Sāmīrī, 49, 1. Sāmīrī, 49, 1. Sāmīrā, 130, 1 Sāmih, 305, 1 Sālibh, 555, 11 Sālibh, 555, 11 Sālibh, 555, 11 Sālibh, 555, 11 Sālibh, 555, 11 Sālibh, 555, 11 Sālibh, 555, 11 Salimān wa Absāl, 110, 11 Salimān wa Absāl, 110, 11 Salimān wa Absāl, 110, 11 Salimān, 572, 11 Salimān, 572, 11 Salimān, 305, 1 Salimān, 305, 1 Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11 Samāri, 149, 1. Samāri, 140, 1, 475, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 475, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 475, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 475, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 475, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 475, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 475, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 475, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 475, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 475, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 475, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 475, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 475, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 475, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 475, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 475, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 475, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 475, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 475, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 475, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 475, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 475, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 475, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 475, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 475, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 475, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 140, 1, 140, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 140, 1, 140, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 140, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 140, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 140, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 140, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 140, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 140, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 140, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 140, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 140, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 140, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 140, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 140, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 140, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 140, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 140, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 140, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 140, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 140, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 140, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 140, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 140, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 140, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 140, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 140, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 140, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 140, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 140, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 140, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 140, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 140, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 140, 11 Samāri, 140, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 140, 11 Samāri, 140, 1, 140, 11 Samāri, 14 |                                         | Suffersh 629 :                       |
| Zauj, 167, 1, 671, 1 Zaidīyah, 568, 1, 574, 11, 698, 11, 5aij, 698, 11  Zaigh, 698, 11  Sārah, 565, 1  Sāl, 696, 1.  Sālik, 116, 1, 556, 1, 563, 1, 610, 1 seqq  Sālik-1-majzūb, 612, 11  Sāmīrī, 49, 1.  Sāmīrah, 130, 1  Sāmīrah, 305, 1  Sālikh, 555, 11  Sālikh, 555, 11  Sālikh, 555, 11  Salimān wa Absāl, 11  Salimān wa Absāl, 11  Salimān wa Absāl, 11  Salimān wa Absāl, 11  Salimān, 574, 11  Salimān, 574, 11  Salimān, 574, 11  Salimān, 574, 11  Salimān, 574, 11  Salimān, 574, 11  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11  Salimān, 440, 1, 475, 11  Salimān, 450, 1, 475, 11  Salimān, 450, 1, 475, 11  Salimān, 450, 1, 475, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Zouhafah 196 :                          |                                      |
| Sārah, 565, 1 Sālik, 116, ī., 556, 1, 563, 1, 561, 11 Sālik-1-majzūb, 612, 11 Sāmīrī, 49, 1. Sāmīrāh, 305, 1 Sālih, 305, 1 Sālih, 305, 1 Sālih, 305, 1 Sālih, 555, 11 Sālih, 305, 1 Sālih, 555, 11 Sālih, 555, 11 Salamān wa Absāl, July, 1, 570, 1 Salamān wa Absāl, July, 1, 581salah, 594, 1 Salaman, 572, 11 Salaman, 572, 11 Salaman, 572, 11 Salaman, 572, 11 Salaman, 572, 11 Salaman, 572, 11 Salaman, 572, 11 Salaman, 572, 11 Salaman, 572, 11 Salaman, 572, 11 Salaman, 572, 11 Salaman, 572, 11 Salaman, 572, 11 Salaman, 572, 11 Salaman, 572, 11 Salaman, 572, 11 Salaman, 572, 11 Salaman, 572, 11 Salaman, 573, 11 Salaman, 573, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman | Zagustau, 100, 1                        | Sifer I multib AAO                   |
| Sārah, 565, 1 Sālik, 116, ī., 556, 1, 563, 1, 561, 11 Sālik-1-majzūb, 612, 11 Sāmīrī, 49, 1. Sāmīrāh, 305, 1 Sālih, 305, 1 Sālih, 305, 1 Sālih, 305, 1 Sālih, 555, 11 Sālih, 305, 1 Sālih, 555, 11 Sālih, 555, 11 Salamān wa Absāl, July, 1, 570, 1 Salamān wa Absāl, July, 1, 581salah, 594, 1 Salaman, 572, 11 Salaman, 572, 11 Salaman, 572, 11 Salaman, 572, 11 Salaman, 572, 11 Salaman, 572, 11 Salaman, 572, 11 Salaman, 572, 11 Salaman, 572, 11 Salaman, 572, 11 Salaman, 572, 11 Salaman, 572, 11 Salaman, 572, 11 Salaman, 572, 11 Salaman, 572, 11 Salaman, 572, 11 Salaman, 572, 11 Salaman, 572, 11 Salaman, 573, 11 Salaman, 573, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 575, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman, 576, 11 Salaman |                                         | Sagar' 200 m                         |
| Sārah, 565, 1 Sāl, 696, 1. Sālik, 116, ī., 556, 1, 563, 1, 501, 1 Sālik-1-maj zūb, 612, 11 Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Samrī, 40, 1, 475, 11, 601, 11. Samrī, 170                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |                                         | Sayya, 525, II                       |
| Sārah, 565, 1 Sāl, 696, 1. Sālik, 116, ī., 556, 1, 563, 1, 501, 1 Sālik-1-maj zūb, 612, 11 Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Samrī, 40, 1, 475, 11, 601, 11. Samrī, 170                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |                                         | 08Qdf, 1/1, 1 , 30%, 11              |
| Sārah, 565, 1 Sāl, 696, 1. Sālik, 116, ī., 556, 1, 563, 1, 501, 1 Sālik-1-maj zūb, 612, 11 Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Samrī, 40, 1, 475, 11, 601, 11. Samrī, 170                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Zaign, 698, ii                          | 81K0, 390, 1.                        |
| Sārah, 565, 1 Sāl, 696, 1. Sālik, 116, ī., 556, 1, 563, 1, 501, 1 Sālik-1-maj zūb, 612, 11 Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Samrī, 40, 1, 475, 11, 601, 11. Samrī, 170                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |                                         | 8ukr, 100, 1                         |
| Sārah, 565, 1 Sāl, 696, 1. Sālik, 116, ī., 556, 1, 563, 1, 501, 1 Sālik-1-maj zūb, 612, 11 Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Samrī, 40, 1, 475, 11, 601, 11. Samrī, 170                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |                                         | عكون Sukūn, 686, 1.                  |
| Sārah, 565, 1 Sāl, 696, 1. Sālik, 116, ī., 556, 1, 563, 1, 501, 1 Sālik-1-maj zūb, 612, 11 Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Sāmrī, 49, 1. Samrī, 40, 1, 475, 11, 601, 11. Samrī, 170                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |                                         | Sakinah, 560, 11                     |
| Sārah, 565, 1 Sāl, 696, 1. Sālik, 116, ī., 556, 1, 563, 1, 518slah, 594, 1 Sālik-1-majzūb, 612, 11 Sāmırī, 49, 1. Sāmırāh, 130, 1 Sāmirāh, 130, 1 Sāmir, 305, 1 Sālik-1-sāmir, 495, 1 Sāmirāh, 130, 1 Sāmirāh, 130, 1 Sāmirāh, 1555, 11 Sāmirāh, 555, 11 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 618, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 1 Salāmān wa Absāl, 1 Salāmān wa A | !                                       | OBIRID, 408, 11, 5(U, 1              |
| Sārah, 565, 1  Sāl, 696, 1.  Sālik, 116, ī., 556, 1, 563, 1, 518 salsabīl, 563, 1  Sālik, 116, ī., 556, 1, 563, 1, 518 salsabīl, 563, 1  Sīlislah, 594, 1  Sūlik-1-maj zūb, 612, 11  Sām, 572, 11.  Sāmirā, 49, 1.  Sāmirāh, 130, 1  Sānih, 305, 1  Sālislah, 594, 1  Salsah, 544, 1  Salsah, 94, 11  Salam, 33, 11., 561, 11.  Sulamāu, 440, 1, 475, 11, 601, 1  Salislah, 555, 11  Salislah, 594, 1  Salislah, 594, 1  Salislah, 594, 1  Salislah, 594, 1  Salislah, 594, 1  Salislah, 594, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 561, 1  Salislah, 562, 1  Salislah, 562, 1  Salislah, 562, 1  Salislah, 562, 1  Salislah, 562, 1  Salislah, 562, 1  Salislah, 562, 1  Salislah, 562, 1  Salislah, 562, 1  Salislah, 562, 1  Salislah, 562, 1  Salislah, 562, 1  Salislah, 562, 1  Salislah, 562, 1                                                                                                                                |                                         | Salāmān wa Absāl, المان واسال        |
| Sāl, 696, 1.  Sālik, 116, ī., 556, 1, 563, 1,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Särah, 565, 1                           | 518, 1 kega                   |
| Sa'thah, 555 v at Sami' 170 v                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Sal. 696. 1.                            | Selsabil, 563, 1                     |
| Sa'thah, 555 v at Sami' 170 v                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |                                         | Silsilah, 594, i                     |
| Sa'thah, 555 v at Sami' 170 v                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |                                         | Sultan, 278 n. 629 n                 |
| Sa'thah, 555 v at Sami' 170 v                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Sülk-1-maranh 612 11 - wine will 1      | Seliah Q4 11                         |
| Sa'thah, 555 v at Sami' 170 v                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |                                         | Solof 561                            |
| Sa'thah, 555 v at Sami' 170 v                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Ramani da                               | Selem 99 m KG1                       |
| Sa'thah, 555 v at Sami' 170 v                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Remish 190 .                            | Sulamin 440 a 475                    |
| Sa'thah, 555 v at Sami' 170 v                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |                                         | 201 -                                |
| Samai, 555, 11 Saba', 550, 11 Sabt, 550, 11 Subhān, 482, 1 Subhān, 482, 1 Subhān, 608, 11 Subhān, 546, 1, 608, 11 Subhah, 546, 1, 608, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Saline ere                              | 001,1                                |
| Sanāhah, $1, 1. Saht, 550, 11 Subhān, 482, 1 Subhān, 482, 1 Subhān, 608, 11 Subhān, 546, 1, 608, 11 Subhah, 546, 1, 608, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | ا سائبه عداد ال ۱۵۵ الماده              | DRIME, 1/U, 1                        |
| Sant, 550, 11 Subhān, 482, 1 Subhān, 482, 1 Subhān, 608, 11 Subhān, 546, 1, 608, 11 Subhah, 546, 1, 608, 11 Subhah, 546, 1, 608, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | 58.08°, 550', 1                         | Samahah, $1, 1.                     |
| Subhāna 'llāh, 608, 11 Subhāna 'llāh, 608, 11 Subhāna 'lah, 546, 1, 608, 11 Subhāna '594, 11 Simsār, 594, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | 3abt, 550, 11                           | Samā', 707, 11.                      |
| Subhah, 546, 1, 608, 11  Subhah, 546, 1, 608, 11  Subhah, 546, 1, 608, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Subhan, 482, 1                          | Sama' khānah, 707 ii ale glan        |
| Subhah, 546, 1, 608, 11 Sımsar, 594, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Judhana Ilah, 608, 11 All ( Land        | Simhaq, 128, 11, 680, 11             |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Subhah, 546, 1, 608, 11                 | Simsår, 594, 11                      |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |                                         | )                                    |

|                                                          | th D.                         |
|----------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------|
| Sam', 146, ii.                                           | 24                            |
| Samak, 129, 1                                            | سمعسمك                    |
| Sami', 74, u                                             |                               |
| Sumbulah, 75, 1, 201, 11                                 | سمبعمنبله                 |
| Sanad, 564, 11                                           |                               |
| Super the March                                          | T. la d'air                   |
| Sunan ibn Mājah,                                         | سنن ابن ماجا                  |
| 582 n                                                    | 61 .                          |
| Sunanu 'n-Nasa'i, 431, 1                                 | سب اللسائي                    |
|                                                          |                               |
| Sunnah, 62, n , 156, 1; 2                                | سنة , 86,1                    |
| Sunnah, 62, n , 156, 1 ; 2400, n , 434, n , 622,     | , 11                          |
| 00V, 11                                                  |                               |
| Sunnatu 't-taqrir, 622, 11                               | سه التقرير                    |
| 639, 11                                                  |                               |
| Sunnatu '1-fi'1, 622, 11,                                | سعة الفعل                     |
| 689, 11                                                  |                               |
| Sunnatu 'l-qaul, 622, n,                                 | سنة الغول                     |
| 639, 11                                                  | ٠٠٠. ٠٠٠ــ                    |
| Sunnatu 'l-hudā, 622, 11                                 | سة الهدى                      |
| Sunni 409 .                                              | _                             |
| Sunni, 623, 1                                            | سىي                           |
| Sahm, 555, u                                             | سهمسواع                   |
| Sawa', 191, n , 623 n                                    | سواع                          |
| Sawayim 566, 1                                           | سوايم                         |
| Surab, 489, n , 623, n                                   | سورة ا                        |
| Suratu Ah 'Imra'i                                        | سورة آل عمران                 |
| 510, n                                                   |                               |
| Snratu l-Ahzāb, 513 1                                    | سورة الاحراب                  |
| Siratu 'l-Ahqaf, 499 11                                  | سورة الاحقاف                  |
| Sūratu 'l-Jkhlās, 466, 11                                | سورة الاخلاص                  |
| 494, 1                                                   | • .,                          |
| Sūratu 'l-A'rāf, 509, 1                                  | سورة الاعراب                  |
| Sūratu 'l-A'lā, 494, 11                                  | سورة الأعد                    |
| Sūratu 'l-A'nām, 504, 11                                 | سورة الاعلىسورة الإعدام   |
| Grandy 'I. Ambura' 506 11                                | سورة الاقبياء                 |
| Suratu 'l-Ambıya', 506, 11Suratu 'l-Inshirah, 494, 1 | سورة الانشراع                 |
| Suratu I-Insuiran, 454, 1                                | سورة الامشفاق                 |
| Süratu 'l-Inshiqaq, 494, 11                              | tiant a                       |
| Sūratu 'l-Anfāl, 510, 11                                 | سورة الانفالسورة الانفطار |
| Sūratu 'l-Infițăr, 493, n.                               | سوره الانقصار                 |
| Suratu 'l-Buruj, 495, 1                                  | سورة المروج                   |
| Süratu 'l-Baqarah, 509, 11                               | سُورُة النَّقُرَة ,           |
| 703, 11                                                  |                               |
| Süratu 'l-Balad, 494, 1                                  | سورة البلد                    |
| Suratu 'l-Baivinah, 509, 1                               | صورة ألبيمة ا                 |
| Suratu 't-Tahrım, 514, 1                                 | سورة التحريم                  |
| Suratu 't-Tatfif, 495, 1                                 | سورة التطفيف                  |
| Suratu 't-Taghābuu,                                      | سررة التعاس                   |
| 505, m                                                   | ,                             |
| Süratu 't-Takaşur, 493, 11                               | سورة التكاثر                  |
| Suratu 't-Takwir, 494, 11                                | سورة التكوير                  |
| Sûratu 't-Taubah, 514, 1                                 | سورة التوبة                   |
| Ourse of The 400 or                                      | سورة العين                    |
| Suratu 't-Tin, 493, n                                    | سوره الجائية                  |
| Süratu 'l-Jäsiyah, 497, 11Süratu 'l-Jum'ah, 511, 1   | سبرة الصبعة                   |
| Saratu 'l-Jum'ah, 511, 1                                 | th Z                          |
| Süratu 'l-Jmn, 188, 11 ,                                 | سورة الجس                     |
| 499, n                                                   | yei to E                      |
| Süratu 'l-Häqqah, 497, 1.                                | سورة الحالة                   |
|                                                          |                               |

Süratu 'l-Hajj, 506 1 سورة الحج مررة الحرب الحرب Suratu 'l-Hijr, 499, 1. مروة الحرات 1-Hujurât 514, 1 سورة الحديد Sûratu 'l-Hadid, 513. m., 703, n سورة العشر Süratu 'l-Hashr, 512, 1 Saratu 'l-Hamd, 125, 1 سورة الحمد ة الدعان Süratu 'd-Dukhan 497, 11 سورة الدهر سورة الداريات Suratu 'd-Dahr, 495, 1 Sūratu 'z-Zārīyāt, 499, 1 مورة الرحمن , Suratu 'r-Rahman, 348, 1 495, 11 , 704, 1 Sūratu 'r-Ea'd, 508, 11 سورة الرعد سورة الزوم سورة الزعر Sūratu r-Rūm, 498, 1 Shratu 'z-Zukhruf, 503, 1 Süratu '7-Zalzalah, 493, 1 سووة الولولة سورة الوسو Süratu 4-Zumar, 496, 1 Suratu 's-Sajdah, 496, 1 الله الله Sūratu 'sh-Shu'arā', سورة الشعراء 498, 11 سورة الشمس Suratu 'sh-Shams, 493 n , 521, n سورة الغورى Sūratu 'sh-Shūrā, 501, 1 سورة الماقاني Sūratu 's-Sāffāt, 498, 1. سورة المف Sinatu s-Saff, 513, n ة المجي Sūratu /-Zuhā, 494, 1 الطارق Sūratu 't-Tārıq, 495, 1 ة الطلاق Sûratu 't-Talaq, 512, n B Plater Sûratu 't-Tûr, 497, u ة العاديات Surato 'l-'Adiyat, 493, 1 mell & Suratu 'l-'Asr. 493, 1 سورة العلق Süratu 'l-'Alaq, 485, 1, 494, 1 Sûratu 'l-'Ankabût, سورة العنكبوت 508, 11 سورة العاهية Sûratu 'l-Ghāshiyah, 494, u ة العاتمة Sûratu 'l-Fātiḥah, 493, 11 LWI ! Sūratu 'l-Fātır, 311, 11 اللتع Sūratu 'l-Fath, 518, n -Sûratu 'l-Fajr, 494, 1 ا المرتان الملق Sūratu 'l-Furqān, 502, 1 Sûratu 'l-Falaq, 509, 1. Sūratu 'l-Fil, 494, 1 الغيز القارعة Sûratu 'l-Qariah, 493, 11 flac, Sūratu 'l-Qadr, 494, 11 Suratu 'l-Quraish, 493, 11 القريض Sūratu 'l-Qaşaş, 505, 11 العلم Süratu 'l-Qalam, 497, 1 140 Süratu 'l-Qamar, 496, 11 ة القي Sāratu 'l-Qiyāmah, 495, 1 Sūratu 'l-Kāfirin, 495, n سورة الكافرين سورة الكهف Suratu 'l-Kahf, 500. 11 سورة الكوتر Suiatu 'l-Kauşar, 494, ı سورة الليلُ سورة الماعون Suratu 'l-Lail, 493. u Sūratu 'l-Mā'ūn, 495 r

| Sàratu 'l-Mâ'idah, 511, 1.  | سورة الماكدة                                | Sīrājīyah, 568, 1            | سهراجية                               |
|-----------------------------|---------------------------------------------|------------------------------|---------------------------------------|
|                             | سورة المجاد                                 |                              | سيف الله                              |
| 512, ii.                    | 4 . D                         | Saina, 595, 1                | ببهداء                                |
| Süratu 'l-Muddagur, 494, 11 | مدرة المداد                                 |                              |                                       |
| Suratu 'l-Mursalat, 495, 1. |                                             |                              |                                       |
|                             | سورة المرسل                                 |                              |                                       |
| 496, 11.                    |                                             | ی ش                   |                                       |
| •                           | سورة البعارج                                |                              |                                       |
| Süratu 'l-Ma'ārıj, 495, n   | سورة المعراة                                | G1 - 3- 010 010              | (70 m . da                            |
| Suratu 'l-Mı'raj, 352, n    | سورة الملاكك                                | Shādī, 313, n , 318, n , 5   |                                       |
|                             | سوره المعدد                                 | Shā'r, 459, 11               | هاعر                                  |
| 499, n                      |                                             | Shāfi'i, 286, 11             | شافعي                                 |
|                             | سورة الملك                                  | Shāinmah, 130, 1             | هاسة                                  |
|                             | سورة الممع                                  | Shāh, 278, 11, 571 1         | ala                                   |
| 514, 1                      |                                             | Shahid, 327, 11              | مامد                                  |
| Suratu 'l-Munafiqin, 🗘      | سورة المنانا                                | Shāhinshāh, 571 u            | عاهدشاة                               |
| 512, n                      |                                             | Shab-1-Barat, 127, 11,       | هدب ورات                              |
|                             | سورة المؤم                                  | 534, 11 , 570, 1             |                                       |
| Sūratu 'l-Mu'minio, 🔑 🛶     | سورة المؤم                                  | Shab-1-qadr, 570, 1          | هب عدر                                |
| 506, 1                      |                                             | Shijaj, 128, 1, 680, 11      | هجاج                                  |
|                             | سورة النازء                                 | Shadidu 'l-quwa, 138, 1;     | هديد القوى                            |
| Suratu 'n-Nās, 509, 11      | سورة الناشر                                 | 484,1, 570, 11, 649, i       | -,                                    |
| Suratu 'n-Naba', 495, 1     | سورة النباء                                 | Sharab, 572, 1               | خزاب                                  |
| Suratu 'n-Najm 495, 11      | سورة النجه                                  | Shirb, 546, 1 , 579, 11 , 66 |                                       |
|                             | سورة النجز                                  | Shurb, 100, 1 , 477, 1 , 58  |                                       |
| Sūratu 'n-Nisa, 512, 1,     | سورة النسأ                                  | Sharh, 572, 1 , 627, 1,      | 4,3                                   |
| 703, 11                     | "                                           | Sharahyā', 114, 1            | هرحياه                                |
| Sûratu 'n-Naşr, 495, 1      | سورة النمر                                  | Shart, 572, 1                | 14                                    |
| Sūratu 'n-Naml, 501, 1      | سورة النما                                  | Shar', 572, 1                | هرطهرجهراه , 90,1             |
| Sūratu 'n-Nūr. 512, 11      | سورة النمرسورة النور                    | Shirk, 157, n , 159, n , 1   | 90                                    |
| Süratu 'l-Humazah, 493, 11  | سورة الهمزة                                 | 579, 11                      | , , , , , , , , , , , , , , , , , , , |
|                             | سورة الواقع                                 | Shirku 't-taşarruf, 579, 11  | هرك التمرف                            |
|                             | سورة انواها                                 | Shirku 'l-'adah, 579, ii     | هرك العادة                            |
|                             | سورة بني                                    | Shirku 'l-'ibādah, 579, 11   | هرك العادةهرك العيادة             |
|                             | יייענר זייט                                 | Charles 'l blee 570          |                                       |
| 507, 1                      | - 21                                        | Shirku 'l-'ilm, 579, 11      | هرك العلم                             |
| Suratu Tabbat, 494, 11      | سورة قبت                                    | Shirkah, 580, 11             | سركاق                                 |
| Suratu Saba', 496, 11       | سورةٍ سيا                                   | Shari'ah, 198, 1, 536, 1.,   | خريعة                                 |
| Suratu Sad, 501, ii         | سورة صسورة ملهسورة عبسسورة فعلت | 572, 1. , 609, II            |                                       |
| Sūratu Tā Hā, 502, 11       | سيرو مه                                     | Sharikiyah, 568, 11          | هريكية                                |
| Suratu 'Abasa, 494, 11      | سوره عبس                                    | Shatranj, 50, 1              | ھکریےھعبان                        |
| Süratu Fussilat, 497, 1     | سورة نصلت                                   | Sha'ban, 355, 1, 570, 1,     | خعبان                                 |
| Mineral Clar 447 is 703 is  | K Acces                                     | 696, 1                       |                                       |
| Suratu Luqman, 497, 1       | سررة لقمار                                  | Sha'r, 154, 1.               | خعر                                   |
| oursia mainsmana, ott, 1.   | ، سورہ محم                                  | Shi'r, 459, 11               | خمر                                   |
| Süratu Maryam, 500, 1       | سورة صريم                                   | Shi'rā, 91, 1                | هعرهعریهعیاه                  |
| Süratu Nüh, 497, 11         | سورة بوخسورة يسسورة يس              | Sha'ya', 216, 11., 440. i;   | ععباً.                                |
| Süratu Hüd, 503, 11         | سپرة هود                                    | 572, 1                       | •                                     |
| Suratu Ya Sin, 500, 1       | سورة يس                                     | Shu'aib, 357, n , 475, n.,   | خعيب                                  |
|                             | ر سورة نوسه                                 | 581, n                       |                                       |
|                             | سورة يونس                                   | Shu'aibiyah, 567, 11.        | خعيسية                                |
| 504, 1.                     | 7 77                                        | Shaghar, 570, 1              |                                       |
| Saut, 85, 11                | L                                    | Shaghef 200                  | معارمعف                           |
| Sīpārah, 492, 1., 517, 1,   | سوط                                         | Shaghaf, 800, 11             |                                       |
| 595 , 1; 666, 1      | سيهارة                                      | Shafa'ab, 214, u. ; 570, ii. | خفاعةمداعة                        |
| Baihim Kee                  |                                             | Shaf', 570, if.              | عليمعليجعليجعل            |
| Saihūn, 555, 11             | سبحوں                                       | Shuf'ah, 474, 11., 577, 11   | žeši.                                 |
| Saiyıd, 278, 11, 556, 1     | ميد                                         | Shafi', 75, i.               | عفيح                                  |
| Siyar, 596, 1               | Je-                                         | Shiqq, 187, ii.              | مق                                    |
|                             |                                             |                              | -                                     |

| Shaqqu 'ş-Şadr, 571, 11             | هن المدر                        |
|-------------------------------------|---------------------------------|
| Shams, 78, n , 201, n               | -                               |
| Sham'un, 594, 11.                   | هيس                             |
| Shamu'il, 440, 1                    | همعون                           |
| Shintiyan, 94, 1.                   | هموليل                          |
| Shahadah, 110, in., 129, u,         | هنتیان                          |
| 571, 1                              | ههادة                           |
| Shahr, 354, 11                      |                                 |
| Shahru 'l-haram, 168, 1             | هور الحدام                      |
| Shahid, 827, 11, 571, 1, 670        | ههرههر الحرامههيد 11 را |
| Shauwal, 355, 1., 572, 1            | هوال                            |
| Shushah, 170, 1                     |                                 |
| Shig, 569 11                        | شوهة                            |
| Charles IEC . FFT                   | هيث                             |
| Shaikhu 'l-Islam, 571, 11           | خيعمنيع الاسلاء             |
| Shartan, 84, 1, 134, 1              | مغييغ الاصلاة                   |
|                                     | هیگان                           |
| Shantanu 'l-kabir, 157, 11, , , , , | عيطان الك                       |
| 225, 1                              |                                 |
| Shartaniyah, 568, 11                | خيطانية                         |
| Shī'ah, 569, 1, 572, 1 seqq         | Leus                            |

عي

S, 518, 1 Şābı', 551, 1 Şāhıb, 585, 11 Sāhību 'l-hūt, 249, n ماحب الزمآن Ş: hibu 'z-zamân, 555, i Sāhibu n-nigāb, 555, 1 Şād, 554, 1 ماد $a', 550, 1 مالح Şalıh, 475, 11, 562, 11 Şubh, 178, 1, 464, 11 Şubhan, 45, 1, 466, 1 Sabr, 286, 1, 452, 1, 537, 1 Sibghah, 2, 11, 36, 1, 54, 1, 582, i صغة الله Sibghatu 'llāh, 313, i معابى Sahabī, 555, 1 Suhuf, 439, 11, 555, 1 Sahihu 'l-Bukhari, 423, 11, 555, 1 Şahihu Muslim, 423, 11, 555, 11 Sahifah, 475, 11, 555, 1 محيفة الاعمال Sahifatu 'l-a'māl, 14, L, 555, 1 Şakhr, 556, u مدر مدقة Sadr. 554, 11 Sadaqah, 14, 1; 50, 1, 439, 11, 554, 1 مدتة العلم Şadaqatu 'l-hir, 14, 1, 194, n , 554, 1 مديرة Sudairah (sudeyree), 92, 11

Siddīq, 7, 11 ; 582, 11. Širāt, 178, 1 , 422, 1. ; 595, 11 مديق موالآ مراط للم Şıratu 'l-mustaqım, 595, n , 661, n. Sarf, 33, 1, 106, 11; 565, 1 Şarīh, 87, u , 519, u , 565, ı , 27 575, u Saghirah, 594, 11 Şaff, 554, 11 Şıfātu 'l-īmān, 596, ī Şıfātīyah, 569, 1, 582, 11 مفاتية Safar, 355, 1, 554, 11, 696, 1 Şifah, 484, ii , 582, i Şatūrā', 555, 1 Şiiwatu 'l-îman, 318, 11 مفركة الايمان مغوة الله Sufwatu 'llāh, 221, 1 TUL. Safiyu 'llah, 475, ii , 554, ii Saqr, 169, 11 Sulh, 622, 1. Salāt, 101, 1, 11, 129, 11, 464, 11 segq Salātu 'l-ıstıkhārah, ملاة الاستحارة 470, u , 561, n Salātu 'l-istisqā, 470, ii, ملاة الاستسقاء 532, n , 561, n ملاة الاهراق Salātu 'l-ishrāq, 561, 1 Salatu 't-taruwih, 470, 11 , and limit and 562, 1 ملاة التسبيح Salātu 't-tasbīh, 562, 11 Salātu 't-tahajjud, 433, 11. ملاة التهجد ملاة الجمعة Salātu 'l-jum'ah, 470, 1, 561, m ملاة الجنارة , Salātu 'l-janāzah, 470, 11 , قالمنارة الجنارة , 56], 11 Salatu 'l-hājah, 561, n ملاة العاجة Salatu l-husut, 470, n , ملاه الحسوف , 561, n Salātu l-khauf, 470, 11, ملاة الحوب 561, 11 ملاة الرغائب Salātu 'r-raghá'ıb, 562, 1 ملك السفر Salātu 'a-safar, 562, 1 ملاة الطهر ملاة العشاء Şalātu 'z-Zuhr, 561, 1 Salātu 'l-'ishā', 561, 1 , 670, 11 ملاة العمر ملاة العيدين Salātu 'l-'aşr, 561, 1 Şalātu 'l-'idam, 561, 1 ملة العجر 1.fajr, 469, 1 , 561, 1 ملة العجر ملاة الكسوف Salātu 'l kusūf, 470, 11, *5*62, 1 سلاة الليل Salātu 'l-layl, 433, 11 ملاد المريض Salātu 'l-marīz, 562, 1 Şalātu 'l-musāfir, 470, 11 ملاة المسامر ملاة المغرب Salātu 'l-maghrib, 561, i ملاة الوتر Salātu 'l-witr, 562, 1 Salib, 63, 11, 562, 11 Samad, 75, u

| San'ā', 564, n.                                   | منعد        |
|---------------------------------------------------|-------------|
| Sanam, 191, 11 , 564, 11.Suwā', 550, 1        | مدممواع |
| Saum, 124, n . 129, n , 286, 1 , 566, 1.          | موم         |
| Saumu 't-tatauwu', 566, 1. التطوعSur, 647, 11 | موم ا       |
| Şüfi, 608, 11.                                    | موز         |
| Said, 184, 1                                      | ميد         |

ص

Zärr, 76, 11.

Zäll, 7, 11

Zabt, 697, 11

Zahk, 21hk, 285, 11

Zarb, 702, 1, 703, 11

Zarbu 'r-raml, 305, 1.

Zarbu 'l-mandal, 304, 11

Zazagh, 681, 1

Zalalah, 701, 1

Zamānah, 34, 11

Zammah, 683, i seqq

Ziyāfah, 177, 11

Zaif, 152, 11

6

Tabah, 303, 1 44 Tā'ah, 623, 1 طاعة Ţā'ûn, 452, 1 لماعون Ţāghūt, 625, 1 لجاغوت Taqıyah, taqiyah (takeeyeh), طافية 94, 11. Tahb, 609, 11, 626, 11 طالب Talibu 'l-'ilm, 106, ii , عالب العلم 626, n. Tālūt, 440, 1., 565, 11. Tāhir, 74, 11, 625, 1 Tā'ıfu 'l-khiyāl, 462, 1 طالف Tabib, 624, i Tarhah (tarhah), 95, 1 Tariqah, 116, 1, 609, 11 seqq.; 628, 11. Tariqiyah, 568, 1 T 8, 518, 1 TSM, 518, 1 Tasm, 17, 1 Ta'ām, 130, 1 Ta'am-1-saharī, 555, 11 Ta'liq, 690, 11 seqq. Talaq, 86, 1, 576, 11, 626, 11

| ! Talaqu 'l-ahsan, 87, n.   | لاق السس            |
|-----------------------------|---------------------|
| Talaqu 'l-badı', 87, 11     | للى البدع           |
| Talaqu 'l-hasan, 87, 1i     | للق العسن           |
|                             | للى السنة           |
| Talaqu 's-sunnah, 87, ii    |                     |
| Talaqu 'l-'iddah, 576, ii   | نلاق العدة          |
| Talaqu'l-kınayah, 278 1.    | للق الكناية         |
| Talabatu 'l-'ılın, 106, n   | طلبة العلم          |
| Tilsam, 626, 11             | طلسمطلهمه       |
| Tulaihah, 647, n            | طليحة               |
| TH, 517, 11, 625, 1         | ملة                 |
| Taharah, 477, 1., 625, 1    | عهارة               |
|                             |                     |
| Tawaf, 156, 1 , 341, 1 , 63 | طهرطواف , 0, 11 |
| 661, 11.                    | -, ,                |
| Tūbā, 625, 1                | طوبى                |
| Tur, 647, 11                |                     |
| Tüfán, 82, 11               | طورطوفان        |
|                             |                     |
| Tuwi, 358, 1, 648, 11       | رطوى                |
| Tary, 625, 11               | طي                  |
| Tiyarah, 114, 11            | طيارة               |
| Taiyibah, 803, 1            | طهمة                |
| lairah, 625, n              | طيرة                |
| Ținatu 'l-khabal, 634, m    | طيئة الحبال         |
|                             | _                   |

L

Zähir, 1, 11, 76, 12, 518, 11, 698, 11
Zähiru 'l-maghab, 698, 11
Zähiru 'l-mumkinät, 698, 11
Zaff, 530, 1
Zillu 'liäh, 710, 1.
Zann, 701, 11
Žihär, 90, 1, 702, 11
Zuhr, 177, 11., 464, 11

3

| Abid, 556, 1, 613, 11            | عابد    |
|----------------------------------|---------|
| Ad, 8, 11, 17, 1; 563, 1.        | عاد     |
| 'Adıyat, 10, 1                   | عاديات  |
| 'Arit, 613, u.                   | عارف    |
| Ariyah, 23, 1.                   | 4je     |
| 'Ashir, 58, ii., 283, 1 , 700 ii | عاهر    |
| Asniq, 301, 1                    | ماهق    |
| 'Ashūra', 25, 11., 124, 11;      | عاهوراء |
| 584, n , 575, n , 662, 1.        | -,,,,   |
| 'Aqıb, 16, 11.                   | مالب    |
| Aqrish, 16, 11                   | Die     |
| 'Alam, 13, 1.                    | مالم    |
|                                  |         |

|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | IN           |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------|
| n, 13, n; 14, 1, 106, n., 8, ii                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | عالم         |
| nu 'l-arwāḥ, 13, 1 , الارواح5, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | عائم         |
| nu 'l-a'zam, 13. 1. abell                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | عالم         |
| nu 'l-bāqī, 13, أ                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | عالم         |
| nu 'l-barzakh, 215, 1 Find                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | عالم         |
| nu 'l-sabarut, 13, 1 mu 'l-khalq, 13, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | عالم         |
| nu 'l-khalq, 13, 1 nu 'sh-shahadah, shahadah,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | عالم         |
| , 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |              |
| nu 'l-ghaib, 13, 1 الغيب                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | عالم         |
| nu 'l-lāhūt, 13, اللاهوت العامات العامات العامات العامات العامات العامات العامات العامات العامات العامات العام                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | عالم         |
| nu 'l-ma'qul, 13, 1 المعقولnu 'l-malakut, 13, 1 المكوت                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | عالم         |
| nu 'l-malakut, 13, 1 المكوت nu 'n-nāsut, 13, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | عالم         |
| n, 518. 1, 696, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | عانم         |
| n, 518.1, 696, 11'l-fil, 108, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | عام          |
| r mraragacittid, 00, 11 Gram                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | J-100        |
| 92, n                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | عباه         |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | عباد         |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | عباد         |
| ه الرغان 190, 1 atu 'l-ausan, 190, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | عبارة        |
| ah, 518, m, 519, masiyah, 1, 1, 568, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | عبا          |
| ah (Abaveh), 94 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | عباء         |
| , 312, n , 596, n                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | عبد          |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | عدتم         |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | عبسر         |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | عبودعتاق |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | عثق          |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | عتق          |
| ah, 26, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | عتير         |
| , 177, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | عتيز         |
| -                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | عجا          |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | عدة          |
| h, 48, 1, 87, 11 190, 1, 3, 11, 817, 11, 536, 11,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | -            |
| 3, 1, 711, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |              |
| 10, 11 , 463, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | عدل          |
| 10 n , 105, n                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | 34           |
| ·                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | عدر          |
| 658, iiu 'l-bā'idah, 17, ن البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة البائدة ا | 2,0          |
| بالعاربة العاربة بالعاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة العاربة الع    | عوب          |
| u 'l-must'arıbah, ها                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | عرب          |
| 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |              |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | عربار        |
| 18tān, 17, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | 200          |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | 200          |
| الأبليس الأبليس الم.Thlis. 102. u                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | 200          |
| it. 21. n                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | عرفا         |
| th. 21. 1., 658, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | عردة         |
| , 612, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | 51)B         |

| 'Arūz, 17, 1                                           | غروض        |
|--------------------------------------------------------|-------------|
| 'Uryan, 338, 1                                         | عربان       |
| 'Izra'1 , 15, 11, 29, 11, 91, 1,                       | عزراكيل     |
| 222, 11                                                |             |
| 'Uziah, 658, 11                                        | عرنة        |
| Uzūbah, 50, 1                                          | عروبة       |
| Uzair, 114, 1, 440, 1, 475, 11                         | عزير        |
| 'Azīz, 29, 11                                          | عرير        |
| 'Azımah, 29, n , 303, n                                | عرير        |
| 'Asal, 177, 1                                          | عسل         |
| 'Ishā', 177, 11 , 216, 11                              | عشاء        |
| 'Ushr, 73, 1, 283, 1, 630, 11.;                        | عشر         |
| 658, 1 , 655, 11 ; 700, 11.                            |             |
| 'Asharatu'l-mubashsharah, أ                            | عشرة الد    |
| 24, 11                                                 |             |
| Tahq, 220, 1, 300, 11, 610, 1                          | عشق         |
| 'Ashî, 464, n                                          | عشي         |
| 'Ashiyah, 464, 11                                      | عشية        |
| 'Aşabah, 23, 11, 587, 1                                | dusc        |
| 'As1, 177, n                                           | Just        |
| Utārid, 74, i , 201, ii , 459, ii.                     | عطأرد       |
| 'Utās, 600, 11                                         | عطاس        |
| 'Azīm, 29, 11                                          | عظيم        |
| Ifrit, 134 1 , 196, 11                                 | عفريت       |
| 'Iffah, 196, n                                         | عفة         |
| Afū, 11, 11., 451, 1.                                  | عفوعقاب |
| 'Uqāb, 655, 1                                          | عقار        |
| 'Agar, 474, ii                                         | عقائد       |
| 'Aqa'ıd, 106, 11, 286, 1, 401, 1                       | عتدة        |
| 'Aqabah, 16, n                                         |             |
| 'Uqbā, 655, 11'Aqdu 'n-nikāh, 322, 11              | عقد الد     |
| 'Aqrab, 74, 1, 201, 11                                 | عقرب        |
| 'Aq'aq, 305, 1                                         | عقعق        |
| 'Aql, 214, 1                                           | عقل         |
| 'Aqlu 'l-auwal (awwal), اول                            |             |
| 101 n.                                                 |             |
|                                                        | عقوبات      |
| 'Uqubah, 655, 11                                       | عقوبة       |
| المديدة 'Uqūbah shadidah, كرودة                        | عقوبة       |
| 655, 11                                                |             |
| 'Aqiqah. 17, 1, 51, 1., 554, 1                         | عقيقة       |
| 'Aqim, 669, n                                          | مقهم        |
| 'Uhāz, 649, 1                                          | عكاط        |
| 'Ukūf, 650, 1                                          | هكوف        |
| 'Hāqah, 300, 11                                        | علاتة       |
| 'Alāmāt, 18, 1                                         | علامات      |
| 'Alamatu 's-sa'ah, 13, 1 acull o                       |             |
| 'Alamatu 'n-nabûwah, النبوة                            | علامات      |
| 13, 1                                                  |             |
| 'Alamah, 850, 11                                       | علاسد       |
| (Alag 13 1                                             | ملی         |
| 'Alam, 13, 1, 606, u. 'Ilm, 146, n, 200, ii., 655, u., | علم         |
| 'Ilm, 146, 11, 200, in., 655, n.,                      | علم         |
| 'Ulama', 13, 11.; 58, 1, 100, 1,                       | علماء       |
| 265, 1, 650, 1                                         |             |

| Timu 'l-akhlāq, 201, 1.,298, 1. | علم الاعلاق   | 'Ilmu 'l-mantiq, 202, 1.;298, 11. | علم البنطق                  |
|-------------------------------------|---------------|---------------------------------------|-----------------------------|
| 'Ilmu 'l-adab, 200, 1 ,             | علم الاسب     | 'Ilmu 'l-mūsiqā, 202, 1.              | علم الموسيقي                |
| 294, 1.                             | •             | 'Ilmu 'l-mizan, 298, 11.              | علم الميران                 |
| 'Ilmu 'l-asmā', 201, u              | علم الاسماد   | 'Ilmu 'n-nahātāt, 202, 11             | علم الميرانعلم النباتات |
| 'Ilmu 'l-usăl, 106, n ,             | علم الاصول    | 'Ilmu 'n-nujūm, 25, 11,               | علم النجوم                  |
| 202, 1 , 518, 1 , 634, 1.           |               | 202, n , 304, n                       |                             |
| 656, 1                              |               | 'Ilmu 'l-handasah, 202, 1.            | علم الهندسة                 |
| 'llmu 'l-aktāt, 200, 1              | علم الاكتاب   | 'Ilmu 'l-yaqin, 202, u                | علم اليقين                  |
| Then I dahirat 909                  | علم الالهيات  | 694, 1                                |                             |
| 'Ilmu 'l-ılāhīyāt, 202, 1           | علم الانشاء   | 'Alawiyah, 567, 11.                   | علوية                       |
| 'Ilmu 'l-ınsha', 202 1              | علم الباطن    | 'Ali, 13, 11, 75, 1.                  | على                         |
| 'Ilmu 'l-bātın, 201, 11             | علم التجويد   | Illiyun, 79, n., 200, n.;             | 449 r made                  |
| 'Ilmu t tajwid, 202, 11,            | magaza, bar   | Imran, 206, 1                         | مرابع                       |
| 478, n , 517, 1                     |               | 'Umrah, 155, 11, 259, 11.             | عمرانعمرة               |
| 'Ilmu 't-tashrih, 202, 11           | علم التضريع   |                                       | ,                           |
| 'Ilmu 't-tasawwuf, 202, 11          | علم التموف    | 458, 11 , 481, 1 655, 1               |                             |
| 'Ilmu 't-tafsir, 198, 1,            | علم التغسير   | 'Umrā, 655, 1                         | عمریعبل                 |
| 634, 1                              |               | Amal. 204, n , 400, n.                |                             |
| 'Ilmu 't-tawarīkh 202, n            | علم التواريع  | 'Amal-namah, 14, 1                    | طمل ناسه                    |
| 'Ilmu 'l-jabr. 202, 1               | علم الجبر     | 'Amaliyah, 569, 1                     | مملية                       |
| 'Ilmu 'l-ḥadīş, 198, 1 ,            | علم المديث    | 'Umyān, 43, 11                        | هميان                       |
| 201, 11, 634, 1                     |               | 'Ananah 205, u                        | عبالة                       |
| Ilmu 'l-hisāb, 202, i               | علم الحساب    | 'Ankabut, 16, 1                       | هنكيوت                      |
| Ilmu 'l-haqiqah, 200, 11            | علم الحقيقة   | 'Unnah, 88, 1                         | Lie                         |
| 'Ilmu 'l-hikmah, 202, 1,            | علم الحكمة    | Inmah, 205, 11.                       | عنهنة                       |
| 298, n , 452, n                     |               | 'Ahd, 646, 1                          | عهد                         |
| 'Ilmu 'l-khatt, 680, 11 seqq        | علم الحط      | 'A wāmil, 530, 1                      | هواصل                       |
| 'Ilmu 'r-ram! 202, 11               | علم الرمل     | 'Ûj, 649, 1                           | 273                         |
| Ilmu r-riyazah, 202, n              | علم الربامة   | 'Augun bi 'llah, 624, 1.              | عود بلاه                    |
| 'Ilmu 1-riyaziyat 298, 11           | علم الرياميات | 'Aul, 578, n                          |                             |
|                                     | علم السحر     | Iyadah, 658, 1                        | ھولعیادہ                |
| 'Ilmu 's sihr, 202, ii              | علم السيمياد  | 'Iyafah, 305, 1.                      | عيانة                       |
| 'Ilmu s-s'miyā', 202, ii            | and humbers   | 'Id, 127, 11                          |                             |
| Ilmu 'sh-shi'r, 202, n              | علم الشعر     |                                       | عيد                         |
| 'llmu 't-tibb, 202, ii              | علم الطب      | 'Idu 'l-Azhā, 127, u ,                | ميد الامجى                  |
| 'Ilmu 'I-aqa'ıd, 200, 1,            | علم العقائد   | 157, n , 192, n , 552,                | ,                           |
| 634, 1.                             |               | u, 658, 1, 662, 1                     |                             |
| 'Ilmu 'l-farā'ız, 201, H ,          | علم الفراكض   | 'Idu 'e-eadaqah, 194, 11.             | عيد المدقة                  |
| 207, 1                              |               | 'Idu 'l-Fitr, 124, n , 127,           | عيد العطر , 11              |
| 'Hmu 'l fiqh, 201, 11,              | علم الفقة     | _ 192, n ; 194, n., 662, n            | l.                          |
| 286, 1 , 634, 1                     |               | 'Jdan, 190. 1                         | عيدان                       |
| 'Ilmu 'l-fal-afab, 202, 1           | علم الفلسفة   | 'Idu ramazan, 194, n                  | هيد رمضاي                   |
| 'Ilmu 'l-falak, 200, u              | علم الفلاي    | 'Idgáh, 190, 1                        | عيدكاء                      |
| 'Ilmu 'l-qıra'ah, 202, 11           | علم القرامة   | Isawi, 53, 1 , 481, 1                 | Sympe                       |
| Ilmu 'l-qiyafah, 478, 1             | علم القيامة   | Isa, 54, n , 229, n , 75              | . 11 میسی                   |
| 'llmu 'l-kaff, 202, 1               | علم الكف      |                                       | عيسى البسيع                 |
| 'Ilmu 'l-kalam, 201, 1.,            | علم الكلم     | (T )                                  |                             |
| 286, 1                              | 1             | 229, п                                | عیسی بن مری                 |
| 'Ilmu 'l-lughah, 201, 1             | علم اللمة     |                                       | 4.6                         |
| 'Ilmu 'llah, 298, ii                | علم الله      | 'Ain, 114, 1.                         | عين                         |
| Ilmu 'l-mabadī, 200, 11             | علم البيادي   | 'Ainu 'l-yaqin, 694, 1                | عين اليغين                  |
| Timu 'l-masahah, 202, 1             | علم المبادي   | 'Uyūn, 114, 1.                        | عيون                        |
| Ilmu 'l-mu'āsharah, 83; 1           | Eala II       |                                       |                             |
| Ilmu 'l-magasid, 200, m.            | ملم المعاهرة  |                                       |                             |
| Ilmu 'l-mukāshafah,                 | علم المقامية  | غ                                     |                             |
| 200                                 | علم المكاهدة  |                                       |                             |
| 200, u                              |               | Ghāzī, 189, 1.                        | هازیهاسل                |
| Ilmu 'l-milāhah, 202, 1             | علم الملحة    | Ghāsil, 189.                          | هائل                        |

|   |   |    | ٠ |
|---|---|----|---|
| 7 | 4 |    |   |
|   | 7 | ۲. |   |

| G habn, 138, i                             | غين                   |
|---------------------------------------------------|-----------------------|
| Ghaddar, 137, n., 188, i                          | عدار                  |
| Chadir, 138, 1                                    | عدار                  |
|                                                   | غدير                  |
| Churab, 189, n.; 585, n                           | عراب                  |
| Gharaq, 99, n                                     | ھرق                   |
| Ghurrah, 139, n                                   | غرة                   |
| Ghazwah, 139,1Ghazwatu 'l-khandaq,            | غزوة                  |
| لحدي , Ghazwatu 'l-khandaq                        | Apple 1               |
| 85, 1, 378, 1                                     | 43                    |
| Ghazwatu badr, 30, 1                              | 4 6,34                |
|                                                   | عساده                 |
| Chassan, 139, 1Chasl, Chusl, 39, 11, 139, 11, | 14                    |
| 329, 1 , 477, n                                   | 0                     |
|                                                   | 1 4                   |
| وسدون , Ghuel masn in, 140, i                     | عس                    |
|                                                   |                       |
| Ghislin, 139, ii                                  | غسلين                 |
| Ghishawah, 139, ii                                | غشاولا                |
| Ghasb, 138, 11                                    | غمب                   |
| Ghazab, 139, 1                                    | make                  |
| Ghatafan, 189, 1                                  | غطفان                 |
| Chitar, 139, 11                                   | غفار                  |
| Ghufran, 451 1                                    | عفرأن                 |
| Ghafur, 76, 11                                    | غغور                  |
| Ghulam, 139, 11                                   | غلام                  |
| Chulat, 139 n , 574, n                            | 248                   |
| Chalat 190                                        |                       |
| Ghulūl, 139, 11                                   | عموانه                |
|                                                   | غموات                 |
| Ghinā 595 ii                                      |                       |
| Ghanam, 700, 1                                    | -                     |
| Chanimah, 114, 1, 459, 11                         | غنيمة                 |
| Ghrus, 139, 1, 556 1                              | غوث                   |
| Ghūl 137, 1 , 139, n                              | هول                   |
| Charb, 138, 1                                     | غيب                   |
| Ghaibu 'l-Huwiyah, 188, 1 4941                    |                       |
| Ghibah, 29, n , 49, 1 , 139, 1                    | Land                  |
|                                                   | غيرم                  |
|                                                   | - 74                  |
| Ghair mustabin, 82, 1                             | - 7                   |
| Ghair mashrū', 286, 1                             | غير سا                |
| Ghair Mahdi, 188, 11                              |                       |
| Ghairah, 138, 1                                   | غير موغيرةغوط |
| Ghaiz, 437, 11.                                   | Pec                   |
|                                                   |                       |
|                                                   |                       |

Fāthah, 45, 11; 50, 11, 318, 1; deris
466, 11.; 482, 1, 706, 11

Fāraqlīt, 123, 11.

Fāmd, 124, 1

Fāmd, 124, 1

Fāml, 530, 1, 684, 1

Fā'l, 530, 1, 684, 1

Fā'l, 114, 11

Fānīyah, 569, 1.

Fattāh, 75, 11

Fattah, 688, 1 seqq

Fatrah, 127, i.; 398, i فعل فعن فعوی فعوی Fatq, 127, 1 Fitan, 129, 1.; 664, il. Fatwā, 127, 1.; 650, i Fijār, 128, 1 Fajr, 114, n; 177, n Fadak, 391, 1 Fidyah, 113, i , 127, n , 520, n Furat, 132, 11, قرات Firasah, 128, n. Firash, 128, n Farā'ız, 123, 11, 207, 1 Farajiyah (farageeyeh), 93, 1 Firdaus, 128, 11 Faras, 177, 1 Farenkh, 124, 1 Firishtah, 15, 1 Farz, 124, 1, 156, 1, 286, 1., 434, 11 Farzu 'l-'Ain, 124, 1 Farz Kıfā'i, 124, 1 Far', 25, 11, 123, 11 نرع Fir'aun, 440, 1, 452, 1 Firaun Zu 'l-autad, 452, v Faraq, 123, 11 Furgan, 484, 1 Firqub, 567, 1 Farüdiyah (faroodeeyeh), 94, 11 Furū', 656, ì , 128, i. Farwah, 124, 1 Fussilat, 182, 11. Faşihu 'l-kalam, 260, 11 Fazl, 127, 11 Fazlah, 530, 1 Fazüli, 127, 11 Fitrah, 40, 1., 129, 11, 213, 1 Fr'l, 530, 1 Faqr, 123, 11 Figh, 106, n , 128, n , 401, 1 Faqir, 115, n; 353, 1, 556, 1; 700, 11 Faqih, 115, 11, 323, 1. فكرية فلس Fikriyah, 568, 11 Fuls, 132, 11 Falsafab, 452, u Falaq, 115, 1 Fana, 115, 11, 609, 11., 610, 1 Fahd, 184, 1 Fahm, 214, 1. Fautu 'l-Hajj, 127, n Faujdar, 127, ii Faujdari, 91, 1 Fai', 114, 1., 459 11 Fi Sabih 'llah, 700, 11. Fair-1-addas, 114, 1

ق

| A #10                                                 | _                               |
|-------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------|
| Q, 518, 1.                                            | قي .                            |
| Qabil, 2, 1, 48, 11, 440, 1                           | تابيل                           |
| Qadır, 1, 11 , 75, 11                                 | مادر                            |
| Qadıriyah, 478, 1                                     | فادرية                          |
| Qarun, 281, 1; 363, 11, 44                            | مارون 0,1                       |
| Qārī', 478, 11.                                       | قارىء                           |
| Qaartivah, 568, 11                                    | فاسطيله                         |
| Qāzī, 58, 1 , 255, 1                                  | قائمي                           |
| Qăf, 478, 1                                           | تاب                             |
| Qāfilah, 49, 11                                       | تانلة                           |
| Qanit, 478, 11                                        | قاسى                            |
|                                                       | قانون                           |
| Qanun, 478, 11Qabir, 1, 11                        | قاهر                            |
| Qauir, 1, 11                                          | فالف                            |
| Qâ'ıf, 478, ı                                         | ه او                            |
| Qá'ım, 1, 11                                          | فأكم                            |
| Qubā', 482, 11                                        | قباء                            |
| Qaba Qausain, 477, 1                                  | قبا قوسین                       |
| Qabālah, 477. 1                                       | قبالة                           |
| Qabr, 150, 1                                          | قبر                             |
| Qabr-1-Husam, 409, 11                                 | قبر حسين                        |
| Qabristan, 48, 1                                      | قبرً حسینقبرستانقبر گاة |
| Qabr-gah, 48, 1.                                      | قب کان                          |
| Qabriyah, 569, 1                                      | تبرية                           |
| Qabz wa bast, 477, 11                                 | قنض و بسط                       |
| Qıbti, 481, 1                                         | حس ر است                        |
|                                                       | قطی م                           |
| Qiblah, 159, 1; 258, 11, 48                           | وينه <sub>(۱۰۱</sub> , U,       |
| 520, 11                                               |                                 |
| Qubattu 's-Şakhrah, 557, 1                            | تبه الصحرة                      |
|                                                       | تنة العناس                      |
| Qabūl, 314, n., 477, n                                | مبولمقانت                   |
| Qattāt, 479, 11                                       | متأت                            |
| Qatl, 420, n                                          |                                 |
| Qatlu 'l-khata', 421, 1                               | قتلقتل الحطا                |
| Qatlu 'l-'amd, 421, 1                                 | فتل العمد                       |
|                                                       | قتل بسب                         |
|                                                       | قتل همه آل                      |
| 421, 1                                                | عس سد،                          |
| Ontline offermen that is                              |                                 |
| Qatlun qā'ımun الما الما الما الما الما الما الما الم | مس قائم ہے                      |
| maqama 'l-khata, 421, 1                               |                                 |
| Qatlu nafsı-hı, 622, ı                                | تتل نفسه                        |
| Qadar, 82, 1, 472, 1, 478, 1                          |                                 |
| Qudrah, 146, 11 , 482, 11                             | 4)                            |
| Qadariyah, 478 1 , 568, 11                            | تدرية                           |
| Qadariyun, 473, 1                                     | قدريون                          |
| Osdimu 'lauvām, 478 1                                 | al II as an                     |
| Qazf, 476, n., 479, n., 594.                          | الدب 11                         |
| Qazf. 476, 11., 479, 11., 594,Qara', 483, 11      | قرا                             |
| Qurrā', 478, 11                                       | مررقراء                     |
| Qıra'at, 517, 1                                       |                                 |
| Navahah 11 x 420                                      | قراءات                          |
| Qarabah, 11, 1, 4/8, 11                               | قرابة                           |
| Qırāt, 85, 1                                          | قراط                            |
|                                                       |                                 |

Qıran, 481, 1. Qur'an, 400, 11; 483, il. segq Quranu 'l-'Azīm, 125, i. Qıra'ab, 481, 1 Qurbu 's-Så'ah, 530, in Qurban, 530, u , 551, u. Qurban 'id, 192, it Qarashat, 681, 1 Qurs (kurs), 94, 11 Qarz, 33, 11-, 64, 11, 81, 11, 479, 1 Qur'ah, 49, 11, 300, 1 ترعة Qarn, 88, ii غرن قرن البنازل Qarnu 'l-manāzil, 350, 1 Quraish, 483, 1 قريش Quraizah, 488, 1 تريظا Qarin, 479, 1 ترينا Qarinah, 479, 1 Qasamah, 179, 1 Quatantiniyah, 580, u Qasm, 479, 11 Q158is, 482, 1 Qıssisün, 54, 1, 58, 1 تمامي , 125, 1 , 286, 1 , 476, 11. , تمامي 481, 1 , 520, 11 , 679, 1 , Qasru 'l-amal, 286, 1 Quaidah, 649, 11 Qazā', 479, 11 Qutb, 531, 1 556, 1 Qutrub, 137 1 Qat'u 't-tariq, 174, 1, 477, 1 , 479, 11 Qitfir, 464, ii , 482, i Qa'dah, 477, 11 تغتاب Quitan, 93, 1 Quff. 73, 1 Qul, 318, n Qiladah, 431, n Qalam 478, 11 Qalandar, 478, n Qimar, 133, ii , 481, 1 Qamar, 74, ii , 201, ii , 356, i. Qamis, 81, ii , 92, ii قميسر Quan, 481, i تں تنامہ Qana'ab, 286, 1 تباظ Quannah, 478, u. قعطار Qintar, 354, 1, 481, 1 Qunutu 'l-witr, 101, 1, 482, 11 Qawad, 479, 11. لود Qaus, 74, 11, 201, 11 Qausu quzah, 532, 1 Qaul, 479, 11 Qaulu 'l-haqq, 229, u , 479, 11 Quwat Häfigah, 180, 1

| Quwat Wahimah, 130, iQiyas, 400, 11, 482, 1, 546 | قوة عيالقوة متصوفةقوة راهمةقبامي , 1 ,3 |
|------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------|
| 656, 1.Qıyas juli, 482, 1Qıyas khafi, 482 1  | دیاس جلیتماس علمی                               |
| Qiyam, 45, 1, 466, 1, 482545, 11                 | فيام , 1 و                                          |
| Qıyamah, 255, n                                      | قيامة                                               |
| Qanar 48, 1                                          | قيمر                                                |

ك

| ti di di di di di di di di di di di di di            | - 1           |     |
|------------------------------------------------------|---------------|-----|
| Kātīb, 261, 11                                       | کاتہ          | 17  |
| Kärawan, 261, 11                                     | كاروا         | K   |
| Käfir, 207, 1 , 259, 11 , 329, 1 ,                   | كافر          | K   |
| ACT . CEE .                                          | }             | K   |
| Kātur, 260, 1                                        | كافور         | K   |
| Kāfi, 74, 1, 643, 1                                  | کافی          | K   |
| 17:1.h 956 u                                         | كالة          | K   |
| Tribitati accel en                                   | كاسل          | K   |
| Kämiliyah 261, 11                                    | كامل          | -   |
| Kähin, 260, 11                                       | کاهن          |     |
| Kibr. 277, n , 475 1                                 | کبر           | E   |
| Gabr, 133, 1                                         | گير           | ì   |
| Kabirah, 259, 11, 599, 11                            | کبیرةکتاب | i   |
| N 11 11 11 11 11 11 11 11 11 11 11 11 11             | كتاب          |     |
|                                                      | كتابة         | 1   |
| Kitabah, 598, 1                                      | كتابي         | 1   |
| Kitābi, 280, 11, 710, 1                              | كتابية        |     |
| Litterilet (with committee                           | - W           | 1   |
| 280, п., 712, п.                                     | كتب           | 1   |
| Kutuh, 439, 11                                       | كتب           | 1.  |
| Wather legislation                                   | كتمان         | 1   |
| Kitman, 280, 11                                      | كشطأا         |     |
| Wolland totaler                                      | كعكول         | 1   |
| CT (BO)                                              | كحل           | 1   |
| Kuhl, 40, 1                                          | کملکداپ   |     |
| Kızzab, 302, 11Kıramu 'l-katıbin, 15, 11, 10     | كرام ال       | 1   |
| Kiramu i-katitan, 2011-                              |               | 1   |
| 555, 1Kıramun kâtıbûn, 279, 1                    | کرام کا       |     |
| Karamah, 269, µ, 278, µ,                             | كرامد         | 1   |
| Karamau, 200, it i                                   |               | ١.  |
| 350, 11                                              | كوامية        |     |
| Kıramiyah 279, 1Karbala', 261, 11 , 408, 11 seqq | كربلاء        |     |
| Karpala, 201, 11                                     | لروان         |     |
| Karwan, 49, 11                                       | رربى          |     |
| Karūbi, 50, 1Karūbin, 50, 1 , 261, ii            | روبين         | "   |
| Karūbiyūn, 15, 11                                    | רנישנט        |     |
| Gurz, 152, n.                                        | נג            | ١   |
| Kasrah, 683, 1 seqq                                  | سرة .         | ۱ ژ |
| Kaslaniyah, 568, ii.                                 | سلانيه        | ۱ ۲ |
| Presignificant ones                                  |               | ١   |

| BX           | •                                                       | 743                    |
|--------------|---------------------------------------------------------|------------------------|
| 74           | Lusuf, 105, 1                                           | كبيوف                  |
| Ī            | Iswah, 279, n , 337, n                                  | كسوة                   |
| I            | Cashf, 261, n                                           | كشف                    |
| ΙŒ           | Cashkul, 120, ii                                        | كشكول                  |
| 1            | In'bah, 333, n. eegq , 480, 1 ,                         | كعبة                   |
| 1            | 540, 1                                                  |                        |
| 1            | Ka'biyah, 259, 11                                       | , كعبية                |
| 1            | Kaffarah, 113, 1, 128, 1;                               | كعارة                  |
|              | 259 n , 437, n , 598, n                                 | ****                   |
|              | Kafalah, 259, 11                                        | كاهلة                  |
|              | Kutr, 43, 1, 281, n, 594, n                             | y MG                   |
|              | Kafan, 259, 11; 342, 1, 581,                            | کافن 1کافور        |
|              | Kafür, 260, 1                                           | كلاب                   |
|              | Kiláb, 91, 1                                            | كلام                   |
| 1            | Kalam, 147, 1, 260, 11                                  | كالم الله              |
|              | Kalamu 'llah, 260, n ,484, 1 , 548, 1 , 566, n      |                        |
| . [          | Kullah, 120, 1, 282, 1                                  | كلاة                   |
| . [          | Kalb, 91, 1                                             | كلب                    |
| 1            | Kalaf, 300, 11.                                         | كلف                    |
| .            | Walaman 691 1                                           | كلمي                   |
|              | Ruhmah 63. 1 . 261. 1 . 318                             | کلیلا , ۱۱             |
|              | 401, 1 , 489, 11 , 564, 1Kalimatu 'l-hazrah, 261, 1 |                        |
|              | Kalımatu 'l-hazrah, 261, 1                              | كلمة الحمر             |
|              | Kalimatu 'sh-shanadan, "                                | كلمة الشهائ            |
|              | 63, 1, 80, n, 102, n,                                   |                        |
| 5            | 261, 1                                                  | 444 7 12               |
| 5            | Kalımatu 'llah, 229, 11                                 | كلمة ألله              |
| 5            | Valiant 961 1                                           | كليسة                  |
| 5            | Kalimu 'llah, 261, 1, 356, 1                            | عليم الله              |
| ا ک          | 475, n                                                  | كمء                    |
| إك           | Kam , 423, 11                                           | كمأن رستم              |
| ک ا          | Kaman 1-Rustum, 533, 1                                  | ک.                     |
| ا ک          | Kun, 261, 1                                             | کنکنایڈ            |
|              | Kināyah, 87, 11 , 278, 1., 519, 11 ; 565, 1 , 575, 11   | •                      |
| کند          |                                                         | كنر                    |
| ک            | Kanz, 545, 1Kanziyah, 568, 1                        | كنربة                  |
| 2            | Kan'an, 261, u.                                         | كبغان                  |
| کت           | Kanisah, 261, 11                                        | كنيسة                  |
| Ž            | Kunyah, 429, i                                          | كىية                   |
|       | Kihanah (kahanah), 86, 1                                | كهانة                  |
| کد    | 131, 1 , 803, 11                                        |                        |
| کرا          | Kuhi uba, 260, n.                                       | كهربا                  |
| کرا          | KHY'S, 517, 11                                          | كهيعص                  |
|              | Kawakib. 76, 11                                         | كواكب                  |
| كرا          | Kausar, 450, 1                                          | كوكر                   |
| کوا          | Kuziyah, 568, 1.                                        | كوزية                  |
| كربا         | Coshah nishin, 149, 11                                  | گرهه نفین              |
| كروا         | Kaifiysh, 260, 11Kimiya', 13, 1                     | دیمیدکیمهاد        |
| کروا         | Kimıya', 13, 1                                          | مهمهرکیمیاء الحراء |
| کروہکروہ | Kimilan 1-Rifanust.                                     | كيمياه الحواعر         |
| ذ, د         | 278, 1                                                  | كيمياء السعادة         |
| ررگرر    | 1 Printing or a and                                     | on moreon, - wheeling  |
| -            |                                                         | كيمياء العمام          |
| كسلأ         | 278, 1Kimiya'u 'l-'awam, 278, 1                     | 1.3                    |
|              | 1                                                       |                        |

| J                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |                                                                                                                  |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Lā-adrīyah, 282, 1 Lāḥid, 46, i. Lā-kharāj, 269, 11 Lā-kharāj, 269, 11 Lāhūt, 282, 1 Lubb, 301, 11 Libās, 92, 1, 294, 1 Lubān, 206, 11 Laban, 349, 1. Lubān, 292, 11. Labbah, 697, 11 Lahd, 46, 1., 282, 1. Liḥyah, 40, 1, 294, 1 Ludd, 301, 11 Lisānu 'l-ḥaqq, 294, 1 Lisānu 'l-ḥaqq, 294, 1 Lisānu 'l-ḥaqa, 294, 1 Lisānu 'l-ḥaqa, 294, 1 Lisānu 'l-ḥaqa, 294, 1 Lisānu 'l-ḥaqa, 294, 1 Lisānu 'l-ḥaqa, 294, 1 Lisānu 'l-ḥaqa, 294, 1 Lisānu 'l-ḥaqa, 294, 1 Lisānu 'l-ḥaqa, 294, 1 Lisānu 'l-ḥaqa, 294, 1 Lisānu 'l-ḥaqa, 294, 1 Lisānu 'l-ḥaqa, 294, 1 Lisānu 'l-ḥaqa, 294, 1 Lisānu 'l-ḥaqa, 294, 1 Lisānu 'l-ḥaqa, 294, 1 | لأدريةلاحدلاعديةلاعديةللباسلبانلبانلبانلبانلبانلبانلبانلبان      |
| 575, 11 La'n, 88, 1 La'n, 88, 1 La'n, 88, 1 Lughah, 20, 1 Lughatu 'l-'Arab, 20, 1. Litafah, 81, 1, 581, 11 Lafzīyah, 569, 1 Laqab, 284, 1, 429, 1 Luqtah, 302, 11, 647, 1 Luqmān, 18, 1, 301, 11,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | لعنالعنهالعة العربالفاقةالفطيةالقبالعامةالعان                                        |
| 475, 11 Laqīt. 131, 11, 284, 1 Liwā', 298, 11 Lawāqih, 669, 11 Lauh, 14, 1 Lūz, 589, 1 Lūt, 299, 1, 440, 1, 475, 1 Lailatu 'l-barā'ah, 282, 11 Lailatu 'l-hinnā', 325, 1 Lailatu 'd-dakhlah, 326, 1 Lailatu 'r-raghā'ib, 127, 11, 283, 11 Lailatu 'l-qadr, 282, 11, 422, 1, 570, 1.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | لقيطلواءلواقعلوملومليله البراهةليلة المناءليلة الدعاءليلة الدعاءلياة الوعائب |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |                                                                                                                  |

•

Mā', 665, 1 Mā'u 'l-bahı 665, i Mā'u 'l barad, 665, 1

| 1 Main 1 how eek .                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | ماء البص                                                                                      |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Ma'n 'l-bı'r, 665, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | ساه البحر                                                                                     |
| Mā'u 's-saij, 665, 1Mā'u 'l-'am, 665, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | ماء العلي                                                                                     |
| Ma'n 'l-'am 665, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | ماء العين                                                                                     |
| 36°4" 11 mm Jr. 047                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Gentle July                                                                                   |
| Ma'u 'l-quds, 847, 1.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | ماه القنس                                                                                     |
| Mā'u 'l-matar, 565, i                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | ماد المطر                                                                                     |
| Malu maha dat                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |                                                                                               |
| Mā'u 'n-nahr, 665, i.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | ماء النهر                                                                                     |
| Mājūj, 440, 1, 540, 1.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | ماجوع                                                                                         |
| Ma'zun, 347, i                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | سالنون                                                                                        |
| Mazun, out, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | سادون                                                                                         |
| Māl, 30, 11 , 544, 11.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | مال                                                                                           |
| Mālu 'l-harām, 163, 1.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | مال الحراء                                                                                    |
| 25-1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |                                                                                               |
| Māl zāmirī, 312, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | مال مامنی                                                                                     |
| Mālik. 15, 11 , 312, 1.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | مالك                                                                                          |
| AF:1-1 . 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | 1 10 100                                                                                      |
| Maliku l-mulk, 312, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | مالك الملا                                                                                    |
| Mahiyatu 'l-haqa'ıq,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | ماهية العا                                                                                    |
| 010 . CAC .                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | — ( - 1                                                                         |
| 213, 1 , 646, ii                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |                                                                                               |
| Ma'ıdah, 110, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | ماكدة                                                                                         |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |                                                                                               |
| Mubah, 58, 1, 286, 1, 367                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | مهاج 1                                                                                        |
| Mubara'ab (Mubarat) 90, 1,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Baylan                                                                                        |
| 367, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | , ,                                                                                           |
| 25 24 2 5 500                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |                                                                                               |
| Mubtada', 530, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | صيتدا                                                                                         |
| Mubtadi', 367, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | ميندع                                                                                         |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | سهماح                                                                                         |
| Mubazzir, 114, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | ميڌر                                                                                          |
| Mubashshirat, 669, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | میدرمیشرات                                                                                |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | .,,                                                                                           |
| رف Mabnā 't-tasauwuf, وف                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | مبسى التم                                                                                     |
| 802, n                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | _                                                                                             |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |                                                                                               |
| Mutabarriyah, 568, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | متبرية                                                                                        |
| Mutaraqibiyah, 568, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | متراقبية                                                                                      |
| Musakshik 100 . 510                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |                                                                                               |
| Mutashabih, 199, 1, 519, 1,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | متشابه                                                                                        |
| 582, n                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |                                                                                               |
| Mustoh 174 . E75                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Jero                                                                                          |
| Mut'ah, 424, 1 575, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |                                                                                               |
| Mutaqadını, 425, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | متقاد م                                                                                       |
| Mutalahimah, 128, 11,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | متلاحمة                                                                                       |
| 10.00 main jimau, 120, 11 ,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |                                                                                               |
| 680, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |                                                                                               |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | متهنية                                                                                        |
| Mutammaniyah, 568, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |                                                                                               |
| Mato, 346, n , 627, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | معن                                                                                           |
| Mutawalli, 330, 1, 331, 1,                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |                                                                                               |
| 105                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | مبولى                                                                                         |
| 425 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |                                                                                               |
| Misqai, 85, 11 , 353, 1.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | مثغال                                                                                         |
| 3.5 11 4041                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |                                                                                               |
| Musallas, 423, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | مثلث                                                                                          |
| Muslah, 423, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | منلة                                                                                          |
|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |                                                                                               |
| M.s. 21 .                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | المنابعة                                                                                      |
| Mish, 31, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | مثلي                                                                                          |
| Mish, 31, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | مثلي                                                                                          |
| Misli, 31, 1Masuswi, 620, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | مثلیمثنوی                                                                                 |
| Mish, 31, 1Masnewī, 620, 1Mașnā, 463, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | مثلیمثنویمثنی                                                                         |
| Mish, 31, 1Masnewī, 620, 1Mașnā, 463, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | مثلیمثنویمثنی                                                                         |
| Mish, 31, 1Masuswi, 620, 1Masus, 463, 1Majaz, 519, 11                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | مثلیمثنویمثنیمهاز                                                                 |
| Mish, 31, 1Masuswī, 620, 1Masus, 463, 1Majaz, 519, 11Majāzī, 662, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                            | مثلیمثنویمثنیمهازمهاری                                                        |
| Mish, 31, 1Masuswī, 620, 1Masus, 463, 1Majaz, 519, 11Majāzī, 662, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                            | مثلیمثنویمثنیمهازمهاری                                                        |
| Mish, 31, 1Masuswī, 620, 1Masus, 463, 1Majaz, 519, 11Majāzī, 662, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                            | مثلیمثنویمثنیمهازمهاهد                                                        |
| Mish, 31, 1 Masnawī, 620, 1 Masna, 463, 1 Majaz, 519, 11 Majāzī, 662, 1 Mujāhid, 418, 11 Mujāhir, 132, 11                                                                                                                                                                                      | مثلیمثنویمثنیمهازمهاری                                                        |
| Mish, 31, 1Masuswī, 620, 1Masus, 463, 1Majaz, 519, 11Majāzī, 662, 1                                                                                                                                                                                                            | مثلیمثنویمغنیمهازمهاهدمهاهر                                               |
| Mish, 31, 1 Masnawī, 620, 1 Masna, 463, 1 Majaz, 519, 11 Majāzī, 662, 1 Mujāhid, 418, 11 Mujāhir, 132, 11 Majbūb, 310, 1                                                                                                                                                                       | مثلیمثنویمهازمهاریمهاهدمهاهرمهبوب                                     |
| Mish, 31, 1 Masnawī, 620, 1 Masna, 463, 1 Masna, 463, 1 Majaz, 519, 11 Majāzī, 662, 1 Mujāhid, 418, 11 Mujāhir, 132, 11 Majbūb, 310, 1 Mujtahid, 418, 11                                                                                                                                       | مثلیمثنویمهازمهازیمهاهدمهاهرمهبوب                                     |
| Mish, 31, 1 Masnawī, 620, 1 Masna, 463, 1 Masna, 463, 1 Majaz, 519, 11 Majāzī, 662, 1 Mujāhid, 418, 11 Mujāhir, 132, 11 Majbūb, 310, 1 Mujtahid, 418, 11                                                                                                                                       | مثلیمثنویمهازمهازیمهاهدمهاهرمهبوب                                     |
| Mish, 31, 1 Masnawī, 620, 1 Masna, 463, 1 Masna, 463, 1 Majaz, 519, 11 Majāzī, 662, 1 Mujāhid, 418, 11 Mujāhir, 132, 11 Majbūb, 310, 1 Mujtahid, 418, 11 Mujtahid, 418, 11 Mujtahidūn, 548, 1, 574, 1                                                                                          | مثلیمثنویمهازمهازیمهاهدمهاهرمهبوبمهتودمهتود                   |
| Mish, 31, 1 Masnawī, 620, 1 Masna, 463, 1 Majaz, 519, 11 Majāzī, 662, 1 Mujāhid, 418, 11 Mujāhir, 132, 11 Majbūb, 310, 1 Mujtahid, 418, 11 Mujtahid, 418, 11 Mujtahid, 418, 11 Mujtahidūn, 548, 1, 574, 1. Majūb, 116, 1, 801, 1,                                                              | مثلیمثنویمهازمهازیمهاهدمهاهرمهبوب                                     |
| Mish, 31, 1 Masnawī, 620, 1 Masna, 463, 1 Majaz, 519, 11 Majāzī, 662, 1 Mujāhid, 418, 11 Mujāhir, 132, 11 Majbūb, 310, 1 Mujtahid, 418, 11 Mujtahid, 418, 11 Mujtahid, 418, 11 Mujtahidūn, 548, 1, 574, 1. Majūb, 116, 1, 801, 1,                                                              | مثلیمثنویمهازمهازیمهاهدمهاهرمهبوبمهتودمهتود                   |
| Mish, 31, 1 Masnawī, 620, 1 Masnawī, 620, 1 Masnā, 463, 1 Majaz, 519, 11 Majāzī, 662, 1 Mujāhid, 418, 11 Mujāhir, 132, 11 Majbūb, 310, 1 Mujtahid, 418, 11 Mujtahid, 418, 11 Mujtahidūn, 548, 1, 574, 1. Majzūb, 116, 1, 801, 1, 310, 1, 612, 1                                                | مثلیمثنویمهازمهازیمهاهدمهاهدمهبوبمهتودمهتودمهلوب          |
| Mish, 31, 1 Masnawī, 620, 1 Masnawī, 620, 1 Masna, 463, 1 Majaz, 519, 11 Majāzī, 662, 1 Mujāhid, 418, 11 Mujāhir, 132, 11 Majbūb, 310, 1 Mujtahid, 418, 11 Mujtahidūn, 548, 1, 574, 1. Majzūb, 116, 1, 301, 1, 310, 1, 612, 1 Majzūb-1-sāhik, 612, 11.                                         | مثلیمثنویمهازمهاریمهاهدمهاهدمهبوبمهتبدمهتبدمهدوبمهدوب |
| Mish, 31, 1 Masnawī, 620, 1 Masnawī, 620, 1 Masna, 463, 1 Majaz, 519, 11 Majāzī, 662, 1 Mujāhid, 418, 11 Mujāhir, 132, 11 Majbūb, 310, 1 Mujtahid, 418, 11 Mujtahidūn, 548, 1, 574, 1. Majzūb, 116, 1, 301, 1, 310, 1, 612, 1 Majzūb-1-sāhik, 612, 11.                                         | مثلیمثنویمهازمهازیمهاهدمهاهدمهبوبمهتودمهتودمهلوب          |
| Mish, 31, 1 Masnawī, 620, 1 Masnawī, 620, 1 Masna, 463, 1 Majaz, 519, 11 Majāzī, 662, 1 Mujāhid, 418, 11 Mujāhir, 132, 11 Majbūb, 310, 1 Mujtahidūn, 548, 1, 574, 1. Majzūb, 116, 1, 301, 1, 310, 1, 612, 1 Majzūb-1-sāhik, 612, 11. Mujmal, 519, 1;                                           | مثلیمثنویمهازمهاریمهاهدمهاهدمهبوبمهتبدمهتبدمهدوبمهدوب |
| Mish, 31, 1 Masnawī, 620, 1 Masna, 463, 1 Masna, 463, 1 Majaz, 519, 11 Majāzī, 662, 1 Mujāhid, 418, 11 Mujāhir, 132, 11 Mujāhir, 132, 11 Mujtahid, 418, 11 Mujtahidūn, 548, 1, 574, 1. Majzūb, 116, 1, 801, 1, 310, 1, 612, 1 Majzūb-1-sāhik, 612, 11. Mujmal, 519, 1; Majnun, 190, 1.; 801, 1 | مثلیمثنویمهازمهاریمهاهدمهاهدمهبوبمهتبدمهتبدمهدوبمهدوب |
| Mish, 31, 1 Masnawī, 620, 1 Masnawī, 620, 1 Masna, 463, 1 Majaz, 519, 11 Majāzī, 662, 1 Mujāhid, 418, 11 Mujāhir, 132, 11 Majbūb, 310, 1 Mujtahidūn, 548, 1, 574, 1. Majzūb, 116, 1, 301, 1, 310, 1, 612, 1 Majzūb-1-sāhik, 612, 11. Mujmal, 519, 1;                                           | مثلیمثنویمهازمهازیمهاهدمهاهرمهتوبمهتوبمهلوبمهدوبمهدون |
| Mish, 31, 1 Masnawī, 620, 1 Masna, 463, 1 Masna, 463, 1 Majaz, 519, 11 Majāzī, 662, 1 Mujāhid, 418, 11 Mujāhir, 132, 11 Mujāhir, 132, 11 Mujtahid, 418, 11 Mujtahidūn, 548, 1, 574, 1. Majzūb, 116, 1, 801, 1, 310, 1, 612, 1 Majzūb-1-sāhik, 612, 11. Mujmal, 519, 1; Majnun, 190, 1.; 801, 1 | مثلیمثنویمهازمهاریمهاهدمهاهدمهبوبمهتبدمهتبدمهدوبمهدوب |

| Muḥādasah, 367, 11           | محادثة                                  |
|------------------------------|-----------------------------------------|
| Muhāzarah, 418, 1            | معاضرة                                  |
|                              | محاصره                                  |
|                              | معب الفا                                |
| Mahabbah, 50, 1, 300, 1      | محمة                                    |
| Muhtasib, 85, 11, 41, 1      | محتسب                                   |
| Muhtakır, 418, 1             | محتكر                                   |
|                              | -                                       |
| Mihjan, 348, 1               | محم                                     |
| Mahjūr, 305, 11              | محجور                                   |
| Muhaddış, 367, 11            | محدث                                    |
| Mihrāb, 329, 1, 348, 1       | محراب                                   |
|                              |                                         |
| Mahram, 307, 11              | محرم                                    |
| Muharram, 355, 1, 407, 1,    | محرم                                    |
| 696 , 1               | • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • • |
| Muhrun, 418, 1               |                                         |
|                              | محرم                                    |
| Muharramāt, 417, 11          | محرمات                                  |
| Muhsinah, 318, i             | مسسة                                    |
| Mihkam, 342, 11              | محكم                                    |
| Muhkam, 518, 11              | سيكم                                    |
|                              | ميكبية                                  |
| Muhkamiyah, 568, 1           |                                         |
| Muhallil, 367, 11            | ميطل                                    |
| Muhammad, 399, 1             | محمد                                    |
| Muhammadı, 400, 1            | محمدي                                   |
|                              |                                         |
| Mahmal, Mahmil, 306, 1       | محمل                                    |
| Mahmud, 307, 11              | محمود                                   |
| Mahmiidiyah, 307, 11         | سحمود ية                                |
| Mahiz, 347, 11               | محيض                                    |
| Maniz, orr, ii               | ما                                      |
|                              | مجاممات                                 |
| Mukhālatah, 419, 1           | معالطه                                  |
| Mukhaddarah, 419, 1          | محدرة                                   |
| Mulhlaningh 560              | محلوقية                                 |
| Makhluqiyah, 569, 1          | سيستستست                                |
| Mudahanah, 187, 11           | سداهية                                  |
| Mudabbir, 367, 1, 624, 11    | مدبر                                    |
| Madrasah, 342, 11, 566, 11   | مدرسة                                   |
| Mudda'i, 367. 1              | مدغى                                    |
| Muddai, 007. 1               | مدعي ما                                 |
| Mudda'ā 'alaihi, 82, 1,      | مدعى علي                                |
| 367, 1                       |                                         |
| Maddah, 686, 1               | مدة                                     |
| Madean 909 11 357 11         | مدیں                                    |
| Madyan, 303, 11, 357, 11     | .11 .11.                                |
|                              | سدينه الد                               |
| Muzakkır, 472, ı             | مدکرمدھب                            |
| Mazhab, 220, 1, 348 11,      | سدهب                                    |
| 536, 1                       |                                         |
|                              | -1 -1-                                  |
| Muzahhabāt, 460, 1           | مذهبات                                  |
| Murābahah, 420, 11           | مراحة                                   |
| Muraqabah, 420, 11, 705, 11  | مراقية                                  |
| Mariaha 490 a                | مراهق                                   |
| Murāhiq, 420, 11             | مراهقة                                  |
| Murahaqah, 420, 11           | سراطفه                                  |
| Murtajis, 390, 1             | مرجس                                    |
| Murtadd, 16, 1, 207, 1, 655, | مرقد 1                                  |
| Massirch Q07 11              | مرثية                                   |
| Marsiyah, 327, 11            | 8                                       |
| Murjiyah, 421, 11            | سرجية                                   |
| Markh, 129, 1                | صرخ_                                    |
| Mırzabah, 352, 11            | مرزية                                   |
| Mursai, 422, 1, 475, 11      | مرسل                                    |
|                              | .\4                                     |
| Murshid, 120, 11, 422, 1,    |                                         |
| 458, u, 609, 1, 655, u       |                                         |
|                              |                                         |

| 2.4                                  | , 40                      |
|--------------------------------------|---------------------------|
| Marqad, 48, 1                        | مرقد                      |
| Marwah, 328, 1                       |                           |
|                                      | مروة                      |
| Mirrikh, 73, u , 201, n              | مريع                      |
| Marid, 134, 1                        | مرید                      |
| Murid, 120, 11, 421, 11, 704, 1      | صريد , 11 , 609مريد , |
| Mariz, 668, 1                        | صريف                      |
| Maryam, 328, 1, 356, 11              | صرفهم و                   |
| Muzābanah, 426, 1                    | مواينة                    |
| Mızāh, 249, 11                       | سراه                      |
| Muzāra'ah, 426, 1                    | مزارعة                    |
| Mazāmīr, 440, 1                      | موامير                    |
| Muzaffat, 99, 11, 658, 1             | مرفيف                     |
| Muzawwir, 699, 1                     | 39}                |
| Masa', 178, 1 , 464, 11              | مرورمساء              |
| Masabihu 's-sunnah,                  | مسابيع السنة              |
| 353, 1                               | P1 =1                     |
| Musāqāt, 423, 1                      | مساقاة                    |
| Musamarah, 423, 1                    | مسامرة                    |
| Musta'jır, 176, 1                    | مستاجر                    |
| Musta'mın, 424, 1                    | مستامن                    |
| Mustabin-1-ghair                     | مستبین غیر مر             |
| marsiim, 81, 1, 82, 1                | , ,- 0                    |
|                                      | مستبين مرسوم              |
| 82, 1                                | 19-7 021                  |
| Mustasniyah, 569, 1                  | مستثنية                   |
|                                      | مستحاهة                   |
| Mustahazah, 423, 11                  |                           |
| Mustahabb, 156, 1, 286,              |                           |
| Maejid, 329, 1, 366, 1               | مسجد                      |
| Masjidu 'l-aqşā, 227, 1, 559, 11     |                           |
| Masjidu 't-taqwā,346. i          | مسيهد التقوى              |
| Masjidu 'l-jami', 330, 11            | مسهد المامع               |
| Masudu 'l-harām.                     | مسجد الجامع               |
| Masjidu 'l-harām,227, 1, 333, 11 |                           |
| Masjidu 'l-khaif, 343, ii            | مسجد الحيف                |
| Masjidu 'n-nabi, 343, ii             | مسجد النبي                |
| Masah, 81, 1, 328, 11, 4             | مسع 11 77                 |
| Musrif, 114, 1                       | مسرف                      |
| Miskin, 353, 1, 700, 11              | مسكنين                    |
| Musallam, 586, 1                     | مسلممسلم 11, 428      |
| Muslim, 40, 11, 400, 1,              | مسلم 423. 11              |
| Musallam ılaı-hı, 561, ı             | مسلم الية                 |
| Musulman 400 : 5 499                 | مسلمان                    |
| Musalman, 400, 1; 423, 1             | مسلم فیه                  |
| Musallam fi-hi, 561, i               | مسلم مید                  |
| Muslimun, 40, 11                     | مسلمون                    |
| Masnun, 346, 11                      | مستون                     |
| Miswāk, 353, 1, 470, 11, 477, 11     | مسواك                     |
| Masih, 37, 1, 54, 11                 | - Cum                     |
| Masihu 'd-dajjāl, 64, 11             | مسيع الدجال               |
| Masihi, 431, 1                       | مسيهون                    |
| Musailamah, 422, 11                  | مسيلمة                    |
| Mushāhadah, 423, 1                   | سشاهدة                    |
| Mushabbihah, 423, 1                  | مشبهة                     |
|                                      |                           |
|                                      | 94                        |

| Mushabbihiyah, 569, 1.                     | مشبهية         | Mufsid, 286, 1, 867, L                          | مرفیسانمرفیس     |
|--------------------------------------------|----------------|-------------------------------------------------|----------------------|
| Mushtarak, 518, 1                          | مشترك          | Mufassar, 518, 11                               | مفعول                |
| Mushtari, 73,11, 201, 11                   | مشترى          | Maffül, 530, 1, 684, 1                          | مظود                 |
| Mushrik, 190, 1, 207, 1;                   | ا صشوك         | Mafqud, 303, 11                                 |                      |
| 818, 1 , 423, 1 , 655, 1 ,                 | 1              | Magamu Ibrahim, 156, 1.,                        | בשיאן ואלובם         |
| 661, n                                     |                | 313, u , 337, u , 340, 1.                       | مقام الحنيا          |
| Mashru', 286, 1.                           | مضروع          |                                                 | محديها بالمحدثة      |
| Mash'al, 326, 1                            | مشعلمشعوق  | 338, 11                                         | مقام الحنف           |
| Mash'uq, 301, 1                            | مععوق          | Maqamu 'l-Hanafi, 338, 11 Maqamu 'sh-Shafi'i,   | مقام الشافع          |
|                                            | مشكأة الب      |                                                 |                      |
| 353, 1                                     | 154.           | 338, 11.                                        | مقام محمود           |
| Mushkil, 519, 1                            | مشکلمصاحرة | Maqam mahmud, 313, 11 Muqayazah, 33, 1, 420, 11 | مقايلة               |
| Muşaharah, 317, 1                          | مساهية         | Maqbarah, 48, 1                                 | مقبرة                |
| Musafahah, 422, u , 571, 11                |                |                                                 | مقتدى                |
| Musaddiq, 422, 11                          | مصدق           | Muqtadā, 420, 11Muqtadī, 420, 11            | مقتدى                |
| Migr, 108, 1                               | مصرمصلی    | Maqsarah, 318, 11                               | Bygatha              |
| Musalla, 224, u; 423, 1                    |                | Muqauqis, 420, 1                                | مقوقس                |
| Muzārabah, 308, 11, 426, 1                 | مضاربة         |                                                 | مكأء                 |
| Matar, 532, 11                             | مطرمطرقة   | Mukā', 666, 11                                  | مكاتب                |
| Mitraqah, 27, 11, 152, 11,                 |                | Mukātib, 419, 1                                 | مكاري                |
| 353, 1.                                    | مطوف           | Mukārī, 419, 1Maktab, 566, 11               | مكتب                 |
| Mutauwif, 341, 1                           | معاتل          | Makr, 187, 11                                   | مکرمکروه ۱,۱     |
| Ma'āqil, 302, 1                            | معاملات        | Makrūh, 58, 1, 286, 1, 31                       | مكروة 1.1            |
| Mu'amalat, 285, 11                         | معانقة         | Makkah, 310, 1 seqq                             | مكة                  |
| Mu'anaqah, 366, 11                         | معاهد          | Muliā, 419, 11                                  | ملا                  |
| Mu'āhid, 366, 11                           | معتدة          | Mula'ah (milayeh), 96, 1                        | سلامة                |
| Mu'taddah, 317, 1, 424, 1                  |                | Malahim, 664, 11                                | مللحم                |
| Mu'tazilah, 425, 1, 478, 1,                |                | Malamatiyah, 620, n                             | ملامتية              |
| 568, 1                                     | معتلى          | Mala'ıkah, 40, 11                               | ملائكة               |
| Mu'taq, 425, 1                             | معتق           | Mulhid, 207, 1, 419, 11,                        | ملحد                 |
| Mu'tıq, 426, 1                             | معتمر          | 655, 1                                          |                      |
| Mu'tamır, 425, 1                           | معيوة          | Mulhaq, 419, 1                                  | ملعق                 |
| Mu'jizah, 269, u , 279, 1 ,                | 274.0          | Malak, 15, 1, 484, 11                           | ملك                  |
| 850, 1Mufartal 01 1                    | معيدل          | Malik, 74, 11., 278, 11 , 548                   | ملك ١١ ،             |
| Mu'ajjal, 91, 1                            | معهن           | Mulk, 283, 1                                    | ملك                  |
| Mi'jan, 340, 1/ Ma'din, 545, 1, 350, 1 | معدن           | Malaku 'l-maut, 79, 11,                         | ملك الموت            |
| Mi'rāj, 44, 11, 351, 11, 464               |                | 222, 11 , 311, 11 , 541, 1 ,                    |                      |
| 485, n                                     | , , 0 ,        | 605, n                                          |                      |
| Ma'rıfah, 609, 11, 610, 1                  | معرفة          | Malakut, 609, 11                                | ملكوت                |
| Mu'attaliyah, 568, u                       | معطلية         | Maliki, 286, 11                                 | ملکیملا ک |
| Mu'aqqıbat, 279, 1                         | معقبأري        | Malang, 312, 1.                                 | ملنگ                 |
| Mu'allagăt, 460, 1                         | معلقات         | Millah, 220, 1 , 348, 11 , 8                    | ملة 36, 1            |
| Mu'allım, 366, 11                          | معلم           | Mamāt, 312, 11                                  | ممات                 |
| Mu'allimu 'l-mala'ikah,                    | معلم الملائكة  | Mumtanı'u 'l-wujud,                             | ممتنع الوجود         |
| 366, 11                                    |                | 113, 1 , 693, 1                                 | ,, -                 |
| Ma'mūdiyah, 36, 1; 312, 1                  | معمودية        | Mumark 419 n                                    | ممسك                 |
| Ma'na wa bayan, 106, 11                    | معنی و بیان    | Mumkinu 'l-wujud,                               | ممكن الوجود          |
| Mawnah, 350, 11                            | معرية          | 113, 1 , 693, 1                                 | ,, -                 |
| Mafyah, 568, 1                             | Lyen           | Mamluk, 312, 11, 596, 11                        | سملوك                |
| Maghrib, 177, u, 464, u                    | مغرب           | Mann, 313, 1                                    | •                    |
| Maghirah, 451 1, 564, 1                    | 8,000          | Manat, 191, n , 818, 1                          | سمنابع           |
| Mufakharah, 43, 11                         | مفاعرة         | Munajat, 195, ii , 420, 1 ,                     | عاجاته               |
| Miftāhu 'l-jannah, 348, 1                  | مغناج الجنة    | 469, 1.                                         |                      |
| Mufti, 58, i , 367, 1                      | مفتى           | Manarah, 313, 1                                 | مارة                 |
| Mufarrihu 'l-ahzān, 367, 1.                |                | Manasıl, 609, 11                                | سازل                 |
| warmersha a minumi and the                 | 9. J. O.       | , , , , , , , , , , , , , , , , , , , ,         | -                    |

| Manasık, 313, 1               | مناسك           |
|-------------------------------|-----------------|
| Munafiq, 207, 1, 419, 11      | معافق           |
| Managan 107                   |                 |
| Munāfiqun, 187, 11            | معافقون         |
| Munaqilah, 128, 11            | مشاقلة          |
| Munākahāt, 286, 1             | مداكحات         |
| Manam, 92, 1                  | معام            |
| Mimbar, 274, 11, 329, 1,      | منسا            |
| 340, 11 , 349, 1 , 476, 11    | )        |
| Minhah, 350, 1                | 2               |
| Manual 400 400                | ملحة            |
| Manzil, 489, ii , 492, i      | سنزل            |
| Mansak, Mansık, 545, 11,      | ميسك            |
| 551, 11.                      |                 |
| Mansakh, 519, n               | منسوخ           |
| Munaşşaf, 420, 1              | منصف            |
| Mantiq, 106, 11               | منطق            |
| Mintaqatu 'l-buruj, 201, n    |                 |
| Must 987 . 400 .              | المرابع المرابع |
| Munf, 357, 1 , 420, 1         | ميف             |
| Munfiq, 420, 1                | منفق            |
| Munaqqilah, 680, 11           | معقلة           |
| Manqueiyah, 569, 1            | منقومية         |
| Munkar, 15, n , 27, n , 46, 1 | منکو            |
| 79, 11 , 420, 1               | , , ,           |
|                               | 2 1.            |
| Mankühah, 428, 11             | معكوحة          |
| Manla, 313, 1                 | مىلا            |
| Mınä, 349, 1                  | مبنى            |
| Manihah, 313, 1               | منيحة           |
| Muhābiyah, 620, 11            | مهابية          |
| Muhājir, 367, n               | مهاجر           |
| Muhājirūn, 16, 1, 367, 11     | مهاجرون         |
| Muhana Makamala 419           | المهاجرون       |
| Muhayat, Muhaya'ah, 417, n    | مهاياة          |
| Mahr, 91, 11, 307, 11, 318, 1 | ' مهر ۱۱        |
| 322, 11                       |                 |
| Mahru 'l-mışl, 314, 11        | مهر المثل       |
| Maut, 79, 1, 347, 1           | موت             |
| Mütah, 380, 11                | موتة            |
| Mu'jır, 176, 1                | _               |
| Mu'anal Ol                    | موجر            |
| Mu'ajjal, 91, n               | موجن            |
| Muwahhid, 426, 1, 661, 11     | موحد            |
| Mūd1', 83, 11                 | مودع            |
| Mawaddah, 300, 1              | مودة            |
| Mu'azzın, 42, 1, 329, 11,     | موکن            |
| 866, n., 465, n               |                 |
|                               |                 |
| Müsä, 356, 1. seqq , 440, 1,  | الموسى          |
| 475, 11                       | 1.              |
| Musiqa, 423, 11               | موسيقة          |
| Muwashshahah, 462, 1          | موهيعة          |
| Mūşī, 667, 1                  | مومی            |
| Mūşā b1-h1, 667, 1            | مومی به         |
| Müşâ la-hu, 667, 1            | مومى له         |
|                               | 1               |
| Mūzihah, 128, 11, 680, 11     | موضعة مسطا      |
| Muwatta', 426, 1, 570, 11     | .,              |
| Maulid, 346, n.               | مولد            |
| Maulidu 'n-nabî, 346, 11      | مولد القبو      |
| Maulūd, 662, 1                | مولود           |
| Maulawi, 58, 1 , 346, 11      | مولوي           |
| Maula, 346, n                 | مدار            |
|                               | G-5-            |
|                               |                 |

| Mu'min, 40, u , 400, 1 ,       | مومن                      |
|--------------------------------|---------------------------|
| 419, n , 618, n                |                           |
| Mu'minun, 40, 11               | مومنون                    |
| Mauhūb, 140, 11                | مرهرب                     |
| Mauhūb lahu, 140, n            | سوهوب له                  |
| Ma'ūdah, 846, 11               | 8.3                       |
| Mu'auwal, 518, 11              | موهوب لهمؤودةمؤول |
| Mıyan, 358, 1, 556, 1          | سرول                      |
| Maitah, 49, ii                 | ميآي                      |
|                                | منيتة                     |
| Mīsāq, 61, 1, 353, 1., 647, 11 | سيثاق                     |
| Mir, 350, 1 , 556, 1           | مير                       |
| Miras, 207, 1                  | سيراث                     |
| Mīrzā, 352, 11.                | ميرزا                     |
| Mîzäb, 337, 1                  | ميراب                     |
| Mîzābu '1-rahmah, 257, 1 40-   | مهزاب الر                 |
| Mîzan, 74, 11., 201, 11, 358,  | ميران                     |
| Maisir, 50, n., 133, n., 300,  |                           |
| Mīgāt, 350, 1, 694, i          | ميقاس                     |
| Mikäl, 15, 11, 348, 1.         | ميكال                     |
|                                |                           |
| Mikā'il, 15, 11, 348, 1,       | ميكاكيل                   |
| 440, 1                         |                           |

ల

| N, 518, 1                               | 44                      |
|-----------------------------------------|-------------------------|
| Nābāligh, 427, 1                        | ننا ہائغ            |
| Najiyah, 569, 1                         | ناجية                   |
| Nad-1-'Ali, 427, 1                      | ناد على                 |
| Nar, 109, 11 , 129, 1                   | عا.                     |
| Nārawā, 286, 1, 430, 1                  | غارغاروا            |
| Nāsikh, 431, 1, 519, 11                 | (2)                     |
| Nāsūt, 431, 1 , 609, 11                 | مالورفاسعفاسونت |
| Nasit, 431, 1, 005, 11Nasih, 472, 1 | المودف                  |
|                                         | فاصع                    |
| Năqus, 430, 11                          | فاقوس                   |
| Nakih, 428, 11                          | فاكح                    |
| Namus, 429, 11., 485, 1                 | فاموس                   |
| Na'ıb, 427, 11                          | فاكت                    |
| Na'ılah, 191, 11                        | المالة                  |
| Nabatat, 581, 1                         | فيأثأنه                 |
| Nabbash, 427, 1                         | فياش                    |
| Nabaz, 433, u.                          | قيزقبوة             |
| Nubuwah, 486, 1                         | نبوة                    |
| Nabī, 14, 11, 427, 1., 449, 1,          | نبی                     |
| 475, n., 618, n.                        | _                       |
| Nabiyu 'llāh, 229, 11, 475, 11          | نبي الله                |
| Nabīz, 427, 1                           | لبيذ                    |
| Najāsah, 427, 11                        | خسام                    |
| Najāshī, 427, ii                        | بهاهي                   |
| Najāt, 564, 1.                          | _ الجز                  |
| Naid, 17, 1, 427, 11                    | Japan                   |
| Najran, 58, 1.; 428, 1                  | نجرأن                   |
| Najis, 629, 11                          | نهرأننيس            |
| Najah, 428, 11                          | مهض                     |
| Nahr, 427, 11 , 551, 11                 | منو                     |
|                                         | •                       |

|                                                          | A                  |
|----------------------------------------------------------|--------------------|
| lakh', 428, n                                            | 200                |
| Vakhlah, 428, 11                                         | المحالة            |
| Vadar, 688, 11                                           | ندر                |
| Vazr, 439, 11, 658, 11, 662, 1Vazr wa niyaz, 431, 11 | خڌ رُنا |
| Vuzūl, 436, 11                                           | ندر د              |
| Visa, 430, 11., 677, 1                                   | قزولفيساه      |
| Nasab, 430, 11 , 577, 1                                  | نسب                |
|                                                          | لسيعى              |
| Nasr, 191, 11 , 431, 1                                   | السر               |
| Nasnäs, 137, 11                                          | شبربسنام       |
| Nasi', 214, 1                                            | نسىءنشائد      |
| Nashā'id li-Sulaimān, المان 440, 1                       | نشالد              |
| Nass, 431, 1 , 518, 11                                   | كص                 |
| Niṣāb, 73, 1 , 434, 11 , 552, 11 ,                       | نصاب               |
| 699, n                                                   |             |
| Nasārā, 53, 11, 431, 1                                   | صاري               |
| Nasb, 684, 1                                             | ھے                 |
| Nașiân, 53, 1                                            | بصران              |
| Naşraniyah, 53, 1                                        | لصرافيا            |
| Naștur, 432, 1                                           | نصطور              |
| Niaf, 489, 11 , 492, 1                                   | سف                 |
| Nasy-1-karim, 431, 1                                     | بص کر              |
| Nagül, 275, 1 , 431, 1.Nasīhah, 286, 1               | نصوح               |
| Nitaq, 140, 11                                           | طاق                |
| Nazāmīyah, 568, 11                                       | طاميا              |
| Nifas, 140, 1 , 427, 11 , 433, 11                        | نعاس               |
| Nifaq, 187, 11, 433, 11                                  | الفاق              |
| Nafs, 427, 1                                             | نفث                |
| Nafkh, 427, 1                                            | نغع                |
| Nafs, 427, 11, 604, 11, 678, 1                           | نفس                |
| Nafsa', 427, 11                                          | طساء               |
| Nafs ammārah, 60, 1 قرامةNafs lawwāmah, 60, 1 قرامة  | بطس                |
| Nafs mutma'ınnah, 60, 1                                  | بغس                |
| Nafs mulhamah, 60, 1                                     | وفس                |
| Nafaqah, 308, 1, 427, 1, 672, 11                         | نفقة               |
| Nan, 427, 1 , 434, 11                                    | بقل                |
| Nafy, 261, 1                                             | نفی                |
| Nafy wa 18 bat, 63, 1,                                   | نفی و              |
| ,                                                        |                    |
| Nuqat, 683, 11 seqq                                      | - A                |
| Nuqtah, 307, 11Naql sahih, 430, 1                    | تغطة               |
| Nuque, 325, 11                                           | نقل                |
| Nuqūt, 325, 11Nuqū'u 'z-zabīb, 436, 11Nagūr 90   | - B                |
| Naqir, 99, 1, 658, 1                                     | نقير               |
| Nikah, 88, u , 313, n , 433, n ,                         | مكاح               |
| 575, 11 , 655, 11                                        | U                  |
| Nikahu 'l-mant. 677                                      | نكاح ا             |
| Nakir, 15, ii , 27, ii , 46, i .                         | فكير               |
| 77, 11 . 42U. 1 . 428, 11                                | •                  |
| Namaz, 428, 11 , 464, 11Numind 493 m                 | قماراند ا      |
| Amming 444 H                                             | 1 4                |
|                                                          |                    |

| Nahār, 79, 1                | لما.                     |
|-----------------------------|--------------------------|
|                             | 200                      |
| Nihāyah, 33, 1              | વ્યુપ                    |
| Nahju 'l-balaghah, 427, 11  | نهج البلاغة              |
| Nahr, 546, 1                | . 6.                     |
|                             | 74                       |
| Nawāsikh, 530, 11           | لوامخ                    |
| Nawa'ıb, 431, 11            | نواكب                    |
| Nuh, 434, 11 seqq, 440, 1,  |                          |
|                             | 43                       |
| 475, 11                     |                          |
| Nauhah, 431, 1              | كوحاة                    |
|                             | -                        |
| Nür, 74, 11                 | فور                      |
| Nūru 'l-anwār, 436, 11      | غورغور الاغوار       |
| Nūru 'l-quds, 301, n        | نور الغدس                |
|                             | ,                        |
| Nür-1-Muhammadi, 436, 11    | لور محمدی                |
| Nau Roz, 127, u , 431, n ,  | فوروز                    |
| 696, 1                      | 2217                     |
|                             |                          |
| Naum, 600, n                | لوم                      |
| Nūn, 436, 1                 | نبأر                     |
|                             | 95                       |
| Niyaz, 439, 11              | ميار                     |
| Niyazu 'llab, 434, n        | لوقنيازنيار الله |
| Niyaz-1-rasul, 434, 11      | نيازُ رسول               |
|                             |                          |
| Nailu 'l-maram, 672, ii     | نيل المرام               |
| Ninawa, 434, 11             | لينوى                    |
|                             |                          |
| Niyah, 45, 1, 434, 11, 465, | نية 11                   |

8

| 1 | Hábil, 2, 1, 440, 1           | هابيل              |
|---|-------------------------------|--------------------|
| 1 | Hājar, 154, 1                 | هاجر               |
|   | Hádī, 1, n , 73, n            | هادي               |
|   | Härifah, 128, n               | مارنة              |
|   | Harut wa Marut, 167, 11 29    | هارون و مر         |
| 3 | Hārūn, 362, 1 , 440, 1 , 475, | هارون ۱۱           |
| 1 | Hashimah, 128, n., 680, n.    | هاهمة              |
|   | Hāmān, 360, 1                 | هامان              |
|   | Hāwiyah, 169, 1 , 171, 1 ,    | هاوية              |
|   | 625, 1                        | -,                 |
| 3 | Hā'i], 39, 1                  | ماكل               |
|   | Habā', 152, 1                 | هباء               |
|   | Hubal, 181, 11                |                    |
| ] | Hibah, 140, n , 173, n        | ھبلھيڌ         |
| 1 | Hijrah, 174, ii , 371, ii ,   | هيورة              |
|   | 373, 1                        |                    |
| 1 | Hajîn, 179, 1                 | ()                 |
| ] | Hidayah, 174, 1               | هداية              |
|   | Hudhud, 283, 11               | هدهد               |
|   | Hady, 154, 1, 551, 11         | هدي                |
| 1 | Hadiyah, 154, 1               | هدية               |
| ] | Hirrah, 49, 11                | هوة                |
|   |                               | هقنت مفاتع         |
|   |                               | هضت قرادا,         |
|   | Hamzah, 685, 1                | عمرةعمرة الصلح |
|   | Hamzatu 'l-oat' 685 u.        | عمرة القلع         |
| 7 | Hamratu 'l-wasl, 685, 11      | همزة الوسل         |
| 7 | U                             | نبة                |
|   |                               |                    |

| Huwa, Hū, 181, 11, 705, 11 | seqq.       |
|----------------------------|-------------|
| Hawa', 169, 1, 300, 11     | هواء        |
| Hawans, 169, 1             | هواجس       |
| Hawajim, 169, 1            | هواجم       |
| Hūd, 18, 1 , 181, 11       | هُوُد '     |
| Hauwaz, 681, 1             | _           |
| Hılal, 175, n , 433, 1     | هورملال |
| Haiyülä, 169, 11           | هيولى       |
|                            |             |

و

Wājib, 156, 1, 286, 1, 663, 1, بحبه 670, 11 واجب الاتماع Wājibu 'l-ittibā', 663, i Wājibu 'l-adā', 663, 1 واجب الاداء واجب الوجود , Wājibu 'l-wujūd, 113, 1 663, 1 , 693, 1 Wāris, 170, 11 Wāridiyah, 568, m Wāsitah, 664, n Wā'ız, 472, 1, 663, 1 Wāqi'ah, 664, 1 Wāqifiyah, 569, 1 Wālī, 663, n Wähib, 140, n Waba', 452, 1 Wabil, 430, 11 Witr, 434, 11, 670, 11 Wasan, 191, u , 664, n Wasani, 190, 1 , 207, 1 , 664, u وتن Wajd, 610, 1, 663, 1 Wajhu 'llāh, 663, 1 Wujūd, 113, 1 , 655, 11 , 693, ı Wajihun fi 'd-dunya wa 'l-ākhnah, 229, u Wahdaniyah, 659, 1 وحدة الوعودية Wahdatu 'l-wujudiyah, 659, 1 Wahy, 213, n , 485, 1 Wahyu 'l-Qur'an, 213, 11. Wahyu 'l-qalb, 218, 11. Wahy ghair matlu, 213, 11, 639, 11 ی فیر معا Wadd, 191, 11 Wudd, 300, 1 Wadā'ı', 83, 11. Wadi'ah, 83, 11 , 659, 1 פננ פנית W1zr, 666, 1 Wazir, 666, 1 Waswasah, 665, 1 Wasilah, 664, 11 Wasaya, 41, 11, 664, 11 Wasl, 610, i , 665, 1

| •                                         | 170                         |
|-------------------------------------------|-----------------------------|
| Waşî, 112, 11 , 667, 1                    |                             |
| Waqiyah, 41, 11, 667, 1                   | وميومية                 |
| Wazū' (wuzū'), 3, 1, 4, 1,                | 81 )                        |
| 329, i , 353, i , 477, 11 ,               | وفوه , 81,1                 |
| 693, 1                                    |                             |
| Wazīfah, 666, 1                           | Za b                        |
| Wa'dah, 61, 1                             | وطيفة                       |
| Wa'z, 569, 11, 666, 1                     | وعده                        |
| Wafat, 79, 1                              | Bue,Be,Bli,         |
| Waqt, 664, 1                              | رقه                         |
| Waqs, 664, 1                              | رتب                         |
|                                           | وتص م                       |
| Waqf, 330, n , 517, n , 60                |                             |
| Wuquf, 693, 1                             | وقوفمكالة               |
| Wakalah, Wikalah, 663, 1                  |                             |
| Wakil, 12, 1, 314, 11, 322,               | وکیل , 11                   |
| 663, 1                                    | tt 1- 1 <                   |
| Wakil 'ala 'l-wasiyah,                    | وديل على ال                 |
| 112, 11Wala', 663, 1                  |                             |
| Wala'u 'l-ataqah, 663, 11                 | ولاء                        |
| Wala'u 'l-muwalat, 663, 11                | ولاء العداقة                |
| Walanch 181 . 016 .                       | ولاء الموالاة               |
| Wilayah, 151, 1, 316, 1Walad, 604, 11 | ولايةولدولد الحالال |
| Waladu 'l-halāl, 293, 1                   | وند                         |
| Waladu i-paiai, 290, i                    | ولد الحادل                  |
| Waladu 'z-zinā', 39, ii                   | ولد الزناء                  |
| 200, 11 , 293, 1 , 577, 1                 | P. U. a                     |
| Waladu 'l-mula'anah,                      | ولد الملعنة                 |
| 293, 1                                    |                             |
| Walah, 300, 11                            | وله                         |
| Walahan, 663, 11                          | ولهاي                       |
| Walwalah, 338, 1                          | ولولة                       |
| Wali, 74, 1, 278, 11, 556,                | ولمی ، ۱                    |
| 613, n , 663, n                           | _                           |
| Wali ba'id, 663, 11                       | ولى بعيد                    |
| Wali jabir, 663, 11                       | ولى جبير                    |
| Wali ahd, 663, u                          | ولى عهد                     |
| Wali nı'mah, 663, n                       | ولى نعمةوليمة           |
| Walimah, 663, n                           | وليمة                       |
| Wahhābī, 659, 1 seqq                      | وهابي                       |
| Wahmiyah, 568, 11                         | وهمية                       |
|                                           |                             |

ی

 Yājūj, 440, 1., 540, 1
 عاجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و ماجوع و

| Yad, 161, in.                 | 34                       |
|-------------------------------|--------------------------|
| Yadu 'llah, 161, u , 662, 1 , | the Age                  |
| 698, i.                       |                          |
| Y S, 518, 1                   | يس                       |
| Ya'sūb. 694. 11.              | يعسوب                    |
| Ya'qub, 223, u., 440, 1.,     | يعقرب                    |
| 475, u                        |                          |
| Ya'ūq, 191, 11, 695, 11       | يعوق                     |
| Yaghue, 191, 11, 693, 11      | يغوث                     |
| Yaqtin, 694, 1                | يعلين                    |
| Yalak (yelek), 94, 1          | يلك                      |
| Yalamlam, 694, 1              | يلملم                    |
| Yaman, 17, 1                  | يمن                      |
| Yamaniyah, 46, 1              | يملية                    |
| Yamin, 437, 1                 | يمين                     |
| Yaminu 'l-lachw, 437, 1       | يمين اللعو               |
| Yahud, 235, 1., 694, 1        | يهود                     |
| Yahûşû, 544, 1                | يهودي                    |
| Yuhannā, 696, 11              | يومنا                    |
| Vūz. 184. 1.                  | يور                      |
| Yusuf, 250, 1 segq., 440, 1,  | يوسف                     |
| 475, 11                       |                          |
| Yūsuf wa Zulaikhā,            | يوسف و رليو              |
| 250, 1 , 716, n               | 4                        |
| Yūsha', 255, 1, 440, 1        | دپرهج                |
| Yufannah (Yephunneh), 48,     | يوفنة 11                 |
| Yaum, 79, 1, 694, 11          |                          |
| Yaumu 'l-ignain, 79, i,       | يوميوم الأثنين       |
| 694, n                        |                          |
| Yaumu 'l-ahad, 49, i,         | sen Ilac                 |
| 694, n                        |                          |
| Yaumu 'l-arbi'a', 79, 1,      | يوم الربعاء              |
| 694 11                        | •                        |
| Yaumu 'l-ınqıţa', 695, ı      | يوم الانطاعيوم البعث |
| Yaumu 'l-ba's, 587, 1         | يوم البعث                |
|                               | . , , -                  |

| Yaumu 't-taghabun, 695, in   | التعابن                            | r's    |
|------------------------------|------------------------------------|--------|
| Yaumu 't-talaq, 695, ii      | العلاق                             | 40     |
| Yaumu 't-tanād, 695, 11      | العباد                             | 44     |
| Various 's solass' 70        | العلاقاء                           |        |
| Yaumu 'a-galaga', 79, 1,     | اجتزعم                             | L34    |
| 694, 11                      |                                    |        |
| Yaumu 'l-jam', 695, 1.       | الجمعالجمعة                    | by.    |
| Yaumu 'l-jum'ah, 79, 1,      | الهبعة                             | 47     |
| 694, n                       |                                    |        |
| Yaumu 'l-hara, 695, 1        | المراء                             | ren le |
| Yaumu 'l-hisab, 537, 1,      | المراءالمسام                   | 4      |
| 695, 1                       |                                    | • •    |
| Yaumu 'l-hashr, 168, u ,     | العشر                              | يرم    |
| 695, 1                       | , —                                | 1.3"   |
| Yaumu 'l-khuruj, 695, 1      | 11                                 |        |
| Various 11 library, 605      | الحووجالعلودالحميسر        | 77     |
| Yaumu 'l-khulud, 695, 1      | 3                                  | 77     |
| Yaumu 'l-khamis, 79,1,       | الحجيسر                            | 4      |
| 274, n , 694, n              | . 11                               |        |
| Yaumu 'd-dīn, 537, 1,        | الدين                              | 44     |
| 69 i , 11             |                                    |        |
| Yaumu 's-sabt, 79, 1,        | السيت                              | يوم    |
| 694, u                       |                                    |        |
| Yaumu 's-sabu', 695, u       | السبحالعاهورا                  | 44     |
| Yaumu 'l-'ashūrā', 694, 11 . | العاهورا                           | est.   |
| Yaumu 'l-faşl, 537, 1 ,      | العيل                              | 44     |
| 695, 1                       | •                                  | -      |
|                              | MAL                                | ددم    |
| Yaumu 'l-fitr, 695, 1        | العارالعرالعيامالعياسة |        |
| Yaumu 'l-qarr, 695, 1        | 1.41                               | 17     |
| Yaumu 'l-qıyam, 482, 1       | 100                                | 79     |
| Yaumu 'l-qiyamah, 587, 1,    | القيامة                            | 44     |
| 695, 1                       |                                    |        |
| Yaumu 'u-nahr, 157, 11,      | البحر                              | *      |
| 192, 11, 551 n, 695, L       |                                    |        |
| Yaumu 'l-wa'id, 695, 1.      | الوعيد                             | 42     |
| Yaumun ma'lumun, 695 1       | معلوم                              | ~      |
| Yunus, 249, n 440, 1 , 475   |                                    |        |
| Tanana Mana at Asol 1 2 and  | ·, •                               | 7      |